The Daily Intelligencer.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL — LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL — CHARITY IN ALL.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JULY 2, 1903 NO. 51

235 OUT OF 282 WERE KILLED

Survivors Rendered Insane by Their Awful Agony.

Scene at the Mouth of the Pit in the Hanna, Wyoming, Fire Damp Disaster Was Heartrending—Fire Bosses Reported Mine All Safe on First Inspection, But Met Death While Making a Second Inspection.

Hanna, Wyo., July 2.—Probably the worst disaster in the history of Wyoming occurred here Tuesday when a terrible explosion of fire damp in Union Pacific Mine No. 1 shut off the means of escape of 200 men, who were working in the pot. The fire, which started immediately, defied all efforts of the rescuers, and there is slight hope of saving any of the men. Twenty-eight bodies of those working near the mouth of the mine have been brought out, all of them horribly mangled and some still showing slight evidences of life.

The Union Pacific Railroad Company, which owns the mines, has a large force working to reach the imprisoned men. The flames seemed to be abating, and there was hope of getting most of the bodies out by yesterday. So tense is the excitement that no one seems able to say how the disaster occurred. The supposition is that a careless miner allowed his lamp to come in contact with fire damp.

Survivors Go Insane.

Hanna, Wyo., July 2.—According to the best information obtainable yesterday morning, 235 men out of 282 who were in the mine were killed in the explosion here Tuesday. The majority of the victims are Finlanders and negroes.

A small army of rescuers, spurred on by the frantic appeal of wives, mothers and children who gathered at the mine, worked with desperate energy all night. They tell of pitiful scenes in the mine. Some of the survivors were driven insane and fought furiously against rescue. Dazed, listless survivors were found sitting on cars or lying on the floor, careless of whether they lived or died.

Twenty Bodies in a Pile.

Near the seventeenth level [illegible]ty bodies were found strewn over a pile of debris which the men had striven to surmount before they were overcome by the deadly fumes. Some were scared and blackened by fumes. The eleven rescuers who penetrated thus far were too weak to bring out a body. For hours the scene at the mouth of the level was heartrending. Mothers, wives, sweethearts and children huddled together, weeping and wringing their hands. The most frantic pushed to the edge of the gap and tried to force a way into the slope.

Torn to Pieces by Explosion.

An expert who went almost to the seventeenth level says the mine cannot possibly be cleared for a month. It is feared that men in the lower levels were torn to pieces by the explosion, which hurled great timbers high over the town and 1,700 feet beyond the mouth of the slope. The fire bosses, who had reported all safe before working time Tuesday met death while making a second inspection.

KILLED BY A TRAIN.

Myrtle Lumley Struck by International Limited Near Bothwell.

Bothwell, July 2.—A young girl, 15 years of age, named Myrtle Lumley, was struck by No. 1[illegible] Grand Trunk International Limited at 9 o'clock last evening and instantly killed, near Bothwell Station. She was on her way home accompanied by her sister and two escorts. A relative named E. Gilbert was also struck and thrown into the ditch, but only slightly injured. An eastbound train attracted their attention and they stepped in front of the express, which was going full speed.

Twenty Hurt in Train Wreck.

Brussels, July 2.—A serious front-end collision occurred yesterday at the railroad station at Schaerbeek, a suburb of this city. A train from Antwerp, filled with leading grain merchants, who were on their way to attend the weekly grain market, collided with a train which was leaving Schaerbeek. About twenty persons were badly injured, but no one was killed.

DROWNED IN THE LAKE.

Harry Revell, Aged 14, Seized With Cramps While Bathing.

Toronto, July 2.—Harry Revell, a lad of 14, was drowned while in swimming Tuesday afternoon at the foot of Dufferin street. Herbert Wilcox and Albert Innis, who were on the dock at the time, saw a number of others come rushing down to the lake side, and saw Revell, who was warm and perspiring, hurriedly peel off his clothes so as to be in first. Diving into the cold water he was taken with a severe cramp, and before the other boys, who were yet scarcely undressed, could realize his predicament, he was beyond recovery.

Two Drowned in Toronto.

Toronto, July 2.—Two drowning accidents marred Toronto's celebration of Dominion Day.

Edward Chapman of 881 Yonge street was drowned off the beach at Victoria Park yesterday afternoon before the eyes of his fiance and sweetheart from childhood, Miss Eva White.

Woo Way, a laundryman, who lives at 501 East Queen street, was drowned off Centre Island yesterday afternoon. Together with Wung Fang, from the same address, he started out on the bay in a canoe, both standing up and paddling. Before they had gone far the boat upset and both men, neither of whom could swim, were plunged into the water. The body was later recovered.

Drowned at Mud Turtle Lake.

Tweed, July 2.—A sad drowning accident occurred at Mud Turtle Lake. Henry Whiteman, one of Gilmour's river drivers, fell from a log into an eddy and though his companion made every effort to rescue him, was unable to do so on account of the rapid current. The body was not recovered until the next day, when it was taken to Marmora and thence by the C.P.R. to his home in Cloyne. Deceased was a bright young fellow, only 18 years of age.

An Engineer Missing.

Sault Ste. Marie, July 2.—O. E. Heffelbower, assistant engineer of the United States River Survey, started from the quarterboat, stationed a few miles up river from Detour about eight o'clock Tuesday morning in a small skiff. Heffelbower has not returned, but his boat was found on Saint Joseph Island, Canada. The settlers who picked the craft up said they saw a man fall out of it two miles from shore. The Government tug Antelope will drag the locality for the body.

Three in the Water.

Hamilton, July 2.—Miss Gallagher, daughter of Richard E. Gallagher, 183 South Hughson street, and two clerks of the Bank of Hamilton were taken out of the bay in an exhausted condition yesterday morning. The doctors had to work a long time over Miss Gallagher, but they think that she will recover.

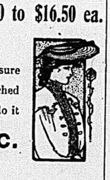
SINCLAIR'S AD   SINCLAIR'S AD.

Sample Dress Skirts

EVERY WOMAN APPRECIATES VARIETY.

This week we offer for sale a manufacturer's complete set of Ladies' Sample Dress Skirts, fifty-two different styles, but one only of each style. In this lot are some of the handsomest Skirts that we have ever shown, being cut and trimmed in the most approval fashion. They also contain some very low priced Skirts, but every Skirt whether low, medium or high priced represents an advanced style of Ladies' Dress Skirts and the lot are now on sale, prices from .... $2.50 to $16.50 ea.

LADIES' SHIRT WAISTS FOR 50c.



These Shirt Waists that we offer at 50c each are in size 32 Bust measure only. They are made of Pure Linen Cloth, are nicely tucked and hemstitched and the large sizes sold at $1,50 each, but to clear these small sizes and do it quickly, we mark them .... 50c.

FIGURE THIS OUT

We sell superior Shetland Floss in Three-Quarter Ounce Hanks for 5c. Now we know that you can buy a Half Ounce Hank for 4c, but any child in the second form at school will tell you that the 5c Hank is the cheaper one.

THE ELIZABETH UNDERSKIRT

This is the name under which one of the best made Canadian Under skirts is made and sold and we sell Hundreds of them for they are properly made and sell from 75c to $3.00

D. V. SINCLAIR & CO.

Barn Raising Accident.

Orangeville, July 2.—A serious accident occurred at a barn raising three miles north of Mono Mills, near here, Monday night, when Wm. Atkinson and Joseph Haffay were injured. The latter will die. One of Atkinson's arms were crushed to a jelly and will have to be amputated.

Killed by Live Wire.

Jordan, July 2.—Gordon Foster, a man employed by Woodman Bros., of Hamilton, in looking after the wires of the Cataract Power Company of Hamilton, in this section, was instantly killed Tuesday morning by coming in contact with a live wire.

G. T. R. Brakeman Hurt.

Woodstock, July 2.—Ed. Gillies of London, a brakeman, was badly injured at the G.T.R. yards here Tuesday. While switching cars he fell beneath the wheels with the result that his left leg was amputated at the knee.

Cut in Halves.

Vancouver, B. C., July 2.—Carl Courser, an employe at the Hastings saw mill, fell across a circular saw Tuesday night and was literally cut in halves. The deceased was a native of Lake Mills, Iowa.

Fatal Scaffold Accident.

Peterboro, July 2.—Wm. Craig of Ottawa, while riveting a pontoon at the Trent Valley Canal, fell 45 feet and was killed. The fatality was caused by the scaffold breaking.

Known Dead Eight.

St. Paul, Minn., July 2.—A dispatch from Heron Lake, in the vicinity of the Jackson County tornado, states that eight persons are known to have been killed.

Lieut. Dan Godfrey Dead.

London, July 2.—Lieut. Dan Godfrey, the famous bandmaster of the Grenadier Guards, died Tuesday morning from paralysis. Lieut. Godfrey was born in London in 1831. In 1851 he became a member of the Grenadier Guards Band and soon after became its leader, remaining so until 1897. He made his first visit to America in 1871. In the spring of 1898 he visited Toronto and his organization played there.

13,000 Miners Quit Work.

Birmingham, Ala., July 2.—Thirteen thousand union miners in this district suspended work yesterday, the old wage contract having expired Tuesday night and a new contract not having been agreed upon. The suspension will maintain until a new wage agreement is reached.

Later in the day three small mining companies, employing about four hundred men, signed the miners' scale.

Policeman Shoots Himself Dead.

Toronto, July 2. — Policeman George Weston committed suicide at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning in the basement of Police Station No. 6, at Queen street and Cowan avenue. He had been doing station duty for some time, and was found lying on his back with his service revolver lying at his side and a bullet through his head. He was despondent over his health.

Fishermen Strike.

Vancouver, B. C., July 2.—The British Columbia Fishermen's Union has issued an official announcement calling all union fishermen off the Fraser River and establishing a strikers' patrol. The canners were preparing for packing July 1, when the season opens. They have contracts with Japanese and non-union whites.

2,000 Out of Work.

Butte, Mont., July 2. — Washoe smelter at Anaconda closed down yesterday, and 1,000 men are thrown out of work there. This necessitated closing of such of the amalgamated mines in Butte as send their ore to Washoe. In all 2,000 men are thrown out in Butte.

Poisoned Candies in Streets.

Salonica, European Turkey, July 2.—Several children have died here as the result of eating what it was alleged were poisoned candies, found in the streets. This occurrence caused a panic among parents, who rushed to the schools and demanded their children.

Stabbed in Shoulder.

Kingston, July 2.—Last evening in a drunken carousal a volunteer named Elliott of Beaverton stabbed John Cottman of this city. The wound is in the shoulder, but is not serious. The assailant has been arrested by the police.

Russia's New Police Force.

St. Petersburg, July 2.—The Czar has sanctioned the formation of a new police force to maintain order and assure security in the rural districts of forty-six provinces of European Russia. The sum of $5,250,000 has been appropriated to cover the cost.

Canadian Received Degree.

Middleton, N. J., July 2.—At the Wesleyan University commencement yesterday Secretary of the Treasury Shaw and Rev. David Allison of Mount Allison College, New Brunswick, Canada, were among those to receive the degree of LL.D.

"Anthony Hope" Married.

London, July 2.—Anthony Hope Watkins, the author, and Miss Elizabeth Sheldon of New York, sister of Susanne Sheldon, the actress, were married at St. Bride's Church, Fleet street, yesterday afternoon.

FINANCIALLY EMBARRASSED.

China Would Pay Indemnity in Silver, But Powers Threaten.

London, July 2.—The Pekin correspondent of The Times telegraphs that since the arrival of Chang Chih Tung (Director of Commerce and one of the most progressive of the Yang Tse viceroys, who was recently summoned to Pekin by the Empress Dowager), he has visited all the foreign heads of legations, to whom he declares that China is seriously financially embarrassed, in consequence of which the powers would accept payment of the indemnity in silver. None of the Ministers except the American representative would agree to payment in silver. They said that in the event of non-compliance the powers contemplated seizing the salt gabelle or re-occupying the native city of Tien Tsin.

War Looming in China.

Tien Tsin, China, July 2.—The local newspapers comment on the alleged significance of the gathering of the American, British and Japanese fleets in the northern part of the Gulf of Pe Chi Li. It is asserted that no less than fifty-seven Russian warships of one sort or another are assembled at Port Arthur. The Japanese reserve officers who were on leave in North China are said to have been called home.

TRAMPS' HORRIBLE CRIME.

Beat and Mutilated a Deaf Mute Near Fern Glen.

Parry Sound, July 2.—A letter received from George Copeland, J.P., of Sprucedale, addressed to Crown Attorney Haight, tells of a fiendish and horrible assault made upon a deaf and dumb mute, and which, it is feared, will result fatally.

The outrage occurred near Fern Glen, a few miles south of Sprucedale, and not far from the Canada Atlantic Railway, in this district. The victim, named Nolan, 20 years of age, was out bringing in the cows, and was set upon by two tramps, who were occupying a vacant house in the vicinity. After beating him severely, they mutilated him with a knife in such a manner that the doctors entertain no hope of his recovery. No arrests as yet have been made, the men having made off supposedly in the direction of Parry Sound.

The following description of the men is furnished: One a tall, thin man, with short beard and heavy black moustache, the other a short, stout-built man, with a black hat, brown guernsey and plaid trousers of large pattern.

Crazy on Religion.

Napanee, July 2.—There is no change in the condition of the murderer Butts. He talks on religion all the time, and when alone prays incessantly. Parties who know Butts say he was never very bright, but showed no signs of insanity until recently. Religious meetings were held in the neighborhood recently, and he attended these, and immediately after he started out into the fields praying and preaching. Butts has been quiet since his incarceration, but the sheriff deemed it advisable to put on a night watch to prevent any unforeseen act. He eats and sleeps about as in his usual state.

Ousting Jamaica Fruit.

Kingston, Jamaica, July 2.— The Jamaican Colonial Secretary, Sydney Olivier, who is now on a visit to the United States and Canada, has sent a report to the Agricultural Department here, stating that Costa Rica bananas are ousting the Jamaica fruit from the American market. This report has created considerable pertubation among the planters here, the preservation of the American market is absolutely essential to the property of Jamaica.

Cling to Free Trade.

London, July 2.—At a meeting of 50 free trade Unionist members of Parliament in the committee room of the House of Commons yesterday afternoon a resolution favoring an inquiry into Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's preferential tariff proposals was adopted, but it was also declared that if they resulted in any departure from free trade it would be disastrous to the country.

Lord Monson Married.

Paris, July 2.—The marriage yesterday of Lord Monson and Mrs. Romaine Madeleine Turnure, widow of Lawrence Turnure of New York, was an interesting international event, which was largely attended by members of the diplomatic corps, and of the British and American colonies. Consul-General Gowdy was present as a witness in behalf of the United States.

Will Not Receive Deputation.

London, July 2.—President Loubet has declined to receive a suggested deputation from British Catholics, who desired to present him, while he is in London, with a petition regarding the "persecution of the Catholic religion in France, the expulsion of the religious orders and the confiscation of their property."

Manitoba Elections July 20.

Winnipeg, July 2.—Premier Roblin, speaking at Lamoita, announced that the provincial elections would come off on July 20, nominations one week earlier. He contradicted the report that Lieutenant-Governor McMillan had refused to grant a dissolution and that the elections would be held over till August.

DOMINION COULD PROVIDE.

Every Pound of Foodstuffs Required for the Home Land.

Lord Strathcona an Optimist Concerning the Future of This Country—His Loyal Address About the Dominion of Canada at the First of July Celebration Held in Honor of Its Birthday in Old, London.

London, July 2.— A banquet in honor of Dominion Day was given at the Hotel Cecil last night, Lord Strathcona, High Commissioner for Canada, presiding.

The Earl of Jersey proposed the toast of the "Dominion."

Lord Strathcona, in responding, said, in a short time Canada alone would provide every pound of breadstuffs required at home.

Canada was glad to give unsolicited preference to the Mother Country, and did not fear an inquiry into fiscal conditions.

TORONTO HOMECOMERS.

Visions of Beauty for "Auld Lang Syne" in the Queen City.

Toronto, July 2.—Toronto enjoyed her double celebration of Dominion Day and her home-comer guests will not soon forget the occasion. Combined with ideal weather was the renewal of numerous friendships after a quarter of a century.

Every United States guest, and their name was legion from all States in the Union, was decorated as rapidly as he shook the train dust from his clothes. Several hundred registered at the committee rooms, but thousands went direct to the homes of friends.

The decorations were completed during the morning hours. Inspiring in the sun light, 'neath the glitter of thousands of electric lights the scene was simply entrancing. The Parliament Buildings were a dream in the evening. "For Auld Lang Syne" was displayed in big letters of fire under the royal crest and shield bearing the magic word, "Welcome." The City Hall and other public buildings were equally attractive in their dress of scarlet and gold, and hundreds of flags.

In the evening a public reception was held at the Parliament Buildings, and Mayor Urquhart and Premier Ross did the honors.

BASEBALL WEDNESDAY.

The Eastern League.

Toronto .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 6 x—6
Newark .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 0—2

Two base hits—Brodie, Massey. Three base hit—Lawlor. Sacrifice hits—Downey, Kuhns, Toft 2, Wolfe. Bases stolen—Thiery. Passed ball—Shea. Bases on balls—Off Wolfe 2, off Burke 7. Struck out—By Wolfe 6 (Thiery 2, O'Brien, Wagner, Dillard 2). Left on bases—Toronto 9, Newark 9. Time 1.55. Umpire—Shannon.

Toronto ....0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 1—2
Newark ....0 0 0 0 2 0 1 0 0—3

Two-base hits—Toft, Taylor. Bases on balls—Off Hesterfer, 2; off Briggs, 3. Passed balls—Toft. Sacrifice hits—Shea, Lawlor. Bases stolen—Miller, Lawlor, Shea. Struck out—By Briggs, 9 (Thiery, O'Brien, Devlin, Wagner 2, Dillard, Taylor, Hesterfer 2); by Hesterfer, 6 (Downey 2, Brodie, Toft, Briggs 2). Left on bases—Toronto, 6; Newark 7. Double plays—Brodie to Downey, O'Brien to Taylor. Time—1.55. Umpires—Moriarity and Brennan.

R.H.E.
Baltimore .... 0 3 0 0 0 0 0 0 2—5 10 6
Worcester .... 5 0 0 0 0 2 2 2 1—12 11 4

Batteries—Gettig, Burschell and Robinson; Hemming and McCauley. Umpire—Brown. Attendance—600.

R.H.E.
Rochester .... ..2 0 4 0 2 0 0 0 *—8 10 3
Providence .. ..0 0 1 2 0 0 0 0 0—3 9 3

Batteries—Leary and Steelman; Jones and Diggins. Umpire—Latham. Attendance—219.

R.H.E.
Buffalo ....0 0 0 1 3 0 0 0 0—4 6 3
Jersey City .....1 0 0 0 7 0 1 0 0—9 14 6

Batteries—McGee, Ferry and Laporte; Pfanmiller and McManus. Umpires—Kelly and Swartwood. Attendance—588.

National League Scores.

At Philadelphia— R.H.E.
Chicago ...... 1 0 0 1 0 0 0 2 0—4 11 3
Philadelphia .. 0 0 0 3 1 1 5 2 x—12 14 0

Batteries—Menefee and Kline; Mitchell and Dooin. Umpire—O'Day. Attendance—1583.

At Brooklyn— R.H.E.
Pittsburg ..... 0 0 0 0 0 3 0 0 1—4 5 4
Brooklyn ..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 1 2—5 7 2

Batteries—Phillippi and Phelps; Jones, Ritter and Ahearn. Umpire—Emslie. Attendance—2700.

American League Results.

At Chicago— R.H.E.
Chicago .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 5 0
Boston ..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—1 7 0

Batteries — Flaherty and McFarland; Young and Criger. Umpires—White and Winter. Attendance—1925.

At New York— R.H.E.
New York .... 0 0 0 1 1 1 0 2 x—5 9 2
St. Louis .... 0 0 0 0 0 1 1 0 0—2 6 2

Batteries—McGinnity and Warner; Currie and Ryan. Umpire—Johnstone. Attendance—3863.

At St. Louis— R.H.E.
St. Louis ..... 0 0 1 0 0 0 1 0 1—3 6 0
New York .... 0 0 0 2 2 0 0 1 2—7 11 1

Batteries—Powell and Kahoe; Tannehill and O'Connor. Umpire—Connolly. Attendance—800.

At Cleveland— R.H.E.
Cleveland ..... 6 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 1—8 13 5
Philadelphia .. 3 0 0 0 0 3 1 0 2—9 12 4

Batteries—Joss and Bemis; Henley and Schreck. Umpire—O'Loughlin. Attendance—3519.

At Detroit— R.H.E.
Detroit .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0—1 7 0
Washington ... 1 1 2 0 0 0 0 0 0—4 10 3

Batteries—Deering, Beulow and Donovan; Orth and Krill. Umpire—Hassett. Attendance—1732.

Another Libel Suit.

Winnipeg, July 2.—R. A. Bonnar, revising officer for Centre Winnipeg, has commenced action against The Free Press, claiming $10,000 damages for alleged libel for certain passages from an article published in The Free Press referring to his conduct as such revising officer. The article was published on June 17.

NOTHING GOES RIGHT.

Nothing goes right while the stomach and bowels are wrong. Angier's Petroleum Emulsion is the ideal remedy for all forms of stomach and bowel disorders. It aids digestion, improves nutrition, creates rich, red blood, firm flesh, and makes life well worth living. Pleasant to take.

THE MARKETS.

Wheat Lower, But Corn Higher at Liverpool—All Grains Lower at Chicago —The Latest Quotations.

Wednesday Evening, July 1.

Liverpool wheat futures closed ½d lower to-day than yesterday and corn futures ½d to ⅜d higher.

At Chicago September wheat closed 1¼c lower than yesterday, Sept. corn ⅝c lower and Sept. oats ¼c lower.

New York Grain and Produce.

New York, July 1.—Flour—Receipts, 37,726 bbls.; sales, 3200 pkgs. Flour was barely steady and quiet. Rye flour, firm; fair to good, $3 to $3.35; choice to fancy, $3.40 to $4.00. Wheat, receipts, 24,125 bushels; sales, 700,000 bushels. Wheat ruled dull and barely steady this morning on further rains in the northwest. July, 83 13-16c to 84¼c; Sept., 80⅝c to 81c; Dec., 80⅝c to 81c. Rye, steady; State, 52c to 59½c, c.i.f., New York; No. 2 western, 62c, f.o.b., afloat. Corn, receipts, 26,250 bushels; sales, 80,000 bushels. Corn was supported by local covering, steadiness at Liverpool and complaints of rain in Iowa and Nebraska. July, 56⅝c to 57⅜c; Sept., 56⅝c to 57¼c. Oats, receipts, 60,000 bushels. Oats were fairly active and steady. Sugar, raw, unsettled; fair refining, 3c; centrifugal, 96 test, 2½c to 3 9-16c; molasses sugar, 2⅝c to 2¾c; refined, unsettled; crushed, $5.40; powdered, $4.90; granulated, $4.80. Coffee, quiet; No. 7 Rio, 5 3-16c. Wool, firm. Lead, quiet. Hops, dull.

Liverpool Grain and Produce.

Liverpool, July 1.—Wheat, spot dull; No. 2 red, western winter, 6s 2½d; No. 1 Cal., 6s 7½d; futures steady; July, 6s 4⅜d; Sept., 6s 3⅝d. Corn, spot quiet; American mixed, 5s; futures steady; July, 4s 8⅜d; Oct., nominal.

Pork, prime mess, western, easy, 81s 3d. Bacon, Cumberland cut, steady, 48s; shoulders, square, steady, 39s. Lard, prime western in tierces, easy, 40s 6d; refined in pails, easy, 40s. Cheese, American, finest colored, quiet, 52s 6d. Linseed oil, 24s. Tallow, Australian in London, steady, 30s 6d.

Cotton seed oil, Hull refined, spot steady, 22s 3d.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Heavy Receipts and Prices Easier at Chicago.

London, July 1.—Live cattle steady at 11¼c to 12c per lb. for American steers, dressed weight; Canadian steers, 10½c to 11½c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 9⅛c per lb.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, July 1.—About 500 head of butchers' cattle, 300 calves and 400 sheep and lambs were offered for sale at the east end abattoir to-day. There was a good attendance of the butchers, and an active demand and firm prices paid for the best cattle, but the grassers were rather numerous and slow of sale. The prices of hogs are still declining and milch cows bring from $5 to $10 less money than they did a month ago. Prime beeves sold at from 5c to 5½c per lb.; medium cattle at from 3¾c to 5c and the common stock at from 2½c to 3½c per lb. Calves sold at from $3 to $8 each. Sheep sold at from 3c to 3⅝c per lb. Lambs sold at from $2.50 to $4.50 each. Fat hogs sold at about 5¾c per lb., weighed off cars; milch cows sold at from $20 to $35 each.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, N.Y., July 1.—Cattle—Receipts, 100 head; market quiet; prime and shipping steers, $4.90 to $5.35; butchers' steers, $4.15 to $4.85; culls and heifers, $2.50 to $4.70; bulls, $3 to $4; stockers and feeders, $3 to $4.25. Veals, receipts, 340 head; steady; $5.25 to $6.75. Hogs, receipts, 2000 head; active; heavy, $6.10 to $6.15; mixed, $6.20 to $6.30; yorkers, $6.25 to $6.30; light yorkers and pigs, mixed, $6.30 to $6.35; roughs, $5.25 to $5.60; sickly pigs, $6.40 to $6.45; stags, $4 to $4.50; dairies, $6 to $6.20. Sheep and lambs, receipts, 1600 head; lambs steady; sheep slow; 25c lower; top lambs, $5 to $6.50; yearlings, $5 to $5.25; ewes, $3.50 to $3.75; sheep, mixed, $2 to $4.25; wethers, $4.50 to $4.75.

NEW YORK LIVE STOCK.

New York, July 1.—Beeves—Receipts, 2419; lower; steers, $4.25 to $5.35; bulls, $2.75 to $4.50; cows, $1.75 to $4; tops, $4.10. Exports, 150 cattle, 20 sheep and 7700 quarters of beef. Calves, receipts, 607; lower; veals, $4 to $6.50; culls, $3.50 to $5; buttermilks, $2.50 to $3.50. Sheep and lambs, receipts, 7324; lower; sheep, $3 to $4.25; culls, $2.50; lambs, $5.50 to $6.62½; culls, $4.50. Hogs, receipts, 4970; higher; state hogs, $6.50 to $6.60; choice pigs, $6.65.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, July 1.—Cattle—Receipts, 20,000; market 10c to 15c lower; good to prime steers, $4.90 to $5.50; poor to medium, $4.25 to $4.80; stockers and feeders, $2.75 to $4.75; cows and heifers, $1.50 to $4.55; canners, $1.50 to $2.80; bulls, $2.25 to $4.25; calves, $2.50 to $6; Texas fed steers, $3.50 to $4.50.

Hogs—Receipts to-day, 22,000; to-morrow, 23,000; left over, 4500; market steady to 5c lower; mixed and butchers, $5.70 to $5.80; good to choice heavy, $5.80 to $5.90; rough heavy, $5.55 to $5.75; light, $5.75 to $6.05; bulk of sales, $5.75 to $5.85.

Sheep—Receipts, 11,000; sheep, 10c to 15c lower; lambs, steady to 15c lower; good to choice wethers, $3.75 to $4.50; native lambs, $2.50 to $4.15.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Stirling, July 1.—At the Cheese Board to-day 1165 cheese were boarded. Sales: Magrath 310, at 10c; Brenton 190, at 9 15-16c; Cook 275, at 9 15-16c; Bird 290, at 10c. Balance refused at 9 15-16c.

Picton, July 1.—At our Cheese Board today 12 factories boarded 1330 boxes, all colored; highest bid 10⅛c; 665 sold. Buyers, Sprague, Morgan and Bailey.

Belanger Trial Put Off.

Montreal, July 1.—The trial of Theophile Belanger, charged with the murder of ex-Mayor Seguin of St. Eustache will not take place in September as anticipated, but will occur at the regular term in February. Meantime the prisoner is enjoying good health. The prisoner, Belanger, is gaining weight daily, altho he chaffs somewhat at the confinement. He has been kept in solitary confinement at the request of his own counsel ever since the preliminary inquiry in the case.

Hamilton in Darkness.

Hamilton, July 2. — Lightning struck the sub-station of the Hamilton Electric Light and Cataract Power Company last evening about 9 o'clock, and burned out a switchboard. The whole city was left in darkness for about twenty minutes and the street cars were stalled [illegible] streets were swept by a per[illegible] ricane.

Diarrhoea

When you want a quick cure without any loss of time, and one that is followed by no bad results, use Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. It is equally valuable for children. It is famous for its cures over a large part of the civilized world.

30 Retail Stores DAVIES 30 Retail Stores

KEEP YOUR EYE ON THIS SPACE
FOR DAVIES SATURDAY SPECIALS
WHICH WILL APPEAR IN FRIDAY AND SATURDAY'S PAPER.

Our Phone is 286.

The WM. DAVIES CO., Limited.

THE WORLD'S MEDICINE.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

FOR ALL

BILIOUS and NERVOUS DISORDERS,
Sick Headache, Constipation, Wind,
Weak Stomach, Impaired Digestion,
Disordered Liver & Female Ailments.

Prepared only by the Proprietor, Thomas Beecham, St. Helens, Eng. Sold Everywhere in Canada and U. S. America. In boxes, 25 cents.

Daily Intelligencer.

TIMELY TOPICS

It looked threatening, but we had a dry Dominion Day, after all.

• • •

And there's nothing like a dry holiday to make a man feel like going to work the next morning.

• • •

Many estimable citizens celebrated Canada's 36th birthday by putting in a good honest day's work.

• • •

Wouldn't a proper bathing place be a blessing these warm evenings? If some of the penny-wise Aldermen could hear the remarks many people are making about them their ears would surely burn.

• • •

"In putting off the construction of the public bath till December," says the Stoney Lonesome philosopher "the Council has the right idea. I tell you if the boys did their skating in the summer time and swimming in winter time there would be fewer drowning accidents."

• • •

Yankee Curtis is sharpening his axe for all the aldermen who voted to sell the rails to the Cement Company. They are marked men, he says, every one of them.

• • •

Wouldn't we soon be a nation of giants if the small boys and girls grew as fast as the weeds?

• • •

The Napaneeans say the Fifteenth's Bugle Band was the swiftest thing that hit their little town in recent years.

• • •

What a difference there is between the logs that come down the river now and the ones which came twenty years ago! The present logs are pretty poor stuff, judged by old standards.

• • •

The new granolithic crossings are being built good and high. Unless the roadbeds are graded up to them the horses which travel our streets will have to do a few stunts in the way of jumping.

Lemon and Lime Juice Soda

A delciously cooling drink for a hot day.

Either with or without Ice Cream. Five cents a glass.

J. ARTHUR MARSH.

COOL CLOTHES

Would your suit look any cooler if you saved a few dollars on it? If so, look at the men's suits we are selling for $3.50, $4.00, $4.50, $5.00, $6.00, and $7.50.

In weather like this you want everything to count for coolness, and hence the fit is an important part. You can't very well keep cool when you're raging mad at that bad-fitting coat that pulls down on your favorite shoulder bone.

Skeleton Serge Coat, Blue or Black, double-breasted at - - - - - - - $2.50

Ask to See Our $10.00 Suits.

The Globe Clothing House

Up-to-date Clothiers and Gents' Furnishers.

PERSONAL ...AND... SOCIAL.

The Intelligencer invites all its readers to contribute to this column all items of a personal nature, such as the arrival or departure of guests, and the movements of business men, etc. Send a post card to or telephone The Intelligencer.

Mr. T. M. Kirkwood is at the Quinte.

Mr. C. J. Wills, of Toronto, was in the city yesterday.

Miss Annie Mackenna, of Sine, is spending her vacation in the city.

Mr. Jos. Mills, of Tweed, spent yesterday in the city with his family.

Miss Mabel V. Fairfield returned to the city yesterday for a well-earned month's rest.

Mr. W. W. Armstrong, of Campbellford, was a visitor in the city on Tuesday.

Miss Mary Mackenna, of Stirling, is spending her vacation under the parental roof.

Miss Walker, formerly matron of the Deaf and Dumb Institute, is revisiting our city.

Mr. P. P. Clark, of St. Ola, a member of the County Council, was in the city to-day.

Misses Gertie and Ella Mills, of Madoc township, are spending their holidays in the city.

Miss Lola Reyner is spending a few days in the city, the guest of Miss Fannie Alford.

Miss Myrtle Wiggins left yesterday for Victoria Road, Ont., where she has secured a situation.

Mr. Harry Wilson, formerly of this city, now of St. Paul, Minn., is visiting relatives in town.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Farwell, of Oshawa, are in the city to-day. Mrs. Farwell was formerly Miss Ella Metcalfe.

Mr. Charles Rainbow is ill with inflammation of the bowels, and his case is so desperate that recovery is not expected.

Chancey Ashley and family returned from New York yesterday, where they have been on a visit for the past two weeks.

Miss Jessie Collins, of the nursing staff of the Hospital, resigned her position on June 17th, and left for her home in Smithville, Ont.

Mr. E. D. Eames, of Watertown, N. Y., was on the 19th ult. married to Miss Alice Waitz, of Buffalo. The lady was formerly a well-known musician of this city.

On Tuesday evening, for the second time, the ladies of the Tabernacle Church showed in a tangible way their esteem and friendship for Mrs. Locke by presenting her with an address and handsome travelling case. Mrs. Locke appropriately thanked the ladies in a few words. Mrs. Locke and Miss B. Locke leave to-day for their new home.

At the Quinte:—G. E. Jenner, H. P. Wilson, A. H. Bevis, A. Alexander, G. P. Harrison, E. J. Phillips, T. P. Gault, T. M. Kirkwood, F. W. Roberts, R. H. Fleming, W. J. Dickson, J. H. Moss, D. L. McCarthy, J. Everett, Mrs. M. T. Clemes, Toronto; F. A. Wrag, J. P. Black, J. G. Pearlson, J. T. Goyne, Montreal; J. Dobensky, Bancroft; D. Derbyshire, Dr. McCauley, G. B. Burney, Brockville; W. J. Tow, Berlin; F. W. O'Flynn, Madoc; D. Levine, A. W. Carscallen, Marmora; A. Callaghan and wife, Napanee; J. E. Halliwell and wife, W. M. Chandler, Stirling; G. T. Sturtevant, E. Phillips, C. Brown, New York; S. Burke and wife, Cleveland; R. Weddell, G. B. Collins, Trenton; G. Mann, Kingston; C. E. Ritchie, Akron, Ohio; H. E. Gamm, W. J. Moore, Madoc.

AUCTION SALE

Livery barn, horses, carriages, sleighs, harness, robes, rugs, blankets, stable utensils, etc., Saturday, July 4, Pinnacle street, Belleville, 1 o'clock sharp. H. L. CURRY, owner. J. G. DAVISON, auctioneer. 2-3

DEATHS

WHEELER—At Belleville, on Tuesday, July 1st, 1903, Ellen G. Wheeler, aged 81 years.

The funeral will take place from the residence of Mr. W. J. Handley, Ashley street, to-morrow, Friday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. Services at the house at 2.30 p.m.

THE STYLE OF HAIR WORN

Is an important factor to produce a younger and refined face and a well shaped head to any lady or gentleman. Prof. Dorenwend, who will be at Belleville, can demonstrate this to anyone calling on him at his Show Rooms. He has Ladies' and Gents' Wigs, Toupees, Bangs, Wavy and Plain Fronts, Switches in every length and shade, that he will gladly adjust on any lady's head free of charge to prove this. DON'T FAIL TO SEE HIM. It is his only visit to Belleville this season. Quinte Hotel, Friday, July 10. w25-d27,2

Fatal Accident Near Ivanhoe

GEO. TWIDDY STRUCK BY THE HANDLE OF A "JACK," DYING IN TWO MINUTES.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Crookston, June 30.—A shocking and fatal accident occurred to-day a few miles west of Ivanhoe.

Geo. Twiddy a trackman, was struck by the handle of a "big Jack," the blow taking effect on his neck just below the ear. He straightened up, walked over to a tank, sat down and died in two minutes. A "dog" catching in one of the notches of the "Jack" was the cause of the accident.

Dr. Sargent, of Springbrook, said the blow had ruptured a blood vessel. The unfortunate man, who was much respected, was 32 years of age, and leaves a wife and two children. He will be buried under L.O.L. auspices.

UNNECESSARY TO SUFFER FROM ASTHMA.

This distressing complaint can be perfectly cured by inhaling Catarrhozone, a vegetable antiseptic that destroys the germs which cause the disease. Catarrhozone is inhaled at the mouth from a convenient pocket inhaler, and after permeating the minutest air cells, is exhaled slowly through the nostrils. It stops the cough, makes breathing regular, and eradicates the asthma so thoroughly from the system that it never returns. Don't suffer from asthma, use Catarrhozone; it will speedily cure you. Large outfit $1.00. Small size 25 cents. Druggists or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Charged With Stealing.

John N. Moore, Jos. Fox and Wm. Hamilton were on trial to-day before Magistrate Flint, charged with stealing $100 from D. Mumby. The parties reside in Madoc township. Case in progress this afternoon. Mr. Anderson for Crown; Mr. McMahon for defendants.

CITY AND DISTRICT.

Advertisements under this heading TWO CENTS A WORD; subsequent consecutive insertions ONE CENT A WORD. No less charged than twenty-five words.

Band concert to-night. Programme selected.

Mr. Chambers will not leave St. Thomas' Church until the end of August.

Two river drivers were last evening engaged in a fistic encounter on Dundas street. They were separated and all was quiet before the police arrived upon the scene.

The police last night answered a call to Dundas street. One drunk was brought in.

To-day's market was well attended, both by sellers and buyers.

The vital statistics for the month of June were: Births 11, marriages 16, and deaths 17.

We are requested to state that the late Mrs. Hannah Whalen was English by birth, not Irish, as stated.

Mr. James Howatson, formerly of this city, died in Anaconda, Mont., on Tuesday. An extended obituary notice will appear to-morrow.

SORE THROAT AND HOARSENESS

with their attendant dangers may be speedily averted and remedied by the use of Polson's Nerviline. Excellent to gargle with—ten times better than a mustard plaster, and more convenient for the outside. Nerviline penetrates the tissues instantly, soothes the pain, allays inflammation, and cures sore throat and hoarseness, simply because that's what it is made for. The large 25 cent bottle of Nerviline is unexcelled as a household liniment. It cures everything.

SPORTING NOTE.

Playing for the Minto Cup yesterday, the Shamrocks beat the Brantfords 5 to 4. The next game is on Saturday.

Called to Peterboro

Yesterday morning the Rev. W. J. Crothers, M.A., D.D., pastor of Bridge St. Church, received an unanimous invitation to the pastorate of the George St. Church, Peterboro, to commence in June next year. We understand that Dr. Crothers has accepted the invitation. The George St. Church people may be congratulated on the wisdom of their choice.

REASONABLE PANT REASONS.

If there is any reason why you should wear pants, there is every reason why you should buy them off Quick & Robertson. If you are particular about the kind of cloth that goes in them, particular about the cut and make, or particular about how much change you will have left, then we can satisfy you. At present we are offering over 300 pairs pants bought from a manufacturer at greatly reduced prices. We have divided them into two lots, $1.50 pants for $1.00, and $1.75 and $2.00 pants for $1.25.

Coin Pay Envelopes at The Intelligencer Job Office. Cheapest and best in the city.

LATEST NEW YORK STOCK QUOTATIONS

As Furnished to The Intelligencer by H. R. Beattie, Stock Broker.

New York, July 2.

Stock	Op'g	H'st	L'st	Close.
Athison	68⅝	68⅞	67½	67¾
do pref ..	92¾	92⅞	92⅞	92⅞
St. Paul.. ..	151¼	151⅞	150⅜	150⅜
Mo. P.	103¼	103⅜	102½	102¼
Union Pac .	82⅛	82⅛	81¼	81½
C. P. R.	124⅛	124¼	123⅞	123⅞
South Pac. ..	50½	50⅜	49¾	49¾
R.... ..	34½	34½	33¾	34
Ills C. ...	134½	134½	133½	133½
Sou Ry.....	24¼	24¼	24	24
Texs........	29½	29⅜	29½	29½
B & O.	86⅛	86⅜	85¼	86⅛
N. Y. C.	126¾	127⅛	126½	127
Penn	125⅞	126	125¼	125¼
Soo	59⅜	59⅛	58¼	58½
T. V....	97	...	....	....
Erie.........	33⅞	34	33⅜	33½
do pref. ...	68⅛	68½	67½	67½
Reading	52	52⅛	51	51⅜
C. C.	38⅛	38⅛	38⅛	38½
O. & W.	26¼	26¼	25½	25⅜
Manhattan ..	137¼	137¼	136⅜	136¼
L. & N.	110¼	111⅛	110	111
A.	38¾	38¾	38	38
Nor.........	66½	66½	65¼	65¼
Wab......	24¼	24¾	23⅞	23⅞
do pref. ..	44¼	44¾	43¾	43¾
C. G. W. ..	19⅜	19⅜	18¾	19⅛
T. C. I	52¾	52¾	51	51¼
U. S. Stl	31⅛	31⅛	30½	30½
do pref.....	81¾	81¾	81	81⅛
Sugar....	122⅛	122⅛	121¼	121½
B. R. T......	59¼	59½	58	58
Ro	99¼	99¼	98½	99
A. C. P. ..	55¼	55¼	54⅛	54⅝
Met.........	123	123½	123	123

Sept wheat opened at 75; closed at 74¾
Sept corn opened at 49⅜; closed at 49⅞

A HOT TIME COMING.

Warm weather is predicted, but take in the excursions to Rochester for Dominion Day and 4th of July per Strs. "North King," "Alexandria" and "Caspian" and you will miss it. Return fare $2.00 going 3rd and 4th July. Tickets good for return till 6th July. Enquire of agents. jlto4

Bridge Street's Picnic.

As usual, there was a tremendous crowd yesterday at 12 o'clock point with the Bridge St. Sunday School. The steamer made four trips to the park, which was found to be as dry as if no rain had fallen. A glorious day was spent, and both young and old enjoyed themselves greatly.

Piles To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles, the manufacturers have guaranteed it. See testimonials in the daily press and ask your neighbors what they think of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. 60c a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

C.E. CONVENTION, DENVER, COL. July 9th to 13th.

In connection with the Christian Endeavor Convention, Denver, Col., special reduced rates will be in effect via the Grand Trunk Railway, tickets are good going July 6th, 7th and 8th, valid to return, arriving at destination on or before August 31st. The Grand Trunk service is unexcelled for those who purpose attending this convention. Special train will leave Toronto at 5 p.m., Monday, July 6th. For further information apply to agents Grand Trunk Railway System. 6td

1,000 ISLANDS AND ROCHESTER.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian" leave Belleville for Thousand Islands at 3.25 a.m., daily except Mondays. Fare $1.00. Returning Str. leaves at 11.38 p.m. for Rochester, N.Y. m26d&w3m

BUILDING.

R. McPherson, late foreman with Thos. Hanley, continues the same business at the same stand, executing, in first-class style, orders for Church and Office Furniture, Mantels, Grills, Artistic effects, etc. Carving to the trade a specialty. Will form class for instructions in carving. j8d&w1m

A Remarkable Clock.

Japan possesses a remarkable timepiece. It is contained in a frame three feet wide and five feet long, representing a noonday landscape of great beauty. In the foreground plum and cherry trees and rice plants appear in full bloom. In the rear is seen a hill, gradual in ascent, from which apparently flows a cascade, admirably imitated in crystal. From this point a threadlike stream meanders, encircling rocks and islands in its windings and finally losing itself in a faroff stretch of woodland. In a miniature sky a golden sun turns on a silver wire, striking the hours on silver gongs as it passes. Each hour is marked on the frame by a creeping tortoise, which serves the place of a hand. A bird of exquisite plumage warbles at the close of each hour, and as the song ceases a mouse sallies forth from a neighboring grotto and, scampering over the hill to the garden, is soon lost to view.

Kept Him Waiting.

Haydon, the English artist, in his diary, relates how he once went late to a sitting given him by the Duke of Wellington and the old duke tore his white hair and cried that he had "sat to 400 confounded painters and sculptors, and none of them was ever punctual."

Notable Exceptions.

Mrs. Bloobumper—Yes, everybody is always ready to give advice.

Bloobumper—There are exceptions.

"Are there?"

"Yes; doctors and lawyers."

Remember that a great many good things cost more than they are worth.—Atchison Globe.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

Unless the soap you use has this brand you are not getting the best.

Ask for the Octagon Bar.

THE WEATHER.

To-day's Probs—

Fresh southwesterly winds, fair and very warm. Friday continued fair, warm weather.

To-day's Temperature

As Registered by The Intelligencer's Guaranteed Thermometer:

8 a.m.	75
12 m.	85
2 p.m.	87
3 p.m.	88

Every source of enjoyment of the best inland resort is found at the MAGI Caledonia Springs and its famous waters.

THE "POPPY"

If you desire to see the very newest and most beautiful patterns in Sterling Silver Tableware, the pattern now so popular in New York, call and let us show you the "POPPY." All pieces are of good substantial weight, excellent die-work, and finished in French Gray. A gift of this design would be entirely new and different from others received by the bride.

These goods being the product of the Gorham Co's Canadian factory, ensures the lowest possible price as well as the highest obtainable quality.

The "POPPY" may be seen in our window.

Angus McFee.

Jeweler & Optician

310 Front St.

SWEEPING REDUCTIONS

—IN—

MILLINERY at

MISS IRWIN'S

Trimmed Hats — Untrimmed Hats—Flowers—etc., etc.

One table of fine Sailor Hats at 25c

All cleared at great sacrifice. In order to take long vacation.

MISS IRWIN

Millinery and Corset Specialist

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

POPULAR TOURIST RESORTS

Muskoka Lakes	Lake of Bays
Kawartha Lakes	Georgian Bay
Orillia	Magnetewan River
Jackson's Point	Collingwood

Excellent train service making direct connection for all ports on Muskoka Lakes.

Special Excursion to Canadian North-West.

Tickets will be issued at reduced rates, good going July 4th, valid to return up to and including Sept. 8, 1903.

Special Reduced Rates are in effect for C. E. Convention, Denver, Col., July 9th to 13th. Tickets will be issued good going July 6th, 7th and 8th, valid for return arriving at destination on or before August 31st, 1903.

N. E. A. Convention, Boston, July 6th to 10th. Tickets good going July 2nd to 5th inclusive, valid for return, leaving Boston on or before July 12th.

For further information and descriptive literature of Summer Resorts in "Highlands of Ontario" apply to

U. E. THOMPSON, City Agent,
Bridge Street,
T. H. COPPIN, Depot Agent.
J. D. McDONALD,
Dist. Pass Agt., Toronto.

Coin Pay Envelopes at The Intelligencer Job Office. Cheapest and best in the city.

Doing good is the only certainly happy action of a man's life.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

MEDICAL.

JOHN J. FARLEY, M.D., C.M., M.R., C.S., England.

Office and Residence — Corner of Bridge and George streets — three streets East of Post Office.

DR. J. F. MATHER

Has removed his office to Pinnacle St., three doors north of Hotel Quinte. my29-6mw

LEGAL.

WILLS & WRIGHT,

Barristers, Solicitors, Notary Public, &c., Belleville.

Office—2 Campbell Street.

MALCOLM WRIGHT.
J. FRANKLIN WILLS.

Money to Loan at Lowest Rates.

W. C. MIKEL, B. C. L.,

Barrister, &c.

Solicitor for the City of Belleville.

Office—Metropolitan Block, Corner Front and Campbell Streets.

PORTER & CARNEW,

Barristers, Solicitors, Notaries Public, etc.

Offices — Robertson Block, East Front St., Belleville, Ont.

'Phone 87.

E. G. PORTER. WM. CARNEW.

WILLIAM N. PONTON,

Barrister-at-law, Solicitor, Notary Public, Conveyancer. Office over Express and Telegraph Office, Bridge Street, Belleville.

Money to Loan — Private Funds, Solicitor Sun and Hastings Savings and Loan Company of Ontario.

FRANCIS S. WALLBRIDGE,

Successor to Hon. Lewis Wallbridge, Q.C.

Barrister, Solicitor, Conveyancer, Etc. Office, McAnnany Building, corner Front and Bridge Sts., Belleville, Ont. Private and Company money to loan at 6 per cent., on easy terms upon good land security. Charges moderate.

INSURANCE.

Fire Insurance.

Guardian	Est'd 1821
The North America,	Est'd 1792
Quebec,	Est'd 1818

City, Town and Village Property insure at lowest rates.

R. W. ADAMS. Agent.

Office opposite Post Office.

PERSONS desiring Life Insurance cannot do better than consult

W. J. THOMSON,

who is the Agent for the following well-known and old-established Assurance Companies:

ROYAL. ALLIANCE.
OCEAN ACCIDENT STANDARD LIFE

Office at Rathbun Co., Bridge St. ocs-d&w

FIRE, LIFE & ACCIDENT INSURANCE

At Lowest Rates The Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Perth Mutual on farm and city property. Also money to loan at 4½ per cent. upwards.

JAMES A CHISHOLM,
Office Ashley Block, • Front st., Belleville.

THOS. STEWART,

Insurance and Commission Agent.

Agent for the Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Scottish Union and National Ins. Co.

BRIDGE ST.

Money Saved is Money Earned

can earn you money by saving it for you in your Fire Insurance.

The Anglo-American Fire Ins. Co
The Merchants Fire Ins. Co.
The Equity Fire Ins. Co.

Are all strong Canadian stock companies and insure Farm and City Property at lower rate than other stock companies. Call and see me before placing your fire insurance.

Office—Bridge St., same entrance Quinte Laundry, Belleville.

H. FREEMAN KET[illegible]

Fire, Life & Plate Glass Insurance.

Liverpool & London & Globe of England.
Waterloo Mutual, of Waterloo, Ont.
Lloyd's Plate Glass.
Home Life Association, Toronto.
North British & Mercantile.

Farm and City Property insured in First-class Reliable Companies and at lowest current rates. Losses promptly settled. Land valuation, and transact general Real Estate business and sale or purchase and renting of property. Appraiser for the Hastings Loan & Investment Society. Money to Loan.

W. P. HUDSON, Office above Rathbun's office, cor. Bridge and Pinnacle Sts., opposite Postoffice and Hotel Quinte, Belleville, 'Phone 168.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A. G. NORTHROP,

Issuer of Marriage Licenses, Shire Hall, Belleville, Ont.

CHAUNCEY ASHLEY,

Issuer of Marriage Licenses.

Private Office, Bridge St., Belleville, opposite the Post Office.

Residence, first house east of W. W. Chown's Mfg. Co., Station St. Appointments made.

REMOVAL.

Dr. Clarke has removed to the offices formerly occupied by the late Dr. Ward, over Burrows', and opposite Scantlebury's Book Store. a27dtf

FAST MAIL SERVICE

Bay of Quinte Route
TO
ROCHESTER N. Y.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian"

Taking Effect 27th June.

GOING DAILY (EXCEPT MONDAY)
Lv. Belleville .... 11.38 p. m.
Ar. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 6.43 a. m
RETURNING DAILY (Except Sunday)
Lv. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 8 30 p. m.
Ar. Belleville .... 3.25 a. m.

Baggage checked to all points. Connection with all railways.

$1.00 THOUSAND ISLANDS $1.00

AND RETURN.

Commencing 28th June. Steamer leaves Belleville at 3 25 a.m. daily except Monday for 1000 Islands, calling at Bay of Quinte ports, Kingston, Alexandria Bay and Gananoque. Passing through American and Canadian channels.

Right reserved to change time with or without notice.

Full information from

THE RATHBUN CO., } Agents.
U. E. THOMPSON, }
E. E. HORSEY, G. P. & F. Agent, Kingston.

Montreal, Rochester & Quebec Transit Co'y.

Str. "Alexandria"

Service in effect 25th April.

Leaves Rathbun Co.'s wharf, Belleville, every Saturday at 11.00 a.m. for Rochester, Niagara Falls and Buffalo.

Every Monday at 7.00 a.m. for Montreal and all River Ports.

Thousand Islands by daylight.

Runs all St. Lawrence River Rapids.

Quebec excursions commence July 5th.

LOW FREIGHT RATES.

A. W. HEPBURN, General Manager, Picton, Ont.
THE RATHBUN CO. Agents. Belleville.

The Deseronto Navigation Co

TIME TABLE.

Taking effect April 13, 1903.

Belleville, Trenton, Picton & Napanee

Str. "ELLA ROSS"

Leaves Belleville for Trenton at 10 a. m., daily, Sundays Excepted, returning leaves Trenton at 1 p. m., leaving Belleville at 3 p.m. for Deseronto, Napanee and Picton.

Quick and Superior Service to NEW YORK CITY

Steamers RESOLUTE and RELIANCE will leave Deseronto for Oswego after arrival of Str. Ella Ross connecting at Oswego with the New York, Ontario Western Ry.

Fare to New York, Single, $8.45
Return, $13.25

For further particulars apply to THE RATHBUN CO., Local Agents

J. F CHAPMAN,
Asst. Gen. Frt. Pass. Agt., Deseronto
[illegible] ASTER General Manager Deseronto.

Str. "Niagara"

The popular excursion boat "Niagara," which has been very much improved since last season, will be open for charter on or after the 13th of July next. The "Niagara" is now lighted throughout by electricity, and will also have a search light, making her at once the safest, fastest and most comfortable excursion boat on the bay.

THOMAS STEWART,
Manager,
45 Bridge St., Belleville.

RAILWAY TIME TABLES.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Time of departure from Belleville Station:

Going East.

New train 12.45 a.m., daily, except Sunday, for Brockville, Montreal and intermediate stations.

No. 16—Local, for Brockville, 7 a.m., arrives back from Brockville 8.40 p.m.

No. 2—1.45 a.m., Mail and Express, (Flyer), Daily.

No. 6—11.43 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.

No. 4—12.22 p.m., International Limited, Daily.

No. 12—5.55 p.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.

Going West,

No. 5—3 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily except Monday.

No. 3—4.10 a.m., Limited Express, Daily.

No. 9—5.50 a.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.

No. 11—11.22 a.m., Passenger, Daily except Sunday.

No. 1—1.48 p.m., International Limited, Daily.

No. 7—5.12 p.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.

Taking effect 12.01 o'clock, Sunday, June 14, 1903.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.

Belleville and Peterboro.

Going West.

	Leave.	Arr. Peterboro
Mail	5.45 a.m.	8.10 a.m.
Mixed	5.55 p.m.	9.05 p.m.

Going East.

	Arr.	L've Peterboro
Mixed	11.20 a.m.	8.25 a.m.
Mail	4.25 p.m.	2.05 p.m.

Belleville and Madoc.

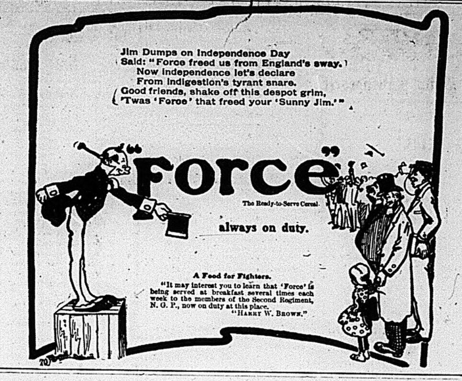
Going North.

	L've	Arr. Madoc
Mixed	12.20 p.m.	1.20 p.m.
Mixed	6.30 p.m.	7.40 p.m.

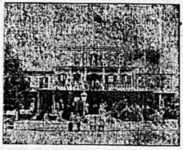
Going South.

	Arr.	L've Madoc
Mixed	9.10 a.m.	7.30 a.m.
Mixed	5.00 p.m.	3.45 p.m.

None of the above trains run on Sunday.



Jim Dumps on Independence Day
Said: "Force freed us from England's sway.
Now independence let's declare
From indigestion's tyrant snare.
Good friends, shake off this despot grim,
'Twas 'Force' that freed your 'Sunny Jim.'"
"Force"
The Ready-to-Serve Cereal.
always on duty.
A Food for Fighters.
"It may interest you to learn that 'Force' is being served at breakfast several times each week to the members of the Second Regiment, N. G. P., now on duty at this place.
"HARRY W. BROWN."



"THE SANDBANKS"

LAKE SHORE HOUSE.

House and cottages open for boarders June 15th.

Satisfactory rates and accommodation.

Good bathing and fishing.

Transient guests can secure meals and stabling for horses.

Write for circulars and terms.

McDONALD & HYATT,
West Point P.O., Ont

Mr. W. Denham

Of Denham's Drug Store, Petrolea, Ont., says:

"The O. R. Kidney Cure gives the best satisfaction to our customers of any kidney medicine we handle."

Belleville druggists speak highly of the O. R. Kidney Cure.

It does its work quickly.
It cures Lame Back.
It cures Lumbago.
It cures Bladder Trouble.
It cures Gravel in Bladder.
It cures Rheumatism.
It cures Kidney Troubles.
It will cure you.
Try one bottle.

O. R. KIDNEY CURE is put up in liquid form, contains no poisons, is quickly assimilated and will cure all kidney and urinary troubles.

O. R. Kidney Cure, 50c per bottle.
O. R. Liver Pills, 25c per bottle.
O. R. Dyspepsia Tablets 25c per box.

AT DRUGGISTS, OR WRITE—

THE O. R. MEDICINE CO., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Mosquito-Scat

If you intend "Camping Out" for your holidays this season be sure you take a bottle of "Mosquito-Scat" along. It's guaranteed to keep Flies, Mosquitos, etc. away. You'll get more comfort and rest than your money's worth in every 15c bottle.

Waters' DRUG STORE.

Bank of Montreal

ESTABLISHED 1817

Capital and Rest, All Paid Up.
$23,000,000
(Twenty-three Millions)

Savings Bank Department

Interest on sums of $1.00 and upwards allowed at current rates.

A. G. PARKER,
Manager Belleville Branch

What to buy; when to sell; better determined by readers of our "Guide to Investors and Daily Market Letter." Both yours free—for the asking. Correspondence solicited.

HAIGHT & FREESE CO.

Stocks, Bonds, Grain, Cotton.

7 Melinda St., Toronto, Ont.

"Determining the character and financial responsibility of your Broker, is as important as selection of right stocks."

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines, or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

Anecdotal.

As a preface to his attack upon the recent army appointments in England, Rudyard Kipling tells a story of a man who was carrying a bag, and of whom a fellow-traveler asked what it was that the bag contained. "Mongooses," was the answer; "my brother sees snakes, and I'm taking the mongooses up to kill them." "But your brother doesn't see real snakes." "No; but these aren't real mongooses."

Hans Jensen, a Dane, who appeared before a Kansas judge in order to take out naturalization papers, very easily demonstrated his fitness for the privilege. "Hans," said the judge, "are you satisfied with the general conditions of the country? Does this government suit you?" "Yas,-yas," replied the Dane, "only I vould like to see more rain." "Swear him!" exclaimed the judge. "I see that he already has the Kansas idea."

On one occasion Hans Richter was present at a concert given by a brother composer, at which the latter performed a long and not particularly interesting work of his own. When the composition came to an end Richter expressed his criticism in a very few words. "Well," he said, "I too haf written compositions to make a pile so high," raising his hand three feet from the ground; "but I haf burned them!"

A story is being told in the London clubs about King Edward. A discussion once arose among a circle of his intimate friends as to how they would each meet a sudden reverse of fortune. One of them turned to the Prince—it was before his accession—and said: "If the monarchy was overthrown here, sir, what would you do?" The Prince of Wales thought for a moment, and then replied: "Well, I think I might support my family by lecturing in the United States upon how it feels to be Prince of Wales."

When Mark Twain lived in Buffalo he made the acquaintance of some neighbors under peculiar circumstances. Emerging from his house one morning, he saw something which made him run across the street, and remark to the people who were gathered on the veranda: "My name is Clemens; my wife and I have been intending to call on you and make your acquaintance. We owe you an apology for not doing it before now. I beg your pardon for intruding on you in this informal manner, and at this time of day, but your house is on fire!"

While Charles A. Towne was senator from Minnesota for about thirty days last winter he made a speech on the Philippines in the Senate Chamber of Congress, and it was pronounced a great effort. At the conclusion of his speech, Senator Chauncey Depew was among the first to take Mr. Towne by the hand and congratulate him. "Senator Towne," he is said to have remarked, "your delivery was splendid, your rhetoric unsurpassed, but your argument was damnable." This left-handed compliment was no doubt intended to embarrass Senator Towne, but it didn't. He bowed politely to Mr. Depew, and said: "Senator Depew, I am glad you compliment the only features of my speech you are capable of understanding."

Nebuchadnezzar's Throne Room.

(Berlin correspondence of the London "News.")

The German Oriental Society confirms the reports in American papers to the effect that Dr. Koldewey has succeeded in discovering Nebuchadnezzar's throne room at Babylon. It is a gigantic building, about 60 feet wide by 160 feet long. Exactly opposite the door is the niche in which once the royal throne stood, and on both sides and on the northern front of the hall are richly colored ornaments, in good preservation, which will doubtless prove of the highest historical and artistic importance. The German expedition has also begun excavations in the City of Babylon, near the present village of Jumjuma, and has already discovered a goodly number of inscribed clay tablets, which, according to the testimony of Dr. Weissbach, the Assyriologist of the expedition, contain letters, psalms and vocabularies. They are, therefore, all documents of the deepest interest, and are specially calculated to further the study of the Old Testament.

With the help of new railway material, the work on the hill of Amranil-bu Ali is shortly to be resumed, and the excavations of this unique Pantheon of the Babylonian metropolis, hidden deep down in the earth, promise rich and varied discoveries.

The German Oriental Society does not confine its activity to Babylon. It has secured two other hills, named Fara and Abu Hatah, which are believed to contain particularly fine monuments dating from 4000 B.C. The two hills are not far from Nuffar, where the American excavations are being made, and the Sultan has already issued an irade permitting the excavations.

The Playgoer's Dinners.

A correspondent who signs himself "Serious Playgoer" writes to the "Illustrated London News": "Is it not possible to induce the public to moderate its eating and drinking before going to the play? If you have eaten a very large meal, how can you be in the mood for real drama? Nowadays the playwright has to provide, not drama, but an aid to digestion, a kind of dramatic equivalent to the cigarette and liqueur. He may count himself happy if rows of gentlemen in white waistcoats are gently stimulated by a theatrical anecdote, set to music if possible, and enlivened by charming costumes. If his characters have any troubles, these must be comic embarrassments, not the sordid cares that crease even a white waistcoat in actual life. I see the necessity for this entertainment so long as the playgoer has no scruple about his dining. Max Beerbohm, who treats this subject with admirable philosophy, proposes that the theater shall open in the early morning. Let us take our drama, he says, after breakfast, when the mind has a dewy freshness. Let commerce and its toils be put off until the evening. This, I fear, is a poetic ideal, like asking the moon to shine in the morning and the sun to oblige about nine p.m. It is upon the playgoer's dinner that reformers must concentrate their energies."

Curious Bits of News.

London has declared war upon music as a dining-room feature of hotels and restaurants. It is asserted that it is destructive of that important accompaniment of a pleasant dinner—easy talking.

It is said that the Indians gave to the first Eastern emigrants who came into California the name of "Wo'hah," formed from "whoa-haw," the sound they heard the drivers produce when they shouted to their oxen.

All to Save a Cat.

Popular sympathy with a suffering animal and the readiness of the public to relieve such suffering were illustrated recently in St. Louis, when a man risked his life to rescue a cat from a narrow ledge on the side of a lofty water-tower. The cat had been pursuing a swallow, and, although it had climbed down to the ledge alone, was unable to climb back. For several days it remained a prisoner, one hundred and seventy-five feet from the ground, and suffering severely from hunger and thirst. The man who discovered the cat's predicament climbed the two hundred and twenty-five steps to the top of the tower, and was lowered by a rope to the ledge, forty feet below. The cat, crazed by its sufferings, fought vigorously, but was finally taken down in safety, and her rescuer, when he reached the ground, was greeted with cheers.

A Dead Heat With One Entry.

"What's the funniest thing I ever saw?" repeated the gentleman of sporting tendencies. "Well, I guess it was a dead heat in an event where there was only one entry." "How in the world was that?" came from the other end of the store—and when the answer came, "A cremation," the questioner ordered the drinks.—Philadelphia "Press."

Dooley on Athletics For Women.

MR. HENNESSY having ventured to say that athletic exercise is a splendid thing for women, "Is it, faith?" said Mr. Dooley. "Well, it may be, but it's no good f'r th' women f'r th' men. I don't know annything that cud be more demoralizin' thin to be marrid to a woman that cud give me a shtroke a shtick at goluf. 'Tis goin' to be th' roon iv fam'ly life. 'Twill break up th' happy home. I'm a man, we'll say, that's down town fr'm th' arly mornin' bendin' over a ledger an' thryin' to thrap a dollar or two to keep th' landlord fr'm th' dure. I dispise athleets. I see that all th' men that have a metallic rattle whin they get on a moovin' shtreet car are pounds overweight, an' wud blow up if they jogged around th' corner.

"Well, I come home at night, an' no matther how I've been 'Here-you-d' all day, I feel in me heart that I'm th' big thing there. What makes me feel that way, says ye? 'Tis th' sinse iv physical supeeryority. Me wife is smarter thin I am. She's had nawthin' to do all day but th' housewurk an' puttin' in th' coal an' studyin' how she can make me do something I don't want to do that I wud want to do if she didn't want me to do it. She's thrained to th' minyit in havin' her own way. Her mind's clearer, mine bein' full iv bills iv ladin'; she can talk betther an' more frequent; she can throw me fam'ly in me face, an' whin har-rd put to it, her starry eyes can gleam with tears that I think ar-re grief, but she knows diff'rent. An' I give in. But I've won, just th' same.

"But now, how is it? I go home at night an' I'm met at th' dure be a female joynt. Me wife's th' champeen lady golufess iv th' Ivy Leaf Goluf Club; th' finest oarslady on th' canal; a tinnis player that none can raysist without injury. She can ride a horse, an' I cudden't stay on a merry-go-round without clothespins. She can box a good welterweight, an' she's got medals f'r th' broad jump. Th' on'y spoorts she isn't good at is cookin' an' washin'. This large lady, a little-peevish because she's off her dhrive, meets me at th' dure an' begins issuin' orders befure I have me shoes off. 'Tis jut th' same as if I was back on th' hoist. She doesn't argy, she doesn't weep. She jus' says, 'Say, you,' an' I'm off on th' bound. I look her over, an' say I to meself, 'What's th' good? I cudden't cross that guard,' an' me reign is ended. I'm back to th' ranks iv th' prolitory.

"It won't do, Hinnissy. It's a blow at good govermint. 'Twill disrupt th' home. Our fathers was r-right. They didn't risk their lives an' limbs be marryin' these female Sharkeys."

Dressing-up For the Coronation.

(Paris Correspondent of London "Truth.")

THE Earl-Marshal's notification to the peers and peeresses of Great Britain is thought vastly amusing. It strikes us here as might an attempt to go back with pride to the ancestral missing link, whose skeleton it appears has been found in the farthest East. There was something grand and handsome in the distinctive costumes that Louis the Fourteenth invented. The tabouret and the pliant, or folding seat, had their manifest raison d'etre in the crowded saloons and galleries at Versailles. But the notification of the Earl-Marshal strikes us as the triumph of snobbishness, the exaltation of pettiness. Could Swift have been thinking of a similar notification in his time when he wrote about the war between the Big-Endians and the Little-Endians? A consequence of the notification will be to make American heiresses scorn offers of marriage from noblemen less high than dukes. They will know now that dukes only have strawberry leaves on their coronets and four rows of black snips of fur on their miniver capes. Barons who can only wear two rows of the black snips will be held of small account in the heiress preserves of the United States, and so, we may expect, will be earls who have half a row less than the marquis, and a whole row less than a duke. What American lady could bear to appear as a baron's wife in a mantle with a train three feet on the ground when the viscountess immediately preceding her had one a quarter of a yard longer, the countess preceding her half a yard, the marchioness three-quarters of a yard, and the duchess a whole yard? The English easily grasp the inferiority of their "proper stations" in or out of the Peerage. But the Americans do not. Their motto is "tout ou rien." They must have a front seat, or they leave the room. Mr. Jesse Grant, though not of the ornamental sex, declined to dine at Windsor with the lords' gentlemen-in-waiting. "If I do not dine with father (the ex-President of the United States) and mother at the Queen's table I go home." A court official with fear and trembling conveyed this intimation to her late Majesty, who reluctantly yielded, for Big-Endian and Little-Endian questions came within the compass of her brain, and she attached great importance to them. Mr. Jesse Grant did not know that the smallest of the court officials with whom he scorned to dine took precedence of the grand old Gladstone, and that without shocking any Englishman. The aristocratic nobody who waited on the Queen was supposed to absorb some of her sacred virtue. So far as precedence went, the Prime Minister, who was the representative of the nation, was of inferior standing. But I dare say this did not matter to the Grand Old Man. I had some years ago one of her Majesty's judges (Sir Henry Keating) dining with me. Another guest was an English Honorable, who might have been, in regard to age, his son. It seemed to me absurd that the place of honor should not be given to the judge. To make things pleasant to him, I consulted him before the dinner came off on the subject of precedence. "If," he said, "it is a Franco-English dinner, adopt French rules, since you are in France; if it is an English one, adopt English, in which case I go behind the Honorable. Any earl's son old enough to wear a swallow-tailed coat and a white cravat is entitled to take the pas of me. I know that an American judge, accustomed to be looked up to, would not like to walk behind a young sprig of nobility. I remember Evarts, the great American lawyer who pleaded on the side of the United States at the Geneva Arbitral Court, being visibly annoyed at an earl's son who had just left Eton being placed above him at table."

The Flagging Energies Revived.—Constant application to business is a tax upon the energies, and if there be not relaxation, lassitude and depression are sure to intervene. These come from stomachic troubles. The want of exercise brings on nervous irregularities, and the stomach ceases to assimilate food properly. In this condition Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will be found a recuperative of rare power, restoring the organs to healthful action, dispelling depression, and reviving the flagging energies.

The best way to get even is to forget.

Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial is a speedy cure for dysentery, diarrhoea, cholera, summer complaint, sea sickness and complaints incidental to children teething. It gives immediate relief to those suffering from the effects of indiscretion in eating unripe fruit, cucumbers, etc. It acts with wonderful rapidity and never fails to conquer the disease. No one need fear cholera if they have a bottle of this medicine convenient.

Life has no blessing like a prudent friend.

Sleeplessness.—When the nerves are unstrung and the whole body given up to wretchedness, when the mind is filled with gloom and dismal forebodings, the result of derangement of the digestive organs, sleeplessness comes to add to the distress. If only the subject could sleep, there would be the oblivion for a while and temporary relief. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will not only induce sleep, but will act so beneficially that the subject will wake refreshed and restored to happiness.

It takes money to voice the opinion of a lawyer.

Holloway's Corn Cure is the medicine to remove all kinds of corns and warts, and only costs the small sum of twenty-five cents.

A long portage makes a heavy canoe.

A WONDERFUL CURE.—Mr. David Smith, Coe Hill, Ont., writes: "For the benefit of others I wish to say a few words about Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. About a year ago I took a very severe cough, had a virulent sore on my lips, was bad with dyspepsia, constipation and general debility. I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, so I got a bottle and when I had used about one-half, the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done, it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had used quinine and lemon juice with very little effect. But since using 3 bottles of the Vegetable Discovery, the biliousness is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 68 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know."

The wildcat's teeth are close to its purr.

THE PUBLIC should bear in mind that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has nothing in common with the impure, deteriorating class of so-called medicinal oils. It is eminently pure and really efficacious—relieving pain and lameness, stiffness of the joints and muscles, and sores or hurts, besides being an excellent specific for rheumatism, coughs and bronchial complaints.

Coral is a talisman against thunder and evils by flood and field.

These two desirable qualifications, pleasant to the taste and at the same time effectual, are to be found in Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator. Children like it.

The average watch represents but 12 hours of human labor.

To get relief from indigestion, biliousness, constipation or torpid liver without disturbing the stomach or purging the bowels, take a few doses of Carter's Little Liver Pills, they will please you.

When one gets hopping mad his reason goes on a crutch.

That tired, languid feeling and dull headache is very disagreeable. Take two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring, and you will find relief. They never fail to do good.

Many a man's self-conceit is due to his ignorance.

They make one feel as though life was worth living. Take one of Carter's Little Liver Pills after eating; it will relieve dyspepsia, aid digestion, give tone and vigor to the system.

If thy friend is honey, do not lick him up altogether.

Nothing so certainly obstructs the perspiration as sudden transitions from heat to cold. Heat rarifies the blood, quickens the circulation and increases the perspiration, but when these are suddenly checked the consequences must be bad. The most common cause of disease is obstructed perspiration, or what commonly goes by the name of catching cold. Coughs, colds, sore throat, etc., if attended to in time are easily subdued, but if allowed to run their own course generally prove the fore-runner of more dangerous diseases. Nine-tenths of the consumptives date their afflictions from a neglected cold and the diseases that are caused by wet feet, damp clothes, or exposure are more numerous than are generally supposed. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, which frees the lungs from viscid phlegm by changing the secretions from a diseased to a healthy state.

SAVE MONEY

By JOINING The MUTUAL LITERARY-MUSIC CLUB
OF AMERICA

25 Cents pays for three months' membership. Each member receives the official club organ every month, including 6 pieces of high-class vocal and instrumental new music each month, 18 pieces in all; also a Certificate of Membership which gives the privilege of Club Room in New York City, and of buying literature, music or musical instruments of any description at wholesale prices, saving you from 20% to 60% on your purchases. Don't fail to join at once. You will get many times your money's worth. MUTUAL LITERARY-MUSIC CLUB, Dept. [illegible], 150 Nassau St., N.Y.

TWO SPECIAL SALES

Men's Suits, Men's and Boy's Shirts.

Saturday Night Only From 7 to 10 O'Clock.

We will have on sale Saturday night, 50 dozen Men's and Boys' Shirts, worth 50 to 75 cts. to be cleared at only 25 cts. each.

Also about 50 Men's Suits, odds and ends of different $5.00, $6.00 and $7.00 lines, to be cleared at only

$3.90 each.

See north window for Shirts, south window for sample of Suits.

Remember, 7 to 10 o'clock Saturday Night, and don't be late.

OAK HALL

Sole Agents for Sanford's Celebrated Clothing.

THE BEST Shoe Bargains

FOR THE PEOPLE AT TH

J. J. Haines Shoe Houses.

1 Lot Women's Patent Laced Boots and Low Shoes—$2.00 and $2.50, now	$1.50
Women's Kid Low Shoe, patent tip, all sizes	.95
Women's Laced Shoe, patent tip, all sizes	.68
Women's Real Kid Gaiters, sizes 3 to 8	1.00
Women's Juliet Gaiters, $1.50, now	1.00
Women's 2 Button Low Shoe, "Trilby," now	1.00
Women's Kid Strap Slipper, Bell's $2.00, now	1.50
Boys' Grey Canvas Laced Boot, sizes 1 to 5	.50
Men's Grey Canvas Laced Boot, sizes 6 to 10	.75
Girls' Low Shoes, patent tip, sizes 11 to 2	.60
Child's Low Shoes, patent tip, sizes 8 to 10	.50
Child's Kid Button Boot, sizes 5 to 7, regular 75c	.50
Child's Strap Slippers, sizes 8 to 10	.50
Baby's Boots, fancy tops, sizes 3 to 7	.40

We have what you want. Call at once.

In all regular lines of Footwear we can show yon the LARGEST AND BEST VARIETY in this section of Canada at lowest prices.

The J. J. Haines SHOE HOUSES at Belleville, Napanee and Trenton

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE
FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

Aged Lady Dead.

Mrs. Ellen G. Wheeler, relict of the late Mr. Thos. Wheeler, died yesterday morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Handley, Ashley street. Deceased was 81 years of age, and was born at Woolwich, Eng. Since the year 1869 Mrs. Wheeler had been a resident of this city. She was in religion a member of the Plymouth Brethren. The surviving members of the family are Mrs. Handley and Miss Lizzie Wheeler, of this city, and one son, Walter, who resides in Woolwich, England.

Russia Must Refuse.

Washington, July 2.—The Russian Government most positively and absolutely denies the report that it has offered any official explanation to the American Government regarding the Kisheneff incident, and declares that it has never been addressed by the American Government upon the subject. The Russian Government must categorically refuse to receive from any power any petitions, representations or communications relative to its internal affairs.

Numerous Prostrations.

Cleveland, O., July 2.—Numerous prostrations were reported yesterday as a result of the intense heat.

GOOD TESTIMONIALS ARE VALUABLE

AND WE HAVE HUNDREDS OF THE VERY BEST

But, after all, what you want to know is whether it suits you, not whether it suits some-one else.

You can only tell by trying. You can try for 25c

IRON-OX TABLETS

A NERVE TONIC, TISSUE BUILDER AND BLOOD MAKER

A Cure for Constipation and Indigestion

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

COURT OF REVISION.

SAT UNTIL MIDNIGHT ON TUESDAY LAST.

The Court of Revision held a session on Tuesday night, sitting until midnight. A large number of appeals were heard, the result being as follows:—

A. T. Petrie's assessment of $600 on one tenant house reduced to $500, and another assessment of $600 reduced to $550.

J. M. Pott's assessment of $6,000 reduced to $4,800.

J. Muir's income assessment of $500 struck out.

F. Alexander's assessment of $2,200 reduced to $2,000.

Adam Henry's assessment of $4,000 on personal property reduced to $3,000.

H. Lavoie's assessment of $300 reduced to $200.

F. E. O'Flynn's assessment of $300 on real estate reduced to $250.

J. W. Butterfield's assessment on Crystal Hotel of $7,000 reduced to $5,600.

John Doyle's assessment of $5,750 on International Hotel reduced to $4,600, and another assessment of $250 on a vacant lot reduced to $200.

R. J. Graham's total assessment reduced to $11,300.

Trenton Electric Company's assessment of $39,200 on real property reduced to $1,500.

Lottie Mortimer's assessment of $700 reduced to $600.

E. G. Porter's assessment of $3,500 reduced to $3,000.

A. Robinson's assessment on residence was fixed at $6,000.

John Campbell's assessment of $700 reduced to $650.

F. Dolan's assessment on residence of $2,000 reduced to $1,800.

The Solar Plexus and Indigestion.

HOW WORRY AND MENTAL EXERTION CAUSE DYSPEPSIA—CURE FOUND IN

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The solar plexis is the largest nerve centre of the sympathetic nervous system, and may de described as a storehouse of nervous energy. It is situated just back of the stomach, and supplies the motive power which runs the machinery of the digestive system.

If an excessive amount of nerve force is consumed in the brain by worry, anxiety, mental strain or disease the quantity supplied to the plexus is correspondingly deficient, and hence lacking nerve force the vital organs only feebly perform their functions. The digestive fluids flow slowly, the stomach loses its contracting power, the liver and kidneys grow torpid and sluggish, and indigestion soon develops into what is known as nervous dyspepsia.

Mr. Joseph Brosseau, carter, 86 South John street, Belleville, Ont., states:—"My trouble was nervous dyspepsia, which resulted no doubt from an exhaustion of the nervous system, and I also suffered from sleeplessness and severe attacks of nervous headache. After having used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I can say that the headaches have disappeared, I rest and sleep well, my digestion is good and my general health better than it has been for years."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, red corpuscles in the blood, creates new nerve force and so affords lasting cure for dyspepsia, indigestion and resulting headaches, dizzy spells and irritability by supplying the necessary energy to the solar plexus. By noting your increase of weight from week to week while using this great food cure you can prove that your system is being built up and new flesh and tissue being added to the body. 50 cents a box, six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous recipe book author, are on every box.

TUFTSVILLE.

Mrs. Albert Eggleton spent a few days in Madoc, caring for her aunt, Mrs. Sheldrick, who is very ill.

Mr. George and Miss Sarah Eggleton attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Sills in Foxboro on Sunday last.

Miss Gertrude Eggleton from Big Bend, N.Y., is visiting friends here.

Mr. Frank and Miss Nina Clarke made a call at Anson, to see her brother Fred, who is operator there.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Ashley spent a day at Rossmore with her sister, Mrs. Phillip Hamilton.

ROBLIN'S MILLS.

Crops are looking fine since the recent rain.

Miss Clara Cunningham is home on a visit.

Last week the village was thronged with entrance boys and girls.

Rev. Mr. Johnston gave an eloquent sermon on Sunday last, and there was a large attendance.

Miss Ethel Tuirs, of Trenton, is visiting Mrs. C. Tuirs this week.

CHATTERTON.

Hay making has commenced in this locality. Some have quite a lot in the barn already.

Mr. Merrick Foster, one of our neighbors, has sold his farm to Mr. Mitts. The many friends of Mr. Foster will be very sorry to part with so good a neighbor.

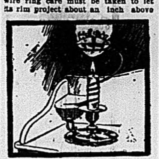
Strawberry picking is finished around here.

Mrs. Morley Shibley is spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Vanderwaters.

A NOVEL EXPERIMENT.

It Has Been Discovered That Water May Be Boiled in a Paper Vessel.

An experimenter has lately discovered that water can be boiled in a paper vessel. Out of a sheet of strong paper cut a dish about six inches in diameter. Next take a piece of wire, not too thin, making at one end thereof a ring about three inches in diameter, wrapping the other end spirally around a candle and keeping it in place by sticking a pin into the candle just below the lower end. By pressing the dish of paper ineo the hollow of one hand it is given a bowl shape. In placing this bowl in the wire ring care must be taken to let its rim project about an inch above the support, as this makes it possible to pour into the paper dish so much water that the surface of the latter is slightly above the wire—this being absolutely necessary to the success of the experiment.



It is also necessary that the flame of the candle almost reaches, or even slightly touches, the bottom of the bowl. In a few seconds after lighting the candle the water will begin to boil, the paper remaining intact because the water absorbs the entire heat of the flame.

Craft of Spiders.

Then there are spiders that do sidesteps, writes Harvey Sutherland in Ainslee's. They must reason, or some ancestor must have reasoned for them thus, "All of our enemies figure that we will run forward. Well, I'll just fool 'em. I'll take a hop to one side." Also when the nephila plumipes, a big black-and-yellow person that hangs in her web in plain sight, sees an evil-disposed bird making for her, what does she do? She vanishes. Run? Never. She vanishes, I tell you. Stays where she is, but goes out of sight. She shakes her web so violently that instead of appearing to be a big, fat spider there is only a haze where she was. Pholcus, the long-legged cellar spider that spins an irregular web, in similar circumstances swings its body in a circle so fast that it can not be seen. Orbbb-weavers scatter rubbish in their webs till they look like old things that have been up two or three months and then they get in line with the chips of bark that they themselves have put there. The scales on trees, lichens and the like is wonderful. Some spiders have found it a paying proposition to look like the stamens and pistils of bright-colored flowers. There they stand by the hour with thier yellow forelegs stuck up stiff into the air. A butterfly comes along and alights to suck honey. He never gets away alive. The resemblance is so close that botanists are deceived. One kind of a spider spins a little round patch of white silk on a leaf. It sits in the center. The outer edge of its body is a light, grayish green merging into white. In the center of its body is a dark spot. An entomologist was once quite curious to know what could attract butterflies to birds' droppings. He tried to pull one away from it. He found that he had made the same mistake that the butterfly had. The reason why it didn't fly away was that the spider had hold of it and was sucking its blood. Some spiders not only looks like withered flowers lying on the ground, but have developed a perfume like jasmine. Some look like snail-shells, and one smart salticus disports herself on sunny walls and fences after this fashion: She walks hurriedly, stops abruptly, rapidly moves her jaws as if she were cleaning her front legs after she had rubbed the dust off her wings, only she hasn't any wings. Some one of the horse flies behaving the same way opens conversation: How do you do, sir? Nice weather we're hav— Help! murder! watch! but salticus has him all right.

Baby's Earache.

Earache is one of the common ailments of babies, and they suffer very much at times. If your child should awake suddenly during the night, caying with pain, and put his hand to his ear, go to sleep and wake again after a little while and the paroxysm is repeated, you may be suce it is suffering from earache.

To relieve it the best treatment is to apply heat of any kind to the ear, such as hot water bags, or small bags filled with hot bran or salt—in fact, anything that holds heat long will stop the pain. Hot-water syringes are also very good. But when these things are not immediately procurable, the hand held over the ear will help somewhat; or, better still, a heated flannel.

If none of those simple remedies help a doctor should be sent for without delay.

Old Maid's Homes.

In Sweden and Norway there are several old maids' homes, and at least one of them is a most attractive institution. A very wealthy man, dying more than 200 years ago, left most of his fortune to the old maids among his descendants. A superb home was built and furnished and managed by salaried trustees. Any old maid who can prove blood relationship to the founder of the institution is entitled to a place in the home. She has a private suit of rooms, a private servant, private meals, and is subject to no rules save such as ordinary good behavior demands.

Anecdotal.

The "Westminster Gazette" tells a fishy story of a couple of London brokers who went traveling together. The waiter at Lyons brought their two soles in one dish, and the carver, politely handing the small one to his friend, reserved the larger one for himself. Frank in his wrath, the friend described it as a dirty trick. "Why, what would you have done?" innocently asked the carver. "Given you the larger one, of course." "Well, I've got it, haven't I? What more do you want?"

Mrs. George Whipple, a niece of Daniel Webster, says that when Webster was visiting in the country he attended a little church morning and evening. A fellow-senator said to him: "Mr. Webster, I am surprised that you go twice on Sunday to hear a plain country preacher, when you pay little attention to far abler sermons in Washington." "In Washington," Webster replied, "they preach to Daniel Webster, the statesman, but this man has been telling Daniel Webster, the sinner, of Jesus of Nazareth, and it has been helping him."

A lecturer was once descanting on the superiority of nature over art, when an irreverent listener in the audience fired that old question at him: "How would you look, sir, without your wig?" "Young man," instantly replied the lecturer, pointing his finger at him, "you have furnished me an apt illustration for my argument. My baldness can be traced to the artificial habits of our modern civilization, while the wig I am wearing"—here he raised his voice till the windows shook—"is made of natural hair!" The audience testified its appreciation of the point by loud applause, and the speaker was not interrupted again.

On one occasion, just previous to opening in one of the large Eastern cities, Joseph Jefferson discharged his property man, Bagley, for humiliating him before a number of friends by familiarly addressing him as "Joey." Bagley got drunk right away, and that night paid his way to the gallery to see Mr. Jefferson present "Rip Van Winkle." The angry frau had just driven poor, destitute Rip from the cottage, when Rip turned, and, with a world of pathos, asked: "Den haf I no interest in dis houze?" The house was deathly still, the audience half in tears, when Bagley's cracked voice responded: "Only eighty per cent., Joey—only eighty per cent."

Some people are incapable of magnanimity. After Sir Henry Irving's name had become a household word, he one day, while coming out of his theater, chanced to spy a former manager of his, Charles Dillon, the actor, who, by the way, was envious of Irving's success. Irving, delighted at seeing his former employer again, spoke to him. Dillon turned and carefully sized him up, presently remarking, "You have the advantage of me, sir. Who are you?" Irving quietly reminded him of the time when he had supported him, but the old actor sternly professed entire ignorance of the knight-player. After some time, however, the name seemed to dawn upon him, and he murmured, "Irving? Oh, yes, of course! I do seem to recollect that name. And what are you doing now, Irving?"

When President Roosevelt was a police commissioner of New York, in 1895, Dr. Ahlwardt, the anti-Semitic agitator from Berlin, visited the metropolis. Not a few of the New York anti-Semites came to Roosevelt in alarm lest the Jews should rise and mob the orator on the night of his first address. The commissioner's response was to select from the whole police force a squad of Hebrews whose physiognomy bespoke their race most conspicuously; these officers he placed in charge of the hall where Ahlwardt was to appear, with a reminder that in this country of free speech they could show their good citizenship in no more striking manner than by protecting the very man who had come to hurl contempt and abuse at their people. The effect of this bit of comedy was to make Ahlwardt ridiculous, and cause his whole crusade to fall pitifully flat.

On one occasion, in trying an abduction case, Lord Morris, once chief justice of Ireland, addressed the jury as follows: "I am compelled to direct you to find a verdict of guilty in this case, but you will easily see that I think it is a trifling thing, which I regard as quite unfit to occupy my time. It is more valuable than yours. At any rate, it is much better paid for. Find, therefore, the prisoner guilty of abduction, which rests, mind ye, on four points—the father was not averse, the mother was not opposed, the girl was willing, and the boy was convaynient." The jury found the prisoner guilty, and the judge sentenced him to remain in the dock till the rising of the court. Hardly had he delivered sentence than, turning to the sheriff, Lord Morris said: "Let us go," and, looking at the prisoner, he called across the court: "Marry the girl at once, and God bless you both."

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY.

WILL RUN Homeseekers' 60 DAY Excursions

To The Canadian North-West at Return Fares.

Winnipeg, Waskada, Estevan, Elgin, Arcola, Moosomin, Wawanesa, Miniota, Binscarth, Grand View, Swan River	$28
Regina, Moosejaw, Yorkton	$30
Prince Albert, Macleod, Calgary	$35
Red Deer, Strathcona	$40

Going JUNE 4th, returning until AUGUST 4th (all rail) or S.S. Athabasca). Going JUNE 18th, returning until AUGUST 18th (all rail or S.S. Athabasca). Going July 4th, returning until SEPTEMBER 8th (all rail or S.S. Manitoba). Tickets are not good on "Imperial Limited." For tickets and pamphlet giving full particulars, apply to your nearest Canadian Pacific agent, or to

A. H. NOTMAN, Asst. Genl. Pass. Agent, 1 King St. East, Toronto.
S. BURROWS, C.P.R. and General Ticket Agent, Front St., Belleville.

NEW YORK CENTRAL & HUDSON RIVER R. R.

THE FOUR-TRACK TRUNK LINE.

SHORTEST Route to the United States via Cape Vincent, N.Y.

GOING EAST AND WEST.		After 1st May
Lv. Belleville (G.T.R.)	12.22 p.m.	1.30 a.m
Arr. Kingston "	1.47 p.m.	3.12 a.m
Lv. Kingston (stage)..	2.30 p.m.	5.00 a.m
Arr. CapeVincent (stage)	4.30 p.m.	7.00 a.m
Lv. Cape Vincent N.Y.C.	5.05 p.m.	7.25 a.m
Arr. Watertown "	5.55 p.m.	8.25 a.m
Arr. Oswego "	9.05 p.m.	11.55 a.m.
Arr. Syracuse "	9.25 p.m.	12.07 p.m
Arr. Rochester "	1.05 a.m.	2.20 a.m
Arr. Utica "	9.45 p.m.	12.35 p.m
Arr. New York "	7.25 a.m.	6.00 p.m

Convenient train service in opposite direction.

Pullman Sleeping and Parlor Cars.

2c a Mile.

Books for 500 miles of travel on New York Central and leased lines within State of New York, cost only $10 while books for 1000 miles over New York Central, Boston & Albany, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, Philadelphia & Reading and C. R. R. of New Jersey cost $20. Secure further information and purchase tickets from F. A. Folger, N.Y.C. Agent, Kingston, Ont.

GEORGE H. DANIELS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent. New York.
A. H. SMITH, Gen'l Supt., New York.
G. C. GRIDLEY, Gen'l Agent, Watertown, N.Y.

Curse —OF— DRINK

CURED BY COLONIAL REMEDY

No taste. No Odor. Can be given in a glass of water, tea, or coffee, without patient's knowledge.

Colonial Remedy will cure or destroy the diseased appetite for alcoholic stimulants, whether the patient is a confirmed inebriate, "tippler," social drinker or drunkard. Impossible for anyone to have an appetite or alcoholic liquors after using Colonial Remedy.

Indorsed by Members of the W.C.T.U.

Mrs. Moore, Superintendent of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Ventura, Cal., writes: "I have tested Colonial Remedy on very obstinate drunkards, and the cures have been many. In many cases the Remedy was given secretly. I cheerfully recommend and endorse Colonial Remedy. Members of our Union are delighted to find a practical and economical treatment to aid us in our temperance work."

Sold by druggists everywhere and by mail. Price $1. Trial package free by writing or calling on Mrs. M. A. Cowan (for years member of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union), 2204 St. Catherine St., Montreal.

Sold in Belleville by F. Chas. Clarke Front St. and D. M. Waters, Bridge St

It takes a long time to tell of what you have not done.

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

Shoe Bargains

See our Bargain Tables for

Ladies' fine Low Shoes, regular price 75c & $1.00, now	50c
Ladies' Low Shoes, worth from $1.25 to $2.00, for	75c
Travellers Samples at greatly reduced prices.
Boys' Tan Boots, worth $1.25 to $2.50.	$1.00, $1.25 and $1.50
Men's Tan Boots per pair worth $3.00, $4.00, and $5.00.	$2.00
Misses' Box Calf, Button Boots, per pair sizes 11 to 2	60c
Children's Laced and Button Boots, per pair worth 75c and $1.00	60c
Infants' Boots and Slippers, per pair	25c
Infants' Gaiter Boots	25c

VERMILYEA & SON.

Choose The Best

If it is only the framing of a picture you may as well have the best workmanship as well as the largest selection of mouldings—when it don't cost you any more, probably less.

If we do not give you perfect workmanship—you may demand of us non-payment—framing superior to ours is impossible—we would not do all of the framing for Albert College Art Students if our work were not fitting, and proper.

Another lot of new mouldings just arrived, it would surprise you to see the repeated shipments of mouldings we receive.

You know what to expect of us in WALL PAPERS, and now with our special prices it is amazing what you can get for a small amount of money.

A beautiful new line of American Wall Papers arriving almost all the time.

Better not forget us for PAINTING. Whether your house is to paint outside or inside, whether a fence or a barn, we will paint it at reasonable prices but our workmen are not of the Barn Painting Kind. None but expert workmen find employment with us, men who will please you in both quality and quantity and we have no frills on our prices.

We purpose doing our paper hanging and decorating and painting at actual cost in connection with our Wall Paper department.

If You Live in the Country.

In Stirling, Tweed, Madoc, Trenton, Napanee, Deseronto or within a radius of 50 miles—we will send you workmen and guarantee you every satisfaction.

Our Paints

If you want prepared paints we have them in all colors.

Also barn paint at $1.00 per gallon, but better than that we will mix you the best lead and oil paint, our own mixing and our own materials at the actual cost of the less valuable ready-mixed material.

Any quantity you want any color or shade, in a moments notice and at remarkably low prices — our customers are many in the paint line.

C. B. Scantlebury

Belleville's Decorator.

Wall Paper Wholesale and Retail.

For the Revelsworth Millions,

or

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fail by the Man She Loves.

Following immediately upon it, before the brothers had even time to follow their impulse of rushing to help, a hurried knocking was heard upon the panels of the bed-room door.

"Wake up! Wake up and come down directly! Some one must be hurt and is crying for help!" came to them in Francesca's vioce.

CHAPTER XVI.

When on the following day Dudley Revelsworth came to think calmly over the events of that night, he could not fail to recall one incident to which in the hurry and excitement of the moment he had given but little attention. This was that Francesca, whom he would have deemed a woman of considerable nerve and self-control, had, in her alarm at the screams, so planted herself against the door of her cousins' rooms as positively to impede their egress.

The screaming still continued as Francesca beat with her hands upon the panels of the door, calling the brothers loudly by name, and apparently ignoring the fact that they could not come out without pushing her roughly on one side, as the door opened outwards and, in her agitation, she seemed to be leaning with all her weight against it. So closely indeed did she cling to it that, when Dudley, by a sudden exercise of strength, burst it open, she staggered and would have fallen had he not caught her in his arms to save her.

Her beautiful hair hung loose about her shoulders, her face was very pale, and her eyes were distened with fear She clung sobbing to Dudley, holding him closely in what looked like a paroxysm of extreme terror.

"Dudley, Dudley—don't leave me! It is that ghost I am certain! I heard its horrible rustling!"

"But that isn't a ghost's scream. It must be my aunt or Betty. Compose yourself, Francesca dear, and let me go down to see what is the matter."

Victor, on his part, had not moved from the doorway. He stood there, transfixed by jealousy, watching Francesca as she clung to his brother, breathless with admiration at her beauty, which he had never seen to greater advantage than now, when her bright dishevelled hair hung in gleaming masses about her white face, and her beautiful figure was shown off to perfection by her long dressing-gown of pale-green lawn, edged with billows of fine white lace.

She was so enchanting in the caressing fervour with which she clung to Dudley, clutching him with what might be hysterical terror, or might again be artful coquetry, that the young man forgot for a moment that she was detaining him in the pleasing task of trying to comfort her, and he could even have found it in his heart to regret his brother's jealous watchful gaze in such close vicinity.

"You had much better go back to your room, dear," he whispered to his cousin, "and let Victor and me go and see what is the matter. We will see that no ghost hurts you. I should never have though you were such a coward."

"Francesca—Francesca!"

It was the thin sweet voice of Mrs Harold Revelsworth, in accents of quavering alarm, which reached them from her room at the end of the passage. At the sound Francesca raised her head, which she had buried on Dudley's shoulder, and appeared to be endeavoring to regain her self-control.

"I must go to her," she murmured—"just for a moment at least, to quiet her. The screaming must have awakened her, and I wouldn't have her seriously frightened again for the world. No—don't come with me as far as the door; I am ashamed now of having been so silly and so selfish. Go at once, you and Victor, and find out what is the matter. Then to me again if I can be of any help."

When Dudley subsequently reflected on this little scene, it seemed strange to him that Francesca had not accompanied him at once to the floor below. But at the time the touch of her clinging fingers, the perfume which hung about her loosened hair, and the delightful softness of her cheek when in apparent unconsciousness she pressed it against his own, while he could feel the very throbbing of her heart as she nestled in his arms—all these things so intoxicated him that he was incapable of clear and dispassionate thought. The screaming, which had now ceased, and was replaced by the hurried pattering of feet about the house, seemed to him in those few moments a wholly unimportant incident, the one great fact of the night being the fascination of Francesca's face and voice and the magnetism of her touch.

On the first floor the brothers found everything in the greatest disorder. The women-servants, half dressed, were running in and out of Mrs. Revelsworth's apartments, searching for salts and brandy and other restoratives; old Mrs. Margaret herself, tall and gaunt in her long gray flannel dressing-gown and strangely pale, was directing them; while at her feet, motionless and insensible, lay little Betty Mannington.

"Dudley at last!" his aunt exclaimed, at sigh of her elder nephew. "The child has had a fright of some sort; I thought she was dead at first. Welldon and his boy sleep like logs. Go down, one of you two, and wake them, and send at once for a doctor."

"I will go for a doctor myself, if you tell me where to find him," said Victor.

"You'd lose your way. Go down and wake Welldon. And, Dudley, help to lift the child back to her room. I can't bear to see her on the floor like that. And look at the dogs. All this noise scarcely wakes them."

"But what has happened?"

"I know nothing. Betty's screams woke me. She couldn't answer me when I spoke to her; she seemed in a paroxysm of terror, which ended in her falling flat on the floor in a dead faint. She has never fainted before. I can't understand it."

"Perhaps the air may revive her," suggested Dudley.

He had waited upon his little stepmother on the rare occasions when she had fainted, and very tenderly and reverently he now lifted the girl's slight form in his arms and carried her easily to one of the three long windows in the passage, which he threw open to let the night air play upon her face.

Very fragile and childish Betty looked, her head, with its silky dark curls, pillowed on his arm, and her pretty pink-and-white flesh-tints faded to an ivory tinge. The childish contour of her face and that look of innocent youthfulness about it made her appear more like a dead child than a living woman; and, bending over her in tender solicitude, Dudley could not help recalling with a sense of strong contrast, the sensations which had recently swept over him when that other woman had thrown herself in what looked like fear into his arms.

Passion was the sentiment inspired by Francesca, tenderness by a pure-souled little womanly creature such as Betty.

Her pale lips parted at last in a quivering sigh, and Betty opened her eyes, to find her head pillowed on Dudley Revelsworth's arm, while his aunt, close beside them, chafed her hands.

"Oh, what is it all'?' she murmured, blushing warmly all over her face, and suddenly conscious of the deshabille of a pink flannel dressing-gown, as Dudley helped her to her feet and half supported her as she stood, a little unsteadily still, and started about her.

"You fained, my dear, and were insensible quite half an hour. I've sent for Doctor Vernon," Mrs. Revelsworth explained. "I though you were dead at first. You gave all of us a dreadful fright!"

"Oh!" cried little Betty faintly, as remembrance came back to her. Then she pressed her fingers to her eyes, as though to shut out the memory of some dreadful sight. "It's of no use sending for the doctor!" she cried. "It was a ghost I saw—the ghost! Doctors can't cure ghosts. I was afraid about you, Mrs. Revelsworth, because you've been ill and nervous lately, and so I kept my door a very little way open lest you should call me in the night, as you promised you would if you had bad dreams or anything. And then, just as I was about to fall asleep, I heard it—that awful rustling something—and I made up my mind to face it and slip into your room, that you mightn't be frightened too. But, as soon as I had slipped on my dressing-gown and got to the door of my room, I saw it. It was gliding right out of the door of your room without making the least sound—even the dog on the mat didn't wake. Only the yellow brocade rustled horribly; and, though there was scarcely any light, I saw its face."

Her teeth were chattering and her whole frame was quivering in such an agony of terror that both Dudley and his aunt strove to calm her and to postpone the telling of her story; but Betty clung to Mrs. Revelsworth's hand and hurried on.

"I must tell you, because it was so horrible, and I want it explained, if anybody can explain it. The thing was small and thin, and its dress looked old and faded. The ruff and muslin cap were just like the picture, and the golden hair was dressed with pearls. But when I saw the face—oh, it was awful—awful! It was Mistress Penfold after she was drowned—a horrid dead face quite gray, and yet shining strangely in the dark, with great black holes for eyes, and a smile like that on a skull and hands like a skeleton's, shining too. At first I was too frightened ever to scream, and stood still, staring at it. But, when it came gliding right towards me, making no sound except that dreadful rustling, and clawing the air with those horrible bony little hands through which a light seemed to be glowing. I must have lost my senses, for I can remember nothing more. I don't even remember whether I called aloud for help!"

It was long before she could be persuaded to go to bed on the couch in Mrs. Revelsworth's dressing-room; and, when Doctor Vernon, the local practitioner, as distinguished from Mrs. Revelsworth's own particular London doctor, arrived, he found it necessary to administer a very strong sedative before he could leave his patient with any hope of sleep.

This local doctor was a small, neat-figured, alert little gentleman, who had settled at Hampton Court some ten years before, only to find nearly every resident devoted to Doctor Burbage, a steady old-fashioned man of considerable experience and no originality, who, fortunately for the new-comer, had contrived to offend Mrs. Revelsworth by the expression of some opinion antagonistic to her own. Forthwith Doctor Vernon was installed as medical adviser to the servants, to Miss Mannington, and to Mrs. Revelsworth when she had nothing serious the matter with her, in which latter case she invariably telegraphed for Sir Henry Champneys from town. Yet Doctor Vernon was perhaps worthy of more confidence than the autocratic old lady reposed in him. He was a man of culture, of reading, and intelligence, perhaps a little too proud of the extremely good society in which he had formerly moved by reason of his wife's distant connection with an impoverished Irish nobleman, and a little fonder of tennis and boating and gossip than of the technicalities of his profession, but by no means unobservant, and of a kindly and considerate nature.

Down in the billiard-room, he took Dudley aside after he had prescribed for Miss Mannington up-stairs. Dudley had lighted the gas, and was waiting by the open door of the room to catch the Doctor as he passed.

"Ah, I wanted a little chat with you!" cried Doctor Vernon, who aroused from his bed at one o'clock in the morning, looked as neat and fresh-colored and daintily exact in his dress as though it had been one in the afternoon. "You are the male head of the family now, I believe? I am deligted to make your acquaintance! Oh, yes—Miss Betty is much better! A charming girl, and a great favorite with my wife! I suppose you had all been telling each other ghost-stories? Or perhaps it was only indigestion."

"Some servant's trick, more likely," returned Dudley. "I should have suspected that imp of a page-boy, but that my brother found him fast asleep in bed in his father's room when he went down-stairs to arouse him. But I hope Miss Mannington's nerves will not be seriously injured! She seemed terrified beyond measure, and gave a most graphic account of the ghost."

"She is nervous and excitable, and very anxious just at present, so I have gathered, about Mrs. Revelsworth's health. And that I can throughly understand. I haven't seen your aunt for six weks, and I have seldom seen a woman more changed for the worse in that time in my life."

"Do you really mean that? I know she has seemed irritable lately, and has looked pale, and complained of sore throat and want of appetite; but I put that down to her age and to the extreme heat we have had lately."

Doctor Vernon shook his head.

"I have known her ten years," he said, "and she has never complained of the heat before. She had rather a bad heart-attack about two months ago, and by my advice she advertised then for her surviving relatives. But she was a lot better than she is now. She looks positively broken.

Dudley hesitated.

"I suppose our coming has upset her," he said, "after so many-years' solitary reign. My aunt is, as you know, a woman of very strong prejudices——"

"I noticed how very disagreeable in manner she was to that tall handsome young lady who wanted to take care of Miss Mannington for the rest of the night—'Miss Revelsworth,' the servants called her. May I ask if she is your sister?"

"My cousin."

"And the young gentleman with the foreign accent?"

"My step-brother—Victor Revelsworth."

"He looks wretchedly ill."

"I wish you would prescribe for him!" said Dudley earnestly. "For several days past he has been complaining of want of sleep and want of appetite, and feverishness and sore throat."

"A very frequent effect of the Thames Valley air when one isn't used to it. Send him round to me some time during the morning. Or I will see him when I call here at noon."

"He is going to be away all day, so he was telling me, on a solitary rowing excursion."

"The fresh air will do him good; but I shouldn't let him overdo the exercise. He doesn't look fit for much exertion. Why, you would make two of him! You and that splendid cousin of yours, Miss Revelsworth, make a man of my inches feel very small and mean! Well, good-bye now! I will call at noon and see if my sleeping-draught has taken any effect, and try to persuade your aunt to place herself in my hands. Frankly, if she doesn't either do that or send for Sir Henry Champneys, I won't answer for the consequences."

At the breakfast-table on the following morning Dudley found himself alone. Victor had stolen off early, leaving a message that he would not be back before dinner, Miss Mannington was still too nervous and weak to rise, and Miss Revelsworth was devoting herself to her little friend with womanly tenderness, having, at Betty's express wish, carried her in her arms back to her bed-room, to be "out of Mrs. Revelsworth's way."

"I have to go up to London to-day by the 11.20 train, dearest," Francesca explained to Betty, as she sat by the latter's bedside persuading her to eat some breakfast. "I must go, as it is to get a tonic made up for my mother, which they can't do at any of the chemists' here, and to buy her some little Italian things which she likes to eat at a little charcuterie shop near Leicester Square. I hate to leave you, dear, especially as you like to have me with you. But I can't refuse my mother; and you know invalids have such cur[illegible] times."

"How very good you are to her!" murmured Betty. "I don't wonder she worships you as she does."

"It is only my duty," Francesca answered simply, while a flush crept slowly over her fair face.

It was a charming characteristic of hers, so Betty thought, that she deprecated all praise of her filial devotion, and invaribly blushed if any allusion was made to it.

At a quarter-past ten Francesca took a tender leave of Betty and hurried to her own room to dress. Donning her tan lace blouse, silk skirt, and large black-lace hat, she caught up a dust-cloak wherewith to conceal the elegance of her toilet on her journey, and in your food—in your bedroom—making life miserable.

(To be continued.)

Flies Everywhere

Wilson's Fly Pads

will clear your house of flies in a few hours.

Sunshine Furnace.

LARGE, CLEAN ASH-PAN.

"In most furnaces the ash-pan is considered a minor detail—in the "Sunshine" it is given as much care as the most important feature.

And the ash-pit is constructed so that all the ashes must fall into the ash-pan which is large and roomy—no scraping, shovelling and sweeping up ashes in taking care of this heater.

In no other furnace are the unseen, but really important little features given so much thought and care.

"Sunshine" furnaces make house-warming easy, cheap and sure.

Burns Coal, Coke or Wood. Booklet Free.

Sold by all enterprising dealers.

McClary's

LONDON, TORONTO, MONTREAL, WINNIPEG, VANCOUVER, ST. JOHN, N.B.

The W. W. CHOWN CO., Limited,
SOLE AGENTS.

SPECIAL OFFER

MIDSUMMER CLUBBING RATES.

Two Papers to January 1st, 1904

Family Herald & Weekly Star, and the Best Home Paper—The Weekly Intelligencer, BOTH for

65 CENTS

We are making this special offer as we require 1000 new subscriptions to our Weekly.

This offer is good to new subscribers only.

ADDRESS——

The Weekly Intelligencer
BELLEVILLE, ONT.

No agents handle this offer.

Prince Edward Island

POTATOES

First-class Stock

$1.50

Per Bag.

J. C. Hanley & Co.
GROCERS
Telephone 214

Goods We Have

at Right Prices

—Hammocks.
—Fishing Tackle.
—Tennis Goods.
—Golf Goods.
—Lacrosse Goods.
—Base Ball Goods.
—Screen Doors and Windows.
—Fruit Jars.
—Fruit Jar Rubbers.
—Wall Paper.
—Crystal Glass Vases.
—Glass Ware.
—Dinner Sets.
—Toilet Sets.
—Ladies' Hose.
—Ladies' Vests.
Everything in smallwares.

AT THE BEE HIVE
Chas. N. Sulman

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines, or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY

CAPITAL

10,000 Shares 7 per cent Cumulative Preferred Stock, par value $100 each,	$1,000,000
50,000 Shares Common Stock, par value $100, issued and fully paid	5,000,000
TOTAL CAPITALIZATION	$6,000,000

Issues of $1,000,000 00 7 p.c. Preferred Stock in 10,000 Shares of $100 each at par.

This stock is preferred both as to Assets and Dividends.

The shares are entitled to cumulative preferred dividends from the net earnings of the Company, at the rate of 7 per cent, per annum, payable half yearly on the first days of April and October. They may, at the option of the holder, be exchanged for common shares. They are subject to be called in, in whole or in part, by the Company, at $115.00 per share, at any time after 1st January, 1909.

The total issue of Preferred Stock is only $1,000,000.00, the whole of which is now offered.

Subsriptions for 10,000 Shares of $100 each of the 7 per cent. Preferred Stock of the CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY will now be received at par, that is $100 Share, as follows per cent on application,

25 " " on allotment,
35 " " 30 days thereafter.
35 " " 60 days thereafter.

One share of Common, par value $100, given with each share of preferred.

The whole of instalments remaining unpaid at any time may be prepaid in full. A discount of one per cent will be allowed upon the par of each share if prepaid at time of allotment

Notice of allotment will be sent promptly by ordinary letter.

COAL

PROPERTY IN FULL OPERATION

Company owns 9,600 acres of coal property known throughout the coal trade as the New Campbellton Colliery, located on Bras D'Or Bay, County of Victoria, Cape Breton, Novia Scotia. Mine is fully equipped, producing and marketing tons of coal a day at a net profit of $1.00 a ton. Improvements are now being made that will increase the output to over 1,000 tons a day. On present output, figuring 300 working days in year, the net result will more than pay interest on entire issue of preferred, with output of 1,000 tons a day net result will be $300,000 per annum.

IRON

RICHEST ORE IN THE WORLD

Company owns in fee simple, free and clear of all incumbrances, 4000 acres of iron ore deposit, located Natashquan (tidewater) situated on North shore of Gulf of St. Lawrence, in the County of Saguenay, province of Quebec.

Deposits contain 20,000,000 tons of ore ABOVE SEA LEVEL ALONE.

Quality of ore is highet ever discovered, running from 69 per cent to 72 per cent in metallic iron.

More orders for the sale of this ore has been received by the Campany than can possibly be accepted, and at a price netting the Company a profit of $2 a ton F. O. B. vessels at Company's docks.

Send for prospectus giving full information as to earnings, reports, etc., etc.

Address all communications and send subscriptions to

COLONIAL SECURITIES CO.,
62 Wall Street, New York City

OR

W. L. MARSTON & COMPANY
110 State Street, Boston

The SAWYER COMPANY.
351 Temple Building, Montreal Canada.

THE

Intelligencer Bindery

MAKES A SPECIALTY OF

Ledgers, Journals, Cash Books,

And all descriptions of

Blank Account Books

Mailing Tubes

Gold Lettering on Leather Goods, &c.

MAGAZINES,
ART WORKS,
PERIODICALS,
SERIAL NUMBERS

NEATLY BOUND

Map Mounting & Varnishing

☞Estimates cheerfully furnished for every class of work.

ADDRESS—

The Intelligencer

BELLEVILLE, ONT.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Measurement Nonpareil—12 lines to th inch.

Display advertisements, 10c per line.
Subsequent consecutive insertions, 5c.
Reading adverti-ements, 15c per line.
Preferred position, 20 per cent. advance upon e sual or contract rates.
Minimum space, 10 lines.
Marriages and deaths, 50c each insertion
Births, 25c each insertion.
Rates for Condensed Advertisement will be found in 1st column of 2nd page.
All advertisements are subject to the approval of the Publisher of the Intelligencer.
Address all communications to the Intelligencer Printing & Publishing House Limited, or to Charles J. Bowell, Managing Director and Treasurer.
Canadians in London will find The Intelligencer on file at E. & J. Hardy & Co.'s Office, 30 Fleet Street, London, E. C.

CONDENSED ADVERTISEMENTS

(Auction Sales not included in this list)

TERMS.—Twenty-five words or less, 25c first insertion; two insertions, 50c; four insertions, 75c; one week $1.00, two weeks, $1.75, three weeks, $2.25; one month, $2.50. Strictly cash in advance.

WANTED.

Help Wanted.—Good pay for spare time of intelligent men and women. No Canvassing. A Stegman, 429 La-Salle Ave., Chicago. jy2-6td

A little girl during her summer vacation to assist in light housework, or $10 a month to experienced servant for July and August. Apply at 275 Albert Street. dtf

Don't pay rent!—$6.00 per month buys a $1,000 house anywhere; your own selection. No interest charged. Absolutely co-operative. Best plan ever offered. Write for prospectus. We want representatives in all towns. Liberal inducements Canadian Home Builder's Association, Manning Chambers, Toronto. 6td

$1950 made by one man last year selling our household necessities. Did you make as much? Try our lines. Always selling. Write G. Marshall & Co., London, Ont. 2

Agents wanted, $2.50 per day. Apply Cooper, London, Ont. s27-1y

Young men ambitious to learn lucrative trades, of which there are eight in connection with the business. Apply The Belleville Hardware Company, Belleville, Ont. a7dtf

WANTED Reliable Men in every locality throughout Canada to introduce our goods, tacking up show cards on trees, fences, along roads and all conspicuous places, also distributing small advertising matter. Commission or salary $60.00 per month and expenses, not to exceed $2.50 per day. Steady employment to good, honest reliable men. No experience needful. Write for full particulars. THE EMPIRE MEDICINE CO., London, Ont.

LOST.

Thursday, June 25th, pair steel rimmed spectacles on Front or Bridge St. West. Finder please leave at John McFee's. Suitable reward. 2t

FOR SALE OR TO-LET.

Stone house, 11 rooms, coal furnace, stable, barn. Large grounds. Cor. Frank and Moira Sts. north. Terms reasonable. H. Bull, on premises or Fred Bull, 133 Yonge St., Toronto. Terms easy. ap18-dtf

FOR SALE.

That splendid property on the south east corner of Dunbar and Catharine Sts. City water and sewer connection. m28-4w

Dressed and Matched Lumber of all kinds, at ALFORD'S factory, Market Square. j12-tf

Contractors and masons, any any person requiring lime may procure it from E. G. STAPLEY, Canifton Road, Belleville. New lime always on hand. a9-d&w6m

Wall Paper

At first sight of our Wall Papers, you will say there's an attractiveness about them that puts them lengths ahead of other lines.

IN STOCKING

we select only the best, we have no "shelf warmers" all our Papers are quick sellers. If you choose your Papers from us you have best value for the price obtainable anywhere.

Painting, Paperhanging and Decorating done on shortest notice by best workmen in the city.

JOHN CORNELIUS.

3 Doors South of Intelligencer Office.

Western Beef.

Prime Western Beef together with all kinds of choice meats, supplied by the district, at

C. GREEN'S

267 Front St., 'Phone 109.

Flowers & Vegetables

Of all kinds in season.

. . . AT . . .

J. D. COLLIP'S.

'Phone 205.

THE INTELLIGENCER is printed and published for The Intelligencer Printing and Publishing House (Limited) by CHARLES JAMES BOWELL, of the City of Belleville, in the County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, at their Office, No. 403 Front Street, Belleville, Ont.

CARLYLE AND EMERSON.

No Evidence That Either Ever Seriously Studied Christianity.

The grave charge is to be brought against both Carlyle and Emerson that, while they were the product of Christian civilization and drew the substance of their message from the religious faith of their people, there is no evidence that either ever seriously studied Christianity. The greatest phenomenon in human history engages but lightly the attention or the enthusiasm of either, nor does either fathom the need of the humanity that has risen on the strength of the gospel of Christ. It was the dim perception of this fact that led Lord Jeffrey to remark to Carlyle that he went about as if he were to found a new religion. No one had done anything for man's soul until he came. One can hardly read the correspondence of Carlyle and Emerson without the feeling of their excessive consequentialness in the presence of the immense historic achievement of spiritual genius; in the presence of the spirit, the teaching and the influence of Jesus. Both were essentially modest men, and yet they lived in the sense of a uniqueness and an importance which they do not possess. They are both frequently oracular when uttering with literary distinction only the commonplace moral wisdom of the Christian world. It is a valid criticism upon Carlyle and Emerson that they failed to recognize the rock whence they were hewn and that they did not exhaust the quarry; that they were oblivious of the pit whence they were digged, and that the precious metal remained after they were taken out in boundless abundance.—Rev. George A. Gordon, D. D., in Atlantic.

The Black Death In England.

In England the black death in the fourteenth century made its first appearance in Dorsetshire and quickly spreading over the west it reached London by way of Oxford, leaving death and desolation behind it everywhere. It was as fatal in the country as in the town. Whole villages were depopulated and small towns almost wiped out of existence. The dead lay unburied as they had died, for priests had been swept away with their flocks, and in many parishes there was no one left to celebrate mass, while every trade and craft was suspended in the universal terror and suspense.

To add to the horror of the times bands of marauders roamed about unmolested, robbing alike the dead and the living, and dogs, deprived of their masters by death, came together in packs, made ferocious by hunger, and scoured the country like so many bands of wolves.

Machines That Seem to Think.

The home of the dipper dredge is on the great lakes. There it flourishes and in the smaller sizes and in nontidal fresh water at twenty feet depth was marvelously efficient. A good wooden dredge of ten years ago which cost, say, $30,000 would do 1,500 or 2,000 cubic yards per ten hours with a crew of six men on three tons of coal.

It could lift its spuds, move up and reset again in ninety seconds. It stands alone like a table on its legs, with no moorings to obstruct navigation. By means of its dipper on the bottom it can move itself about crab fashion in any direction and by the same means can push the barges about which it is loading. It can maneuver itself in any direction, load scows, dig foundations, pull piles, lay concrete blocks, deposit black filling, lift bowlders, raise wrecks, dredge hard or soft material and do nearly everything but vote. Its great simplicity made it light in repairs.

The M. P. Gets No Pay.

Members of the English parliament, unlike the members of the American congress and all the other parliaments of the world, serve without salaries. The labor party's representatives in parliament and the Irish party's members are the only ones who are paid to serve in the house of commons. They draw their salaries not from the government, but from the funds of their parties. There are so many able men willing to serve their country and their party for the honor of it that all agitations to secure salaries for members of commons have failed. It costs the average member from $3,000 to $25,000 in election expenses to get into commons if his election is warmly contested by a candidate from the opposing party, so that, as a rule, the average member of the house of commons is a man of fortune.

Oils For Anointing the Body.

Butter is noticed by Pliny as used by the negro and lower classes of Arabs for anointing the bodies. The natives of India prefer strong perfumes for this purpose and use oil of santal and oil of patchouli. Savages also grease their bodies, but probably with the idea of being enabled to escape more easily from the grip of an enemy.

A Ridiculous Wish.

King James I. of England was once presented with an address by his subjects in Shrewsbury, who expressed the hope that he would reign over them as long as sun, moon and stars should endure. "I suppose, then," said the king, "that you wish my successor to reign by candlelight."

An Ugly Branch.

"Wordley tells me he has been working on his family tree of late."

"Yes, it keeps him pretty busy."

"Rather complicated work, eh?"

"Well, I believe he found a noose on one of the branches, and he's having some trouble sawing it off."

Most people get wise in their grandchildren's generation.—New York Press.

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

Store Closed Every Wednesday During July and August at 12 O'Clock Noon.

REMNANT SALE

For many summers this announcement has meant much, both to the ladies and to ourselves.

Bringing to the ladies money saving offerings in seasonable goods—clearing up our stocks.

Our busiest season just past--a greater collection of remnants and oddments are on hand—all marked at very low prices. We anticipate this greater success then ever in our efforts.

Friday, July the third, is the date of commencement.

Realizing the benefits of a good begining we have arranged some very special offerings for this day. Items which should bring every lady to our store in the morning. All seasonable and marked at prices which for value giving we have never defeated.

Read these items and be on hand for your portion.

Wash Goods Specials

Never before have we shown or sold such great quantities of wash goods of all kinds.

Not only the excellent paterns and qualities but our low prices have been a great factor in the seasions success.

Good values at our regular prices. This sale makes an offering which should appeal to all who have a taste for dainty wash garments. Read on,

—Fine colored muslins—mostly this season's patterns—a few of last, but you could not tell the difference — all fine qualities regular 12c, 15c, 20c, 25c for 8c

—Colored New York Challies — patterns for Waists, Dresses and Wrappers—fast colors. Regular price 25c, we purchased a quantity to sell, at 12½c, a few are left — on sale for, per yard 10c

—Oddments left from our fancy collar assortment —newest styles, regular 35c and 40c for 25c

Half Price Millinery

The reception accorded this season to the many beautiful creations produced in our workroom has been of great satisfaction—to us.

Clearing time has arrived. The colored varieties must go at once so we place them on sale at Half Price.

Not an undesirable one among them—as pretty as we have sold this season. But its getting late, so this great reduction.

—Fine White and Cream Ostrich tips, were 75c for 25c

—All our Straw Sailors - priced as high as $2.00 a piece for 25c

—Untrimmed shapes—very newest styles—the remainder of a large assortment were from 85c to $2.00, selling at 25c, 50c, ... 75c

CLOTING HISTORY

Although our 20th century brand made-to-measure garments have not had a very long lite, they have had—what is most important—a successful one.

A few enterprising men seeing the field for this new departure in custom tailoring, started an establishment. Not only started it but started it right. Employing only the very best New York designers and cutters at large salaries.

The wholesale feature reducing the cost but leaving the FIT STYLE and workmanship equal to any tailored garments procurable these at once sprang into favor with many of the best dressers in our large cities.

We are sole agents for this firm here and have a range of samples in all the latest materials from which we can have suits made at prices, which will surprise yon

Many of the best dresses in our city are wearing this clothing. If you would like to realize the saving they have on your next suit come in. See our window disply.

—A choice collection of samples for summer suitings to choose from We guarantee satisfaction in every way .... $.750 to $20.00

—A stylish rain coat made to your measure from latest and best materials, from $10.00 to $25.00

Underpriced Linens

To house keepers who are admirers of fine line, a chance like this comes but seldom.

To purchase best qualities and newest designs at prices which would generally obtain but the poorest.

Our spring sale left a number of damaged cloths with us—some only stained others with small holes. These go to add to our sale attractions.

A glance at the prices below will apprise you of the early visit advantages.

—100 damaged table clothes, lengths 1¼ to 2¼ yds.

up to $1.50 for 75c.
up to $2.00 for $1.00.
up to $2.75 for $1.50.
up to $3.00 for $2.00.

Agents for Standard Patterns.

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

CLOTHING BOUGHT HERE PRESSED FREE OF CHARGE

Everything

Is Thoroughly Good

That's certain, at QUICK & ROBERTSON'S—we are more particular about giving than you are in getting it perhaps.

But there are other reasons why you should buy at this store where quality is the first consideration.

We not only make goodness certain by applying every known test for quality, but are equally as careful to price that goodness as common as the ordinary sorts are priced elsewhere.

HERE are a few suggestions of summer fixin's that should interest men and mothers of boys.

FOR BOYS.

Vacation Suits and other wear, things that after good hard wear show the difference between our good sorts at our common prices and cheap sorts, which cost a little less.

—Regulation Sailor Blouse Suits, Cheviot mixtures, stripes and serges. .... $1.25 to $4.50

—Norfolk Jackets, single and double-breasted suits for older boys, extensive showing of plain and fancy mixtures .... $2.00 to $5.00

—Washable Sailor Suits 50c to $1.50.

—Wash Waists and Blouses, 25c to $1.00.

FOR MEN.

—SUMMER SUITS—Such as are impossible to obtain except at the best custom tailors—perfect fitting, stylish garments, suited to men who want the out-of-the-ordinary sorts. Homespuns, Tropical Serges, Worsteds and Flannels........................ $3.75 to $12.00

—OUTING TROUSERS $1.00 to $4.00.

—NEGLIGE SHIRTS—In stripes and patterned materials, such as custom shirt makers would show you as their newest—plain or plaited bosoms.......... 50c to $1.50

—STRAW HATS—Every one new, the largest assortment of the smartest shapes the best makers have produced.

Sailors, in low crown .... 50c to $2.00

Panama shape, the right ones .... 75c to $2.50

QUICK & ROBERTSON

Here is where you buy Johnston's Clothing for Men and Boys.

Charcoal Irons

are the correct thing for you to do your summer ironing. Without heating up the whole house.

Special value

$1.50

Charcoal

the best hardwood Charcoal put up in paper sacks,

15c ea.

25c FOR TWO.

The W. W. CHOWN Company, Limited

Exclusive Agents.

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

At Wallbridge & Clarke's

Seasonable Supplies

Montserrat Lime Juice
Raspberry Vinegar (Crosse & Blackwell's)
Gurd's Ginger Ale & Soda Water
Apollinaris and Radnor Water
Pabst Milwaukee Lager.

Clarets and Sauterne

Barton & Guestier's Bordeaux Clarets
Barton & Guestier's Bordeaux Sauterne
Nath. Johnston's Clarets
Rhine Wine and Burgundy
Light Canadian Wines—Red or White

Canned Meats

New Packs. Finest Quality.

Whole Ox Tongues
Lunch Tongues
Lamb's Tongues
Boned Chicken
Boned Turkey
Boned Duck
Pate de foie
Potted Ham
Potted Tongue
Sliced Dried Beef
Ham Loaf
Veal Loaf
Chicken Tamales
Lunch Beef
Lunch Bacon
Chicken, Ham & Tongue
Pigs Feet
Jellied Tenderloins
Vienna Sausages
Luncheon Sausages
Baked Beans—Plain or in Tomato or Chili Sauce, etc., etc., etc.

Camp & Picnic Supplies

Essence of Coffee—Patterson's, Symington's or Crosse & Blackwell's.
Condensed Milk, Evaporated Cream, etc.
Fancy Biscuits
Fine Old Cheese
Pickles and Sauces
Fine Teas and Coffee
Soups and Vegetables
French Sardines
New Pack Lobster and Shrimps
Salmon, Scallops, Tunny Fish, etc.

WALLBRIDGE & CLARKE

Bridge St.—Tel. 139.
Branch store Front St.—Tel. 157.

Literary Notes

A copy of the July issue of the Corticelli Home Needlework Magazine should be in the hands of every lady interested in artistic needlework. The magazine is gotten up at considerable expense and, there being no other publication of similar kind published, it is invaluable to fancy needleworkers.

The Methodist Magazine begins its fifty-eighth volume with the July number, which contains well-illustrated papers on the Balkan Peninsula, "The Storm Centre of Europe," which should be of special interest in view of the recent tragedy of Belgrade. Several short and serial stories give a midsummer flavor to this number. Toronto: William Briggs, Montreal; C. W. Coates, Halifax; S. F. Huestis, $2.00 a year; $1.00 for six months.

ITS ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-FIFTH NUMBER.

The handsome colored cover enclosing the July Canadian Magazine is in celebration of the hundred and twenty-fifth issue of that periodical. The contents are also indicative of the progress made by Canada and things Canadian. The frontispiece combines pictures of Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir Wilfrid Laurier so as to show the similarity and contrast of the two faces. The opening article, "Thirty-six years of Dominion," gives an admirable if brief resume of Canadian development since 1867. This is illustrated with portraits of Howe, Blake, Thompson, Tupper, Grant, Bourinot, Dawson, Allan, Norquay, Dunsmuir, and others prominent in this thirty-six years of a united and developing Dominion. There are short stories by E. W. Thomson, Duncan Campbell Scott, J. A. McShane and Isaac Landman, besides the usual bright departments. It is certainly a most creditable issue.

Delighted Visitors.

A party of ladies and gentlemen from Toronto were in the city yesterday and were entertained by Mr. Charles H. Zurhorst. They were driven about the city, visiting the places of interest. They were much taken up with the city, expressing delight at its location and picturesque scenery.

A GREAT INCREASING ARMY,

composed of men and women that spend heart and soul in the vain effort to overcome a lack of vigor in the body. To replace inertia by vigor, to make good, red blood that will build up the system, to have strong nerves, you must eat more, digest more, assimilate more. How can it be done? By using Ferrozone. It invigorates, strengthens, possesses magical health giving powers. Get Ferrozone to-day and make yourself strong and well. All druggists and medicine dealers sell Ferrozone.

Clever Pupils Who Will Move Up a Step.

RESULTS OF RECENT PROMOTION EXAMINATIONS IN THE CITY SCHOOLS—THOSE WHO HAVE "PASSED."

Following will be found the results of the recent promotion examinations in the city schools. The results of the entrance exams will not be obtainable for at least two weeks yet:

PART I. TO PART II.

Octavia St. School.—Miss F. Gardner.

Max. 270. Min. 135.

Nellie Westover	238
Louisa Symons	237
Buddie Farrow	228
Roy Hay	226
Maidie Post	224
Walter Soal	224
Ray Vickers	223
Delbert Prest	217
Annie Gawley	213
Frank Shoener	207
Wilfred Vandervoort	201
Willie Tedman	199
May Orr	197
Hazel Walmsley	180
Irene Cook	179
Harold Boyle	176
Hazel Baker	168
Nita Murphy	159
Evelyn Cronk	158
Elsie Sinfield	155
Gordon Hay	146

Canifton Road School—Miss Phelps.

Max. 300. Min. 150.

Ethel Haslip	287
Harry Thompson	277
Pearl Stapley	273
Bert Stapley	271
Wallace Greatrix	262
Edna Bowen	259
Grace Gurney	254
May Macdonald	243
Frank Hill	240
Carl Clarke	230
Pearl Henderson	230
Willie Hill	224
Frank Kiser	201
Emma Beaumont	175

Pinnacle St. School.—Miss A. McRae.

Max. 350. Min. 175.

David Babcock	312
Emma Hutchison	309
Stanley Foster	250
Charlie Duesberry	236
Roy Duesberry	232
Charlie McConnell	217

Queen Victoria School — Miss McCaughey.

Max. 250. Min. 125.

Melville Gillen	235
Ida Barlow	225
Claude Garrett	216
George Ketcheson	216
Evelyn DeShane	204
Ray Serviss	200

Passed at Easter.

Byron McCrodan	243
Vernon Clarke	238
Ada McElrath	237
Stella Thompson	235
Pat Youmans	230
Beverly Gribble	208
Clifton Robb	208
Jennie Mitchell	205
Sophia Klein	203
Sydney Newton	198
Harold Bateman	190

Queen Victoria School—Miss Lucy Aull.

Harold Reid	248
Roy Rutherford	243
Gerald Lynch	242
Eva Consaul	241
May Wallace	240
Julia Burrell	232
Verna Rose	229
Willie Boyce	215
Garnet French	193
Luena Bird	188

Passed at Easter.

Harold McPherson	230
Clayton Titterson	227
Cyril McBride	223
Mabel Goodsell	222
George Caldwell	220
Earl Thompson	219
Gordon Murray	214
Harry Gay	205
Class III.—Harold Davis	231
Robbie Irvine	225
Earl Graham	224
Cameron Denike	222
Ida Lambert	221
Walter Frost	199
Bessie Bell	191
Garfield Carson	186
Ellen Taylor	177
Willie Taylor	174
Floyd Smith	168

Grier St. School.—Miss M. Frost.

Ruth Tenny	235
Mabel Morton	195
Flossie Johnson	191

PART II. TO SECOND CLASS.

Octavia St. School.—Miss S. Morton.

Max. 300. Min. 150.

Marion Wilder	281
Glencoe Thompson	261
Arthur Bishop	260
Fred Mills	256
Frank Fotzpatrick	253
Albert Harris	250
Roy Cronk	247
Willie Shane	245
Clarence Mikel	243
Milton Vandervoort	243
Willie Boyd	242
Jim McKenna	239
Lela Weese	230
Arthur Gawley	220
Harry May	219
Charlie Burke	216
Alfred Green	203

Canifton Road School.—Miss L. Phelps.

Jimmy Alexander	258
Stella Ayers	246
Earl Harrow	246
Lizzie Morton	243
Harry Hudson	240
Walter Craig	236
Kathleen Smith	232
Harry Crysdale	214
Willie Lewis	203

Pinnacle St. School.—Miss A. McRae.

Cassie Hutchison	265
George Duesberry	264
John Hunter	259
Myrtle Johns	234
Annie Kyle	231
Violet McElrath	223

Grier St. School.—Miss M. Frost.

Edith Bowen	296
Pearl Forchon	290
Harry Scantlebury	288
Stella Spider	287
Helen Hubbard	279
Johnny Phillips	277
Pauline Rupert	276
Ellwood Phillips	270
Bruce Philips	264
Melburn Sprague	262
Cecil Thompson	257
Arthur Johns	256
Willie Dyer	253
Agnes Bolyea	239
Russell Flagler	231

Queen Victoria School.—Miss L. Aull.

Phyllis Bogart	283
Mary Burrell	276
Hazel Hunt	273
Fred Morden	263
Ernest Moon	255
George Thorpe	255
Nita Consaul	250
Jeanie Caldwell	229

Miss M. McCaughey.

Dorothy Grant	298
Kitty Dulmage	286
Bessie Elliott	284
Georgie Springer	284
Marjorie Waters	283
Willie Mills	282
Alice Guenther	279
Marjorie Iler	277
Mae Waters	277
Charles Mitchell	273
Lizzie Harris	270
Morrison Hunt	254
Muriel McElrath	253
Davie Waters	252

Miss Ruth Vincent.

Mazie Spafford	282
Grace Pitney	282
Marguerite Green	277
Irene McBride	271
Emily Armstrong	270
Effie Elliott	266
Dorothy Johnson	264
Russell Hoag	256
Annie Post	248
Alice Mitchell	247
Martha Ruttan	243
Willie Taylor	243
Vane DeShane	239
Owen O'Brien	239
Willie Arnott	238
Bella Campbell	235
Dorothy McMillan	233
Tracy Belch	232
Sibyl Grant	228
Harold Knight	227
David Ketcheson	224
John McCargar	223
John Adams	221
Garvin Buckley	218
Blanche McGurn	217

SECOND TO THIRD CLASS.

Canifton Road School.—D. Barragar.

Max. 608. Min. 304.

Lottie Bulpit	475
Olive Brown	430
Violet Bowler	375
James Thrasher	360

Grier St. School.—Miss L. Boselly.

Harold Groves	553
Howard Asselstine	546
Willie Wonnacott	539
Lottie Mills	523
Willie Luscombe	521
Kathleen Johns	508
Lewis Johns	479
May Snider	478

Octavia St. School.—Miss H. Yarwood.

Sarah McPherson	508
Blanche Flagler	488
Roy Yager	469
Arthur Westover	464
Wilber Vandervoort	444
Frank Panter	436
Elwood Robinson	434
Robbie Good	430
Mabel Harrison	425
Percy Peck	386
Muriel Birchard	385

Queen Victoria School—Miss I. Northcott.

Olive Cooper	579
Bessie Handley	556
Edith Fenn	540
Ethel Sagar	523
Florence Davis	522
Robina Templeton	514
Will Ketcheson	513
Ida Hambly	508
Will McGie	490
Josephine Tickell	478
Harry Dickens	473
Will Wallace	473
Marjorie Jones	452
Isabella Moore	437
Elmer Standish	396
Geraldine Allison	383
Kenneth McMillan	376

Miss L. Craig.

Charlie Wallace	569
Nellie Thompson	555
Merle Lazier	551
Helen Blair	549
Jack Denmark	541
Marjorie Warren	531
Arnold Reid	530
Audie Arnott	514
Victor Miller	507
Arthur McGie	490
Janie Payne	490
Myrtle Ruttan	484
Ray Tuite	479
Charlie Frederick	472
Willie Finkle	464
Ray Hinchey	452
Kathleen Hope	452
Cora Serviss	450
Grace Clark	428

THIRD TO FOURTH CLASS.

Canifton Road School.—D. Barragar.

Max. 924. Min. 462.

Howard Hunter	744
Jessie Andrews	735
Amy Boice	697
Florence Smith	692
Pearl Ruttan	685
Theda Barragar	620
Ralph Wilson	595

Octavia St. School.—Miss A. Harold.

Pearl Soal	712
Randolf Hinch	686
Irvine Diamond	680
Florence Gilbert	678
Marguerite McCormick	674
Mabel Rowland	672
Pearl Moon	689
Ollie Campbell	636
Charlie Bishop	621
Sidney Hinch	616
May Williams	597
Evelyn Cunningham	586
Blanche Wilkins	575

Queen Victoria School—Miss M. Fleming.

Marjorie Johnson	819
Greta Stork	819
Edna Wallace	819
Jack Downey	816
Erland Embury	800
Gladys Grills	797
Eva Elliott	794
Grace Handley	793
Florence Roberts	789
Roy Wickett	788
Harold Buchanan	784
Hope Sewell	783
Neddie Farrow	771
Maurice LaVoie	765
Edna Holmes	763
Mary Drowley	763
Ethel Craig	760
Harry Miller	758
Gertie Terwilligar	746
Ena Forster	745
Clara Arnott	741
Russell Morden	740
Edith McMillan	737
Helen Finkle	735
Charlie Green	733
Harry Alford	727
Marjorie McQuaig	724
Douglas Campbell	723
Wilson Bird	714
Charlie Jones	714
Edgar Vermilyea	697
Minnie Moore	688
Francis Ridley	674
Mary McCargar	617
Kathleen Thompson	567

Grier St. School.—S. F. Armistead.

Ross Simonds	824
Eva Holley	719
Frank Fitzgerald	711
Herbert Chown	688
Victor Bennett	679
Clifford Snell	657
Ernest Phillips	618
Etta Smith	573
Walter Moore	551
Anna Thorne	540

JUNIOR THIRD TO SENIOR THIRD.

Queen Victoria School.—Miss B. Emmons.

Max. 610. Min. 305.

Grace Waterston	490
Marguerite McGuire	458
Cyril Drumm	443
Arles Hoag	437
Marion Adams	436
Gladys Faulkiner	436
Eddie Shaffee	424
Warren Elliott	414
Alvie Moore	413
Laurel Foster	412
Agnes Mallock	389
Ralph Graham	388
Louis Stapley	381
Willie Osborne	379
Lottie Jackson	377
Willie Archbold	366
Annie Mair	360
Harold DeShane	356
Olive Stewart	348
Oswald Wilkins	330
Cansel Arnott	318
Ena Harker	313

JUNIOR FOURTH TO INTERMEDIATE.

Queen Victoria School. — Miss M. A. Northcott.

Max. 726. Min. 363.

Maude Fleming	599
Dora Cook	590
George Graham	586
Herman Consaul	581
Helen Fraleck	564
May Lynn	562
Helen Masson	553
Laura Bowen	537
Gerald Conger	532
Bruce Robb	530
Jessie McDiarmid	529
Arthur Spangenburg	525
Julia Elvins	512
Muriel Crothers	506
Hyman Klein	473
Muriel Grills	465
Jean Boyce	464
Florence Thompson	440
Percy Ketcheson	432
Lyons Blair	426
Mary Holt	399
Willie Clarke	398
Kenneth Bonter	397
Flavelle Turner

INTERMEDIATE TO SENIOR FOURTH.

Queen Victoria School.—Miss C. Urquhart.

Max. 730. Min. 365.

Winifred Downey	586
Elva Buchanan	581
Ernie Dickens	580
Clifford Burrows	575
Myrtle Haight	567
Ellis Reid	564
Claude Wallace	535
Hazel Massey	522
James Ridley	521
Carlyle Brown	515
Walter Alford	500
May Stapley	487
Jack Middleton	486
Annie Mahen	482
Gordon Caldwell	452
Bruce Bottum	448
Willie Matthews	446
Queena Retallack	438
Russsell Denike	436
James McQuaig	404
Macauley Pope

Passed After Easter.

Gertie Alford, Mary Brownlee, Harold Chown, Willie Cochrane, Archie Cochrane, Agnes Ferguson, Marjorie Hope, Harold McElrath, Wallace Robb, Ethel Spafford, Harry Wallace.

No Hair? The trouble is your hair does not have life enough. Save your hair. Feed it with Ayer's Hair Vigor. If the gray hairs are coming, Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore color every time. $1. All druggists. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Fifteenth At Napanee.

PLEASANT TRIP AND ENJOYABLE DAY—RACES WERE CALLED OFF.

It was about 8.15 yesterday morning when the Armenia pulled out for Napanee with the Fifteenth aboard. Accompanying the regiment were some of the officers' wives. The Armenia arrived at Napanee about 11.30, after a pleasant trip. Arms were stacked at the police station, and the men went to different hotels for dinner. Considerable disappointment was felt when it was found that the heavy rain of the night before had necessitated the cancelling of the horse races and other sports. Some impromptu events, however, were pulled off in the afternoon.

About one o'clock the men fell in again and marched to the fair grounds the streets being very muddy. Arrived at the grounds ranks were broken and considerable interest and amusement was caused by the sports, which were as follows:

100 yard dash, 1, Pte. Satoneth, F. Co., prize, silk umbrella; 2, Pte. Clark, B Co., prize, razor.

50 yards with rifle—1, Pte. Satoneth, sweater; 2, Pte. Clark, running shoes.

Hop, step and jump—1, Pte. Satoneth, purse; 2, Pte. Clark, scarf case; 3, Pte. Lynch, razor.

Running broad jump—1, Pte. Lees, silk umbrella; 2, Pte. Lynch, comb and brush; 3, Pte. Hyman, bottle perfume.

150 yards dash—1, Pte. Saunders, cuff links; 2, Pte. Boyle, sweater.

There was also an interesting tug-of-war between two teams of the 15th, and a football match between a Napanee team and a team from the 15th, which ended in a victory for the Napaneeans. About five o'clock the regiment went back to town, having tea at the different hotels again, and at 6.30 the Armenia pulled out for Belleville, which was reached about 10 o'clock.

There was only one casualty during the day, and one narrow escape. Lieut. Hayes, during the football match, accidentally kicked Sergt. Corriss in the eye, putting him into dreamland for a while. The narrow escape was caused by a bottle of catsup exploding in the dining-room where the Bugle Band were at dinner. A large picture was wrecked, but none of the wind-jammers were injured.

SPECIALS FOR SATURDAY NIGHT.

On Saturday evening from 7 to 10 o'clock, the Oak Hall offer two very special bargains, one in shirts and one in suits. Our north window will show you over 50 dozen men's and boys' shirts, worth 50c to 75c to be cleared at 25cts each and in our south window you may see a few of the suits to be sold at $3.90 each. The suits run from $5 to $7. Saturday night only.

A Trio of Weddings.

A Real Knot Tied.

A quiet wedding took place at the Holloway St. parsonage on Tuesday, June 30th, the contracting parties being Mr. James W. Hall, of Thurlow, and Mrs. Gawley, of Belleville. The groomsman was Mr. Fred Hall, Thurlow, cousin of the groom, while the bride was assisted by Miss Lucy Nobes, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. R. Real.

A Matrimonial Drumm Beat.

On Tuesday evening in this city, Mr. Wm. Freeman and Miss Mary N. Sharpe, both of Campbellford, were married. The Rev. H. A. Drumm performed the ceremony. The young couple left for their home shortly afterwards.

Cupid Beamed on P. E. People.

Mr. Wm. R. Ferguson and Miss Vesta I. Wellbanks, both residents of Prince Edward County, were married here yesterday. The ceremony took place at St. Thomas' Church Rectory, Rev. G. R. Beamish officiating.

ESTABLISHED 1870.

MEN'S HATS

Porto Ricans Fine Straws

Light Weight Felts.

THE NEWEST STYLES.

S. A. HYMAN & CO.

N.B.—Store closed every Wednesday during July and August at 12 o'clock noon.

GLASGOW WAREHOUSE.

'D. & A.

GLOVE FITTING CORSETS

In many styles, for many figures at prices from 50c to $2.00 per pair, but all alike in the one vital particular, they are all Glove Fitting, and Gowns fit like a glove when worn over them.

The "D. & A." Corsets represent the acme of style and perfect fit for every figure.

When next visiting our Corset Department, ask to have a few pairs sent you on approval. D. & A. Corsets | once worn always worn. D. & A. Children's and Maids Waists, the most perpfect Waist for growing girls.

Shirt Waists

We have just received another lot of Choice Sild Waists in Black and Creams at $3.25. This is the most popular Waist of the season for present wear.

Laidlaw & Ketcheson

DIRECT IMPORTERS

Daily Intelligencer.

THE INTELLIGENCER IS SOLD AT
J. W. London's and G. Wardhaugh's.

Local Reading Advertisements,

ords 50 cents; 2 cents per word first insertion, per word subsequent consecutive insertions. Headlines count as 12 words; contracts for periods made at office

July 1st, 1903,

"Dominion Day"

Canada's 36th Birthday,
"The Maple Leaf forever."

Profit by the experience of the wise ones and when on your outing Wednesday take a plentiful supply of our excellent bakery goods, not forgetting a box or two of our choice chocolates.

CHAS. S. CLAPP

BATH HELPS

It adds much to the luxury and benefit of baths to have at hand all the usual requisites. There is we think no item of bath supplies we do not carry. It will not cost you much to provide a complete outfit.

Bath Brushes, Mitts, Bath Tablets, Soaps, Toilet Waters, Sea Salt, Loofahs, Sponges, etc.

McKeown's DRUG STORE

The Sun & Hastings Savings and Loan Co. of Ontario.

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL
$5,000,000.

3 1-2 per cent. allowed on Deposits, payable on Call.

4 per cent. on Deposits for one year or over.

Money to Loan upon favorable terms.

OFFICE, No. 46 Bridge St., Belleville.

J. P. C. PHILLIPS,
Manager Belleville Branch.

The longer you halt the steeper the mountain grows.

GADSKI

This beautiful Eight day Mantle Clock with gong, half hour strike on separate bell, handsomely enameled in colors, bronze trimmings, an ornament to any mantle or any house. Guaranteed a perfect timekeeper, will last a lifetime. Our price only $6.00.

T. BLACKBURN.

Eyes examined free of charge. Jeweller & Optician.

Great Sale of Sample Brushes

On Thursday Morning we put on sale 581 Samples from one of the largest factories in Germany, and will be sold at half the regular cost. Be on hand early and get first choice. Genuine Bargains in Hair, Military and Cloth Brushes. at

McINTOSH BROS.

His First Deer.

By REGINALD GOURLAY.

My English friend, Tom Dare, was an enthusiastic sportsman. There was nothing strange about that. Most Englishmen of his type and class are. But then he was besides one of the worst shots when he first came out to this country (he improved afterwards) that I ever saw "waste his lead upon the desert air."

Now, most Englishmen of his class (he was the younger son of a Buckinghamshire squire) are excellent shots, being to the manor born as it were, which made this defect the more remarkable. He was very credulous about some things, particularly as regarded game and shooting in America. Here, again, he resembled many other Englishmen. He was brave, generous and impulsive, much more resembling an Irishman than an Englishman in this last respect. He was also very nearsighted, which accounted in part for his frequent bad shots, and he always wore what he called "glawses."

When I first saw Tom Dare it was on the Canadian Grand Trunk train going west, somewhere between Kingston and Toronto. His compartment in the Pullman car resembled a small shop for the sale of sporting goods, or an exhibit of deadly and murderous weapons. Gun and rifle-cases lay all around him. He had evidently not been able to endure their removal from his sight to the baggage-car. At every stop he would move forward to the latter car and inspect a huge St. Bernard, a pair of pointers and an evil-minded bulldog, with deep solicitude. These interesting animals were making about as much noise as a pack of hounds in full cry, and two of them—the St. Bernard and the bulldog—were dangerous to come near. Some ideas exchanged on sporting topics, and the timely assistance I was able to give him in soothing his excited quadrupeds, made us friendly at once, for there is a singular freemasonry among sportsmen. But when he found that I lived in the very city he was bound for, and that I knew well several people he had letters of introduction to, Englishman-like, Dare expanded completely, and I was soon in possession of his experiences, tribulations and trials since his arrival in the New World, and some of his hopes and plans for the future.

It seems that, having had some property left him by a maiden aunt, as well as the usual younger son's allowance, he was free to realize the chief desire of his soul, which was to visit North America and do his utmost to lessen the number of wild animals on that continent. He confided to me in a burst of enthusiasm, invoked by some appreciative remarks of mine, betokening a congenial spirit, "that spawt—real wild spawt"—was the guiding star of his existence, and that to enjoy it, unfettered by any of the effete restraints which hedge it in at home, was the chief reason of his leaving his native shore.

We reached our destination at last, and Dare departed to a neighboring hotel with his arsenal and canines. In due time he presented his letters of introduction to various families, was taken up very kindly by society, and "put up" at most of the clubs; and was even to be seen, with an intense expression of hopeless gloom overshadowing his countenance, assisting at various fashionable functions.

I met him often at the club and elsewhere, and got to like him very much. I gathered from some remarks that fell from him that he was not altogether happy among his fashionable engagements and surroundings, and that he sighed for the hour when he could escape from them into the wilderness and hunt bears in peace. Like Lady Clara Vere de Vere, "the languid light of his proud eye was wearied with the rolling hours," and he counted the moments till the deer-shooting season opened, and till he could fly from the blandishments of dear Jane or charming Gladys or Ethel to the northern forests.

The happy, longed-for day at last arrived. A generous friend had placed his hunting lodge (he being detained at home by important business) at our disposal for the season. It was situated in Northern Algoma, in what was then—and is now—a great game country. So it happened that just forty-eight hours after the opening of the season Dare and I were standing on the porch of the comfortable little rustic house looking out over the most beautiful little lake in the world. Our four men were bringing packs and baggage from the canoes up to the house with that beautiful calm deliberation and absence of all fussy feverish haste characteristic of the Canadian "half-breed," while in front of us, leaning on his rifle, stood our guide, the redoubtable Kit Todd, best of hunters and trappers between Lake Superior and the Ottawa.

Tom Dare was in the seventh heaven. During his sojourn in Canada he had learned something about the game of the northern part of this continent. He had found out, for instance, that elk and caribou did not abound in the neighborhood of New York; that buffalo were extinct in Ohio, in Illinois, and in the vicinity of Toronto, Canada. In fact, that they were virtually extinct everywhere in America. Also, that to get big game anywhere in America you had to go a long way back. He quite understood that in the forests he saw clothing in wild beauty the hills around him he could only expect to get a shot at red or Virginia deer, at small game—if he cared to shoot them—as often and as fast as he could fire, with now and then, by good luck, a chance at a bear or moose. "These," he remarked to Kit Todd, the guide, with great magnanimity, "were quite good enough for him. All he asked was to be led to the fray at once."

This was, of course, impossible, as it was within an hour or so of sunset, and the long black shadows of the hemlocks and birches already stretched far over the glossy waters of the little lake. But very early next morning Kit Todd, moved by Dare's pathetic entreaties, took us out for a short, informal still-hunt over the ridges, "to sorter prospect like," as he expressed it.

Tom's emotions on being at last a denizen of the vast and trackless woods were genuine and uncontrolled. I could appreciate them, for a more glorious October morning never dawned. It was pretty enough by the lake, where our lodge was, the light blue of the water exactly matching the color of the sky, while the startlingly vivid hues, by comparison, of the brilliant autumnal foliage of the trees encircling its shores, made the water seem almost unreal—like air.

But in the great woods it was grand! The endless contrast of tints—the dark red of the oak against the light yellow of the beeches; the vivid crimson of the maple standing out like a fire on a dark night against a black belt of cedars; the scarlet of the sumach and the gold of the birch; the great white pines and hemlocks, with mighty column-like stems, lifting their changeless mass of dark needles far above the medley of gay colors beneath, as if in disdain of their tawdry fickleness—all this wealth and confusion of color was the first thing that struck the intruder into this great temple of nature. And next the silence—or, rather, what seemed a great silence at first, for one soon discovered that it was broken by innumerable undertones, the many voices of the great forest, the never-ceasing tokens of the eternal unrest of nature. The creaking of one giant bough against another, the far-off drumming of a grouse, the bark of the red fox, the dropping of a pine cone—even the vague, uncertain descent of a leaf, or the cry of the jay or ivory-billed woodpecker far off in the deep melancholy forest, filled one with the idea that here at last were the frontiers of that great wild Nature which man in America is ever driving further and further away. But she—patient and biding her time—will perhaps come back in a few thousands of years and hide him and his works, as she has hidden those of many a race and dynasty in the Old World and the New since the earth was young.

Dare felt all these things so much that he asked to be allowed to take care of himself for a while, "to give him the true feeling of solitude," he said. So Kit and I went along one ridge, and Dare made his way along another running parallel with ours, and about a hundred yards to the right. He hadn't been gone twenty minutes when he put a bullet (45.75 Winchester) through the top of my fore-and-aft cap, which I had foolishly decorated with a deer's tail, an absurdity which almost invited accident when a "tenderfoot" was one of the party.

"That gent with the goggles is out after meat," said Kit dryly, as he surveyed the two holes. "An' seemin'ly he ain't noways pertic'ler what kind he gits."

Tom's consternation, of course, was extreme, but it was mingled with a sort of injured feeling towards me for not having been a deer. After that Todd accompanied Dare to prevent these little mistakes as to the nature of his game, and also to prevent his indulging in what Todd called "permiskyus gunnin'"—i.e., firing his rifle at partridge, rabbits, etc., which he showed every disposition to do, and which would effectually settle any hope of our even getting sight of a deer. I went along the parallel ridge alone.

There were many deer in the Algoma woods in those days (there are many now, for that matter), so we saw plenty of tracks. Still, I didn't expect much success, for several reasons. For one thing, the day was too fine. There was no wind in the woods, and the rustle of our steps in the dead leaves would be audible to the keen hearing of a deer far away. Then there were too many of us. The solitary, silent sportsman is the one that gets game, still-hunting.

So I was agreeably surprised when, not five minutes after we had separated, Dare and Todd "jumped" a deer from an oak top with the leaves still on, left by lumberers. Todd let drive at it with his single-fire rifle as it made its first long, beautiful bound out of cover, and, strange to say—for he was a first-rate shot—only scraped its flank. The deer, a spike-buck, went straight away up the ridge in full view, while with frenzied haste and uncertain aim crack! crack! crack! went Tom's repeater.

The buck was just topping the ridge, about two hundred yards off, when Dare fired a last wild, despairing shot, and the deer gave a great bound, stretching his fore and hind legs stiffly out. Then all its limbs collapsed in mid-air, and it pitched straight forward on its head.

"By gum, sir, you killed him!" yelled the guide, looking at Dare with a wild surprise, similar to that which Mark Twain's musing spider exhibited when he stepped on the red-hot shovel.

But Dare had uttered a long, loud yell of triumph and victory, and was tearing along the ridge, brandishing a murderous-looking knife. We followed, and arrived just in time to prevent his cutting the dead buck's head off on the spot for a trophy. As Todd and I came up the ridge together I heard the guide muttering: "Killed in his tracks! Goin' full lick! Two hundred yards good, an' by a tenderfoot ez takes a man's hat fer a deer! Meeracles ain't through happenin' yet, by gum!"

The buck was hit in the back of the head, just below the horns. The bullet had passed through the brain and out at the forehead, killing him instantly. It was a ghastly fluke, but a lucky one, for Dare had killed his first deer the very first day out, and fairly too.

We now thought we had done enough for glory that day, especially as our whole outfit had still to be unpacked. Dare, too, was most anxious to get his prey back at once to our hunting-lodge. He seemed to think that it would vanish into thin air if he took his eyes off it for a moment. So with considerable difficulty we dragged the animal back to the lodge.

And for the rest of that day, amidst all the clatter of unpacking, the talk and the chaff, Dare sat silent and happy, his head enveloped in a cloud of tobacco smoke, replying only in monosyllables when addressed. But on his face was a deep, seraphic peace, like that which illumines the countenance of a Sioux or Pawnee chief who has just succeeded in "collecting" the scalp of his deadliest enemy. For the time his heart's chief desire was realized. He had slain his first deer.

How it Looked to Him.

This is what "Short Stories" tells of a staunch young churchman who is most careful in his observance of the feasts and fasts of the year:

When the owl lunch wagons in Herald Square were still a novelty, he visited New York and saw one for the first time.

'What have we here?" he said to his companion.

"What a question from you!" was the retort. "A good churchman like you not to know a movable feast when he sees it!"

"Oh, I should call it a restaurant a la carte," promptly replied the "good churchman."

THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

A Government Road Has Been Decided Upon at Ottawa.

Question of Running Rights Not Yet Determined—A Grand Trunk Pacific Guarantee of Bonds for Road from Edmonton to the Coast—Grand Trunk Company Agree If They Get a Lease for a Number of Years.

Ottawa, July 2.—The Cabinet were in session all day yesterday considering the form of aid to be granted to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, but adjourned without reaching a decision. The anticipated announcement will, therefore, not be made to-day. It will not, however, be much longer deferred. Members of Parliament who enjoy the confidence of the Government say that the building of a Government line to Winnipeg has been determined upon, and that the Grand Trunk Company have concurred in the proposition, provided they get a lease for a number of years, and financial assistance for the western portion of the line. The aid spoken of is a guarantee of bonds from Edmonton to the coast, varying in amount according to the difficulties of construction but averaging about $30,000 a mile. This, it is stated, is the proposition which was discussed in Council yesterday. The report is, however, that a snag was struck when it came to fixing the conditions upon which running rights should be granted to other companies. This, it is said, prevented the settlement of the matter as anticipated, and the expectation is that Mr. Hays will be in Ottawa again to-day to discuss the latest turn which affairs have taken.

The Governor-General has signed the order in Council appointing Mr. H. J. Cloran to the Senate, vice the late Senator O'Brien. He will be sworn in when the upper House reassembles.

Last night's storm put the electrical apparatus of the House of Commons out of business. All the lights of the House of Commons were suddenly extinguished, and caused some awkward predicaments. Members of the House of Commons who were around had to find their way about by the aid of candles, and the press representatives had to write their despatches by the same antiquated method. It seems a pity that in such an institution gas should not be available as a substitute in case of emergency.

WILL HAVE TO WAIT.

No Information as to Grand Trunk Pacific, Says Mr. Fielding—Mr. Blair's Railway Commission Bill Discussed.

Ottawa, July 2.—In the House of Commons on Tuesday, Mr. Kemp asked what foundation there was for the report that the Government had decided to guarantee the bonds of the Grand Trunk Pacific with a clause in the agreement giving the Government power to purchase the road at the end of 30 years.

Mr. Fielding, who was leading the House, replied, "I am afraid I shall have to ask my hon. friend to be content with the assurance that when any such arrangements are made they will be communicated to Parliament in a proper manner and at the earliest possible moment."

The Senate bill incorporating the Citizens' Bank of Canada was read a first time.

Railway Commission Bill.

On clause 275 of Mr. Blair's railway Commission bill, the Minister of Railways said that he would draft an amendment to meet the wishes of the commercial travelers.

During discussion on the tariff clauses, Mr. Blair said that there was, first, a general tariff which the railway company submitted to the Board of Railway Commissioners; and if sanctioned by the board it became effective and was published. There was the maximum tariff. Then there was a special tariff which a company might make as regards any special class of goods, which had to be submitted to the board and published when it became effective. There was a third class, to be called a competitive tariff, designed to encourage competition in rates, and with this object the company were allowed to make the rates as low as they liked without publishing them; only a copy had to be sent to the board in order that it might take care that there was no discrimination involved.

The Canada Militia.

The Marine estimates were then taken up, and Col. Thompson suggested, in a long speech, that the pay of militiamen should be increased to $1 per day. The camps were, he said, woefully small this year, and good Canadians could not be got for 50 cents a day. Others followed in the debate, and complaint was made that the Minister of Militia was not present.

Mr. Fielding said the absence of the Minister of Militia was unavoidable. He said if the facts were as stated it was necessary that Parliament should be acquainted with them.

In the supplementary estimates the Minister of Militia and the Minister of Finance promised that provision would be made to improve the Canadian militia.

Lord Colville Dead.

London, July 2.—Lord Colville of Culroy, Lord Chamberlain to Queen Alexandra, and president of the Honorable Artillery Company, died in London last evening. He was partly paralyzed some weeks ago. He was born in 1818.

Permanent Home Seekers.

Halifax, N.S., July 2.—The steamer Adria arrived from Hamburg yesterday morning. She had on board 673 emigrants, principally Galicians, of which 563 were for Canada and 110 for the United States.

"Your Doctor"

Has for years been telling you to discontinue the use of adulterated teas of Japan.

"SALADA"

Ceylon Natural GREEN tea is pure, healthful and delicious, and will take the place of all Japan teas just as "SALADA" Black is taking the place of all other Black teas. Sold only in lead packets. 25c and 40c per lb. By all grocers.

A GREAT RUSH AT

Our Clearing Out Sale

NATHAN JONES.

This is a genuine Clearing Out Sale as the proprietor is retiring from business. The whole stock must be sold. We are having a great rush, and our prices are pronounced astonishingly low. The sale of Silks, Ribbons, and Dress Muslins and Dress Trimmings is attractive and now we add

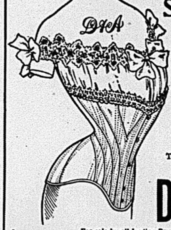
All Our Prints

These are nearly all this season's goods of Crum's make. Out they must go.

10c Prints for - - - 8c
12½c Prints for - - - 10c

All our Dress Goods are offered 20 per cent. off.
Come early in day as Possible.

NATHAN JONES.



This Long Hip Straight Front

Is the very latest Corset. The extra pieces at the side, cover and fit the hips with perfect smoothness, rounding off the lines into an exquisite curve. In no other makes of Corsets will you find this very latest Paris model.

The new tight skirts demand that you wear it.

These are the numbers and prices:

D&A
310 LONG HIP, $1.25
425 DIP HIP, - 1.00
110 DIP HIP, - 1.00
208 DIP HIP, - 1.00
CREST - - - 1.25

A

For sale by all leading Dry Goods Houses.

The Finnegan Carriage & Wagon Co.

FOR

Stylish and Durable Turnouts.

—Surreys
—Corning Buggies
—Piano Box Buggies
—Rubber Tire Buggies
—Micadoes
—Phaetons
—Bike Buggies
—Democrats
—Grocer Wagons
—Butcher Wagons

Cheese Factory Milk Wagons.
Steel Tubular Axle Lumber Wagons.

Rubber Tires put on your old wheels at reasonable prices.

Mill St., - - Belleville.

For Torpid Liver, Flatulence, Constipation, Billiousness and Sick Headache, TAKE

BRISTOL'S Pills

Safe, Mild, Quick-acting, Painless, do not weaken, and always give satisfaction.

reliable Household Medicine, can be taken at any season, by Adults or Children.

ggists sell "BRISTOL'S."

The Daily Intelligencer.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL — LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL — CHARITY IN ALL.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, JULY 3, 1903 NO. 52

ROWLEY IS IN FELON'S CELL

Will Appear To-Day to Elect How He Will Be Tried.

Private Physician Testified as to His Health, Which Was Not Good Enough to Warrant a Long Examination—County Attorney Donahue Vigorously Protested Against Bail Being Granted and Was Successful.

St. Thomas, July 3.—Quite a good-sized crowd gathered at the police courtroom in the City Hall yesterday morning, expecting to hear the preliminary examination of George Rowley, the defaulting bank manager. At 10.30 when the case was reached, W. L. Wickett produced a medical certificate from Dr. Luton stating that his client was too weak to undergo a severe examination. Crown Attorney Donahue, on behalf of the prosecution, claimed that something more definite should be shown why the accused man did not appear in court, and suggested that the physician be called to testify as to Rowley's health. Mr. Wickett hereupon asked that the hearing be enlarged for one month.

Mr. Donahue, however, prevailed upon the magistrate, and the physician attending Rowley took the stand. He told His Worship that his patient was much better, and could probably appear in court, but by no means able to undergo an examination. It was decided to adjourn the court for one hour, as the certificate given by the medical man was issued Wednesday, and the police magistrate held the opinion that his patient for the day, and if at all his fiatient for the day, and if at all safe to have him appear.

Rowley Appears in Court.

Upon resumption of the court at 11 o'clock Rowley, accompanied by his physician, was present. The accused man looked much better than on his previous appearance before the magistrate, but the mental strain he has been under for some weeks is plainly visible. The doctor again took the witness box and testified to the effect that he found Mr. Rowley was somewhat better, but after a careful examination he concluded it would not be wise to subject him to a rigid examination. Mr. Wickett then asked the magistrate for an enlargement of one month. Mr. Donahue objected to bail being allowed, saying that complaints had already been made that they had been too lenient in the bail matter. After a consultation with his client, Mr. Wickett waived the rights of a preliminary, and the prisoner was committed to jail to await his trial without being asked to plead.

Now in Felon's Cell.

The ex-banker, who two weeks ago was high up in financial, commercial and social circles, was then driven to the county jail and now occupies a place in a felon's cell. Counsel for defence immediately applied to Judge Hughes for bail, but the latter's official connection with the liquidators of the Elgin Loan Co. prevented his granting the request. Judge Ermatinger was then approached. At first he was agreeable to the application, but because of the vigorous protest entered by Mr. Donahue the judge finally decided not to consent to allow the request.

Mr. Rowley has decided to appear before the junior judge to-day to elect as to how he will be tried.

A meeting of Atlas Loan shareholders took place in the City Hall last evening. About fifty were present. R. Home Smith was present to explain matters and answer questions, and ex-Mayor Chant, Dr. Luton and J. Kilpatrick were chosen as an advisory committee.

LOST LIFE FOR WIFE.

Details of the Drowning of Mr. and Mrs. Gunn at Heppner, Ore.

Detroit, July 3.—E. R. Ellis is overjoyed by the arrival of his four grandchildren from Heppner, Oregon, where the parents were lost in the flood. The father, Alexander H. Gunn, was formerly resident at London, Ont. Mrs. Gunn was a daughter of Dr. Ellis. Mary, the eldest, 14 years of age, states that when her father saw the flood coming he cried to his wife and children to make their escape to the hills. The water was rushing down 200 feet wide and 30 feet high, carrying 200 houses in its path. All made their escape from the house, but while running up the street the mother fell and Mr. Gunn stopped to aid her. The delay was fatal.

Pope Is Not Well.

Paris, July 3.—The correspondent of The Temps at Rome telegraphed to his paper yesterday that he had learned from an authoritative source that the Pope was indisposed yesterday morning.

GORGE STATION BLOWN UP

Miss Lydia Upper, a Canadian Girl, Has a Narrow Escape.

'Phoned the Main Office That the Station Was on Fire, and Got Prompt Word to "Get Out" or "You Will Be Blown Up"—Only Got 300 Yards Away When the Most Terrific Explosion of Several Hundred Weight of Dynamite Occurred

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 3.—The Electric Railway station and promenade, on the American side of the river below the bank, was blown up by dynamite about 7.45 last evening. Fire was discovered in the switch-room by the only person on the premises, a young lady attendant in the bazaar named Miss Lydia Upper, who was waiting for a car to take her home. The girl promptly rang up the main office at the falls and notified them that the station was on fire. The answer came back: "Get out of the place and run up the track as far as you can, or you will be blown up."

A Terrific Explosion.

The girl grabbed her hat and jumped on to the track, running like a deer towards the falls. When she was about 300 yards up the track a most terrific explosion took place, the flames having reached several hundred weight of dynamite stored by the Gorge Railroad under the building. The shock of the explosion was heard for miles around.

The loss to the building and promenade will be $9,000; Nichols, fancy goods, loses $1,500, and Arthur Buckley, photographer, $200. Miss Upper belongs to Thorold, Ont., and was clerk in the fancy goods store and lives with a sister at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

BLEW OUT THE GAS.

Two Meaford Lacrosse Players Have Narrow Escape in Owen Sound.

Owen Sound, July 3.—Shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday morning the odor of gas was noticed in the corridor of the Seldon House and the doors of room 19 were thrown open.

On the bed lay Lewis and J. Cummings, two lacrosse players, from Meaford, in an unconscious condition. Dr. G. W. Daw was summoned and after working over the young men for three hours had them both out of danger.

The Meaford lacrosse team played here Wednesday, and having missed their steamer registered at the Seldon House. The young men did not know how to use the gas and with both the door and fanlight closed blew out the light and retired.

One of the lacrosse players in an adjoining room smelt the gas and investigated, a fact that probably saved the lives of his companions. They were able to return home yesterday.

Another Trolley Victim.

Toronto, July 3.—Mrs. Kelly, a kitchen woman in a city restaurant, in her hurry ran round the rear of the car she left on Yonge street yesterday and Avenue Road car 477 struck her before she had time to draw back. The fender slid over her, and the wheels passed over her just below the waist. The accident happened at 5.30 and she died at 6.15.

Wagon Passed Over Him.

Toronto, July 3.—William Dunn, a driver for the Harris Glue Factory, on Danforth road, was killed in a runaway accident yesterday afternoon. Dunn was driving east and was thrown from his seat and dragged about 100 yards, the front wheel passing over his chest, crushing him.

Killed by a Falling Tree.

Victoria, B.C., July 3.—John Reynolds, who came from near Lindsay, Ont., has been killed by a falling tree in the lumber camp at Bear River, north of here. He was fearfully mangled, his head and an arm being torn off.

Lad's Miraculous Escape.

Sault Ste. Marie, July 3.—Three-year-old Richard Tebo had a miraculous escape from death Wednesday while playing with a number of companions, during a raging thunderstorm he fell into a box drain, and the rushing water carried him into a sewer manhole. The youngster was gotten out through another manhole two blocks from where he went into the sewer more dead than alive. Doctors resuscitated him.

Nurse Died While Bathing.

Gravenhurst, Ont., July 3.—Miss Evelyne Sharp, of the nursing staff of the Muskoka Cottage Sanitarium, met her death Wednesday afternoon about five o'clock while bathing at a point near the two island not far from the Sanitorium grounds. The water was quite shallow and death is believed to be due to heart failure. Miss Sharp was at one time connected with the Guelph General Hospital.

Drowned at Almonte.

Almonte, July 3.—Daniel O'Neil, aged 15, was drowned Wednesday. He and a companion were boating and in an endeavor to recover a paddle fell into the river.

Columbia's Seaman Drowned.

Newport, R. I., July 3.—For the first time in the history of races between American 90-footers, a fatal accident occurred yesterday. Carl B. Olsen, a seaman on the old cup defender Columbia, was washed from the bowsprit just before the yacht reached the first turn in yesterday's race, and was drowned. Search was made for Olsen without success.

Whittaker Wright's Desire.

New York, July 3.—Samuel Untemeyer, counsel for Whittaker Wright, made a statement yesterday in effect that Mr. Wright is insisting, as he has been throughout, on voluntary return to England to meet the charges against him. He has written to Mr. Wright's advisers in England to have them consent to allow Mr. Wright to voluntarily return to England to meet these charges.

The Homecomers.

Toronto, July 3.—Yesterday was "Old Boys" day at the Homecomers' Festival here, and many organizations marched in line, with distinctive flags and badges, by counties, to the University quadrangle, where they were welcomed by Mayor Urquhart and Premier Ross. In the evening there was a grand naval fireworks demonstration on the bay and island. Altogether the day was a very pleasant one to both visitors and visited.

Edward Newell, a New York homecomer, was robbed of $100 on Dominion Day while in a crowd. A Toronto cop nearby when appealed to said: "That's got nothing to do with me."

Company Negligent.

Hamilton, July 3.—At 1.45 this morning the coroner's jury brought in this verdict: "That Robert Braidwood came to his death on June 23 from injuries received in a collision on the H., G. & B. Railway, and that the said collision was due to negligence and want of care on the part of the said H., G. and B. Railway."

Lord Roseberry Laughs.

London, July 3.—Lord Rosebery, in the House of Lords yesterday afternoon renewed the debate on the preferential tariff propositions, making a further request for information regarding the Cabinet's plans. In the course of a long speech he ridiculed Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's program, and said he did not believe the Government intended to prosecute any inquiry into the matter.

Deaths From Heat.

New York, July 3.—Three deaths from the heat and four prostrations were reported up to 2 o'clock yesterday. The dead were: Mrs. D. Washburn, Chappaqua, N.Y.; Henry Baldwin and Frances Kelly.

EXTEND I.C.R. TO WINNIPEG

Government Line Projected Across Half the Dominion.

Prominent Politician in Montreal Annoyed at the Turn of Events in Ottawa—No Announcement Until After the Caucus of Government Followers on Tuesday Next — Accepted as Great Triumph For Sir William Mulock.

Montreal, July 3.—The railway people refuse to give their opinion in the Government policy re. the Grand Trunk and Pacific, but an interview was given last evening which is known to have been inspired by the C.P.R. It reads in part as follows: "A politician who has exceptional sources of information, states his word that within forty-eight hours the Government will bring in a measure providing for the building of a line from Moncton to Winnipeg at the public expense. This line will be leased for a nominal price to the Grand Trunk, which will then proceed to build to the coast. I know whereof I speak and I can assure you that this is the policy of the Government. This policy is socialism gone mad.

"Indeed, I can tell you that this measure will be brought down immediately, and will be forced through. There will be some opposition to it, but not enough to make the Opposition notable."

Triumph For Sir William Mulock.

Ottawa, July 3.—No official announcement will be made in connection with the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway until after the caucus of Government followers, which is to be held on Tuesday next. Government ownership of a line between Quebec and Winnipeg appears to be the strongest movement in the Cabinet to-day, but it has not been definitely endorsed.

One big difficulty lies in the determination of the Grand Trunk to do the construction work for the Government.

Other contractors desire to secure the contract, and other friends in the Cabinet are holding out for the letting of the work by tender. This difficulty the Cabinet has not yet overcome, but it is stated on good authority that the matter will be adjusted next week. Meantime some of the best politicians in the capital are taking the Government ownership proposition as an accomplished fact, and the result is generally accepted as a great triumph for Sir William Mulock.

BASEBALL THURSDAY.

The Eastern League.

Toronto ....0 1 0 0 1 1 0 0 *—3
Newark ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0—1

Three-base hit—Massey. Two-base hit—Toft. Stolen base—Shea. Wild pitch—Massey. Stolen base—Shea. Wild pitch—Hardy. Sacrifice hit—White. Hit by pitcher—By Hardy 2, by Pardee 1. Double play—Hardy to Miller to Massey. Bases on balls—Off Hardy 5, off Pardee 1. Struck out—By Pardee 2 (Hardy, Brodie), by Hardy 8 (Thiery, Wagner, Dillard, Taylor, Shea, Pardee 3). Left on bases—Toronto 4, Newark 5. Time 1.35. Umpire—Swartwood.

[illegible]

R.H.E.
Buffalo ....0 0 1 0 2 0 0 1 0—4 8 4
Jersey City ......1 0 1 0 1 0 0 6 0—9 9 2

Batteries—Amole and Shaw; Barnett and McManus. Umpire—Kelly. Attendance—2398.

National League Scores.

At Boston— R.H.E.
Boston .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 7 0
Cincinnati .... 0 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 0—2 10 2

Batteries—Willis and Moran; Hahn and Seitz. Umpires—Moran and Holliday. Attendance—1735.

At Brooklyn— R.H.E.
Pittsburg ..... 0 1 0 0 5 0 1 0 1—8 9 0
Brooklyn ..... 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 3—4 6 7

Batteries—Wilhelm and Phelps; Garvin and Jacklitsch. Umpire—Emslie. Attendance—2500.

At Philadelphia— R.H.E.
Chicago ...... 0 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 0—2 7 3
Philadelphia .. 2 0 3 0 0 0 0 2 x—7 10 0

Batteries—Doscher, Lundgren and Rauh; Williams and Roth. Umpire—O'Day. Attendance—1587.

American League Results.

At Cleveland— R.H.E.
Cleveland .... 0 0 0 4 6 1 0 0 x—11 14 3
Philadelphia .. 1 0 0 3 0 1 0 1 0—6 9 3

Batteries—Moore, Dorner and Abbott; Bender, Plank, Hoffman and Schreck and Powers. Umpire—O'Loughlin. Attendance—2320.

At Chicago— R.H.E.
Chicago ...... 0 0 3 1 1 0 0 1 x—6 7 1
Boston ...... 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 1 0—2 7 1

Batteries—Owen and McFarland; Gibson, Colgar, Smith and Stahl. Umpire—Hassett. Attendance—1795.

At St. Louis— R.H.E.
St. Louis ..... 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—2 6 2
New York ... 1 2 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—3 6 3

Batteries—Donahue and Kahoe; Wolfe and Beville. Umpire—Connolly. Attendance—8000.

At Detroit— R.H.E.
Detroit .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—1 6 0
Washington .. 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 3 1

Batteries—Mullin and McGuire; Wilson and Drill. Umpire—Carruthers. Attendance—1118.

A Great Land Deal.

Toronto, July 3.—A deal of great magnitude is the purchase of the entire land grant of the Canadian Northern Railway. This transaction has been put through by the Saskatchewan Valley & Manitoba Land Company, and it is believed to be not only the most important, but the most extensive land deal entered into in this country in recent history. The new company is composed of men well known in American and Canadian business circles and by the terms of the purchase from the Canadian Northern Railway, come into possession of more then 1,500,000 acres of the best wheat land in western Canada.

Favors Government Ownership.

Quebec, July 3.—The Quebec Board of Trade is in favor of a Government owned and constructed railway from Quebec to Winnipeg.

REVENGE BY LIQUOR MEN.

Fires Set in a Prohibition Town—Attempt to Burn Newspaper.

Indianapolis, July 3.—Winslow, in Pike County, a town of 1,000 inhabitants, is in a state of excitement over the attempted burning of several houses, including the office of The Dispatch, a weekly newspaper. Four weeks ago the temperance people invoked the blanket remonstrance law, and all the saloons were closed. The saloon element retaliated by attacking the temperance leaders in the street, and threats were made of burning the town. Four fires, all of incendiary origin, occurred in one night, and on last Saturday night three other houses were fired, one of them being The Dispatch Office.

The incendiaries are known, but the evidence is not sufficient to convict them, and open threats of lynching are made. A committee of 50 citizens have been selected and guards are on duty every night.

Law Powerless—Advocates Murder.

The Dispatch yesterday says:

"A little more evidence, and a necktie party will be held and a telephone pole will bear a disgraceful decoration. This method is the only one that will suffice to stop such lawlessness, and were are in favor of putting into practice just such a law. There is no use to try to handle such scoundrels through the courts, for courts are a farce and full of corruption and deceit. It has been threatened that this paper would be destroyed, and we make this kind of a promise, that when it is the parties who have made the threats will attend a third-rate funeral and be the chief attraction thereat."

THE M'DOUGALL CASE.

Crown Counsel Says Defence Does Not Want Client Tried.

Toronto, July 3.—When Judge Winchester yesterday announced himself ready for the trial of Alfred McDougall, his counsel, E. A. Du Vernet played another card for the defence by stating that Judge Winchester had no jurisdiction to try the case, that Judge Morgan had no right to refer the matter to another judge, but should sit on the case himself, being now fully seized of all the facts. Affidavits were read from Drs. W. J. Wilson and John Ferguson relating that McDougall was in a very critical state, and excitement would cause death. H. H. Dewart, for the Crown, replying to Mr. Du Vernet, said: "I take it that my learned friend does not desire his client to be tried at all." Judge Winchester said that the prisoner, having elected trial by judge, is amenable for trial before any county judge. The Crown asked for a further adjournment to have doctors examine McDougall as to whether he can ever be tried or not, and the case will be called again next Wednesday.

THE AUTO-CAR RACE.

Frenchman Won First, Germany Second—British Man Out Through Accident.

Ballyshannon, Ireland, July 3.—The fourth annual auto-car race for the International Cup offered by James Gordon Bennett, was started at 7 o'clock this morning in fine weather. G. F. Edge, English holder of the cup, was the first starter. De Knyff, a Frenchman, finished first at 5.34 p.m.; Genatzy, a German, finished second at 5.36 p.m. The total distance of the course is 568 miles and 765 yards. Jarrott, the British representative, was put out of the race by an accident, in which his collarbone was broken and he was also badly bruised. His chauffeur was seriously injured and the car was smashed to pieces.

EXPECT ANOTHER EXPLOSION.

The Situation at Hanna, Wyo., Is Decidedly Grave.

Hanna, Wyo., July 3.—The startling information is received from an experienced miner who penetrated the mine where an explosion occurred Tuesday, that the workings below the seventeenth level are a mass of flames, leaving little hope of rescuing the entombed miners in that section. Efforts are now confined to preventing the flames from reaching the seventeenth and other levels above. Added to the horrors of the fire, which undoubtedly destroyed the underground workings, is the danger of another explosion, which may occur at any time. The situation is decidedly grave.

A HORRIBLE TRAGEDY.

Mrs. William Baxter Hangs Herself and Her Two Children.

Rochester, July 3. — A horrible tragedy occurred last evening in the village of Leroy, when Mrs. William Baxter hanged herself and two children, Goodson, aged 8 and Gladys, aged 3. Her husband found their dead bodies at the end of a clothes-line in the attic.

NECESSARY ELEMENTS.

Strengthen your throat and lungs with Angier's Petroleum Emulsion. It cures chronic coughs, makes breathing easy, cleanses the system of impurities, creates healthy blood, firm flesh, and supplies all the elements necessary for the successful treatment of consumption. Pleasant to take.

You can try it. FREE.

Every mother who sends us her address on a post card will receive a generous free sample—enough for eight meals—of

Nestlé's Food

LEEMING, MILES & CO.,
MONTREAL.

C. N. R. BILL PASSED.

Hon. Mr. Blair's Bill Gets Final Consideration in Committee, Reported, Read a Third Time and Passed.

Ottawa, July 3.—Consideration of the Toronto and Hamilton railway bill has again been postponed. The bill will not again come before the House until Wednesday next.

Hon. Mr. Sutherland brought down a return showing that from 1890 to 1902 $1,201,844 had been expended on Toronto harbor.

A bill was introduced by Mr. Fitzpatrick amending the Penitentiaries Act. The change contemplated lies in a consolidation of the statutes and a revision of the salary schedules, which Mr. Fitzpatrick says will mean a saving of $7,500 a year.

Mr. Monk asked if the Government was prepared to make a statement regarding the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. The Premier replied that the Government was not yet in a position to take the House into its confidence.

Railway Bill Passed.

The Canadian Northern Railway Bill was again taken up in the House, and after several amendments had been made the bill, as amended, was reported to the House, read a third time and passed.

The House then went into Committee of Supply and passed most of the items of the supplementaries for public works, and adjourned shortly after midnight.

Old Probs Will Move.

Ottawa, July 3.—Mr. Prefontaine, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, gave an audience yesterday afternoon to the heads of Toronto University. The upshot of the conference is that when the new Dominion Observatory at the central experimental farm is completed the principal officers of the meteorological department now stationed at Toronto will be removed to Ottawa; the university authorities will get the present site of the existing observatory building, and in place of the weather prognostications going out from Toronto, they will be sent out from Ottawa. The magnetic observatory at Agincourt, near Toronto, will be maintained, and there will also be established in connection with Toronto University a local observatory for the use of the students, such as now exists in connection with McGill.

KING EDWARD TO KING PETER.

Wished Him Prosperous Reign, But Official Relations Are Unchanged.

Belgrade, July 3.—The King of England has replied in courteous terms to King Peter's notification of his accession to the throne, wishing him a prosperous reign and hoping he will bring peace, order and justice to the country. The reply has caused great satisfaction here.

King Edward also expressed the hope that King Peter would be able to re-establish the good name and renown of the people of Servia, compromised by the recent tragic events.

Official Relations Unchanged.

London, July 3.—It is officially stated in London that King Edward's telegram to King Peter does not change Great Britain's attitude towards Servia, and it is added that diplomatic relations between the two countries will not be immediately resumed.

MONUMENT TO DAVIN.

Sir Charles Tupper Unveils the Memorial at the Capital.

Ottawa, July 3.—In the presence of about a hundred spectators Sir Charles Tupper yesterday afternoon unveiled the monument to the late Nicholas Flood Davin. Sir Charles in a brief speech said that the monument, subscribed to by men of all parties, bore most certain evidence that Mr. Davin had served his country wisely and well.

W. W. Campbell recited an ode in memory of Mr. Davin.

Mr. R. L. Borden said he was glad to be there to pay this tribute of respect to the memory of his friend.

Prof. Clark of Trinity College, Toronto, drew an analogy between Mr. Davin and Burns.

Emulating John Hampden.

London, July 3.—The first foreigners to join the "passive resistance" movement against the education act are two American taxpayers living at Wimbledon, Rev. R. W. Farquhar, formerly of Portland, Oregon, and E. P. Gaston, who at one time lived in Chicago. They have both refused to pay the education rate, and consequently their household goods will be seized and sold at auction to satisfy claims for a few shillings.

Prospective Honor For Canadians.

London, July 3.—King Edward will visit the National Rifle Association camp at Bisley July 13 and will present the Palma Trophy to the winning team.

SINCLAIR'S AD SINCLAIR'S AD.

Sample Dress Skirts

EVERY WOMAN APPRECIATES VARIETY.

This week we offer for sale a manufacturer's complete set of Ladies' Sample Dress Skirts, fifty-two different styles, but one only of each style. In this lot are some of the handsomest Skirts that we have ever shown, being cut and trimmed in the most approval fashion. They also contain some very low priced Skirts, but every Skirt whether low, medium or high priced represents an advanced style of Ladies' Dress Skirts and the lot are now on sale, prices from .... $2.50 to $16.50 ea

LADIES' SHIRT WAISTS FOR 50c.

These Shirt Waists that we offer at 50c each are in size 32 Bust measure only. They are made of Pure Linen Cloth, are nicely tucked and hemstitched and the large sizes sold at $1,50 each, but to clear these small sizes and do it quickly, we mark them .... 50c.

FIGURE THIS OUT

We sell superior Shetland Floss in Three-Quarter Ounce Hanks for 5c. Now we know that you can buy a Half Ounce Hank for 4c, but any child in the second form at school will tell you that the 5c Hank is the cheaper one.

THE ELIZABETH UNDERSKIRT

This is the name under which one of the best made Canadian Under skirts is made and sold and we sell Hundreds of them for they are properly made and sell from .... 75c to $3.00

D. V. SINCLAIR & CO.

Delightfully Refreshing

For all occasions where a refreshing, nourishing and invigorating beverage is required there is nothing equal to Bovril Cordial with Mineral Water or Soda. It supplies all the nourishment of prime lean beef, while retaining the exhilirating effects of the Mineral Water. At your next picnic try

Bovril Cordial
with
Mineral Water or Soda.

30 Retail Stores DAVIES 30 Retail Stores

Saturday Specials

Butter	A large consignment of Choice Dairy Butter 18c lb Finest Creamery Butter .... 20c lb
Bacon	New Mild Smoked Breakfast Bacon, by the whole or half side.................. 14c lb
Hams	Sugar Cured, 14c, by the whole or half ham.
Tea	A 40c quality selling for 25c per lb., guaranteed best value in the city.
Peas,	Beans and Pumpkin, new stock, 3 cans for 25c
Beef	Our choice Western Beef is very much appreciated by the people of Belleville, try a roast for Sunday Dinner.
Cheese	Just arrived and fresh made, new mild cheese .... 14c lb Rich old cheese full flavor .... 16c lb

Daily Deliveries, Shop Early or Use Phone. 286.

The WM. DAVIES CO., Limited.

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE
FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

Daily Intelligencer.

ANOTHER EXPOSE.

Mr. W. McCraney, who was at one time the Liberal representative for Halton in the House of Commons, makes some sweeping charges against a Liberal member of Parliament, in an open letter addressed to Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his Cabinet. Mr. McCraney names Robert G. McPherson, Liberal M.P. for Burrard, as a leader of a crowd of grafters, who are bleeding the treasury for their own gain. Deadmen's Island, near Vancouver, has been leased to the gang for twenty-five years at a rental of $500 per annum, while the property is worth at least $5,000 a year. Railway charters have been secured, from which large sums have been realized without the knowledge of shareholders. Dr. C. McGregor, who is a prominent member of the ring, was census commissioner for Burrard and billed the Government for $17,628.15, as shown by the Auditor-General's report (page D. 114), when $10,000 would have covered the entire cost. This same McGregor was the returning officer in Burrard, at the last general election, and his mileage bill was $7,877, of which $5,751 was allowed. (Auditor-General's report, page O. 65). To earn this sum, Mr. McCraney says, would necessitate covering 38,000 miles, whereas not more than 5,000 miles were travelled.

Mr. McCraney shows that these grafters, by the most disgraceful methods, succeeded in forcing Mr. McPherson on the Liberal party. Their candidate was elected after a carnival of corruption, almost unique in Canada. Mr. McCraney appeals as a good Liberal against such methods. Mr. McPherson is simply used as a tool and is really the Parliamentary representative of this small knot of boodlers. When we join this testimony from such a staunch Liberal as Mr. McCraney, with the revelations from other sources, we cannot fail to be convinced that the Laurier administration is rotten. When the matter was brought up in the Commons, Liberals, instead of meetnig the charges in a manly way, tried to laugh it off. But the people will need something more convincing to satisfy themselves that any gang of boodlers, whether led by a member of Parliament or not, have a right to free access to the treasury.

A Suggestion

In this warm weather you don't like the exertion of walking home to dinner and perhaps don't feel like eating much anyway.

Then is the time to come to our Lunch Room, and have a light Lunch--say a Sandwich and a Glass of Milk, and a dish of Ice Cream for dessert.

J. ARTHUR MARSH.

WATCH
THIS AD.
NEXT WEEK

The Globe Clothing House
Up-to-date Clothiers and Gents' Furnishers.

TIMELY TOPICS

The negro problem in the United States is fast reaching an acute stage, if one can judge by the following resolution, which was passed by the Chicago and St. Paul conference of the African Methodist Sunday School Association, last Thursday:

> "When 10,000,000 obedient, patient, law abiding and peaceful citizens come to a realization of the woeful fact that they must eat bread, drink water and pour out their life's blood for the quelling of internal insurrection and the repelling of outside foes with the bloody flag of mob violence, lynch law and court injustice flaunted in their faces from the rising of the sun to the going down of the same, is it to be thought strange when they rise up to cry, 'It is time for action?"

There is a sinister, prophetic undertone to the above utterance which none but a nation of fools would let pass unheeded.

* * *

Toronto is having a big time with her returning "old boys." Here is a description of how one festive deputation struck the city:

> Five hundred cheering Canadians, fresh from their adopted country around Detroit, arrived just before dark. The generous folds of a big American flag provoked a whoop. Then they caught a glimpse of the dear old British colors and they went mad. Two old boys hugged each other and a gang of their companions formed a ring around them, and beneath the waving Union Jack they joined in the chorus of "The Maple Leaf Forever."

* * *

What's the reason we cannot have something of that kind? There are thousands of old Belleville boys who would be glad to come back and see their dear old birthplace. Why not begin now to make arrangements for next year?

* * *

A Toronto old boy, fresh from the wilds of Chicago, expressed himself thus: "Boys, don't make any mistake—Canada is as good as there is. Ain't no better." And who will say he did not tell the truth?

* * *

A column of army worms, 150 yards wide and three miles long, has invaded the State of Washington, U. S. A column like that must be more dreadful than even one of The Globe's editorial columns.

* * *

The big automobile race was won by a Frenchman, with a German second. The foreigners are welcome to those kind of freak honors, anyway.

* * *

What became of those copies of the evidence in the Gamey-Stratton investigation? Who got them? As everybody knows, the Government ordered that only 1000 copies should be printed, and then ordered the type metal melted up again at once. Was it not strange that a publication of interest to at least a million people should be restricted to a circulation of one thousand? which, it may be remarked, is very much less than the usual daily edition of this great family journal.

* * *

Yesterday was a fairly warm day, but hardly so hot as a certain Front St. thermometer made it, namely, 115 in the shade.

* * *

The weather man can surely lay claim to the title of the champion lightning change artist.

Coming To Belleville.

The Milford correspondent of the Picton Times writes: Rev. Mr. Adams preached his farewell sermon Sunday evening, 21st ult. There was a large attendance. Mr. Adams and family have done a noble work here and wielded great influence for good that will be felt both by church and community. He will retire and reside in Belleville.

There are very few cleansing operations in which Sunlight Soap cannot be used to advantage. It makes the home bright and clean. 13

PERSONAL ...AND... SOCIAL.

The Intelligencer invites all its readers to contribute to this column all items of a personal nature, such as the arrival or departure of guests, and the movements of business men, etc. Send a post card to or telephone The Intelligencer.

Miss Jessie Carrier, of Toronto, is in the city.

Mrs. J. R. Shannon, of Lindsay, is visiting relatives in the city.

Mrs. W. E. Macdonald left to-day for Rochester, N.Y., where she intends to reside.

Mrs. James Bonar, of Cornwall, is in the city visiting her father, Mr. Walter Fanning.

Miss Mamie B. Lynn is home for a rest from her duties in St. Luke's Hospital, Utica, N.Y.

Miss M. O'Donohue and Mr. John O'Donohue, of Campbellford, are visiting friends in the city.

Mr. Wm. Sargeant, youngest son of Mr. D. B. Sargeant, now of Barrie, was a visitor in the city yesterday.

Miss McIntyre, daughter of the Rev. C. E. McIntyre, is amongst the Napanee visitors in the city to-day.

Miss Sidna Browne leaves to-morrow for an extended visit to Winnipeg, Emerson, Brandon and other places in Manitoba.

Mr. and Mrs. Spearman (nee Miss Morden, of Big Island), and Miss Spearman, of Pittsburg, Pa., were in the city yesterday.

Messrs. Samuel and Charles Rainbow, of New York, arrived here to-day to attend the obsequies of their father, the late Mr. Chas. Rainbow.

Mr. A. Shearing entertained a number of his friends yesterday evening with glimpses of the heavenly bodies through his large telescope.

Mrs. Smith, of Detroit, together with her daughter, Minnie, and son, Charles, is spending the summer with her uncle, Mr. L. G. Sprague, McDonald Ave.

Miss A. V. Sinclair, of New York, is spending a few days in the city, the guest of Mrs. D. V. Sinclair, Charles St.

Mr. John P. Luscombe, Locomotive Foreman of the R. & O.R.R., at Uhrichsville, Ohio, and his wife, are visiting the former's parents, Grier street.

Greatly to the regret of a large circle of friends and admirers, Miss Florence and Miss Josephine Lazier will to-morrow leave the city to reside in the west.

Mrs. (Rev. J. H.) Locke and Miss Bessie Locke left on "the flyer" yesterday afternoon. A number of friends were at the station to bid them good-bye.

The Rev. H. Hull, B.A., of the Manitoba Methodist Conference, is in the city for the first time, visiting his sister, Mrs. Arthur E. Lewis. Mr. Hull has been requested to preach in Bridge St. Church next Sunday evening.

Mr. Geo. W. Griffith, representative in the eastern states for The Kilties' Band (Gordon Highlanders, Belleville) spent the past couple of days in the city conferring with Mr. Cameron Brown as to next season's work.

—At the Quinte:—T. Whycroft, C. A. Coryall, W. Pinkerton, J. Hamilton, F. Sparling, E. E. Slaght, J. Anderson, A. H. Bevis, W. J. Smith, G. West, R. Hyslop, E. W. Agle, H. Rose, F. A. Shaw, Toronto; C. H. Jagger, Hamilton; H. V. Clemes, Berlin; H. W. O'Flynn, Madoc; W. S. Miller, Frankford; J. G. Pearlson, R. E. Hart, Dr. Buller, N. McGillis, Montreal; G. H. Pearce and wife, Miss Huff, Rochester; S. W. Donaghy, Brighton; R. Weddell, W. H. Campbell, Trenton.

THEY LIKE REV. MR. BROWN.

TABERNACLE PEOPLE WELCOMED THEIR NEW PASTOR LAST NIGHT.

Many members of the Tabernacle congregation were present last evening in the Sunday School rooms for the purpose of welcoming the new Pastor, Rev. G. Brown, and his wife. A varied and interesting programme was presented. Mr. W. H. Gordon presided over the gathering. At the close of the programme the ladies served refreshments. The Rev. gentleman and his wife have created a favorable impression upon the Tabernacle people.

A HOT TIME COMING.

Warm weather is predicted, but take in the excursions to Rochester for Dominion Day and 4th of July per Strs. "North King," "Alexandria" and "Caspian" and you will miss it. Return fare $2.00 going 3rd and 4th July. Tickets good for return till 6th July. Enquire of agents. jlto4

Presentation.

The friends of Leonard R. Howe in this city will be pleased to know that his genial disposition is appreciated wherever he goes. On the eve of his departure from Toronto to Chicago, the employes of Evans & Sons presented him with a valuable umbrella; the manager of the firm with a copy of Tennyson, and friends at his boarding house a tie pin set with pearls.

This winsome lass of doleful mien,
Though thirty-five looks sweet sixteen,
She owes it too, t'would really seem,
To Abbey's Salt and not Cold Cream.

PERFECT HEALTH is beauty's chief attribute, and nothing contributes so much to health as Abbey's Salt taken regularly.

A DISEASED STOMACH will soon turn beauty to ugliness. BAD BREATH at once dispells the charm of a pretty face. Abbey's Salt is a gentle yet insistent laxative pleasant to take, always effective, never harsh.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt
Relieves headache—Cures indigestion

JAMES HOWATSON'S LONG FIGHT IS OVER

DEATH PUT AN END TO HIS SUFFERINGS ON TUESDAY, JUNE 30.

After six months and four days of agony and suffering, Mr. James Howatson passed peacefully away on Tuesday last, in the 46th year of his age.

Intelligencer readers will remember the fearful accident that happened to Mr. Howatson on December 25th last; how his spinal cord was almost severed and he was paralyzed from the waist down. An operation no doubt prolonged his life for a time, but death was a happy release for he has been a great sufferer.

The late Mr. Howatson was formerly of this city, and was favorably known as a steady, honest and upright man and a member of the Presbyterian Church. Nine years ago he married Miss Carrie Wallbridge, of Rossmore, who is left to mourn the demise of a faithful husband.

Two brothers, Thomas, of Michigan, and Robert, of Anaconda, Mont., are left, and they have been ever faithful during his long illness. The deceased was a member of the Foresters of Anaconda and a member of long standing of Mizpah Lodge I.O.O.F., of this city, under whose auspices the funeral will be held upon the arrival of the remains here, of which an announcement will be made. The interment will be in Belleville cemetery. To the widow and relatives will be extended sincere sympathy in their hour of trial. In this connection we might mention the fact that Mizpah Lodge had a good substitute in Colfax Lodge, I.O.O.F., Anaconda, the members of which performed many kind acts during the deceased's long illness.

CITY AND DISTRICT.

The Public Library is now open again.

Last night's band concert was fairly well attended, and the combination of music and fresh air was delightful.

Alex. Ray will give 10 per cent. off all toilet articles and perfumes Saturday, July 4th.

It was Master Kenneth Denike who passed from Intermediate to Senior Fourth, not Russel, as stated in yesterday's paper. The mistake was not ours.

The next meeting of the Presbytery of Kingston will be held in St. Andrew's Church, Belleville, on the 3rd Tuesday in July (21st inst.) at 11 a.m.

One can't be too careful in the summer about his digestion. Ray's Dyspepsia Tablets will keep your stomach in the best of condition. 10c. a dozen.—Alex. Ray.

The Kilties' Band of Canada (Gordon Highlanders) opens its seventh semi-annual tour at Willow Grove Park, Philadelphia, to-morrow, the "Glorious Fourth." The Belleville members of the organization left this morning, and those from Toronto, Hamilton, etc., will leave their homes to-night en route for the Quaker City. The present tour will last until Christmas.

We carry the most complete line of Atomizers in this community. It would pay you to see us before investing. Many different styles and prices.—Alex. Ray.

At an early hour this morning the police found a bicycle on Front street.

A meeting of the Finance and School Committees of the Board of Education was called for last evening, but there were not enough members present to form a quorum.

THE WEATHER.

To-day's Probs—

Moderate variable winds, local showers but mostly fair. Saturday warmer and fair, with local thunderstorms.

To-day's Temperature

As Registered by The Intelligencer's Guaranteed Thermometer:

8 a.m.	69
12 m.	73
2 p.m.	78
3 p.m.	81

Piles To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles, the manufacturers have guaranteed it. See testimonials in the daily press and ask your neighbors what they think of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. 60c a box, at all dealers or EDMANSON, BATES & Co., Toronto.
Dr. Chase's Ointment

Encourage Your Boy.

Offer him a reward for proficiency at school.

If he had his say of what he should get he'd be pretty sure to take a watch.

Give him a watch.

There isn't a more serviceable article, nor one that would give a boy more pleasure.

We sell guaranteed movements, bearing our name, in different cases, from $6,00 up.

Angus McFee.
Jeweler & Optician
310 Front St.

25 per cent. Off
CORSETS
FOR THREE DAYS, so every lady can judge for herself, how beautifully our Corsets fit.

Sale of hats still continues.

MISS IRWIN
Millinery and Corset Specialist

W. H. JESSOP
"VOCAL TEACHER"
STUDIO "KARN HALL," Montreal

After Monday, 6th JULY, will be in Belleville until 1st SEPTEMBER.

Studio in Belleville "FORRESTERS' HALL," over Mr. S. Burrows Office.

VOICES TRIED FREE.

Further information at Mr. W. B. Riggs' Music Store.

Much talk, many lies.
All trails are long to the lazy.
Lost chances never leave any trail.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

MEDICAL.

JOHN J. FARLEY, M.D., C.M., M.R., C.S., England.

Office and Residence — Corner of Bridge and George streets — three streets East of Post Office.

DR. J. F. MATHER

Has removed his office to Pinnacle St., three doors north of Hotel Quinte. my29-6mw

LEGAL.

WILLS & WRIGHT,

Barristers, Solicitors, Notary Public, &c., Belleville. Office—2 Campbell Street.

MALCOLM WRIGHT.
J. FRANKLIN WILLS.

Money to Loan at Lowest Rates.

W. C. MIKEL, B. C. L.,

Barrister, &c.

Solicitor for the City of Belleville. Office—Metropolitan Block, Corner Front and Campbell Streets.

PORTER & CARNEW,

Barristers, Solicitors, Notaries Public, etc.

Offices — Robertson Block, East Front St., Belleville, Ont. 'Phone 87.

E. G. PORTER. WM. CARNEW.

WILLIAM N. PONTON,

Barrister-at-law, Solicitor, Notary Public, Conveyancer, Office over Express and Telegraph Office, Bridge Street, Belleville.

Money to Loan — Private Funds. Solicitor Sun and Hastings Savings and Loan Company of Ontario.

FRANCIS S. WALLBRIDGE,

Successor to Hon. Lewis Wallbridge, Q.C.

Barrister, Solicitor, Conveyancer, Etc. Office, McAnnany Building, corner Front and Bridge Sts., Belleville, Ont. Private and Company money to loan at 6 per cent., on easy terms upon good land security. Charges moderate.

INSURANCE.

Fire Insurance.

Guardian	Est'd 1821
The North America,	Est'd 1792
Quebec,	Est'd 1818

City, Town and Village Property insure at lowest rates.

R. W. ADAMS. Agent.

Office opposite Post Office.

PERSONS desiring Life Insurance cannot do better than consult

W. J. THOMSON,

who is the Agent for the following well-known and old established Assurance Companies:

ROYAL. ALLIANCE.
OCEAN ACCIDENT STANDARD LIFE

Office at Rathbun Co., Bridge St. oce-d&w

FIRE, LIFE & ACCIDENT INSURANCE

At Lowest Rates The Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Perth Mutual on farm and city property. Also money to loan at 4½ per cent. upwards.

JAMES A. CHISHOLM,
Office Ashley Block, Front st., Belleville.

THOS. STEWART,

Insurance and Commission Agent

Agent for the Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Scottish Union National Ins. Co.

Bridge St.

Money Saved is Money Earned

can earn you money by saving it for you in your Fire Insurance.

The Anglo-American Fire Ins. Co
The Merchants Fire Ins. Co.
The Equity Fire Ins. Co.

Are all strong Canadian stock companies and insure Farm and City Property at lower rate than other stock companies. Call and see me before placing your fire insurance.

Office—Bridge St., same entrance Quinte Laundry, Belleville.

H. FREEMAN KET [illegible]

Fire, Life & Plate Glass Insurance.

Liverpool & London & Globe of England.
Waterloo Mutual, of Waterloo, Ont.
Lloyd's Plate Glass.
Home Life Association, Toronto.
North British & Mercantile.

Farm and City Property insured in First-class Reliable Companies and at lowest current rates. Losses promptly settled. Land valuation, and transact general Real Estate business and sale or purchase and renting of property. Appraiser for the Hastings Loan & Investment Society. Money to Loan.

W. P. HUDSON, Office above Rathbun's office, cor. Bridge and Pinnacle Sts., opposite Postoffice and Hotel Quinte, Belleville. 'Phone 162.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A. G. NORTHRUP,

Issuer of Marriage Licenses, Shire Hall, Belleville, Ont.

CHAUNCEY ASHLEY,

Issuer of Marriage Licenses. Private Office, Bridge St., Belleville, opposite the Post Office. Residence, first house east of W. W. Chown's Mfg. Co., Station St. Appointments made.

REMOVAL.

Dr. Clarke has removed to the offices formerly occupied by the late Dr. Ward, over Burrows', and opposite Scantlebury's Book Store. a27dtf

FAST MAIL SERVICE

Bay of Quinte Route
TO
ROCHESTER N. Y.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian"

Taking Effect 27th June.

GOING DAILY (EXCEPT MONDAY)
Lv. Belleville .... 11.38 p. m.
Ar. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 6.43 a. m
RETURNING DAILY (Except Sunday)
Lv. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 8 30 p. m.
Ar. Belleville .... 3.25 a. m.

Baggage checked to all points. Connection with all railways.

$1.00 THOUSAND ISLANDS $1.00 AND RETURN.

Commencing 28th June. Steamer leaves Belleville at 3 25 a.m. daily except Monday for 1000 Islands, calling at Bay of Quinte ports, Kingston, Alexandria Bay and Gananoque. Passing through American and Canadian channels.

Right reserved to change time with or without notice.

Full information from

THE RATHBUN CO., } Agents.
U. E. THOMPSON, }
E. E. HORSEY, G. P. & F. Agent, Kingston.

Montreal, Rochester & Quebec Transit Co'y.

Str. "Alexandria"

Service in effect 25th April.

Leaves Rathbun Co.'s wharf, Belleville, every Saturday at 11.00 a.m. for Rochester, Niagara Falls and Buffalo.

Every Monday at 7.00 a.m. for Montreal and all River Ports.

Thousand Islands by daylight.
Runs all St. Lawrence River Rapids.
Quebec excursions commence July 5th.

LOW FREIGHT RATES.

A. W. HEPBURN, General Manager, Picton, Ont.
THE RATHBUN CO. Agents. Belleville.

The Deseronto Navigation Co

TIME TABLE.

Taking effect April 13, 1903.

Belleville, Trenton, Picton & Napanee

Str. "ELLA ROSS"

Leaves Belleville for Trenton at 10 a.m., daily, Sundays Excepted, returning leaves Trenton at 1 p.m., leaving Belleville at 3 p.m. for Deseronto, Napanee and Picton.

Quick and Superior Service to NEW YORK CITY

Steamers RESOLUTE and RELIANCE will leave Deseronto for Oswego after arrival of Str. Ella Ross connecting at Oswego with the New York, Ontario Western Ry.

Fare to New York, Single, $8.40
Return, $13.25

For further particulars apply to THE RATHBUN CO., Local Agents

J. F. CHAPMAN, Asst. Gen. Frt. Pass. Agt., Deseronto
[illegible] ASKER General Manager Deseronto.

Str. "Niagara"

The popular excursion boat "Niagara," which has been very much improved since last season, will be open for charter on or after the 13th of July next. The "Niagara" is now lighted throughout by electricity, and will also have a search light, making her at once the safest, fastest and most comfortable excursion boat on the bay.

THOMAS STEWART,
Manager,
45 Bridge St., Belleville.

RAILWAY TIME TABLES.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Time of departure from Belleville Station:

Going East.

New train 12.45 a.m., daily, except Sunday, for Brockville, Montreal and intermediate stations.
No. 16—Local, for Brockville, 7 a.m., arrives back from Brockville 8.40 p.m.
No. 2—1.45 a.m., Mail and Express, (Flyer), Daily.
No. 6—11.43 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.
No. 4—12.22 p.m., International Limited, Daily.
No. 12—5.55 p.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.

Going West.

No. 5—3 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily except Monday.
No. 3—4.10 a.m., Limited Express, Daily.
No. 9—5.56 a.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.
No. 11—11.22 a.m., Passenger, Daily except Sunday.
No. 1—1.48 p.m., International Limited, Daily.
No. 7—5.12 p.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.

Taking effect 12.01 o'clock, Sunday, June 14, 1903.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.

Belleville and Peterboro.

Going West.

	Leave.	Arr. Peterboro
Mail	5.45 a.m.	8.10 a.m.
Mixed	5.55 p.m.	9.05 p.m.

Going East.

	Arr.	L've Peterboro
Mixed	11.20 a.m.	8.25 a.m.
Mail	4.25 p.m.	2.05 p.m.

Belleville and Madoc.

Going North.

	L've	Arr. Madoc
Mixed	12.20 p.m.	1.20 p.m.
Mixed	6.30 p.m.	7.40 p.m.

Going South.

	Arr.	L've Madoc
Mixed	9.10 a.m.	7.30 a.m.
Mixed	5.08 p.m.	3.45 p.m.

None of the above trains run on Sunday.

NICK HOGABOOM'S SCOOP.

IT was the neatest piece of business chronicled in the police annals of Tolchester. The detective department said so, and it ought to know; the police reporters enlarged on the deftness of the thief, and in criminal circles the "job" was referred to with bated breath, and with the same degree of admiration as provincial artists accord to the work of some master whose skill has raised him above the jealousy of mediocrity. The social importance of the wedding—"Millionaires in Hymen's Bonds," was the heading in one paper—was completely overshadowed in public interest, and in the estimation of city editors, by the daring robbery which marred the reception and sent the bride away in a state of semi-hysterics. The presents had been jealously guarded by two private detectives, with silk hats, and frock coats badly fitting and hired for the occasion, while a third, garbed as a footman, had officiated at the front door, to keep a sharp eye on the stream of guests lest any evil-disposed person should obtain an entrance. And yet, in spite of all precautions, four valuable pieces of jewelry had mysteriously disappeared under the very noses of the custodians.

The list, as supplied to the city force, was itemized as follows:

1 Diamond pin, valued at	$ 350
1 Diamond sunburst	1,000
1 Emerald hoop ring	250
1 Rope of pearls	2,500

It was a long time since Tolchester had enjoyed such a sensation. The social prominence of the parties lent additional piquancy to the occurrence, and people who, as a rule, never looked at the society columns, eagerly scanned the list of wedding guests, and wondered who, in that provincially august catalogue, could have been the author of one of the neatest "touches" on record.

Nick Hogaboom, police reporter of the "Courier," felt a double interest in the affair, both from a personal and professional point of view. Much to his disgust, he had been assigned to write up the ceremony, the reportorial staff being below its normal strength, and had with his own hand catalogued for his paper the large array of wedding gifts. He had been greatly taken with the beauty of the diamond pin, jocularly remarking to the society editress of the "Weekly Hearth and Home" that he "had a good mind to pinch it for his Sunday tie," and had wished, with a sigh, that he could afford to hand such a string of pearls on a certain white neck.

As police reporter of the "Courier," with a reputation for "scoops," for so exclusive news stories are called in the jargon of the press, it behooved him to get the earliest information on the subject of the robbery, and so he strolled into the office of the chief of the city detective staff, to pick up any crumbs which that august official might vouchsafe to let fall. The chief liked Nick Hogaboom as well as he permitted himself to like any of the reporters, whose premature disclosures sometimes interfered seriously with his plans, and he graciously suffered two pieces of information to be extracted—first, that Mr. Wotherspoon had offered a reward of a thousand dollars for the recovery of the stolen jewelry, and secondly, that Detective Wright, who had been assigned on the case, was [illegible] and that his place had been taken by Detective Bundlesroth.

"Bundles, eh?" queried Nick, with a slight uplifting of the eyebrows and an indrawing of the lips, which did not escape the keen eyes of the chief.

"Have you got any objection to my putting him on?" he asked, sarcastically. "If you have, why, don't hesitate to say so, and I'll switch the staff around to accommodate you." The chief's eyes might be open to the deficiencies of certain members of his force, but he did not choose that others should comment on them, even by depreciatory pantomime.

Nick laughed. "Oh, Bundles is all right, I guess," he said.

"What's the matter between you and Bundlesroth these days?" the chief enquired. "You used to be as thick as thieves. A bit too thick to suit me sometimes," he added, with a grim smile.

"Just a little difference of opinion," replied the reporter, carelessly. "We'll get over our grouch some day." He showed no inclination to pursue the conversation along these personal lines, and a few minutes later took his leave.

Passing down the stairs Nick met another reporter, to whom he imparted the routine information which he had just received. The other grinned.

"It's a pipe for the bird if old man Bundles has got the job of putting salt on his tail," he said. "Why, the old jay couldn't catch the smallpox in a pesthouse. He's beginning to tumble to the fact that he's getting pretty dead, but this'll bloat him up some."

Two policemen, standing near, overheard the remark, and snickered appreciatively.

"Poor old Bundles!" soliloquized Nick, as he left the building. "If he doesn't get a move on, I'm afraid it's going to be a case of sack;" and then he fell to meditating ruefully on his own relations with the despised detective.

It was true, as the chief had remarked, that Nicholas Hogaboom and Detective Bundlesroth were no longer "thick," and the reason for the split was a woman. Bundles had a daughter, Mamie, a bright-faced, wholesome, attractive lass, and Mamie had found favor in the eyes of the police reporter. He had seen her on many occasions when he called for a private and confidential chat with her father, and had taken her several times to the theater with full parental sanction. He felt it hard, therefore, that, after he had obtained from the girl a blushing confession that his attachment was reciprocated, Bundles should have rounded on him and sternly refused to allow of an engagement. Nick pointed out that his savings and his present salary were amply sufficient to warrant his taking a wife, but the father was obdurate, and forbade any intercourse between the young people. Consequently the two men now confined themselves to a strictly professional relationship, and spoke to one another as seldom as possible.

Nick, strolling towards the "Courier" office, paused in front of the alluring jewelry display in the windows of Mullarkey & Co. Those windows had recently held a great attraction for him, and he never passed them without stopping to select a ring, usually the most expensive in the collection, which he pictured himself as purchasing and slipping on to Mamie's finger, with an appropriate accompanying speech. Nick had that speech down pat, and he was running his eye over the ring-cases, preparatory to going through his customary mental theatricals, when he became aware that another man was also regarding the jewels, and with the eye of a connoisseur. The stranger was tall, well dressed in a frock-coat and silk hat, and wore an air of distinction.

Nick looked at him once or twice out of the corners of his eyes, and his brows drew together in a puzzled frown. For the moment Mamie was forgotten. He had seen that face recently, under circumstances which lent the recognition an additional interest, and he had seen it some years before, under other circumstances which his mind was unable to recall. As he tried in vain to locate the brain-cell in which this special memory was stored, he saw the man raise his hat, draw a handkerchief from his pocket, and, grasping it delicately between forefinger and thumb, pass it once or twice across his forehead. Then a great light broke suddenly on the young reporter, and he checked a whistle of astonishment which gathered behind his lips.

"What a cinch," he whispered, as he continued to gaze fixedly in front of him. He permitted himself the luxury of snapping the finger and thumb of the hand in his trousers' pocket, but externally he gave no sign of the triumph surging in his bosom.

"It's a case of shadow, sure," he said to himself, as the man moved away from the window, and while the tall, silk-hatted figure strolled leisurely along the street, the sturdy form of the reporter loafed behind at a convenient distance.

Before they had gone far the object of Nick's pursuit encountered the assistant manager of one of the city banks, and stopped for a few minutes' conversation. Nick, who happened to be passing a corset emporium, at once halted and became engrossed in the contents of the window, until the two separated after a warm handshake.

Now, it so happened that the bank manager lay under a slight obligation to Nick Hogaboom, and he greeted the young man pleasantly when they met.

"The man I was just talking to?" he said, in reply to Nick's artless enquiry. "Oh, that's Walter Welfern of Boston. Been here some months trying to get people interested in a patent soap-dish. Live? Has a flat at 17 Marobel street. Why? D'ye want to interview him? Just told me he was leaving for New York to-morrow for a few weeks. Well, so long! Glad to have seen you."

The bank manager hurried away, and Nick abandoned the chase. He had learned all that he wanted to know. Fifteen minutes later he rang the bell at 17 Marobel street.

"Mr. Welfern ain't in just now," said the servant who opened the door. "Did you want to see him pertic'lar?"

"Pretty particular," replied Nick. "When would I be likely to catch him in?"

"He'll be in about ten o'clock tonight, I guess," said the servant. "He's goin' away to-morrow on the 8.15 train."

Nick expressed his thanks for the information and withdrew.

"Things are looking my way all right," he said, "and now to play my hand for what it's worth."

When Mamie Bundlesroth opened the door of her father's house in response to Nick's ring and saw who stood outside, she blushed and beamed, and then looked frightened.

"Paw in, Mame?" asked Nick. He winked and grinned in a manner incomprehensible to the girl, but he made no lover-like advances. Mamie's face fell.

"He's in the parlor, Ni— Mr. Hogaboom," she said, with a pathetic attempt at dignity.

"All right, Miss Bundlesroth," replied Nick, jocosely. "Just show me in, will you?" and added in a low voice, as she preceded him along the passage, "Things are coming our way at last, little girl, and we can afford to wait for paw's blessing."

Detective Bundlesroth did not wear the appearance of a hospitable host when Nick walked jauntily into the parlor, ushered in by a "Here's Mr. Hogaboom to see you, paw," from Mamie. He fixed a stony stare on his visitor, and emitted an interrogative grunt, which, translated into polite English, stood for, "To what am I indebted for the honor of this visit?"

"I dropped in to see you, Bundles," began Nick, easily, "for two reasons. First, because I want to find out whether you haven't changed your mind about Mamie——"

"I haven't, then," replied the other, sourly, "an' I don't mean to. I suppose you an' her have had a huggin'-match in the passage?"

"Then you suppose wrong," said Nick. "For a detective you're a mighty poor judge of human nature. I'm playing my cards on the table and so's Mame. There's no back-door business about us."

The detective's expression softened a little.

"It ain't no use talkin', Nick," he said. "You've got to give her up. I've got no objections to you personally, but there's richer men than you wants to marry my girl, an' she's got to take one of 'em."

Nick shrugged his shoulders. "We'll drop it, then," he said; "and now, how're things going in that Wotherspoon business? The chief tells me he's put you on to it. Picked up any clues yet?"

An air of profound wisdom, the air with which the professional detective masks the more or less of knowledge which he happens to possess, spread over Bundles' face.

"Youse fellows'll get to know in good time," he replied. "Mum's the word just now."

The reporter took a couple of cigars from his pocket, and rolled one across the table to his companion, who, after eyeing it for a moment with professional mistrust, bit the end off and lit it.

"It'll be a great thing for you, Bundles," said Nick, meditatively, as he blew a succession of rings and impaled them on his forefinger. "A thousand bucks ain't to be picked up every day, and then there's your rep. Say, I don't want to rub it into you, old man, but your brother cops are kind of giving you the laugh, and the papers are just a bit sore on you. They say you haven't pulled out anything since that Ellerman hold-up, and that you'd never have got wise to that if one of the thugs hadn't squealed to you on the q. t."

Now, in spite of an overweening vanity, Detective Bundlesroth was aware in the inmost recesses of his soul, that Nicholas Hogaboom was not far from the truth. He had caught covert smiles on the faces of detectives and policemen when he had been expounding his theories. Humiliating references to his lack of acuteness as an officer, dropped in casual conversation by newspaper men, had come to his ears, and the chief's manner had not been as cordial of late as it used to be. There was no disguising the fact that he had failed lamentably in several cases entrusted to him, and although he had plenty of plausible explanations at command, he nevertheless felt that it behooved him to do something to re-establish a reputation which was fast becoming tarnished. The Wotherspoon robbery afforded him a brilliant opportunity, but unfortunately he was at the present time as far from any solution of the mystery as ever. Nick's remarks consequently touched him on a very raw spot, and it was with no very friendly look that he replied:

"They say that, do they? Well, I'll show 'em in a little while that Bundles ain't such a stiff as they think."

"It'll be a great thing for you, sure," continued Nick, placidly, "and it would look pretty in print. 'Detective Bundlesroth has again shown his old-time sagacity, and demonstrated that, in spite of advancing years, his intellect is as acute, and his intuition as sure, as in the days when he bore the reputation of being one of the most astute officers on the continent.' Say, how'd that hit you as part of the introduction to the story? Great, wouldn't it?"

The smile of gratified vanity, which had played over the detective's face during this recitation of a possible paragraph, faded as he realized its visionary character.

"It'd be no more'n the truth," he grunted.

"Well," said Nick, with a sigh, "it's no use gassing about what might be; I guess I 'll drop over and see Emmett."

"What d'ye want to go an' see that stiff for?" queried Bundles. Emmett was a well-known private detective, whom the officers of the city force regarded with undisguised hostility. Bundles was especially bitter, Emmett having carried to a triumphant termination a case in which his, Bundles', lack of success had been conspicuous.

Nick blew a ring, impaled it with great exactness, and looked the detective straight in the eye.

"I want to put him next," he said.

"Next to what?"

"To who pinched those bits of glass at Wotherspoon's."

"And what in h—— do you know about it?" Bundles seldom swore, but he was agitated. Then Nick fired his blast.

"I know all about it," he said. "I know the man; I know where he lives, and I can put my hands on evidence. Oh, it's a lead-pipe, and to think that I've got to cough it all up to Emmett, and throw down the force, and you in particular. Say, Bundles, why ain't we friends?"

The detective's face flushed, and his eyes bulged out. "Are you giving it to me straight, or are you putting up a bluff?" he asked.

"Bluff be damned!" replied the young man. "I've got the cards for a show-down. Look here, I'll give you a little bit of it. Some years ago I was working on a paper in—well, never mind where, but it's quite a good-sized village. There was a big robbery trial on, and one of the slickest crooks in the States was in the dock. I was on the case, and used to sit day after day in the court room. The prisoner was a fine-looking fellow, and when the evidence was thin and there was nothing for me to do, I used to sit and look at him. He had a trick of wiping his forehead with his handkerchief, which struck me as peculiar—sort of lady-like fashion. Well, he was convicted, and got seven years, but on his way to the pen he made a clean getaway, and I never heard that they'd pinched him again. There was a reward of five hundred out for him, which I guess is still standing. At the Wotherspoon lay-out I piped this same man, but I didn't know him; couldn't think where I'd seen him. Two hours ago, in front of Mullarkey's, was this same coon standing, and I tried to size him up, but it was no go, till he pulled out his wipe and mopped his fevered brow. Then I tumbled right off. I found out his name, where he lives, when he's going to make a sneak, and all about it, and—and I guess that's about all at present from yours truly."

There was a long pause. Nick sat smoking deliberately and gazing abstractedly into the atmosphere. The detective shifted uneasily in his seat, examined the ash of his cigar with great minuteness, and cast sidelong looks at the other. Presently he broke the silence.

"What do you want?" he asked, huskily.

"I reckon you don't wear blinders," replied the police reporter, coolly. "Now, Bundles, I'll give it to you straight. You give me your word—and you're not the man to go back on it—that I may marry Mamie inside of six months, and I'll put you next to the whole business. You can pouch all the stuff—fifteen hundred nice, juicy samoleons—and I'll see that you get all the credit that's coming. I'll square the boys on the other papers to give you the best-send-off any of you cops ever had; they'll do that for me when they know I'm going to marry your girl. I'll pick the picture for you out of the gallery—it'll be there, dead sure—and we'll tell the people how Detective Bundlesroth saw the man on the street, and, possessing one of those phenomenal memories, rare among the cleverest of the force, that never forgets a face, recalled a certain photograph sent in to the office years ago, and worked this slight clue to a successful termination. Say, I'll never need to show in the business at all. I'll fix the man who handles A. P. here, and you'll get a good show in every paper in the country. What do you say? Is it a go?"

As the reporter proceeded, the imagination of the detective painted a series of highly-colored pictures in rapid succession. He saw himself raised to a pinnacle far loftier than that from which he had slipped so unaccountably. He saw his fame blazoned forth, from ocean to ocean, as the solver of a deep mystery and the captor of a noted malefactor who was badly "wanted." And last, but not least, he saw his bank account, now sadly attenuated, swelled into comparative fatness by the addition of fifteen hundred dollars. Hitherto his reputation at its best had been local; to-morrow it would be continental. He hesitated, but not for long. Taking a last suck at his cigar, and throwing it into a spittoon, he rose to his feet and held out his hand.

"It's a go," he said.

"Good," replied Nick. "I guess I'm going to be proud of my pa-in-law; and now, maybe we'd better call in Mamie and give her the latest bulletin."

At eight o'clock next morning a cab waited in front of 17 Marobel street, and two men stood near in animated discourse. A trunk was brought out and placed on the box, and a few minutes later a tall, well-dressed man appeared on the steps. As he leisurely descended, the other two moved forward, still talking, and reached the door of the cab just as the tall man had comfortably ensconced himself. Then, to the great surprise of the occupant, one of the pedestrians jumped suddenly into the vehicle and seated himself beside him.

"What does this mean?" cried Mr. Welfern of Boston, in great indignation.

"It's no go, Brady," said the intruder. "It's all up. Now, don't make a beef, because there's a gun in my pocket stickin' right into your ribs. Get in, Sam. Coachman, you know me—Detective Bundlesroth; drive to headquarters."

In spite of the excellent advice proffered by the detective, Mr. Welfern did make a considerable "beef," and it was not till a systematic search of his trunks at the central police station had revealed the missing articles of jewelry that he ceased to threaten all kinds of pains and penalties for the outrage to which he was being subjected. Then he accepted the situation with philosophical composure, and handed round his cigar-case with charming cordiality.

Nicholas Hogaboom was as good as his word. He squared the boys and the Associated Press correspondent, as he had promised, and Detective Bundles reaped a harvest of glory such as he had never dreamed of. The rewards were duly paid over to him, and no one, not even Mamie, ever knew that the entire credit for the achievement really belonged to another.

"How did you ever persuade paw to let you marry me?" Mamie asked wonderingly of her husband as they drove from the paternal mansion, followed by a shower of slippers discharged by the paternal hand.

"You know what a scoop is, don't you?" Nick enquired.

"Of course I do. It's something that you reporters get exclusive."

"Well," replied Nick, laughing, "this was just a case of scoop."

And more than that Mamie could never get him to say on the subject

A GREAT INCREASING ARMY,

composed of men and women that spend heart and soul in the vain effort to overcome a lack of vigor in the body. To replace inertia by vigor, to make good, red blood that will build up the system, to have strong nerves, you must eat more, digest more, assimilate more. How can it be done? By using Ferrozone. It invigorates, strengthens, possesses magical health giving powers. Get Ferrozone to-day and make yourself strong and well. All druggists and medicine dealers sell Ferrozone.

LATEST NEW YORK STOCK QUOTATIONS

AS FURNISHED TO THE INTELLIGENCER BY H. R. BEATTIE, STOCK BROKER.

New York, July 3.

Stock	Op'g	H'st	L'st	Close
Atchison	67¼	67⅞	67¼	67⅞
do. pref	92½	92⅝	92½	92⅝
St. Paul	150⅞	151	150¼	150⅞
Mo. P.	102⅜	102⅞	101⅞	102⅞
Union. Pac	81¼	81¼	80⅞	81⅛
C. P. R.	123⅞	124	123⅝	124
South Pac.	49⅛	49⅞	49¼	49¼
P. I.	33½	34	33¼	33⅞
Ills. C.	134	134	133⅛	133¼
Sou. Ry.	24	24⅛	23⅞	24⅛
Texas	29¼	....	....	....
B & O.	85½	86⅛	85⅜	86⅛
N. Y. C.	126¼	126½	126⅛	126½
Penna	125½	125½	124⅞	125¼
Soo	58¼	58¾	58¼	58¾
Erie	33⅜	33⅜	33⅛	33⅛
do. pref.	67¼	67¾	67	67¾
Reading	51	51½	50⅞	51½
C. O.	38½	....	....	....
O. & W.	25⅛	25⅜	25⅛	25⅜
Manhattan	136¾	137	136¾	137
W. C.	21	....	....	....
L. & N.	110⅞	111¼	110⅝	111⅛
A. F.	33⅞	38½	37¾	38⅛
Ner.	65½	66	65¼	66
Wab.	24¼	24½	24	24½
do pref.	43⅜	44	43⅜	44
W. U.	85⅞	....	....	....
C. G. W.	19	19¼	19	19¼
U S. Sd.	30⅞	30⅞	30¼	30⅞
do pref.	80⅞	81⅛	80⅛	81⅛
Sugar	121	121½	121	121⅛
B. R. T.	57⅞	58⅜	57⅛	58⅜
Po	99	....	....	....
A. C. P.	54¼	54¼	53⅞	54⅛
Met.	122¼	123	122¼	123

C.E. CONVENTION, DENVER, COL.

July 9th to 13th.

In connection with the Christian Endeavor Convention, Denver, Col., special reduced rates will be in effect via the Grand Trunk Railway, tickets are good going July 5th, 7th and 8th, valid to return, arriving at destination on or before August 31st. The Grand Trunk service is unexcelled for those who purpose attending this convention. Special train will leave Toronto at 3 p.m., Monday, July 6th. For further information apply to agents Grand Trunk Railway System. 6td

Every source of enjoyment of the best inland resort is found at the MAGI Caledonia Springs and its famous waters.

The Flagging Energies Revived.—Constant application to business is a tax upon the energies, and if there be not relaxation, lassitude and depression are sure to intervene. These come from stomachic troubles. The want of exercise brings on nervous irregularities, and the stomach ceases to assimilate food properly. In this condition Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will be found a recuperative of rare power, restoring the organs to healthful action, dispelling depression, and reviving the flagging energies.

The best way to get even [illegible] get.

Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial is a speedy cure for dysentery, diarrhoea, cholera, summer complaint, sea sickness and complaints incidental to children teething. It gives immediate relief to those suffering from the effects of indiscretion in eating unripe fruit, cucumbers, etc. It acts with wonderful rapidity and never fails to conquer the disease. No one need fear cholera if they have a bottle of this medicine convenient.

Life has no blessing like a prudent friend.

Sleeplessness.—When the nerves are unstrung and the whole body given up to wretchedness, when the mind is filled with gloom and dismal forebodings, the result of derangement of the digestive organs, sleeplessness comes to add to the distress. If only the subject could sleep, there would be oblivion for a while and temporary relief. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will not only induce sleep, but will act so beneficially that the subject will wake refreshed and restored to happiness.

It takes money to voice the opinion of a lawyer.

Holloway's Corn Cure is the medicine to remove all kinds of corns and warts, and only costs the small sum of twenty-five cents.

A long portage makes a heavy canoe.

A WONDERFUL CURE.—Mr. David Smith, Coe Hill, Ont., writes: "For the benefit of others I wish to say a few words about Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. About a year ago I took a very severe cough, had a virulent sore on my lips, was bad with dyspepsia, constipation and general debility. I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, so I got a bottle and when I had used about one-half, the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done, it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had used quinine and lemon juice with very little effect. But since using 2 bottles of the Vegetable Discovery, the biliousness is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 63 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know."

The wildcat's teeth are close to its purr.

THE PUBLIC should bear in mind that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has nothing in common with the impure, deteriorating class of so-called medicinal oils. It is eminently pure and really efficacious—relieving pain and lameness, stiffness of the joints and muscles, and sores or hurts, besides being an excellent specific for rheumatism, coughs and bronchial complaints.

Coral is a talisman against thunder and evils by flood and field.

These two desirable qualifications, pleasant to the taste and at the same time effectual, are to be found in Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator. Children like it.

The average watch represents but 12 hours of human labor.

To get relief from indigestion, biliousness, constipation or torpid liver without disturbing the stomach or purging the bowels, take a few doses of Carter's Little Liver Pills, they will please you.

When one gets hopping mad his reason goes on a crutch.

That tired, languid feeling and dull headache is very disagreeable. Take two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring, and you will find relief. They never fail to do good.

Many a man's self-conceit is due to his ignorance.

They make one feel as though life was worth living. Take one of Carter's Little Liver Pills after eating; it will relieve dyspepsia, aid digestion, give tone and vigor to the system.

If thy friend is honey, do not lick him up altogether.

Nothing so certainly obstructs the perspiration as sudden transitions from heat to cold. Heat rarifies the blood, quickens the circulation and increases the perspiration, but when these are suddenly checked the consequences must be bad. The most common cause of disease is obstructed perspiration, or what commonly goes by the name of catching cold. Coughs, colds, sore throat, etc., if attended to in time are easily subdued, but if allowed to run their own course generally prove the fore-runner of more dangerous diseases. Nine-tenths of the consumptives date their afflictions from a neglected cold, and the diseases that are caused by wet feet, damp clothes, or exposure are more numerous than are generally supposed. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, which frees the lungs from viscid phlegm by changing the secretions from a diseased to a healthy state.

SAVE MONEY By JOINING The MUTUAL LITERARY MUSIC CLUB OF AMERICA

25 Cents pays for three months' membership. Each member receives the official club organ every month, including 6 pieces of high-class vocal and instrumental new music each month, 24 pieces in all; also a Certificate of Membership which gives the privilege of Club Room in New York City, and of buying literature, music or musical instruments of any description at wholesale prices, saving you from 20% to 60% on your purchases. Don't fail to join at once. You will get much more than your money's worth. Mutual Literary Music Club, Dept. [illegible], 150 Nassau St., N.Y.

TWO SPECIAL SALES

Men's Suits, Men's and Boy's Shirts.

Saturday Night Only From 7 to 10 O'Clock.

We will have on sale Saturday night, 50 dozen Men's and Boys' Shirts, worth 50 to 75 cts. to be cleared at only 25 cts. each.

Also about 50 Men's Suits, odds and ends of different $5.00, $6.00 and $7.00 lines, to be cleared at only

$3.90 each.

See north window for Shirts, south window for sample of Suits.

Remember, 7 to 10 o'clock Saturday Night, and don't be late.

OAK HALL

Sole Agents for Sanford's Celebrated Clothing.

THE BEST Shoe Bargains

FOR THE PEOPLE AT TH

J. J. Haines Shoe Houses.

1 Lot Women's Patent Laced Boots and Low Shoes—$2.00 and $2.50, now	$1.50
Women's Kid Low Shoe, patent tip, all sizes	.95
Women's Laced Shoe, patent tip, all sizes	.68
Women's Real Kid Gaiters, sizes 3 to 8	1.00
Women's Juliet Gaiters, $1.50, now	1.00
Women's 2 Button Low Shoe, "Trilby," now	1.00
Women's Kid Strap Slipper, Bell's $2.00, now	1.50
Boys' Grey Canvas Laced Boot, sizes 1 to 5	.50
Men's Grey Canvas Laced Boot, sizes 6 to 10	.75
Girls' Low Shoes, patent tip, sizes 11 to 2	.60
Child's Low Shoes, patent tip, sizes 8 to 10	.50
Child's Kid Button Boot, sizes 5 to 7, regular 75c	.50
Child's Strap Slippers, sizes 8 to 10	.50
Baby's Boots, fancy tops, sizes 3 to 7	.40

We have what you want. Call at once.

In all regular lines of Footwear we can show yon the LARGEST AND BEST VARIETY in this section of Canada at lowest prices.

The J. J. Haines SHOE HOUSES at Belleville, Napanee and Trenton

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE
FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

Daily Intelligencer.

TIMELY TOPICS.

"Fiat Justitia" writes: "I have noted what has been said in your paper recently with regard to the sale of the street railway rails on Front street, but hardly grasp the situation clearly. Is it not a fact that, some time ago, the City Council offered the rails for sale by tender, and is it not also a fact that they received offers of as high as $16 or more per ton for the rails? If my questions have to be answered in the affirmative, how can the City Council justify themselves in selling the rails to the Belleville Portland Cement Company for $10 per ton and a donation of $250? It seems to me that, before the agreement is signed and the rails turned over, the ratepayers of this city should have something to say in the matter. This city is not rich, and cannot afford to throw away a sum which must be in the neighborhood of $1000. I would like an answer to my question, if convenient."

• • •

Our correspondent is certainly right in his surmise that the Council offered the rails for sale by tender. It is also a fact that as high as $16.50 per ton was offered for the rails by Messrs. Langbort & Co., of Kingston. As to how the Council can justify themselves in selling the rails for $10 per ton when they have been offered $16.50, The Intelligencer can only offer as explanation the remark of an Alderman, that the reduction in price was a "bonus" to the cement people. And this may be a good place to point out that, in our opinion, this way of bonusing the cement works is to be deprecated. If the Council want to help the company along they should go to the people with the proposition of a cash offer, or the proposal to take a certain amount of stock. That might be done, and might be the correct idea, but we hesitate to approve of the action of our City Fathers in agreeing to sell rails for $10 per ton, for which they have been offered $16.50. It does not look like good business,

• • •

It will be a matter of regret to many people that Belleville is to lose a good citizen and the Council one of its most useful members in the person of Ald. Galbraith, who shortly leaves this city for Toronto, where he will go into business. Rev. Dr. Galbraith has been a painstaking and capable Alderman, and his departure will be a distinct loss to the City Council. His retirement from our municipal body will, of course, give aldermanic honors to the next highest candidate at the last election. It will be remembered that fifteen candidates were in the field last January. The eleventh man on the list was ex-Ald. J. F. Wills. The others in order were Messrs. Price, Rabbitts, Latimer and Grills.

• • •

HEARD AT THE BAND CONCERT.

"Did you hear that the Council was going to cut the shade trees down on some streets?"

"Why? What for?"

"Oh, the burdocks will soon be high enough to give all the shade necessary."

"If the roof of that bandstand was raised about six feet the music would sound better."

"I see the Court of Revision cut the Mayor's taxes down to the same old figure."

"Yes, the High Court at Toronto doesn't begin to rank with our Court of Revision."

"Wouldn't that be a lovely place over there for a public bath?"

"Don't talk about a public bath. Some of the Aldermen will hear you and have a fit."

Kidney Disease and Rheumatism

A STRONG RECOMMENDATION FROM A MAN OF SEVENTY YEARS WHO WAS CURED BY

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

Nearly everybody has a cure for rheumatism ready to recommend to his suffering friend, and on this account many a victim of this dreadful ailment keeps going from one treatment to another, and not using any one medicine long enough to obtain lasting benefit.

It is claimed by the best medical authority that rheumatism comes from derangements of the kidneys. Why not select the most effective treatment for kidney disorders, and give it a thoroughly good trial? Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are curing rheumatism every day, as is evidenced by the scores of letters we receive, which are similar to the one quoted below. It might be worth while for you to give this great medicine a chance to cure you.

Mr. Chas. Moorish, Dorchester Station, Middlesex Co., Ont., writes: "I desire to acknowledge to you the benefit I have received from Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. For about twelve months I could hardly walk, on account of being so crippled up with kidney derangements and rheumatism.

"I had tried many medicines without benefit, and, hearing of many being cured by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, I made up my mind to give them a trial. After having taken six boxes of this medicine in succession, I can truly say that I am in better health to-day than I have been for twenty years. The rheumatism pains have entirely disappeared, and I am well and hearty. As I am nearly seventy years of age, I consider my cure remarkable and, give all credit to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A W. Chase, the famous recipe book author, are on every box of his remedies.

Can Rule Waves Without Them.

London, July 3.—During the discussion of the navy estimates in the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. Arnold Forster, Secretary of the Admiralty announced that the admiralty did not intend to renew the existing subsidies for merchant ships which may be used in time of war, and that notice would be given April 1 next that the contracts would terminate a year from that date.

Probable New Judges.

Ottawa, July 3.—The name of Frank Denton is mentioned in connection with one of the judgeships in the new Exchequer Court Division of the High Court of Ontario. Many Liberal members strongly favor the appointment. The elevation of Mr. Champagne, M.P., to the bench as judge for the district of Pontiac is said to be likely.

Severe Fighting Reported.

Uskub, European Turkey, July 3.—Severe fighting is reported at Oskin, between Gievgyeli and Orumendja. No details have been received here.

Fire in Colorado.

Manitou, Col., July 3.—The Manitou House was burned yesterday, loss $100,000.

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

Dooley on the Medical Profession.

HENNESSY having expressed the opinion that Christian Science is all foolishness, "Well, sir, who can tell?" said Mr. Dooley. "If it wasn't f'r progress, I'd be sure the Christyan Scientists was wrong. But th' doctor who attinded me whin I was young 'd be thought as loonatical if he was alive to-day as th' mos' Christyan Scientist that iver rayjooced a swellin' over a long-distance tillyphone. He inthrajooced near th' whole parish into this life iv sin an' sorrow, he give us calomel with a shovel, bled us like a polis captain, an' niver thought anny medicine was good if it didn't choke ye goin' down. I can see him now as he come up dhrivin' an ol' gray an' yellow horse in a buggy. He had whiskers that he cud tie in a knot round his waist, an' him an' th' priest was th' on'y two men in th' neighborhood that carried a goold watch. He used to say 'twas th' healthiest parish in th' wurruld, barrin' hangin's an' thransportations, an' thim come in Father Hickey's province. Ivrybody thought he was a gr-reat man, but they wudden't lave him threat a spavin in these days. He was catch-as-catch-can, an' he'd tackle annything fr'm pneumony iv th' lungs to premachure baldness. He'd niver heerd iv microbes, an' nayther did I till a few years ago, whin I was tol' they was a kind iv animals or bugs that crawled around in ye like spiders. I see pitchers iv thim in th' pa-apers with eyes like pooched eggs, till I dhreamed wan night I was a hayloft full iv bats. Thin th' dock down th' sthreet set me r-right. He says th' microbes is a vigitable, an' ivry man is like a conservatory full iv millyons iv these potted plants.

"Well, that sounds all right, an' I sind f'r a doctor. 'Dock,' says I, 'me vilets ar-re thinnin' out, an' I feel as though I was full iv sage brush,' I say. Th' dock puts a glass chube in me mouth an' says, 'Don't bite it.' 'D'ye think I'm a glass eater?' says I, talkin' through me teeth like a Kerry lawyer. 'What's it f'r?' I says. 'To take ye'er timprachoor,' says he. About th' time I'm r-ready to sthrangle he removes th' chube. 'How high does she spout?' says I. 'Ninety-nine,' says he. 'Good hivens,' says I. 'Don't come near me, dock, or you'll be sun sthruck,' I says. 'I've just examined ye'er blood,' he says. 'Ye're full iv weeds,' he says. Be that time I'm scared to death, an' I say a few prayers, whin he fixes a hose to me chest an' begins listenin'. 'Annything goin' on inside?' says I. 'Tis ye'er heart,' says he. 'Glory be,' says I. 'What's th' matther with that ol' ingine?' says I. 'I cud tell ye,' he says, 'but I'll have to call in Dock Vinthricle, th' specyalist,' he says. 'I oughtn't be lookin' at ye'er heart at all,' he says. 'I niver larned below th' chin, an' I'd be fired be th' Union if they knew I was wurrukin' on th' heart,' he says. So he sinds f'r Dock Vinthricle, an' th' dock climbs me chest an' listens, an' thin he says, 'They'se something the matter with his lungs, too,' he says. 'At times they're full iv air an' again,' he says, 'they ain't,' he says. 'Sind f'r Bellows,' he says. Bellows comes and pounds me as though I was a roof he was shinglin', an' havin' accidentally hit me below th' belt, he sinds for Dock Laporatteny, an' th' Dock sticks his finger into me as far as th' knuckle.

"He shakes his head an' goes out iv th' room with th' others, an' they talk it over at tin dollars a minyit while I'm layin' there at two dollars a day—docked. Whin they come back, wan iv thim says, 'This here is a mos' inthrestin' case an' we must have th' whole class take a look into it,' he says. It means me, Hinnissy. 'Dock,' he says, 'ye will remove its brain. Vinthricle, ye will have its heart; an', Bellows, ye will take its lungs. As f'r me,' he says, 'I will add wan more vermiform appindix to me belt,' he says. 'Tis sthrange how our foolish predecessors,' says he, 'niver got on to th' dangers iv th' vermiform appindix,' he says. 'I have no doubt that that's what kilt Methusalem,' he says. So they mark out their wurruk on me with a piece iv red chalk, an' if I get well, I look like a rag carpet. Sometimes they lave things in ye, Hinnissy. I knowed a man wanst—Moriarty was his name, Tim Moriarty—an' he had to be hemstitched hurridly because they was goin' to be a ball game that day, an' they locked up in him two sponges, a saw, an' ice pick, a goold watch, an' a pair iv curlin'-irons belongin' to wan iv the nurses. He tol' me he didn't feel well, but he didn't think annything iv it till he noticed that he jingled whin he walked.

"That's what they do with ye nowadays, Hinnissy. Ivry time I go into Dock Cassidy's office, he gives me a look that makes me wisht I'd wore a suit iv chain armor. His eyes seem to say, 'Can I come in?' Between th' Christyan Scientists an' him, 'tis a question iv whether ye want to be threated like a loonytic or like a can iv presarved vigitables. Father Kelly says th' styles iv medicine changes like th' styles iv hats. Whin he was a boy, they give ye quinine f'r whativer ailed ye, an' now they give ye sthrychnine, an' nex' year they'll be givin' ye proosic acid, maybe. He says they're findin' new things th' matther with ye ivry day, an' ol' things that have to be taken out, ontil th' time is comin' whin not more thin half iv us 'll be rale an' th' rest 'll be rubber. He says they ought to enforce th' law iv assault with a deadly weepin' again th' doctors. He says that if they knew less about pizen an' more about gruel an' opened fewer patients an' more windows, they'd not be so manny Christyan Scientists. He says th' diff'rence between Christyan Scientists an' doctors is that Christyan Scientists thinks they'se no such thing as disease, an' doctors thinks there ain't annything else. An' there ye ar-re."

"What d'ye think about it?" asked Mr. Hennessy.

"I think," said Mr. Dooley, "that if th' Christyan Scientists had some science an' th' doctors more Christyanity, it wudden't make anny diff'rence which ye called in—if ye had a good nurse."

"I understand that Frallman has come to the conclusion to contest his wife's will." "Well, what is there courageous about that? She's dead, an't she?"—Richmond "Dispatch."

The Abuse of Nurses.

A young nurse of my acquaintance was found early one morning unconscious on the entry floor, says Mary Moss, in The May Atlantic. Upon inquiry the doctor learned that from Monday morning till Thursday night she had been without sleep, or even enough time off to bathe and change her clothes. Of course, she was extremely foolish to permit such a thing, on the patient's account as well as her own, but it was her first private case, and, feeling shy about obtruding personal wants in a time of general stress, she had relied on coffee and determination to pull her through. The stale joke, "Why, do you have to sleep? I thought you were trained!" unfortunately contains not a grain of exaggeration. I have gone to a house where, after a day's nursing, a night spent in sponging a typhoid patient, at 10 o'clock on the morning of the second day the nurse was still in charge. No one had given her night lunch, breakfast, or even a cup of coffee. She had been on duty for 26 straight hours, working strenuously all the time; not a member of the household seemed equal to taking her place, or, indeed, dreamt of the necessity of doing so. Later it was rumored that this girl had become intemperate!

Character in How You Smoke.

"Royal Magazine."

A MAN may possess a most secretive nature, he may have a face as destitute of meaning as a stone wall and a manner of speech absolutely non-committal; but watch him over his cigarette, note his manner of holding it between his lips or his fingers; see how he puffs the smoke out of his mouth, what he does with the ash, if he consumes the cigarette to a mere stump or throws it away half finished, and, sure as fate you will read his character like a book. Cigarette, I said, for a cigarette, and a cigar in a lesser degree, are much better character revealers than a pipe. A man sticks a pipe into the side of his mouth and puffs away, and there's an end of it. You discover next to nothing, unless, indeed, he happens to puff very violently, which is a certain indication of a nervous, irritable temper. From the filling of a pipe, to be sure, many luminous little hints may be gathered. You see a man stuff his bowl quickly and lavishly, letting loose threads of tobacco dangle over the brim while he applies the match; if he be not good-natured, generous to a fault, careless, indolent, quick to make friends, quick to forget them, I shall be much astonished. One notices men very often taking their cigars from an upper waistcoat pocket into which they have been stuffed. Too poor to buy themselves a cigar-case? Not a bit of it, but too untidy to keep one or too lazy to arrange their cigars into one. And the same men almost invariably bite the tips off their cigars, instead of using a penknife or a cigar-clipper—a shocking habit that not merely fills the mouth with tobacco grit, but disarranges the outer leaf, often spoiling an otherwise excellent smoke.

The cigar once happily prepared for smoking, observe how your man holds it between his teeth. But stay! The operation of lighting has also its interest. The tobacco epicure grips his cigar not merely with his teeth when applying the match, but with the finger and thumb of his left hand also, and between every third puff draws the weed from his mouth and examines the glowing end, in order to make sure that it has been ignited equally all round.

The majority of men hold their cigars with the front teeth and puff the smoke out on either side of it. A large minority hold them in the corner of the mouth, so that if you happen to be walking behind them on a dark night you catch sight of the glowing end protruding just below the ear. Others again—and these, as a rule, are persons of vivacious temperament—seldom keep their cigars for two consecutive moments between their lips. They take a few puffs, and then the cigar is given a rest between finger and thumb.

A man of determined character, energetic, pugnacious, impatient, often betrays himself by giving his cigar an upward tilt while consuming it—a favorite method with the Yankee, to whom the above epithets are distinctly applicable. The contemplative, dreamy individual will let it droop towards his chin; while level-headed persons—and fortunately they form the vast majority—hold theirs horizontally. Naturally insolent people frequently omit to remove the cigar from their mouths when speaking to you, while others of a sullen, brooding disposition chew the end into horrible pulp. And is there anything more eloquent of stinginess than the habit, largely indulged in by Germans, of sticking the stump of a cigar on the small blade of a penknife and consuming it until the glow almost touches the lips?

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

POPULAR TOURIST RESORTS

Muskoka Lakes	Lake of Bays
Kawartha Lakes	Georgian Bay
Orillia	Magnetewan River
Jackson's Point	Collingwood

Excellent train service making direct connection for all ports on Muskoka Lakes.

Special Excursion to Canadian North-West.

Tickets will be issued at reduced rates, good going July 4th, valid to return up to and including Sept. 8, 1903.

Special Reduced Rates are in effect for C. E. Convention, Denver, Col., July 9th to 13th. Tickets will be issued good going July 6th, 7th and 8th, valid for return arriving at destination on or before August 31st, 1903.

N. E. A. Convention, Boston, July 6th to 10th. Tickets good going July 2nd to 5th inclusive, valid for return, leaving Boston on or before July 12th.

For further information and descriptive literature of Summer Resorts in "Highlands of Ontario" apply to

U. E. THOMPSON, City Agent,
Bridge Street,
T. H. COPPIN, Depot Agent,
. C. McDONALD,
Dist. Pass Agt., Toronto.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY.

WILL RUN

Homeseekers' 60 DAY Excursions

To The Canadian North-West at Return Fares.

Winnipeg, Waskada Estevan, Elgin Arcola Moosomin, Wawanesa Miniota, Binscarth, Grand View Swan River	$28	Regina, Moosejaw, Yorkton,	$30
		Prince Albert Macleod, Calgary	$35
		Red Deer, Strathcona	$40

Going JUNE 4th, returning until AUGUST 4th (all rail or S.S. Athabasca). Going JUNE 18th, returning until AUGUST 18th (all rail or S.S. Athabasca). Going July 4th, returning until SEPTEMEBER 8th (all rail or S.S. Manitoba). Tickets are not good on "Imperial Limited." For tickets and pamphlet giving full particulars, apply to your nearest Canadian Pacific agent, or to

A. H. NOTMAN, Asst. Genl. Passr, Agent, 1 King St. East, Toronto.
S. BURROWS, C.P.R. and General Ticket Agent, Front St., Belleville.

NEW YORK CENTRAL & HUDSON RIVER R. R.

THE FOUR-TRACK TRUNK LINE.

SHORTEST Route to the United States via Cape Vincent, N.Y.

GOING EAST AND WEST.			After 1st May
Lv. Belleville (G.T.R.)		12.22 p.m.	1.30 a.m
Arr. Kingston	"	1.47 p.m.	3.12 a.m
Lv. Kingston (stage)		2.30 p.m.	5.00 a.m
Arr. CapeVincent (stage)		4.30 p.m.	7.00 a.m
Lv. Cape Vincent N.Y.C.		5.05 p.m.	7.25 a.m
Arr. Watertown	"	5.55 p.m.	8.25 a.m
Arr. Oswego	"	9.05 p.m.	11.55 a.m
Arr. Syracuse	"	9.25 p.m.	12.07 p.m
Arr. Rochester	"	1.05 a.m.	2.20 a.m
Arr. Utica	"	9.45 p.m.	12.35 p.m
Arr. New York	"	7.25 a.m.	6.00 p.m

Convenient train service in opposite direction.

Pullman Sleeping and Parlor Cars.

2c a Mile.

Books for 500 miles of travel on New York Central and leased lines within State of New York, cost only $10 while books for 1000 miles over New York Central, Boston & Albany, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, Philadelphia & Reading and C. R. R. of New Jersey cost $20. Secure further information and purchase tickets from F. A. Folger, N.Y.C. Agent, Kingston, Ont.

GEORGE H. DANIELS,
Gen'l Pass'r Agent.
New York.
A. H. SMITH, Gen'l Supt.,
New York.
G. C. GRIDLEY, Gen'l Agent,
Watertown, N.Y.

It takes a long time to tell of what you have not done.

Shoe Bargains

See our Bargain Tables for

Ladies' fineLow Shoes, regular price 75c & $1.00, now	50c
Ladies' Low Shoes, worth from $1.25 to $2.00, for	75c
Travellers Samples at greatly reduced prices.
Boys' Tan Boots, worth $1.25 to $2.50.	$1.00, $1.25 and $1.50
Men's Tan Boots per pair worth $3.00, $4.00, and $5.00.	$2.00
Misses' Box Calf, Button Boots, per pair sizes 11 to 2	60c
Children's Laced and Button Boots, per pair worth 75c and $1.00	60c
Infants' Boots and Slippers, per pair	25c
Infants' Gaiter Boots	25c

VERMILYEA & SON.

Choose

The Best

If it is only the framing of a picture you may as well have the best workmanship as well as the largest selection of mouldings—when it don't cost you any more, probably less.

If we do not give you perfect workmanship—you may demand of us non-payment—framing superior to ours is impossible—we would not do all of the framing for Albert College Art Students if our work were not fitting, and proper.

Another lot of new mouldings just arrived, it would surprise you to see the repeated shipments of mouldings we receive.

You know what to expect of us in WALL PAPERS, and now with our special prices it is amazing what you can get for a small amount of money.

A beautiful new line of American Wall Papers arriving almost all the time.

Better not forget us for PAINTING. Whether your house is to paint outside or inside, whether a fence or a barn, we will paint it at reasonable prices but our workmen are not of the Barn Painting Kind. None but expert workmen find employment with us, men who will please you in both quality and quantity and we have no frills on our prices.

We purpose doing our paper hanging and decorating and painting at actual cost in connection with our Wall Paper department.

If You Live in the Country.

In Stirling, Tweed, Madoc, Trenton, Napanee, Deseronto or within a radius of 50 miles—we will send you workmen and guarantee you every satisfaction.

Our Paints

If you want prepared paints we have them in all colors.

Also barn paint at $1.00 per gallon, but better than that we will mix you the best lead and oil paint, our own mixing and our own materials at the actual cost of the less valuable ready-mixed materials.

Any quantity you want any color or shade, in a moments notice and at remarkably low prices — our customers are many in the paint line.

C. B. Scantlebury

Belleville's Decorator,

Wall Paper Wholesale and Retail.

For the Revelsworth Millions,

—OR—

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fail by the Man She Loves.

her tan Suede gloves, and tapped at the door of Mrs. Harold Revelsworth's room.

"It is I, mother. May I come in?"

"Come in, carissima!"

The old lady was seated in her invalid-chair, and grasped the arms with restless skinny hands.

"You will meet that French fool in London, will you not, my darling?" was her first question.

"Yes. You know quite well I can't go about in London alone."

"No—you are too beautiful, my beloved one! But is it very wise, do you think, this whole journey? Suppose you should meet——"

"I don't care!" exclaimed Francesca, stamping her foot defiantly. "My position is secure enough now, Or at least"—she corrected herself, with a little laugh—"it will be soon."

"Thanks to your adoring mother!"

"Oh, yes," Francesca said carelessly—"I owe you a lot, I know!"

"And you will owe me more, my queen! You will owe it to me that you are a millionaire, that you can live as you please, as you have longed to all your life——"

"Are you going to begin reminding me of my obligations to you, madre mia?" the girl inquired scornfully. "Because the list is no doubt a long one, and I have a train to catch, and an idiot who is in love with me waiting at the other end."

"You are under no obligations to me," whimpered the old woman, while tears began to course down her shrivelled cheeks. "I only want a little love, a little tenderness from you——"

"And you shall have them when I have time!" retorted Francesca lightly. "Good-bye!"

Nodding gaily, she ran out of the room and tripped in light-hearted fashion down stairs and round the corner of the Green to where the Kingston-omnibus stood waiting.

"Five hours and a half—five hours and a half in London with you!"

It was Victor Revelsworth who uttered the words as he flew to the door of the compartment from the window of which he had perceived his cousin's lovely face peeping.

She gave him her hand as she stepped on to the platform; and every man in her vicinity turned with one accord to look again at her tall form and beautiful calm face, with that lurking smile in the eyes.

"Have you got the carriage?" she asked.

"But yes. And the clothes. Do you no seey. The frock-coat is as beautiful as the young gentleman's in the pattern-books."

"First," she said, as she slowly crossed the station by his side, towering above him in her large black hat, "we will go to the place I have heard so much about and longed to see all my life — Madame Tussaud's Waswork Show."

Victor stared at her and broke into a hearty laugh.

"But it is unheard of," he exclaimed, "that on a beautiful hot day in June two grown-up people should go and look at melting dollies in Madame Tussaud's! Let us rather drive to Richmond——"

"But Victor, you came to please me," she said, laying her hand persuasively upon his arm, "and you must do as I like. It is the desire of my heart to go to Madame Tussaud's. I particularly want to see the Chamber of Horrors and all the dreadful pictures. Years ago, when I was quite a little girl, my father talked to me about them.

Outside the station an elegantly-appointed victoria and pair awaited them, and into this Victor assisted his cousin.

"Enfin! Shall it be the dollies first of all," he inquired, laughing.

"No. First, it must be Regent Street, and a new bonnet and sunshade. You have provided yourself with money, as I suggested, of course?"

"Assuredly. I have been in correspondence with the German-Jewish Gentleman you told me of for some days, and he has at length provided me with a few shillings to play with."

As Victor spoke, he drew from his coat-pocket a leather pocket-book, fastened with an elastic band, tightly crammed with bank-notes.

"How much?" Francesca asked, her eyes sparkling at sight of the money.

"A hundred, to begin with."

She held out her hand.

"Half for me, please!"

"My love, it is all for you! Of what use is the money to me unless it gives you pleasure?"

"Half!"

Laughing, he counted out fifty pounds in bank-notes, and pressed them into her gloved hand. And Francesca fastened them into her purse.

It never once occurred to Victor that there was anything greedy or grasping in her actions. Whatever Francesca did was perfect in his eyes. As his brother Dudley had declared long since, Victor was one of those men fated to be a woman's humble and unquestioning slave; while, on the other hand, Francesca, by her imperial beauty and the faculty which she possessed in a marked degree of "keeping her head," was as certainly destined by nature to rule and to be obeyed.

On this particular day she was in the highest possible spirits. It was long, very long since she had had so much money to spend; luxury was as the breath of life to her, and to drive in a showy carriage in the Park attended by a man who palpably worshiped her, was to Francesca an experience the more delightful on account of the dulness and hardness of her recent existence.

There was very much about his cousin that Victor did not understand; but he was content to adore without understanding. He was only three-and-twenty, and by no means a man of the world. His sturdy healthy-minded English brother and his cherished little mother had moulded his youth since the death of his father, whose constant companion he had been until he reached the age of thirteen; he was by nature essentially good and kind, loyal and simple-hearted—treachery and deceit were unknown to him, and he was the least suspicious of men.

Such a man would be a wax in the hands of a woman of the world with whom he had fallen in love, and he was genuinely in love with his cousin Francesca. Few men are capable of such devotion as Victor's, in which the unselfish "calf-love" of the boy was blended with the jealous passion of the man. From the moment when he had first beheld her standing on the threshold of Revelsworth House in the late afternoon sunshine, she had never been absent many moments from his thoughts, and her image dominated his dreams. Her attitude towards him however had been chiefly one of passive acceptance of his actions, tempered by good-natured raillery.

"I am very fond of you," she would say, "and in time I may grow to love you—who knows? But meantime you are younger than I; and—and I don't approve of marriage between first cousins."

To a woman of Francesca's type it was not difficult to keep the young man on the rack of anxiety, half hopeful of winning, half dreading to lose her. So easily-snared a victim was scarcely worth the trapping. The difficulty she found in his case was the inducing him to abstain from all confidences concerning her to his mother or his brother. She knew how to show him unexpected little kindnesses and attentions which deeply touched him. For him she would manufacture a delicious iced fruit-syrup of American origin, which during his past few days of feverishness and general weakness had been the one thing for which he craved to alleviate the thirst which parched his throat. She allowed him to kiss her hands, and even on one or two occasions her soft fair cheek; but her lips she resolutely turned away. Above all, she would sometimes sit and thoughtfully regard him, with a look in her starry eyes which he could not fathom, but which thrilled his very soul—a that ended in a laugh. strange, triumphant, possessive look

But Victor had reached the stage described in that song which he so loved to sing to little Betty's accompaniment, thinking of Francesca while he sang—

"And all that I care for and all that I know
Is that, without wherefore, I worship thee so!"

After a dainty and extravagantly-priced little toque, composed of gold filagree, black ostrich tips, and a coronet of deep-red roses, had taken the place of Francesca's Black lace hat, and to alight before the building she so greatly longed to visit.

The nursemaids with children, the country cousins, and the folk whom a recent murder-trial had prompted to scrutinize the effigy of the murder and the blood-stained carving-knife with which he committed the crime, stared with a good deal of interest at Francesca as she swept through the galleries in her delicate silk gown and lace she had also bought a lace sunshade, two dozen pairs of gloves, several silk and muslin blouses, and some embroidered handkerchfies and bottles of scent, the coachman was given the direction, "Madame Tussaud's," and in a few minutes Victor was assisting his cousin blouse, the light from the glass roof streaming down upon the red rose-will go to a place I have heard about wreath which crowned her shining hair.

Of the groups of historical characters Francesca took but little notice, with the exception of the Tudors, in whom she appeared to be extremely interested.

"A splendid family!" she observed to Victor, who for his part knew very little about them. "They dared to be what they really were. Only Eastern rulers dare do that in these days."

"Mais, mon Dieu, it is excellent for all that our rulers do not dare now to cut off our heads and burn us alive when we offend them!" cried Victor.

"Too much fuss is made of the preservation of human life nowadays," Francesca returned cooly.

"But, enfin, you cannot admire this wicked old Elizabeth, who imprisoned her cousin Mary Stuart for years and killed her at last, all because she was prettier than she?"

"She had the power and her cousin stood in her way," observed Francesca. "But I often wonder she did not get rid of her more quietly. That beheading was a clumsy bungling business."

"Here, then, is a Tudor you cannot admire," exclaimed Victor—"Monsieur Bluebeard Henry VIII., who killed his wives! And here is yet another—that abominable Mary, who burned her subjects alive!"

"Burnings were popular entertainments for the masses at that time, you must remember. People went to them, and took the children, and something to eat and drink in a basket, and squatted down in the market-place and waited for the show, just as they would go to see fireworks now, or a public hanging not many years ago. Our philanthropic squeamishness is a thing of quite recent growth."

Victor looked at his cousin, puzzled, she did not seem to be jesting, and yet he would not believe her to be in earnest. His sensitive aesthetic nature shrank from the thought of cruelty, of brutal sights and sounds, and he not unnaturally imputed an equal delicacy to the lovely woman beside him.

"Heaven be praised," he exclaimed fervently, "we do not live in those days now!"

"No indeed we do not," she responded emphatically. "If a lodging-house slavery gets her ears boxed, or a filthy little Board-School child receives three strokes with a cane, the evening papers are full of hysterical gush on the subject, and 'Shocking Brutality to a child!' greets us on every boarding. In the sturdy old Tudor days, with the burnings and the persecutions, and wars and rebellions, it was the fittest who survived. But now we pet our pauper invalids, coddle our cripples, and send the hat round for criminals and lunatics, that they may have comfortable arm-chairs and light literature and the best of everything. Times have changed indeed!"

Victor did not like or understand the little scornful laugh with which his cousin finished her sentence Hearing this superb perfectly-developed woman sneering at her crippled fellow-creatures, and sighing for the old days when torture was a recognised form of public entertainment, taught him nothing however, for, in the first place, his reasoning powers were by no means acute, and, in the second, love so blinded his eyes that he would not and could not see her as she was.

"I don't like to hear you talk like that, my dear one, even in fun," was all he said. Francesca, with another laugh, proposed that they should adjourn to see the "silly people."

"But who, then, are the silly people?" Victor inquired.

"Criminals who have let themselves be found out and punished, my cousin," she replied; and, after the turnstile and the room dedicated to Napoleon, in whose personality Francesca expressed herself as greatly interested, they descended to the vault-like chambers in which the murders' effigies are to be found.

And here Francesca was disappointed. The figure of Marat, stabed in his bath, at which Victor could not even look, pleased her; the guillotined heads from life interested her greatly, and the guillotine-knife and some of the other relics engaged her attention for some moments. but the effigies themselves by no means met with her approval.

"They are such a common dowdy-looking lot of people," she complained, "and so extremely plain! Surely there must have been some superior looking people in England concerned in crime! If not, they might at least have put some picturesque-looking foreigners in to make the collection interesting!"

"But there are many foreigners already here. Listen to the names—Schmerfelat, Koczula, Pierri, Pianori, Muller, Orsini, Lipski, Kemmler, Gucteau, Pranzini——"

"And do you really mean to tell me," she exclaimed in disgust, "that, even includng Poles, Russians, Frenchmen, and Italians, they could not get together a better-dressed and better-looking set of people? It seems incomprehensible! Why not have shown Charlotte Corday, Ravaillac, Felton, Lady Rochester, Mary Stuart——"

"Mary Stuart?"

"Certainly kissing him 'Good-night,' and a few days later she married his murderer. Don't you call that criminal? And in Italian history we have had some splendid criminals."

"Splendid criminals!" Victor exclaimed. "I don't understand the two words together."

"My dear Victor," said Francesca, with a note of suppressed impatience in her voice, "there is not very much that you do understand! But I suppose even you hardly imagine that every one who has ever taken human life when it seemed advisable to do so was hideous and common-looking, and wore very bad clothes! Look at these faces! They are all abnormally ugly and wicked-looking. Let me stand by one of them, and then you will see in a moment how hideous they are!"

And, before he could stop her, she had sprung on to the raised stand upon which the short stumpy figure of a recently-executed murderess, attired in rusty black, wax-faced and was laughing down at it in assurance of the contrast afforded by her own superb beauty.

Victor burst into a peal of laughter. "Allons!" he cried. "We will have some fun! Up-stairs I have seen them all take the old gentleman with the snuff-box and the little old lady and the policeman for real. Keep you still! I will now ask this spectacled old gentleman who is coming if he knows who you are in the catalogue!"

Clearly the old gentleman in question was hurrying his three grandchildren who clung to his coat-tails, through the Chamber of Horrors, half inclined to think this portion of the exhibition too morbid for their tender years. His head was buried in his catalogue, and he was at some distance from where Francesca stood upon the dais, repressing her laughter, when Victor stepped up to him, and, concealing his own catalogue, gravely inquired the name of the tall woman's figure in the silk dress.

"It appears quite new, and seems to be added all lately," he explained in his strong French accent. "Can you oblige me infinitely and find for me the name?"

The old man raised a pair of thoughtful dreamy blue eyes behind tinted glasses to Victor's face.

"With pleasure, sir," he answered, with punctilious politeness. "Unfortunately my sight is not good, and this is the more to be deplored as I am a great student of physiognomy. The reading of character from the face should, in my opinion, form part of the education of every boy and girl in England. And it is for that reason I have brought my grandchildren here with me to-day, that they may learn from these casts—in many cases admirably executed, and counterfeiting——"

"Assuredly, monsieur, it is an excellent plan," put in Victor, afraid lest Francesca's immobility should break down under the old gentleman's verboseness. "But, in the case of this figure, the name of which I desire to know, there is no trace of wickedness in the countenance. She is, on the contrary, very beautiful."

At last the student raised his dreamy eyes to Francesca's face settled his spectacles, frowned, stared, frowned again, and consulted his catalogue in vain.

"There is no number to the figure," he said at last, "and it is clearly a new one—well modelled too, though the tint of the flesh is almost too white for nature. I should say, from the elaborate

(To be continued.)

Drainage

Sweat is the sewerage of the system.

The foot soles are among its chief outlets, and shoe soles should be its scavenger.

Accumulated sweat is an irritant poison—a sort of caustic which gnaws the foot, and burns the leather,

The RESILIA is the only shoe having a drainage system to carry off foot moisture as created.

In it the perspiration passes down through the porous leather insole, to the cross channels or sewers beneath, where it is carried off and dried up by contact with the air.

This prevents the concentration of sweat, and with the ventilating device keeps the feet dry, clean, hardy and healthy.

Observe cross channels in centre-sole.

THE RESILIA SOLE

"The Slater Shoe"

For Men and Women, $5.00 a pair.

Sole Agent

J. J. HAINES, BELLEVILLE.

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE

FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK

Prince Edward Island

POTATOES

First-class Stock

$1.50

Per Bag.

J. C. Hanley & Co.

GROCERS

Telephone 214

Goods We Have

at Right Prices

—Hammocks.
—Fishing Tackle.
—Tennis Goods.
—Golf Goods.
—Lacrosse Goods.
—Base Ball Goods.
—Screen Doors and Windows.
—Fruit Jars.
—Fruit Jar Rubbers.
—Wall Paper.
—Crystal Glass Vases.
—Glass Ware.
—Dinner Sets.
—Toilet Sets.
—Ladies' Hose.
—Ladies' Vests.
Everything in smallwares.

AT THE BEE HIVE

Chas. N. Sulman

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines, or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY

CAPITAL

10,000 Shares 7 per cent Cumulative Preferred Stock, par value $100 each, $1,000,000
50,000 Shares Common Stock, par value $100, issued and fully paid 5,000,000
TOTAL CAPITALIZATION $6,000,000

Issues of $1,000,000 00 7 p.c. Preferred Stock in 10,000 Shares of $100 each at par.

This stock is preferred both as to Assets and Dividends.

The shares are entitled to cumulative preferred dividends from the net earnings of the Company, at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable half yearly on the first days of April and October. They may, at the option of the holder, be exchanged for common shares. They are subject to be called in, in whole or in pace, by the Company, at $115,00 per share, at any time after 1st January, 1909.

The total issue of Preferred Stock is only $1,000,000.00, the whole of which is now offered.

Subsriptions for 10,000 Shares of $100 each of the 7 per cent. Preferred Stock of the CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY will now be received at par, that is $100 Share, as follows

per cent on application,
25 " " on allotment,
35 " " 30 days thereafter.
35 " " 60 days thereafter.

One share of Common, par value $100, given with each share of preferred.

The whole of instalments remaining unpaid at any time may be prepaid in full. A discount of one per cent will be allowed upon the par of each share if prepaid at time of allotment

Notice of allotment will be sent promptly by ordinary letter.

COAL

PROPERTY IN FULL OPERATION

Company owns 9,600 acres of coal property known throughout the coal trade as the New Campbellton Colliery, located on Bras D'Or Bay, County of Victoria, Cape Breton, Novia Scotia. Mine is fully equipped, producing and marketing tons of coal a day at a net profit of $1.00 a ton. Improvements are now being made that will increase the output to over 1,000 tons a day. On present output, figuring 300 working days in year, the net result will more than pay interest on entire issue of preferred, with output of 1,000 tons a day net result will be $300,000 per annum.

IRON

RICHEST ORE IN THE WORLD

Company owns in fee simple, free and clear of all incumbrances, 4000 acres of iron ore deposit, located Natashquan (tidewater) situated on North shore of Gulf of St. Lawrence, in the County of Saguenay, province of Quebec.

Deposits contain 20,000,000 tons of ore ABOVE SEA LEVEL ALONE.

Quality of ore is highet ever discovered, running from 69 per cent to 72 per cent in metallic iron.

More orders for the sale of this ore has been received by the Company than can possibly be accepted, and at a price netting the Company a profit of $2 a ton F. O. B. vessels at Company's docks.

Send for prospectus giving full information as to earnings, reports, etc., etc.

Address all communications and send subscriptions to

COLONIAL SECURITIES CO.,
62 Wall Street New York City

OR

W. L. MARSTON & COMPANY
110 State Street, Boston

The SAWYER COMPANY.

351 Temple Building, Montreal, Canada.

THE

Intelligencer Bindery

MAKES A SPECIALTY OF

Ledgers, Journals, Cash Books,

And all descriptions of

Blank Account Books

Mailing Tubes

Gold Lettering on Leather Goods, &c.

MAGAZINES,
ART WORKS,
PERIODICALS,
SERIAL NUMBERS

NEATLY BOUND

Map Mounting & Varnishing

☞ Estimates cheerfully furnished for every class of work.

ADDRESS—

The Intelligencer

— BELLEVILLE, ONT.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Measurement Noopareil—12 lines to th inch.

Display advertisements, 10c per line.
Subsequent consecutive insertions, ne.
Reading advertisements, 15c per line.
Preferred position, 20 per cent. advance upon usual or contract rates.
Minimum space, 10 lines.
Marriages and deaths, 50c each insertion.
Births, 25c each insertion.
Rates for Condensed Advertisement will be found in 1st column of 2nd page.
All advertisements are subject to the approval of the Publisher of the Intelligencer.
Address all communications to the Intelligencer Printing & Publishing House Limited, or to Charles J. Bowell, Managing Director and Treasurer.
Canadians in London will find The Intelligencer on file at E. & J. Hardy & Co.'s Office, 30 Fleet Street, London, E. C.

CONDENSED ADVERTISEMENTS

SITUATIONS WANTED, HELP WANTED, LOST OR FOUND, FOR SALE OR TO RENT, &c

(Auction Sales not included in this list)

TERMS.—Twenty-five words or less, 25c first insertion; two insertions, 50c; four insertions, 75c; one week $1.00, two weeks, $1.75, three weeks, $2.25; one month, $2.50. Strictly cash in advance.

WANTED.

Help Wanted.—Good pay for spare time of intelligent men and women. No Canvassing. A Stegman, 429 La-Salle Ave., Chicago. jy2-6td

Don't pay rent!—$6.00 per month buys a $1,000 house (anywhere); your own selection. No interest charged. Absolutely co-operative. Best plan ever offered. Write for prospectus. We want representatives in all towns. Liberal inducements Canadian Home Builder's Association, Manning Chambers, Toronto. 6td

$1950 made by one man last year selling our household necessities. Did you make as much? Try our lines. Always selling. Write G. Marshall & Co., London, Ont. 2

Agents wanted, $2.50 per day. Apply Cooper, London, Ont. s27-1y

Young men ambitious to learn lucrative trades, of which there are eight in connection with the business. Apply The Belleville Hardware Company, Belleville, Ont. a7dtf

FOR SALE OR TO-LET.

Stone house, 11 rooms, coal furnace, stable, barn. Large grounds. Cor. Frank and Moira Sts. north. Terms reasonable. H. Bull, on premises or Fred Bull, 133 Yonge St., Toronto. Terms easy. ap18-dtf

FOR SALE.

That splendid property on the south east corner of Dunbar and Catharine Sts. City water and sewer connection. m28-4w

Dressed and Matched Lumber of all kinds, at ALFORD'S factory, Market Square. j12-tf

Contractors and masons, any any person requiring lime may procure it from E. G. STAPLEY, Canifton Road, Belleville. New lime always on hand. a9-d&w6m

TO RENT

A house on Moira street containing 8 rooms. All modern conveniences. Possession on or before 20th July.—Adam Henry. dtf

Wall Paper

At first sight of our Wall Papers you will say there's an attractiveness about them that puts them lengths ahead of other lines.

IN STOCKING

we select only the best, we have no "shelf warmers" all our Papers are quick sellers. If you choose your Papers from us you have best value for the price obtainable anywhere.

Painting, Paperhanging and Decorating done on shortest notice by best workmen in the city.

JOHN CORNELIUS.

3 Doors South of Intelligencer Office.

Western Beef.

Prime Western Beef together with all kinds of choice meats, supplied by the district, at

C. GREEN'S

267 Front St., 'Phone 109.

Flowers & Vegetables

Of all kinds in season.

...AT...

J. D. COLLIP'S.

'Phone 205.

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines, or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

Coin Pay Envelopes at The Intelligencer Job Office. Cheapest and best in the city.

THE HOME COMERS.

DR. W. H. DRUMMOND'S INSPIRING VERSES IN HONOR OF THE OLD BOYS.

The following grandly inspiring verses were read at the Old Boys' reception in Toronto yesterday, by the author, Dr. W. H. Drummond, of Montreal:

"O, mother, the bells are ringing as never they rang before,
And banners afloat are flying, and open is every door;
And down in the streets are thousands of men I have never seen,
But friendly are all the faces—O, mother, what can it mean?"

"My little one," said the mother, "for many long weary years—
Through days that the sunshine mocked at and nights that were wet with tears—
I have waited and watched in silence too proud to speak, and now
The pulse of my heart is leaping, for the children have kept the vow;

"And there they are coming, coming, the brothers you never knew,
But, sightless, my ears would know them, so steady and firm and true,
Is the tramp of men whose fathers trod where the wind blows free
Over the heights of Queenston, and willows of Chateauguay.

"For, whether it be a thousand, or whether a single man—
In the calm of peace, or battle, since ever the race began,
No human eye has seen it—'tis an undiscovered clime,
Where the feet of my children's fathers have not stepped and beaten time.

"The dweller upon my threshold had vaunted, and jeered, and cried,
'The pledge of your offspring's birthright, your children have swept aside;
They cumber the land of strangers, they dwell in the alien's tent,
Till home is a word forgotten, and love but a vow unbent.

"'Planners and builders of cities (were ever such men as these?),
Councillors, guides and moulders of the strangers' destinies—
Conquerors, yet are they conquered, and this is the word and sign;
You boast of their wise seed-sowing, but the harvest they reap is mine.

"Ah! little the stranger knew me, this mocking, but friendly foe,
The youngest mother of nations, how could the stranger know
The faith of the old, grey mother, her sorrows and hopes and fears?—
Let her speak when her sons are tested, like mine, for a thousand years.

"Afar in the dim savanna when the dawn of the spring is near,
What is it wakes the wild goose, calling him loud and clear?
What is it brings him homeward, battered and tempest torn?
Are they weaker than birds of passage, the children whom I have born?

"Nay! the streets of the city tremble with the tread that shakes the world,
When the sons of the blood foregather and the mother flag flies unfurled—
Brothers are welcoming brothers, and the voices that pierce the blue
Answer the enemy's taunting — and the children of York are true.

"Wanderers maybe, traitors never! By the scroll of their fathers' lives,
The faith of the land that bore them and the honor of their wives.
We may lose them, our own strong children, blossom and root and stem,
But the cradle will be remembered, for home is aye home to them."

SOMETHING NICE FOR SUNDAY.

Now that the hot weather is on the great problem with the housekeeper is what can we have to eat?

We are ready to help you out in this matter and give you a few things to choose from.

A brick of our famous Neapolitan Ice Cream or any other kind you may wish.

A full line of bakery goods.

Weston's home-made bread.

Ripe Tomatoes, Peaches, Plums, Bananas and Oranges.

Plenty of nice sweet cream from the City Dairy Co., Toronto. Price 40c per quart.

ED. F. DICKENS.

Wedding rings in St. Kilda used to be made of worsted.

SORE THROAT AND HOARSENESS with their attendant dangers may be speedily averted and remedied by the use of Polson's Nerviline. Excellent to gargle with—ten times better than a mustard plaster, and more convenient for the outside. Nerviline penetrates the tissues instantly, soothes the pain, allays inflammation, and cures sore throat and hoarseness, simply because that's what it is made for. The large (25 cent bottle of Nerviline is unexcelled as a household liniment. It cures everything.

The turkey does not tell the fox the way to her nest.

PAINFUL CORNS RELIEVED

THE MAGIC TOUCH OF FOOT ELM DOES THE WORK.

There is no need to hobble round suffering agony with corns. Sprinkle Foot Elm in your shoes, and you'll be surprised how quickly relief will come, and bye and bye the corns will disappear. It is the simplest, surest method of preventing corns you ever tried. Price, 25 cents a box of 18 powders, at druggists or by mail. B. F. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville. Be sure you get "Foot Elm."

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

Store Closed Every Wednesday During July and August at 12 O'Clock Noon.

REMNANT SALE

For many summers this announcement has meant much, both to the ladies and to ourselves.

Bringing to the ladies money saving offerings in seasonable goods—clearing up our stocks.

Our busiest season just past--a greater collection of remnants and oddments are on hand—all marked at very low prices. We anticipate this greater success than ever in our efforts.

Friday, July the third, is the date of commencement.

Realizing the benefits of a good beginning we have arranged some very special offerings for this day. Items which should bring every lady to our store in the morning. All seasonable and marked at prices which for value giving we have never defeated.

Read these items and be on hand for your portion.

Wash Goods Specials

Never before have we shown or sold such great quantities of wash goods of all kinds.

Not only the excellent patterns and qualities but our low prices have been a great factor in the season's success.

Good values at our regular prices. This sale makes an offering which should appeal to all who have a taste for dainty wash garments. Read on,

—Fine colored muslins—mostly this season's patterns—a few of last, but you could not tell the difference — all fine qualities regular 12c, 15c, 20c, 25c for 8c

—Colored New York Challies — patterns for Waists, Dresses and Wrappers—fast colors. Regular price 25c, we purchased a quantity to sell, at 12½c, a few are left — on sale for, per yard 10c

—Oddments left from our fancy collar assortment —newest styles, regular 35c and 40c for 25c

Half Price Millinery

The reception accorded this season to the many beautiful creations produced in our workroom has been of great satisfaction—to us.

Clearing time has arrived. The colored varieties must go at once so we place them on sale at Half Price.

Not an undesirable one among them—as pretty as we have sold this season. But its getting late, so this great reduction.

—Fine White and Cream Ostrich tips, were 75c for 25c

—All our Straw Sailors - priced as high as $2.00 a piece for 25c

—Untrimmed shapes—very newest styles— the remainder of a large assortment were from 85c to $2.00, selling at 25c, 50c, ... 75c

CLOTHING HISTORY

Although our 20th century brand made-to-measure garments have not had a very long lite, they have had—what is most important—a successful one.

A few enterprising men seeing the field for this new departure in custom tailoring, started an establishment. Not only started it but started it right. Employing only the very best New York designers and cutters at large salaries.

The wholesale feature reducing the cost but leaving the FIT, STYLE and workmanship equal to any tailored garments procurable these at once sprang into favor with many of the best dressers in our large cities.

We are sole agents for this firm here and have a range of samples in all the latest materials from which we can have suits made at prices, which will surprise you

Many of the best dressers in our city are wearing this clothing. If you would like to realize the saving they have on your next suit come in. See our window disply.

—A choice collection of samples for summer suitings to choose from We guarantee satisfaction in every way .... $7.50 to $20.00

—A stylish rain coat made to your measure from latest and best materials, from $10.00 to $25.00

Underpriced Linens

To house keepers who are admirers of fine linen, a chance like this comes but seldom.

To purchase best qualities and newest designs at prices which would generally obtain but the poorest.

Our spring sale left a number of damaged cloths with us—some only stained others with small holes. These go to add to our sale attractions.

A glance at the prices below will apprise you of the early visit advantages.

—100 damaged table cloths, lengths 1¼ to 2¾ yds.

up to $1.50 for 75c.
up to $2.00 for $1.00.
up to $2.75 for $1.50.
up to $3.00 for $2.00.

Agents for Standard Patterns.

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

CLOTHING BOUGHT HERE PRESSED FREE OF CHARGE

Everything

Is Thoroughly Good

That's certain, at QUICK & ROBERTSON'S—we are more particular about giving than you are in getting it perhaps.

But there are other reasons why you should buy at this store where quality is the first consideration.

We not only make goodness certain by applying every known test for quality, but are equally as careful to price that goodness as common as the ordinary sorts are priced elsewhere.

HERE are a few suggestions of summer fixin's that should interest men and mothers of boys.

FOR BOYS.

Vacation Suits and other wear, things that after good hard wear show the difference between our good sorts at our common prices and cheap sorts, which cost a little less.

—Regulation Sailor Blouse Suits, Cheviot mixtures, stripes and serges. .... $1.25 to $4.50

—Norfolk Jackets, single and double-breasted suits for older boys, extensive showing of plain and fancy mixtures .... $2.00 to $5.00

—Washable Sailor Suits 50c to $1.50.

—Wash Waists and Blouses, 25c to $1 00.

FOR MEN.

—SUMMER SUITS—Such as are impossible to obtain except at the best custom tailors—perfect fitting, stylish garments, suited to men who want the out-of-the-ordinary sorts. Homespuns, Tropical Serges, Worsteds and Flannels.......................... $3.75 to $12.00

—OUTING TROUSERS $1.00 to $4.00.

—NEGLIGE SHIRTS—In stripes and patterned materials, such as custom shirt makers would show you as their newest—plain or plaited bosoms.......... 50c to $1.50

—STRAW HATS—Every one new, the largest assortment of the smartest shapes the best makers have produced.

Sailors, in low crown .... 50c to $2.00

Panama shape, the right ones .... 75c to $2.50

QUICK & ROBERTSON

Here is where you buy Johnston's Clothing for Men and Boys.

Charcoal Irons

are the correct thing for you to do your summer ironing. Without heating up the whole house.

Special value

$1.50

Charcoal

the best hardwood Charcoal put up in paper sacks,

15c ea.

25c FOR TWO.

The W. W. CHOWN Company, Limited.

Exclusive Agents.

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

At Wallbridge & Clarke's

Seasonable Supplies

Montserrat Lime Juice
Raspberry Vinegar (Crosse & Blackwell's)
Gurd's Ginger Ale & Soda Water
Apollinaris and Radnor Water
Pabst Milwaukee Lager.

Clarets and Sauterne

Barton & Guestier's Bordeaux Clarets
Barton & Guestier's Bordeaux Sauterne
Nath. Johnston's Clarets
Rhine Wine and Burgundy
Light Canadian Wines—Red or White

Canned Meats

New Packs. Finest Quality.

Whole Ox Tongues
Lunch Tongues
Lamb's Tongues
Boned Chicken
Boned Turkey
Boned Duck
Pate de foie
Potted Ham
Potted Tongue
Sliced Dried Beef
Ham Loaf
Veal Loaf
Chicken Tamales
Lunch Beef
Lunch Bacon
Chicken, Ham & Tongue
Pigs Feet
Jellied Tenderloins
Vienna Sausages
Luncheon Sausages
Baked Beans—Plain or in Tomato or Chili Sauce, etc., etc., etc.

Camp & Picnic Supplies

Essence of Coffee—Patterson's, Symington's or Crosse & Blackwell's.
Condensed Milk, Evaporated Cream, etc.
Fancy Biscuits
Fine Old Cheese
Pickles and Sauces
Fine Teas and Coffee
Soups and Vegetables
French Sardines
New Pack Lobster and Shrimps
Salmon, Scallops, Tunny Fish, etc.

WALLBRIDGE & CLARKE

Bridge St.—Tel. 139.
Branch store Front St.—Tel. 157.

Dickens - Denyes.

On the 24th of June, at the parsonage, Plainfield, by the Rev. H. Thomas, Mr. James C. Dickens, of the township of Rawdon, to Miss Alexandra May Denyes, of the township of Thurlow.

Miss Denyes is a graduate in music of Albert College, and for a number of years has faithfully and efficiently filled the position of organist in the Bethel Church of the Plainfield Circuit. She has also been an active member of the circuit auxiliary of the Woman's Missionary Society, and a careful and persevering Secretary of the Forward Movement for Missions.

Miss Denyes will be greatly missed in the church and neighborhood in which she has been held in the highest esteem, and has commanded the respect of all. Her new home is in Rawdon, where, as a member of the Eggleton Society of the West Huntingdon Circuit, her church life and influence, it is hoped, will be more useful and effectual than at Bethel. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Dickens good success in every way, and long life and happiness.—Com.

HIS LAST HOPE REALIZED.

[From the Sentinel, Gebo, Mont.]

In the first opening of Oklahoma to settlers in 1889, the editor of this paper was among the many seekers after fortune who made the big race one fine day in April. During his traveling about and afterwards his camping upon his claim, he encountered much bad water, which, together with the severe heat, gave him a very severe diarrhoea which it seemed almost impossible to check, and along in June the case became so bad he expected to die. One day one of his neighbors brought him one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a last hope. A big dose was given him while he was rolling about on the ground in great agony, and in a few minutes the dose was repeated. The good effect of the medicine was soon noticed and within an hour the patient was taking his first sound sleep for a fortnight. That one little bottle worked a complete cure and he cannot help but feel grateful. The season for bowel disorders being at hand suggests this item. For sale by all druggists.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Board of Management of Albert College was held on Tuesday. The reports presented were exceedingly encouraging and satisfactory. All the members of the faculty were re-appointed for the next year.

BUILDING.

R. McPherson, late foreman with Thos. Hanley, continues the same business at the same stand, executing, in first-class style, orders for Church and Office Furniture, Mantels, Grills, Artistic effects, etc. Carving to the trade a specialty. Will form class for instructions in carving. j8d&w1m

DEATH OF MR. C. RAINBOW.

TOOK PLACE AT THE HOSPITAL AT FIVE O'CLOCK YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Universal regret and surprise was expressed last evening when it became known that Mr. Charles Rainbow had passed away. On Monday the deceased was apparently in his usual health and in the evening was in attendance at Mizpah Lodge, I.O.O.F. During the night he was taken with inflammation of the bowels, and continued to grow worse. On Wednesday he was removed to the hospital and a specialist from Toronto summoned to consult in his case. His condition was such that the idea of an operation was abandoned. Mr. Rainbow rapidly grew worse, and at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon his spirit took flight.

Charles Rainbow was born at Greenfield, England, on November 1st, 1851, being thus in his 52nd year. When a young man he came out to this country and for the past 25 years had been a resident of Belleville. For 20 years he had been a trusted employee of Mr. H. Corby, ex-M.P., whose family, with our citizens generally, deeply regret his demise. Deceased had been for 25 years a member of Mizpah Lodge, I.O.O.F., occupying the various offices and was also a member of Quinte Encampment. He was a member of St. Thomas' Church. Of Mr. Rainbow it can be truthfully said that he was universally esteemed, apparently having no enemies.

A widow and two sons, Charles and Samuel, both of New York, survive. To them will be extended the sincere sympathy of everybody.

SATURDAY NIGHT SALE.

Notice the two sales the Oak Hall are having Saturday night from 7 to 10 o'clock. About 50 doz. boys' and men's shirts to be cleared at 25cts. and over fifty men's suits, $5 to $7 to be sold at $3.90. See north window for shirts and south window for sample of the suits. Saturday night only.

A Good Appointment.

The Kingston Whig says: "Dr. Robert G. Moore, a recent graduate of Queen's Medical College, has just been appointed house surgeon of the Norwegian Lutheran Deaconess Home and Hospital in Brooklyn. A Brooklyn paper states that he is the youngest doctor to receive such a position in that city. Lately he has been acting as assistant in the institution." Dr. Moore's many friends in this, his native city, will rejoice to hear of his success in his chosen profession.

Rev. Mr. Baker's New Charge.

The Rev. E. N. Baker, M.A., D.D., left Stratford on Tuesday to enter the pastorate of Broadway Tabernacle, Toronto. The Stratford Herald of the 27th inst. has a lengthy account of a farewell given to him at a congregational tea, at which Mr. Baker was presented with a cabinet of costly china and an address replete with encomiums of the results of Mr. Baker's four years in the Central Church of that city.

Miss Edna Baker was also presented with a certificate of life membership in the Woman's Missionary Society in memoriam of her mother; also as a tribute to her worth and work in the church.

Married in Ameliasburg.

A pretty house wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Wilson, of Rednersville, when their only daughter, Miss Maud, was united in marriage to Mr. William Elliott, son of Mr. Robert Elliott, of Tyendinaga. The charming young bride, who was prettily attired in a gown of white silk, with bridal veil, entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. Miss Ida Elliott, sister of the groom, who was attired in white organdie and carried white roses, assisted the bride. Miss Flossy Weese, cousin of the bride, acted as flower girl. The groom was assisted by Mr. John Wilson, brother of the bride. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. O. McArthur, in the presence of a large number of friends of the contracting parties, under an arch of evergreens and cut flowers. After partaking of a sumptuous repast the happy couple left mid showers of rice on the midnight train for the west, taking with them the best wishes of a host of friends. The popularity of the bride was evinced by a large number of handsome and costly presents. On their return they will reside in Ameliasburg.

UNNECESSARY TO SUFFER FROM ASTHMA.

This distressing complaint can be perfectly cured by inhaling Catarrhozone, a vegetable antiseptic that destroys the germs which cause the disease. Catarrhozone is inhaled at the mouth from a convenient pocket inhaler, and after permeating the minutest air cells, is exhaled slowly through the nostrils. It stops the cough, makes breathing regular, and eradicates the asthma so thoroughly from the system that it never returns. Don't suffer from asthma, use Catarrhozone; it will speedily cure you. Large outfit $1.00. Small size 25 cents. Druggists or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

PRAISE FOR THE OLD FORTY-NINTH REGIMENT.

KINGSTON PAPER, IN ITS CAMP NOTES, PUBLISHES SOME INTERESTING FACTS.

The Kingston News and Times, in its notes of the Barriefield camp, has the following to say of the 49th Hastings Rifles:

The 49th Regiment possesses the oldest individual company in the Canadian militia; its No. 1 company known as the Old Belleville Rifles having been organized in 1836.

The strongest and best officered regiment in camp is the 49th.

The only carbon light in camp is that in the service of the 49th Regiment. It is a most valuable addition to the corps and represents the skill and handiwork of Lieut. G. L. Scott, of Stirling.

A programme of military athletic sports has been arranged to come off at an early date, the representative of the 49th Regiment on the games committee is the Rev. Mr. Thompson, its chaplain.

Lieut.-Col. Elliott, Major Gordon and Captains Campbell and Griffiths, 97th Regiment, Algonquin Rifles, have joined the 49th's mess and speak highly of the establishment.

There are a number of fine-looking companies in the 49th Regiment, and the Mohawk Company from the Indian Reserve at Deseronto is one of them; it contains several members of the famous Chief Brant's descendants within its ranks.

In the centre of the officers' tent is a large silver tankard won by the 49th Regiment from the 48th National Guards, August 11th, 1878, by a score of 455 points to 441. The American Regiment were the winners of the famed Nevada badge. On top of the small tankard are Canadian and American flags crossed, which shows the trophy was international. There is also a beautiful candelabra won by the regiment from the Grand Trunk Rifle Brigade in 1868.

NOTORIOUS CANADIAN DIES IN ST. LOUIS, MO.

STORY OF A SHADY LIFE, WHICH WAS FILLED WITH MANY ADVENTURES.

New York, July 2.—There died recently a notorious Canadian, who, though born in Canada, lived in the United States most of his life. He was Dr. Francis Tumblety.

His Rochester heirs are trying to get possession of a large sum of money that he left in the hands of Henry Clews & Co., bankers of this city. He died in St. Louis recently without leaving a will or making any provision for the disposal of the money. Michael H. Fitzsimmons, who was appointed temporary administrator of the estate, has begun a proceeding for an order directing the banking firm to turn over to him the money, that he may control it in the interest of the Rochester claimants.

This proceeding recalls something of the career of a man who was known in many cities, and who was more or less of a mystery to those who came in contact with him. Dr. Francis Tumblety was born in Canada. His family moved to Rochester when he was very young. His education was meagre and it was often said that he received his medical degree while working in a drug store on the banks of the Erie canal. He left Rochester with a nostrum for clearing the complexion, and just before the Civil war began to make thousands of dollars out of it.

He was in Washington at the time Secretary Stanton of the War department discovered a plot of one Dr. Blackburn to infect the north with smallpox. Dr. Tumblety was arrested on suspicion of being concerned in the plot, but was exonerated.

In 1888 he went to England. While he was there the work of Jack the Ripper in the Whitechapel district began. For some reason, probably because he was a self-avowed woman-hater, he was arrested on suspicion. He was admitted to bail and returned to this country, followed by Scotland Yard men. He was entirely cleared of the charge. He lived in New York for a time and then moved to Buffalo. From there he went to New Orleans, where he lived for many years in the French quarter on Royal street, in a small room, dirty and meanly furnished.

While in New Orleans he was arrested on a charge of robbing a man named Henry Govan. He claimed to be a British subject. The British consul came to his defence, and the case was dropped. Here, as in all other cities where he remained for any length of time, he was known as a night prowler and a misogynist. He was often seen on the streets after midnight, and about two years ago was assaulted one morning about three o'clock on the street in New Orleans, and robbed of his diamonds.

He died in St. John's Hospital in St. Louis a few days ago. It is believed besides the sum of money on deposit with the New York bankers, which is variously estimated at from $73,000 to $138,000, he left other property that has not yet been traced.

AUCTION SALE

Livery barn, horses, carriages, sleighs, harness, robes, rugs, blankets, stable utensils, etc., Saturday, July 4, Pinnacle street, Belleville, 1 o'clock sharp. H. L. CURRY, owner. J. G. DAVISON, auctioneer. 2-3

I Coughed

Sixty years of cures have taught us what Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will do. We know it's the greatest cough remedy ever made. And you will say so after you try it. There's cure in every drop. 25c., 50c., $1.00. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Case Adjourned.

The charge of larceny preferred against Jas. Fox, John Moore and Wm. Hamilton, occupied the attention of the Magistrate all day yesterday. The case was not concluded and an adjournment for a week was made. The accused were all allowed out on bail.

Extending Double Track On Grand Trunk.

The Grand Trunk have given out a contract for the construction of another section of their mane line on the Middle Division between Sarnia Tunnel and Hamilton, the successful contractors being Messrs. Ross & McCrae, who have done much railway building in Canada. The contract embraces that portion of the main line lying between Sarnia Tunnel and Kingscourt Junction—a distance of 22 miles, and the work will be contiued eastward through Strathroy, London, Ingersoll and Woodstock.

The work of completing the second track on the Western Division between Port Huron and Chicago is progressing very favorably, and the total distance between Montreal and Chicago over the main line will be completed within a comparatively short time. There are only some 65 miles to be finished on the western Division, and but a few miles between Toronto and Port Hope, and the line between Toronto and Niagara Falls is completed.

REASONABLE PANT REASONS.

If there is any reason why you should wear pants, there is every reason why you should buy them off Quick & Robertson. If you are particular about the kind of cloth that goes in them, particular about the cut and make, or particular about how much change you will have left, then we can satisfy you. At present we are offering over 300 pairs pants bought from a manufacturer at greatly reduced prices. We have divided them into two lots, $1.50 pants for $1.00, and $1.75 and $2.00 pants for $1.25.

Married on Dominion Day.

A quiet wedding took place on Dominion day at the parsonage of Holloway Street Church, when Alexander Carr, of Picton, and Lydia Kinneer, of Hillier township, Prince Edward County, were married. Rev. J. R. Real was the officiating minister. The couple were attended by Mr. Stewart Kinneer and Miss Mary Kinneer.

In the Justice Shop.

Dog Cases.

A number of citizens were summoned to-day before the Magistrate charged with neglecting to register their canines. Some of the cases were dismissed, the owners having taken out licenses and a few were ordered to take out licenses and pay costs.

1,000 ISLANDS AND ROCHESTER.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian" leave Belleville for Thousand Islands at 3.25 p.m., daily except Mondays. Fare $1.00. Returning Str. leaves at 11.39 p.m. for Rochester, N.Y. m26d&w3m

Sports and Pastimes

SPORTING NOTE AND COMMENT.

The Oxford-Cambridge Lacrosse team are doing about as well in Canada as the Canadian football team did in the Old Country.

The Brantfords are favorites for the deciding match to-morrow for the Minto Cup, and express themselves as being confident of winning, of course. The Brantford Courier modestly admits that "We possess the finest lacrosse team that has been." And surely the Brantford people have a right to jubilate, for did they not buy the team and pay for it?

It is rather apt to jar one's faith in Canadian amateurism when he studies for a minute the Brantford line-up, which is as follows: Hess, Cornwall; Finlayson, Dade and Hendry, Montreal; Dowling and Doyle, Toronto; Neeley, Brampton; Grimes and Murphy, Ottawa; Taylor, Paris; Hamburg, Markham; Henry, Orangeville. However, the team is a grand one, even if there is not a "home brew" on it, and to-morrow's match is liable to be a battle of the giants.

The Toronto Baseball team is playing great ball. If they can keep it up they will come mighty near landing the flag once more.

Everybody should bear in mind the lacrosse match in this city on the 15th inst. The local boys have had all sorts of hard luck, and it is up to all sport lovers to help them along. Don't make any other engagement for the 15th. Stay in the city and help cheer the Red and White Boys on to victory.

AQUATICS.

Canadians Won at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 2.—The first American "Henley," under the auspices of the newly organized American Rowing Association, was held this afternoon over the National course on the Schuylkill River, in Fairmont Park. The association hopes to make its annual affair the classic rowing event in America. Its plan is copied closely after the famous English "Henley." The distance 1 5-16 miles is the same as the English distance; the rules are practically alike. The regatta to-day was not as fully representative of American oarsmen as the stewards of the association had hoped it would be. Out of the 27 entries in the 10 events 17 were from Philadelphia, four from Boston, and two from Detroit; and one each from Toronto, Ont., Baltimore, New Haven and San Francisco. The weather was clear and very hot, and the river was quite smooth.

The greatest interest was manifested in the eight-oared shell race between the Argonauts, of Toronto, Yale freshmen, a mixed crew from the University of Pennsylvania, and the Union Boat Club, of Boston. The Canadians won easily by four lengths. They took the start and were never headed.

The best wheel of fortune is honest labor.

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

ESTABLISHED 1870.

MEN'S HATS

Porto Ricans Fine Straws
Light Weight Felts.

THE NEWEST STYLES.

S. A. HYMAN & CO.

N.B.—Store closed every Wednesday during July and August at 12 o'clock noon.

SPECIAL OFFER

MIDSUMMER CLUBBING RATES.

Two Papers to January 1st, 1904

Family Herald & Weekly Star, and the Best Home Paper—The Weekly Intelligencer, BOTH for

65 CENTS

We are making this special offer as we require 1000 new subscriptions to our Weekly.

This offer is good to new subscribers only.

ADDRESS—
The Weekly Intelligencer
BELLEVILLE, ONT.

No agents handle this offer.

GLASGOW WAREHOUSE.

Saturday Night Sale

. . . . OF . . . .

Cotton Goods

The aftermath of our Big Mid-Summer Sale has left us with a number of ends of Cotton Goods, ranging in lengths from 2½ to 12 yards.

Goods Comprising Cambrics, Lawns, Ducks, and prints, which we will sell Saturday Night

AT

6c a yd.

Don't miss getting some of them, nothing in the lot worth less than 10 cents a yard, and goods up to 15c a yard.

SALE OPENS AT 7:30 SHARP.

Laidlaw & Ketcheson

DIRECT IMPORTERS

Daily Intelligencer.

THE INTELLIGENCER IS SOLD AT J. W. London's and G. Wardhaugh's.

Local Reading Advertisements,

ords 50 cents; 2 cents per word first insertion, per word subsequent consecutive insertions. Headlines count as 12 words; contracts for [illegible] periods made at office

July 1st, 1903,

"Dominion Day"

Canada's 36th Birthday,
"The Maple Leaf forever."

Profit by the experience of the wise ones, and when on your outing Wednesday take a plentiful supply of our excellent bakery goods, not forgetting a box or two of our choice chocolates.

CHAS. S. CLAPP

BATH HELPS

It adds much to the luxury and benefit of baths to have at hand all the usual requisites. There is we think no item of bath supplies we do not carry. It will not cost you much to provide a complete outfit.

Bath Brushes, Mitts, Bath Tablets, Soaps, Toilet Waters, Sea Salt, Loofahs, Sponges, etc.

McKeown's DRUG STORE

The Sun & Hastings Savings and Loan Co. of Ontario.

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL

$5,000,000.

3 1-2 per cent. allowed on Deposits payable on Call.

4 per cent. on Deposits for one year or over.

Money to Loan upon favorable terms.

OFFICE, No. 46 Bridge St., Belleville.

J. P. C. PHILLIPS,
Manager Belleville Branch.

The longer you halt the steeper the mountain grows.

GADSKI

This beautiful Eight-day Mantle Clock with gong, half hour strike on separate bell, handsomely enameled in colors, bronze trimmings, an ornament to any mantle or any house. Guaranteed a perfect timekeeper, will last a lifetime. Our price only $6.00.

T. BLACKBURN.

Eyes examined free of charge. Jeweller & Optician.

Special Sale!

We will offer for to-morrow, Saturday, all the stock of Hammocks at greatly reduced prices.

Window Screens	15c each
Croquet Sets, 4 ball	69c
Croquet Sets, 6 ball	89c
Croquet Sets, 8 ball	$1.10
Ladies' Wrappers	67c

Go-Carts, Express Waggons and Boys' Bicycles will go cheap.

We must have room in order to receive our import stock of Fall and Xmas goods.

McINTOSH BROS.

Mainly About People.

The minister called at a certain Canadian home just after he had come to his new pastorate. The small boy was present long before his mother came downstairs to greet the dominie. Trying to be cordial, the minister said "How old are you, my little man?" "I'm five at home, six in school and three on the cars," was the delightful reply.

P. T. Barnum was a great practical joker. On one occasion he notified the dealer from whom he bought a large amount of supplies that half the pepper he sent him was peas. The dealer indignantly denied the charge, and quite a warm correspondence followed, it being finally ended by Barnum, who enquired whether half the letters in the word "pepper" were not p's.

On April Fool's day, the audience at an amateur dramatic performance in the Naval Academy at Annapolis was startled when one of the instructors made his appearance before the curtain about the time the performance was to begin, and solemnly announced: "I wish to make an announcement—a very sad announcement. Under the circumstances it scarcely seems fitting that the entertainment should proceed. Word has just been received that one of the navy's vessels has gone down with all on board!" A hush of horror followed this gravely delivered speech, for most of those in the audience were connected by close family ties with the navy. "What was the name of the vessel?" came a voice from the rear of the hall. "The submarine boat 'Holland,'" replied the instructor, as he dodged and made a hasty exit.

A correspondent of the London "Outlook" tells a story which he heard Lord Dufferin relate of Sheridan Le Fanu: Sheridan's father—the Archbishop of Meath—was a great stickler for punctuality, a regard his son did not share. One morning young Sheridan, then about eight years old, descended unusually late for breakfast, and was met at the door by his father, watch in hand. "Is this right, sir; is this right?" demanded the prelate in stern tones. "I don't know, sir," replied Sheridan, looking at the watch and pretending to think the question applied to it and not to his conduct, "but I rather think it's fast." For this impertinence young Sheridan was condemned to write an essay on "The Three Ages of Man." Here is what he wrote: "There are three ages of man: First—When he is engaged in planning every conceivable mode of wickedness. This is known as the age of innocence. Second—When he is putting his nefarious plans into operation. This is called the prime of manhood. Third—When he becomes anxious about his soul and turns to religion. This is dotage."

Thomas A. Edison is of the opinion that it was anger that first turned him toward inventing the incandescent light. That was, of course, in the early days, and Edison was then quite the inventor that one reads of—poor, enthusiastic, never sleeping. He lived in a small house, innocent of anything approaching a laboratory; scientific apparatuses were in every room, and all the money went for experiments. Then, one day, came the crisis in the guise of the collector for the gas company. He had been to the house often, but Edison, hardly heeding his calls, had waved him away, saying, "Don't bother me." On this last call the collector's instructions were peremptory. He must turn off the gas. "But, man," protested Mr. Edison, "I can't stop this experiment to-night. I'll pay the bill, of course. I didn't know about it. I must finish this work with no interruption." But the man was a gas collector and the lights went out. "That night, as I sat helpless in the darkness," says the great inventor, "I swore a deep, solemn and far-reaching oath that I would put all the gas companies in the world out of business. I haven't done quite that, but I did the best I could."

CUTICURA SOAP

The World's Greatest Skin Soap.

The World's Sweetest Toilet Soap.

Sale Greater Than the World's Product of Other Skin Soaps.

Sold Wherever Civilization Has Penetrated.

Millions of the world's best people use Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening and soothing red, rough and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings and chafings, for annoying irritations, or too free or offensive perspiration, for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, especially mothers, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet, bath and nursery.

Cuticura Soap combines delicate emollient properties derived from Cuticura, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odours. No other medicated soap ever compounded is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath and nursery. Thus it combines in one soap at one price the most effective skin and complexion soap, and the purest and sweetest toilet, bath and nursery soap ever compounded.

Cuticura Resolvent, liquid and in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap are sold throughout the world. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Australia, R. Towns & Co., Sydney; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chemical Corp., Sole Proprietors.

Send for "All About the Skin, Scalp and Hair."

THE MARKETS.

Wheat Depressed at All American Markets—Unchanged at Liverpool—Live Stock—The Latest Quotations.

Wednesday Evening, July 2.

Liverpool wheat futures closed unchanged to ¼d lower to-day than yesterday and corn futures ⅛d to ⅜d lower.

At Chicago to-day September wheat closed ⅜c lower than yesterday, September corn ¼c lower and September oats ⅛c higher.

LEADING WHEAT MARKETS.

Following are the closing quotations at important wheat centres to-day:

	Cash.	July.	Sept.	Dec.
New York	....	....	79⅝	79¾
Chicago	....	....	74⅜	74⅝
Toledo	75¾	75¾	76¾	....
Duluth, No. 1 N.	81½	81½	....	....

TORONTO ST. LAWRENCE MARKET.

Grain—

Wheat, red, bush.	$0 75½ to	$0 76½
Wheat, white, bush.	0 76	0 77
Wheat, spring, bush.	0 70	0 72
Wheat, goose, bush.	0 69	0 70
Barley, bush.	0 42½	....
Beans, bush	1 30	1 50
Beans, hand-picked	1 75	....
Peas, bush	0 78½	....
Rye, bush	0 45	....
Oats, bush.	0 34½	0 35½
Buckwheat, bush.	0 43	....

NEW YORK GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

New York, July 2.—Flour—Receipts, 25,348 bbls.; sales, 4100 pkgs. Flour was lower to sell and quiet. Minnesota patents, $4.40 to $4.75; winter straights, $3.70 to $3.90. Rye flour, dull; fair to good, $3 to $3.35; choice to fancy, $3.40 to $3.60. Wheat, receipts, 63,500 bushels; sales, 1,150,000 bushels. Wheat was lower and dull this morning in answer to bearish cables and home crop news. Sept., 79⅝c to 80c; Dec., 79 15-16c to 80⅛c. Rye, steady; State, 58c to 59½c, c.i.f., New York; No. 2 western, 62c, f.o.b., afloat. Corn, receipts, 92,050 bushels; sales 60,000 bushels. Corn declined also under fine crop and weather news, easier cables and liquidation. Sept., 56½c to 56⅝c; Dec., 55c to 55¼c. Oats, receipts, 42,500 bushels. Oats were quiet and easier. Track white state, 41c to 50c; track white western, 44c to 50c. Sugar, raw, quiet; refined, quiet. Coffee, quiet; No. 7 Rio., 5 3-16c. Lead, quiet. Wool, firm. Hops, dull.

LIVERPOOL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

Liverpool, July 2.—Wheat, spot dull; No. 2 red, western winter, 6s 2d; No. 1 northern spring, 6s 5d; No. 1 Cal., 6s 6½d; futures steady; July, 6s 4¾d; Sept., 6s 3d. Corn, spot quiet; American mixed, 4s 11½d; futures steady; July, 4s 8⅝d; Sept., 4s 5⅜d; Oct., nominal.

Hams, short cut quiet, 54s. Bacon, Cumberland cut, quiet, 47s 6d; long clear middles, light, steady, 52s; long clear middles, heavy, steady 51s; short clear backs, quiet, 49s 6d; shoulders, square, quiet, 38s 6d. Lard, prime western in tierces, dull, 40s 6d; American refined in pails, dull, 40s.

NEW YORK DAIRY MARKET.

New York, July 2.—Butter—Steady; unchanged; receipts, 14,271. Cheese, dull; unchanged; receipts, 8896. Eggs, irregular; unchanged; receipts, 13,194.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Unchanged—Receipts Light and Trade Slow at Some Centres.

London, July 2.—Live cattle steady at 11¾c to 12c per lb. for American steers, dressed weight; Canadian steers, 10½c to 11½c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 9⅛c per lb.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Receipts of live stock were 85 carloads, composed of 1000 cattle, 1000 hogs 1311 sheep and lambs, with about 30 calves.

Exporters—Best loads exporters are worth $5 to $5.20 per cwt.; medium to good at about $4.75 to $4.90.

Export Bulls—Choice quality bulls sold at $4 to $4.25 per cwt; good bulls sold at $3.60 to $3.80 per cwt.

Export Cows—Export cows sold at $4.00 per cwt.

Butchers' Cattle—Choice picked lots of butchers, weighing from 1025 to 1100 lbs. each, equal in quality to best exporters, sold at $4.65 to $4.75, loads of good sold at $4.50 to $4.60; fair to good, $4.50; common, $4 to $4.25; rough to inferior, $3.50 to $3.90.

Feeders—Steers of good quality, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, are worth $4 to $4.40 per cwt.

Short-keep Feeders—Good steers, 1100 to 1200 lbs. each, are worth $4.50 to $4.75 per cwt.

Stockers—One year to two year old steers, 400 to 700 lbs each, are worth $3.50 to $3.90 per cwt.; off-colors and of poor breeding quality of same weights are worth $2.75 to $3 per cwt.

Milch Cows—Milch cows and springers are worth $30 to $40 each.

Calves—Calves sold at $2 to $10 each, or from $4.50 to $5.50 per cwt.

Sheep—Prices, $3.75 to $3.90 per cwt. for ewes, and bucks at $2.75 to $3.

Spring Lambs—Prices easy at $3.50 to $4.50 each.

Hogs—Best select bacon hogs, not less than 160 lbs., nor more than 200 lbs. each, off cars, sold at $5.75 per cwt.; lights and fats at $5.50; sows, $4 to $4.25 per cwt., and stags, $2 to $3 per cwt.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, July 2.—About 500 head of butchers' cattle, 400 calves and 400 sheep were offered for sale at the East End Abattoir to-day. The market was rather dull, as there were no really prime beeves offered, and 5c per lb. was about the highest rate paid to-day for good to medium steers, and from that down to less than 4c for ordinary medium cattle. The common stock are rather plentiful and slow of sale, at from 2½c to 3½c per lb. Calves were in good demand at from $2.50 to $8 each. Sheep sold at from 3¼c to 3⅜c per lb. Lambs sold at from $2.50 to $4.25 each. Fat hogs are still declining in price; only choice lots bring over 5½c per lb., weighed off the cars.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, N.Y., July 2.—Cattle—Receipts, 125 head; slow; prime and shipping steers, $4.80 to $5.35; butchers' steers, $4.10 to $4.80; culls and heifers, $2.75 to $4.70; bulls, $3 to $4; stockers, $3 to $4.25. Veals, receipts, 60 head; 25c lower; $5.25 to $6.50. Hogs, receipts, 2200 head; active; 10c to 25c higher; heavy, $6.25 to $6.30; mixed, $6.30 to $6.35; yorkers, $6.40 to $6.45; pigs, $6.50 to $6.70; roughs, $5.40 to $5.60; stags, $4 to $4.50; dairies, $6.20 to $6.25. Sheep and lambs, receipts, 1400 head; sheep steady; lambs 25c higher; lambs, $5 to $6.25; yearlings, $5 to $5.25; ewes, $3.25 to $3.75; sheep, mixed, $2 to $4.25; wethers, $4.50 to $4.75.

NEW YORK LIVE STOCK.

New York, July 2.—Beeves—Receipts, 225; no sales. Calves, receipts, 243; stagnant; veals, $4 to $5.50; tops, $6.25 to $6.50, and buttermilks, $3.50. Sheep and lambs, receipts, 3522; steady; sheep, $2.75 to $4.25; bucks and culls, $1. Hogs, receipts, 2310; steady.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Madoc, Ont., July 2.—At Madoc to-night 1150 boxes offered. All sold at 10c.

Kingston, Ont., July 2.—At the Frontenac Cheese Board to-day 2143 boxes were boarded, but only 419 boxes were disposed of at 9¾c to 9⅞c.

Brockville, Ont., July 2.—Offerings today on our cheese board were 1204 white and 2253 colored; total, 3457 boxes. The highest bid was 9¾c, which was refused, no sales being made.

Vankleek Hill, Ont., July 2.—There were 1065 boxes white and 88 boxes colored cheese here to-day. White was sold on board; bidding started at 9⅝c and was raised to 9 13-16c by Denning & Fraser, but no sale. It will all be sold on curb. Weegar got the 88 boxes of colored at 10c. There were seven buyers present—W. McGregor, Bennet, McRae, Denning, Fraser, Welsh and Weegar. Board meets again next Thursday.

Winchester, Ont., July 2.—At a meeting of the Cheese Board held here this evening, there were 659 colored and 618 white registered. Price bid for colored 9¾c and for white 9 13-16c. Sold, 175 colored and 112 white. Buyers: Messrs. Gibson, Ault, Brunner, Keenan, Weir and Logan.

Woodstock, Ont., July 2.—At the Woodstock Cheese Board to-day 2170 boxes white and 1650 boxes colored were offered; 11 buyers; 10 salesmen present. Bid from 9¾c to 10c; 450 boxes of Dawsons sold at 10c.

THE EVENING MEAL
SERVED IN DINING CARS
IN THE HOME OF THE WEALTHY IN CAMP LIFE
THE OLD ENJOY IT
IN THE RESTAURANT
THE JOY OF THE PICNIC
MAKES LITTLE FOLKS GROW

All Sorts and Conditions of People

Whether at home, in the camp, on the train or anywhere else the people find Malta-Vita a delicious and satisfying meal.

MALTA-VITA represents the highest development in wheat preparations for food. Throughout the length and breath of Canada to-day all classes of men, women and children are eating and enjoying Malta-Vita, "The perfect food." It is now almost the universal Breakfast Food of the nation to the exclusion of all other cereal foods.

Malta-Vita is the whole wheat, thoroughly cooked, malted, salted, flaked and toasted.—the most palatable and strengthening of all foods.

Don't accept any substitute for Malta-Vita

No work, no heat; just cream, then eat.

Our Witch Hazel Cream

Is a positive cure for SUNBURN. You are sure to get sunburnt when on your holidays. Take a bottle along and enjoy yourself.

25c bottle.

Waters' DRUG STORE.

Bank of Montreal

ESTABLISHED 1817

Capital and Rest, All Paid Up.

$23,000,000

(Twenty-three Millions)

Savings Bank Department

Interest on sums of $1.00 and upwards allowed at current rates.

A. G. PARKER,
Manager Belleville Branch

MORTGAGE SALE

OF VALUABLE CITY PROPERTY IN THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE.

Under and by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in a certain indenture of mortgage from Mary Pacquin to the Vendor, and which will be produced at the time of sale, default in payment having been made, there will be offered for sale by Public Auction, at the Court House, in the City of Belleville, on Tuesday, the 14th day of July, A.D. 1903, at the hour of 12 o'clock noon, all and singular that certain parcel or tract of land and premises situate lying and being in the City of Belleville, in the County of Hastings, and being composed of Lot Number 18 B. on the West side of Pinnacle street, in the City of Belleville, known as the Methodist Parsonage Lot, being the north part of Lot Number 18, on the west side of Pinnacle street, in the City of Belleville, having a frontage of 43 feet 10 inches on said Pinnacle street, extending through to the rear of said lot, and having the southerly boundary parallel with the north limit of the lot, said lot being according to Haslett's Plan. There is erected on the said premises a two-storey frame dwelling.

Terms.—10 per cent. of the purchase money to be paid down on the day of sale.

For balance terms will be made known at the sale.

Further particulars and conditions of sale made known at time of sale and on application to

NORTHRUP & ROBERTS,
North Bridge St.,
Belleville,
Vendor's Solicitors.

Belleville, 12th June, 1903.

12-19-26-3

Coin Pay Envelopes at The Intelligencer Job Office. Cheapest and best in the city.

Doing good is the only certainly happy action of a man's life.

He who foresees calamities suffers them twice over.

A GREAT RUSH AT

Our Clearing Out Sale

NATHAN JONES.

This is a genuine Clearing Out Sale as the proprietor is retiring from business. The whole stock must be sold. We are having a great rush, and our prices are pronounced astonishingly low. The sale of Silks, Ribbons, and Dress Muslins and Dress Trimmings is attractive and now we add

All Our Prints

These are nearly all this season's goods of Crum's make. Out they must go.

10c Prints for	8c
12½c Prints for	10c

All our Dress Goods are offered 20 per cent. off. Come early in day as Possible.

NATHAN JONES.

The Finnegan Carriage & Wagon Co.

FOR

Stylish and Durable Turnouts.

- —Surreys
- —Corning Buggies
- —Piano Box Buggies
- —Rubber Tire Buggies
- —Micadoes
- —Phaetons
- —Bike Buggies
- —Democrats
- —Grocer Wagons
- —Butcher Wagons

Cheese Factory Milk Wagons.
Steel Tubular Axle Lumber Wagons.

Rubber Tires put on your old wheels at reasonable prices.

Mill St., - - Belleville.

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE

FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

The Daily Intelligencer.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL — LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL — CHARITY IN ALL.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, JULY 4, 1903 NO. 53

ON BULGARIA'S FRONTIER.

Turkey is Concentrating Strong Bodies of Soldiers of All Sorts.

At Vienna the Outbreak of a War Between Turkey and Bulgaria Is Thought to Be Nearer Than Is Generally Supposed—Bulgaria Told to Keep Quiet by the Powers If She Would Retain Their Sympathy.

Sofia, July 3.—A semi-official statement was issued to-day saying: "Contrary to the denials of the Porte the concentration continues on the Bulgarian frontier of strong detachments of Turkish infantry, cavalry and artillery. The endeavors of Turkey to deny these authenticated facts, while simultaneously reinforcing the detachments, which cannot be necessary in fighting revolutionists, tends to show that Turkey is intentionally concealing the true object of these military measures, and is misleading Europe by circulating false reports regarding Bulgaria, and her intentions."

Outbreak Is Near.

London, July 3.—The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, says in well inforced circles in the Austrian capital the view is gaining ground that the outbreak of a war between Turkey and Bulgaria is nearer than is generally supposed. A despatch received there from Constantinople asserts that the possibility of hostilities is being canvassed in diplomatic circles at Pera, and it is feared that an encounter may occur at any moment.

Bulgaria Keeps Quiet.

Vienna, July 3.—On receiving the Bulgarian note on Wednesday protesting against the massing of Turkish troops on the Bulgarian frontier and accusing Turkey of seeking an international conflict Count Goluchowsky, the Austrian Chancellor, stated emphatically that the powers would never allow Turkey to attack Bulgaria, but warned Bulgaria that should she provoke hostilities she would lose the sympathy and support of all European powers. A similar intimation has been conveyed to Bulgaria from St. Petersburg.

Ready For War.

Tien Tsin, July 4.—M. Lessar, the Russian Minister to China, proceeded Thursday to Port Arthur. The Japanese political agent here declares that the report to the effect that his Government had recalled all the officers of the Japanese reserves who are on leave of absence in North China, is unfounded. He adds that though Japan is prepared for war she has no idea of paralyzing trade by recalling the Japanese who are in civil employment in China.

STROKE PROVED FATAL.

Hon. Thomas Duffy, Treasurer of Quebec, Succombed to Apoplexy.

Quebec, July 4.—Hon. Thomas H. Duffy, Treasurer of the Province of Quebec, was stricken with apoplexy while in a barber's chair at the Hotel Chateau Frontenac at 10 o'clock yesterday. He was removed to his rooms in the hotel and doctors were hastily summoned, but in spite of all they could do, he passed away at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The Minister had been ailing for several months.

Premier Parent, who was at his country home at St. Augustine, was summoned to the capital by telegraph.

Mr. Duffy's Career.

Hon. Henry Thomas Duffy was born in the Township of Durham. He was educated at St. Francis College, Richmond and at McGill University. He practiced law in Sweetsburg, of which town he was elected Mayor. He has been prominently identified with the Brome County Temperance Alliance. Mr. Duffy unsuccessfully contested Brome for the Legislature, general election of 1888, but was returned at the general election of 1897, and on the formation of Mr. Marchand's Cabinet in May was called thereto as Commissioner of Public Works. He was a member of the Church of England. He married Miss Mountain of Sweetsburg, Que.

Shooting Affray Victim Dead.

Montreal, Que., July 4.—R. W. Kilgour, the victim of the shooting affray at Huntingdon, on Dominion Day, died about 3 o'clock yesterday. At 5 o'clock yesterday morning Judge Desnoyers was called to the hospital to receive the ante-mortem statement of the dying man. The story he told Thursday was read over to him, and he confirmed the truth of his deposition, adding that he expected to die at any moment.

Will Not Force Federation.

Johannesburg, South Africa, July 4.—The International Conference opened here yesterday. Lord Milner in his inaugural address said that the financial situation was reassuring. Though rapid expansion was improbable in the near future, steady progress was certain. He disclaimed any intention of forcing federation, but he remarked it would come, though he did not expect it for some time.

THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

Government Has Not Inspired Any Statement, Says Sir Fred.

Hon. John Haggart Reads The Globe's Prophecy of the Terms, and Is Met With Above Answer—Process Butter Up Again in the House—Low Price For Butter in the West—Postoffice Bill Adds $40,000 to the Expense.

Ottawa, July 4.—There were no developments in the Grand Trunk Pacific situation yesterday. Representatives of the Grand Trunk have not a word to say and the Government repudiates responsibility for newspaper despatches purporting to foreshadow the Government's intentions.

Hon. John Haggart in the House last night read a despatch published in The Globe, as follows:

The Globe's Prophecy.

"The main features of the Government's policy in connection with the proposed transcontinental railway line have practically been determined, and it is expected that within a few days a contract with the Grand Trunk Company will be signed. The Government undertake to construct a line from Moncton to Winnipeg via Quebec, and to lease it to the Grand Trunk Pacific Company for 50 years. For the first five years the company will pay no rental to the Government. For the second five years they will pay the net surplus of receipts over working expenses. For the remaining 40 years they agree to pay 3 per cent. on the cost of construction.

"The Government will guarantee the bonds for the stretch of line which the company themselves are to construct. In the case of the prairie section the guarantee will be 75 per cent. of the actual cost of construction, but is not to exceed $13,000 a mile. The Government have arbitrarily fixed 500 miles as the length of the mountain section, and for this distance the guarantee will also be 75 per cent. of the actual cost up to a maximum of $30,000 a mile.

"The rates to be charged are to be subject to the control of the Governor-in-Council or the Railway Commission, but on the Government section of the line the rates are not to be cut down to a figure that will prevent the company from paying the annual rental.

"Other railway companies are to be granted running rights over the Winnipeg-Moncton section. This is to be a matter of mutual agreement, and in the event of failure to arrive at a friendly understanding the Government will prescribe the terms, subject, of course, to the rights which the Grand Trunk Pacific possess as lessees and operators of the line.

"In view of the Government constructing the eastern section of the railway, the Grand Trunk Pacific Company have reduced their capital from $75,000,000 to $45,000,000. The company, as an evidence of good faith, will deposit $5,000,000 in the Bank of Montreal in cash or approved securities. As far as possible the materials used in the construction are to be of Canadian manufacture."

Mr. Haggart asked if it reflected the Government's policy.

Sir Frederick Borden made the non-committal reply that the Government had not inspired any statement, but that many guesses had been made and some of them were likely to prove correct.

The Postoffice Act.

In committee on the bill to amend the Postoffice Act, Sir William Mulock said the re-adjustment of salaries for railway mail clerks would mean an increase of thirty or forty thousand dollars per annum. Maximum salaries are not increased. In connection with grade examinations, he said that instead of clerks undergoing a general examination they may be examined in the particular branch of the service for which they are engaged. The revised rates for newspapers could only be considered as a reduction. "It is a concession," said Sir William, "of between $50,000 and $75,000 a year."

Some discussion by members followed, and the committee rose and reported progress. The bill was then read a third time and passed.

After Process Butter.

A protest was heard from the West yesterday when the bill prohibiting the sale or manufacture of process butter was considered in committee in the House. Mr. Fisher desidered to make some small amendments and for that purpose the bill was referred back.

Mr. McCreary protested against the bill on behalf of a Winnipeg concern which manufactures process butter and in the interests of western farmers whose butter is purchased by the Winnipeg firm.

Mr. Fisher replied that the situation as described by the member for Selkirk simply showed the danger to Canada's dairying interests involved in the manufacture of process butter. The profits, he said, would go to the Winnipeg firm, not to the farmers of Manitoba, and he refused to allow the bill to stand for a year, as requested by Mr. McCreary.

This decision Mr. Brock approved. Canada's dairying interests should not, he said, be threatened for the benefit of people who make butter that is not fit to eat.

The bill, with several important amendments, was then read a third time.

Drydock to Cost $100,000.

The drydock subsidy bill was passed after Mr. Fielding had exhibited a plan of the Collingwood dock showing it to be an entirely new work. The dock, he said, would cost $100,000. Upon this the Government subsidy will be $12,000 per annum for the next 20 years.

In Committee of Supply Sir Richard Cartwright explained that the item of $109,500 for direct steamship service between Canada and South Africa, would be divided among the Allans, the Elder Dempster and the Furness with the company's giving a monthly service. The cost of the service is $30,000 a year.

On the item of $28,388 for the Australian steamship service the Minister explained that this sum was required in addition to the regular subsidy, owing to the increase demanded by the steamship company.

Canada's share under the new conditions would be £40,000 per annum, the British and Australian Governments contributing more largely than Canada.

CHARTER WENT THROUGH.

Last Link in the Mackenzie & Mann System of Railways.

Ottawa, July 3.—The charter for the last link in the Mackenzie & Mann system of railways to connect the Atlantic and Pacific went thru the Committee on Railways this morning. This is a section of the transcontinental system which runs from Quebec City, crossing the St. Lawrence on the bridge now under construction near that city, and thence to Moncton, N.B., via Pugwash to New Glasgow, with a branch to Chapman and St. John, N.B. The company already holds a charter to Country Harbor, on the coast of Nova Scotia, which has been prominently mentioned as a port for the fast Atlantic line of railway. The incorporators are D. D. Mann, Z. A. Lash, K.C., Jacques Bureau, Three Rivers; Chas. Fergue, Westville, N.S.; Graham Fraser, Sydney Mines, N.S.; and Hon. Peter McSweeney, Moncton, N.B. The capital stock is $5,000,000. Recently Mackenzie and Mann obtained control of the zie & Mann obtained control of the Great Northern, which gives them a connection from Quebec westward to the Canada Atlantic.

Spraying Potatoes.

Ottawa, July 4.—Before the Agricultural Committee Mr. Macoun, horticulturist of the Central Experimental Farm, gave the account of the work carried on in his department during the past year. Besides other valuable information he furnished the committee with a statement that by spraying potatoes with Bordeaux mixture for dry rot a gain of 170 bushels 18 pounds per acre was secured at a cost of $7.98 per acre, the additional net profit being $40.12 per acre.

WARNING TO CANADA.

New England Cattle Are Excluded From Britain by Order.

London, July 4.—A new order of the Board of Agriculture was gazetted yesterday, revising previous orders, and prohibiting the landing in Great Britain of any hogs from the United States, besides prohibiting the importation of cattle from New England. The order goes into effect Aug. 1.

As It Affects Canada.

Toronto, July 4.—According to William Harris, the new order as it regards hogs will have no effect on the Canadian market.

The prohibition of cattle from the New England States is a surprise. It is a result of the non-success of the measures for stamping out the dreaded foot and mouth disease. In so far as the order effects Canadian dealers in cattle, it is a warning to be extremely careful that the disease is kept out of Canadian cattle, as it shows the strict feeling of the British Government in dealing with the question.

Ex-Premier Dunsmuir Wins.

Ladysmith, B.C., July 4.—The great strike of Dunsmuir's coal mines ended Thursday night when a secret ballot resulted in 168 voting to return to work and 117 to continue the strike. Dunsmuir wins every point in the struggle, which lasted four months and cost in wages half a million dollars. The miners renounce the Western Federation of Miners.

Peculiar Street Car Fatality.

Montreal, July 4.—Pierre Thomas was killed at the corner of St. Denis and Labelle streets yesterday morning in a peculiar manner. He was standing at the corner, waiting for a car, when a big Park and Island car came along. The hind wheels instead of following the forward truck on the main line, took a switch and Thomas was ground beneath the wheels.

An Accidental Death.

Guelph, July 4.—The adjourned inquest on the late John King, Toronto, who was found dead in a stall in the Western Hotel stables Friday last, was resumed before Coroner Savage Thursday night. The verdict was that King broke his neck and that there was no evidence to show that death was other than accidental.

Lieut-Governor Has Gone.

Toronto, July 4.—His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, accompanied by Mrs. Clark and the Misses Clark, left for Montreal by the 9 o'clock train yesterday, en route to England and Scotland. They will be absent for seven or eight weeks. During the absence of His Honor Chief Justice Moss will act as administrator.

Convict's Awful Death.

Kingston, July 4.—Fitzstephen, alias Collins, of Montreal, fell from a scaffold while whitewashing in the dome of the penitentiary and was dashed to death on the stone pavement below. He was about 30 years of age, and had been in prison since 1890.

Stranded on Topnail Island.

Sault Ste. Marie, July 4.—The Canadian passenger propeller Atlantic is stranded on Topnail Island, and is out about four feet. She will have to be dredged off. The boat is owned by the Northern Navigation Company of Collingwood.

Didn't Poison the Stock.

Woodstock, July 4.—"Not guilty," was the plea entered by William Perry, the East Nissouri man accused of poisoning stock belonging to George Woods, when arraigned in the Criminal Court before Judge Finkle yesterday. The defendant was found not guilty.

Mr. Justice Armour.

Toronto, July 4.—The latest report received from London regarding the condition of Mr. Justice Armour states that there is no material change. The patient is perfectly conscious and keeps informed of what is going on. The report that he had lapsed into unconsciousness is said to be entirely unfounded.

Glory Whalen's Slayer.

Moncton, N. B., July 4.—The police at Bathurst have a suspect under arrest who answers to the description of the man who is wanted for the murder of Glory Whalen, the little school girl of Collingwood, Ont. The police are in communication with the authorities there.

Rev. Prof. Caven.

Toronto, July 4.—The hot weather of the past few days has had an unfavorable effect on Rev. Dr. Caven, but has not materially affected his progress toward recovery. He is gaining strength daily and his condition is very encouraging to his family.

C.P.R. Wreck.

Winnipeg, July 4.—Several coaches of the C.P.R. east-bound Imperial Limited, left the rails early yesterday morning near Rosser, some 20 miles west of Winnipeg; passengers badly shaken up, but beyond slight bruises no one, was injured.

NOTE PRESENTED TO CHINA.

Demands of the British and Japanese Ministers at Pekin.

Russia's Occupation of Manchuria Threatens the Maintenance of Peace in the Far East, and China Must Demand From Russia the Immediate Evacuation of Manchuria—Prince Ching Has Counselled the Empres to Accept.

Odessa, July 3.—According to advices received by the St. Petersburg newspaper Svett from Japan, the British and Japanese Ministers at Pekin have presented a note to the Chinese government in the following terms:

First, Russia's occupation of Manchuria threatens the maintenance of peace in the Far East, and injures the interests of England and Japan.

Second, if the departure of the Russians from Manchuria is indefinitely postponed, England and Japan must proceed to protect their interests.

Third, China must demand from Russia the immediate evacuation of Manchuria.

Fourth, Great Britain and Japan acknowledge no treaty between Russia and China, which does not bind Russia to evacuate Manchuria.

Fifth. If, after the evacuation of Manchuria, a treaty betwen China and Russia with respect to the civil administration of Manchuria is deemed necessary, such treaty can only be concluded with the approval of Great Britain and Japan.

Sixth, a reply to this note is demanded within five days.

Prince Ching, president of the Foreign Boards, adds The Svet, has counselled the Empress Dowager to accept the Anglo-Japanese demands and has also requested United States Minister Conger to give them his support.

FRASER RIVER CANNERS.

Will Employ Japs Rather Than Pay Demands of the Men.

Vancouver, B.C., July 3.—At a meeting of Fraser River canners this morning, it was decided to refuse the demand of fishermen for 15 cents straight per fish. Canners offer to pay 15 cents per fish during July and 14 cents during August, and claim that owing to large stocks in England and the falling market, no higher rates can be paid.

On May 1 there were nearly 55,000 cases of salmon at Liverpool, about three times as many as in average years. White fishermen threaten to refuse to fish unless demands are conceded, but canners anticipate getting plenty of Japs, and it is thought that the white fishermen will soon give in. So far fish have not been running in any quantities in Fraser River.

BASEBALL FRIDAY.

The Eastern League.

Toronto .... 1 1 2 0 1 0 0—5
Baltimore .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0

Earned runs—Toronto 1. Two base hit—Kelly. Sacrifice hits—Miller, Carr. Bases stolen—Bruce, White. Double play—Castro to Jones. Bases on balls—Off Kissinger 1, off McAleese 2. Batters hit—By Kissinger 1. Struck out—By Kissinger 3, by McAleese 2. Left on bases—Toronto 10, Baltimore 10. First base on errors—Toronto 1. Time—1.45. Umpire—Latham. Attendance—1241.

R.H.E.
Buffalo ....0 2 2 0 0 0 6 1 •—11 13 5
Rochester ......0 3 0 0 2 2 0 0 0— 7 13 0

Batteries—McGee, La Roy, Hooker and Laporte; Mills, Leary and Steelman. Umpire—Kelly. Attendance—1505.

R.H.E.
Providence .....1 0 1 0 2 3 0 0 3—10 13 0
Worcester ......0 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 0— 2 4 6

Batteries—Vian and Diggins; Pappalau and McCauley. Umpire—Brown. Attendance—511.

R.H.E.
Jersey City .....0 1 0 0 0 1 0 0 •— 2 6 0
Newark ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0— 0 3 2

Batteries—Thielman and McManus; Moriarity and Shea. Umpire—Swartwood. Attendance—4200.

National League Scores.

At Pittsburg—
R.H.E
Pittsburg ....0 1 1 2 0 0 1 2 •—7 11 1
Philadelphia ....0 0 0 0 0 3 0 0 0—3 9 3

Batteries—Kennedy and Phelps; Duggleby and Dooln. Umpire—Johnstone. Attendance—3050.

Chinese Smuggler Taken.

Detroit, July 4.—George Richards of Windsor was arrested Thursday night at the foot of Woodward avenue as he was coming from the ferry Columbia by Chinese Inspector Tippet and a secret service officer. Richards has been watched and followed for months, and the officers say they at last have landed the king of the smugglers who have been operating along the river for years. The specific charge against Richards is that he brought three Chinamen over on the night of June 1. He was arraigned before Commissioner Davison yesterday morning and his examination set for next Tuesday.

Dr. Lunn in Ottawa.

Ottawa, July 4.—Dr. Henry S. Lunn of London has arrived in Ottawa to make arrangements for the reception and entertainment of the English Parliamentary party, who are to arrive in Canada about the end of August to make an educational tour of the Dominion. Dr. Lunn has been in Quebec and Montreal on the same mission. The party will arrive in Quebec on Friday, Aug. 28. Dr. Lunn had an interview with the Premier and Minister of the Interior Thursday, and will call upon His Excellency at Government House at noon to-day.

Accept 50 Cents For 100.

Montreal, July 4.—A meeting of the shareholders of the Western Loan and Trust Company was held yesterday afternoon at the office of the National Trust, Limited, the liquidator of the company. There was a legal representation of shareholders from Quebec, Cornwall, Brockville, Kingston, Hamilton, Woodstock and other points. The meeting was called to consider an offer of a final dividend of 50 cents on the dollar, and after considerable discussion it was practically unanimously decided to accept the offer.

COUGHED FOR YEARS.

"For four years I had a severe cough. I was so weak and exhausted from coughing that I was unable to attend to my business. Two bottles of Angier's Petroleum Emulsion cured my cough and benefited me in every way."—A. Milligan, Toronto, Canada.

THE WEATHER.

To-day's Probs—

Southeasterly and easterly winds, warmer, and mostly fair, with a few scattered thunderstorms.

To-day's Temperature

As Registered by The Intelligencer's Guaranteed Thermometer:

8 a.m. 68
12 m. 78
2 p.m. 85

Guilty of Stabbing.

Kingston, July 4.—Magistrate Farrell, after investigation held that Elliott of Beaverton, was guilty of stabbing John Coteman, though there was certainly provocation. He sentenced the prisoner to one month in jail.

TO STEAL CITY STREETS.

Clandestine Manoeuvre by Toronto Street Railway to Extend Railway to City Limits—Mayor Urquhart Stops It.

Toronto, July 4.—An attempt was made by the Toronto Railway Company last night to extend their Avenue road line to the city limits, without having first secured an agreement with the city. The work was stopped by the Mayor, who was backed up by a posse of able-bodied police. The Mayor described the company's move as "the most diabolical steal ever perpetrated in the city."

Agreement With Township.

The Street Railway Company has an agreement with the Township of York, and once over the boundary line there would be nothing to prevent a connection with the Metropolitan or any other railway company. The Metropolitan Company could get an entrance to the city without having to make an agreement with the city. There has been a great deal of manoeuvring on the part of the railways during the past couple of years, and city and company have been watching each other's moves with suspicion. This latest attempt to affect a junction will not allay these suspicions.

Company Restrained.

The Mayor and Assistant City Solicitor Chisholm secured an order from Mr. Justice Maclaren, at 2.20 this morning restraining the company from going on with the work until Tuesday next, when a motion will be argued at Osgoode Hall to continue the injunction permanently.

FIRE IN A MINE.

Panic in the Joggins' Colliery Near Amherst, N.S.

Halifax, July 4.—Two hundred miners at the Joggins' Colliery near Amherst, N.S., had a narrow escape from death by suffocation yesterday. A canvas screen covering in the pit caught fire about noon, and the mine was quickly filled with dense volumes of smoke. At first it was feared the men would be suffocated, but all were able to get out. Several, however, were overcome, and had to be carried to the shaft. Immediately on the alarm being given the men rushed frantically to the hoisting shaft, as it was feared an explosion would occur. Great excitement prevailed in the town, as ten men were at first reported killed. But little damage was done, and last night the fire was reported out.

"God Save Ireland."

Dublin, July 4.—A special meeting of the corporation of Dublin yesterday called to consider the proposal to present an address to King Edward on his approaching visit to Ireland, was broken up by an uproar in the public galleries. Lord Mayor Harrington, finding he could not quell the disturbance, abruptly left the chair and adjourned the meeting. The people in the gallery then sang "God Save Ireland," and cheered for Ireland until removed by the officials.

He May Die.

Tilbury, July 4.—While returning home from Fletcher yesterday afternoon, John Richardson of Tilbury East, met with a serious accident near here. His horse became frightened, running away and completely demolishing his rig. Mr. Richardson was thrown out on his head and shoulders. The physicians report him as doing favorably, but on account of his advanced age they fear he may not stand the shock.

May Be Murder.

Hamilton, July 4.—Richard Smith, a Burlington teamster, is in a very critical condition. It is alleged that Herman Forsyth, a youth 17 or 18 years of age, who is employed at Glover's basket factory, in that village, stole up behind him and struck him two blows on the head with a heavy hammer. County Constable Henderson is doing his best to locate the boy.

SINCLAIR'S AD SINCLAIR'S AD.

Sample Dress Skirts

EVERY WOMAN APPRECIATES VARIETY.

This week we offer for sale a manufacturer's complete set of Ladies' Sample Dress Skirts, fifty-two different styles, but one only of each style. In this lot are some of the handsomest Skirts that we have ever shown, being cut and trimmed in the most approval fashion. They also contain some very low priced Skirts, but every Skirt whether low, medium or high priced represents an advanced style of Ladies' Dress Skirts and the lot are now on sale, prices from .... $2.50 to $16.50 ea

LADIES' SHIRT WAISTS FOR 50c.

These Shirt Waists that we offer at 50c each are in size 32 Bust measure only. They are made of Pure Linen Cloth, are nicely tucked and hemstitched and the large sizes sold at $1,50 each, but to clear these small sizes and do it quickly, we mark them .... 50c.

FIGURE THIS OUT

We sell superior Shetland Floss in Three-Quarter Ounce Hanks for 5c. Now we know that you can buy a Half Ounce Hank for 4c, but any child in the second form at school will tell you that the 5c Hank is the cheaper one.

THE ELIZABETH UNDERSKIRT

This is the name under which one of the best made Canadian Underskirts is made and sold and we sell Hundreds of them for they are properly made and sell from .... 75c to $3.00

D. V. SINCLAIR & CO.

30 Retail Stores DAVIES 30 Retail Stores

Saturday Specials

Butter A large consignment of Choice Dairy Butter 18c lb
Finest Creamery Butter .... 20c lb

Bacon New Mild Smoked Breakfast Bacon, by the whole or half side.................. 14c lb

Hams Sugar Cured, 14c, by the whole or half ham.

Tea A 40c quality selling for 25c per lb., guaranteed best value in the city.

Peas, Beans and Pumpkin, new stock, 3 cans for 25c

Beef Our choice Western Beef is very much aprreciated by the people of Belleville, try a roast for Sunday Dinner.

Cheese Just arrived and fresh made, new mild cheese .... 14c lb.
Rich old cheese full flavor .... 16c lb.

Daily Deliveries,

Shop Early or Use Phone. 286.

The WM. DAVIES CO., Limited.

SPECIAL OFFER

MIDSUMMER CLUBBING RATES.

Two Papers to January 1st, 1904

Family Herald & Weekly Star, and the Best Home Paper—The Weekly Intelligencer, BOTH for

65 CENTS

We are making this special offer as we require 1000 new subscriptions to our Weekly.

This offer is good to new subscribers only.

ADDRESS—
The Weekly Intelligencer
BELLEVILLE, ONT.

No agents handle this offer.

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE
FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

Daily Intelligencer.

EXTRAVAGANCE AT OTTAWA.

Canadians, when they get time to sit down and think it over, may well ask themselves what the expenditures of this country are coming to. This year the main estimates amounted to $59,109,974. Two batches of supplementary estimates have since been added, one for $320,000 and the second for $5,090,968, making a total of $64,462,902. More millions are yet to be received and the year 1903-04 will prove a record breaker for expenditure in Canada. No effort is being made to curtail the outlay, and in addition to the funds to be actually voted, the Government is assuming liability for railway bonds to the extent of $9,165,000 and Montreal harbor bonds worth $3,000,000. It will be seen at a glance that the growing time is thriving. With every evidence of hard times on all sides, no effort is being made to economise, and increases in the public debt will be the order of the day, before Canadians fully awake to the reckless waste now being practiced at Ottawa. When confronted with the necessity for retrenchment the Government will be unable to pull in its horns. A stop should at once be put to this criminal scattering of funds.

BUILDING.

R. McPherson, late foreman with Thos. Hanley, continues the same business at the same stand, executing, in first-class style, orders for Church and Office Furniture, Mantels, Grills, Artistic effects, etc. Carving to the trade a specialty. Will form class for instructions in carving. j8d&w1m

A Suggestion

In this warm weather you don't like the exertion of walking home to dinner and perhaps don't feel like eating much anyway.

Then is the time to come to our Lunch Room, and have a light Lunch—say a Sandwich and a Glass of Milk, and a dish of Ice Cream for dessert.

J. ARTHUR MARSH.

WATCH THIS AD. NEXT WEEK

The Globe Clothing House

Up-to-date Clothiers and Gents' Furnishers.

EDUCATIONAL NEEDS OF BRITISH EMPIRE.

SIR GILBERT PARKER TALKS ON THE SUBJECT TO A LONDON NEWSPAPER.

(St. James's Gazette, London.)

About sixty delegates, it is estimated, will attend the conference which is to be held at Burlington House on July 9 to discuss the co-ordination of university education throughout the Empire. All the leading universities in the United Kingdom and the colonies will be represented. The important movement was originated by Sir Gilbert Parker, M.P., who has received the most valuable assistance from universities everywhere, and from Mr. Haldane, K.C., M.P., Sir Michael Foster, M.P., Sir Oliver Lodge, Sir Arthur Rucker, Mr. T. Herbert Warren and Mr. C. Kinloch Cooke, who are associatted with him on the committee for the conference. "I am not an educational authority, nor in any sense an expert. I am primarily, I suppose, a man with Imperial ideas, who has observed certain conditions to which he wished to draw public attention." Sir Gilbert, who was interviewed by a "St. James's Gazette" representative on the scheme, thought that it was necessary to make that statement "in case the public depreciated the idea because of their certain knowledge that I am not an expert." Expert or no expert, Sir Gilbert was pre-eminently the man to explain how the movement originated, and to obtain information was the object of our representative's call upon him. Sir Gilbert said: "I have always held that the university should be a centre of national influence, that it should not be a thing apart, a place where culture could be acquired and where young men should, as it were, receive a certificate of fitness for polite society and carry a guarantee of a careful, if not a complete, education. Nor that alone. Culture, learning, and study in science, history, literature, philosophy, and languages are all necessary to character and to a proper view of life. And in the old days this interpretation seemed almost sufficient. These were the days when national interests were not so wide. The enormous growth in all directions called for the development of the forces of our educational life, and on the whole our universities have kept pace with the new conditions. Oxford and Cambridge have been centres of powerful movements, and they must still remain the centres to which the eyes of students throughout the Empire will turn. The great personal forces, even more than the wide education they offer, have inspired the national life, and one realizes that every university and every college fails of its highest duty if it does not provide, first, an inspiring influence and then a force which makes for national efficiency.

"The crying need of the Empire is greater and better opportunity for research-work, so that our industrial life might receive the immediate and practical benefit of a thorough scientific education. If there is anything from which our industrial life suffers to-day it is the rule of thumb method which has prevailed and still prevails far too much in our great industries. The Germans and the Americans have recognized the necessity of scientific efficiency as applied to the whole scheme of national life and have included in that scheme a particular devotion to scientific efficiency in industrial development. I could name a score of things in which we are a long way behind both Germany and the United States. Although the facilities have been increased during the past few years, the opportunities offered to colonial students for scientific research, so necessary for the efficiency of the life of the nations within the Empire, are not sufficient to attract to England, which should be the centre of scientific research, students from the universities of the Empire. They go to the United States, to such places as Johns Hopkins and to Germany, and their energies and scientific knowledge are often diverted from the Empire, particularly when they go to the United States.

"Now my idea has been that by this dinner and conference we could as it were focus public attention upon this great question of scientific research—upon the question whether there cannot be a closer drawing together of the important universities of the Empire. There will be laid before the conference statements as to what exactly are the facilities now offered in all the universities of the United Kingdom for post-graduate work, and inquiry will be made as to what further facilities can be offered to colonial students to study in England instead of in the United States and Germany. With England as the centre of the web it is quite possible that such a scheme might be arranged that the English student who has developed research work here may go, we will say, to the McGill University to study and experiment in steel, or to Johannesburg to study minerals, or to Melbourne or Sydney for some like purpose. That is to say, that we should have a great interchange of research study. If we can once get such a standard of university education throughout the Empire that the powerful impress of the most efficient shall be felt by the least efficient we shall get that highest national efficiency which we claim for the army, for the navy, and for commercial, industrial and Government life.

"The basis of the suggestions which the committee for the conference are making is greater national efficiency, and in these days when the Empire is growing smaller—to be Celtic in one's illustrations—by virtue of the fact that we are drawing closer together, it seems to me that the idea for this conference and dinner may commend itself to the public. We depend not only upon the wisdom of the great experts in education, but also upon the national response to the determination of the people to secure the highest educational efficiency. I do not believe it improbable that a scheme may be arranged and endowed so munificently that universities of the United Kingdom and the chief universities of the colonies may find facilities for carrying out a more enlightened idea of national efficiency. I am glad to say that the universities of the United Kingdom, as well as those of the colonies, have responded in the most generous way. At the conference resolutions will be proposed embodying the main objects of the meetings—the co-ordination of university education, the extension of scientific research, and the formation of an Imperial Council to deal with these important things."

Do You Lose Weight in Summer?

You should not. If you do it shows that the enervating effects of the hot weather have affected your appetite and weakened your digestion, so that you do not eat enough of the right kind of food and what you do eat does not nourish you as it should.

What you need is a concentrated food that will restore your weight and keep you up to the mark without overworking your digestive organs. Try FERROL and you will be surprised how perfectly it will meet your requirements.

FERROL is a perfect nutrient, furnishing nourishment for every part of the human economy. It is pleasant to take, easy to digest and never fails to increase the weight and build up the system.

When you first experience "that tired feeling" after the hot weather comes, try FERROL and like many others, you will soon come to regard it as a summer necessity.

Sample free. 75c at all druggists or from

THE FERROL COMPANY, Limited,
134 King St. West,
TORONTO.

A GREAT INCREASING ARMY,

composed of men and women that spend heart and soul in the vain effort to overcome a lack of vigor in the body. To replace inertia by vigor, to make good, red blood that will build up the system, to have strong nerves, you must eat more, digest more, assimilate more. How can it be done? By using Ferrozone. It invigorates, strengthens, possesses magical health giving powers. Get Ferrozone to-day and make yourself strong and well. All druggists and medicine dealers sell Ferrozone.

The First Porterhouse Steak.

The first porterhouse steak was so named in New York city, in the famous old tavern of Martin Morrison, at 327 Pearl street. This was a favorite resort of seafaring men. A steak being called for by an old pilot one night, Morrison said that he had no steaks, but would cut and broil for him a thick slice from the sirloin which had just been prepared for roasting the next day. Morrison's place was known as the Porter House in the neighborhood, and its frequenters soon got to talking about the Porter House steaks. Morrison finally told Gibbons, his butcher in the Fly market, to cut up sirloins for him thereafter.

The Tail of a Wolf.

The wolf carries its tail hanging down because in that position it is less conspicuous and better eludes detection. A family of wolves playing together undisturbed occasionally carry their tails curled upward. By degrees the tail acquires naturally the upright position as a result of coincident evolution of the mind of the wolf by domestication and of the slow adaptation of the appendage as an organ of expression. The cessation of natural selection in the domestic dog would give the tail greater freedom of motion without detriment to life, and artificial selection modifies it into various shapes.

Hypocrisy.

"Can you sincerely say that you never descended to hypocrisy?" asked the man of severe standards.

"Well," answered Mr. Bliggins, "I must confess that I once sat and listened to my daughter's commencement essay and pretended to be as much entertained as if I were at a baseball game."

Couldn't See the Application.

Dumley—She does quote some of the most inappropriate things at times.

Miss Wunder—What's her latest?

Dumley—I was telling her that I sometimes refrain from joining in a discussion for fear of making a fool of myself, and she said one could not "paint the lily or gild refined gold."

A QUESTION OF BATHS.

How an Army Officer Evened Up Matters With an Auditor.

"Auditors and comptrollers are the natural enemies of mankind," remarked an army officer, "but more particularly are they the enemies of an army officer. They take great delight in finding reasons why they should not pass an officer's accounts and take advantage of the least little technicality or any possible way of refusing to do so. Some time ago an officer to get a just claim that had been turned down by the auditor or comptroller was compelled to go to congress, and the printing bill for the account was four times as large as the amount in the first instance."

General Weston got the best of an auditor when he was in the Seventh cavalry, and this is the way he tells the story:

"I was on a horse board at Kansas City, and before a horse could be accepted he was sent a mile at a very fast clip to test his endurance. I observed that the men who were selling the horses had a rider who would take them behind a clump of trees where I could not see and shortened the distance. I decided to ride the horses myself, and I tried about twenty a day. I would get pretty well warmed up with that kind of work, and I went in afterward and took a bath. I charged up the bath each day in my expenses. But the account came back from the auditor with the indorsement:

"'One bath a day is a luxury and not a necessity. One bath a week is enough.'

"And I indorsed right under that, 'It may be enough for an auditor, but not for a cavalryman.'"

UNNECESSARY TO SUFFER FROM ASTHMA.

This distressing complaint can be perfectly cured by inhaling Catarrhozone, a vegetable antiseptic that destroys the germs which cause the disease. Catarrhozone is inhaled at the mouth from a convenient pocket inhaler, and after permeating the minutest air cells, is exhaled slowly through the nostrils. It stops the cough, makes breathing regular, and eradicates the asthma so thoroughly from the system that it never returns. Don't suffer from asthma, use Catarrhozone; it will speedily cure you. Large outfit $1.00. Small size 25 cents. Druggists or by mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

OPTIONS.

The cost of a "put" or "call" in London, Eng., on 50 shares of a few active stocks to end September account, including brokerage, is as follows:—

Canadian Pacific	$212.50
Atchison, common	187.50
Union Pacific	187.50
Norfolk & Western	137.50
Erie, common	125.00
Missouri, K. & T., common	93.75

For free booklet explaining system and prices on additional stocks apply to

PARKER & CO., 61 Victoria St., Toronto.

The Puritan Fathers and Smoking.

The Puritan fathers were greatly addicted to smoking—indeed, the practice became so common that even the straitlaced observers of times and seasons actually smoked in church. This custom soon caused very considerable annoyance, as the religious exercises were greatly disturbed by the clinking of flints and steels to light their pipes and the clouds of smoke in church. Hence in the year 1669 the colony passed this law: "It is enacted that any person or persons that shall be found smoking of tobacco on the Lord's day, going to or coming from the meetings, within two miles of meeting house, shall pay 12 pence for every such default." Under this law several persons were actually fined, but the punishment failed to secure the carrying out of the arbitrary second portion of the enactment.

Piles To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles, the manufacturers have guaranteed it. See testimonials in the daily press and ask your neighbors what they think of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. 60c a box, at all dealers or EDMANSON, BATES & Co., Toronto.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Gas Works For Sale.

The Belleville Gas Company have decided to offer for sale

BY TENDER

the whole of their Gas Plant and franchise, including the Gas Building and Factory, street mains and piping and an electric lighting plant. Also a water power privilege on the river Moira at the city limits containing about five acres of land.

The Gas Plant is in good working order and up-to-date, and is the only Gas Plant in the City of Belleville. Inspection solicited. Inventories of stock and plant and also list of present consumers and location of mains can be seen on application at the office of the Belleville Gas Company.

Tenders will be received up to Twelve o'clock noon of Friday the Thirty-first day of July, 1903.

Tenders to be directed to J. W. Johnson, Esq., President of the Belleville Gas Company, Belleville, Ont., and marked "Tenders."

Terms and conditions of sale and any further information required can be had on application to Robert Thomson, the company's Secretary, or to Messrs. Bell & Biggar, Barristers, etc., Belleville, or to the undersigned.

Highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Belleville, June 29th, 1903.

Stewart Masson,
Vendors' Solicitor,
Belleville, Ont.

30-4-11-18-25.

Common soaps destroy the clothes and render the hands liable to eczema.

SUNLIGHT SOAP REDUCES EXPENSE

Ask for the Octagon Bar

Doing good is the only certainly happy action of a man's life.

Every source of enjoyment or the best inland resort is found at the MAGI Caledonia Springs and its famous waters.

Encourage Your Boy.

Offer him a reward for proficiency at school.

If he had his say of what he should get he'd be pretty sure to take a watch.

Give him a watch.

There isn't a more serviceable article, nor one that would give a boy more pleasure.

We sell guaranteed movements, bearing our name, in different cases, from $6,00 up.

Angus McFee.
Jeweler & Optician
310 Front St.

25 per cent. Off

CORSETS

FOR THREE DAYS, so every lady can judge for herself, how beautifully our Corsets fit.

Sale of hats still continues.

MISS IRWIN
Millinery and Corset Specialist

W. H. JESSOP
"VOCAL TEACHER"
STUDIO "KARN HALL," Montreal

After Monday, 6th JULY, will be in Belleville until 1st SEPTEMBER.

Studio in Belleville "FORRESTERS' HALL," over Mr. S. Burrows Office.

VOICES TRIED FREE.

Further information at Mr. W. B. Riggs' Music Store.

Mr. W. Denham

Of Denham's Drug Store, Petrolea, Ont., says:

"The O. R. Kidney Cure gives the best satisfaction to our customers of any kidney medicine we handle."

Belleville druggists speak highly of the O. R. Kidney Cure.

It does its work quickly.
It cures Lame Back.
It cures Lumbago.
It cures Bladder Trouble.
It cures Gravel in Bladder.
It cures Rheumatism.
It cures Kidney Troubles.
It will cure you.
Try one bottle.

O. R. KIDNEY CURE is put up in liquid form, contains no poisons, is quickly assimilated and will cure all kidney and urinary troubles.

O. R. Kidney Cure, 50c per bottle.
O. R. Liver Pills, 25c per bottle.
O. R. Dyspepsia Tablets 25c per box.

AT DRUGGISTS, OR WRITE—
THE O. R. MEDICINE CO.,
Limited, Toronto, Ont.

He who foresees calamities suffers them twice over.

A NAGGING COUGH drives sleep and comfort away. You can conquer it with Allen's Lung Balsam, which relieves hard breathing, pain in the chest and irritation of the throat. Give it freely to the children. 2

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

MEDICAL.

JOHN J. FARLEY, M.D., C.M., M.R., C.S., England.
Office and Residence — Corner of Bridge and George streets — three streets East of Post Office.

DR. J. F. MATHER
Has removed his office to Pinnacle St., three doors north of Hotel Quinte.
my29-6mw

LEGAL.

WILLS & WRIGHT,
Barristers, Solicitors, Notary Public, &c., Belleville.
Office—9 Campbell Street.

MALCOLM WRIGHT.
J. FRANKLIN WILLS.
Money to Loan at Lowest Rates.

W. C. MIKEL, B. C. L.,
Barrister, &c.
Solicitor for the City of Belleville.
Office—Metropolitan Block, Corner Front and Campbell Streets.

PORTER & CARNEW,
Barristers, Solicitors, Notaries Public, etc.
Offices — Robertson Block, East Front St., Belleville, Ont.
'Phone 87.
E. G. PORTER. WM. CARNEW.

WILLIAM N. PONTON,
Barrister-at-law, Solicitor, Notary Public, Conveyancer. Office over Express and Telegraph Office, Bridge Street, Belleville.
Money to Loan — Private Funds. Solicitor Sun and Hastings Savings and Loan Company of Ontario.

FRANCIS S. WALLBRIDGE,
Successor to Hon. Lewis Wallbridge, Q.C.
Barrister, Solicitor, Conveyancer, Etc. Office, McAnnany Building, corner Front and Bridge Sts., Belleville, Ont. Private and Company money to loan at 6 per cent., on easy terms upon good land security.
Charges moderate.

INSURANCE.

Fire Insurance.

Guardian	Est'd 1821
The North America,	Est'd 1792
Quebec,	Est'd 1818

City, Town and Village Property insure at lowest rates.

R. W. ADAMS. Agent.
Office opposite Post Office.

PERSONS desiring Life Insurance cannot do better than consult
W. J. THOMSON,
who is the Agent for the following well-known and 13 established Assurance Companies:
ROYAL. ALLIANCE.
OCEAN ACCIDENT STANDARD LIF
Office at Rathbun Co., Bridge St. oca-d&w

FIRE, LIFE & ACCIDENT INSURANCE
At Lowest Rates The Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Perth Mutual on farm and city property. Also mone to loan at 4½ per cent. upwards.
JAMES A. CHISHOLM.
Office Ashley Block, - Front st., Belleville

THOS. STEWART,
Insurance and Commission Agent.
Agent for the Norwich Un Fire in ociety and Scottish Union Nations s. Co.
Bridge St.

Money Saved is Money Earned
can earn you money by saving 't for you in your Fire Insurance.
The Anglo-American Fire Ins. Co
The Merchants Fire Ins. Co.
The Equity Fire Ins. Co.
Are all strong Canadian stock companies and insure Farm and City Property at lower rate than other stock companies Call and see me before placing your fire nsurance.
Office—Bridge St., same entrance Quinte Laundry, Belleville.
H. FREEMAN KET CHESON

Fire, Life & Plate Glass Insurance.
Liverpool & London & Globe of England.
Waterloo Mutual, of Waterloo, Ont.
Lloyd's Plate Glass.
Home Life Association, Toronto.
North British & Mercantile.
Farm and City Property insured in First-class Reliable Companies and at lowest current rates. Losses promptly settled. Land valuation, and transact general Real Estate business and sale or purchase and renting of property. Appraiser for the Hastings Loan & Investment Society. Money to Loan.
W. P. HUDSON, Office above Rathbun's office, cor. Bridge and Pinnacle Sts., opposite Postoffice and Hotel Quinte, Belleville,
'Phone 168.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A. G. NORTHROP,
Issuer of Marriage Licenses, Shire Hall, Belleville, Ont.

CHAUNCEY ASHLEY,
Issuer of Marriage Licenses.
Private Office, Bridge St., Belleville, opposite the Post Office.
Residence, first house east of W. W. Chown's Mfg. Co., Station St.
Appointments made.

REMOVAL.
Dr. Clarke has removed to the offices formerly occupied by the late Dr. Ward, over Burrows', and opposite Scantlebury's Book Store.
a27dtf

FAST MAIL SERVICE
Bay of Quinte Route
TO
ROCHESTER N. Y.
Strs. "North King" and "Caspian"
Taking Effect 27th June.

GOING DAILY (EXCEPT MONDAY)
Lv. Belleville .... 11.38 p. m.
Ar. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 6.43 a. m
RETURNING DAILY (Except Sunday)
Lv. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 8 30 p. m.
Ar. Belleville .... 3.25 a. m.
Baggage checked to all points. Connection with all railways.

$1.00 THOUSAND ISLANDS $1.00
AND RETURN.
Commencing 28th June. Steamer leaves Belleville at 3 25 a.m. daily except Monday for 1000 Islands, calling at Bay of Quinte ports, Kingston, Alexandria Bay and Gananoque. Passing through American and Canadian channels.
Right reserved to change time with or without notice.
Full information from
THE RATHBUN CO., U. E. THOMPSON, } Agents.
E. E. HORSEY, G. P. & F. Agent, Kingston.

Str. "Alexandria"
Montreal, Rochester & Quebec Transit Co'y.
Popular Quebec Excursions
NOW ON.
Belleville to Quebec and return .. $ 8 00
Belleville to Montreal and return $12.00
(including meals and berth)
Steamer runs all rapids
For Rochester, Olcott Beach, Niagara Falls and Buffalo every Saturday at 11 a.m.
Particulars from
A. W. HEPBURN, General Manager, Picton, Ont. THE RATHBUN CO. Agents, Belleville.

The Deseronto Navigation Co
TIME TABLE
Taking effect April 13, 1903,
Belleville, Trenton, Picton & Napanee
Str. "ELLA ROSS"
Leaves Belleville for Trenton at 10 a. m., daily, Sundays Excepted, returning leaves Trenton at 1 p. m., leaving Belleville at 3 p.m. for Deseronto, Napanee and Picton.
Quick and Superior Service to NEW YORK CITY
Steamers RESOLUTE and RELIANCE will leave Deseronto for Oswego after arrival of Str. Ella Ross connecting at Oswego with the New York, Ontario Western Ry.
Fare to New York, Single, $2.40
Return, $4.25
For further particulars apply to THE RATHBUN CO., Local Agents
J. F. CHAPMAN, Asst. Gen. Frt. Pass. Agt., Deseronto
CARTER General Manager Deseronto

Str. "Niagara"
The popular excursion boat "Niagara," which has been very much improved since last season, will be open for charter on or after the 23th of July next. The "Niagara" is now lighted throughout by electricity, and will also have a search light, making her at once the safest, fastest and most comfortable excursion boat on the bay.
THOMAS STEWART, Manager.
45 Bridge St., Belleville.

RAILWAY TIME TABLES.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Time of departure from Belleville Station:

Going East.

New train 12.45 a.m., daily, except Sunday, for Brockville, Montreal and intermediate stations.
No. 16—Local, for Brockville, 7 a.m., arrives back from Brockville 8.40 p.m.
No. 2—1.45 a.m., Mail and Express, (Flyer), Daily.
No. 6—11.43 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.
No. 4—12.22 p.m., International Limited, Daily.
No. 12—5.55 p.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.

Going West.

No. 5—3 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily except Monday.
No. 3—4.10 a.m., Limited Express, Daily.
No. 9—5.50 a.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.
No. 11—11.22 a.m., Passenger, Daily except Sunday.
No. 1—1.48 p.m., International Limited, Daily.
No. 7—5.12 p.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.
Taking effect 12.01 o'clock, Sunday, June 14, 1903.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.

Belleville and Peterboro.

Going West.

	Leave.	Arr. Peterboro
Mail	5.45 a.m.	8.10 a.m.
Mixed	5.55 p.m.	9.05 p.m.

Going East.

	Arr.	L've Peterboro
Mixed	11.20 a.m.	8.25 a.m.
Mail	4.25 p.m.	2.05 p.m.

Belleville and Madoc.

Going North.

	L've	Arr. Madoc
Mixed	12.20 p.m.	1.20 p.m.
Mixed	6.30 p.m.	7.40 p.m.

Going South.

	Arr.	L've Madoc
Mixed	9.10 a.m.	7.30 a.m.
Mixed	5.08 p.m.	3.45 p.m.

None of the above trains run on Sunday.

For the Revelsworth Millions,

—OR—

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fall by the Man She Loves.

toilet and a certain foreign look about the figure, that this is that Parisian murderess there was such a fuss about a few months ago."

"Is it not more likely, monsieur, the figure is here by mistake? See how different she is from the others."

"My dear sir,' the old man continued with a tone of patronage, "your are not very old, and clearly you have not studied physiognomy. That woman's face is one of the worst in this room. Cruelty, callousness, and sensuality are shown in every line of it. Look at that hard smile in the eyes, at the scornful curve of the upper lip, the fullness of the under lip, the heaviness of the chin! A woman with such a face, and especially with that combination of dead-white skin and reddish-tinted hair would be barely accountable for her actions. She would probably be so innately cruel as to be scarcely human."

A burst of soft musical laughter from the wax figure whose characteristics he was describing routed the professor at this point, and sent him speeding at a prodigious rate from the basement, dragging his laughing grandchildren on each side of him.

Victor was highly indignant at what he called the "blind old dotard's impertinence;" but Francesca professed nothing but an amused interest at his unflattering comments.

"Naturally," she said, "finding me among murderers, he expected to see me look wicked. And we generally see what we mean to see."

Francesca would not spare Victor one torture-picture, over each one of which she pored with intense interest and gratification, evidently regarding them as the best part of the show; and it was fully half-past two before her cousin could persuade her to desist from studying them and take her place again in the carriage which was waiting for them outside the building.

"Next," she said, "a delicious luncheon at the best restaurant in the West End, and then the Park until it is time to go back to school after our holiday. The Chamber of Horrors has made me feel superbly hungry!"

CHAPTER XVII.

At a quarter to four o'clock that afternoon Victor Revelsworth was being driven slowly through the Park by his cousin Francesca's side. The little luncheon had been a great success. Francesca knew how to order a luxurious meal, and knew how to enjoy it when it was set before her. Sunshine, color, beauty of form, whether in man or in woman, good wine, and dainty food—these things delighted her, and brought additional sparkle into her blue eyes and a deeper tint to the soft pink glow in her cheeks. To-day she was all gaiety and good humor, pleased with the shops, the crowds, the little presents her cousin bought for her, with his society, with everything. Only when her eyes rested long upon him did a shade of disappointment pass over her face. He was so light, so plain, and so pale; his nose was so much too long, his mouth so much too large and full and weak in outline (Francesca's taste inclined to the aquiline, blue-eyed, and square-jawed type), he was so young in his ideas, and, above all, so utterly her slave, that she found herself frequently regretting it was not his brother Dudley in his place by her side.

More than once she led the conversation on to the subject of her elder cousin; and, before the end of luncheon, during which Victor had eaten scarcely anything, but had consumed large quantities of champagne, she had contrived, by adroit cross-questioning, to extract from her companion the entire conversation he had had with his brother about her on the preceding evening.

The champagne had got into Victor's head. He was not intoxicated, but he was excited, and therefore the more easily drawn into betraying his brother's confidence. Francesca at first laughed, then appeared saddened when she heard what had passed between them.

"It is dreadful to come between brothers," she murmured, "and especially brothers who love each other so dearly as you and Dudley do! And I do not want to marry either of you."

"But you will be my wife some day all the same!"

"No, no! Tell your brother I refused you, refused you definitely—that I will never marry you!"

"Mon Dieu!" exclaimed the young man. "If I believed you, I could not live, Francesca! Can you not see that already I am dying—dying for love of you? I can no longer eat or sleep. I take no interest in anything in the world but you! You are too kind, too sweet and good to wish to injure any one. And, if you really refuse me, you will kill me outright."

Francesca bent her head, and gazed reflectively at her cousin for a moment. He certainly looked as though there might be some truth in his words. His features appeared worn and pinched, and all the youth seemed to have faded out of them. A yellowish pallor had overspread his face, and his skin was dry and parched, while a feverish brightness shone in his hollow dark eyes. Francesca gave a little shiver which might mean either sympathy or repulsion, and looked away from him.

"Listen," she said, after a slight pause."I really am fond of you, Victor and I am sorry to see you take this silly fancy for me so much to heart."

"It is no silly fancy. It is the one passion of my life!"

"Could I trust you, I wonder," she said then, "to keep a secret? Rather than let you fret yourself ill I would give you a little hope."

"My darling!"

"But upon one condition only. You know we Revelsworths have all to stay in aunt Margaret's house until midsummer of next year, when she means the division of the property to take place. What would you say if I were to promise to become your wife within a few months of that time?"

"Ah! Must I wait, then, a whole year——"

"Surely, if I promise to become openly engaged to you at the end of that time!"

"But why not now?"

Francesca laid her hand affectionately upon his.

"You know quite well," she said "that my aunt dislikes me. I cannot tell you why, except that I am by birth half Italian. She does not love you too well either, on account of your devotion to your French mother. If there were any thought of an engagement between us, she would strike us both out of her will."

"After all, what is money compared with love? My brother would help us and I would work for you——"

"No, dear, no!" she exclaimed with a sad smile, interrupting him. "I know too well what poverty means! I was never meant to be poor and struggling. I have luxurious tastes; and I am tired of poor and mean surroundings. More than all that, I cannot be selfish; for I have my poor helpless mother depending upon me, and, whether I marry or remain single I will never leave her. You must remember that, Victor dear, in case I should ever become your wife."

"I love you all the better for your devotion to your mother, my dearest one!"

"For her sake you must not ask a sacrifice of me. Only trust me, believe in me, and keep silent, and at the end of a year I promise that, if you still wish it, you shall proclaim our engagement and become my husband. Does not that satisfy you?"

"Nothing will ever satisfy me but winning you. And how can I wait a year, seeing you every day, watching you when, as last night, you fling your arms about my brother and cling to him, and stand aside and speak no word? It is impossible, Francesca! I am only made of flesh and blood, and you ask to much of me!"

"Then you must give up all hope of ever marrying me," she said coldly; "for I will only take you on those terms."

"At least," he pleaded, "let me tell my brother Dudley that you are pledged to me!"

"If you say one word of the kind to your brother," she cried, turning suddenly upon him, her eyes ablaze with anger, "I will never speak kindly to you again! I swear it!"

"May I not tell it as a secret to my mother in my letters?"

"If you do so, I shall consider myself absolved from all promise to you. For my mother's sake our engagement must be kept a secret until she at least is provided for her life. I will never again run the horrible risk of seeing her slowly dying of starvation, as I saw her not six months ago!"

Her voice quivered, and tears stood in her eyes. At sight of them Victor yielded.

"I promise, my darling," he whispered—"I promise everything! I will not breathe one word of all this to my brother——"

"More than that! You must tell him that I have refused you!"

"But that will be a lie!"

"Not at all. I have refused you, and I will do so again if you like. You must tell him that I have said 'No,' so that he on his part may tell that to our aunt, who loves him and confides in him."

"But, if he does not know you are my promised wife, he will be making love to you himself!"

Francesca shugged her shoulders.

"What does that matter?" she asked. "I know quite well how to hold him off."

"Swear to me that you will not encourage him!"

"I will do more," she said calmly. "I will even swear to you on my honor that never in any circumstances will I become Dudley's wife, unless I find that you have broken your word to me and confided to him—and that, for my mother's sake, I will never forgive!"

With this compact Victor had perforce to be satisfied; and Francesca even allowed him to spend twenty-five guineas on a diamond-ring, which she graciously consented to wear as a sign, known only to themselves, of her promise to him. After slipping it upon her finger, and buying her a huge bouquet of crimson roses to match the wreath in her toque, Victor felt happier and more contented, and could even tolerate with some approach to equanimity the prolonged glances of admiration which Francesca's beauty excited from the male loungers in the Park as they drove together slowly round the carriage route.

When the seats began to fill, it occurred to Francesca that she might be seen to even greater advantage if she made a short promenade along the Row. It seemed to her so long since she had had a chance of showing off her beauty and her wonderful grace of movement in any public place that she felt a not unnatural desire to make the most of it. She therefore communicated her wish to Victor, who at once stopped the carriage and accompanied her in her triumphal progress along the footway.

It was by this time half-past four, and the park was begining to fill with carriages and with more or less ill-dressed pedestrians. Among the few handsome and tastefully-attired women who had as yet put in an appearance Francesca easily held her own, eclipsing every member of her sex by her superb figure, her graceful walk, and her lovely features and coloring.

"Who is she?" the men asked each other; and more that one suggestion unfavorable to her reputation was made as an answer to the question.

"If she were anybody of family, we should know her. And who's the little foreign-looking chap who watches her all the time as a cat does a mouse?"

"She's too good-looking to be respectable."

"In that case Devereux will know her. Here, Bertie, we want you! There's a ripping fine woman, dressed in awfully swagger style, careering about the Row with a little foreign-looking fellow. They're talking French together, and they don't seem to know a soul; but, by Jove, if it's all real, she's the handsomest woman in London!"

The young man whom his friends appealed to as "Bertie" was tall and slightly built, dressed with elaborate care in clothes of the latest cut and style, and extremely handsome; but already his fair clean-shaven face was beginning to show traces of days and nights wasted in gambling and profligacy.

He had but recently entered the Park, and had not yet beheld the lady whose beauty was the subject of so much comment.

"She must be infernally good-looking if she beats Nicballs," he drawled; "but some of you fellows are ready to gush about anything new in petticoats. Now I flatter myself I am a connoisseur in beauty, and know a good thing when I see it——"

The words died upon his lips. Coming towards him holding her rosehued parasol behind her head, her lovely lips curved in a smile as she listened to some amusing remark from her companion, was Francesca, and in the middle of his speech Bertie Devereux's eyes met hers.

In the full sunlight the young man grew cold from head to foot, and an ashen pallor overspread his face. This meeting was indeed different from that last one at the music-hall little more that a month before. Then Francesca had been poor and timid—an ill-dressed unprotected suppliant. Now she moved towards him under the dappled shadows of the leaves radiant in youth and health and triumphant loveliness, exquisitely dressed, and the cynosure of all eyes, with her carriage awaiting her pleasure outside the Park-railing, and a man who adored her by her side.

Francesca realized the difference and remembered. It would have been wiser perhaps to pass, Bertie Devereux without notice; but human nature cannot be always wise, and Francesca had suffered much humiliation in the past at this young man's hands. The temptation to show him she was now independent of the help he had recently so scornfully refused to give was too much for her. Inclining her head markedly in his direction, she smilingly recognized him.

"How do you do, Mr. Devereux?"

For a moment she paused immediately in front of him, while all around scanned the couple with interest. And then the fair young man did an unprecedentedly rude thing. Without even raising his hat, and muttering an oath half audibly, he turned his back upon the beautiful smiling woman and walked rapidly away.

A murmur rose among the onlookers, a buzz of astonishment and scandalized comment. Francesca grew a little, a very little, paler, and tears started to her eyes. But, before she could stop him, Victor, beside himself with wrath at the insult thus offered to the woman he loved, darted in pursuit of Devereux and tapped him sharply on the shoulder.

"Sir," he cried, white with anger, "that lady who is with me spoke to you. Unless you return now and apologise for not raising your hat, I will knock it off for you now with my cane before everybody! I am a Frenchman, and I will not permit your English insolence!"

"Do you know who the woman is?" asked Devereux, with a short laugh.

"Most certainly!" Victor replied. "She is my cousin, and she is going to be my wife!"

"Your cousin—your wife! Are you mad or drunk? She has no relatives in the world—she is a devil, not a woman! And you talk about marrying her! Great Scott, man, if you are tired of life, isn't there a river or a rope handy? Can't you kill yourself in any other way? If you knew her as I do, you would shun her like the plague—you wouldn't breathe the same air with her. If you care a hang about life, take my warning—escape from her while you can, and never let her see you or hear of you again!"

CHAPTER XVIII.

"What did that man say to you about me?" Francesca inquired, as she and Victor were being driven along Piccadilly towards Waterloo Station.

"All sorts of stupidities, my dear one. He is mad without doubt. I followed him some distance, but he hurried so much that he almost ran. And I could not leave you alone among all those men, so I was forced to return to you."

"Quite right. But what sort of things did he say?"

(To be continued.)

SICKLY BABIES.

Weak, sickly babies are a great trial to mothers. They need constant care both day and night and soon wear the mother out. Baby's little stomach is the cause of most of the trouble; it is very weak and in consequence very easily upset. Baby's Own Tablets will cure all baby troubles. They are mildly laxative and give prompt relief. Concerning them Mrs. R. J. Balfour, Omemee, Ont, says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for stomach troubles and constipation from which my little girl suffered and they entirely cured her. They produced sound, refreshing sleep, and I regard them as indispensible in any home where there are little ones."

Mothers from all parts of Canada write in favor of Baby's Own Tablets, proving the claim that they are the very best medicine for all the minor ills of infants and young children. Guaranteed to contain no opiate. Price 25 cents a box at all druggists or direct from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ontario.

Curious Bits of News.

A Boston woman will agitate for a law prohibiting the boiling or roasting of chestnuts, on the ground that it involves painful death of worms "whose right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness is no less than that of the most highly dowered man."

Last summer Doctor Berson, the German aeronaut, accompanied by Doctor Suering, made a balloon ascent from Berlin, and attained the enormous altitude of about 33,000 feet, or six and a quarter miles. Then they lost consciousness, so that, although they descended safely, they have no record to show what the maximum height attained may have been.

The laurels have been stripped from Byron's brow and also from Leander's by two plucky women who have just succeeded in swimming across the Hellespont at its widest part—which is about two miles. They are Miss Wood, daughter of Vice-Admiral Wood of the English navy, and the wife of the German military attache at Constantinople.

One New York hotel that suffered severely from the souvenir spoon and salt-cellar mania adopted the plan of notifying guests that each waiter was responsible individually for all articles on his table, and would have to make good any loss. This reduced the taking of spoons to a robbery of the waiter instead of the hotel, and even the souvenir hunter has some conscience about such a theft.

The postal savings bank building in Amsterdam, Holland, is being constructed by the "Monier system," a new method of construction. A steel framework, like a bird-cage in appearance, is enveloped in Portland cement, which prevents the steel from rusting, while the cement itself is rendered elastic. This construction is said to be strong, fireproof and waterproof, and to be growing in favor in Europe for government buildings and factories.

The moment a man ceases to grow he begins to diminish. Such is the conclusion at which a German physician has arrived, after several months' careful study of the subject of human height. Men, so it is asserted, begin to grow smaller in their thirty-fifth year, and women a little before they are forty. Men, however, stop growing when they are thirty, and for five or six years their stature remains stationary. Then it decreases, at first very slowly, but afterwards more rapidly.

The Presidents that Ohio has given to the United States have been pursued by a curious and most lamentable fatality. Of the four, only President Hayes survived office. Garfield and McKinley were assassinated, and William Henry Harrison served but one month of his term. Ohio men have been elected to five terms in office, but succeeded in serving only nine years and one month of the twenty years—Harrison one month, Garfield six months, Hayes four years, and McKinley four years and six months.

Had not King Edward issued a decree to the effect that widows of peers who have contracted marriages with commoners had forfeited thereby their prerogatives as peeresses of the realm, there might have appeared among the latter at Westminster Abbey on the day of the coronation a coal black negress of the Hottentot type, arrayed in the ermine trimmed red velvet robes and the gold coronet of her rank as a countess. For the dusky widow of the late Earl of Stamford has since his death married a Boer named Pieter Pieterse, and has made her home in South Africa since her unsuccessful attempt to prove the rights of her son to his father's earldom.

Dr. Drummond's Chinese Dinner.

DR. W. H. DRUMMOND, the author of those fascinating delineations of the habitants' life, underwent a novel experience at Vancouver the other day when he was entertained to dinner in Chinatown. Dr. Drummond, it appears, is intensely interested in the conditions surrounding the life of the Chinese, and it was with a view to aiding him in his observations that the Chinese dinner was arranged for him by a few friends. It was held at the Quang Fong Low restaurant, in Dupont street. The front of the restaurant was gaily lit with lanterns in honor of the distinguished guest. Eight others sat down with Dr. Drummond at the round table, which had been decorated in customary Chinese fashion. The array of preliminary sweetmeats having been sampled, the dinner proper began. The time of the commencement was 10 o'clock and the meal lasted until 2 in the morning; no time was wasted, however, as the bill of fare was a formidable one, consisting of no less than 15 courses. They were as follows: 1. Stewed shark fins. 2. Pigeon with mushrooms. 3. Birdsnest soup. 4. Stewed chicken. 5. Boiled fish tripe. 6. Duck and tomato sauce. 7. Hairy mushrooms. 8. Duck and shellfish sauce. 9. Chicken with green peppers. 10. Sliced chicken. 11. Shrimps. 12. Pigeons. 13. Duck cooked in melon. 14. Sliced chicken and pineapple. 15. Ground almond gruel.

There were one or two extras, as to the composition of which the bravest did not dare enquire. The viands were handled more or less clumsily with ivory chopsticks and were washed down with many a "yum poy" of orange wine and the inevitable tea. After the usual toasts the doctor thanked his entertainers in a characteristic speech, stating that the evening had been one of the most enjoyable in his experience, and one of which he would ever retain a happy remembrance. All one can say is that the doctor must have a peculiarly good digestion.

A Prophecy.

Some eight or nine months ago a self-appointed prophet, residing, as his fellows generally do, on the Continent, predicted that in about two centuries the lunatic asylums all over the world would be empty. Lest, however, the actual generations should rejoice in anticipation of the happy condition of their posterity, he proceeded to explain, and the explanation, though short, was to the point, and did not lack a substratum of far-seeing philosophy. The madhouses would be untenanted not because there would not be any demented people, but because there would not be a sufficient number of sane folk to conduct them thither and to sequestrate them.

The Flagging Energies Revived.—Constant application to business is a tax upon the energies, and if there be not relaxation, lassitude and depression are sure to intervene. These comes from stomachic troubles. The want of exercise brings on nervous irregularities, and the stomach ceases to assimilate food properly. In this condition Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will be found a recuperative of rare powder, restoring the organs to healthful action, dispelling depression and reviving the flagging energies.

The best way to get even is to forget.

Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial is a speedy cure for dysentery, diarrhoea, cholera, summer complaint, sea sickness and complaints incidental to children teething. It gives immediate relief to those suffering from the effects of indiscretion in eating unripe fruit, cucumbers, etc. It acts with wonderful rapidity and never fails to conquer the disease. No one need fear cholera if they have a bottle of this medicine convenient.

Life has no blessing like a prudent friend.

Sleeplessness.—When the nerves are unstrung and the whole body given up to wretchedness, when the mind is filled with gloom and dismal forebodings, the result of derangement of the digestive organs, sleeplessness comes to add to the distress. If only the subject could sleep, there would be the oblivion for a while and temporary relief. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will not only induce sleep, but will act so beneficially that the subject will wake refreshed and restored to happiness.

It takes money to voice the opinion of a lawyer.

Holloway's Corn Cure is the medicine to remove all kinds of corns and warts, and only costs the small sum of twenty-five cents.

A long portage makes a heavy canoe.

A WONDERFUL CURE.—Mr. David Smith, Coe Hill, Ont., writes: "For the benefit of others I wish to say a few words about Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. About a year ago I took a very severe cough, had a virulent sore on my lips, was bad with dyspepsia, constipation and general debility. I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, so I got a bottle and when I had used about one-half, the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done, it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had used quinine and lemon juice with very little effect. But since using 3 bottles of the Vegetable Discovery, the biliousness is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 66 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know."

The wildcat's teeth are close to its purr.

THE PUBLIC should bear in mind that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has nothing in common with the impure, deteriorating class of so-called medicinal oils. It is eminently pure and really efficacious—relieving pain and lameness, stiffness of the joints and muscles, and sores or hurts, besides being an excellent specific for rheumatism, coughs and bronchial complaints.

Coral is a talisman against thunder and evils by flood and field.

These two desirable qualifications, pleasant to the taste and at the same time effectual, are to be found in Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, Children like it,

The average watch represents but 12 hours of human labor.

To get relief from indigestion, biliousness, constipation or torpid liver without disturbing the stomach or purging the bowels, take a few doses of Carter's Little Liver Pills, they will please you.

When one gets hopping mad his reason goes on a crutch.

That tired, languid feeling and dull headache is very disagreeable. Take two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring, and you will find relief. They never fail to do good.

Many a man's self-conceit is due to his ignorance.

They make one feel as though life was worth living. Take one of Carter's Little Liver Pills after eating; it will relieve dyspepsia, aid digestion, give tone and vigor to the system.

Much talk, many lies.

Nothing so seriously obstructs the perspiration as sudden transitions from heat to cold. Heat rarifies the blood, quickens the circulation and increases the perspiration, but when these are suddenly checked the consequences must be bad. The most common cause of disease is obstructed perspiration, or what commonly goes by the name of catching cold. Coughs, colds, sore throat, etc., if attended to in time are easily subdued, but if allowed to run their own course generally prove the fore-runner of more dangerous diseases. Nine-tenths of the consumptives date their afflictions from a neglected and the diseases that are caused by wet feet, damp clothes, or exposure are more numerous than are generally supposed. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, which frees the lungs from viscid phlegm by changing the secretions from a diseased to a healthy state, tural.

The Best of all
FLY Killers is
Wilson's Fly Pads
Sold Everywhere.
10 CENTS

TWO SPECIAL SALES

Men's Suits, Men's and Boy's Shirts.

Saturday Night Only From 7 to 10 O'Clock.

We will have on sale Saturday night, 50 dozen Men's and Boys' Shirts, worth 50 to 75 cts. to be cleared at only 25 cts. each.

Also about 50 Men's Suits, odds and ends of different $5.00, $6.00 and $7.00 lines, to be cleared at only

$3.90 each.

See north window for Shirts, south window for sample of Suits.

Remember, 7 to 10 o'clock Saturday Night, and don't be late.

OAK HALL

Sole Agents for Sanford's Celebrated Clothing.

THE BEST Shoe Bargains

FOR THE PEOPLE AT TH

J. J. Haines Shoe Houses.

1 Lot Women's Patent Laced Boots and Low Shoes—$2.00 and $2.50, now	$1.50
Women's Kid Low Shoe, patent tip, all sizes	.95
Women's Laced Shoe, patent tip, all sizes	.68
Women's Real Kid Gaiters, sizes 3 to 8	1.00
Women's Juliet Gaiters, $1.50, now	1.00
Women's 2 Button Low Shoe, "Trilby," now	1.00
Women's Kid Strap Slipper, Bell's $2.00, now	1.50
Boys' Grey Canvas Laced Boot, sizes 1 to 5	.50
Men's Grey Canvas Laced Boot, sizes 6 to 10	.75
Girls Low Shoes, patent tip, sizes 11 to 2	.60
Child's Low Shoes, patent tip, sizes 8 to 10	.50
Child's Kid Button Boot, sizes 5 to 7, regular 75c	.50
Child's Strap Slippers, sizes 8 to 10	.50
Baby's Boots, fancy tops, sizes 3 to 7	.40

We have what you want. Call at once.

In all regular lines of Footwear we can show yon the LARGEST AND BEST VARIETY in this section of Canada at lowest prices.

The J. J. Haines SHOE HOUSES at Belleville, Napanee and Trenton

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE
FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

Daily Intelligencer.

TIMELY TOPICS.

This is the Glorious Fourth, and it's just glorious to think that all the fireworks are going off across the line, and not in Canada.

• • •

Mr. Geo. P. Graham, M.P.P., denies that he used the remark "I'll pledge my journalistic reputation," which relieves Mr. Graham from the grave imputation of dealing in counterfeits.

• • •

The Stoney Lonesome philosopher wants to write to Mr. Andrew Carnegie and ask him for a donation to build a public bath with. Nothing doing. Mr. Carnegie would insist that all bathing suits be made to resemble kilts.

• • •

The Weather Bureau is to be moved from Toronto to Ottawa. With Parliament in session the probs. will be safe in predicting wind storms every day.

• • •

Now, you rail-selling Aldermen, will you be good?

They say the face of the city clock turned pale last night when that injunction was served.

• • •

The matter appears to have stirred up a mild sensation, and not so very mild, either, in some quarters. So far, everyone we have talked with endorses the Intelligencer's view. People cannot see why the Council should sell the rails for $10 per ton when $16.50 has been offered. If they want to aid the Cement Company let them submit a proposition to the people. Certainly, in our estimation, they have no shadow of right to thus give away over $1,000 without so much as saying "by your leave" to the ratepayers.

• • •

Is the flag on the park flying in honor of the Fourth of July?

• • •

The Toronto papers are making a big fuss about the Old Home-Comers, but Toronto people who are at present in this city say the whole thing is a big "frost" so far as enthusiasm is concerned.

• • •

The Fifty-Seventh of Peterboro had a great time in Picton, the trip, according to the Peterboro papers, being about the best the Regiment ever had.

• • •

Kingston old maids certainly will not envy His Majesty King Edward, who has three birthdays every year. For the convenience of the colonies the King has a birthday on the 24th of May. To accommodate the army and navy, his Majesty has another birthday on the 25th of June. The real anniversary is on the 9th of November.

• • •

If this kind of weather lasts it will be a lovely day to go to church to-morrow. Of course you'll try it once or twice.

• • •

As might be expected, the Hamilton Times is in favor of Canadians accepting alms from Andrew Carnegie, the man who never loses an opportunity to sneer at and belittle Canada. In the bright lexicon of the Times man there is no such word as independence.

• •

MR. DOOLEY ON CURRENT EVENTS.

"I see our frind Ald. Galbraith is going to Toronto," said Mr. Hennessy. "What's the cause of that?"

"They do say it was bekase he became conscience-stricken after helpin' to kill the swimming bath schame," said Mr. Dooley, "an' faith, Hinnissy, I can well believe that a man wid a tender conscience, like the Docther, would be ashamed to look the growin' byes and gyurls in the face afther helpin' to burk the bath. Indade, Hinnissy, I'm surprised at the prisint Council. If it had been one of the ould time Councils, the most of whom had no more use for wather than ye have, Hinnissy, I'd not have been surprised, but the present aggregashun of joynt minds are supposed to be so full of progress and benevolence, Hinnissy, that I'm fairly sthruck dumb, so I am."

"I hear the Council is going to shtart a branch of the Ancient Ordher of the Sons of Rist," said Mr. Hennessy.

"Bedad," said Mr. Dooley, "they've done nothin' but rist since they were elected. They raised the laborers' pay, Hinnissy, and thin gave thim no work. Barrin the reception to Lord Aberdeen, whin they hustled considerably to get stovepipe hats, the Aldermin have been restin on their oars and lettin' things dhrift. The sthreets are as full of holes and ruts as the Polis Magisthrate's cillybrated forty byes are full of the divil; and the sidewalks are layin' for people, Hinnissy, waitin' to throw them in up-to-date Greeky-Roman shtyle. Joined the Sons of Rist! Bedad, I think it's the Society of the Sivin Sleepers they've joined."

"What d'ye think about the rails?" said Mr. Hennessy.

"Sell thim to the highest bidder," said Mr. Dooley. "If the cimint people want a thousand dollars or so from the city, why take it out of the Ilivator fund and give it to thim. What's a thousand dollars to us, Hinnissy, since the new assessmint's been taken? Sure, whin the Collectors begins to gather in the taxes from the new assessment we'll have money to throw at the burrds, Hinnissy. We'll be able to buy the gas worrks, and sell heatin' gas at 30 cints per Cuban feet, and furnish all cushtomers wid a gas shtove and match box free. I'm in favor of the city takin' over the gas worrks, Hinnissy, because I'm afraid if they don't the elictric people may take thim and shtart givin' gas away for nothin'."

"Who d'ye think will be the new Aldherman?" said Mr. Hennessy.

"Twill be whoiver Providence Wills," said Mr. Dooley.

"Go on wid ye," said Mr. Hennessy, "they do say he may shtick to the Board of Edication and pass it up to our ould College chum, Mr. Rabbitts."

"He may," said Mr. Dooley, "an' the Chief may shoot another bear nixt fall, but it's not likely, Hinnissy; it's not likely."

WE are not public benefactors.

WE are not snatching people from the grave.

WE cannot say that we are restoring to health those who have been given up by anywhere from three to thirty eminent Doctors.

WE make only the very modest claim that are an invaluable nerve tonic, a cure for indigestion and constipation, a blood maker and purifier, a corrective of sluggish liver and derangements of the kidneys.

IRON-OX TABLETS

ONLY THAT!

but perhaps that is enough for 25c

PERSONAL ...AND... SOCIAL.

The Intelligencer invites all its readers to contribute to this column all items of a personal nature, such as the arrival or departure of guests, and the movements of business men, etc. Send a post card to or telephone The Intelligencer.

Mr. George Kimmerley, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., is visiting in the city.

Miss Edna Frizzell, of Napanee, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Jas. Warham, Holloway street.

Mrs. (Dr.) R. B. Smith, of Detroit, accompanied by her children, is visiting Mrs. A. W. VanCott, College Hill, who is a sister of Mrs. Smith.

Mr. Edward Bartlett and A. Gordison, of Monteagle, leave by Str. Hamilton to-morrow morning for Montreal where Mr. Bartlett will undergo an operation for cataract, by Dr. Buller, specialist.

Prof. J. Doolittle left this morning on a holiday trip to Winnipeg. The professor has just received the pleasing information that his standing is second for the province in the recent intermediate examination of the Ontario Association of Chartered Accountants.

A Dundonald Story.

Kingston News and Times: Lieut. Sutherland was undergoing his examination in equitation the other day and the examining officer gave him instructions to gallop across the field to where Lord Dundonald was and receive a message from him and come back again. "Jimmie's" horse had a way of its own of going and cut a few circles, ran around the cavalry lines and went in the most circuitous route. When arriving at the spot where the Commander-in-Chief was, Lt. Sutherland came to the salute and explained his mission. His Lordship's reply was, "Tell him you have a bad horse" and Jimmy told the examining officer.

In the Justice Shop.

A Duck and a Dog.

Mrs. Eliza Weir was charged with keeping a dog alleged to have killed a duck belonging to a neighbor named Mrs. Smith. The case was dismissed, the plaintiff not appearing.

ST. ANDREW'S S.S. PICNIC.

The annual S.S. picnic of St. Andrew's Church will be held on Tuesday, July 14th, per steamer Niagara to 12 o'clock Point. Boat leaves at 9 a.m., 2.30 p.m. and 7.30 p.m. Tickets 25c. Children 15c. Infant's class free.—W. P. Hudson, chairman. j1-7-10-13

DEATHS

RAINBOW.—At Belleville, on Thursday, July 2nd, 1903, Charles Rainbow, aged 52 years.

The funeral will take place from his late residence, Barnham St., on Sunday at 2.30 p.m. (under auspices of the I.O.O.F.) to St. Thomas' Church, thence to Belleville Cemetery.

CITY AND DISTRICT.

Advertisements under this heading TWO CENTS A WORD; subsequent consecutive insertions ONE CENT A WORD. No local charged as less than twenty-five words.

Napanee excursion, Str. Aletha, Wednesday afternoon, July 15th. Remember date. Most popular trip of season. 4-11

The addresses on prophecy will be continued at Bethel Hall Sunday evening, taking up the Coming Tribulation, Judgment of Nations and Christ's Return to Reign with His Saints. Come and hear the scriptures.

The members of Belleville and Mizpah Lodges I.O.O.F. will meet at Mizpah Lodge room to-morrow, Sunday, July 5 at 2 o'clock sharp for the purpose of attending the funeral of our late brother, Charles Rainbow.

J. Alexander, N.G.
J. Osborne, Sec'y.

Trade intelligently by keeping informed. Read our "Guide to Investors" and "Daily Market Letter." Both avenues to money making mailed free.

HAIGHT & FREESE CO.

Stocks, Bonds, Grain, Cotton.
7 Melinda St., Toronto, Ont.

"Determining the character and financial responsibility of your Broker, is as important as selection of right stocks."

AFTER SHAVING POND'S EXTRACT

COOLS, COMFORTS AND HEALS THE SKIN, ENABLING THE MOST TENDER FACE TO ENJOY A CLOSE SHAVE WITHOUT UNPLEASANT RESULTS. Avoid dangerous, irritating Witch Hazel preparations represented to be "the same as" Pond's Extract, which easily sour and generally contain "wood alcohol," a deadly poison.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

BRIDGE ST. METHODIST CHURCH

11 a.m. the Pastor, Rev. W. J. Crothers, M.A., D.D. Five minutes talk to the young, subject "John Wesley and the Children." Sermon "The Ideal Life."

2.30 p.m. Sunday School. Mr. J. Frith Jeffers' class meets in the church at 3 o'clock.

7 p.m. address by the Rev. H. Hull, B.A., of Manitoba. Subject "The Church of the West."

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper at the close of the evening service.

Strangers in the City, students at Albert College, Ontario Business College, Belleville Business College, and all other visitors welcomed.

JOHN ST. PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Corner of Victoria Avenue and John Street.

REV. A. H. DRUMM, Pastor.

Sunday services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
Sunday School at 3 p.m.
Pastor's Class for Bible Study—Sunday at 3 p.m.
Young People's Guild—Monday at 8 p.m. Prayer meeting—Wednesday at 8 p.m.
Service at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

THE TABERNACLE METHODIST CHURCH.

Church St.

Services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
Sunday School and Bible Classes at 2.30.
Strangers and visitors conducted to seats by obliging ushers.

VICTORIA AVE BAPTIST CHURCH,

Cor. Victoria Ave. and Pinnacle St

REV. O. C. ELLIOTT, Pastor.

Prayer meeting—10.30 a.m.
Services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
Sunday School at three o'clock.
The Pastor will conduct both services.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend the above services. All seats are free.

HOLLOWAY ST. METH. CHURCH

Rev. J. R. Real, Pastor.

Sunday services—11 a.m. Rev. D. O. Crossley, of Bowmanville, will preach. 7 p.m. Mr. Crossley will hold a song service.

2.30 Sunday School.

Epworth League on Monday at 8. Prayer meeting on Wednesday at 7.45.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

BELLEVILLE NORTH (BLEECKER AVE) METHODIST CHURCH.

Rev. F. B. Stratton, Pastor.

11 a.m. and 7 p.m. the new pastor will occupy the pulpit. Morning subject, "The People, the Minister's Crown of Rejoicing."

Seats free.

2.30 Sunday School.

Kingston Road. Sermon 2.30 Rev. F. B. Stratton.

Centre St. 7 p.m., Mr. H. Clarke.

League Thursday 8 p.m.

BETHEL HALL, Front St.

11 a.m.—Lord's Supper.
3 p.m.—Sunday School.
7 p.m.—Gospel meeting.

Subject for Sunday evening—The Great Tribulation Coming on the World, the Judgment of the Nations and Christ's Return with His Saints to Reign During the Millennium, The Second Resurrection and Judgment of the Great White Throne.

HEAR WHAT THE SCRIPTURES SAY.

ALL WELCOME.

July 5th, 1903.
Fourth Sunday After Trinity

EMMANUEL REFORMED EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

(Free Church of England).

Victoria Avenue, between Church and Pinnacle Streets.

Rev. William J. Gilliland, Rector.

SUNDAY SERVICES—Morning at 11. Evening at 7.

Holy Communion will be celebrated at close of morning service.

Sunday School and Bible Classes at 3 p.m.

Young People's Meeting Sunday 8 p.m.

Midweek prayer meeting, Wednesday 8 p.m.

Strangers and visitors in the city welcome.

All seats free.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

POPULAR TOURIST RESORTS

Muskoka Lakes	Lake of Bays
Kawartha Lakes	Georgian Bay
Orillia	Magnetawan River
Jackson's Point	Collingwood

Excellent train service making direct connection for all ports on Muskoka Lakes.

Special Excursion to Canadian North-West.

Tickets will be issued at reduced rates, good going July 4th, valid to return up to and including Sept. 8, 1903.

Special Reduced Rates are in effect for C. E. Convention, Denver, Col., July 9th to 13th. Tickets will be issued good going July 6th, 7th and 8th, valid for return arriving at destination on or before August 31st, 1903.

N. E. A. Convention, Boston, July 6th to 10th. Tickets good going July 2nd to 5th inclusive, valid for return, leaving Boston on or before July 12th.

For further information and descriptive literature of Summer Resorts in "Highlands of Ontario" apply to

U. E. THOMPSON, City Agent, Bridge Street,
T. H. COPPIN, Depot Agent,
J. D. McDONALD, Dist. Pass Agt., Toronto.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY.

WILL RUN

Homeseekers' 60 DAY Excursions

To The Canadian North-West at Return Fares.

Winnipeg, Waskada Estevan, Elgin Arcola Moosomin, Wawanesa Miniota, Binscarth, Grand View Swan River	$28
Regina, Moosejaw, Yorkton,	$30
Prince Albert Macleod, Calgary	$35
Red Deer, Strathcona	$40

Going JUNE 4th, returning until AUGUST 4th (all rail or S.S. Athabasca). Going JUNE 18th, returning until AUGUST 18th (all rail or S.S. Athabasca). Going July 4th, returning until SEPTEMEBER 8th (all rail or S.S. Manitoba). Tickets are not good on "Imperial Limited." For tickets and pamphlet giving full particulars, apply to your nearest Canadian Pacific agent, or to

A. H. NOTMAN, Asst. Genl. Passr. Agent, 1 King St. East, Toronto.
S. BURROWS, C.P.R. and General Ticket Agent, Front St., Belleville.

NEW YORK CENTRAL & HUDSON RIVER R. R.

THE FOUR-TRACK TRUNK LINE.

SHORTEST Route to the United States via Cape Vincent, N.Y.

GOING EAST AND WEST.		After 1st May
Lv. Belleville (G.T.R.)	12.22 p.m.	1.30 a.m
Arr. Kingston "	1.47 p.m.	3.12 a.m
Lv. Kingston (stage)..	2.30 p.m.	5.00 a.m
Arr. CapeVincent (stage)	4.30 p.m.	7.00 a.m
Lv. Cape Vincent N.Y.C.	5.05 p.m.	7.25 a.m
Arr. Watertown "	5.55 p.m.	8,25 a.m
Arr. Oswego "	9.05 p.m.	11.55 a.m
Arr. Syracuse "	9.25 p.m.	12.07 p.m
Arr. Rochester "	1.05 a.m.	2.20 a.m
Arr. Utica "	9.45 p.m.	12.35 p.m
Arr. New York "	7.25 a.m.	6.00 p.m

Convenient train service in opposite direction.

Pullman Sleeping and Parlor Cars.

2c a Mile.

Books for 500 miles of travel on New York Central and leased lines within State of New York, cost only $10 while books for 1000 miles over New York Central, Boston & Albany, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, Philadelphia & Reading and C. R. R. of New Jersey cost $20. Secure further information and purchase tickets from F. A. Folger, N.Y.C. Agent, Kingston, Ont.

GEORGE H. DANIELS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, New York.
A. H. SMITH, Gen'l Supt., New York.
G. C. GRIDLEY, Gen'l Agent, Watertown, N.Y.

It takes a long time to tell of what you have not done.

Shoe Bargains

See our Bargain Tables for

Ladies' fine Low Shoes, regular price 75c & $1.00, now	50c
Ladies' Low Shoes, worth from $1.25 to $2.00, for	75c
Travellers Samples at greatly reduced prices.
Boys' Tan Boots, worth $1.25 to $2,50.	$1.00, $1.25 and $1.50
Men's Tan Boots per pair worth $3.00, $4.00, and $5.00.	$2.00
Misses' Box Calf, Button Boots, per pair sizes 11 to 2	60c
Children's Laced and Button Boots, per pair worth 75c and $1.00	60c
Infants' Boots and Slippers, per pair	25c
Infants' Gaiter Boots	25c

VERMILYEA & SON.

Choose The Best

It it is only the framing of a picture you may as well have the best workmanship as well as the largest selection of mouldings—when it don't cost you any more, probably less.

If we do not give you perfect workmanship—you may demand of us non-payment—framing superior to ours is impossible—we would not do all of the framing for Albert College Art Students if our work were not fitting, and proper.

Another lot of new mouldings just arrived, it would surprise you to see the repeated shipments of mouldings we receive.

You know what to expect of us in WALL PAPERS, and now with our special prices it is amazing what you can get for a small amount of money.

A beautiful new line of American Wall Papers arriving almost all the time.

Better not forget us for PAINTING. Whether your house is to paint outside or inside, whether a fence or a barn, we will paint it at reasonable prices but our workmen are not of the Barn Painting Kind. None but expert workmen find employment with us, men who will please you in both quality and quantity and we have no frills on our prices.

We purpose doing our paper hanging and decorating and painting at actual cost in connection with our Wall Paper department.

If You Live in the Country.

In Stirling, Tweed, Madoc, Trenton, Napance, Deseronto or within a radius of 50 miles—we will send you workmen and guarantee you every satisfaction.

Our Paints

If you want prepared paints we have them in all colors.

Also barn paint at $1.00 per gallon, but better than that we will mix you the best lead and oil paint, our own mixing and our own materials at the actual cost of the less valuable ready-mixed materials.

Any quantity you want any color or shade, in a moments notice and at remarkably low prices — our customers are many in the paint line.

C. B. Scantlebury

Belleville's Decorator.

Wall Paper Wholesale and Retail.

MUNYON'S WITNESS.

George Barbeau's Sufferings Were Terrible—Knees Were as Red as Blood—Now Cured.

"I had the first twinges of Rheumatism last fall. I first noticed it in my knee, and finally it went all through my body, and my knees were swollen up like bladders, and red, as if filled with blood. I could not touch my knees for the frightful pain it caused me, and I was laid up in bed for six weeks. I had the best physicians in the city, and tried everything I could think of, with but little benefit. My business was seriously neglected, and sometimes at night I would suffer so much that I was almost distracted. I secured two vials of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure, and they made such a change in my condition that I decided to go on with them. The swelling soon went down in my feet, so much so that my wife could put on my shoes for me. I have now taken four bottles; the swellings have all gone, and I can attend business regularly. I take a dose of pills once in a while, simply as a preventative. The pains have all gone and have not returned since I first started taking them."—Mr. George Barbeau, 13 Nicholas street, Ottawa.

If you are sick, if you have indigestion, if you are nervous, if your liver or blood is out of order, if you have any kidney disease, if you have piles, or any ailment, ask your druggist for "Munyon's Guide to Health," it is free and will tell you how to cure yourself for 25c. Thousands of testimonials. 2B

ADVERTISING RATES

Measurement Nonpareil—12 lines to the inch.

Display advertisements, 10c per line. Subsequent consecutive insertions, [illegible]ne.

Reading advertisements, 15c per line.

Preferred position, 20 per cent. advance upon usual or contract rates.

Minimum space, 10 lines.

Marriages and deaths, 50c each insertion. Births, 25c each insertion.

Rates for Condensed Advertisement will be found in 1st column of 2nd page.

All advertisements are subject to the approval of the Publisher of the Intelligencer.

Address all communications to the Intelligencer Printing & Publishing House Limited, or to Charles J. Bowell, Managing Director and Treasurer.

Canadians in London will find The Intelligencer on file at E. & J. Hardy & Co.'s Office, 30 Fleet Street, London, E. C.

CONDENSED ADVERTISEMENTS

SITUATIONS WANTED, HELP WANTED, LOST OR FOUND, FOR SALE OR TO RENT, &c

(Auction Sales not included in this list)

TERMS.—Twenty-five words or less, 25c first insertion; two insertions, 50c; four insertions, 75c; one week $1.00, two weeks, $1.75, three weeks, $2.25; one month, $2.50. Strictly cash in advance.

WANTED.

Cook wanted, good wages. Apply Mrs. G. H. Drowley, City Hotel 3t

Help Wanted.—Good pay for spare time of intelligent men and women. No Canvassing. A Stegman, 429 La-Salle Ave., Chicago. jy2-6td

Don't pay rent!—$6.00 per month buys a $1,000 house (anywhere); your own selection. No interest charged. Absolutely co-operative. Best plan ever offered. Write for prospectus. We want representatives in all towns. Liberal inducements Canadian Home Builder's Association, Manning Chambers, Toronto. 6td

$1950 made by one man last year selling our household necessities. Did you make as much? Try our lines. Always selling. Write G. Marshall & Co., London, Ont. 2

Agents wanted, $2.50 per day. Apply Cooper, London, Ont. s27-1y

Young men ambitious to learn lucrative trades, of which there are eight in connection with the business. Apply The Belleville Hardware Company, Belleville, Ont. a7dtf

WANTED Reliable Men in every locality throughout Canada to introduce our goods, tacking up show cards on trees, fences, along roads and all conspicuous places, also distributing small advertising matter. Commission or salary $60.00 per month and expenses, not to exceed $2.50 per day. Steady employment to good, honest reliable men. No experience needful. Write for full particulars. THE EMPIRE MEDICINE CO., London, Ont.

FOR SALE OR TO-LET.

Stone house, 11 rooms, coal furnace, stable, barn. Large grounds. Cor. Frank and Moira Sts. north. Terms reasonable. H. Bull, on premises or Fred Bull, 133 Yonge St., Toronto. Terms easy. ap18-dtf

FOR SALE.

That splendid property on the south east corner of Dunbar and Catharine Sts. City water and sewer connection. m28-4w

Dressed and Matched Lumber of all kinds, at ALFORD'S factory, Market Square. j12-tf

Contractors and masons, any person requiring lime may procure it from E. G. STAPLEY, Canifton Road, Belleville. New lime always on hand. a9-d&w6m

TO RENT

A house on Moira street containing 8 rooms. All modern conveniences. Possession on or before 20th July.—Adam Henry. dtf

If thy friend is honey, do not lick him up altogether.

A FAIR WARNING.

Mark Twain's Interview With His Future Father-in-law.

Mrs. Samuel Clemens was Miss Olivia Langdon. For some years before she met Mr. Clemens she had been confined to her bed with what was believed to be an incurable disease, but she was at length miraculously restored to health. The cure was the sensation of Elmira, N. Y., and young Clemens, then a newspaper reporter, was sent there to interview Miss Langdon on her recovery.

He obtained the interview for his newspaper and brought back impressions of more value to himself.

Miss Langdon's parents were at first strongly opposed to the young newspaper man, and, for his part, his timidity, so it is solemnly said, stood in the way of the progress of his suit. But finally he screwed up courage to speak to Mr. Langdon and one morning timidly entered his future father-in-law's private office, where that man was seated at work.

"Mr. Langdon—have you—noticed anything—between—your daughter—and—me?"

"No!" shouted the objecting parent, wheeling sharply around so as to get a full view of his visitor.

"Well," said the young man as he turned to the door, ready for instant flight, "if you—keep a—sharp—lookout—you—will!"

A Marvelous Infant.

The most marvelous child of history was surely little Christian Heinecken of Lubeck, who died crowned with honor and glutted with fame when he was only a few months over four years old and whose biography will be read centuries hence side by side with those of Shakespeare and Goethe.

When he was but twelve months old Christian had mastered the Pentateuch so thoroughly that he could pass the most searching examination in it. A year later, when other infants were absorbed by bottle and rattles, he had made the whole world of sacred history his own. At three years old he could converse fluently in French and Latin and was familiar with the history and geography of the entire world, ancient as well as modern, while in his fourth year he mastered the study of the world's religious and church history. Thousands flocked to Lubeck to see and test this miraculous child, and he was summoned to the Danish court to receive the homage of the king. But his career was doomed to be as short as it was brilliant, for he died when he was but four years and four months old.

Get on the Earth.

You never heard of a wild animal that had rheumatism until it reached captivity and was kept off the earth. You never heard of a horse that had rheumatism until it was shod with iron and kept off the earth. You never heard of a dog that had rheumatism until it became a household pet and was pampered—kept off the earth. The heathen of Africa and the Pacific islands never had rheumatism, so far as we know, until they got to wearing sandals or shoes. I once knew a fool man who, whenever he got sick, would dig a trench in his garden, lie down in it and have his wife cover him with fresh earth as far up as his chin. He would remain there for an hour or two, then get up in fine spirits. Mother earth! The contact! It looked like the resurrection—and it was.

The Hare.

In the economy of nature the hare is the one creature that stands between most of the carnivorous animals and starvation. In the northern woods, where snow lies on the ground for more than half the year and where vegetation is of slow growth, the hare serves as a machine for converting birch twigs into muscular, lean meat and providing it in such quantities that hawks, owls, wildcats, weasels and foxes can live in comparative luxury. A pair of hares under favorable conditions produce 70,000 individuals in four years.

Power Stored In Watch Springs.

Many watches make five beats per second, 300 each minute, 18,000 every hour or 432,000 per day. Thus it will be seen that half a dozen turns of the key once a day, taking up but a few seconds of time, store up a modicum of power in the spring which is cut up into nearly 1,000,000 beats. If we multiply the daily beats by 365¼, the number of days in a year, we find that the watch ticks 157,788,000 times while the earth is making one annual trip around the sun.

Beating Off a Dog.

If a dog springs for a man, the latter should guard his face with his arm and try to meet the animal with his forearm. With the right hand he should attempt to catch one of the animal's front paws. The paw of a bulldog is ultra sensitive. If it can be caught a vigorous squeeze will make the animal howl for mercy and retire discomfited.

Flattered.

"Young man," said her father kindly, "you look a little bit nervous. How do you feel?"

"I feel flattered," replied the girl's lover, who had asked for the interview. "I was afraid I looked scared to death."—Exchange.

In the Kindergarten.

Teacher—What comes after "t," Ruth?

Ruth—The fellow what's going to marry my sister Jane.

Men must help one another, or you may rest certain they will hurt one another.—Schoolmaster.

ONE ARMED MAN'S SKILL.

How He Managed to Button His Cuff to His Shirt Sleeve.

"When and how did you lose your left arm?"

"Five years ago. I was working in a factory and got my arm caught in some belting."

"Has your right arm become more serviceable since you lost its mate?"

"Oh, yes. I can do almost anything with my one arm. I used to have a great deal of trouble in dressing myself, but it comes easy now. I can tie my shoes, put on a four-in-hand tie, put collar buttons in a new shirt; in fact, do everything required just as well as I could when I had two hands."

"It certainly is wonderful what one can do if he only has to."

"Yes; it is. There's only one thing, however, that I really pride myself on being able to do with my one hand, and that is to fasten my cuff. How do you suppose I do this?"

"I hadn't thought of this. For the life of me I don't see how you do it. Do you fasten your cuff with your teeth?"

"No." And the one armed fellow smiled.

"Have you some contrivance of your own that you use?"

"No."

"Well, I don't see how you do it. It's beyond me."

"Why, I put the cuff on the shirt before putting on the shirt."

And he smiled more broadly than ever.

Freaks of a Genius.

One day a bulky, tall, pale faced gentleman with bushy, restless eyebrows, entered a London tavern. The waiter did not ask him for his order, but immediately brought him a plate of bread and cheese and a glass of ale. Having consumed his lunch, the guest sat upright in his chair for awhile, leaning his hands on a heavy walking cane and staring blankly at the opposite wall, as if in a dream. Of a sudden he gave a start. He seized the empty glass and dashed it to the floor with all his might, smashing it to atoms. He then reflected for a moment, laid a coin on the table, got up and left the inn without a word to any one. After his departure another guest had the curiosity to ask the waiter whether the gentleman who had just gone out was not wrong in his head. Quoth the waiter:

"Oh, no, sir! That's nothink unusual with 'im, sir. 'E's broke maybe a 'undred glasses since 'e's been a comin' to this 'ouse. 'E don't seem to know it when 'e does it. 'E just gits a thinkin' and seems to git hangry at somethink 'e's thinkin' about. It's Lord Macaulay, sir."

Stimulated His Imagination.

The mother of the three boys had noticed that when they slept in the same room, they were a long time going to sleep. A little investigation brought out the reason.

"John," she said, "what kept you boys awake so long last night?"

"Bob was telling us stories," he replied.

"But I heard him saying: 'Boys, I wish you wouldn't bother me. I want to go to sleep!'"

"Yes," admitted John. "When he'd told us one story we'd get out of bed and run round the room awhile. Then we would crawl in again and put our cold feet against his back, and keep them there till he told us another."

Years afterward "Bob" became a famous lecturer and story teller, and that, possibly, is the way he got his start.

A Titled Kleptomaniac.

A titled kleptomaniac of three quarters of a century ago was the Countess of Cork. She had a reputation for stealing anything she could lay her hands on, whether it was useful or valuable or not. Once, when leaving a country house where she had been staying, she saw and quietly picked up a hedgehog that was crossing a hall, a pet of the porter's, and took it away in her carriage. Finding it an uncomfortable foot warmer she decided to dispose of it at the first town where she changed horses and then offered it to a confectioner in return for a sponge cake.

What Meerschaum Really Is.

There is a very general impression in the minds of smokers that the meerschaum part of the pipe, which they treasure so carefully and take so much pride and satisfaction in "coloring," is compressed sea foam. Such, however, is not the case. The German word meerschaum means in English foam of the sea, but its formation has nothing to do with the sea. It is a kind of clay, comes out of mines like coal and is found only in Turkey.

A Highland Stoic.

The following little dialogue was overheard in a far north hamlet:

"Mac, I hear ye have fallen in love wi' bonnie Katie Stevens."

"Weel, Sandy, I was near—verra near—daein' it, but I found the lassie had nae siller, so I said to mysel', 'Mac, be a man.' And I was a man, and noo I pass her by wi' silent contempt."—London Telegraph.

Poor Human Nature.

Waggles—He couldn't remember why his wife tied a string around his finger, so he was afraid to go home and stayed out all night.

Jaggles—What was it he should have remembered?

Waggles—To come home early.

Wisdom, Maybe.

"Isn't it funny?"

"What?"

"She's the head of a matrimonial agency, but an old maid."—Detroit Free Press.

A Fireside Dialogue.

SCENE—A small room, a cosy fire, two chairs near together, a footstool. On the footstool two large slippers, fully occupied. Behind the slippers a man. In the man's mouth a cigar. In the other chair a woman, thinking.

TIME—Night.

Sounds of a damp, cold drizzle upon the window panes.

Otherwise silence.

She speaks: George, we need a new carpet for the dining room.

He—M'h'm.

She—Well, we do!

He—I said we did.

A pause.

She—You ought to have a new frock coat.

He—Yessum.

She—You don't seem very enthusiastic over my suggestions.

He—I'm enthusiastic, dear, but I try not to be foolishly optimistic. As to the frock coat, I think I present a pretty warm appearance in the clothes I have on.

She—Why, they are two years old. Everybody knows you in them.

He—Well, I'm no Pat Crowe. I've no reason to desire a disguise.

A pause. He puffs the cigar with an air of great contentment.

She—George, is that a good cigar?

He—Not very. Good enough, though. Three-f'r-a-quart'r.

She—How many have you smoked to-day?

He—Three. And two pipes. Sunday, no pipes and four cigars.

A long silence.

She (explosively, with an air of triumph)—It costs you a hundred dollars a year.

He (startled)—What does?

She—Tobacco does. In twenty years, if you didn't smoke, you'd have two thousand dollars, without counting interest.

He—My, that's so! You're an arithmetical prodigy, my dear. But old Jenkins hasn't smoked for sixty years and he hasn't got thirty cents.

She—I do wish you'd be serious, George. You stopped it altogether for six weeks, and you said you could keep on stopping forever if you wanted to. If you can stop just as well as not, why don't you?

He—It's quite the other way. If I felt that I couldn't stop I'd stop just to prove that I could. It's because I can stop that I don't feel the need of stopping.

She (with delicate sarcasm)—How logical men are, aren't they, dear? So much more so than women!

He—Being logical outside of business hours is a luxury I've managed to dispense with.

She—Well, if you can't be logical, I can, and there's no logic in smoking when you don't need to, and when you need new clothes and can't afford them.

He—No logic, dear, but an awful lot of comfort. Did you ever hear of Byron's famous ode:

Sublime tobacco, that from east to west,
Cheers the tar's labor and the Turkman's rest?

She—Your comparisons are unfortunate, George, dear. The tar is said to have a wife in every port and the Turkman keeps a harem. Besides, I'm sure that Byron is the last poet that anyone could look to for advice on such a subject. You never heard of Longfellow praising tobacco.

He—Well, then, let me tell you what happened during the Santiago campaign. Our soldiers were in the trenches on top of that hill, you know, waiting for Cervera to get out, or for Schley to come in, or for Shafter to climb out of his hammock and cheer up, or something. They hadn't a bit of tobacco among them, not even a chew, and they were wet and cold and down on their luck. They believed Spain was going to win.

What do you think happened? On the fourth day a commissary wagon threw off a box of tobacco by mistake, thinking it was a box of that Eagan beef. Everybody smoked up. One man was writing his will. When he had smoked for half an hour he tore up his will and wrote a letter to his sweetheart. Matthews was there and he says he never saw such a change in his life. After they got the tobacco if anyone had mentioned the possibility of the Spaniards winning he would have had his head punched. Matthews says that if he ever runs a war he will think of tobacco for the soldiers first and rations afterwards.

However, that's not the only tobacco poetry I know. Here's another:

Tobacco is a filthy weed,
And from the devil came the seed;
It soils your pockets, spoils your clothes,
And makes a chimney of your nose.

Also, I know another, a long one, all about the Indian weed, withered quite, green at noon, cut down at night, shows thy decay, all flesh is hay, thus think, then smoke tobacco. I always liked that poem. It's so solemn. It makes you reflect on the shortness of life and on the necessity of getting all your smoking done here.

She—Proceed, do!

He—Thank you, dear. I now come to the evil results of tobacco. Tobacco contains nicotine, a violent poison, so violent that it is said that a drop of it on the end of a dog's tail will kill a man.

She—How could it, you goose?

He—I'm sure I don't know, but I saw in the paper the other day where a league of Frenchmen formed to stamp out the use of tobacco——

She—I didn't think Frenchmen used tobacco.

He—They don't. They smoke cigarettes. Well, this league, as I was saying, performed some experiments. They inoculated three rabbits and a rat with a mild solution of nicotine. Whaddo you think happened?

She—Go on, silly!

He—Well, the moral character of these animals fell off frightfully. It was something fierce. Their Sunday school attendance became irregular and their families were neglected. The paper says that anybody who keeps a rabbit can verify this statement if the rabbit smokes——

She—Sh-h-h! That's the door bell. Why, it's Mr. Matthews. Do come up by the fire, Mr. Matthews, and take that Morris chair. George, give Mr. Matthews a cigar. I do so like to see men contented!—P. M. P. in Syracuse "Post-Standard."

She—Well, dear, after that you must acknowledge that you are a fool! He—I always knew it, darling; but—until I married you—I managed to keep it a secret.

Cholera Infantum

There is no danger whatever from this disease when taken in time and properly treated. All that is necessary is to give

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

after each operation of the bowels more than natural and then castor oil to cleanse the system. It is safe and sure. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take.

See the label.
RAMSAY'S WHITE

That label is only put on the best paints made—Ramsay's Paints. We make them and guarantee them for value, strength, beauty, durability and economy.

Send post card mentioning this paper and we'll send our booklet showing how some beautiful homes have been painted with our paints.

A. RAMSAY & SON, Paint makers, - MONTREAL.
Estd. 1842.

SUMMER VISIT OF 1903.

Prof. Dorenwend

Of Toronto, the Famous HAIR GOODS ARTIST, IS COMING. HE WILL BE AT HOTEL QUINTE, BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, JULY 10.

With every kind and style of Ladies' and Gentlemen's Wigs, Toupees, Bangs, Wavy and Plain Fronts, Switches of all long hair in every length and shade.

His Art Styles are known and worn by all classes everywhere.

Be sure to visit his Show Rooms at the Hotel and see his new designs. He will, free of charge, demonstrate by fitting you what is the most suitable and becoming to you.

Their use adds Health, Comfort and Younger Appearance.

Gentlemen who are Bald should investigate and see his Feather Weight Toupees and Wigs, worn on over 55,000 heads.

Please Remember Day and Date

Hotel Quinte, Belleville, Friday, July 10th

DORENWEND'S TOUPEE'S.

"AN EXCELLENT FOOD, admirably adapted to the Wants of Infants."

SIR CHAS. A. CAMERON, C.B., M.D., Professor of Chemistry, R.C.S.I., Ex-President of the Royal College of Surgeons, Ireland.

Neave's Food

For Infants, Invalids, And The Aged.

GOLD MEDAL, WOMAN'S EXHIBITION, London, 1900.

DR. BARNARDO says:—

"We have already used Neave's Food in two of our Homes (Babies' Castle and the Village Home), and I have no hesitation in saying it has proved very satisfactory."—July 27th, 1901.

USED IN THE Russian Imperial Nursery.

Manufacturers:—JOSIAH R. NEAVE & CO., Fordingbridge, England.

Wholesale Agents:—THE LYMAN BROS. & Co., Ltd., Toronto and Montreal.

Prince Edward Island POTATOES

First-class Stock

$1.50 Per Bag.

J. C. Hanley & Co.

GROCERS

Telephone 214

A Stitch in Time Saves Nine

Bicycle Repairing

Costs money, especially when the small things are neglected.

If there appears to be anything wrong with your Wheel, Lawn Mower or any of your machines or tools take it to and see what he can do.

GREENLEAF

We are renting the next store so will soon be better able than ever to cater to your wants.

Wall Paper

At first sight of our Wall Papers you will say there's an attractiveness about them that puts them lengths ahead of other lines.

IN STOCKING

we select only the best, we have no "shelf warmers" all our Papers are quick sellers. If you choose your Papers from us you have best value for the price obtainable anywhere.

Painting, Paperhanging and Decorating done on shortest notice by best workmen in the city.

JOHN CORNELIUS.

3 Doors South of Intelligencer Office.

Western Beef.

Prime Western Beef together with all kinds of choice meats, supplied by the district, at

C. GREEN'S

267 Front St., 'Phone 109.

Flowers & Vegetables

Of all kinds in season.

... AT ...

J. D. COLLIP'S.

'Phone 205.

Coin Pay Envelopes at The Intelligencer Job Office. Cheapest and best in the city.

Goods We Have
at Right Prices

—Hammocks.
—Fishing Tackle.
—Tennis Goods.
—Golf Goods.
—Lacrosse Goods.
—Base Ball Goods.
—Screen Doors and Windows.
—Fruit Jars.
—Fruit Jar Rubbers.
—Wall Paper.
—Crystal Glass Vases.
—Glass Ware.
—Dinner Sets.
—Toilet Sets.
—Ladies' Hose.
—Ladies' Vests.
Everything in smallwares.

AT THE BEE HIVE
Chas. N. Sulman

SANTAL-MIDY
Standard remedy for Gleet, Gonorrhoea and Runnings IN 48 HOURS. Cures Kidney and Bladder Troubles.
MIDY

Our Pay Envelopes at The Intelligencer Job Office. Cheapest and best in the city.

Sunshine Furnace

extracts all the heat from the fuel and distributes it through the house—only the smoke goes up the chimney.

And it hasn't got that enormous appetite for coal, so common in the ordinary furnace.

Simple to operate, easily cleaned and will last longer than any other Canadian heater.

Burns coal, coke or wood.

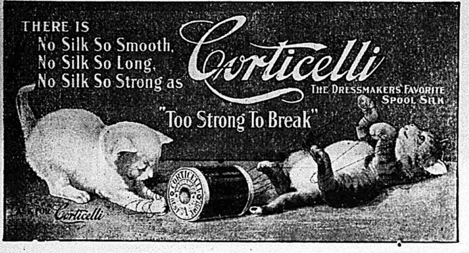
Booklet free.

Sold by all enterprising dealers.

McClary's

LONDON, TORONTO, MONTREAL,
WINNIPEG, VANCOUVER, ST. JOHN, N. B

The W. W. CHOWN CO., Limited,
SOLE AGENTS.



CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY

CAPITAL

10,000 Shares 7 per cent Cumulative Preferred Stock, par value $100 each,	$1,000,000
50,000 Shares Common Stock, par value $100, issued and fully paid	5,000,000
TOTAL CAPITALIZATION	$6,000,000

Issues of $1,000,000.00 7 p.c. Preferred Stock in 10,000 Shares of $100 each at par.

This stock is preferred both as to Assets and Dividends.

The shares are entitled to cumulative preferred dividends from the net earnings of the Company, at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable half yearly on the first days of April and October. They may, at the option of the holder, be exchanged for common shares. They are subject to be called in, in whole or in part, by the Company, at $115.00 per share, at any time after 1st January, 1909.

The total issue of Preferred Stock is only $1,000,000.00, the whole of which is now offered.

Subscriptions for 10,000 Shares of $100 each of the 7 per cent. Preferred Stock of the CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY will now be received at par, that is $100 Share, as follows

per cent on application,
25 " " on allotment,
35 " " 30 days thereafter.
35 " " 60 days thereafter.

One share of Common, par value $100, given with each share of preferred.

The whole of instalments remaining unpaid at any time may be prepaid in full. A discount of one per cent will be allowed upon the par of each share if prepaid at time of allotment.

Notice of allotment will be sent promptly by ordinary letter.

COAL

PROPERTY IN FULL OPERATION

Company owns 9,600 acres of coal property known throughout the coal trade as the New Campbellton Colliery, located on Bras D'Or Bay, County of Victoria, Cape Breton, Novia Scotia. Mine is fully equipped, producing and marketing tons of coal a day at a net profit of $1.00 a ton. Improvements are now being made that will increase the output to over 1,000 tons a day. On present output, figuring 300 working days in year, the net result will more than pay interest on entire issue of preferred, with output of 1,000 tons a day net result will be $300,000 per annum.

IRON

RICHEST ORE IN THE WORLD

Company owns in fee simple, free and clear of all incumbrances, 4000 acres of iron ore deposit, located Natashquan (tidewater) situated on North shore of Gulf of St. Lawrence, in the County of Saguenay, province of Quebec.

Deposits contain 20,000,000 tons of ore ABOVE SEA LEVEL ALONE.

Quality of ore is highest ever discovered, running from 69 per cent to 72 per cent in metallic iron.

More orders for the sale of this ore has been received by the Company than can possibly be accepted, and at a price netting the Company a profit of $2 a ton F. O. B. vessels at Company's docks.

Send for prospectus giving full information as to earnings, reports, etc., etc.

Address all communications and send subscriptions to

COLONIAL SECURITIES CO.,
62 Wall Street, New York City

OR

W. L. MARSTON & COMPANY
110 State Street, Boston

The SAWYER COMPANY.
351 Temple Building. Montreal, Canada.

NIGHT BLINDNESS.

A Condition In Which the Vision Fails as Daylight Fades.

Night blindness is a condition in which vision is perfect, or fairly so, in daylight, but fails with the setting of the sun and is not restored under ordinary conditions of artificial illumination. The sufferer from night blindness can usually see the light of a candle or lamp when he looks directly at it, but he cannot read even when the light is thrown directly upon the page. Usually, however, he sees well in a room lighted brilliantly with electricity, the degree of illumination then approaching that of sunlight.

The cause of night blindness is believed to be an exhausting of the power of vision by too great light, for it occurs mainly among soldiers and sailors in the tropics, who are exposed for many hours to the glare of the sun, and among arctic explorers, whose eyes are dazzled by reflection from the snow. On shipboard it is often associated with scurvy, and persons who are depressed physically or mentally or in any other way "run down" are more likely to suffer than the strong.

Sailors have a superstition that the trouble is due to imprudence in sleeping on deck in the moonlight, and this belief is embodied in the term "moon blink," by which they call it. The tropical moon is probably as guiltless in this respect as it is in the production of insanity.

The only treatment for night blindness is keeping away from bright light or protecting the eyes with goggles or a bandage until the exhausted retina has recovered its tone.—Youth's Companion.

An Arab Tea Party.

A lady traveling in Morocco gives the following account of an Arab tea party: "Our host dispensed sherrub de minat, the wine of the country, made from grapes; the little dome shaped pewter teapot was there with its fond associations of Morocco, together with the copper tray and circle of diminutive painted glasses. A gorgeous indolent sun poured down beyond the patch of shade. The hum and hover of insects vibrated in the air, and presently musicians were summoned—girls wearing pale green jellabs and silver ornaments, with yellow handkerchiefs twisted around their heads and men in bright colors. Sitting down between us, each was given a glass of sherrub de minat and by and by they began to play. Weird and wild music it was, that of the tareegea, the gimbi and the tahr, quaint native instruments of the roughest construction and yet, as music, possessing fascination not a little."

For Financial Purposes.

Before the collection was taken up at a negro place of worship the minister announced that he regretted to state a certain brother had retired to rest the night before without locking the door of his fowl house to find in the morning that all his chickens had vanished.

"I don't want to be personal," he continued, "but I hab my suspicions as to who stole dem chickens. If I'm right in dose suspicions dat man won't put any money in de box which will now be passed round."

There was a grand collection, not a single member of the congregation feigning sleep.

"Now, brederen," announced the minister, "I don't want all yoah dinners spoilt by wondering where dat brother lives who don't lock his chickens up at night. Dat brother don't exist, mah friends. He was a parable foh purposes ob finance."

Cause of Yawning.

Yawning is commonly caused by a temporary deficiency of the air supply in the lungs. When the body is weary with hard and continuous work or mental study, lassitude from the effects of close, heavy air or intense heat, or perhaps from the peculiar state of the health, the respiratory process is sometimes involuntarily stayed for a few moments. To compensate for this stoppage of breathing nature steps in to the rescue and sets up a spasmodic action in the muscles of the mouth, throat and chest, which produces a deep inspiration which takes the form of a yawn.

An Old Church Knocker.

The grotesque knocker on the sanctuary door of Durham cathedral, which bears a rather distinct resemblance to a lion, is said to be of the twelfth century. The hollows for the eyes may have been formerly filled with crystal or enamel, or, as it had been suggested, the open eyes may have been contrived to emit light from within the church, so as to guide the hapless being seeking sanctuary by night to the welcome haven of safety. —Chambers' Journal.

"Told Him Goodby."

"I know that article was written by a southerner," said the astute city editor, and when some one asked why he explained: "A northerner would have put it, 'I said farewell,' or 'I said goodby,' but never 'I told him goodby.' Your southerner always has it 'I told him goodby.'"

Fame.

"Why don't you try to write your name on the scroll of fame?"

"My friend," said Senator Sorghum very earnestly, "I have never yet seen anybody tearing leaflets out of the scroll of fame and getting them cashed at the bank."

His Habitual Reticence.

Reporter (in vestibule)—Is it true that Mr. Gotrox has just died?

Butler (cautiously)—It is, but he has nothing to say for publication.

Stammering men are four times as numerous as stammering women.

The Ritchie Co'y.
Limited

Store Closed Every Wednesday During July and August at 12 O'Clock Noon.

Our Motto—"Advance"

For nearly half a century we have been steadily growing and advancing. To defeat our previous records is still our object.

Just now we desire that this July's business shall defeat all before.

We realized some time ago the effort necessary and you will find the product of this in the very low prices at which our Remnants have been marked.

The values here represented, should alone give us the increase we desire.

Along with these will be daily specials in desirable goods which will make your co-operation with us profitable to you.

Many offerings will be crowded out of the paper. A daily visit during this month will be resultful. Remnants of,

COTTONS	LINENS	DUCK
SHEETINGS	PRINTS	DRESS GOODS
TICKING	MUSLINS	SILKS
TOWELING	GINGHAMS	LININGS
ETC.		ETC.

VALUE IN UNDERGARMENTS

That our Whitewear offering is in no way behind our other clearing values, is clearly shown by the the number of garments being sold daily.

Whitewear such as we are selling now cannot be procured wholesale for less than our marked prices.

Why are we clearing it? Two reasons. We never keep goods through a season—we need the room these are occupying.

Admirers of fine Undergarments will find much to please them in our mantle room. Here are a few of many prices.

—Fine cotton Corset Cover with embroidery trimmed neck—taped seams	15c
—Fine White Cambric Skirt with wide Lawn flounce, tucked and hemstitched—skirt continued under flounce	58c
—Good quality White Cotton Drawers, trimmed with wide frill and torchon lace	25c
—Fine White Cotton Night Gown, yoke of clusters, of tucks and hemstitching, embroidery trimmed low neck and frilled cuffs	59c

Dress Goods Remnants

Our half yearly clearing sale gives us not only a clear stock but insures to our customers, even in our Remnant offering only newest goods.

To the early visitor there will be interesting viewing as many of our most desireable cloths in lengths for skirts and some enough for suits are here at greatly reduced prices.

Curtain Muslins

Just now we cannot see how our assortment of curtain and fancy work Muslins could be more complete.

Every desirable style and price is well represented.

If you have a thought as to new sash curtains, take the elevator to our third floor and see how economically, yet prettily, you can arrange for them.

—Fine Coin Spot Muslins, 36" wide	15c
—Bow Knot pattern with spot, 36" wide	25c
—Plain White and cream scrim, 36" wide	23c

COOL QUALITY

Our Underwear can truly be called "Cool Quality."

The many different, yet desirable brands that crowd our shelving are all here to help you to comfort this warm sticky weather.

You'll not have to pay as much as you might expect either for their help.

If your wants are not yet supplied, here is a fair proposition. Examine our qualities if you are not satisfied, they are right in every way do not buy.

—Fine English Balbriggan Underwear, guaranteed in every particular, per garment	25c, 38c, 50c
—Fine Linocelle Underwear, made from pure Linen, a little more expensive—a great deal cooler and healthier, per garment	$2.50
—Few odd garments in fine Balbriggan, were $1.00, $1.25 for	75c

Men's Straws

Very little used to be heard about "correct style" in Straw Hats, but one without style is just as much out as any other kind would be.

If you are not just posted as to what fashion has smiled upon for this season, step into our Men's department. Cost you nothing to find out and very little to purchase.

—Men's fine Straw Hats in latest weaves and shapes	75c to $2.50

Agents for Standard Patterns.

The Ritchie Co'y.
Limited

CLOTHING BOUGHT HERE PRESSED FREE OF CHARGE

Everything
Is Thoroughly Good

That's certain, at QUICK & ROBERTSON'S—we are more particular about giving than you are in getting it perhaps.

But there are other reasons why you should buy at this store where quality is the first consideration.

We not only make goodness certain by applying every known test for quality, but are equally as careful to price that goodness as common as the ordinary sorts are priced elsewhere.

HERE are a few suggestions of summer fixin's that should interest men and mothers of boys.

FOR BOYS.

Vacation Suits and other wear, things that after good hard wear show the difference between our good sorts at our common prices and cheap sorts, which cost a little less.

—Regulation Sailor Blouse Suits, Cheviot mixtures, stripes and serges .... $1.25 to $4.50

—Norfolk Jackets, single and double-breasted suits for older boys, extensive showing of plain and fancy mixtures .... $2.00 to $5.00

—Washable Sailor Suits 50c to $1.50.

—Wash Waists and Blouses, 25c to $1.00.

FOR MEN.

—SUMMER SUITS—Such as are impossible to obtain except at the best custom tailors—perfect fitting, stylish garments, suited to men who want the out-of-the-ordinary sorts. Homespuns, Tropical Serges, Worsteds and Flannels.......................... $3.75 to $12.00

—OUTING TROUSERS $1.00 to $4.00.

—NEGLIGE SHIRTS—In stripes and patterned materials, such as custom shirt makers would show you as their newest—plain or plaited bosoms.......... 50c to $1.50

—STRAW HATS —Every one new, the largest assortment of the smartest shapes the best makers have produced.

Sailors, in low crown .... 50c to $2.00

Panama shape, the right ones .... 75c to $2.50

QUICK & ROBERTSON

Here is where you buy Johnston's Clothing for Men and Boys.

Charcoal Irons

are the correct thing for you to do your summer ironing. Without heating up the whole house.

Special value

$1.50

Charcoal

the best hardwood Charcoal put up in paper sacks,

15c ea.

25c FOR TWO.

The W. W. CHOWN Company. Limited

Exclusive Agents.

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

At Wallbridge & Clarke's

Seasonable Supplies

Montserrat Lime Juice
Raspberry Vinegar (Crosse & Blackwell's)
Gurd's Ginger Ale & Soda Water
Apollinaris and Radnor Water
Pabst Milwaukee Lager.

Clarets and Sauterne

Barton & Guestier's Bordeaux Clarets
Barton & Guestier's Bordeaux Sauterne
Nath. Johnston's Clarets

Rhine Wine and Burgundy
Light Canadian Wines—Red or White

Canned Meats

New Packs. Finest Quality.

Whole Ox Tongues
Lunch Tongues
Lamb's Tongues
Boned Chicken
Boned Turkey
Boned Duck

Pate de foie
Potted Ham
Potted Tongue
Sliced Dried Beef
Ham Loaf
Veal Loaf
Chicken Tamales
Lunch Beef
Lunch Bacon
Chicken, Ham & Tongue
Pigs Feet
Jellied Tenderloins
Vienna Sausages
Luncheon Sausages
Baked Beans—Plain or in Tomato or Chili Sauce, etc., etc., etc.

Camp & Picnic Supplies

Essence of Coffee—Patterson's, Symington's or Crosse & Blackwell's.
Condensed Milk, Evaporated Cream, etc.
Fancy Biscuits
Fine Old Cheese
Pickles and Sauces
Fine Teas and Coffee
Soups and Vegetaples

French Sardines
New Pack Lobster and Shrimps
Salmon, Scallops,
Tunny Fish, etc.

WALLBRIDGE & CLARKE

Bridge St.—Tel. 139.
Branch store Front St.—Tel. 157.

CANADA'S PRIDE.

NEW INNOVATION ON GRAND TRUNK'S FAMOUS "INTERNATIONAL LIMITED."

The dining-room of the Cafe Parlor Car leaving Montreal this morning on the "International Limited" from Bonaventure Station was visited by a number of people to inspect a new innovation that the Grand Trunk are experimenting with in the way of an artistic curtain for the windows. This morning, for the first time, the curtains that have been formerly used were taken out and substituted by a new curtain made of pantasote, with an insertion of white silk in the centre on which was printed in half-tone process a view of a scene on the Grand Trunk Railway System. This process of printing was so executed that it gave the appearance of a transparency, and the picture could be seen both from the inside and exterior of the car. Among the subjects that were used was noticed the celebrated picture of "Rabbits Bay—Lake of Bays" in the "Highlands of Ontario," and one which has been so favorably compared to Loch Lomond, in Scotland. Another view was the Grand Trunk Double-Track Steel-Arch Bridge across Niagara's Gorge and a view taken among the New England Hills. This device in railroad equipment is entirely new, and the value of the curtains as an artistic adjunct to a railway car will be demonstrated in the next few days.

The Free Library Service, which was installed in the Cafe Parlor Cars on the Grand Trunk through trains has been a source of much favorable comment by the travelling public, and the pictures have been made good use of, not only by the passengers who are non-subscribers to the Booklover's Library, but a great convenience and accommodation to the subscribers who are allowed the privilege of exchanging their books on the Grand Trunk trains.

The "International Limited" left this morning with her usual large number of passengers.

REASONABLE PANT REASONS.

If there is any reason why you should wear pants, there is every reason why you should buy them off Quick & Robertson. If you are particular about the kind of cloth that goes in them, particular about the cut and make, or particular about how much change you will have left, then we can satisfy you. At present we are offering over 300 pairs pants bought from a manufacturer at greatly reduced prices. We have divided them into two lots, $1.50 pants for $1.00, and $1.75 and $2.00 pants for $1.25.

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

Injunction Served on Seven Aldermen.

PROTESTING AGAINST THE FRONT STREET RAILS BEING SOLD EXCEPT TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER,

AND NOTIFYING THE SEVEN ALDERMEN THAT, IN CASE THE RAILS ARE SOLD FOR $10 PER TON,

THEY WILL BE HELD PERSONALLY RESPONSIBLE AND LIABLE FOR THE LOSS OF $6.50 PER TON THEREBY OCCASSIONED

The situation in regard to the proposed sale of the street rails to the Cement Company has reached a climax. It will be remembered that, some time ago, the Cement people offered to purchase the rails from the city for $10 per ton, agreeing in case the works failed to run for a year at any time, to forfeit the rails to the city. When that proposition came before the Council some of the Aldermen thought the price offered altogether too low, and a motion prevailed that tenders be asked for. This was done, and the highest tender received was that of Langbort & Co., of Kingston, who offered $16.50 per ton for the rails. Then the Council decided not to sell the rails, as the Trenton Electric Company asked that action be deferred, claiming that, some day, they expected to be in a position to make an offer for the road. Nothing further was said about the rails for some time, action being deferred to allow the Trenton Electric people to make a definite proposition, which they did not make. Finally the Cement people again approached the Council re the purchase of the rails, and it was resolved that, if the Trenton Electric people, or somebody else, did not make a definite proposition inside of two weeks re the operating of the road the Council would be prepared to deal with the Cement people for the sale of the rails. The Trenton Electric people wrote pleading the illness of their electrician and manager, and asking that the matter be deferred till next spring. Mr. Walter Fanning also submitted a letter from a Mr. Glass, of Detroit, who he was hopeful would, sooner or later, not only run the Belleville street railway but extend it to Tweed and possibly elsewhere. Mr. Fanning asked that action be deferred. However, as the Council considered that the Glass proposition could not be considered a definite one they felt called upon to deal with the Cement people. Mr. McNab, on behalf of the Belleville Portland Cement Company, offered to purchase the rails, spikes, fishplates, etc., at $10 per long ton, and to give the city $250 towards repairing the street, which must necessarily be somewhat disturbed by the removal of the rails. Nothing was said, in the new proposition, about the rails being forfeited providing the works failed at any time to run for a year. As a sort of a quid pro quo Mr. McNab offered to give the city $750 more if at any time within five years anybody came and operated an electric railway in Belleville, or to Tweed, or to Point Ann. This proposition was finally accepted by the Council, there being only one dissenting voice, namely, Ald. Marsh. It was agreed, however, that, in view of the fact that Mr. Glass had promised to send a man to look over the situation before the end of the present week, the resolution selling the rails to the Cement people should not go into effect till Monday, July 6.

When the action of the Council became known there was considerable dissatisfaction among our citizens, which came to a climax yesterday afternoon, when the following injunction was served:

Belleville, July 3, 1903.

To Ald. Panter (Acting Mayor), Pope, Sinclair, Galbraith, McFee, Chown and Sulman, Aldermen of the City of Belleville.

As a ratepayer of the City of Belleville, I notify you and each of you that in the event of your selling or attempting to sell the rails and tracks now laid down on the streets of the City of Belleville, formerly owned by the Belleville Traction (Street Railway) Company, I will take legal proceedings on behalf of myself and the ratepayers of Belleville to hold you responsible and personally liable to the city for damages to the extent of $6.50 per ton and to annul your illegal act. I hereby protest against the sale of the said property of this city in any manner other than by public auction or publicly advertised tender with the consent of the ratepayers, and if said rails are sold for a less sum than that obtainable therefor from the highest bidder you will be held individually responsible for the loss occasioned thereby.

WM. CURTIS.

What the next move in the matter will be only the stars can tell.

HALF HOLIDAY EXCURSION.

To Deseronto, Glenora and Picton, Wednesday, July 8th, at 2 o'clock. Five hours at Deseronto, or two hours at Glenora, or one hour at Picton. Str. Aletha returns at 10.30. Tickets 35c, children 20c. sm&t

"COFFIN McDONALD" AGAIN IN THE TOILS.

"DID UP" A GROCERY STORE FOR CHEWING TOBACCO AND BOLOGNA SAUSAGE.

"Coffin" McDonald has again been up to his old tricks, and, in consequence, is behind the prison bars. On Wednesday evening he called at Mr. Powell's grocery store, on Mill street, and represented that he was an engineer on the Grand Trunk Railway. He asked to be trusted with groceries to the extent of about $2 until next pay day. Although the party who waited upon him was suspicious the articles were done up, including some tobacco and 3 1-2 pounds of bologna sausage. McDonald sampled a plug of the tobacco and picking up the sausage hurriedly left the store. The affair was reported to the police and yesterday afternoon Officer Hayes secured "Coffin" and locked him up.

McDonald was brought up before the Magistrate this morning and pleaded not guilty to the charge of procuring goods by false pretences. He was remanded until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

SPECIAL SATURDAY NIGHT SALE.

Be on hand at the Oak Hall this (Saturday) evening sharp at 8 o'clock and take advantage of two special sales, 50 dozen boys' and men's suits clearing at 25cts, and about 50 men's suits clearing at $3.90. This offer will not be made again this season.

Sports and Pastimes

SPORTING NOTE AND COMMENT.

Hastings Star: The lacrosse team defaulted to Belleville on Wednesday, that being the day set for their league game in that city. This puts Hastings out of the running and leaves Belleville and Peterboro Athletics to fight for this section of district 12. When Belleville defeated Hastings here on June 3rd it was easily seen that our boys were not in their class, and it was then decided that the team would have to be reinforced or drop out. Hopes were held that a few of Hastings' former players would return and give the old town a hand, but these hopes fell last week and word was at once sent to Belleville that Hastings could not connect.

Another club in this district has decided to drop out of the Junior C.L.A., namely, Port Hope, who have notified the Peterboro T.A.S. that they will not fulfil their engagement at Peterboro to-day.

SORE THROAT AND HOARSENESS with their attendant dangers may be speedily averted and remedied by the use of Polson's Nerviline. Excellent to gargle with—ten times better than a mustard plaster, and more convenient for the outside. Nerviline penetrates the tissues instantly, soothes the pain, allays inflammation, and cures sore throat and hoarseness, simply because that's what it is made for. The large 25 cent bottle of Nerviline is unexcelled as a household liniment. It cures everything.

Who Owns the Shaft?

At 11.30 last night Officer McCrodan, whilst on duty, observed Thos. Larabey driving near the upper bridge. He had in the waggon a long iron shaft, to which was attached a large pulley. When the officer went to Larabey to make inquiries he jumped out of the rig and ran away. The officer took charge of the vehicle and property. It is believed that Larabey stole the shaft.

AN UNDOUBTED CURE FOR CANCER.

A New, Painless Method of Treatment That Completely Cures The Disease.

The swift march of medical science has at last overtaken cancer and placed it on the list of curable diseases.

The old painful methods of treatment by the knife or plaster and which were almost sure to result in failure, have been superseded by our Constitutional Treatment, which completely roots out the disease from the system and leaves not a vestige or trace behind to again cause trouble. Full particulars of this pleasant home treatment sent to anyone on receipt of two stamps. B. I. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

Off to the West.

A number of Bellevillians left this morning for a visit to Winnipeg and other places in Manitoba. Amongst the party were the following: Mrs. Wm. Baker and daughter, Miss Fawn, Misses McRae, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Wallbidge, Mr. A. W. Vancott, Prof. Doolittle and Miss Sidna Brown.

C.E. CONVENTION, DENVER, COL.

July 9th to 13th.

In connection with the Christian Endeavor Convention, Denver, Col., special reduced rates will be in effect via the Grand Trunk Railway, tickets are good going July 5th, 7th and 8th, valid to return, arriving at destination on or before August 31st. The Grand Trunk service is unexcelled for those who purpose attending this convention. Special train will leave Toronto at 3 p.m., Monday, July 6th. For further information apply to agents Grand Trunk Railway System. 6td

Dark Hair We mean all that rich, dark color your hair used to have. If it's gray now, no matter; for Ayer's Hair Vigor always restores color to gray hair. And often it makes the hair grow very heavy. $1. All druggists. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

ENTERTAINED HIS MEN.

CAPT. BARRAGAR, OF E CO., FIFTEENTH, MADE THINGS PLEASANT FOR HIS MEN LAST NIGHT.

The non-commissioned officers and men of No. 5 Co., Fifteenth Regiment, were pleasantly entertained by Capt. and Mrs. Barragar at their residence on Howard street last night. The boys were in uniform, and spent a very pleasant couple of hours with social intercourse, songs, music, etc. Master Ernie Alford played the piano; Corp. Holton and Pte. Pitney gave mandolin selections, and songs were finely rendered by Sergts. Pratt and Ridley. A pleasant feature of the evening was the presentation to each member of the company of a photograph of the silver cup won by No. 5 for general proficiency. After ice cream and other refreshments had been served, Color-Sergt. Alford, on behalf of the men, expressed their thanks to Capt. and Mrs. Barragar for the delightful evening's entertainment, and called for three cheers for that popular officer, which were heartily given. Capt. Barragar replied gracefully, thanking the men for their good feeling towards him, also for their behavior during the past season, and hoping the pleasant relations between them would always continue. "God Save the King" brought an enjoyable evening to a close.

A POPULAR ANNUAL EXCURSION.

The Baptist and John St. Presbyterian S.S.'s have engaged the elegant Str. Niagara for their excursion to 12 o'Clock Point on Wednesday, July 15th, making 3 trips, 9 a.m., 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. The I.O.O.F. Band will give a concert on the grounds afternoon and evening. Tickets only 25c. Children under 12, 15 cts. 54-11-13

CITY AND DISTRICT.

Advertisements under this heading TWO CENTS A WORD; subsequent consecutive insertions ONE CENT A WORD. No loss charged as less than twenty-five words

A party of young gentlemen left yesterday on Mr. V. Hyman's yacht Retta for a few days sail down the bay.

A number of young people from the city went down to Forester's Island this afternoon to participate in a function which is to be held there to-night.

Nine bovines were this morning impounded by Mr. Arnott, who found them roaming about near the agricultural park.

According to the Government returns, the Mutual Life of Canada did the second largest amount of new business in this country last year, and did it on the lowest ratio of expense of any of them, and paid the largest dividends showing it to be the most profitable company to insure in. S. Burrows, General Agent.

EXCURSION.

Tabernacle Ladies' Aid will run an excursion to Picton, per Steamer Varuna, Wednesday, July 8th. Boat leaves at 8.30, giving three hours in Picton. Tickets 25 cents. 4-6

1,000 ISLANDS AND ROCHESTER.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian" leave Belleville for Thousand Islands at 3.25 h.m., daily except Mondays. Fare $1.00. Returning Str. leaves at 11.38 p.m. for Rochester, N.Y. m26d&w3m

MARRIAGES

COOK—PRINGLE. — At the Manse, George St., by the Rev. M. W. Maclean, James S. Cook to Margaret Pringle.

KEEP YOUR EYES OPEN and be sure that when you ask for Perry Davis' Painkiller you get just that and nothing else. Use it promptly to cure cramps, diarrhoea and all other bowel complaints in summer.

ELMPOOL

BELLEVILLE.

OPENS D.V., SEPT. 9th.

A high-class Boarding and Day School for girls. Under the patronage of the Lord Bishop of Ontario.

Boys admitted to primary department only.

MISS F. E. CARROLL,
Lady Principal.

Prospectus sent upon application. Address P. O. Box 535, Belleville.

A SERIOUS DINER.

The Way the Great Emperor Charles V. Ate His Meals.

The diary of a German gentleman, Bartholomew Sastrow, who lived in the times of the Emperor Charles V., gives us a good idea of the gastronomic customs of those times. Sastrow's description of the table habits of the greatest ruler in his day is very interesting.

Young princes and counts served the repast. There were invariably four courses of six dishes. The emperor had no one to carve for him. He began by cutting his bread in pieces large enough for one mouthful, then attacked his plate. He often used his fingers while he held the plate under his chin with the other hand.

When he felt thirsty he made a sign to the "doctor" standing by the table; then they went to the sideboard for two silver flagons and filled a goblet which held about a measure and a half. The emperor drained it to the last drop, practically at one draft.

During the meal he never uttered a syllable, scarcely smiled at the most amusing sallies of the jesters behind his chair, finally picked his teeth with quills and, after washing his hands, retired to a window recess, where anybody could approach him with a petition.

When and Where to Rest.

Rest does not mean absolute inaction, but a change to mental occupation if muscular work has been indulged in, and vice versa if mental work has been indulged in. We should endeavor to sleep eight hours out of twenty-four under the most favorable condition.

As to where: In a comfortable bed on a firm hair mattress and pillows or cotton mattress and pillows, as both answer the same hygienic purpose; among our books three hours a day if our work is muscular, or an out of door active life if mental the same amount of time—to some complete change of locality, to others a change of climate and to still others of environment, and so on and so on.

As to when: (1) As nearly as possible one day in seven. (2) An annual vacation. (3) After excessive mental or physical exercise.

But always remember that too much work means waste, wreck, and too much rest means rust, death.

Miracle of Emerson's Style.

Emerson's highest artistic quality has in it always a suggestion of miracle. One "cannot see how it was done," and imitation is disaster. The sentence, the phrase, creates in the mind a sense of luminousness, so keen is the vibration. This may be said of all works of high artistic genius, but in the case of Emerson the miraculously luminous effect is peculiarly felt. On a building at the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo the visitor who read the following words, even if he could not remember having read them before, might not long doubt as to their origin: "O rich and various man, thou palace of sight and sound, carrying in thy senses the morning and the night and the unfathomable galaxy; in thy brain the geometry of the city of God, in thy heart the bower of love and the realms of right and wrong."—Century.

The Unfortunate Clam.

The first man who used the expression "Don't be a clam" should be credited with a bit of advice chock full of wisdom. Somebody is after the clam in season and out, day and night. It is devoured in soft shelled infancy by fishes, sea fowl and crows, is sealed in cans, made into stews and chowders, baked in big pies on the seashore and dug for fishermen's bait.

The clam furnishes food for many men of many lands and also for seals, polar bears, the walrus, foxes, crows, gulls and fishes, and there never was a bait, with the exception possibly of porgy chum—i. e., ground up porgies—that equaled the clam for sea fishing.

Carthage's Great Snake.

The ancients firmly believed in monster serpents of all kinds and of both the land and marine species. During the wars with Carthage a great snake is said to have kept the Roman army from crossing the Bagrados river for several days. The monster swallowed up no less than seventy Roman soldiers during this combat and was not conquered until a hundred stones from as many different catapults were fired upon it all at one time. The monster skull and skin were preserved and afterward exhibited in one of the Roman temples. The dried skin of the creature was 120 feet in length, according to Pliny.

Hope is always liberal, and they that trust her promises make little scruple of reveling today on the profits of tomorrow.

ESTABLISHED 1870.

MEN'S HATS

Porto Ricans
Fine Straws
Light Weight Felts.
THE NEWEST STYLES.

S. A. HYMAN & CO.

N.B.—Store closed every Wednesday during July and August at 12 o'clock noon.

GLASGOW WAREHOUSE.

Saturday Night Sale

. . . . OF . . . .

Cotton Goods

The aftermath of our Big Mid-Summer Sale has left us with a number of ends of Cotton Goods, ranging in lengths from 2½ to 12 yards.

Goods Comprising Cambrics, Lawns, Ducks, and prints, which we will sell Saturday Night

AT

6c a yd.

Don't miss getting some of them, nothing in the lot worth less than 10 cents a yard, and goods up to 15c a yard.

SALE OPENS AT 7:30 SHARP.

Laidlaw & Ketcheson.

DIRECT IMPORTERS

Daily Intelligencer.

THE INTELLIGENCER IS SOLD AT
J. W. London's and G. Wardhaugh's.

Local Reading Advertisements,

words 50 cents; 2 cents per word first insertion, per word subsequent consecutive insertions. Headlines count as 12 words; contracts for long periods made at office

Our Italian Macaroons

Are decidedly popular, made fresh twice a week. 10c a doz.

CHAS. S. CLAPP

BATH HELPS

It adds much to the luxury and benefit of baths to have at hand all the usual requisites. There is we think no item of bath supplies we do not carry. It will not cost you much to provide a complete outfit.

Bath Brushes, Mitts, Bath Tablets, Soaps, Toilet Waters, Sea Salt, Loofahs, Sponges, etc.

McKeown's DRUG STORE

The Sun & Hastings Savings and Loan Co. of Ontario.

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL
$5,000,000.

3 1-2 per cent. allowed on Deposits payable on Call.

4 per cent. on Deposits for one year or over.

Money to Loan upon favorable terms.

OFFICE, No. 46 Bridge St., Belleville,

J. P. C. PHILLIPS,
Manager Belleville Branch.

The longer you halt the steeper the mountain grows.

MONITOR

This is another fine Mantle Clock, not quite so expensive as Gadski in last week's advertisement, but fully as serviceable. It is an eight-day hour and half strike on cathedral gong, fancy columns with trimmings and drop handles, in every way a beautiful clock. Our price only $5.50.

T. BLACKBURN.

Eyes examined free of charge. Jeweller & Optician.

Special Sale !

We will offer for to-morrow, Saturday, all the stock of Hammocks at greatly reduced prices.

Window Screens	15c each
Croquet Sets, 4 ball	69c
Croquet Sets, 6 ball	89c
Croquet Sets, 8 ball	$1.10
Ladies' Wrappers	67c

Go-Carts, Express Waggons and Boys' Bicycles will go cheap.

We must have room in order to receive our import stock of Fall and Xmas goods.

McINTOSH BROS.

Alligator Stories.

The game books kept by all the principal hostelries at Tampa Bay make exciting reading for the gentle stranger, in whom the various entries conjure up vivid reminiscences of Indian jungle or African river, where one goes

A-swimming in the muddy Nile,
And swims into a crocodile.

And while there is great excitement in playing a 150-pound tarpon, in netting a big catch of mullet, or in bringing down an Imperial eagle, the sportsman who goes after alligators feels he is really emulating the hunter who returns from the jungle laden with tiger skins and elephant tusks, and this thrill can be experienced by anyone who finds his way to Tampa Bay, where alligators of seven, nine and eleven feet are continually bagged.

The belief was long current that the only vulnerable spot in an alligator was the eye, and that a rifle ball would glance from the skin of this tropical armed cruiser, but a modern rifle ball will penetrate his hide anywhere, though it is not always immediately fatal. Apropos of Florida alligators, here is an amusing record from one of the game books at Tampa Bay Someone wrote: "Killed the largest alligator seen this year. Found in his stomach a book, a piece of pinewood, a fisherman's float, and some small fish!"

Right under this another sportsman wrote: "Killed a much bigger alligator. The stomach contained a gold watch, ten thousand dollars in Government bonds, and a cord of wood." Not to be outdone, a third hunter wrote: "Shot the biggest alligator ever killed in Florida. In the stomach were found the remains of a steam launch, a lot of old railroad iron, a motor car, and a quantity of melted ice, proving that it existed during the glacial period!"

Pat on the Hot Weather.

'Shure, I am just drippin' wid sweat;
Me shirt an' me collar is wet.
I've a 'kerchief that cum from the store,
An' I've mopped at me face till it's sore.
Now I'm afther thinkin'
In weight I'll be shrinkin'
If of this heat we have more.

'Shure, I was a grumblin' fool;
Not contint wid the weather whin cool.
Faith, I've got me pay,
Fur it's hotter to-day,
Thin I iver seen it afore.
Now Pat's going to grumble no more."
—M. H.

Farming Told on Him.

It was not a Canadian farmer of whom an English paper tells a story, although the incident might possibly be matched in this country. The agriculturist in question had been to a rent dinner to enjoy himself among men of his own walk in life, while his hard-working wife stayed at home and saw to it that the farm suffered no loss in his absence.

"I'm aboot tired out," was the man's greeting upon his return. "Is t' cows in t' barn?"

"Yes, long since," replied his spouse, barely stopping a moment from her duties to glance at him as she spoke.

"Is t' hosses unharnessed and fed?" he enquired.

"Yes."

"Fowls locked up?"

"Yes."

"Wood chopped for mornin'?"

"Yes."

"Them ducks plucked and dressed for market?"

"Yes."

"Wagon-wheel mended and ready to start in t' mornin'?"

"Yes."

"Oh, then," concluded the good man with a sigh of relief, "let me have my supper and turn in. Farmin' is beginnin' to tell on me."

Heals Inflamed, Itching Skin

CURES ECZEMA, SALT RHEUM AND TETTER, LEAVING THE SKIN SMOOTH, SOFT AND NATURAL.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

As a means of allaying inflammation, relieving the dreadful itching, and healing and curing itching skin diseases, ulcers and eruptions, we believe that we can prove that Dr. Chase's Ointment is the most potent preparation that it is possible to obtain So many extreme cases have been cured, so much intense and continued agony has been relieved, and such a host of people have volunteered their evidence in this regard that we challenge anyone to produce like endorsement for any ointment or any preparation which is recommended for such diseases.

Dr. Chase's Ointment certainly stands alone, unapproached and unrivalled as a healer of the skin and positive cure for itching skin diseases. From pimples to eczema, from chilblains to ulcers, each and every form of itching skin disease has been cured by this great ointment.

Mr. G. H. McConnell, engineer in Fleury's foundry, Aurora, Ont., states; "I believe that Dr. Chase's Ointment is worth its weight in gold For about thirty years I was troubled with eczema, and could not obtain any cure. I was so unfortunate as to have blood poison, and this developed into eczema, the most dreadful of skin diseases.

"I was so bad that I would get up at night and scratch myself until the flesh was raw and flaming. The torture I endured is almost beyond description, and now I cannot say anything too good for Dr. Chase's Ointment. It has cured me and I recommend it because I know there is nothing so good for itching skin."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is known in almost every community. Ask your neighbors about it. There is probably a marked cure at your door which you can investigate. The cures made by this preparation will stand investigation; 60 cents a box; at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool Sends Lower Prices For Corn and Wheat—Live Stock Markets—The Latest Quotations.

Friday Evening, July 3.

Liverpool wheat futures closed ¼d lower to day than yesterday and corn futures ¼d lower.

The Chicago Board of Trade and principal United States grain boards were closed to-day.

TORONTO ST. LAWRENCE MARKET.

Grain—

Wheat, red, bush.	$0 76 to	$0 77
Wheat, white, bush.	0 76	0 77
Wheat, spring, bush.	0 70	0 72
Wheat, goose, bush.	0 70	....
Barley, bush.	0 42½	....
Beans, bush	1 30	1 50
Beans, hand-picked	1 75	....
Peas, bush	0 78¼	....
Rye, bush	0 45	....
Oats, bush	0 35	0 35½

LIVERPOOL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

Liverpool, July 3.—Wheat, spot, dull; No. 2 red, western winter, 6s 2d; No. 1 northern spring, 6s 5d; No. 1 Cal., 6s 6¼d; futures quiet; July, 6s 5d; Sept., 6s 2¼d. Corn, spot quiet: American mixed, 4s 11d; futures quiet; July, 4s 8¼d; Sept., 4s 5¾d.

Bacon, Cumberland cut, quiet, 47s; short clear backs, quiet, 49s; shoulders, square, quiet, 38s. Lard, prime western in tierces, quiet, 40s 6d; American refined in pails, quiet, 40s. Cheese, American finest white, dull, 50s 6d; American finest colored, dull, 51s 6d. Hops at London (Pacific Coast), steady, £5 15s to £6.

Receipts of wheat during the past three days, 25,000 centals, including 7000 American.

Receipts of American corn during the past three days, 2700 centals. Weather fine.

NEW YORK DAIRY MARKET.

New York, July 3.—Butter steady; unchanged; receipts, 5920.

Cheese—Dull; receipts, 5860; State, full cream, small, fancy, 10¼; do., fair to prime, 8¼c to 10c; do., large colored fancy, 10¼c; do., white fancy, 10¼c; do., fair to prime, 9c to 10c; do., light skims, choice, 8½c; do., part skims, choice, 6½c to 7c; do., prime, 6c to 6¼c; do., fair to good, 5c to 5¾c; do., common, 3c; do., full skims, 2c.

Eggs—Irregular; receipts, 9392; State and Pennsylvania, fancy selected white, 19c to 19¼c; do., mixed extras, 18c to 18½c; do., western, thirds, 13½c to 14½c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Unchanged—Receipts Light and Prices Weak at Buffalo.

London, July 3.—Live cattle steady at 11¼c to 12c per lb. for American steers, dressed weight; Canadian steers, 10½c to 11½c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 9¾c per lb.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

The receipts of live stock were 59 carloads, composed of 443 cattle, 2000 hogs, 1512 sheep and lambs and about 50 calves.

Exporters—Best loads exporters are worth $5 to $5.15 per cwt.; medium to good at about $4.75 to $4.90.

Export Bulls—Choice quality bulls sold at $4 to $4.25 per cwt.; good bulls sold at $3.60 to $3.80 per cwt.

Export Cows—Export cows sold at $4.00 per cwt.

Butchers' Cattle—Choice picked lots of butchers, weighing from 1025 to 1100 lbs. each, equal in quality to best exporters, sold at $4.65 to $4.75; loads of good sold at $4.50 to $4.60; fair to good, $4.30; common, $4 to $4.25; rough to inferior, $3.50 to $3.90.

Feeders—Steers of good quality, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, are worth $4 to $4.40 per cwt.

Short-keep Feeders—Good steers, 1100 to 1200 lbs. each, are worth $4.50 to $4.75 per cwt.

Stockers—One-year to two-year-old steers, 400 to 700 lbs. each, are worth $3.50 to $3.90 per cwt.; off-colors and of poor breeding quality of same weights are worth $2.75 to $3 per cwt.

Milch Cows—Milch cows and springers are worth $25 to $55 each.

Calves—Calves sold at $2 to $10 each, or from $4.50 to $5.50 per cwt.

Sheep—Prices, $3.75 to $3.90 per cwt. for ewes, and bucks at $2.75 to $3.

Spring Lambs—Prices easy at $2.50 to $4.25 each.

Hogs—Best select bacon hogs, not less than 160 lbs., nor more than 200 lbs. each, off cars, sold at $5.75 per cwt.; lights and fats at $5.50; sows, $4 to $4.25 per cwt., and stags, $2 to $3 per cwt.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, N.Y., July 3.—Cattle—Receipts, 100 head; market dull and easier; prime and shipping steers, $4.80 to $5.25; butchers' steers, $4 to $4.75; cows and heifers, $2.25 to $4.00; bulls, $3 to $4; stockers and feeders, $3 to $4.25.

Veals—Receipts, 250 head; steady; $5.25 to $6.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 2000 head; active; pigs and yorkers, 10c to 20c higher; others about steady; heavy and mixed, $6.20 to $6.25; yorkers and pigs, $6.00 to $6.75; roughs, $5.40 to $5.65; stags, $4 to $4.50; dairies, $6.15 to $6.25.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 2000 head; sheep steady; lambs 25c lower; lambs, $4.75 to $6.50; yearlings, $5 to $5.25; ewes, $3.50 to $3.75; sheep mixed, $2 to $4.25; wethers, $4.50 to $4.75.

No market tomorrow.

NEW YORK LIVE STOCK.

New York, July 3.—Beeves—Receipts, 294; steady; steers, $4.40 to $5.30; bulls, $3 to $4.20; cows, $1.80 to $4.30. Shipments, 5200 quarters.

Calves—Receipts, 160; lower; veals, $4 to $5.75; choice and extra, $6 to $6.25; buttermilks, $2.75 to $3.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 3627; lower; sheep, $2.75 to $4.25; lambs, $5 to $6.75; extras, $6.80; culls, $4.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 1298; no sales.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, July 3.—Cattle—Receipts, 2000; very slow; good to prime steers, $4.90 to $5.50; poor to medium, $4 to $4.75; stockers and feeders, $2.75 to $4.00; cows, $1.50 to $4; heifers, $2 to $4.50; canners, $1.50 to $2.75; bulls, $2 to $4; calves, $2.25 to $6; Texas fed steers, $3.50 to $4.40.

Hogs—Receipts to-day, 16,000; market, 10c to 15c lower; close, dull; mixed and butchers', $5.70 to $5.85; good to choice heavy, $5.65 to $5.75; rough heavy, $5.40 to $5.60; light, $5.70 to $5.90; bulk of sales, $5.60 to $5.80.

Sheep—Receipts 5000; sheep and lambs, slow; good to choice wethers, $3.75 to $4.25; fair to choice mixed, $3 to $3.75; native lambs, $4 to $6.25.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Perth, July 3.—On the Cheese Market here to-day there were 2250 boxes of white cheese and 350 boxes of colored; all were sold at 9¾c; two factories were not represented on the market. Fowler got 1750 boxes; Bissell 450 boxes, Webster 350 boxes and Ferguson 90 boxes.

Ottawa, July 3.—The move for Ottawa inspection of cheese was given a black eye in the Cheese Board to-day, when the buyers refused to bid until the words "Ottawa Inspection," substituted for Montreal inspection on the cheese were withdrawn. All the factories complied, except two, when 215 boxes were withdrawn. This left 1714 boxes, 1385 white, 329 colored, all of which, except 246, were sold at 9¾c. The action of the representatives of the Montreal exporters is likely to put the "finish" on the agitation for Ottawa inspection.

Napanee, July 3.—Napanee cheese boarded 1210 white, 320 colored; sales, 1210 white sold at 9¾c; balance will sell on curb at same price.

Iroquois, July 3.—There were 1271 cheese boarded here to-day, nearly all colored; highest bid 9¾c; eight lots sold on board; balance on curb, at this price. Buyers: Ault, Wier, Gibson, Prunner, Smyth and Johnson.

Kemptville, July 3.—Cheese market boarded 1476 boxes, 1206 colored and 270 white; sold on board 710 boxes, all at 9¾c.

South Finch, Ont., July 3.—At the regular meeting of South Finch Cheese Board, held this evening, the number of cheese boarded was 2500 boxes, half white, balance colored. Price offered on board, 9¾c for both; none sold, as factory men are looking for more on the street. Buyers present: Messrs. Logan, Keenan, Ault, Gibson, Pruner, Frazer and Weir.

Fishing Tug Seized.

Port Colborne, July 4.—The fishing tug Kitty D., of Dunkirk, with fish and nets, was seized yesterday morning off Port Maitland and brought here by the revenue cutter Petrel. Several boats were lifting nets when the Petrel came on to them. They all escaped but the Kitty D. She is owned in Buffalo by Ryan & Dechert.

Alleged Poisoner Freed.

Mount Holly, N.Y., July 4.— The jury in the case of Mrs. Annie R. Phares, charged with the murder of her husband, Albert Phares, by poisoning, brought in a verdict of not guilty late yesterday afternoon.

One Year For "Digger" Operator.

Ottawa, July 4.—Francis Foote, the street railway conductor convicted on two charges of using the "digger" to extract fares from boxes, was sent to Central Prison yesterday for one year.

Hold-Up at St. Kitts.

St. Catharines, July 4.—William Calcott was held up by two men on Genova street Thursday night and relieved of his watch. He was knocked insensible by his assailants, and several stitches were required to bring the gaping flesh together. The police arrested James McGlade and Cornelius Nagle in connection with the affair, and they were identified by the victim.

BABY'S OWN SOAP

Steer a Safe Course

The safest course for delicate skins is to use
BABY'S OWN SOAP.

No Other Soap is as Good.

ALBERT TOILET SOAP CO., Mfrs. Montreal. 022

Impaired Digestion

is quickly corrected by these wonderful pills—One trial will show you the reason for the big sales of

Beecham's Pills

Sold Everywhere. In boxes, 25 cents.

Our Witch Hazel Cream

Is a positive cure for SUNBURN. You are sure to get sunburnt when on your holidays. Take a bottle along and enjoy yourself.

25c bottle.

Waters' DRUG STORE.

The Whole Story in a letter:

Pain-Killer

(PERRY DAVIS'.)

From Capt. F. Loye, Police Station No. 5, Montreal:—"We frequently use PERRY DAVIS' PAIN-KILLER for pains in the stomach, rheumatism, stiffness, frost bites, chilblains, cramps, and all afflictions which befall men in our position. I have no hesitation in saying that PAIN-KILLER is the best remedy to have near at hand."

Used Internally and Externally.

Two Sizes, 25c. and 50c. bottles.

Bank of Montreal

ESTABLISHED 1817.

Capital and Rest, All Paid Up.
$23,000,000
(Twenty-three Millions)

Savings Bank Department

Interest on sums of $1.00 and upwards allowed at current rates.

A. G. PARKER,
Manager Belleville Branch

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM

will positively cure deep-seated COUGHS, COLDS,
CROUP.

A 25c. Bottle for a Simple Cold.
A 50c. Bottle for a Heavy Cold.
A $1.00 Bottle for a Deep-seated Cough.
Sold by all Druggists.

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

"Your Doctor"

Has for years been telling you to discontinue the use of adulterated teas of Japan.

"SALADA"

Ceylon Natural GREEN tea is pure, healthful and delicious, and will take the place of all Japan teas just as "SALADA" Black is taking the place of all other Black teas. Sold only in lead packets. 25c and 40c per lb. By all grocers.

For pure blood, a bright eye, a clear complexion, a keen appetite, a good digestion and refreshing sleep, TAKE

BRISTOL'S Sarsaparilla

It arouses the Liver, quickens the circulation, brightens the spirits and generally improves the health.

Sixty-eight years trial have proved it to be, the most reliable BLOOD purifier known.

All druggists sell "BRISTOL'S."

A GREAT RUSH AT

Our Clearing Out Sale

NATHAN JONES.

This is a genuine Clearing Out Sale as the proprietor is retiring from business. The whole stock must be sold. We are having a great rush, and our prices are pronounced astonishingly low. The sale of Silks, Ribbons, and Dress Muslins and Dress Trimmings is attractive and now we add

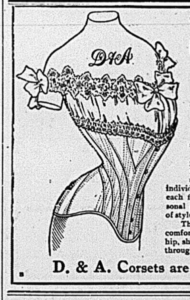
All Our Prints

These are nearly all this season's goods of Crum's make. Out they must go.

10c Prints for	8c
12½c Prints for	10c

All our Dress Goods are offered 20 per cent. off. Come early in day as Possible.

NATHAN JONES.



The New Long Hip Model

D&A

425 Long Hip

A graceful figure may be spoiled by a rigid Corset.

A poor figure may be made graceful by the proper Corset. D. & A. Corsets beautify, aid and correct according to individual needs, developing in each figure that indefinable personal grace that is the keynote of style.

The New Long Hip model comfortably encompasses the entire hip, showing no ridge or line even through an unlined skirt.

D. & A. Corsets are the BEST

The Finnegan Carriage & Wagon Co.

FOR

Stylish and Durable Turnouts.

—Surreys
—Corning Buggies
—Piano Box Buggies
—Rubber Tire Buggies
—Micadoes
—Phaetons
—Bike Buggies
—Democrats
—Grocer Wagons
—Butcher Wagons

Cheese Factory Milk Wagons.
Steel Tubular Axle Lumber Wagons.

Rubber Tires put on your old wheels at reasonable prices.

Mill St., - - Belleville.

The Daily Intelligencer.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL — LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL — CHARITY IN ALL.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, JULY 6, 1903 NO. 54

THE POPE'S END IS NEAR

His Holiness Caught Cold in the Chest After Friday's Drive.

Developed Into Senile Dynamic Pneumonia, and His Condition Became So Critical That He Was Warned and the Last Sacraments of the Church Were Administered Sunday Night—Physicians at 11 p.m. Sunday Thought He Might Survive Days.

Rome, July 6.—It appears that the condition of the Pope became suddenly worse after Friday's drive in the Vatican gardens, when notwithstanding the fact that temperature was 96 degrees fahrenheit, he caught cold, and it settled on his chest and head, producing shortly afterwards diffuse bronchial catarrh, accompanied by a slight cough, thirst, lassitude and watery eyes. Fortunately up to the present no fever has developed, not even increased heat, and there has been no acceleration of the pulse, which is rather weak.

It was decided that Dr. Mazzoni, who operated on the Pontiff in 1899, should visit His Holiness on Sunday morning.

Dr. Mazzoni Talks.

The Associated Press correspondent saw Dr. Mazzoni yesterday afternoon on his return from consultation at Pope Leo's bedside. The doctor said: "The situation this time is certainly really grave, in view of the great age of the patient and his state of extreme weakness. However, the case is not yet desperate, especially with a man having such unexpected reserve of energy and vitality, which, at the age of 93, is indeed astonishing. The exact definition of the Pope's illness is senile dynamic pneumonia, but His Holiness has not the least idea that he is attacked by any organic disease. In fact, he was not in bed when I went to the Vatican, but was seated in his usual armchair, where I am accustomed to see him every time I visit the palace. He believes that the oppression on his chest and the accompanying difficulty of breathing are merely the results of extreme weakness. As soon as he saw me, His Holiness repeatedly requested me to turn my attention to the best means of restoring his strength, which, he said, was all he required except a little fresh air. Now and then the Pope has recourse to his inveterate habit of snuff-taking, saying that he finds it very refreshing.

Pontiff in Good Spirits.

"The weakness of the patient's pulse and his short and irregular breathing, gradually approaching to gasping, are the only external symptoms of any serious nature, but, as I said before, the Pope this morning was full of spirits and would not take a grave view of his own case. When I left His Holiness said: 'Come again soon, I will try to give you a better reception.'"

During the afternoon the strength of the Pontiff began to fail him so rapidly, and his condition became so critical, that it appeared that only a few more hours of life remained to him. It was, therefore, deemed wise so advise him of his grave condition, and this was done with tender precaution. Pope Leo was thus prepared for his last communion, which was administered last night with the participation of all the cardinals now in Rome and the whole of the Pontifical court.

Sacrement Administered.

The solemn, yet gorgeous, ceremony of administering the last sacrament took place at the bedside of Pope Leo. The central figure was the dying Pontiff, whose long life's journey is nearly over, calmly preparing to enter the dark valley. His pale and emaciated face, almost as white as the pillows on which it rested, showed little sign of life, except the keen, glittering eyes, always his most striking feature. Around the bed were grouped the noble guards in their glittering uniform, the Knights of the Cloak and Sword, in their picturesque mediaeval costume of black with white ruffs; 25 cardinals, all the members of the Sacred College who are at present in Rome, stately and venerable figures in their sweeping crimson robes, the whole forming a scene of rich, yet subdued color, a fit subject for the brush of Rembrandt. The whole of what is called the Pontificial family, headed by Cardinal Rampolli and including all the private chamberlains, was there.

Prayers For Passing Soul.

Then came the touching prayers for a passing soul and part of the Gospel, the Lord's passion. As the last words died away all fell on their knees, the Pontiff raising his almost transparent finger with a feeble effort, pronounced in scarcely audible words his benediction on the sacred college and on all present and then sank back on the pillows. There was scarcely a tearless eye in the whole assemblage and the sobs of the Pope's relatives were plainly heard. Deep silence followed, only broken now and again by a murmured prayer of pious ejaculation.

The condition of His Holiness at 11 p. m. yesterday though still grave, was not as serious as late in the afternoon.

May Survive Days.

Dr. Mazzoni and Dr. Lapponi now think that the danger of a catastrophe occurring during the night has been avoided. Indeed, they hope that unless there is heart failure, they will be able to keep their patient alive for a few days longer, especially if he willingly consents to observe the physicians orders. This, however, is the more difficult as His Holiness preserves his full consciousness and argues and discusses his doctor's prescriptions.

His Holiness Resigned.

"God's will be done. Who would have believed it, when only ten days ago I was presiding over a public consistory?" murmured feebly Pope Leo as he felt himself late last evening passing into a sleep which lasted till about 3 o'clock a.m., when excruciating pain brought the dying Pontiff back to consciousness. He groaned and complained of pains on both sides of the thorax.

Though hovering on the brink of death, the life of the Pontiff is still prolonged by means of strong stimulants and concentrated nourishment, and while he is still alive his wonderful vitality may again resist and conquer the attack of this illness.

The interior of the Vatican during the early hours of this morning testifies to the conviction that the passage of Pope Leo is very near.

Tolstoi's Book Seized.

Berlin, July 6.—An edition of Count Tolstoi's pamphlet, "Thou Shalt Not Kill," which a Leipsic firm recently published, was seized by the police yesterday on the ground that it contains statements regarding Emperor William which are classed as high treason.

Spied For Germany.

Nancy, France, July 6.—A former French army officer named Balliguet has been sentenced to five years' imprisonment for spying on behalf of Germany. Balliguet attempted to procure plans of the new fortifications here.

SINCLAIR'S AD SINCLAIR'S AD.

SINCLAIR'S MID-SUMMER CLEARING SALE Is Now On

This week we give special attention to the clearing of:

Ladies' Dress Skirts.
Ladies' Shirt Waists.
Ladies' Underskirts.
Ladies' Rain Cloaks.
Ladies' Wash Dresses.
Children's Muslin Dresses.
Muslin and Wash Goods.
Prints, Ducks, and Ginghams.
Ladies' and Children's Hosiery.
etc., etc., etc., etc.

D. V. SINCLAIR & CO.

THE BRITISH CABINET SPLIT

Effect in Britain Over Chamberlain's Protection Plunge.

Elections in October Now Regarded as Certain—King Edward Not a Figurehead — His Majesty's Extraordinary Personal Influence Has Kept Things Patched Up—Approaching Royal Visit to Ireland Will Mark an Epoch.

London, July 6.—Mr. Chamberlain's plunge for protective tariff makes a general election certain in October. The Cabinet is so hopelessly split upon his proposition that it could not meet Parliament again.

The present strange political situation here is a tribute to the extraordinary personal influence of King Edward in political affairs. When it became known that he earnestly desired that the Irish land bill should pass the dissensions in the Unionist Cabinet and party were kept within bounds and were prevented from provoking an immediate dissolution of Parliament.

With the land bill enacted into law, the King expects that his visit to Ireland will mark an epoch in the relations between the two countries.

Undoubtedly he will get a very enthusiastic reception, though the leading Nationalist bodies, like the Dublin corporation, will not welcome him officially.

Meantime Mr. Chamberlain is putting forth every effort to capture the political machine in view of the impending struggle. In many places he has succeeded, and free trade Unionists find themselves compelled to start an independent election organization. Although Mr. Chamberlain has arrayed against him every ex-Chancellor of the Exchequer, and, with few exceptions, the most influential and talented men in the Unionist party, the general expectation is that eventually he will win. This will not be at the election now coming, but at the one succeeding that."

ELGIN LOAN'S MANAGER.

Committed For Trial on Charges of Theft, Forgery and Perjury and Date Set For July 20.

St. Thomas, Ont., July 6.—At 2 p.m. Saturday George Rowley, the ex-manager of the Elgin Loan Co., was brought before His Honor Judge Ermatinger and arraigned on three charges, one each of forgery, theft and perjury. Mr. Rowley entered a plea of "not guilty" through his solicitor.

Crown Attorney Donahue read the detailed list of thefts, contained in the charges. The list is a formidable one and includes the following: On Feb. 21, 1900, theft of $4,900, deposited; on March 14, 1903, $935, deposited; on April 18, 1903, $3,725, deposited; on Dec. 9, 1902, $1,478.14, deposited; on Jan. 14, 1902, $1,073, deposited; on March 3, 1902, $935; on April 4, 1902, $4,450; on May 6, 1902, $1,800; on July 14, 1902, $1,800; on July 14, 1902, $985; on Aug. 30, 1902, $700; on Sept. 25, 1902, $1,800; on Oct. 4, 1902, $1,800; on Oct. 4, 1902, $4,372; on Dec. 22, 1902, $1,000; on Jan. 2, 1901, $618; on May 20, 1901, $2,350; on June 17, 1901, $500; on Aug. 22, 1901, $2,440; on Oct. 30, 1901, $2,000; on Dec. 27, 1901, $1,483; on Jan. 3, 1900, $4,400; on Feb. 15, 1900, $900; on March 8, 1900, $2,000; on April 4, 1900, $1,000; on May 1, 1900, $800; on June 27, 1900, $1,750; on Jan. 3, 1899, $218; on March 7, 1899, $400; on Jan. 18, 1898, $1,027.50; on March 11, 1898, $470; on March 2, 1898, $1,000; on July 1, 1897, $7,454.56; on Oct. 10, 1897, $5,135.24; on Oct. 30, 1896, $2,285; on April 14, 1900, $1,000; on May 6, 1902, $1,000.

Rowley is also charged with having on the 13th day of Sept., 1902, forged a document in connection with a bank transaction. Also with having forged a savings bank deposit receipt in the name of M. Laidlaw for $1,500, and using the same for his own purposes. On the 30th of October, 1896, with having forged a deposit receipt in the name of Agnes E. Laidlaw, for $2,200.51, and with having used for his own purposes the said amount.

He is also charged with having on the 15th of February, 1903, sworn falsely to a statement of the company's assets and liabilities to deceive the public.

His Honor Judge Ermantinger named Monday, July 20, at 10 a. m., as the date for the trial. The court then adjourned and the accused was removed to the county jail.

RACE RIOT.

Evansville, Ind., in the Hands of a Bloodthirsty Mob.

Evansville, Ind., July 6.—At one o'clock this morning this city is in the hands of a mob. Troops have been ordered out by the Governor to protect the jail, which is surrounded by 2,000 men. Two negroes have been killed in the race riot, which is rampant.

Three business men have just been fired on, and are now organizing and arming a party to exterminate the negroes.

The race riot last night was the immediate outcome of the shooting of Patrolman Massey Friday night by Lee Brown, a negro.

3.30 a.m.—The mob has broken into the jail. The mob swarmed into the jail and begun a search for the murderer. A mob of 200 white men heavily armed is now marching through the streets of the city, where negroes would likely be found. Shots are heard constantly.

Baby Drank Carbolic.

Winnipeg, July 6.—The three-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Grisdale drank part of a bottle of carbolic acid and died in great agony.

DROWNED THE HUSBAND.

Little Three-Year-Old Girl's Story Against Her Mother.

Ottawa, July 6.—Mrs. Lalonde and a man named Desrosiers were arrested by the Ottawa police in consequence of queer reports in circulation. The woman and her husband formerly lived on St. John's Island in the Georgian Bay, and Desrosiers was a boarder with them, taking out in board a debt that Lalonde owed him. The Lalondes had a three-year-old child, and the little one is alleged to have stated that while crossing to the mainland her father was thrown overboard and drowned. The police were unable to obtain any further evidence to justify them in detaining Mrs. Lalonde and Desrosiers, but are looking into the matter.

FAIR BUILDINGS BURNED.

Serious Blow to the Winnipeg Industrial —Loss $10,000.

Winnipeg, July 6.—Nine large cattle stables at the Winnipeg Industrial Exhibition grounds were completely destroyed by fire last evening, causing an enormous conflagration, which threatened to spread to the other buildings. It was fortunately checked. The loss is $10,000, covered by insurance. The fire is a serious blow to the Exhibition directors, as the Fair is only two weeks distant.

War Fleet Off China.

Pekin, July 6.—The presence of more warships in the Gulf of Pechili than ever before seen, even during the Boxer troubles of 1900, has not increased the war talk, notwithstanding the conference held at Port Arthur yesterday by Gen Kouropatkin, the Russian Minister of War, with M. Lessar, the Russian Minister to China. Of the warships now in the Gulf there are fifty Russian vessels, including a new fleet under Admiral Stalkenberg. There are about twenty American war vessels under Rear Admiral Evans, and the English and Japanese have fully 500 warships along the coast to China.

Saved From the Rope.

New York, July 6.—Joseph Aguear Lamothe, the French-Canadian who was wanted in Winchester, Mass., on suspicion of having murdered Georgiana Gaddu, died in St. Luke's Hospital yesterday. Death resulted from the revolver shot which he received during a struggle with Detective Pecker in the reception room of the hospital on Saturday.

Killed by Live Wire.

Pittsburg, July 6.—During a heavy rainstorm Saturday afternoon lightning struck a trolley wire and it fell into a wagon containing ten persons, killing three men and a woman, and badly shocked the other occupants.

Fatal Trolley Crash.

Buffalo, N.Y., July 6.—A wreck occurred on the Lockport and Olcott trolley line late Saturday afternoon, near Olcott, between a heavy closed car and an open car drawing a trailer, all filled with passengers. The passengers were tossed into heaps. Richard Farrell of Niagara was crushed and died before aid arrived. Jay Charles Duncan of Lockport had both legs torn off and will die.

Took Paris Green.

Burk's Falls, July 6.—Mrs. William Hulse of Fern Glen, a small place about ten miles from here, committed suicide by swallowing Paris green. She was dead before medical assistance arrived. Deceased and her husband moved to Fern Glen recently from Toronto. Mr. Hulse is an iron moulder by trade. A family of two are left.

TORONTO ST. LAWRENCE MARKET.

Grain—

Wheat, red, bush	$0 76 to	$0 77
Wheat, white, bush	0 76½	....
Wheat, spring, bush	0 70	0 72
Wheat, goose, bush	0 70	....
Barley, bush	0 42½	....
Beans, bush	1 30	1 50
Beans, hand-picked	1 75	....
Peas, bush	0 78½	....
Rye, bush	0 45	....
Oats, bush	0 35	0 35½

CHEESE MARKETS.

Cowansville, Que., July 4.—At the weekly meeting of the Eastern Townships' Dairymen's Exchange here to-day 42 factories offered 2352 boxes cheese; 17 creameries offered 1646 boxes butter. H. A. Allan bought 110 boxes cheese for 9⅜c; F. Duckett, 752 boxes for 9⅜c; Hodgson Bros., 37 boxes for 9½c, and 489 boxes for 9⅜c; Lovell and Christmas, 373 boxes for 9⅜c; A. W. Grant, 60 boxes for 9⅜c; D. A. McPherson & Co., 231 boxes for 9⅜c; James Dalrymple, 225 boxes for 9 7-16c; unsold, 75 boxes; H. Allan bought 1003 boxes butter 18⅜c; A. A. Ayer & Co., 48 boxes for 18½c; Gunn & Langlois, 135 boxes for 18½c; James Dalrymple, 130 boxes for 18⅜c; unsold, 330 boxes.

Cornwall, July 4.—At the Cornwall Cheese Board to-day, 2322 boxes were offered, 1465 white and 857 colored. All sold but lot of 60 boxes. Williamson made the price, raising it from 9½c to 9⅝c for white and colored, but he only got 401 boxes. The remainder was sold at 9⅝c for white and 9 11-16c for colored. The sales were: Hodgson Bros. 1630, Williamson 401, A. W. Grant 50, James Alexander 108, Lovell & Christmas 61.

LOSS OF LIFE MAY BE GREAT

Waterspout of Immense Proportions Struck Oakford Park.

Pleasure Seekers Carried Down Ravine at Greensburg, Pa., and From 50 to 75 Perished — The Majority Were Drowned or Swept to Death Against the Rocks in Brush Creek—A Number Were Electrocuted.

Greensburg, Pa., July 6.—A waterspout of immense proportions struck in the vicinity of Oakland Park, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and created a flood that caused great loss of life and property. It is known that at least twenty persons lost their lives, and rumors place the number of dead at more than 100, but up to a late hour last night only three or four bodies have been recovered, having been washed to the banks of the little creek that runs parallel with the park.

The names of those known and believed to have been drowned are: Miss Gertrude Keefer, aged 19, of Jeanette. Edward O'Brien, of Latrobe. Joseph Overly of Indianapolis, Ind. Lucy Crum of Jeanette, Council Light, wife and two children of Greensburg.

Warned Crowd to Flee.

At 3 o'clock rain began to fall in torrents in the vicinity of the park, and spread over a territory covering probably ten miles. Half an hour later the cloudburst occurred. The waters in the lake north of Oakford Park began to rise, and Manager James McGrath, believing there was danger of a final break in the great walls of the dam, hurried among the crowds of pleasure seekers who had gathered under the roofs of the eating stands, the dancing pavilion and other buildings, warned them to run to the hills.

Swept Over the Dam.

The gathering flood meant the breaking of the wall that held five acres of water. Soon after the building had been cleared the waters swept over the wall of the dam and in a moment a tower of water was racing over the entire length of 400 feet of the dam. The rain continued to fall in torrents, and it was not long before a great section of the wall gave away with a crash. The flood beat down the ravine with a roar that was heard for two miles.

Carried Street Car Away.

The electric storm had rendered the power south of this place useless, and the motorman was unable to move the car. The flood struck the waiting-room containing probably a dozen people. A number of them struggled to a point of safety, but it is believed that at least ten persons were drowned. The street car was caught and swept into the creek. Among those who were washed into the flood was C. M. McClain of Greensburg, Edward O'Brien and Joseph Overly and Misses Keefer and Crum.

Dashed Against Rocks.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 6.—A telephone message from Jeanette, received at midnight, says that 50 to 75 men, women and children perished by the cloudburst at Oakford Park yesterday. The majority were drowned or swept to death against the rocks in Brush Creek, but a number were electrocuted. At least 800 persons were at the park seeking relief from the heat.

DEATHS BY DROWNING.

Two 6-Year-Old Boys Victims—Double Rescue at London.

Barrie, July 6.—The body of Lorne, the six-year-old son of W. McMann, who strayed away from home Friday noon, was found in the bay close to the shore.

Herbert Corbett a Victim.

Another drowning accident occurred on the fourth line, Innisfil, the victim of which was Herbert Corbett, aged 22. He and his uncle, Peter Greensides, started together to swim across a small pond on their farm. The uncle drew ahead and on reaching the other shore, only a few yards away, could see nothing of his companion. Search was made and the body found about the middle of the pond. Death is supposed to have been due to heart failure, as Corbett was a good swimmer.

One at Bobcaygeon.

Bobcaygeon, July 6. — A sad drowning accident occurred here about 6.30 Saturday evening. Georgie Gallagher, six years of age, while playing along the canal bank fell in and was drowned.

A Double Rescue.

London, July 6.—Alfred Drewe rescued two youths from drowning who had gone in swimming at the point known as "The Vally," at the foot of Maitland street. The boys could not swim and got out of their depth. Drewe, without taking off his clothes, rescued first one and then the other. The last one he found lying at the bottom of the river and was with great difficulty rescued and resuscitated.

FOR THE CHILDREN.

When children are weak, sickly, don't eat or sleep well, Angier's Petroleum Emulsion after meals and at bedtime makes them strong, healthy and robust. Made of Petroleum, rendered tasteless and odorless, and combined with glycerine and hypophosphites. Pleasant to take, and agrees with the stomach.

A good beginning is half the days work. It's a mistake to start out with a poor breakfast, and worse to overload the stomach with heavy indigestible matter.

Malta-Vita

contains all the nourishment necessary for the man doing the hardest labor, yet is so easily digested as to be readily assimilated by the dyspeptic.

No Work—No Heat; Just Cream—Then Eat.

A Swimmer's Fatal Cramp.

Port Carling, July 6.—A drowning accident occurred here Friday night, by which Mr. W. H. Moore, aged 31, of this place, lost his life. He had been in bathing in Thompson's Lake, a small lake just back of his residence, and was paddling around the lake in a boat with his wife. When near the shore he jumped into the water, saying he would swim ashore. Appearing to be in distress, his wife handed him a paddle, but he must have taken a cramp, for he was not able to help himself. He sank at once and did not come up again. The body was recovered Saturday morning and taken to Saintfield, Ont., for burial. Mr. Moore came here from Toronto this spring and rented a farm.

Squall Upset Skiff.

Sydney, July 6.—By the upsetting of a skiff in Sydney harbor yesterday afternoon Miss Louise Cluhan, aged 22 years, was drowned. She was out sailing with a young man named Hansen, when a squall struck the little craft and capsized it. Hansen was rescued in an exhausted condition, he having nearly lost his life trying to save his companion.

Young Scotchman Drowned.

West Selkirk, July 6.—John McDonald, a young stonemason, who had recently arrived from Scotland, was drowned while bathing in the Red River here yesterday.

SWITCHMAN KILLED.

A Shocking Accident in the Grand Trunk Yards at Windsor.

Winsor, July 6.—Charles Hodgins, a switchman in the Grand Trunk yards here, met death in a horrible form last night. He had just given a signal to the engineer of one of the yard engines to back down when his foot was caught in an open frog directly in front of the engine. There was no one near at the time, and, on account of escaping steam, the engineer failed to hear his cries to stop. The wheels passed entirely over his body, which was ground literally into a pulp. Hodgins was 23 years of age, and unmarried. Coroner Bell, who was called, has empanelled a jury and will hold an inquest this evening.

Alex. Ireland Killed.

Toronto, July 6.—Inspector Alexander H. Ireland of the Bank of Commerce yesterday received a brief telegram bearing the sad news that his son, Alexander Lee Ireland, had been killed by a train near Huntington, Arkansas. No further particulars had been received up to an early hour this morning. The deceased, who was 26 years of age, was an old boy of Trinity College School, Port Hope, an M. A. of Trinity University, Toronto, and a graduate in mining engineering of the Michigan School of Mines.

GIRDLED EARTH IN 12 MINUTES.

President Roosevelt Sends First Message Via New Pacific Cable.

New York, July 6.—The last connection in the Commercial Pacific Company's cable was made at Honolulu Saturday night at 10.50 (eastern time).

President Roosevelt then sent the following message around the world westward to Clarence H. MacKay, who was with him at Oyster Bay:

"Congratulations and success to the Pacific Cable, which the genius of your lamented father and your own enterprise made possible.

"Theodore Roosevelt."

The message was sent at 11.23 p. m., and was received by Mr. MacKay at 11.35, making the time of its transmission around the world in 12 minutes.

Mr. MacKay replied as follows, his message going around the world eastward: "I thank you deeply for your message, and I earnestly hope that the Pacific cable by opening the wide horizon of the great east may prove a useful factor to the commerce of the United States.

"Clarence H. MacKay."

President Roosevelt received the message at 12.04½. The time consumed in passing around the world was 9½ minutes.

Typesetting by Telegraph.

Paris, July 6.—M. D'Arsonval has exhibited to the Academy of Sciences an invention which does typesetting by telegraph, an electric current being made to perforate the characters on a moving band connected with a typesetting machine. It is asserted that this contrivance, which is the work of a Mr. Royal, will dispense with transcriptions altogether for press purposes.

Daily Intelligencer.

TRITE SAYINGS.

Goldwin Smith in discussing the Gamey charges, pertinently remarks "That Mr. Gamey fabricated the whole story, with the moral certainty of exposure and of the penalties which would follow, seems of all theories the most incredible. The straight party vote in which the controversy ended, and was all along intended to end, proves that Government has a mechanical majority of four; it has no weight or significance of any other kind."

* * *

Goldwin Smith adds to the opinion of the guilt of Stratton that "It may be assumed that the Judges are right in saying that there was not evidence for the conviction of Mr. Stratton. But the restrictions which they thought it right to place upon their inquiry prevented them from going to the heart of the matter, and their report was consequently indecisive. Few people probably are shaken in the belief that a bribe was offered to Mr. Gamey as an inducement to betray his constituents; that the money was taken from a fund contributed for such purposes, and that of the existence and application of this fund the leaders of the party must have been cognizant, though subordinate agents were of course employed." This is a severe blow at Stratton, who swore he knew nothing of such a fund.

* * *

"It is certain that the revelations of rottenness have made a deep impression among the people of the province. How deep that is, no man can say. The individual disinterested member of a Canadian party is strangely dumb. If dissatisfied he may silently withdraw from active work. He seldom speaks out and tells his associates that he is disgusted. It is this reticence which makes it impossible for anyone to gauge the effect on the province of the recent revelations."—Toronto News.

* * *

Mr. Raney acutely remarks, "the singular, and, at the same time, the hopeful thing about the situation is that the intelligent people of the province have for the most part nothing but contempt for the party fireworks. They may endure them for some time longer (he adds), but at some point their patience will break and then we shall have a fresh order of things."

* * *

There are thousands of Liberals in Ontario as honest and as clear-sighted as Mr. Raney. How many will take his course?

* * *

"Public opinion must be aroused—created, if need be. Honest men must publicly denounce dishonesty, not in the other party—that is too easy—but in their own parties. That is to say, we require not only honest men, but brave men." So says Mr. Raney. So say all good Canadians. How many Grits will do it?

* * *

Mr. Raney has pointed out with great truth the power which the United States public possesses of rising superior to partisan considerations and punishing rascals. In fact, American boodlers often go to penitentiary. How long is it since a Canadian corruptionist stayed his full term in prison?

* * *

Another of the Montreal election perjurers at the St. James' Division has been pardoned by the Dominion Government. No one need be surprised if a bonus is offered for election perjurers.

* * *

Mr. W. E. Raney, in his remarkable address on "Christian Citizenship," says, "It is bad form to deal in realities. Politicians must not admit any evil in their own side, or any good in the other party. No one is deceived by such tactics, but it is part of the game. And because it is all a sham and a pretence, we get angry if any one is bold and imprudent enough to strip away the coat of whitewash and expose the contents of the sepulchre."

30 Retail Stores DAVIES 30 Retail Stores

DAVIES, Headquarters for cooked meats, of which they have 32 varieties, Jellied, Cooked and Ready to Serve.

Davies make a specialty of supplying picnic and campers with all the neccessaries in Food Products during the summer months. Davies Pickles, Sauces and Catsup guaranteed, pure and unadulterated, which add to the relish of all meals.

Our store will be closed every Wednesday at 12 o'clock during the months of July and August.

Daily Deliveries,

Shop Early or Use Phone. 286.

The WM. DAVIES CO., Limited.

ALL PATHS SEEM SMOOTH WHEN YOU HAVE FOOT ELM IN YOUR SHOES.

It is wonderful how easy walking becomes when you have Foot Elm in your shoes. It relieves all tiredness, soreness and aching of the feet, prevents blistering or chafing, and gives perfect comfort. Price 25 cents a box of 18 powders, at druggists or by mail. I. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

Sandwiches

Let us make you a few Sandwiches to take with you next time you go Fishing or Picnicing.

We make them good and the price is reasonable.

J. ARTHUR MARSH.

WATCH THIS AD.

To-morrow.

The Globe Clothing House

Up-to-date Clothiers and Gents' Furnishers.

TIMELY TOPICS

TROUBLE IN THE CHOIR.

(Chicago Tribune.)

The soprano, who was to sing a solo next, entitled, On Angels' Wings, was observed to be fidgeting and fussing as if in great perturbation of mind.

"What is the matter, Miss Hygee?" asked the leader.

"I can't find it anywhere!" she said. "I've lost my Angels' Wings!"

"If she has she'll never get another pair!" snapped the alto, under her breath.

* * *

Here's a reminiscence. A Kingston paper says: Thos. Scott, who was shot by Riel at Fort Garry in 1869, was a member of No. 9 Co., Madoc, of the 49th Regiment.

* * *

The question of disposing of the Front street rails to the Cement works people has been a fruitful source of discussion lately. The consensus of opinion seems to be that no reasonable people would object to the Council showing the Cement people some preference, such as allowing them to purchase the rails at $1 or even $1.50 less per ton than other tenderers, but $6.50 per ton is too wide a difference altogether.

* * *

Of course the Cement works is, to a certain extent, connected with this city, and everything in reason might well be done to help the project along, but, as pointed out in these columns before, the Council did not, in deciding to help the Cement people, fix on the proper course.

* * *

In the minds of many people, grave doubts exist as to the legality of the Council's action in selling the rails in the way they did. Certainly their action was not in accordance with unanimous public opinion. Would it not be wise, before taking decisive action, and perhaps bringing on expensive legal proceedings, to find out, and act in accordance with, the views of the majority of the ratepayers in this matter?

You Can Test The Kidneys

AND FIND OUT IF YOU REQUIRE THE ASSISTANCE OF DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Put some urine in a bottle or tumbler and let it stand for twenty-four hours; if there is a sediment at the bottom at the end of that time, or if it is discolored, milky, cloudy or stringy your kidneys are out of order and not doing their work properly.

Because of their direct and specific action on the kidneys, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills bring prompt relief and lasting cure for all derangements of these filtering organs. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box. 1

A glance at the calendar reminds us that two weeks from to-day we shall be starting for the Belleville Y.M.C.A. third annual boys' camp. The committee in charge have made careful arrangements for the outing, every precaution will be taken for the safety and welfare of the party. Secretary Wilkie, who conducted the camp during the past two years, will again be in charge, assisted by Messrs. H. O. McGuire, E. F. Lynn, F. Bushfield and H. J. Coon.

The site of our camp is an ideal one, easy of access, with many natural attractions, and added to this we have the warm friendship of the owner, Mr. Jas. Harcus, who will be ready to welcome us back again. Space forbids mention of the many good things that "Harry" has in store in the way of recreation. The best way to prove the truth of these statements will be to form one of the party who will be looking for the "Varuna" on the morning of the 20th at 8.30 a.m. From the time we start speculation will be rife as to what "George" has for our dinner when we arrive. However, we may rest assured that he will render us the same excellent service in the culinary department as of yore.

All boys and parents interested in the boys' outing at Camp Quinte may secure booklets and other information on application to the Secretary at the Y.M.C.A. rooms. Applications for camp should be handed in at the rooms on the 13th inst., accompanied by the registration fee of $1. The balance of the camp fees must be received not later than Saturday, July 18th. We look for a good attendance this year. Better plan to come.—Com.

EXCURSION.

Tabernacle Ladies' Aid will run an excursion to Picton, per Steamer Varuna, Wednesday, July 8th. Boat leaves at 8.30, giving three hours in Picton. Tickets 25 cents. 4-6

PERSONAL ...AND... SOCIAL.

The Intelligencer invites all its readers to contribute to this column all items of a personal nature, such as the arrival or departure of guests, and the movements of business men, etc. Send a post card to or telephone The Intelligencer.

Mr. W. Mathison, of Toronto, is visiting in the city.

Mr. Wm. Irwin, of Toronto, is visiting in the city.

Mr. James Thompson has returned home from a visit to Minneapolis.

Dr. Faulkner, of Foxboro, is seriously ill with pneumonia.

Mr. Fred Deacon, of New York, is visiting his parents in this city.

Mr. Fred Stock has returned to Hamilton after a visit to relatives here.

Mr. B. Sills, of Kingston, is the guest of Mr. J. L. Tickell, of this city.

Mrs. W. H. Boselly and daughter, Miss Luella, are visiting friends at Batavia, N.Y.

Mrs. Joseph Walters, of New York, is visiting Mr. Thos. Walters, Catherine street.

Mrs. H. H. Thompson is visiting her father-in-law, Hugh Thompson, Dunbar street.

Master Harry Evans, of Brantford, is visiting at Mr. Hitchon's, Alexander street.

Mayor Graham has returned to the city, after a few weeks' absence on a business trip.

Miss Laura Sills, of Avondale, has gone to Howick, Que., to spend her holidays with her brother.

Mrs. G. Small and daughter, Miss Bertha, of Hamilton, have returned home after a visit with friends here.

Mrs. Geo. Meyers and son, of Toronto, are in the city, visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Dickens.

Mr. H. Fitzpatrick, of Rochester, N.Y., returned home on Saturday, after a week's visit here with relatives.

Mrs. D. F. Sprung and Mrs. Snider, of Calgary, are in the city, visiting at Mrs. R. L. Cubitt's, Coleman street.

Misses Jean Murray, Laura Ross and Mr. Clarence Todd, of Rochester, N.Y., have been spending a few days in the city with friends.

Mrs. S. G. Geen, who has been visiting in New York, has returned home, accompanied by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Sam Geen.

Mr. Wm. Lear, of Cripple Creek, Col., is visiting his brother, Mr. Ed. Lear, Coleman street. Mr. Lear was for some time on active service at Manila, P.I.

Mr. G. W. Tickell has arrived in the city, after a business trip to South Africa. In company with Mrs. Tickell and son he will spend a few days in this city.

Miss M. E. de Pensier, for the past four years Lady Superintendent of the Belleville General Hospital, severs her connection by resignation on Wednesday next. Miss de Pensier's friends will regret her departure.

Messrs. Charles Mackenzie Bowell Holton and Stanley Holton, of New York, arrived in the city on Saturday evening and will spend ten days here visiting their boyhood's haunts.

Mr. and Mrs. Bidwell E. Sills, of Kingston, are in the city. Mr. Sills was welcomed back by Bridge St. Sunday School yesterday afternoon, in which he was formerly pupil and then teacher.

At the Quinte: W. N. Irwin and family, R. H. Sanderson, wife and child, Mrs. J. Johnson, J. Watts, J. McLellan, A. L. Johnson, F. J. P. Gibson, N. R. Turner, Toronto; E. Harrison, Ottawa; J. J. Masterson, W. R. Carmichael, C. H. Findla, Montreal; G. Mann, W. Nicol, Kingston; T. A. Ritchie, Brockville; E. L. Morley, W. C. Embury and wife, W. P. Lamb and wife, F. P. Shaw, Rochester; L. F. Rogers, Deseronto; D. C. Stewart, Youngstown, Ohio; R. D. Thompson and wife, New York; C. E. Ritchie, Akron, Ohio; J. E. Halliwell, Stirling.

GREAT SALE.

Stirring call to a great cheap sale of men's, boys' and children's high class clothing and furnishings at prices that will force you to buy. Out goes every stitch of the remaining lines of our spring and summer stock, no matter what the loss is. We are determined to clear out everything left, and we will easily do so as our prices to a point where buying is irresistible. Look at our ad.—The Globe Clothing House. 6t

An Unfortunate.

A man named Dafoe, who has been an inmate of the hospital for some time, has unfortunately become violently insane. Yesterday morning at an early hour he escaped from the hospital and was found wandering about a field near by. He was taken to jail for the time being.

No man or woman will hesitate to speak well of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets after once trying them. They always produce a pleasant movement of the bowels, improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion. For sale by all druggists.

THE TREATING HABIT.

It Costs Its Victims Many a Dollar and Many a Pang.

Is it not a fact that men really spend in treating amounts that they would hesitate to give away no matter how deserving the charity? It is a trait of human character that comes through this all absorbing disposition to "hold your end up" when with a friend. Hundreds of men take thousands of drinks that they do not want, and other hundreds pay for thousands that are not desired.

Two men meet, and one says: "Mighty glad to see you. Let's have something." Neither generally needs or even wants a drink. But the man who offers it wants to show that he is generous. He takes this method of proving that he is glad to meet his friend. The friend after he has taken the drink that he did not want, to prove that he, too, is a good fellow, insists upon a second round.

The German custom of entering a saloon, taking a drink and paying for it and for no others if adopted in America would prove a blessing. The American custom of treating is decidedly a curse. What we do for friendship's sake costs us many a dollar and many a pang.

How Oysters Grow.

A man who has devoted much time to the study of the oyster says that this bivalve is born with his shell on and that he grows only in the summer time. The beard of an oyster is not only his breathing organ—that is, his lungs—but it also serves to convey food to his mouth. When the warm, calm days of June come the oyster opens his shell and by means of his beard begins building an additional story to his house. This he does by depositing very, very fine particles of carbonate of lime till at last they form a substance as thin as silver paper and exceedingly fragile. Then he adds more and more till at last the new shell is as hard as the old shell.

Secret For Secret.

In the days of Louis XIV. even warriors bandied epigrams with one another.

The Marechal de Grammont had taken a fortress by siege.

"I will tell you a secret," said its military governor after surrendering. "The reason of my capitulation was that I had no more powder."

"And, secret for secret," returned the marechal suavely, "the reason of my accepting it on such easy terms was that I had no more balls."

The Norwegian Costume.

It is at church in Norway that the national costume is best seen. In the north the women wear short, dark gowns, with fringed handkerchiefs tied becomingly over their curly fair hair, black ones for the matrons and white ones for maidens.

In the south the old Norwegian dress is often worn. It consists of a short dark petticoat, with a stripe of bright colors, a full white blouse, and a red bodice heavily embroidered, while on Sundays a quantity of silver pins and chains are added.

The headdress varies according to the occasion and the wearer's social condition. The girls wear jaunty red caps, the married women a coif made of many folds of starched white linen, plaited over a wooden frame, and a bride wears a high metal crown, curiously chased and set with jewels.

To Avoid Telling Secrets.

A New York theatrical manager was advising a friend to be cautious in an undertaking he had in view.

"You can't take too many precautions," he asserted. 'An ounce of prevention,' as the copy book used to say, 'is better than seven pounds of allopathic, homeopathic or hydropathic cure.' One of the most contented men I ever knew was the most cautious. He was deaf and dumb, and he never went to bed without putting on boxing gloves."

"Boxing gloves? What for?"

"So that he wouldn't talk in his sleep."

Poison In Young Rattlesnakes.

Observations on live rattlesnakes show that the poison glands become functionally active as soon as the snakes begin to shift for themselves, which must be very soon after birth. Experiments on the young ones six days after birth proved the presence of venom in small quantities. Experiments made three months after birth showed that considerable venom is secreted, as a pigeon inoculated at this time died in two hours with the usual symptoms of chronic poisoning.

An Odd Superstition.

On the eastern shore of Maryland biliousness is cured by boring three holes in a carefully selected tree and walking three times around it, saying, "Go away, bilious." It is a matter of utmost importance whether the one who performs the spell walks with the sun or against the sun, but no one knows which is the approved direction. —Exchange.

Not Up to the Predictions.

"Well, is married life all that it is painted?" asked the girl.

"Not quite," replied the bride, with what her friend later declared she was almost sure was a sigh. "We've been married three months now, and during that time Jack has spent but four evenings at the club."

Of Real Interest.

"Yes; I explained the whole theory of the new discovery to my wife."

"And what did she say?"

"She said: 'George, can you remember whom the Sourfield girl married? I've been trying all day to think of his name.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

You won't harden or shrink woolens with Sunlight Soap. The purity of the oils and fats and the absence of free alkali prevent that. 2B

THE WEATHER.

To-day's Probs—

Light variable winds, fine and warm to-day and on Tuesday.

To-day's Temperature

As Registered by The Intelligencer's Guaranteed Thermometer:

8 a.m.	66
12 m.	82
2 p.m.	88
3 p.m.	90

To benefit from any other outing the Baths and Waters of the MAGI Caledonia Springs must be first taken. Season now open.

Encourage Your Boy.

Offer him a reward for proficiency at school.

If he had his say of what he should get he'd be pretty sure to take a watch.

Give him a watch.

There isn't a more serviceable article, nor one that would give a boy more pleasure.

We sell guaranteed movements, bearing our name, in different cases, from $6,00 up.

Angus McFee.
Jeweler & Optician
310 Front St.

25 per cent. Off

CORSETS

FOR THREE DAYS, so every lady can judge for herself, how beautifully our Corsets fit.

Sale of hats still continues.

MISS IRWIN
Millinery and Corset Specialist

W. H. JESSOP
"VOCAL TEACHER"
STUDIO "KARN HALL," Montreal

After Monday, 6th JULY, will be in Belleville until 1st SEPTEMBER.

Studio in Belleville "FORRESTERS' HALL." over Mr. S. Burrows Office.

VOICES TRIED FREE.

Further information at Mr. W. B. Riggs' Music Store.

Buried on Wednesday.

The remains of the late Mr. James Howatson, who died in Anaconda, Montana, will arrive here to-morrow and be taken to Mizpah Lodge room, from which place the funeral will be held on Wednesday at 3 o'clock. Service in the hall, to which the public are invited.

C.E. CONVENTION, DENVER, COL.

July 9th to 13th.

In connection with the Christian Endeavor Convention, Denver, Col., special reduced rates will be in effect via the Grand Trunk Railway, tickets are good going July 6th, 7th and 8th, valid to return, arriving at destination on or before August 31st. The Grand Trunk service is unexcelled for those who purpose attending this convention. Special train will leave Toronto at 6 p.m., Monday, July 6th. For further information apply to agents Grand Trunk Railway System. 6td

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

MEDICAL.

JOHN J. FARLEY, M.D., C.M., M.R., C.S., England.

Office and Residence — Corner of Bridge and George streets — three streets East of Post Office.

DR. J. F. MATHER

Has removed his office to Pinnacle St., three doors north of Hotel Quinte. my29-6mw

LEGAL.

WILLS & WRIGHT.

Barristers, Solicitors, Notary Public, &c., Belleville. Office—9 Campbell Street.

MALCOLM WRIGHT. J. FRANKLIN WILLS.

Money to Loan at Lowest Rates.

W. C. MIKEL, B. C. L., Barrister, &c.

Solicitor for the City of Belleville. Office—Metropolitan Block, Corner Front and Campbell Streets.

PORTER & CARNEW.

Barristers, Solicitors, Notaries Public, etc. Offices — Robertson Block, East Front St., Belleville, Ont. 'Phone 87.

E. G. PORTER. WM. CARNEW.

WILLIAM N. PONTON.

Barrister-at-law, Solicitor, Notary Public, Conveyancer. Office over Express and Telegraph Office, Bridge Street, Belleville. Money to Loan — Private Funds, Solicitor Sun and Hastings Savings and Loan Company of Ontario.

FRANCIS S. WALLBRIDGE, Successor to Hon. Lewis Wallbridge, Q.C.

Barrister, Solicitor, Conveyancer, Etc. Office, McAnnany Building, corner Front and Bridge Sts., Belleville, Ont. Private and Company money to loan at 6 per cent., on easy terms upon good land security. Charges moderate.

INSURANCE.

Fire Insurance.

Guardian	Est'd 1821
The North America,	Est'd 1792
Quebec,	Est'd 1818

City, Town and Village Property insure at lowest rates.

R. W. ADAMS. Agent.

Office opposite Post Office.

PERSONS desiring Life insurance cannot do better than consult

W. J. THOMSON,

who is the Agent for the following well-known and old established Assurance Companies:

ROYAL. ALLIANCE.
OCEAN ACCIDENT STANDARD LIFE

Office at Rathbun Co., Bridge St. ocs-d&w

FIRE, LIFE & ACCIDENT INSURANCE

At Lowest Rates The Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Perth Mutual on farm and city property. Also mone to loan at 4½ per cent. upwards.

JAMES A. CHISHOLM,
Office Ashley Block, Front st., Belleville.

THOS. STEWART,

Insurance and Commission Agent.

Agent for the Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Scottish Union Nationa' ns. Co.

BRIDGE ST.

Money Saved is Money Earned

can earn you money by saving it for you in your Fire Insurance.

The Anglo-American Fire Ins. Co
The Merchants Fire Ins. Co.
The Equity Fire Ins. Co.

Are all strong Canadian stock companies and insure Farm and City Property at lower rate than other stock companies Call and see me before placing your fire insurance.

Office—Bridge St., same entrance Quinte Laundry, Belleville.

H. FREEMAN KETCHESON

Fire, Life & Plate Glass Insurance.

Liverpool & London & Globe of England.
Waterloo Mutual, of Waterloo, Ont.
Lloyd's Plate Glass.
Home Life Association, Toronto.
North British & Mercantile.

Farm and City Property insured in First-class Reliable Companies and at lowest current rates. Losses promptly settled. Land valuation, and transact general Real Estate business and sale or purchase and renting of property. Appraiser for the Hastings Loan & Investment Society. Money to Loan.

W. P. HUDSON, Office above Rathbun's office, cor. Bridge and Pinnacle Sts., opposite Postoffice and Hotel Quinte, Belleville. 'Phone 168.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A. G. NORTHRUP,

Issuer of Marriage Licenses. Shire Hall, Belleville, Ont.

CHAUNCEY ASHLEY,

Issuer of Marriage Licenses. Private Office, Bridge St., Belleville, opposite the Post Office. Residence, first house east of W. W. Chown's Mfg. Co., Station St, Appointments made.

REMOVAL.

Dr. Clarke has removed to the offices formerly occupied by the late Dr. Ward, over Burrows', and opposite Scantlebury's Book Store. a27dtf

FAST MAIL SERVICE

Bay of Quinte Route
TO
ROCHESTER N. Y.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian"

Taking Effect 27th June.

GOING DAILY (EXCEPT MONDAY)
Lv. Belleville .... 11.38 p. m.
Ar. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 6.43 a. m
RETURNING DAILY (Except Sunday)
Lv. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 8.30 p. m.
Ar. Belleville .... 3.15 a. m.

Baggage checked to all points. Connection with all railways.

$1.00 THOUSAND ISLANDS $1.00

AND RETURN.

Commencing 28th June. Steamer leaves Belleville at 3.25 a.m. daily except Monday for 1000 Islands, calling at Bay of Quinte ports, Kingston, Alexandria Bay and Gananoque. Passing through American and Canadian channels.

Right reserved to change time with or without notice.

Full information from

THE RATHBUN CO., U. E. THOMPSON, } Agents.
E. E. HORSEY, G. P. & F. Agent, Kingston.

Str. "Alexandria"

Montreal, Rochester & Quebec Transit Co'y.

Popular Quebec Excursions NOW ON.

Belleville to Quebec and return.. $18 00
Belleville to Montreal and return $12 00
(including meals and berth)

Steamer runs all rapids.

For Rochester, Olcott Beach, Niagara Falls and Buffalo every Saturday at 11 a.m.

Particulars from

A. W. HEPBURN, General Manager, Picton, Ont.
THE RATHBUN CO. Agents. Belleville.

The Deseronto Navigation Co

TIME TABLE.

Taking effect April 13, 1903.

Belleville, Trenton, Picton & Napanee

Str. "ELLA ROSS"

Leaves Belleville for Trenton at 10 a. m., daily, Sundays Excepted, returning leaves Trenton at 1 p. m., leaving Belleville at 3 p.m. for Deseronto, Napanee and Picton.

Quick and Superior Service to NEW YORK CITY

Steamers RESOLUTE and RELIANCE will leave Deseronto for Oswego after arrival of Str. Ella Ross connecting at Oswego with the New York, Ontario Western Ry.

Fare to New York, Single, $3.40
Return, $13.25

For further particulars apply to THE RATHBUN CO., Local Agents

J. F. CHAPMAN, Asst. Gen. Frt. Pass. Agt., Deseronto
J. ARYER General Manager Deseronto.

Str. "Niagara"

The popular excursion boat "Niagara," which has been very much improved since last season, will be open for charter on or after the 13th of July next. The "Niagara" is now lighted throughout by electricity, and will also have a search light, making her at once the safest, fastest and most comfortable excursion boat on the bay.

THOMAS STEWART,
Manager,
45 Bridge St., Belleville.

RAILWAY TIME TABLES.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY,

Time of departure from Belleville Station:

Going East.

New train 12.45 a.m., daily, except Sunday, for Brockville, Montreal and intermediate stations.

No. 16—Local, for Brockville, 7 a.m., arrives back from Brockville 8.40 p.m.

No. 2—1.45 a.m., Mail and Express, (Flyer), Daily.

No. 6—11.43 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.

No. 4—12.22 p.m., International Limited, Daily.

No. 12—5.55 p.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.

Going West.

No. 5—3 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily except Monday.

No. 3—4.10 a.m., Limited Express, Daily.

No. 9—5.50 a.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.

No. 11—11.22 a.m., Passenger, Daily except Sunday.

No. 1—1.48 p.m., International Limited, Daily.

No. 7—5.12 p.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.

Taking effect 12.01 o'clock, Sunday, June 14, 1903.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.

Belleville and Peterboro.

Going West.

	Leave.	Arr. Peterboro
Mail	5.45 a.m.	8.10 a.m.
Mixed	5.55 p.m.	9.05 p.m.

Going East.

	Arr.	L've Peterboro
Mixed	11.20 a.m.	8.25 a.m.
Mail	4.25 p.m.	2.05 p.m.

Belleville and Madoc.

Going North.

	L've	Arr. Madoc
Mixed	12.20 p.m.	1.20 p.m.
Mixed	6.30 p.m.	7.40 p.m.

Going South.

	Arr.	L've Madoc
Mixed	9.10 a.m.	7.30 a.m.
Mixed	5.00 p.m.	3.45 p.m.

None of the above trains run on Sunday.

THIS UNPOETIC AGE

COMMERCIALISM IS KILLING THE BEST OF MANKIND'S QUALITIES.

THE HEN'S WING AS A SYMBOL.

God's Wing Is a Spiritual Life-Giving Wing and Can Save Even From the Hardness of Commercialism—How the All-Father's Love Can Vivify and Quicken Life If We Place Ourselves in Receptive Mood.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1903, by William Baily, of Toronto, at the Dep't of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Chicago, July 5.—Under the homely and familiar similitude of the barnyard fowl the preacher illustrates the divine love and protecting care that encircle all who give to the Heavenly Father a childlike trust and confidence. The text is Matthew xxiii, 37, "As a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings."

This commercial age is brutally unpoetic. It has even carried its shocking innovations into the barnyard. We are now trying to hatch our eggs not into broods, but by the wholesale. We would change a hen's nest into a big, square wooden box and call it an incubator. We would have the oil lamp of the incubator do the work of the feathered breast and the outstretched wing. We would have the wire screen displace the sharp pointed bill of the barnyard mistress vehemently plunging right and left in defense of her young. We would do this in spite of the inalienable rights of the hens, whose maternal affections are being crushed by this modern custom. The man, eager above all things to make money, has not the patience to listen to protests from man or bird against his methods.

This controversy, however, does not concern us in dealing with the simile Christ used in our text. At the time Christ uttered those words the barnyard knew nothing of this modern innovation of the incubator. Chickens still found their natural shelter under the wings of the hen, and our Lord's hearers perfectly understood the meaning of his illustration. So common was the sight of a hen gathering her chickens under her wings that every one would recognize the truth Christ meant to teach when he used the hen's wing as a symbol of divine love. Thus, as Jesus wept over the sinful inhabitants of Jerusalem, in the words of my text I would try to interpret that divine love in the language of the barnyard.

God's wing is a spiritual life giving wing. The warm feathers of the mother bird are absolutely essential for the development of the lives of her young. If it were not for the old hen's wing her chickens would freeze to death during the spring nights. They would sometimes be drowned unless her wing, as a waterproof covering, was placed over them. They would die from lack of warmth, even as a little baby would die unless the mother every night tucked him up in his crib or snuggled him up by her warm side in bed. Heat is life. Cold is death. The hen's wing is something more than a mere poetic figure. It means that its warmth not only hatches out the eggs, but also by its heat develops the little chickens after they are hatched. Post-natal care for the child in the making of a man is just as important as right prenatal conditions.

God's wing is absolutely essential for the development of a spiritual child. The Bible distinctly says, "Ye must be born again." That means, "Ye must be a God production as well as a man production." I am the physical child of my earthly parents. That does not necessarily imply that I am a spiritual child of God. But some day out in the cold, damp, destroying storm of sin I determine to creep under God's spiritual, life giving wing. As soon as I am under that shelter I feel the divine life begin to creep into my life. I learn to love my Heavenly Father and see him as he is. I hear him telling me what I ought to do and say. As a human being by placing his hand upon an electric battery immediately feels a thrill as the galvanic currents circle through his body the physical body and the mind and the dormant spirit all feel the warmth and the glow and the creative and developing power of God's wing as soon as we place ourselves in the receptive mood within the radius of the divine touch.

Oh, the creative and the creating spiritual power of God's wing! We cannot afford to be one moment without it. Sir Henry Havelock, the most famous Christian soldier, at the time of his death, in the British army, so felt his spiritual dependence upon God that he dare not and would not let any day pass without at least two hours spent in closest contact with God's wing. If the army was to march at 6 in the morning then Havelock arose at 4 and spent the intervening time in prayer and Bible reading, in talking with God and in having God talk to him. "I can afford to neglect every pulpit preparation," once wrote the great Robert Hall, "rather than neglect my private devotions and sacred solitary communion with Christ." Oh, my brother and sister, are we trying to get divine life by merely coming into touch with men? Are we trying to be gospel evangelists, known and read of all men, without having our penitent hearts beating against the great pardoning, spiritual life giving heart of God? Come under God's wing to-day. Come, that we may have life and have it more abundantly. Listen to the divine call, and come to the divine shelter, and as the chickens find under the hen's wing comfort and safety and peace, so shall you find rest and peace for your souls.

God's wing is a protecting wing. There are two kinds of hens. The one is a chickenless fowl, which is an arrant coward. She will run at every strange sight and known danger. If she could fly, she would. When the little boy throws a stone at her she will run to the opposite side of the yard just as fast as she can go, keeping her wings flapping to help along in the retreat. But how different is the behavior of one who is clucking to her brood. Then there is no coward's heart beating within the mother's breast. Then there is no danger she will not face for her young.

The hen's wings in times of danger are always protecting wings. The other day I was walking about a farm and examining the horses in the stalls and the cattle in the fields, while a pet dog was running at my heels. During my explorations I heard an excited clucking, but thought nothing of it. As I stepped into the barnyard proper I saw a hen lying under a board. I called to her, but she moved not. I called again and again, and then tried to shoo her off what I thought to be a stolen nest. Then I took a stick and gave her a poke. Instead of a frightened hen flying away for her life I found a vindictive and outraged mother flying at me and my dog. The dog ran in one direction, I in the other. Then the hen called again to her young and gathered her chickens under her wing while she still eyed my four-legged companion as she would eye the would be murderer of her children. Oh, my friends, in the beautiful symbol of my text, did you ever stop to think that God's care could be a protecting wing?

God protects us in a physical sense. Some time ago a gentleman, with his family, wished to make a journey to Boston. He hurried through his work that his vacation might be one of complete rest; but, try as hard as he could, he lost the desired train. A short time after the gentleman read the telegraphic reports that the train upon which he hoped to travel was wrecked in a collision and scores of people were killed. He immediately gathered his family together, and returned thanks to God because he and his loved ones had been saved from this calamity. But why ought that man especially to have thanked God that day? Ought he not rather to be grateful to his Heavenly Father for caring for him and his loved ones every day? I never take a trip in my life, and I have traveled thousands and tens of thousands of miles, but I realize the innumerable dangers which everywhere beset me. One intoxicated engineer, one drunken switchman, one failure of the signal lights to work, and Death is ready to reach out her bony arms and hug the breath out of me. If you do not believe what I say, some night when traveling lie awake in your berth. Then listen to the rumbling in the distance coming nearer and nearer until, with one wild shriek, the limited shoots past and then realize the prevalent dangers. Then thank God that he cared for and protected you in a physical sense. The breaking of one wheel, the twisting of one rail, the sagging of one bridge girder, and your train would be derailed and all its occupants would be hurled into eternity. God's wing in a physical sense is over us. It is a protecting wing. It covers us as a hen shields her chickens from the threatening hawk.

God protects us in a spiritual sense. The Bible says, "God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted beyond that ye are able, but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it." What does that statement mean? Simply this: Here is a man whose whole nature is gnarled and twisted by sin. He is by a corrupt past a drunkard, a libertine, a thief. He wants to get under the protecting shadow of God's wing. When he arises in the morning he kneels by his bed and says: "O God, I am awfully weak. I know not which way to turn unless I look to thee. Save me this day from the wine cup. Save me from the fatal pitfalls which are yawning at my feet. Save me, O God, save me, save me!" Will God answer such a pleading prayer as that? Oh, yes. God says to this moral cripple: "Come, my child, come under my wing, my protecting wing. I will surround thee with holy companionship. I will shut out from they sight the buzzards and the hawks and the serpents and the rats of sin which would destroy your life! Come, my child, come. Come under the shadow of my spiritually protecting wing." My friends, some of us have been trying to resist temptation in our own strength. Will you not depend upon the strength of God? Will you to-day, as a Christian, accept God's protecting wing against your besetting sin? That wing is a pledge that God will not allow your temptation to be stronger than you shall have power given to resist.

God's protecting wing is one of Christian fellowship. An old homely proverb says, "A hen will make just as much noise and scratch just as hard for one chicken as she will for ten." That may be true. Such actions upon the part of the feathered bird might be very exemplary. But one of the most ridiculous sights to me is a great, big fat hen strutting through the barnyard followed by one wee, little chirping chicken. Better for that little chicken to be killed and the hen go about her legitimate business of laying eggs for the breakfast than for the mother bird to continue to waste her energies upon the one offspring. The natural brood for a hen is not one or two chickens, but eight, nine or ten or even thirteen chickens. Every would-be sitting hen if left alone nearly always lays thirteen eggs for her nest. She wants a large family. A large family is good for the hen. It is good for the chickens.

What is the practical application of this simile? Why God's wing is a place under which not only one Christian can find rest, but many Christians, God's children are going to find safety and protection under God's wing because they will work together and live together and have their hearts beating together and, as it were, snuggle up together and keep each other spiritually warm. They will be together as close in fellowship as the chickens are close together under their mother's wing. If you lift up a hen who is covering her little ones at night you will be surprised how many chickens her small area is able to shelter. The reason—each chicken is pressing close against the other chickens as well as against its mother's breast.

God's wing often protects his children best when they themselves are enveloped by total darkness. The little chickens, running to the warning call of the clucking hen, answer for the most part to the blind obedience of faith and love. When they crawl under the overshadowing and enveloping covering of that wing they can see nothing. Under that wing is total darkness. When the chickens are truly under that wing they leave all and trust all to their mother's care. It is because those chickens stay in total darkness under that wing that they often escape the searching eye of an advancing foe.

My dear hearer, are you ready to trust God in darkness as well as in the light? You came to me the other day and said, "I cannot understand why this trouble was laid at my door." Neither can I, my brother. I do not understand why God should have taken away from your side that young man just five months after he was graduated for the bar. He was a bright fellow. He was a pure boy. He was the child upon whom you set your heart to take your own place. You are in total darkness about this matter. So am I. But I do know God is good. I do know that God loved your boy. I do know that God loves you. Though under God's wing it may be dark—dark at times as a dungeon—yet I do know that above God's wing is God's all seeing eye. What God did he did for a good purpose. Trust him, then, my brother. Trust him and have faith as a chicken under the darkness of the hen's wing trusts a mother's love.

I do not know why in your old age you should have lost your money, and now in your physical weakness you must work or be dependent upon others. From my standpoint you always seem to have been a faithful and conscientious Christian. I do not know why Ira D. Sankey, who has sung thousands upon thousands into the light of the kingdom of God, should in the evening time of his life sit in total darkness and as a blind man have to be led around, helpless as a little child. But I do know that "all things work together for good to them that love God." I do know his care will give us a peace that passeth all understanding during the days of our afflictions. I do know that some day all inexplicables will be explained, when God lifts his wing and the flood light of heaven roll in. I do know that under such conditions you and I, my brother, my sister, can afford to wait and trust Christ just a little while longer. We can trust him and believe in him though we sit in the darkness of the shadows of God's encircling but loving wing.

But though God's wing is a spiritual developing and protecting wing it only spiritually develops and protects his own children. A hen knows her own brood. She will do everything in her power to care for and protect them. If a farmer takes some ducks' eggs and places them in the nest of a sitting hen she cares for those ducks after they are hatched. If there be a pond near and the little ducks enter the water the old hen upon the shore will be frantic. She will run round and round, trying to call them out. But a hen, as a rule—sometimes there are exceptions—will only care for her own brood. The average hen will not allow her brood to be mixed up with other broods. She will drive the strange chickens away from her young. She tries to keep the family intact.

The hen's chickens know their mother's voice. At her call they leave whatever they are doing and go to her. My brother, have you heard God's voice calling you? Have you responded or have you stayed in your sin, heedless of his call? Remember, the protection of the divine wings is over none but those who seek it. God's wing is big enough to cover all who repent of their sins and come to him in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. But though God's wing is big enough to shelter the Mary Magdalenes and the poor publicans and the Peters and the Johns, though they may come by the millions, there are some who miss its protection. What is the reason? Jesus tells us in this very passage: "How often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!" That is the reason. God forces no man to come. He invites, he pleads with them, but if they will not come, even he can do no more. The awful storms of the godless eternity beat upon them, and they have no shelter. What the terrors and the misery of that time will be we cannot conceive. They are but dimly outlined in the Bible, but the images used are terrifying enough to blanch the bravest cheek, and through it all memory and conscience will reproach the sinner with those sad words, "Ye would not." Shelter was offered to all who would come, but "Ye would not." Self excluded, self destroyed; that will be the most terrible part of that awful fate.

Obedience and disobedience to God are the two great teachings of my text. It was said that during a famous naval battle the sailors of an American ship were almost ready to surrender when suddenly a fowl escaped from the hencoop and perched herself in the rigging. There she defied the shot and shell and inspired the sailors to fight on to victory. May this sermon, founded upon the barnyard symbol, inspire some sinner to seek his safety for time and eternity under the shadow of God's loving and protecting wing.

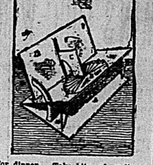
Men Used to Wag Their Ears.

Scientists assert that early man used to be able to wag his ears as an indication of pleasure, or to brush away flies from under his back hair, but as the muscles were not brought into continual use they became rudimentary.

PASTEBOARD SUN DIAL.

Any Boy Can Make One So that He Can Know Time Without Calling the Cook

MANKIND first began to note the passage of time thousands of years ago, before the age of clocks, and the original thinker noticed that when the branch of a tree cast its shadow at a certain spot the day was half over; and then watching the passage of the shadow and marking the places over which it passed, he was able to divide the day first into halves, then into quarters, and at last into twelfths, thus getting the hours. Although we have clocks and watches to-day, it is interesting to retrace these steps in measuing time, and here is a method by which any patient boy can make his own sun dial, so that he can know the hour without calling to the cook to ask if it is time to dress for dinner.



Take bits of ordinary cardboard, the tops of pasteboard boxes will do, and cut out some oblong pieces about a foot wide and a foot and a half long. Fasten two of them together lengthwise, on one side to form the pieces A. B in the illustration. Then bend the edge of a third piece and paste it to B, so as to have it stand at right angles, and for D. Make a slit in 1, into which slide an upright piece, C. This last marks the hours by casting the shadow C along the diagram which is drawn on B by watching the shadow and comparing it with a clock. On account of the difference of the distance of places from the equator and the inclination of the earth to the sun the piece B is made movable so that it can be elevated to the position which experiment shows to be right. In this way every boy can make his own sun dial and set it exactly so that it marks the hours of daylight correctly.

Something Like a Toronto Case.

Edna Crawford, the beautiful daughter of Chief Detective Ralph Crawford, of Cincinnati, has brought suit for ten thousand dollars damages against the famous New York photographer, Sarony, for using her picture as a corset advertisement without her permission. Detective Crawford was so incensed that he threatened to thrash Sarony, but was persuaded to let the law settle the matter. Sarony declares the girl was given professional rates, and thus gave him the right to use the picture as he did. Several days ago some of Miss Crawford's classmates were astonished to see her face mounted on the body of a giddy, bespangled actress in a magazine and in several theatrical papers. Next it began to appear out of corset "ads." and wearing two-dollar-and-forty-nine-cent shirt waists. She was shown as a high-kicker and in other attitudes, the very idea of which shocked the young woman. Miss Crawford denies the professional rate answer.

A really forgivable pun is one published by the Philadelphia "Ledger" when it ascribes the suicide of the diabolical governor of Shansi by swallowing gold leaf to "a consciousness of inward gilt."

Novel Prison Discipline.

They have a novel method of maintaining discipline in the state prison at Folsom, California, and it has proven to be a great success. They have no dungeons or dark cells in the prison, corporeal punishment is unheard of, tying up by the thumbs is never permitted, none of the old modes of punishment are recognized in this institution. The system in vogue is this: When a new prisoner is received, he is informed that they have three different bills of fare in the prison, and that it is optional with each man as to how well he lives. If he is industrious, orderly, well-behaved, and in all things conforming strictly to the rules of the prison, he is served with excellent food, nicely cooked. He can have chops, steaks, eggs, tea, and coffee, milk, and white bread; if he is only fairly well-behaved, and does not do his allotted task properly, is inclined to growl and grumble at the regulations of the institution, he is given ordinary prison fare—mush and molasses, soup, and corn breads; and if he is ugly and insubordinate, he is permitted to feast on unlimited quantities of cold water and a rather small allowance of bread. There is said to be an intense rivalry among the convicts to enter the first class, and once there, it is very seldom that one of them has to be sent back to a lower class.

Fame.

She lived and wrote 'mid simple joys and fears,
And never word she wrote had power to stir
The hearts of men to laughter or to tears
Until that one great sorrow came to her.

And then she wrote, and woke to praise and fame,
Now all unlonged for as but idle breath;
What matters it that they should vaunt her name,
His lips now silent 'neath the kiss of Death?

—Eileen Benson.

St. Catharines.

Sentimental.

The capitalist colored when he spoke of the check that hung in a neat frame over his desk. "A bit of sentimentalism," said he; "the first billion I ever made!"—Detroit "Free Press."

The Flagging Energies Revived.—Constant application to business is a tax upon the energies, and if there be not relaxation, lassitude and depression are sure to intervene. These come from stomachic troubles. The want of exercise brings on nervous irregularities, and the stomach ceases to assimilate food properly. In this condition Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will be found a recuperative of rare power, restoring the organs to healthful action, dispelling depression and reviving the flagging energies.

The best way to get even is to forget.

Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial is a speedy cure for dysentery, diarrhoea, cholera, summer complaint, sea sickness and complaints incidental to children teething. It gives immediate relief to those suffering from the effects of indiscretion in eating unripe fruit, cucumbers, etc. It acts with wonderful rapidity and never fails to conquer the disease. No one need fear cholera if they have a bottle of this medicine convenient.

Life has no blessing like a prudent friend.

Sleeplessness.—When the nerves are unstrung and the whole body given up to wretchedness, when the mind is filled with gloom and dismal forebodings, the result of derangement of the digestive organs, sleeplessness comes to add to the distress. If only the subject could sleep, there would be the oblivion for a while and temporary relief. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will not only induce sleep, but will act so beneficially that the subject will wake refreshed and restored to happiness.

It takes money to voice the opinion of a lawyer.

Holloway's Corn Cure is the medicine to remove all kinds of corns and warts, and only costs the small sum of twenty-five cents.

A long portage makes a heavy canoe.

A WONDERFUL CURE.—Mr. David Smith, Coe Hill, Ont., writes: "For the benefit of others I wish to say a few words about Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. About a year ago I took a very severe cough, had a virulent sore on my lips, was bad with dyspepsia, constipation and general debility. I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, so I got a bottle and when I had used about one-half, the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done, it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had used quinine and lemon juice with very little effect. But since using 3 bottles of the Vegetable Discovery, the biliousness is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 66 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know."

The wildcat's teeth are close to its purr.

THE PUBLIC should bear in mind that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has nothing in common with the impure, deteriorating class of so-called medicinal oils. It is eminently pure and really efficacious—relieving pain and lameness, stiffness of the joints and muscles, and sores or hurts, besides being an excellent specific for rheumatism, coughs and bronchial complaints.

Coral is a talisman against thunder and evils by flood and field.

These two desirable qualifications, pleasant to the taste and at the same time effectual, are to be found in Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator. Children like it.

The average watch represents but 12 hours of human labor.

To get relief from indigestion, biliousness, constipation or torpid liver without disturbing the stomach or purging the bowels, take a few doses of Carter's Little Liver Pills, they will please you.

When one gets hopping mad his reason goes on a crutch.

That tired, languid feeling and dull headache is very disagreeable. Take two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring, and you will find relief. They never fail to do good.

Many a man's self-conceit is due to his ignorance.

They make one feel as though life was worth living. Take one of Carter's Little Liver Pills after eating; it will relieve dyspepsia, aid digestion, give tone and vigor to the system.

Much talk, many lies.

Nothing so certainly obstructs the perspiration as sudden transitions from heat to cold. Heat rarifies the blood, quickens the circulation and increases the perspiration, but when these are suddenly checked the consequences must be bad. The most common cause of disease is obstructed perspiration, or what commonly goes by the name of catching cold. Coughs, colds, sore throat, etc., if attended to in time are easily subdued, but if allowed to run their own course generally prove the fore-runner of more dangerous diseases. Nine-tenths of the consumptives date their afflictions from a neglected and the diseases that are caused by wet feet, damp clothes, or exposure are more numerous than are generally supposed. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, which frees the lungs from viscid phlegm by changing the secretions from a diseased to a healthy state, natural.

SAVE MONEY
By JOINING The MUTUAL LITERARY-MUSIC CLUB
OF AMERICA

25 Cents pays for three months' membership. Each member receives the official club organ every month, including 6 pieces of high-class vocal and instrumental new music each month, 18 pieces in all; also a Certificate of Membership which gives the privilege of Club Room in New York City, and of buying literature, music or musical instruments of any description at wholesale prices, saving you from 20% to 50% on your purchases. Don't fail to join at once. You will get much more than your money's worth. MUTUAL LITERARY-MUSIC CLUB, Dept. , 150 Nassau St., N.Y.

SPECIAL SALE

. . . For

Just a Few Days

—OF—

MEN'S LIGHT-WEIGHT CLOTHING

On account of the cool weather during June, our Light-Weight Clothing has been a little slow in moving. We are determined not to carry over any of this season's goods, and

Here is Our Offer

On all unlined goods for this week only, we will give a discount of 20 per cent. off our already low prices.

Come and Get Good Choice.

OAK HALL

Sole Agents for Sanford's Celebrated Clothing.

STOP Young —MAN

While we direct your attention to our excellent lines of

CANVAS FOOTWEAR

Canvas Shoes make cool, comfortable and stylish summer footwear—and cost much less than leather—you will find a superiority in style and neatness in these goods. We solicit your inspection of these up-to-date goods:

White Canvas Laced style, newest shape, at	$1.50
White Canvas Shoes, newest shape, at	$1.25
White Canvas Laced style, Goodyear welt, at	$2.50
Grey Canvas, Laced style, 2 lines at	$1.50

MEN'S SPECIAL LOW PRICED GREY CANVAS with leather soles—useful for camping shoes—sizes 6 to 10, at 75c.

In Men's and Boys' Tennis, Running and Outing Shoes we have a fine showing.—SEE WINDOW DISPLAY.

Trunk and Bag Department on 2nd floor.

The J. J. Haines

SHOE HOUSES at Belleville, Napanee and Trenton

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE

FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

Daily Intelligencer.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Didn't it get intensely comfortable about church time last night?

• • •

A minister who would preach over three-quarters of an hour on a night like last night has more wind than wisdom.

• • •

"Coffin" McDonald will have to do without bologna sausage for the next six months.

• • •

The Brantfords thought they'd get the cup, but the Shamrocks didn't Minto let them.

• • •

Very fine turn-out and impressive ceremonies at the funeral yesterday afternoon. The Belleville Brethren of the Three Links do not do things by halves.

• • •

That's one thing Belleville can very properly be proud of, namely, her fraternal societies. It is doubtful if any place in Canada can equal the City of the Bay in that respect.

• • •

And assuredly men can find no nobler occupation than relieving the sick, burying the dead and comforting the widow and orphan. It is the duty of every man, whether young or old, to belong to some society and take his share of the work which consists in trying to help one's fellow-creatures.

• • •

A St. Thomas minister stopped in his sermon and waited three minutes for some of his congregation to wake up. They must have been light sleepers if they'd wake up in that short time.

• • •

An Ontario paper publishes, among its religious news, the portraits, in ring costume, of two prize-fighters, which shows bad taste, either from a religious or sporting point of view.

• • •

The latest theory is that a certain note in music kills mosquitos. All you have to do is get an instrument and play the scales. Once in a while you will strike the note and kill the skeeters — if somebody doesn't kill you.

MALIGNANT LUMPS AND TUMORS

Are Readily Cured by Our New Constitutional Treatment Without The Necessity of Operation.

Many people are afflicted with lumps or tumors in various parts of the body. Tumors, it must not be forgotten, are serious, and should not be neglected for several reasons. In the first place, their growth may involve or impair some vital part of the body, in the second place they constitute a drain on the system, and in the third place they frequently develop into cancers. Few people care to have these growths removed by the surgeon, as they dread the pain of the operation. With our pleasant home treatment, it is different. You simply take the remedy internally. It goes through the system, searching out and neutralizing and destroying those poisons from which tumors and cancers develop. After a time you will notice the tumor lessening in size, and gradually disappearing until it is completely cured. Send two stamps and we will mail you our treatise and testimonials. B. I. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

The First Diamond at Kimberley.

It was not until the autumn of 1870 that the first diamond was found on the present site of Kimberley. There was a shallow, circular depression, known as Dutoitspan, on the edge of which a farmer named Van Wyk lived in a cabin plastered with mud. This hut had no architectural pretensions, but, in its way, it went beyond the luxury of Fifth avenue, for the mud with which it was daubed was sprinkled with diamonds. One day Van Wyk's children prospected the plastering of their home and extracted several gems. The farmer and his friends began digging at the spot from which the mud had been taken, and found more diamonds.

Miners swarmed in, and a new camp, called Dorstfontein, sprang up. In June of the next year the Kimberley mine proper—one of the four great deposits that form the present Kimberley group—yielded its first diamond.—Cosmopolitan.

When Reptiles Inhabited the Earth.

At different epochs during the time known as the secondary period the surface of the earth seems to have been so predominantly peopled with reptile life that it has been called "the age of reptiles." The huge iguanodons stalked or leaped about in the wealds of Sussex and Hampshire. Of these iguanodons marvelously complete skeletons are to be seen (mounted in attitudes of life) in the Royal museum of Brussels—a sight in itself sufficient to induce a visit to that capital. Other smaller reptiles browsed on the foliage of the then existing plains and were pursued and preyed upon by fell reptilian monsters of various kinds. The sea also swarmed with reptiles (ichthyosauri) as aquatic as the whales and dolphins of our own day. And not only were the earth and seas thus peopled, but there were flying reptiles of different kinds and sizes, known as pterodactyls.

Curious Bits of News.

Breeding dogs for export to China, where they are used for food by mandarins and wealthy families, is the business of R. H. Patrick, Midway, Caroline Islands. The "dog packer," as he is known in the Pacific Islands, is in this country to purchase a kennel of St. Bernard dogs. He ships one hundred a month, consigned to Amoy. The animals bring $3 to $5 each.

The most recent triumph of the French postal administration is an ingenious little machine which not only automatically weighs letters and samples, but records on an indicator at the side the amount required for stamps. When the article deposited on the balance exceeds the regulation weight, the indicator promptly hoists the sign, "Too heavy."

W. S. Coburn, a prospector of Alpine, Colo., is in bad luck and wants to sell his body to raise another grubstake to get on his feet. He has exhausted his credit, and those who backed him threaten to levy on his claims to protect themselves. In this extremity, Coburn has inserted an advertisement in the papers. After citing his condition, the advertisement says: "If I have the right to sell my body when it becomes a corpse, I am on the market for anybody desiring such investment. If you know of a market for such dealings, and you can make sale of my corpse, I will pay a fair commission. My body would make a good skeleton."

The Paris correspondent of the "Lancet" relates that a specialist in mental diseases was recently consulted by a man of distinguished appearance, giving an aristocratic name, who sought treatment for a daughter suffering from kleptomania. Suggestive therapeutics was instituted, and little attention was paid to the propensity for misappropriation exhibited by the patient, particularly as the abstracted articles were returned the day after their removal. Finally the physician missed a jewel box of value, but this was not brought back, and, on investigation, it was found that the address given was false, and that the pretended patient and her father were crafty rogues.

"Shooting the hat" is a recognized festal occasion in New Orleans, the hat shot being the straw, and the time being the date when, in the general opinion, summer has ended. This year an early Sunday in October was chosen as the date beyond which straw hats must no longer be worn, ample notice was given in the papers, and any straw hats worn anywhere in the city on that day were even more liable to destruction than is tabooed headwear on the stock exchange. Resistance is seldom made to the despoilers, and when it is, the police act leniently. At two or more chosen places in the city the hat is actually shot. Boys gather the old straws into a great pile, which is blown to pieces by the explosion of bombs. At this year's celebration, two persons were injured by the bombs.

The official announcement by the United States Steel Corporation that its net earnings in the last six months exceeded $54,000,000 gives some idea of the magnitude of this unparalleled aggregation of capital, but the extent of its operations will be better grasped with the help of comparison. The total net earnings of the 3,871 national banks in the twelve months of 1900, according to the Controller of the Currency, were $69,981,810. In twelve months, if its earnings do not diminish, the steel corporation will have earned $40,000,000 more than all the national banks. It will have earned, in fact, according to the "Financier's" calculation, as much as all the banks of every kind in the United States, their total number being about 14,000.

A Puzzling Ghost Story.

In his autobiographical volume, A Sailor's Log, Rear-Admiral Robley D. Evans, U.S.N., relates a very curious ghost experience which occurred while he was cruising in the Mediterranean:

"At about midnight, when over a hundred miles from land and while everything was perfectly quiet about the deck, the sound of a tolling bell was distinctly heard. It could be plainly heard by the officer of the deck as well as the men, and it continued for several minutes. To the crew it sounded like a funeral bell, and they decided that someone was going to die. With much difficulty the men were finally sent to their hammocks and ordered to keep silence. The next morning the story was all over the ship, from the forecastle to the officers' messes. When night came again many had forgotten the incident, but at about the same hour the tolling of the bell was again distinctly heard, and the whole crew gathered on deck to listen in superstitious silence. The officers were much puzzled, and many theories were advanced to account for the strange and unusual noise. The third night found the captain and all hands, officers and men, on deck, determined if possible to find a solution of the mystery. At the proper time the sound of the bell came clear and distinct, tolling as if for a funeral. The captain and several of the officers then began a careful investigation, which soon cleared the matter up. The galley of the ship, where the cooking was done, was under the topgallant forecastle, about twenty feet from the ship's bell. The fires in the galley were put out at nine o'clock, and it was found that at a certain point in the process of cooling the contracting of the metal in the galley made it give out a cracking noise which accorded with certain tones in the bell and caused it to ring. The very puzzling ghost story was solved, and the men went to their hammocks, many of them still shaking their heads and predicting that there was trouble in store for somebody."

A Lesson in Composition.

"Children," said the teacher, while instructing the class in composition, "you should not attempt any flights of fancy, but simply be yourselves, and write what is in you. Do not imitate any other person's writings or draw inspiration from outside sources."

As a result of this advice Johnny Wise turned in the following composition:

"We should not attempt any flites of fancy, but rite what is in us. In me thare is my stummick, lungs, hart, liver, two apples, one piece of pie, one stick lemon candy, and my dinner."—

Dooley on Country Life.

"I WANST spint a night in th' counthry, Hinnissy. 'Twas whin Hogan had his villa out near th' river. 'Twas called a villa to distinguish it fr'm a house. If 'twas a little bigger 'twud be big enough f'r th' hens, an if 'twas a little smaller, 'twud be small enough f'r a dog. It looked as if 'twas made with a scroll saw, but Hogan mannyfacthered it himsilf out iv a design in th' pa-aper. 'How to make a counthry home on wan thousan' dollars. Puzzle: find th' money.' Hogan kidnapped me wan afthernoon an' took me out there in time to go to bed. He boosted me up a laddher into me bedroom adjinin' th' roof. 'I hope,' says I, 'I'm not discommodin' th' pigeons,' I says. 'There ain't anny pigeons here,' says he. 'What's that?' says I. 'That's a mosquito,' says he. 'I thought ye didn't have anny here,' says I. ''Tis th' first wan I've seen,' says he, whackin' himsilf on th' back iv th' neck. 'I got ye that time, assassin,' he says, hurlin' th' remains to th' ground. 'They on'y come,' he says, 'afther a heavy rain or a heavy dhry spell,' he says, 'or whin they's a little rain,' he says, 'followed be some dhryness,' he says. 'Ye mustn't mind thim,' he says. 'A mosquito on'y lives f'r a day,' he says. ''Tis a short life an' a merry wan,' says I. 'Do they die iv indigisthion?" I says. So he fell down through th' thrap-dure an' left me alone.

"Well, I said me prayers an' got into bed an' lay there, thinkin' iv me past life, an' wondherin' if th' house was on fire. 'Twas warrum, Hinnissy. I'll not deny it. Th' roof was near enough to me that I cud smell th' shingles, an' th' sun had been rollin' on it all day long, an' though it had gone away, it'd left a ray or two to keep th' place. But I'm a survivor iv th' gr-reat fire, an' I often go down to th' rollin'-mills, an' besides, mind ye, I'm iv that turn iv mind that whin 'tis hot I say 'tis hot, an' lave it go at that. So I whispers to mesilf, 'I'll dhrop off,' I says, 'into a peaceful slumber,' I says, 'like th' healthy plough-boy that I am,' says I. An' I counted as far as I knew how, an' conducted a flock iv sheep in a steeplechase, an' I'd just begun f'r to wondher how th' las' thing I thought iv came into me head, whin a dog started to howl in th' yard. They was a frind iv this dog in th' nex' house that answered him, an' they had a long chat. Some other dogs butted in to be companyable. I heerd Hogan rollin' in bed, an' thin I heerd him goin' out to get a dhrink iv wather. He thripped over a chair befure he lighted a match to look at th' clock. It seemed like an hour befure he got back to bed. Be this time th' dogs was tired, an' I was thinkin' I'd take a nap, whin a bunch iv crickets under me windows begun f'r to discoorse. I've heerd iv th' crickets on th' hearth, Hinnissy, an' I used to think they were all th' money, but anny time they get on me hearth I buy me a pound iv insect powdher. I'd rather have a pianola on th' hearth anny day, an' Gawd save me fr'm that! An' so 'twas dogs an' mosquitoes, an' crickets an' mosquitoes, an' a screech-owl an' mosquitoes, an' a whippoorwill an' mosquitoes, an' cocks beginnin' to crow at two in th' mornin', an' mosquitoes, so that whin th' sun bounced up an' punched me in the eye at four, I knew what th' truth is—that th' counthry is th' noisiest place in th' wurruld. Mind ye, there's a roar in th' city, but in th' counthry th' noises beats on ye'er ear like carpet-tacks bein' dhriven into th' dhrum. Between th' chirp iv a cricket an' the chirp iv th' hammer at th' mills, I'll take th' hammer. I can go to sleep in a boiler-shop, but I spint th' rest iv that night in Hogan's, settin' in th' bath-tub.

"I saw him in th' mornin' at breakfast. We had canned peaches an' condensed milk. 'Ye have ye'er valise,' says he. 'Aren't ye goin' to stay out?' 'I am not,' says I. 'Whin th' first rattler goes by ye'll see me on th' platform fleein' th' peace an' quiet iv th' counthry, f'r th' turmoil an' heat,' I says, 'an' food iv a gr-reat city,' I says. 'Stay on th' farm,' says I. 'Commune,' I says, 'with nature,' I says. 'Enjoy,' I says, 'th' simple, rustic life iv th' merry farmer-boy that goes whistlin' to his wurruk befure breakfast,' says I. 'But I must go back,' I says, 'to th' city,' I says, 'where there is nawthin' to eat but what ye want, an' nawthin' to dhrink but what ye can buy,' I says. 'Where th' dust is laid be th' sprinklin'-cart, where th' iceman comes reg'lar, an' th' roof garden is in bloom, an' ye're waked not be th' sun, but be th' milkman,' I says. 'I want to be near a doctor whin I'm sick, an' eat eatable food whin I'm hungry, an' where I can put me hand out early in th' mornin' an' hook in a newspaper,' says I. 'Th' city,' says I, 'is th' on'y summer resort f'r a man that has iver lived in th' city,' I says. An' so I come in."

"The Iron Age" tells of a young man in the West, who, discouraged at the outlook of country school teaching, applied for employment in a sheet steel mill, and in eleven months was in charge of a sheet train as roller, earning from $8 to $10 a day.

THE MARKETS.

American Markets Closed — Liverpool Quotations Steady—British Cattle Prices Easier—The Quotations.

Saturday Evening, July 4.

Liverpool wheat and corn futures closed unchanged to ½d higher to-day than on Friday.

American grain and produce markets were closed on Saturday.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

Wheat, on passage, quiet, but in some request. Parcels No. 1 Northern Manitoba, July 30s 4½d. Maize, on passage, quiet for American, easy for Danubian. Spot American, mixed, 22s 6d. Flour, spot, Minn., 26s 6d.

Paris—Close—Wheat, tone steady; July, 25f; November and February, 22f 45c. Flour, tone steady; July, 33f 70c; Nov. and Feb., 30f 65c.

Antwerp—Wheat, spot, quiet; No. 2 R. W., 16½f.

LIVERPOOL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

Liverpool, July 4.—Closing—Wheat, spot dull; No. 2 red western winter, 6s 2d; No. 1 northern spring, 6s 5d; No. 1 California, 6s 6½d; futures, dull; July, 6s 5½d; Sept., 6s 3d. Corn—Spot quiet; American mixed, 4s 10½d. Futures, dull; July, 4s 8½d; Sept., 4s 5⅜d; Oct., nominal. Flour, St. Louis fancy winter, quiet, 8s 3d. Hops at London (Pacific coast), steady, £5 15s to £6. Peas—Canadian, dull, 5s 8½d. Beef, easy; extra India mess, 70s. Pork, easy; prime mess, western, 81s 3d. Hams, quiet. Bacon, quiet; Cumberland cut, 26 to 30 pounds, 47s; short rib, 16 to 24 pounds, no stock; long clear middles, light, 28 to 34 pounds, 52s; long clear middles, heavy, 35 to 40 pounds, 51s; short clear backs, 16 to 20 pounds, 49s; clear bellies, 14 to 16 pounds, 47s. Shoulders, square, 11 to 13 pounds, quiet, 38s; large prime western, in tierces, quiet, 40s 6d; American refined, in pails, dull, 39s 6d. Butter, good United States, steady, 57s. Cheese, dull. American white, 50s 6d; do., colored, 51s 6d. Tallow, prime city, firm, 24s 6d; Australian, in London, steady, 30s 6d. Turpentine spirits, steady, 39s 3d. Rosin, common steady, 5s 3d. Petroleum, refined, steady, 6¼d. Linseed oil, steady, 24s. Cotton seed oil, Hull refined, spot, steady, 22s 3d.

The English Pheasant.

It is claimed that the pheasant of the English preserves can trace its pedigree directly to the brilliant bird of the same species in Japan. About half a century ago a few live pheasants were brought from Japan and crossed with the common species. The result of this was, it is said, that a new race of birds was introduced, and the beautiful pheasant, with its iridescent plumage, was produced and naturalized as an English bird.

The American Father.

Ascum—Another baby, and a girl this time, eh? How does it make you feel to have a daughter?

Popley—Great! One of the first things you think about it is how a foreign nobleman will come courting her some day and how you'll turn him down good and proper.

Not by Exclusion.

He—I had a hard time getting a good wife.

She—Goodness! Have you been married several times?

"Oh, no; but I courted my present one six years."

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

POPULAR TOURIST RESORTS

Muskoka Lakes	Lake of Bays
Kawartha Lakes	Georgian Bay
Orillia	Magnetawan River
Jackson's Point	Collingwood

Excellent train service making direct connection for all ports on Muskoka Lakes.

Special Excursion to Canadian North-West.

Tickets will be issued at reduced rates, good going July 4th, valid to return up to and including Sept. 8, 1903.

Special Reduced Rates are in effect for C. E. Convention, Denver, Col., July 9th to 13th. Tickets will be issued good going July 6th, 7th and 8th, valid for return arriving at destination on or before August 31st, 1903.

N. E. A. Convention, Boston, July 6th to 10th. Tickets good going July 2nd to 5th inclusive, valid for return, leaving Boston on or before July 12th.

For further information and descriptive literature of Summer Resorts in "Highlands of Ontario" apply to

U. E. THOMPSON, City Agent,
Bridge Street,
T. H. COPPIN, Depot Agent.
J. D. McDONALD,
Dist. Pass Agt., Toronto.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY.

WILL RUN

Homeseekers' 60 DAY Excursions

To The Canadian North-West at Return Fares.

Winnipeg, Waskada Estevan, Elgin Arcola Moosomin, Wawanesa Miniota, Binscarth, Grand View Swan River	$28	Regina, Moosejaw, Yorkton,	$30
		Prince Albert Macleod, Calgary	$35
		Red Deer. Strathcona	$40

Going JUNE 4th, returning until AUGUST 4th (all rail or S.S. Athabasca). Going JUNE 18th, returning until AUGUST 18th (all rail or S.S. Athabasca). Going July 4th, returning until SEPTEMBER 8th (all rail or S.S. Manitoba). Tickets are not good on "Imperial Limited." For tickets and pamphlet giving full particulars, apply to your nearest Canadian Pacific agent, or to

A. H. NOTMAN, Asst. Genl. Passr. Agent, 1 King St. East, Toronto.
S. BURROWS, C.P.R. and General Ticket Agent, Front St., Belleville.

NEW YORK CENTRAL

& HUDSON RIVER R. R.

THE FOUR-TRACK TRUNK LINE.

SHORTEST Route to the United States via Cape Vincent, N.Y.

GOING EAST AND WEST.			After 1st May
Lv. Belleville (G.T.R.)		12.22 p.m.	1.30 a.m
Arr. Kingston	"	1.47 p.m.	3.12 a.m
Lv. Kingston (stage)..		2.30 p.m.	5.00 a.m
Arr. Cape Vincent (stage)		4.30 p.m.	7.00 a.m
Lv. Cape Vincent N.Y.C.		5.05 p.m.	7.25 a.m
Arr. Watertown	"	5.55 p.m.	8.25 a.m
Arr. Oswego	"	9.05 p.m.	11.55 a.m
Arr. Syracuse	"	9.25 p.m.	12.07 p.m
Arr. Rochester	"	1.05 a.m.	2.20 a.m
Arr. Utica	"	9.45 p.m.	12.35 p.m
Arr. New York	"	7.25 a.m.	6.00 p.m

Convenient train service in opposite direction.

Pullman Sleeping and Parlor Cars.

2c a Mile.

Books for 500 miles of travel on New York Central and leased lines within State of New York, cost only $10 while books for 1000 miles over New York Central, Boston & Albany, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, Philadelphia & Reading and C. R. R. of New Jersey cost $20. Secure further information and purchase tickets from F. A. Folger, N.Y.C. Agent, Kingston, Ont.

GEORGE H. DANIELS,
Gen'l Pass'r Agent.
New York.

A. H. SMITH, Gen'l Supt.,
New York.

G. C. GRIDLEY, Gen'l Agent,
Watertown, N.Y.

It takes a long time to tell of what you have not done.

Shoe Bargains

See our Bargain Tables for

Ladies' fine Low Shoes, regular price 75c & $1.00, now	50c
Ladies' Low Shoes, worth from $1.25 to $2.00, for	75c
Travellers Samples at greatly reduced prices.
Boys' Tan Boots, worth $1.25 to $2.50.	$1.00, $1.25 and $1.50
Men's Tan Boots per pair worth $3.00, $4.00, and $5.00.	$2.00
Misses' Box Calf, Button Boots, per pair sizes 11 to 2	60c
Children's Laced and Button Boots, per pair worth 75c and $1.00	60c
Infants' Boots and Slippers, per pair	25c
Infants' Gaiter Boots	25c

VERMILYEA & SON.

Choose The Best

If it is only the framing of a picture you may as well have the best workmanship as well as the largest selection of mouldings—when it don't cost you any more, probably less.

If we do not give you perfect workmanship—you may demand of us non-payment—framing superior to ours is impossible—we would not do all of the framing for Albert College Art Students if our work were not fitting, and proper.

Another lot of new mouldings just arrived, it would surprise you to see the repeated shipments of mouldings we receive.

You know what to expect of us in WALL PAPERS, and now with our special prices it is amazing what you can get for a small amount of money.

A beautiful new line of American Wall Papers arriving almost all the time.

Better not forget us for PAINTING. Whether your house is to paint outside or inside, whether a fence or a barn, we will paint it at reasonable prices but our workmen are not of the Barn Painting Kind. None but expert workmen find employment with us, men who will please you in both quality and quantity and we have no frills on our prices.

We purpose doing our paper hanging and decorating and painting at actual cost in connection with our Wall Paper department.

If You Live in the Country.

In Stirling, Tweed, Madoc, Trenton, Napanee, Deseronto or within a radius of 50 miles—we will send you workmen and guarantee you every satisfaction.

Our Paints

If you want prepared paints we have them in all colors.

Also barn paint at $1.00 per gallon, but better than that we will mix you the best lead and oil paint, our own mixing and our own materials at the actual cost of the less valuable ready-mixed material.

Any quantity you want any color or shade, in a moments notice and at remarkably low prices — our customers are many in the paint line.

C. B. Scantlebury

Belleville's Decorator.

Wall Paper Wholesale and Retail.

For the Revelsworth Millions.

—or—

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fail by the Man She Loves.

"Oh, they were follies! He declared that you had no relatives, that you were an angel of evil, and not a human at all. He is assuredly mad, this young man! Is it not so?"

"Would you love me less, Victor," she asked suddenly, "if I told you that I am a widow, and that that man is my dead husband's brother?"

Her cousin stared at her in astonishment not unmingled with consternation.

"A widow!" he faltered. "But you are jesting, Francesca! In that beautiful letter you wrote to our good aunt Margaret, telling her that your mother still lived, you said that you had kept unmarried for her sake. Do you not remember?"

"I remember. But it was only partly true. Since my husband's death three years ago I have indeed kept single for my mother's sake. But, at nineteen, to save her from starvation, I married the brother of the man you saw in the Park to-day."

"You married him?"

"Yes; but I could never love him. It was a terrible experience. Please do not talk about it. Now perhaps you can understand why I am not anxious to be married again."

"Yes," he said—"I can understand."

"I did not dare to tell my aunt," she continued. "How could I say to her, 'At nineteen I married a man I could not love, who left me almost immediately, who drank and gambled, and was in every way hateful to me, and whose death from drink came to me as a release from a hateful slavery'? You know aunt Margaret, you know her strong views and conventional ideas; and you can judge how she would have received such a communication as that."

Victor bowed his head.

"Remember," she said, after a side glance at his face—"I do not want to marry you, Victor dear, nor do I in any way hold you to your promise. You are free as air."

"I do not wish to be free," the young man cried, taking her hand, which lay upon her lap, for a moment and pressing it tenderly; "I wish to be bound to you."

Nevertheless the news that Francesca had been already a wife came upon him as a strong and distinctly disagreeable shock. Unlike his brother Dudley, who fought against her fascinations and half distrusted her while he half yielded to their spell, Victor was wholly and heartily devoted to Francesca, and idealised her with all the force of his romantic and imaginative nature. The knowledge that she had already been the wife of another man came to him therefore with a sense of desecration. He was still, as before, passionately desirous of marrying her; but he could not help feeling that a good deal of the bloom and the charm had been brushed off his wooing by the knowledge that he was courting another man's widow.

Francesca, who could by this time read him as an open book, easily divined what was passing in his mind. But she knew her power, and sat beside him in silence, as though lost in sad memories of the past, untill Victor spoke again.

"Why does that man—your husband's brother—hate you so bitterly?" he asked at length, after a considerable pause.

"He was in love with me himself at one time," Francesca answered promptly, "and he will never forgive me for having repulsed him when I married his brother. he conceived a violent hatred of me, which he has cheerished ever since. But he drinks so much and leads such a dissipated life that I really believe his brain is affected, and that he is not responsible for his actions or his words. I should never be surprised," she added musingly, "to hear of his dying suddenly, just as his brother did. Men with weak hearts who lead such lives seldom last long."

Victor glanced at his cousin quickly.

There was something in her tone and manner which struck even him as a trifle cold-blooded. But the sad expression on her beautiful face convinced him that she felt far more deeply that could be divined from her mere words, and, dreading to cause her pain, he changed the subject of their talk until they reached the railway-station.

Here, as he stood taking leave of her by the window of her compartment, having arranged to follow by the next train, Francesca laid her hand warningly upon his arm.

"Above all,' she whispered impressively, "if you care for me at all, Victor, do not breathe one word to any living creature of anything that has happened tó-day. Remember how much —how very much depends upon your silence!"

"I have given my word, my darling, and I will remember!"

At Kingston Station Francesca's gaze fell, at the moment when she alighted from the train, upon the tall broad-shouldered figure of Dudley Revelsworth. He was strolling along the platform, holding an evening paper in his hand, and scanning the occupants of each compartment with lowered brows. He had not come to the station with the deliberate intention of discovering whether or not Victor's "day upon the river" was a ruse to conceal the fact that he had spent the day in London with Francesca; but he was certainly both suprised and relieved when his beautiful cousin descended from the train alone.

A mischievous look flashed into Francesac's eyes as he hastened forward to greet her.

"You look surprised to see me," she said artlessly.

"I am surprised to see you alone," he returned, taking up the challenge. "I made sure Victor would be with you."

"How horribly unblieving and suspicious you are!" she exclaimed looking straight into his eyes. "I shall be sorry for your wife, if you ever have one! She will never go out to buy a yard of ribbon without your suspicions following her."

"There is no fear of that," Dudley retorted gravely, "for, please Heaven, I will never marry a woman I cannot trust."

Heaven need not have anything to do with it. We are distinctly told that marriages are not made there. Falling in love in a thing of the senses—a magnetic influence which one particular person exercises over another for the time being——"

"What a degraded view to take of it!"

Francesca colored deeply.

"One must judge by one's experiences," she murmured.

"I am sorry for you if your experiences lead you to take such a view."

"Here is the omnibus!" she said abruptly. "We must defer our discussion on love if we go by it. But I am not a bit tired."

"Would you like to walk home throgh Bushey Park?" he inquired. "We have time."

"I should love it!"

Dudley led the way across the bridge to the Hampton Wick enterance.

Never had Francesca appeared more lovely or more desirable. Her long day in town had not tired but had excited and pleased her. Under her crown of red roses and in her long flowing dust-cloak, she looked like a Greek goddess who had adapted her draperies to suit nineteenth-century tastes.

'I like that thing you have on your head," Dudley said, as they entered the Park. "You certainly have the art of choosing what suits you."

"It does suit me—doesn't it?" she asked, turning her radiant face towards him. "I was so longing for you to see me in it; and I half guessed you would meet me at the station! As the train neared the platform, I said to myself, 'I believe he will be there'; and I was almost afraid to look out of the window lest I should be disappointed."

Dudley stopped abruptly in his walk and faced her, looking straight into her eyes.

"Do you know what you would make me believe by that sort of speech?' he asked almost roughly.

Francesca caught her breath as she murmured something inaudible.

"You would make me believe," he pursued, in a raised harsh voice, "that you are in love with me."

"Well?"

Francesca had lowered her eyes, but now she raised them and looked full into his face. There was a meaning and a passion in her own which made his heart beat fast.

"Well," she repeated in low tones, in which there was suspicion of a sob, "and suppose that I am in love with you?"

Dudley determined to resist the allurement of her voice and eyes.

"If you care about me," he asked coldly, "why are you playing fast and loose with my brother?"

"In the first place, he is not your brother at all."

"He is dearer to me than any one in the world, and I will never stand by and see any woman make a fool of him to satisfy her own vanity!"

"Dudley, Dudley," Francesca cried, in a tone that was almost a wail, "why are you always so terribly hard! Can't you understand that I am grateful for affection, and do not therefore perhaps repress poor Victor as I might! He is a boy—or, at least, he seems so to me. I feel so many years older than my age already after the hard sad life I have led. Then too the poor fellow is so delicate—consumptive, is he not? —and I am afraid, if I were really unkind to him, he would take it to heart and perhaps fret himself into a serious illness."

"Victor consumptive! He is not particularly muscular, but he has never had any thing the matter with him in his life. Just now he is so much in love that he can neither eat nor sleep, and no woman with any heart ought to encourage a man to get into that state about her."

"But I don't encourage him!" cried Francesca. "I encourage you," she added, in a lower tone, "because I love you, Dudley!"

Her tones were like the softest music Dudley could not trust himself to look at her, feeling that her eyes were fixed upon him, and therefore walked on rapidly, staring down the alley of chestnuts which stretched before them and at the dappled deer among the trees.

"I am not vain, as you think," Francesca said presently "Men's admiration means very little to me—I have always had it. I suppose I should miss it if it were not there, that is all. But I long to be loved as I can love, if it were only for one blissful week—for a day even! You are so much colder and hardier than I; I suppose I cannot make you understand . But I know, inspite of your hardness and your coldness, that you love me. And—and why won't you tell me so, Dudley?"

The young man turned and looked at her then, looked down into her glowing face and shining eyes, controlling his emotions, and compelling himself to speak in terms of studied indifference.

"I told you ," he said, with brutal frankness, "that I would never, please Heaven, marry a woman I did not trust. And I can't trust you."

"Why not?"

"Instinct, I suppose—the instinct of self-preservation."

"I thought men did not believe in such things—that they were guided by reason."

"My reason and experience teach me to respect my instinct."

"And your instinct teaches you to beware of me? Oh, Dudley!"

"Yes," he responded marcilessly—"my instinct warns me against an artful and experienced coquette."

"Am I all that? What is it about me that attracts you so greatly, then, in spite of your reason?"

"Your beauty, I suppose," he answered coolly. "But a liking founded solely on physical beauty isn't worth much."

"Now you are talking nonsense—young and inexperienced nonsense!" she declared. "It is those very physical likings and dislikings which sway one without respect to age, position, or reason, which move the world, and make history—love, in fact—sudden and passionate love—love without any thought of reason—love that wars with one's own interests, one's own intentions! I do not want to marry again —above all, I don't want to marry a first cousin; I don't want to be troubled by any emotions, any love-affairs, until the Revelsworth property is settled and my mother's future secured. Yet, in spite of all these things, I love you!"

"Now what do you mean by all this?" he asked, stopping again suddenly in his walk and facing her. "Have you made up your mind to marry me?"

Francesca drew back with a shudder.

"Marriage is a word of ill-omen to me," she demurred; "besides, aunt Margaret would never forgive——"

"If I made up my mind to marry you," Dudley interrupted, "aunt Margaret would not enter into my carculations. If I believed in you, I should go straight back to the house now, with your hand within my arm, and I should take you to her and tell her you were going to be my wife!"

"Your wife!" she breathed in accents of infinite tenderness, holding her hands out towards him.

Womanlike, she had first glanced around and ascertained that no passers-by were near enough to note this affectionate interlude. Manlike, for the moment he forgot his surroundings, forgot his scruples, and, seizing her in his arms, held her for a moment strain close against his throbbing heart.

With a tremulous sigh Francesca raised her lips to his, but before he touched them reason reasserted its sway over Dudley, and, holding his cousin at arm's length, he reminded her of his determination.

"Understand," he said, in a voice that, against his will, quivered with emotion—"if I kiss you, I marry you, and take you straight in to my aunt and proclaim our engagement!"

Francesca drew back in protest.

"No, no," she cried—"there must be no open engagement between us for a year at least!'

"Nonsense! If you mean to marry me, you must marry me at once, and there shall be no secrecy about the matter."

"Don't you love me well enough to wait a little?" she pleaded.

"I am not certain," he answered slowly, "whether I love you or hate you. But I will marry you at once or not at all."

"And suppose I refuse you on those terms?"

"You can do as you please about that," with true Revelsworth obstinacy, sharply disengaging her caressing hands from about his neck and flinging her from him. Then, without another word or backward look, he marched home at a pace which precluded her from following him, unless she absolutely ran; with his hands thrust deep into his pockets, and whistling a popular tune with perfectly-assumed indifference.

Francesca stood still where he had left her in the shadow of the chestnut-trees, looking wistfully after him. A long sigh broke from her lips as she saw him pass out of the Park-gates, and half involuntarily she stretched out her hands as though to detain him before following him slowly towards the house.

"How hard he is!" she murmured. "And I am beginning to loose my head about him."

So absorbed was she in her own reflections that she started violently when just before she reached the Green, she felt some one pluck at her sleeve.

It was Joseph Welldon, pale and sullen-looking.

"I've been on the look-out for you everywhere for well-nigh an hour," he said resentfully. "I thought you'd most likely come by the omnibus; but I watched the Park-gates too, and I saw you spooning with that Dudley fellow under the trees."

"No impertinence, if you please! Remember your place!"

"Oh, I remember well enough! My place is to be your spy and to stop letters with the Italian postmark. But Miss Betty was too quick for me. About an hour ago I was hanging about the gate to stop the postman, when she came flying down the garden-path with an order from Mrs. Revelsworth that the letters were never to be given up outside of the house except to her. The postman he put three letters into her hand: one was for cook, one was from France for Mr. Victor, and one for Mrs. Revelsworth, and had the postmark 'Rome'"

"Rome! You are sure?"

"Certain sure! And Miss Betty she gives out the other two letters, and goes up-stairs with the one from Rome I'd ha' stopped her if I could, or sneaked it from her. But what was I to do?"

"If you had been the boy I thought you—if you had not been a clumsy little fool—you would have got that letter somehow!" said Francesca turning upon him with sudden rage. "You ght have fallen down in the hall in a fit—there are heaps of things you might have done—but you hadn't the sense! Leave me now! I don't want to be seen from the house talking to you."

Ten minutes later Francesca stood before a looking-glass in Mrs. Harold Revelsworth's room, slowly taking off her bonnet, while the old woman watched her with admiring eyes.

"Nothing will come of that Roman matter, you will see, carissima," Mrs. Harold was saying soothingly. "Why should this man know everything that happened eight or nine years ago because he happened to live in Rome? Meeting Devereux is a real danger. You know, my little one, I warned you——"

"I know—I know!" Francesca exclaimed impatiently. "But I can't always live penned up like a toad in a stone. I must enjoy myself—show myself sometimes!"

"And so you have promised to marry Victor Revelsworth at the end of a year!" the crone whispered, rubbing her skinny hands together and chuckling

(To be continued.)

Curse —OF— DRINK

CURED BY

COLONIAL REMEDY

No taste. No Odor. Can be given in a glass of water, tea, or coffee, without patient's knowledge.

Colonial Remedy will cure or destroy the diseased appetite for alcoholic stimulants, whether the patient is a confirmed inebriate, "tippler," social drinker or drunkard. Impossible for anyone to have an appetite or alcoholic liquors after using Colonial Remedy.

Indorsed by Members of the W.C.T.U

Mrs. Moore, Superintendent of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Ventura, Cal., writes: "I have tested Colonial Remedy on very obstinate drunkards, and the cures have been many. In many cases the Remedy was given secretly. I cheerfully recommend and endorse Colonial Remedy. Members of our Union are delighted to find a practical and economical treatment to aid us in our temperance work."

Sold by druggists everywhere and by mail. Price $1. Trial package free by writing or calling on Mrs. M. A. Cowan (for years member of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union), 2204 St. Catherine St., Montreal.

Sold in Belleville by F. Chas. Clarke Front St. and D. M. Waters, Bridge St

Bank of Montreal

ESTABLISHED 1817

Capital and Rest, All Paid Up.

$23,000,000

(Twenty-three Millions)

Savings Bank Department

Interest on sums of $1.00 and upwards allowed at current rates.

A. G. PARKER,

Manager Belleville Branch

NEW GOODS

JAPAN TEA

The first of this season's crop, exta quality, regular 50c line, we quote

40c per lb.

Canned Halibut

Fine solid Fish, very tasty,

15c per can.

J. C. Hanley & Co.

GROCERS

Telephone 214

Our Witch Hazel Cream

Is a positive cure for SUNBURN. You are sure to get sunburnt when on your holidays. Take a bottle along and enjoy yourself.

25c bottle.

Waters' DRUG STORE.

Wall Paper

At first sight of our Wall Papers you will say there's an attractiveness about them that puts them lengths ahead of other lines.

IN STOCKING

we select only the best, we have no "shelf warmers" all our Papers are quick sellers. If you choose your Papers from us you have best value for the price obtainable anywhere.

Painting, Paperhanging and Decorating done on shortest notice by best workmen in the city.

JOHN CORNELIUS.

3 Doors South of Intelligencer Office.

Western Beef.

Prime Western Beef together with all kinds of choice meats, supplied by the district, at

C. GREEN'S

267 Front St., 'Phone 109.

Flowers & Vegetables

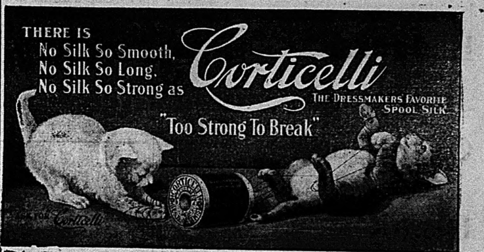
Of all kinds in season.

... AT ...

J. D. COLLIP'S.

'Phone 205.

Coin Pay Envelopes at The Intelligencer Job Office. Cheapest and best in the city.



CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY

CAPITAL

10,000 Shares 7 per cent Cumulative Preferred Stock, par value $100 each, $1,000,000
50,000 Shares Common Stock, par value $100, issued and fully paid 5,000,000
TOTAL CAPITALIZATION $6,000,000

Issues of $1,000,000 00 7 p.c. Preferred Stock in 10,000 Shares of $100 each at par.

This stock is preferred both as to Assets and Dividends.

The shares are entitled to cumulative preferred dividends from the net earnings of the Company, at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable half yearly on the first days of April and October. They may, at the option of the holder, be exchanged for common shares. They are subject to be called in, in whole or in part, by the Company, at $115.00 per share, at any time after 1st January, 1909.

The total issue of Preferred Stock is only $1,000,000.00, the whole of which is now offered.

Subsriptions for 10,000 Shares of $100 each of the 7 per cent. Preferred Stock of the CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY will now be received at par, that is $100 Share, as follows

per cent on application,
25 " " on allotment,
35 " " 30 days thereafter.
35 " " 60 days thereafter.

One share of Common, par value $100, given with each share of preferred.

The whole of instalments remaining unpaid at any time may be prepaid in full. A discount of one per cent will be allowed upon the par of each share if prepaid at time of allotment

Notice of allotment will be sent promptly by ordinary letter.

COAL

PROPERTY IN FULL OPERATION

Company owns 9,600 acres of coal property known throughout the coal trade as the New Campbellton Colliery, located on Bras D'Or Bay, County of Victoria, Cape Breton, Novia Scotia. Mine is fully equipped, producing and marketing tons of coal a day at a net profit of $1.00 a ton. Improvements are now being made that will increase the output to over 1,000 tons a day. On present output, figuring 300 working days in year, the net result will more than pay interest on entire issue of preferred, with output of 1,000 tons a day net result will be $300,000 per annum.

IRON

RICHEST ORE IN THE WORLD

Company owns in fee simple, free and clear of all incumbrances, 4000 acres of iron ore deposit, located Natashquan (tidewater) situated on North shore of Gulf of St. Lawrence, in the County of Saguenay, province of Quebec.

Deposits contain 20,000,000 tons of ore ABOVE SEA LEVEL ALONE.

Quality of ore is highet ever discovered, running from 69 per cent to 72 per cent in metallic iron.

More orders for the sale of this ore has been received by the Company than can possibly be accepted, and at a price netting the Company a profit of $2 a ton F. O. B. vessels at Company's docks.

Send for prospectus giving full information as to earnings, reports, etc., etc.

Address all communications and send subscriptions to

COLONIAL SECURITIES CO., 62 Wall Street, New York City

OR

W. L. MARSTON & COMPANY 110 State Street, Boston

The SAWYER COMPANY.

351 Temple Building, Montreal, Canada.

THE

Intelligencer Bindery

MAKES A SPECIALTY OF

Ledgers, Journals, Cash Books,

And all descriptions of

Blank Account Books

Mailing Tubes

Gold Lettering on Leather Goods, &c.

MAGAZINES,
ART WORKS,
PERIODICALS,
SERIAL NUMBERS

NEATLY BOUND

Map Mounting & Varnishing

☞ Estimates cheerfully furnished for every class of work.

ADDRESS—

The Intelligencer

BELLEVILLE, ONT.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Measurement Nonpareil—12 lines to th inch.

Display advertisements, 10c per line.
Subsequent consecutive insertions, ne.

Reading advertisements, 15c per line.

Preferred position, 20 per cent. advance upon usual or contract rates.

Minimum space, 10 lines.

Marriages and deaths, 50c each insertion

Births, 25c each insertion.

Rates for Condensed Advertisement will be found in 1st column of 2nd page.

All advertisements are subject to the approval of the Publisher of the Intelligencer.

Address all communications to the Intelligencer Printing & Publishing House Limited, or to Charles J. Bowell, Managing Director and Treasurer.

Canadians in London will find The Intelligencer on file at E. & J. Hardy & Co.'s Office, 30 Fleet Street, London, E. C.

CONDENSED ADVERTISEMENTS

SITUATIONS WANTED, HELP WANTED, LOST OR FOUND, FOR SALE OR TO RENT, &c

(Auction Sales not ncluded in this list)

TERMS.—Twenty-five words or less. 25c first insertion; two insertions, 50c; four insertions, 75c; one week $1.00, two weeks, $1.75, three weeks, $2.25; one month, $2.50. Strictly cash in advance.

WANTED.

Cook wanted, good wages. Apply Mrs. G. H. Drowley, City Hotel 3t

$6.00 per month will buy a home anywhere under our plan. Live, in it while paying for it. Something new. Write for prospectus. Canadian Home Builder's Association, Manning Chambers, Toronto.

Help Wanted.—Good pay for spare time of intelligent men and women. No Canvassing. A Stegman, 429 La-Salle Ave., Chicago. jy2-6td

$1950 made by one man last year selling our household necessities. Did you make as much? Try our lines. Always selling. Write G. Marshall & Co., London, Ont. 2

Agents wanted, $2.50 per day. Apply Cooper, London, Ont. a27-1y

Young men ambitious to learn lucrative trades, of which there are eight in connection with the business. Apply The Belleville Hardware Company, Belleville, Ont. a7dtf

FOR SALE OR TO-LET.

Stone house, 11 rooms, coal furnace, stable, barn. Large grounds. Cor. Frank and Moira Sts. north. Terms reasonable. H. Bull, on premises or Fred Bull, 133 Yonge St., Toronto. Terms easy. ap18-dtf

FOR SALE.

That splendid property on the south east corner of Dunbar and Catharine Sts. City water and sewer connection. m28-4w

Dressed and Matched Lumber of all kinds, at ALFORD'S factory, Market Square. j12-tf

Contractors and masons, any any person requiring lime may procure it from E. G. STAPLEY, Canifton Road, Belleville. New lime always on hand. a9-d&w6m

TO RENT

A house on Moira street containing 8 rooms. All modern conveniences. Possession on or before 20th July.—Adam Henry. dtf

Goods We Have at Right Prices

- —Hammocks.
- —Fishing Tackle.
- —Tennis Goods.
- —Golf Goods.
- —Lacrosse Goods.
- —Base Ball Goods.
- —Screen Doors and Windows.
- —Fruit Jars.
- —Fruit Jar Rubbers.
- —Wall Paper.
- —Crystal Glass Vases.
- —Glass Ware.
- —Dinner Sets.
- —Toilet Sets.
- —Ladies' Hose.
- —Ladies' Vests.

Everything in smallwares.

AT THE BEE HIVE

Chas. N. Sulman

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines, or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

THE INTELLIGENCER is printed and published for The Intelligencer Printing and Publishing House (Limited) by CHARLES JAMES BOWELL, of the City of Belleville, in the County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, at their Office, No. 403 Front Street, Belleville, Ont.

Doing good is the only certainly happy action of a man's life.

If thy friend is honey, do not lick him up altogether.

JUDGED BY HER BOOK.

The Way Girls in the Big Department Stores Are Watched.

The girls in a large department store, says Frank Leslie's, are, as a rule, carefully watched not only in the store, but out of it. The buyer of each department knows pretty well the habits of his sales ladies; knows how much it costs them to live and how they spend their evenings. It is easy for him to get the information not merely through the store detective, but in many other ways.

The buyer is, as a rule, a tolerant person, who cares only for two things—namely, that the girls "deliver the goods"—i. e., that they make big "books"—and that they appear respectable. If they stay out so late at night that they do not reach the store promptly in the morning they may be discharged, transferred from one department to another or merely not rise in the way of salary, depending on the degree of their misdemeanor. If the girl's book is unsatisfactory she is simply discharged or transferred, and no reason is given, but if she is wise she knows the reason why.

If, on the other hand, the girl is a good seller the buyer will excuse a great deal in the way of irregularity of habits. As long as a girl sticks closely to business she is allowed a great deal of freedom, but when her "book" begins to suffer it is time for her to "look out."

An Air Tight Fit.

Mrs. Jennings and her city cousin were exchanging news of their old school friends. "How about Lucy Morse?" asked the cousin. "Has she kept on growing fatter and fatter?"

"Well, all I'll say is this," said Mrs. Jennings: "Annie Fall told me last year that when Lucy sent home from Nashua, where she was nursing her uncle, to have a silk waist made, Annie realized she hadn't got any measures, and then she remembered that the last time Lucy was there she stood up by the big air tight stove, and Annie remarked—to herself—the resemblance between 'em. And she took the measure of that air tight and cut in a mite for the waist line—'bout as much as a knife marks warm molasses candy—and made the waist accordingly, sent it on, and Lucy wrote back it was an elegant fit."—Youth's Companion.

Wall Street and Clothes.

The best dressed men in New York are the Wall streeters. There is one young member of the Stock Exchange who is famous for his clothes. He has a wardrobe in his private office and changes his suit three times a day—at 10, at noon and at 3 o'clock. A busy session on the floor will wreck any suit. Most of the brokers wear an old office coat in the shuffle and turmoil, and there is scarcely an active member but has an extra pair of trousers to put on after the close of business. Scores of little tailors in the financial district make a good living pressing trousers at 50 cents a pair.

The Spectroscope.

Originally the spectroscope was applied only to chemistry and in that limited field proved itself an invaluable aid in accurate analysis. By holding in a bunsen flame a platinum wire moistened by contact with the skin the presence of a few grains of salt swallowed a few minutes previously can be detected with the spectroscope. Indeed, so wonderfully refined is the work of the spectroscopic chemist that he can discover in a substance the presence of one three-millionth of a grain of metal.

His Artistic Sense.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "you shouldn't let your artistic sense worry you so much."

"What do you mean?"

"I overheard you talking to that friend with whom you play cards. I know how much you appreciate harmony in form and color, but it is wrong to be so much annoyed because one heart got in with a few spades."

Moral Law.

The moral law lies at the center of nature and radiates to the circumference. It is the pith and marrow of every substance, every relation and every process. All things with which we deal preach to us. What is a farm but a mute gospel? The sailor, the shepherd, the miner, the merchant, in their several resorts have each an experience precisely parallel.

Her Opportunity.

They had started for a stroll.

"There is our minister," he said. "I'm going to ask him to join us."

"To join us? Oh, George, this is so sudden! But hadn't you better speak to papa before engaging the minister, dear?"

Adam and the Tailor.

"This," said the guide, "is the grave of Adam."

Historic spot! With reverential awe—nay, with a feeling of deep thankfulness—the wealthy merchant tailor on his first trip to the orient drew near and cast a flower on the tomb. "Erring ancestor," he murmured, "I should be the last man on earth to revile your memory. To your I owe my prosperity."

Medicine For Him.

"His wife has treasured all the letters he wrote her when he was courting her; keeps them by her all the time."

"Gracious! She doesn't read them over, does she?"

"No, but she threatens to read them to him whenever he gets obstreperous."—Philadelphia Press.

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

Store Closed Every Wednesday During July and August at 12 O'Clock Noon.

Our Motto—"Advance"

For nearly half a century we have been steadily growing and advancing. To defeat our previous records is still our object.

Just now we desire that this July's business shall defeat all before.

We realized some time ago the effort neccessary and you will find the product of this in the very low prices at which our Remnants have been marked.

The values here represented, should alone give us the increase we desire.

Along with these will be daily specials in desirable goods which will make your co-operation with us profitable to you.

Many offerings will be crowded out of the paper. A daily visit during this month will be resultful. Remnants of,

COTTONS
SHEETINGS
TICKING
TOWELING
ETC.

LINENS
PRINTS
MUSLINS GINGHAMS
ETC.

DUCK
DRESS GOODS SILKS
LININGS

VALUE IN UNDERGARMENTS

That our Whitewear offering is in no way behind our other clearing values, is clearly shown by the the number of garments being sold daily.

Whitewear such as we are selling now cannot be procured wholesale for less than our marked prices.

Why are we clearing it? Two reasons. We never keep goods through a season—we need the room these are occupying.

Admirers of fine Undergarments will find much to please them in our mantle room. Here are a few of many prices.

—Fine cotton Corset Cover with embroidery trimmed neck—taped seams	15c
—Fine White Cambric Skirt with wide Lawn flounce, tucked and hemstitched—skirt continued under flounce	58c
—Good quality White Cotton Drawers, trimmed with wide frill and torchon lace	25c
—Fine White Cotton Night Gown, yoke of clusters, of tucks and hemstitching, embroidery trimmed low neck and frilled cuffs	59c

Dress Goods Remnants

Our half yearly clearing sale gives us not only a clear stock but insures to our customers, even in our Remnant offering only newest goods.

To the early visitor there will be interesting viewing as many of our most desireable cloths in lengths for skirts and some enough for suits are here at greatly reduced prices.

Curtain Muslins

Just now we cannot see how our assortment of curtain and fancy work Muslins could be more complete.

Every desirable style and price is well represented.

If you have a thought as to new sash curtains, take the elevator to our third floor and see how economically, yet prettily, you can arrange for them.

—Fine Coin Spot Muslins, 36" wide	15c
—Bow Knot pattern with spot, 36" wide	25c
—Plain White and cream scrim, 36" wide	23c

COOL QUALITY

Our Underwear can truly be called "Cool Quality."

The many different, yet desirable brands that crowd our shelving are all here to help you to comfort this warm sticky weather.

You'll not have to pay as much as you might expect either for their help.

If your wants are not yet supplied, here is a fair proposition. Examine our qualities if you are not satisfied, they are right in exery way do not buy.

—Fine English Balbriggan Underwear, guaranteed in every particular, per garment	25c, 38c, 50c
—Fine Linocelle Underwear, made from pure Linen, a little more expensive—a great deal cooler and healthier, per garment	$2 50
—Few odd garments in fine Balbriggan, were $1.00, $1.25 for	75c

Men's Straws

Very little used to be heard about "correct style" in Straw Hats, but one without style is just as much out as any other kind would be.

If you are not just posted as to what fashion has smiled upon for this season, step into our Men's department. Cost you nothing to find ent and very little to purchase.

—Men's fine Straw Hats in latest weaves and shapes	75c to $2.50

Agents for Standard Patterns.

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

CLOTHING BOUGHT HERE PRESSED FREE OF CHARGE

Everything

Is Thoroughly

Good

That's certain, at QUICK & ROBERTSON'S—we are more particular about giving than you are in getting it perhaps.

But there are other reasons why you should buy at this store where quality is the first consideration.

We not only make goodness certain by applying every known test for quality, but are equally as careful to price that goodness as common as the ordinary sorts are priced elsewhere.

HERE are a few suggestions of summer fixin's that should interest men and mothers of boys.

FOR BOYS.

Vacation Suits and other wear, things that after good hard wear show the difference between our good sorts at our common prices and cheap sorts, which cost a little less.

—Regulation Sailor Blouse Suits, Cheviot mixtures, stripes and serges. .... $1.25 to $4.50

—Norfolk Jackets, single and double-breasted suits for older boys, extensive showing of plain and fancy mixtures .... $2.00 to $5.00

—Washable Sailor Suits 50c to $1.50.

—Wash Waists and Blouses, 25c to $1.00.

FOR MEN.

—SUMMER SUITS—Such as are impossible to obtain except at the best custom tailors—perfect fitting, stylish garments, suited to men who want the out-of-the-ordinary sorts. Homespuns, Tropical Serges, Worsteds and Flannels.......................... $3.75 to $12.00

—OUTING TROUSERS $1.00 to $4.00.

—NEGLIGE SHIRTS—In stripes and patterned materials, such as custom shirt makers would show you as their newest—plain or plaited bosoms.......... 50c to $1.50

—STRAW HATS—Every one new, the largest assortment of the smartest shapes the best makers have produced.

Sailors, in low crown .... 50c to $2.00

Panama shape, the right ones .... 75c to $2.50

QUICK & ROBERTSON

Here is where you buy Johnston's Clothing for Men and Boys.

FOR YOUR SUMMER Cooking you should use a

Blue Flame Auto-Valvo Oil Stove

as they are perfect bakers and cookers and are operated at a small expense and furthermore you have no heat in your kitchen.

The W. W. CHOWN Company, Limited

Exclusive Agents.

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

At Wallbridge & Clarke's

Seasonable Supplies

Montserrat Lime Juice
Raspberry Vinegar (Crosse & Blackwell's)
Gurd's Ginger Ale & Soda Water
Apollinaris and Radnor Water
Pabst Milwaukee Lager.

Clarets and Sauterne

Barton & Guestier's Bordeaux Clarets
Barton & Guestier's Bordeaux Sauterne
Nath. Johnston's Clarets
Rhine Wine and Burgundy
Light Canadian Wines—Red or White

Canned Meats

New Packs. Finest Quality.

Whole Ox Tongues
Lunch Tongues
Lamb's Tongues
Boned Chicken
Boned Turkey
Boned Duck
Pate de foie
Potted Ham
Potted Tongue
Sliced Dried Beef
Ham Loaf
Veal Loaf
Chicken Tamales
Lunch Beef
Lunch Bacon
Chicken, Ham & Tongue
Pigs Feet
Jellied Tenderloins
Vienna Sausages
Luncheon Sausages
Baked Beans—Plain or in Tomato or Chili Sauce, etc., etc., etc.

Camp & Picnic Supplies

Essence of Coffee—Patterson's, Symington's or Crosse & Blackwell's.
Condensed Milk, Evaporated Cream, etc.
Fancy Biscuits
Fine Old Cheese
Pickles and Sauces
Fine Teas and Coffee
Soups and Vegetables
French Sardines
New Pack Lobster and Shrimps
Salmon, Scallops, Tunny Fish, etc.

WALLBRIDGE & CLARKE

Bridge St.—Tel. 139.
Branch store Front St.—Tel. 157.

DANGEROUS FIRE ON SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

TWO BARNS BURNED, AND THE CONVENT HAD A NARROW ESCAPE.

On Saturday afternoon, between the hours of 4 and 5 o'clock, fire broke out in a frame barn in rear of Mr. E. Donald's residence on George street. Owing to the rapid progress of the flames and the fact that the fire had gained considerable headway before an alarm was given, the building was destroyed, as was also a frame barn adjoining, belonging to Mrs. Gillen. The heat from the burning building was intense, and the firemen had to work heroically for some time to stop the flames from spreading. To the east were residences which were on fire in the rear, and to the west was the Convent, which also became ignited, and at one time it was feared it would be destroyed. Such, fortunately, was not the case. By a judicious application of water the fire was confined to the barns. The damage done to the Convent consisted of the rear portion of the roof being damaged and the woodwork around some windows was burned. During the progress of the fire some live embers were carried to the Separate School and fell upon the roof, igniting it. The blaze was extinguished before much damage was done. The roof of Mrs. Kelly's residence near by also became ignited, but the blaze was insignificant and soon put out.

JUST A COLD IN THE HEAD! But if followed by another cold, or some extra exposure is liable to result in nasal catarrh. Unless a radical cure is obtained the throat, bronchial tubes and finally the lungs become affected. Nothing cures colds so quickly and pleasantly as Catarrhozone. The inspector of Mines for Nova Scotia, Mr. Neville, says, "Catarrhozone is the best remedy I have ever used. It cured me of catarrh of the head and throat, and I am pleased to recommend such a satisfactory remedy." Catarrhozone is a safeguard against colds, coughs and catarrh. It can be used while at work, in the church, theatre or street cars. Simply inhale Catarrhozone and it cures. Price $1. Small size 25 cents. Druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

REASONABLE PANT REASONS.

If there is any reason why you should wear pants, there is every reason why you should buy them off Quick & Robertson. If you are particular about the kind of cloth that goes in them, particular about the cut and make, or particular about how much change you will have left, then we can satisfy you. At present we are offering over 300 pairs pants bought from a manufacturer at greatly reduced prices. We have divided them into two lots, $1.50 pants for $1.00, and $1.75 and $2.00 pants for $1.25.

SIX MONTHS IN CENTRAL FOR "COFFIN" McDONALD.

MAGISTRATE FLINT SENT HIM UP ON SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

On Saturday afternoon "Coffin" McDonald was brought up before Magistrate Flint, charged with procuring goods by false pretences. He changed his plea of not guilty as recorded in the morning, and admitted that he had procured some bologna sausage and tobacco. He asked to be dealt leniently with, as he had a wife and family. The Magistrate, after giving him some sound advice, sentenced him to six months in the Central Prison.

TOOTHACHE CURED IN ONE MINUTE.

Not only toothache, but any nerve pain is cured instantly by Polson's Nerviline. Thousands have testified that its powerful, penetrating, pain-subduing properties make it an absolute cure for neuralgia, rheumatism, toothache, cramps, colic and all other pains and aches that beset mankind. The world is challenged to equal Nerviline as a household liniment. Large bottle 25 cents.

LARGE SOCIETY FUNERAL YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

ODDFELLOWS PAY LAST TRIBUTE OF RESPECT TO A DECEASED BROTHER.

Yesterday afternoon the funeral of the late Mr. Charles Rainbow took place, and the large attendance at the obsequies was an evidence of the esteem in which the deceased was held. Deceased was a member of the I.O.O.F., under whose auspices the funeral was held. The brethren of the two lodges were out in large numbers. After services had been held at the house by the society, the cortege was formed and, headed by the I.O.O.F. band, wended its way slowly to St. Thomas' Church, where the impressive burial services of the Church of England were conducted by the Rector, Rev. G. R. Beamish. The Rev. gentleman also gave an address which was appropriate to the occasion. After the service the remains were conveyed to the cemetery, where the interment took place. The bearers were members of Mizpah Lodge, namely, Bros. S. E. Haight, J. T. Osborne, G. R. Brown, C. Atkins, S. Symons and R. H. Ketcheson. The floral tributes placed upon the casket were numerous and some very beautiful in design.

Sports and Pastimes

SPORTING NOTE AND COMMENT.

The bargain counter Brantford team could not stand the pace set by the Shamrocks on Saturday, losing the match by 6 to 3, and the series by 12 to 8. The Home Rulers always have been known as great finishers, and it probably was their condition which saved them, for at one time the total score of the series stood 8 to 7 in favor of Brantford. The dogged determination of the Hibernians, however, saved the day. In the next quarter they held the C.L.A. champions even, and after that scored 4 goals to their one.

Other lacrosse results on Saturday:
Torontos 13, Nationals 4.
Oshawa 5, Tecumsehs 1.
St. Kitts 4, Port Hope 3.

The Belleville Baseball team will play the Picton team, in Picton, on Wednesday afternoon next, the 8th inst. A return match in this city will follow at a later date.

BARGAINS THIS WEEK.

Two very special sales all this week at the Oak Hall. We are offering 12 to 15 doz. fine straw hats worth 50c, 75c and $1.00, at the unheard of price, 25c, and we are making a special 25 per cent. discount on all unlined clothing. See the hats in north window.

Death of a Child.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Thompson, Sinclair St., will sympathize with them in the death of their little daughter, Hazel G., which occurred at 6:30 o'clock yesterday evening. The little one was an affectionate, lovable child, and the surviving members of the family feel her loss very keenly. She had been ill for some time, and had suffered intensely, which fact was particularly hard for her parents. The funeral takes place from the family residence to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

NEVER SAY DIE.

You may be weak, miserable, nervous, sleepless, your digestion may be poor and you despair. Never say die, until you have used Ferrozone, the most wonderful blood maker, nerve strengthener and brain invigorator. It tones up the whole system. You can eat anything and digest it if you use Ferrozone. You sleep well. You make blood quickly, strength increases daily, in a short time you're well. Try Ferrozone, which you can obtain at all drug stores.

Corn Pay Envelopes at The Intelligencer Job Office. Cheapest and best in the city.

CHURCH CHIMES OF YESTERDAY

NOTES OF SERVICES IN DIFFERENT PLACES OF WORSHIP YESTERDAY.

Holloway Street.

Services of a special nature were held in this church yesterday, the object being to clear off a debt of $3,200, which is at present upon the church. Of this amount the Sunday School had promised to raise $1,200 within the next two years. Subscriptions to the amount of $2,100 were promised. The preacher of the day was the Rev. D. O. Crossley, of Bowmanville, and other ministers took part in the services. In the morning the Rev. gentleman's text was from Exodus, 14th chapter and latter part of the 15th verse:

"Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward."

In the evening the Rev. M. Crossley gave a song service being assisted by the choir. Large congregations were present at both services.

Emmanuel R. E. Church.

The Rector, Rev. Mr. Gilliland, preached at both services. In the morning he spoke on the absolute necessity of believing in Christ as the saving power, though nowadays many seemed to think differently. During July and August the Sunday School of this church will be held in the morning. On Sunday next the members of the different Orange Societies will attend divine service in Emmanuel Church.

Tabernacle.

Rev. G. Brown, the newly appointed Pastor of this church, yesterday preached his initial discourses to good congregations, and he created a favorable impression. He is an earnest and practical preacher. In the evening the Rev. gentleman's text was from 1st Corinthians, 10th chapter and 31st verse:

"Whether, therefore, ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do it all to the glory of God."

During the service the choir rendered the anthem, "The Lord my God my shepherd is," Messrs. E. and M. Gordon taking the solos.

Christ Church.

Rev. Prof. Howard conducted services in this church yesterday. In the morning owing to holy communion being celebrated, the sermon was dispensed with. In the evening the reverend gentleman preached his text being taken from St. Luke, 18th chapter 1st verse:

"And he spake a parable unto them to this end, that men ought always to pray, and not to faint."

St. Thomas'.

The rector, Rev. G. R. Beamish, conducted the services yesterday, preaching two able discourses. In the morning the text was taken from the lessons for the day, namely, St. Luke 6th chapter and 37th verse:

"Judge not and ye shall not be judged; condemn not and ye shall not be condemned; forgive not and ye shall not be forgiven."

At the evening service Mr. Chambers sang, very acceptably, a solo entitled "If with all your heart."

Bridge St. Church.

At the morning service the pastor, Rev. Dr. Crothers, preached, his subject being "The Ideal Life." The text was:

"And that, knowing the time, that now it is high time to awake out of sleep, for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed."

In the evening the Rev. H. Hull, a member of the Manitoba Conference, gave and address, the subject being "The church of the west."

Belleville Lady in an Accident.

Miss Imogen Palen, formerly of this city, who has been for some time practising her profession in the Northwest, is en route to Belleville to spend her vacation, and, on Friday last, near Winnipeg, was in a railroad wreck, of which she writes: "Just re-embarked, all safely. Bad wreck, though no one seriously injured. I was in last Pullman and only felt a little shock. Two next cars off track. Fourth Pullman tipped. Tourist and dining car on side, and baggage car on top of tender. Rails spread. We are now on car sent from Winnipeg for us. I am all O.K. Took pictures of wreck.

HALF HOLIDAY EXCURSION.

To Deseronto, Glenora and Picton, Wednesday, July 8th, at 2 o'clock. Five hours at Deseronto, or two hours at Glenora, or one hour at Picton. Str. Aletha returns at 10.30. Tickets 35c, children 20c. sm&t

BUILDING.

R. McPherson, late foreman with Thos. Hanley, continues the same business at the same stand, executing, in first-class style, orders for Church and Office Furniture, Mantels, Grills, Artistic effects, etc. Carving to the trade a specialty. Will form class for instructions in carving. j8d&w1m

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

Tired Out Tired when you go to bed, tired when you get up, tired all the time. Why? Your blood is impure. Take Ayer's Sarsaparilla and be quickly cured. If the bowels are constipated, take Ayer's Pills. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

TOLD THE REV. DOCTOR THEIR OPINION OF HIM.

ADDRESS PRESENTED TO REV. DR. GALBRAITH AT BRIDGE ST. CHURCH LAST NIGHT.

Just previous to the conclusion of the evening service at Bridge St. Church last night, Rev. Dr. Galbraith—who will leave this city for Toronto to-morrow—was called to the platform, and a committee, consisting of Messrs. C. P. Holton, W. R. Aylsworth and Wm. Johnson, presented him, on behalf of the congregation, with the following address:

To the Rev. Wm. Galbraith, M.A., LL.B., Ph.D.

Dear Dr. Galbraith, your intended removal from our city has come to us an an unpleasant surprise, and its early date—next Tuesday—gives us as a congregation no other opportunity than the present of saying farewell to you and wishing yourself and your family every divine blessing.

During the five years of your residence among us, you have not spared yourself in rendering to us appreciated services in every branch of the church's work. In the pulpit you have been especially helpful in the clear definition of doctrine, and assertion of the authority of scripture, and the Thursday evening meetings conducted by you have aided many in a better understanding of the divine will.

The readiness with which you have—even amid pressing business and civic duties—responded to every call of this church, has enhanced the character of your life and work among us.

We have admired the example of your uncompromising action in every movement of social and moral reform, especially temperance and Lord's Day observance, and thank you for having accepted the leadership of those great and yet to be victorious movements.

We remember the days of sorrows and bereavements through which you have passed while residing here, and magnify the Holy Spirit whose promised comfort enabled you to triumph.

In parting from us we assure you that your life has made impressions upon our church and the city which will tell for eternity.

We believe that wherever you go your life will be a benediction.

We are, on behalf of the congregation of Bridge St. Methodist Church,

Yours in Christ,
W. J. Crothers,
Pastor.
Wm. Johnson,
Rec. steward.

Belleville, 5th July, 1903.

Rev. Dr. Galbraith made a feeling reply, expressing his gratitude for the sentiments contained in the address, and wishing Bridge St. and its congregation abundant success in their work for the Master.

Rev. Dr. Crothers, pastor of the church, also expressed his regret at the departure of Rev. Dr. Galbraith, who had been to him a tower of strength during his pastorate of Bridge street.

CITY AND DISTRICT.

Advertisements under this heading TWO CENTS A WORD; subsequent consecutive insertions ONE CENT A WORD. No locs charged as less than twenty-five words.

The Orangemen of No. 3 District will commemorate the 213th anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne by attending Divine worship at Plainfield on Sunday afternoon, July 12. Rev. W. D. P. Wilson will preach.

The Forty-Ninth Regiment returned home from camp on Saturday afternoon.

A little girl named Weese strayed away from home on Saturday night, and was not found until an early hour on Sunday morning.

Two persons, male and female, were to-day fined $2 and costs for riding bicycles on the sidewalk.

A special meeting of Camp Rob Roy, Sons of Scotland, will be held at their hall, Tuesday evening, 7th July, for the transaction of important business. Every member is requested to attend.

JOHN DOWRIE,
Secretary.

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

Fire Destroys Mr. C. P. Holton's Mill.

DISASTROUS CONFLAGRATION WHICH BEGAN SHORTLY AFTER 3 O'CLOCK THIS AFTERNOON.

For the third time within a few years Mr. C. P. Holton's sawmill, situated on the west side of the river, was completely destroyed by fire.

At 3:05 this afternoon the alarm was sounded, and, when the brigade reached the scene, the interior of the mill was a mass of flames.

The destruction of the mill was swift, the flames leaping from one apartment to another.

At 4 o'clock nothing was left but the bare stone walls. The loss and insurance could not be ascertained this afternoon.

LATEST NEW YORK STOCK QUOTATIONS.

AS FURNISHED TO THE INTELLIGENCER BY H. R. BEATTIE, STOCK BROKER.

New York, July 6.

Stock	Op'g	H'st	L'st	Close.
Atchison	67⅜	68⅜	67⅜	68
do. pref	92¼	92⅜	92¼	92¾
St. Paul	150¾	151⅜	150⅝	151
Mo. P.	102¾	103¼	102⅝	103
Union Pac	81½	82½	81¼	81⅞
C. P. R.	124¾	124¾	124	124¾
South Pac.	49⅞	49⅞	49⅜	49⅜
R. I.	33⅜	34⅜	33⅜	34⅜
Ills. C.	133¼	134⅜	132⅞	134⅜
Sou. Ry.	24	24¾	24	24¾
Texas	29⅜	29⅜	29⅛	29⅜
B & O.	85¾	86⅜	85⅝	86⅜
N. Y. C.	127	127¼	127	127
Penna	125¼	126	125¼	125¾
T. W.	97¾	98	97¾	97¾
Erie	33⅜	34⅛	33⅜	33⅞
do. pref.	67¾	68⅜	67¾	68⅜
Reading	51⅝	52¾	51¾	52¾
C. O.	38½	38¾	38⅜	38¾
O. & W.	25¾	25¾	25½	25½
Manhattan	137	137	136¾	136¾
W. C.	20¾	....	....	....
L. & N.	111⅛	111⅛	110¾	110⅞
A. F.	38	38⅛	37⅞	38⅛
Nev.	65⅝	67	65¾	66¾
Wab.	24½	24¾	24½	24½
do pref.	44½	44¾	44	44
C. G. W.	19	19⅛	19	19
T. C. I.	52⅞	53¼	52⅞	53¼
U. S. St.	30½	30¾	30⅛	30½
do pref.	81½	81⅛	81⅛	81⅛
Sugar	121	121½	129¼	120¼
B. R. T.	57¾	58⅛	57⅝	57⅜
Po.	98⅜	....	....	....
A. C. P.	53¾	53¾	52⅞	53
Met.	122¾	....	....	....

Sept. wheat opened at 76¼; closed at 77¼
Sept. corn opened at 50¼; closed at 51⅜

Piles To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles, the manufacturers have guaranteed it. See testimonials in the daily press and ask your neighbors what they think of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. 60c a box, at all dealers or EDMANSON, BATES & Co., Toronto.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

DEATHS

THOMPSON.—In this city, on Sunday, July 5, Hazel G., youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Thompson, aged 5 years and three months.

The funeral will take place at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, service at the family residence, Sinclair St., at 2:30 o'clock.

1,000 ISLANDS AND ROCHESTER.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian" leave Belleville for Thousand Islands at 3.25 a.m., daily except Mondays. Fare $1.00. Returning Str. leaves at 11.30 p.m. for Rochester, N.Y. m26d&w3m.

Quite a Catalogue of Virtues.

This alphabetical advertisement appeared in the London "Times" in 1842:

"To widowers and single gentlemen—Wanted by a lady, a situation to superintend the household and preside at table. She is Agreeable, Becoming, Careful, Desirable, English, Facetious, Generous, Honest, Industrious, Judicious, Keen, Lively, Merry, Natty, Obedient, Philosophic, Quiet, Regular, Sociable, Tasteful, Useful, Vivacious, Womanish, Xantippish, Youthful, Zealous, etc. Address X. Y. Z., Simmonds' Library, Edgwareroad."

He who foresees calamities suffers them twice over.

Lost chances never leave any trail.

ESTABLISHED 1870.

MEN'S HATS

Porto Ricans Fine Straws

Light Weight Felts.

THE NEWEST STYLES.

S. A. HYMAN & CO.

N.B.—Store closed every Wednesday during July and August at 12 o'clock noon.

GLASGOW WAREHOUSE.

Wash Goods

Reduced to Lowest Point.

Here's good news for Ladies who have their Summer Dresses yet to buy.

Tuesday morning we will place on sale the balance of this seasons purchases of Embroidered and Fancy Colored Organdie Muslins, Printed and Figured Lawns, Fancy Colored Dress Sateens, Anderson's best Scotch Ginghams and English Zephyrs, at a discount of 25 per cent.

Off present selling prices which are all marked in plain figures.

This discount will last 3 days.

TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY

When such seasonable goods as the above are offered you at this discount, don't delay in making your purchases early Tuesday.

There is always a choice for early comers.

Laidlaw & Ketcheson

DIRECT IMPORTERS

Daily Intelligencer.

THE INTELLIGENCER IS SOLD AT
J. W. London's and G. Wardhaugh's.

Local Reading Advertisements,

ords 50 cents; 2 cents per word first insertion, per word subsequent consecutive insertions. Headlines count as 12 words; contracts for ng periods made at office

Our Italian Macaroons

Are decidedly popular, made fresh tiwce a week. 10c a doz.

CHAS. S. CLAPP

BATH HELPS

It adds much to the luxury and benofit of baths to have at hand all the usual requisites. There is we think no item of bath supplies we do not carry. It will not cost you much to provide a complete outfit.

Bath Brushes, Mitts, Bath Tablets, Soaps, Toilet Waters, Sea Salt, Loofahs, Sponges, etc.

McKeown's DRUG STORE

The Sun & Hastings Savings and Loan Co. of Ontario.

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL
$5,000,000.

3 1-2 per cent. allowed on Deposits payable on Call.

4 per cent. on Deposits for one year or over.

Money to Loan upon favorable terms.

OFFICE, No. 46 Bridge St., Belleville.

J. P. C. PHILLIPS,
Manager Belleville Branch.

The longer you halt the steeper the mountain grows.

MONITOR

This is another fine Mantle Clock, not quite so expensive as Gadski in last week's advertisement, but fully as serviceable. It is an eight-day hour and half strike on cathedral gong, fancy columns with trimmings and drop handles, in every way a beautiful clock. Our price only $5 50.

T. BLACKBURN.

Eyes examined free of charge. Jeweller & Optician.

SPECIALS FOR THIS WEEK

This week will be an interesting one. We will work on all Odds and Ends. Special Job Lines at prices that will be sure to sell.

THE ARTICLES OFFERED

White Muslin, suitable for Ladies' and Children's Dresses, was 15 and 20c yd., Sale price 10c
6 Pieces Fine Print for Ladies' Fine Dresses, was 15c yard, to clear 10c
29 Pieces 33 in. wide Print, was 8c, sale price 5½c
31½ in. Pink Flannelette, was 10c, sale price 7c
Reversible Crettone, double width, was 25c yard, for 21c
Standard Shoe Dressing, 10c, for 6c
Tourist Drinking Cup and Bottles, job .... 25 to 35c
Naptha Washing Powder 5c

Fruit Jars, machine made, at Lowest Prices.

Fruit Jar Rubbers, per doz. 5c.

Traveller's Samples of Ladies' Blouses, ranging in price from 50c to $2.25, sale price 25c to 75c.

Ladies' Black Sateen Skirts, fluted, 69c.

Cut Prices on all our Coal Oil Stoves.

McINTOSH BROS.

BASEBALL SATURDAY.

The Eastern League.

Baltimore ...... 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 0 *—2
Toronto .... 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0—1

Earned runs—Toronto 1. Bases stolen—Jones, McCready. Double-play—Griffin, Castro and Jones. Bases on balls—By Burchell 4, by Wolfe 2. Left on bases—Baltimore 5, Toronto 7. First base on errors—Baltimore 1. Time—1.45.—Umpire—Latham. Attendance—4807.

Baltimore ...... 2 1 0 0 1 1 0 0 *—5
Toronto .... 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0—1

Earned runs—Baltimore 3, Toronto 1. Two-base hits—Dowd, Castro, Jones, Ahern. Sacrifice hit—White. Bases stolen—Dowd, Kelly. Double-plays—Pounds, Castro and Jones; Downey, Miller and Massey. Bases on balls—By Pounds 1, by Briggs 4. Batter hit—By Briggs 1. Struck out—By Pounds 1, by Briggs 4. Left on bases—Baltimore 8, Toronto 8. Time—1.55. Umpire—Latham. Attendance—4807.

R.H.E.
Buffalo .... 2 1 0 0 0 0 0 2 x—5 8 3
Rochester .... 2 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 0—4 5 0

Batteries—Ferry and Shaw; Becker, Leary and Steelman. Umpire—Kelly. Attendance—6359.

At Providence, morning game— R.H.E.
Worcester ...... 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 3—4 11 4
Providence ..... 5 0 0 0 1 0 2 1 0—9 11 4

Batteries—Winham and McCauley; Yerkes and Diggins. Umpire—Brown.

At Jersey City, morning game— R.H.E.
Newark .... 0 1 2 0 0 0 0 3 2—8 13 4
Jersey City ..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 3 1—4 7 1

Batteries—Hesterfer and Shea; McCann and McManus. Umpire—Shannon.

—Afternoon Games.—

At Buffalo— R.H.E.
Rochester ..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 3 0
Buffalo .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—1 6 1

Batteries—Leary and Steelman; Milligan and Shaw. Umpire—Kelly.

At Worcester— R.H.E.
Providence ...... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 0 2
Worcester .... 3 1 0 0 0 0 2 1 0—7 9 1

Batteries—Jones and Diggins; Falkenburg and McCauley. Umpire—Brown.

At Newark— R.H.E.
Jersey City ..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0—1 6 0
Newark .... 0 1 1 1 0 0 0 1 0—4 10 0

Batteries—Pfanmiller and McManus; Burke and Shea. Umpires—Shannon and Merritt.

National League Scores.

At Pittsburg, morning game— R.H.E.
Pittsburg ..... 0 0 0 0 1 4 1 1 x—7 12 0
Philadelphia .. 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 8 2

Batteries—Leever, Weaver and Phelps; Frazer and Roth.

At Cincinnati, morning game— R.H.E.
Brooklyn ..... 3 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—3 3 4
Cincinnati ... 0 0 5 0 1 3 0 4 x—13 13 1

Batteries—Schmidt, Vickers and Ritter; Poole and Bergen.

At Chicago, morning game— R.H.E.
New York .... 4 0 0 0 1 2 0 2 0—9 15 3
Chicago .... 7 4 0 1 0 0 4 0 0—16 16 1

Batteries—Taylor and McGinnity; Welmer and Kling. Umpire—O'Day.

At St. Louis, morning game— R.H.E.
Boston .... 0 3 0 0 0 1 0 1 0—5 10 2
St. Louis .... 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0—1 7 2

Batteries—Platt and Moran; Dunleavy and Ryan. Umpire—Emslie.

At Pittsburg, afternoon game— R.H.E.
Philadelphia .... 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0—1 9 2
Pittsburg .... 0 0 4 1 0 1 0 1 0—7 13 1

Batteries—Sparks and Dooin; Phillippi and Weaver. Umpire—Johnstone.

New York at Chicago, afternoon; postponed on account of rain.

At Cincinnati, afternoon game— R.H.E.
Brooklyn .... 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 1—2 5 2
Cincinnati ..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 3 5 0—8 13 2

Batteries—Jones and Ritter; Phillips and Reitz. Umpires—Moran and Holliday.

At St. Louis, afternoon games— R.H.E.
Boston .... 1 0 1 0 1 0 0 0 2—5 10 5
St. Louis .... 2 1 3 0 1 0 0 1 0—8 9 4

Batteries—Pittinger and Moran; Rhoades and O'Neill. Umpire—Emslie.

American League Results.

At Philadelphia, morning game— R.H.E.
Philadelphia .. 2 0 0 0 0 0 2 0 x—4 11 1
Detroit .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 2—3 12 1

Batteries—Plank and Powers; Kitson and Buelow.

At Boston, morning— R.H.E.
Boston .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 4 0 x—4 10 1
St. Louis ..... 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1 5 2

Batteries—Hughes and Stahl; Siever and Kehoe.

At Washington, morning game—R.H.E.
Washington .. 1 4 0 1 0 1 3 0 x—10 9 2
Cleveland ..... 0 0 3 0 0 0 0 0 0—3 8 4

Batteries—Townsend, Orth and Drill; Wright and Bemis.

At New York, morning game— R.H.E.
New York .... 1 0 1 1 0 2 0 0 x—5 7 1
Chicago ...... 0 0 1 0 1 1 0 0 0—3 9 5

Batteries—Chesbro and O'Connor; White and E. McFarland.

At New York, afternoon game— R.H.E.
Chicago .... 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 1 0—3 9 3
New York ...... 2 0 0 0 0 3 0 0 0—5 7 2

Batteries—Flaherty and Slattery; Griffith and O'Connor. Umpire—Sheridan.

At Boston, afternoon game— R.H.E.
St. Louis .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 3 1
Boston .... 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 1 0—2 6 1

Batteries—Sudhoff and Kahoe; Dineen and Criger. Umpire—Hassett.

At Philadelphia, afternoon game— R.H.E.
Detroit .... 0 1 1 0 0 0 1 1 1—5 11 0
Philadelphia .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 4 1

Batteries—Donovan and McGuire; Waddel and Schreck. Umpire—O'Loughlin.

Cleveland at Washington, afternoon game postponed on account of rain.

Baseball Games on Sunday.

At Chicago (National)— R.H.E.
Chicago .... 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0—1 6 5
New York .... 0 0 0 2 2 0 0 3 0—7 9 1

Batteries—Taylor and Kling; McGinnity and Bresnahan. Umpire—O'Day. Attendance—12,000.

At St. Louis (National)— R.H.E.
St. Louis .... 0 1 0 1 1 0 0 1 1—5 10 4
Boston .... 0 0 0 2 1 1 0 2 3—9 11 4

Batteries—McFarland and J. O'Neil; Malarkey and Moran. Umpire—Emslie. Attendance—7000.

R.H.E.
Worcester .... 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1 8 0
Providence ...... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 5 3

Batteries—Hemming, Winham and Kellacky; Yerkes and Diggins. Umpire—Brown.

R.H.E.
Jersey City ..... 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 0 0—2 6 1
Newark .... 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1 5 4

Batteries—Barnett and Dillon; Pardee and Shea. Umpire—Latham. Attendance—5000.

Argonauts Win at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, July 6.—The annual people's regatta was held Saturday on the national course on the Schuylkill River. There was a swift current, due to recent rains, and the time was generally fast. Only one record, however, was broken, the honor going to the Argonaut Rowing Club of Toronto, which won the senior eight in 7m. 30 1-5s. The previous record was 7m. 39s, held by the Vesper Club's Paris crew.

Many New Postoffices.

Ottawa, Ont., July 6.—Sixty-three new postoffices were opened in Canada in June, four were closed, and the names of six were changed. The customs outposts at Grafton, Maitland and Port Rowan, Ont., have been closed; and Toronto Junction has been declared an outpost of Toronto, and Leeblain, Algoma, an outpost of Fort William. Ladnor, B. C., is established an outpost of New Westminster.

Buys 50,000 Acres.

Victoria, B.C., July 6.—Jas. Dunsmuir Saturday completed a deal with a Seattle syndicate for the sale of 50,000 acres of timber land on Campbell River, Vancouver Island, for about $1,000,000.

Former Judge Dies.

Montreal, July 6.—Judge Marcus Doherty, who retired some years ago from the Court of Appeals, died yesterday, aged 89 years. He was the father of Mr. Justice Doherty of the Superior Court.

The Domestic Shah.

"Don't you think that there are many men who want to be fussed over and require just as much waiting upon as the most spoiled and helpless of women?" asks a correspondent, and then proceeds to answer: "The majority, I dare say, are not guilty of this weakness, but there are heaps of men-noodles who want their womenkind to 'cosset' them as if they were babies or invalids. They must be cockered up with every kind of indulgence; they have all the airs and the unbridled tempers and extravagances of a Shah-in-Shah, and the more generously and patiently their whims and fancies are borne with, the more exacting and domineering do they become, the more difficult to please, the more outrageous in their demands, and the more impossible and hopeless to get on with happily and comfortably.

"When a domestic tyrant of this type returns to his domicile everything must be at a standstill until he has signified his lordly pleasure as to whether the different members of the family may continue their occupations or not, and no matter what they are doing, or have done, you may be pretty certain that it is not right in his eyes! If he has mislaid a book or a newspaper nobody in the place is allowed to have any peace until it is found.

"As for his pipe or tobacco-pouch, why nothing short of a domestic revolution occurs if treasures of this sort happen to be banished temporarily from his view. They are so dear to him, so indispensable to his happiness, so absolutely necessary to his existence, that he cannot even bear them out of his sight, and unless he can lay his hand on them at once, the mildest mannered of men is capable of transforming himself into a Nero at any moment. Don't we all know the Boanerges-like rear, 'Where's my pipe? Has anyone seen my pipe?' or the testy remark, 'Most extraordinary thing how everything gets interfered with here. I can't even put my pipe down a minute or two but somebody hides it or takes it away!' Ten to one he has covered it over himself with his newspaper, and, after creating a great hubbub and commotion, it is found just where he laid it himself."

A Peculiar Bequest.

In a review of the people he has met "as counsel and Magistrate," Mr. Cecil Chapman, one of the metropolitan Magistrates, points out in M.A.P. that a fact not generally known is that a year or two ago the police courts of London received a windfall of some twenty thousand pounds, to be invested for the poor-box funds, from a man who for many years used to frequent the Marlborough street court as an onlooker. "His appearance," adds the Magistrate, "was that of a man who had nothing at all." Inquiry reveals a chain of not unromantic circumstances connected with this bequest. Some two and a half years ago a little old man, dressed in a blue suit of a naval cut, entered the Marlborough Street Police Court, and, assuming a businesslike air, pushed his way through the crowd of waiting witnesses towards the bench.

"What do you want?" asked Mr. F. J. Elliott, the assistant Magistrate's clerk.

"My name is Evan Llewllyn," said the old man, brushing the whitened locks from his brow, "and"—he approached nearer and lowered his voice to a whisper—"I want to watch you; I want to see how you deal with all these people—not as a spectator in the gallery, but as one of yourselves, as one in touch with the distressed and the misguided and the criminal. My object? That you will see in good time."

Mr. Elliott, regarding him as a specimen of the harmless eccentric common to all police courts, humored him in the fulfilment of what he called his "mission." He gave him a seat near his desk and allowed him to sit in his office and hear the applications. This went on daily for over twelve months. The mysterious visitor scarcely ever spoke. He sat with his head between his hands gazing intently at witness or prisoner. Later on the truth came out.

"Mr. Elliott," said the visitor, "I am an old man. I have a premonition that the end is very near. I want to leave all my money, amounting to £20,000, to the poor-box of Marlborough Street Police Court. I had that idea in my head when I first came here, but I wanted to see how you treated the poor and the fallen. I am satisfied. The money is yours."

There was a suspicion that Mr. Llewllyn was suffering from hallucinations, but when he died a few weeks later it was found that he had actually bequeathed by will to the poor-box the amount stipulated. The only other bequest was 5s a week for life to a man who had helped him in business. This man appeared at Marlborough street to explain his connection with Llewllyn, and from his statement it was evident that he, although very poor, had actually been mainly instrumental in making the testator's fortune. Under these circumstances the Magistrate increased the allowance to 10s a week. The poor-boxes of four or five of the London police courts receive altogether about six hundred pounds a year from the invested capital.

Munyon Works Wonders

Mr. Robinson's Legs and Feet Swollen so Badly He Could Hardly Get His Shoes on Cured Now Permanently.

"I have had Rheumatism for two years, principally in the legs, and the disease was aggravated by my work, which necessitated standing up all day. It was exceedingly painful to me, and I suffered a great deal. I tried dozens of remedies, but nothing seemed to do me any permanent good. About six weeks ago, when I was in Montreal, I was particularly badly affected; my legs and feet were swollen up so that I could hardly put my shoes on, and it was just at this time that the great test of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure was being made. I secured a trial vial, and it was really wonderful the relief I obtained. The swelling is all gone, and I have not suffered a bit since; I believe I am cured."—J. B. Robinson, 55 Clarence, Ottawa.

If you are sick, if you have indigestion, if you are nervous, if your liver or blood is out of order, if you have any kidney disease, if you have piles, or any ailment, ask your druggist for "Munyon's Guide to Health," it is free and will tell you how to cure yourself for 25c. Thousands of testimonials. 24B

The Soda Fountain Clerk.

CONSIDER now this meek and humble soda fountain clerk.

Who draweth off the moistened air with nimble turn and jerk.

His garb is always spotless white when first he puts it on.

But, lo, before an hour hath passed its spotlessness hath gone.

For then he hath vanilla on the bosom of his vest, and streaks of red raspberry make his trousers seem a jest.

While chocolate and ginger give a tiger-like effect to the balance of the garments in which he's proudly decked.

His hair is limp and languid, and is parted square and true

Above the very center of his nose, which turneth blue,

Because he hath to linger in the acid and the ice, to fix up funny mixtures for the one that hath the price.

He maketh strange concoctions in the line of fancy drinks, and all the while he watcheth for persuasive sorts of winks.

From early morn he twisteth at the soda water spout, and turneth the ice-crusher till the ice hath given out.

He diggeth in the ice cream and he rusheth with the glass, while his deadly hated rival buys the soda for the lass.

Yea, verily, the soda clerk, he hath a sorry time, for he must know the way to get nine cents out of each dime.

And he must be a hustler, that there will not be a loss of ice or gas or water, or he'll tremble at the boss.

How often, oh, how often, hath the soda jerker grinned at the one who payeth nickels for a penny's worth of wind;

How often, oh, how often, doth a calm and peaceful smile go flitting o'er his visage when a drink goes out of style.

But ah, alas, my son, sometimes he feeleth very bad, and then is when the ladies come with garments rich and glad.

The ladies fill the rockers and the doorways and the stools, and insist upon a liquid that both elevates and cools.

And one declareth that she'd like some chocolate with cream, and when he draweth it, straightway "Oh no!" the maid doth scream.

And then she voweth that she hath already changed her mind, and wanteth just a phosphate with a piece of lemon rind.

And yet, again the other maids declare they do not know just what they wish—and on and on their mild objections flow.

The weary soda fountain clerk suggesteth this and that, from plain old lemon phosphate to a dose of anti-fat.

And finally the ladies fair with one consent conclude that chocolate and cream shall be their soda fountain food.

Now, when he draweth all the drinks, his troubles are not done—

Nay, verily, my trusting child, they are but half begun;

For each and every maiden there doth straightway rise and say:

"Now, girls, I'll think it's awful if you do not let me pay!"

And all protest, and all object, and all their plans defend,

And not a one takes out her purse her lovely cash to spend.

Now, finally, the soda clerk suggesteth that each maid shall pay for what she drank—and then beginneth the tirade.

For all the ladies vow in wrath—yea, yea, they almost sob—that they will his employer see, and take from him his job.

And then they take their parasols, and sternly go away, and not a cent of all that bill do they take steps to pay.

The gentle soda fountain clerk, he falleth in a daze, and leaneth on the vichy tube, and wicked things he says.

Is this not true, just as we have composed it, with much work?

It surely is—and if you doubt, go ask the soda clerk.—Baltimore "American."

The Restlessness of Women.

IN the July "Cosmopolitan" Ella Wheeler Wilcox, with characteristic force and directness, deals with what she regards as a very serious and growing evil now prevalent among her sex in this country, at least among those who belong to the well-to-do and upper classes of society. She says:

"One who studies American womanhood with any care must be alarmed at the growing restlessness of the sex.

"My mountain of mail is often a volcano of seething unrest. It seems a relief to many women—women, doubtless, whom the world supposes to be happy wives and mothers—to write to one they believe to be sympathetic, of the discontent that surges in their hearts.

"To turn from these letters to a social function is to encounter the same elements in another form. Beneath jeweled corsages beat restless hearts; from under the flower-laden brims of the modish hats look unhappy eyes, gazing out into the world with longing for an indefinable something—a happiness imagined but unattained.

"While I believe the tendency of humanity is constantly upward toward a higher plane, it is an indisputable fact that this restlessness of woman is a giant evil, and one of serious growth."

Mrs. Wilcox says it is puzzling to trace this great wave of feminine restlessness to its source. She speaks of the present false standards of wealth, the desire for splendid social station, and for villas at the seaside and castles in Europe, but closes by saying that "after all, a lack of good, everyday common sense is at the bottom of" it all. While this restlessness is a baleful sign of the times, rendered all the more mischievous by the almost equal restlessness of men, it is comforting to reflect that there is a large—a very large—class of women who have and who use constantly good, everyday common sense. But of course they do not belong to that growing class of women who desire to lead in society, and who dream of villas, castles and foreign titles.

Beware of Danger.

Said the melancholy man: "Do you ever look back on your life and reflect on the opportunities you have missed?" "No, sir," answered the hustler. "It would be just my luck to miss some more while I was brooding over what can't be helped."—"Waverley Magazine."

SUMMER VISIT OF 1903.

Prof. Dorenwend

Of Toronto, the Famous HAIR GOODS ARTIST, IS COMING. HE WILL BE AT HOTEL QUINTE, BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, JULY 10.

With every kind and style of Ladies' and Gentlemen's Wigs, Toupees, Bangs, Wavy and Plain Fronts, Switches of all long hair in every length and shade.

His Art styles are known and worn by all classes everywhere.

Be sure to visit his Show Rooms at the Hotel and see his new designs. He will, free of charge, demonstrate by fitting you what is the most suitable and becoming to you.

Their use adds Health, Comfort and Younger Appearance.

Gentlemen who are Bald should investigate and see his Feather Weight Toupees and Wigs, worn on over 55,000 heads.

Please Remember Day and Date

Hotel Quinte,
Belleville,
Friday, July 10th

DORENWEND'S TOUPEE'S.

EVERYTHING GOING FAST

—AT—

Our Clearing Out Sale

NATHAN JONES.

The rush is on, our fine stock is rapidly disappearing, our bargains are appreciated. We now will clear out

Lace Curtains, Smyrna Rugs, Roller Linens

ALL TO GO AT GREATLY REDUCED PRICES.

Our Dress Goods at 20 p.c. off are great bargains. We urge again as early buying in the day as possible.

NATHAN JONES.

The Finnegan Carriage & Wagon Co.

FOR

Stylish and Durable Turnouts.

—Surreys
—Corning Buggies
—Piano Box Buggies
—Rubber Tire Buggies
—Micadoes
—Phaetons
—Bike Buggies
—Democrats
—Grocer Wagons
—Butcher Wagons

Cheese Factory Milk Wagons.
Steel Tubular Axle Lumber Wagons.

Rubber Tires put on your old wheels at reasonable prices.

Mill St., - - Belleville.

SPECIAL OFFER

MIDSUMMER CLUBBING RATES.

Two Papers to January 1st, 1904

Family Herald & Weekly Star, and the Best Home Paper—The Weekly Intelligencer, BOTH for

65 CENTS

We are making this special offer as we require 1000 new subscriptions to our Weekly.

This offer is good to new subscribers only.

ADDRESS—
The Weekly Intelligencer
BELLEVILLE, ONT.

No agents handle this offer.

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE

FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

The Daily Intelligencer.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL — LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL — CHARITY IN ALL.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, JULY 7, 1903 NO. 5

MORE OF WATER'S VICTIMS

Drowning Accidents Which Were Reported Yesterday.

Venturesome Swimmer Drowned at Mount Forest—Two Meet Their Death While Running Logs in British Columbia—Louis Wood Drowned in the Old Welland Canal—John Kerr Formerly, of Pickering, Goes Down to Death.

St. Catharines, July 7. — Louis Wood, 22 years of age, was accidentally drowned at Lock 18, old Welland Canal, about 8 o'clock Sunday night. He with some others went swimming, and, unable to swim, got beyond his depth. His companions made a brilliant attempt to save him, but failed. Wood was spending the Sunday here, his home being at Niagara Falls.

Drowned in B.C.

Vernon City, B.C., July 7.—Stewart James and Arthur Waby, two young men in the employ of the S. C. Smith mills at Enderby, were drowned while running logs from the river to the boom. They were engaged at the work voluntarily during their leisure hours, it being 8 o'clock in the evening when the fatality occurred. A Chinaman saw them fall off the log, and gave the alarm, which the steam whistle at the mills made general, but although the startled inhabitants arrived on the river bank in a few minutes, nothing could be seen of the two men. Neither could swim, and they went down in 20 feet of water. Both bodies were recovered. Stewart James came from Haliburton County, Ont.

Drowned in River.

Mount Forest, July 7.—About the middle of yesterday forenoon, Milford, eldest son of the late William Amos of this town, aged about 17 years, went to the river at the Queen street bridge to swim, with a comrade. As young Amos was not a good swimmer, he was warned by his comrade not to try to swim across the river, which is about 7 feet deep at this point. Amos, however, on seeing his comrade crossing, tried to follow him, when he sank in midstream and was drowned before help could reach him.

John Kerr Drowned.

Pickering, July 7.—George Kerr, manager of the Western Bank here, received a telegram yesterday with the sad news that his son John, aged 26 years, had been drowned on Saturday evening at Sacramento, Cal. His body is expected home to Pickering for burial.

Found Floating in Bullrushes.

Toronto, July 7.—The body of Frank Clarkin, who has been missing since Thursday, was found floating face upward in the bullrushes opposite the Royal Canadian Yacht Club last evening by Captain Goodwin. Clarkin was staying with Wm. Linton, at 10 Hooper avenue, Centre Island. After lunch on Thursday he set out in a canoe for the foot of Bay street, and the only possible clue which might indicate the cause of an accident was that one side was scratched and smeared with black paint, as if the boat had come into collision with some newly-painted craft. Clarkin was an expert swimmer and it is difficult to account for his death unless seized by cramps. The deceased, who was 21 years old, came from the neighborhood of King, where his mother, Mrs. James Curry, still resides.

Young Girl Drowned.

Ottawa, July 7.—Word has been received of a drowning accident in the Gatineau on Sunday, when the thirteen-year-old daughter of John Cyr of Oronside lost her life. The little girl and her young sister were playing in a boat, which was tied to the shore. She reached out to grab a piece of stick floating, overbalanced and fell into the water. She came up, managed to get hold of a floating log, but another log in passing struck her on the head, stunning her and knocking her off.

Stepped Off the Train.

Brighton, July 7.— John Hyderman, a laborer from Deseronto, about forty years of age, was killed on the Grand Trunk, about two miles and a half west of Trenton yesterday. Hyderman had a ticket from Deseronto to Trenton and came up on No. 3 westbound express. It is supposed he tried to get off the train after it had passed Trenton station. A passenger had his head out of the window and saw Hyderman on the steps in the act of stepping on the track. He fell under the car and had his skull crushed and left leg cut off at the ankle.

Engineer Killed.

Peterboro, July 7.—A fatal accident occurred on the Midland division of the Grand Trunk Railway on Sunday morning near Stirling, whereby Robert McAuliffe lost his life. McAuliffe was driving the leading engine on a double header of empty freights running between Belleville and Lindsay, when the crown plate of his engine was blown off and McAuliffe was so severely scalded that he died at 8 o'clock at St. Joseph's Hospital. He was 32 years of age, and leaves a widowed mother and two sisters, who reside in town. Herbert Porter, the fireman, was also badly scalded, and his recovery is doubtful. He lives at Millbrook.

Canadian Killed.

New York, July 7.—Duncan Currie, a carpenter employed on the Manhattan Elevated Railway, fell on the third rail yesterday and was electrocuted. It is believed he came from Canada, as his brother, Rev. Dr. James Currie, resides at Orillia, Ont.

Woman Dropped to Death.

New York, July 7.—Mrs. F. L. St. John of West End avenue, a prominent society woman and church worker, was killed yesterday by being thrown into the Rapid Transit subway, 40 feet deep, at Seventy-Seventh street and Broadway, by an electric car. She had just stepped from another car when struck.

Three Persons Killed.

Chicago, July 7.—Three persons were instantly killed and several fatally injured in an explosion last night, which wrecked a factory in South Chicago avenue, where caps for toy pistols are manufactured. The three persons killed were mangled so that only parts of their bodies were found. The explosion was caused by concussion.

CALLED IN COURT.

Judge Hughes Investigates the Speculations of the Elgin Loan Co.

St. Thomas, July 7. — Judge Hughes held court this morning to further examine W. R. Bevitt in connection with Elgin Loan speculations. Mr. Bevitt did not appear and has been out of the city for a week. Some rumors are current regarding Bevitt and his connection with Rowley in stock speculations.

R. J. Housley, broker, who was also up for examination, is said to have put through their transactions. He declined to be interviewed, and as the examination is in private, definite information is hard to get.

Bevitt put through the deals, it is alleged, at the request of Rowley, who furnished the funds. Bevitt's continued absence from the city causes comment.

Rowley spends most of his time in jail reading his Bible and religious papers.

SEVEN MEN WERE KILLED.

Fourteen Others Are Known to Be Injured at Evansville, Ind.

After Four Days of Rioting and General Lawlessness the City Saw the Most Terrible of Its Experiences With Rioters—Mob of 1,000 Stormed the Jail, and, After a Soldier Fell, the National Guard Fired a Fusilade.

Evansville, Ind., July 7.—Following four days of rioting and general lawlessness this city last night saw the most terrible of its experiences with rioters. Seven persons are dead and 14 are known to be injured, including five soldiers and two deputies. It is believed the number of dead will be doubled when returns are in. The dead: Herbert Schiflin, a painter; Hazel Allman, 15 years old; John Barrett; August Jordan, 19, musician; Edward Rule, laborer; two unidentified men.

At 10.30 o'clock the members of Company A, 1st Regiment, Indiana National Guard, after a day of guarding the county jail, and 100 deputy sheriffs, under Sheriff Kratz, fired point blank into a mob of 1,000 surrounding the Vanderburg County Jail, and attempting its capture. From morning until the hour of last night's firing, the crowd surged about the jail calling the soldiers vile names, assailing them with stones and berating the deputy sheriffs.

At 9 o'clock last night the mob gradually became more excited, its manifestations of uneasiness more frequent, and at 10 o'clock it was seen that nothing could prevent an assault on the jail. At 10.30 the rioters pressed slowly forward, and innocent onlookers followed. Slowly they forced the militia men back toward the jail. The leaders, with a bicycle in their front as a shield to the bayonets, stormed the jail entrance. Captain Blum of the National Guard ordered a charge on the rioters. The crowd was forced back, the soldiers using their bayonets and butts of their guns. Suddenly a victim fell. Stones and boulders began to fly through the air. A soldier was struck with a rock and fell. A rioter was knocked down with a gun butt and a shot followed. This started a fusilade from the defenders.

Indianapolis, July 7. — Governor Durbin will probably declare martial law at Evansville at once.

BASEBALL MONDAY.

The Eastern League.

Toronto .... 0 0 0 0 3 4 0 0 0—7
Worcester .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0—1

Two base hits—Connaughton, Kellackey, McCauley, Massey. Three base hits—Hurst. Sacrifice hits—Bruce, Brodie. First base on balls—Off Winham 7, off Kissinger 2. First base on errors—Toronto 4. Struck out—By Winham 2, by Papoalau 1, by Kissinger 1. Wild pitch—Winham. Balk—Winham. Time—1.55. Umpire—Kelly. Attendance—422.

R.H.E.
Newark .... 4 0 2 0 3 1 0 0 *—10 12 2
Rochester ...... 0 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 0—2 5 8

Batteries—Newenham and Thiery; Fertsch and Steelman. Umpire—Swartwood. Attendance—1500.

R.H.E.
Jersey City .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 5 1
Baltimore .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—1 7 0

Batteries—Thielman and Diggins; Wiltse and Robinson. Umpire—Latham. Attendance—1500.

At Providence—Providence-Buffalo game postponed; rain.

National League Scores.

At Chicago— R.H.E.
Chicago ....0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0—1 2 1
New York ....0 2 0 0 0 1 0 0 2—5 6 6

Batteries—Menefee and Kling; Mathewson and Bowerman. Umpire—O'Day. Attendance—2500.

At Cincinnati (first game)— R.H.E.
Cincinnati .. ..0 0 0 0 0 1 2 0 0—3 3 6
Brooklyn .. ..0 4 0 3 0 0 0 2 0—9 12 0

Batteries—Ewing and Peitz; Garvin and Ritter. Attendance—3500.

Second game— R.H.E.
Cincinnati ....0 2 5 1 0 3 *—11 15 0
Brooklyn ....0 0 0 0 0 0 3— 3 5 1

Batteries—Hahn and Bergen; Vickers, Hugg and Ritter. Umpires—Moran and Holliday. Attendance—4000. (Called to catch train.)

At Pittsburg— R.H.E.
Pittsburg .. ....2 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—4 8 4
Philadelphia .. ..1 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 0—3 8 2

Batteries—Wilhelm and Smith; Michell and Doola. Umpire—Johnstone.

American League Results.

At Washington (first game)— R.H.E.
Washington .. ...0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 5 1
Cleveland ....1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1 4 1

Batteries—Patten and Kittredge; Bernhard and Bemis.

Second game— R.H.E.
Washington .. ...0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0—1 4 0
Cleveland ....0 0 0 0 1 0 1 0 1—3 8 1

Batteries—Wilson and Kittredge; Joss and Abbot. Umpires—Drill and Moore. Attendance—2570.

At Boston— R.H.E.
Boston ....0 3 0 0 3 0 0 2 *—8 12 1
St. Louis ....4 1 0 0 0 0 1 0 0—6 14 1

Batteries—Young and Criger; Terry, Sievers and Kahoe. Umpires—Connolly and Hassett. Attendance—4006.

At New York— R.H.E.
New York ....0 0 1 1 0 2 0 0 *—4 9 1
Chicago ....1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—2 6 0

Batteries—Wolfe and Beven; Owen and Slattery. Umpire—Sheridan. Attendance—2395.

At Philadelphia— R.H.E.
Detroit ....0 2 2 0 0 1 0 0 0—5 8 0
Philadelphia .. ...2 1 0 0 2 1 0 0 *—6 11 2

Batteries—Mullen and McGuire; Waddell and Schreck. Umpire—O'Loughlin. Attendance—5844.

Murder in Manitoba.

Baeuse Jour, Man., July 7.—As a result of a quarrel which took place yesterday between Tukes Kyruk and Paul Wyrchucski, the body of the latter was found near the scene of the quarrel, the head being split wide open from the blow of an axe. The two men are Poles, and they have for the past two seasons been engaged in getting out cordwood. Just what they quarreled about is not known. Kyruk has not been seen since the commission of the crime.

Another Negro Lynched.

Louisville, Ky., July 7. — A despatch from Evansville, Ind., says a mob lynched a negro late last night.

A DAY OF ROUTINE.

Business in the House of Commons on Monday—Long Discussion on the Postoffice Estimates.

Ottawa, July 7.—Private bills were the first order before the House yesterday.

When the third reading of the bill respecting the Century Insurance Company was moved, objection was taken to the clause returning the amount of capital necessary to be paid into the company before it can commence business from 25 to 10 per cent. The bill was held over, so that further information may be obtained.

Mr. John Costigan vigorously opposed the act incorporating the Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia Railway Company, but after some discussion, consideration of the bill was deferred, and the committee rose and reported progress.

When the bill incorporating the Brandon, Saskatchewan and Hudson Bay Railway Company came before the House, Mr. Henderson of Halton moved an amendment prohibiting the company from entering into an agreement for the sale or lease of its lines to other companies until such lines should be constructed and under operation. The amendment was defeated on a vote of 29 to 19. The third reading of the bill was carried on division.

Information From Ministers.

Replying to Mr. Bell, Hon. Mr. Sifton stated that E. C. Senkler, Gold Commissioner of the Yukon, had granted free representation to A. N. C. Treadgold and his associates. The Gold Commissioner gave as his authority orders in council passed last year, but the department disagreed with his interpretation and ordered him to collect representation fees. Hon. Mr. Sifton could not say what representations upon these claims have been paid since the date of the original concession, but $3,726 was paid upon claims held by the company last year.

Mr. Taylor was informed by the Minister of Finance that the Public Accounts do not show federal payments to Sir John Boyd outside of his salary as a judge since 1896. Sir John Boyd was appointed arbitrator by the Ontario Government to adjust accounts between the provinces and the Dominion, but the records show only the amount paid by the Dominion in the common fund.

The Minister of Customs stated in reply to Mr. Bennett that C. H. Ross of Barne and A. C. Thompson of Angus were the sureties of J. G. Grant, Barne, who defaulted for $1,130. The defalcation was in connection with customs duties collected by Grant prior to 1894.

To Use Needed Money.

Ottawa, July 7.—To obtain money that is urgently needed for the public service, Mr. Fielding moved a resolution authorizing the expenditure of one-fifth of the estimates for the current year. Mr. Borden raised no objections other than to secure assurances that the Opposition's right to criticize any of these items should not be impaired by the passage of the resolution. The resolution was passed.

The Postoffice Estimates.

The House took up the estimates of the Postoffice Department, and, after a discussion which lasted five hours, the first item was passed at 1 o'clock.

The postoffice items passed during the evening were: Salaries and allowances, $1,373,366; mail service, $2,322,500; miscellaneous, $275,000.

The House adjourned at 1.20 a.m.

COX CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.

Senator's Company Will Be Given Contract to Build G.T.P.

Montreal, July 7—It was stated last night on pretty good authority that James Ross will join the Grand Trunk Pacific syndicate at a very early date, and that Senator Cox, James Ross and other magnates will form a construction company, and that they will be given the contract to build the Grand Trunk Pacific from Moncton to the Pacific Ocean. It has also transpired that the Grand Trunk Railway is not at all satisfied to have the Government build the eastern section. It is understood, however, that the above-mentioned construction company will build both for the company and the Government.

Money For Lead.

Victoria, B. C., July 7.—A special from Ottawa says the Dominion Government has given notice of regulations authorizing the payment of half a million dollars a year for five years by way of bounties to the lead producers of British Columbia.

Can't Find a Guard.

Ottawa, July 7.—Messrs. Holt and Robertson, who conducted an investigation into the most suitable form of cattle guards, will report that they have been unable to find any guard that will turn cattle from a railway track, and at the same time can be used efficiently and without danger to trains.

London, July 7.—The House of Commons yesterday reached the second part of the Irish Land Bill before adjourning. The House, in disposing of Part 1, got through sixty-four of the eighty-nine clauses in the bill, the committee stage of which will probably be wound up to-day.

Given 14 Years.

Hamilton, July 7.—The magistrate sentenced yesterday Thomas Walls, who was convicted of an offence that good society taboos, to Kingston for 14 years.

LOUBET IN LONDON.

Dined by the King at Dingy Buckingham Palace.

London, July 7.—President Loubet's first day in London closed with a state banquet at 8.30 p.m., at Buckingham Palace. It was the most brilliant function the dingy old pile had witnessed for a long time. The company included all the high officials of the kingdom. M. Loubet was seated next to the Queen, and the King and the Princess of Wales sat opposite them. A concert followed the banquet. The cabinet and royal family were among the guests at the banquet.

Proposing the health of President Loubet, King Edward expressed the pleasure that he and Queen Alexandra felt at welcoming the French President at Buckingham Palace. The King alluded to his recent visit to France and the pleasure he experienced at his friendly reception there.

President Loubet responded, thanking King Edward for his reception, and declaring the King's visit to France had done much toward a guarantee of peace for the whole world.

WAR IS INEVITABLE.

Japanese Are Mobilizing Their Forces in Far East.

London, July 7.—According to the Tien Tsin correspondent of The Standard the opinion prevails in Russian circles there that the outbreak of hostilities in the far east is inevitable. It is reported that the Japanese are mobilizing their forces.

Without Significance.

London, July 7.—Replying to a question in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon on the number of British, American and Japanese warships in the Gulf of Pe-Chi-Li and the object of the gathering of the Russian and other fleets there, Admiralty Secretary Arnold-Forster said there were twelve British ships in those waters; but the Admiralty was not aware that any special gathering of warships had occurred, or that any special object was aimed at by the powers responsible for the movements of the vessels in Chinese waters.

SITUATION NOW SERIOUS.

Bulgarian Evinces Disposition to Slight Admonitions of Powers.

Vienna, July 7.—According to the Austrian foreign office's semi-official reports received here indications are that the situation between Bulgaria and Turkey has become serious. Bulgaria appears unwilling to consider the admonitions of great powers, to maintain peace, notwithstanding the note sent to Sofia July 4, in which Bulgaria was warned that Austria and Turkey were absolutely in accord and that the Bulgarian complaints against Turkey were considered to be much exaggerated.

Six Persons Shot.

Mount Vernon, Ind., July 7.—A fight on an excursion steamer between here and Uniontown, Ky., yesterday, resulted in six persons being shot. Kinney Givens shot and fatally wounded a man named Brown. Another man was shot and fell into the river. His body has not been recovered. Two of the number shot were women.

Twenty Known Dead.

Jeanette, Pa., July 7.—As a result of the breaking of the Oakford Park dam Sunday, twenty persons are known to be dead and sixteen are missing. The property loss in the valley will reach $1,500,000, and the distress is so great that outside relief will have to be asked for. Business was practically suspended yesterday.

THE MARKETS.

Grain Markets Are Firmer—Wheat and Corn Futures Advance—Live Stock —The Latest Quotations.

Monday Evening, July 6.

Liverpool wheat futures closed ⅛d to ⅜d higher to-day than Saturday and corn futures ⅛d higher.

Receipts at Chicago, Wheat, 51, 8; corn, 185, 93; oats, 497, 44.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

London—Close—Wheat, on passage, buyers and sellers apart. Parcels No. 1 hard Manitoba, Aug. 30s 10½d. Maize, on passage, quiet, but steady. Spot American mixed, 22s 6d. Flour, spot Minn., 25s 6d.

Paris—Close—Wheat, tone steady: July, 23f 65c; Nov. and Feb., 22f 50c. Flour, tone quiet: July, 33f 70c; Nov. and Feb., 30f 65c.

Antwerp—Wheat, spot, quiet; No. 2 R. W., 15¾f.

THE VISIBLE SUPPLY.

As compared with a week ago, the visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States has decreased 1,489,000 bushels; corn increased 1,251,000 bushels; oats decreased 2,010,000 bushels. Following is a comparative statement for the week ending to-day, the preceding week and the corresponding week of last year:

	July 6,'03.	June 29,'03.	July 5,'02.
Wheat, bu ..	15,970,000	17,459,000	19,122,000
Corn, bu	7,218,000	5,967,000	5,912,000
Oats, bu	2,545,000	4,555,000	1,481,000

To recapitulate the visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States, together with that afloat to Europe, is 46,450,000 bushels, against 49,610,000 a week ago, and 52,510,000 bushels a year ago.

LEADING WHEAT MARKETS.

Following are the closing quotations at important wheat centres to-day:

	Cash.	July.	Sept.	Dec.
New York	....	....	80¼	80⅝
Chicago	....	....	75¾	75⅞
Toledo	76½	76½	76⅝	75¾
Duluth, No. 1 N.	83	83⅝	75¾	73¼

TORONTO ST. LAWRENCE MARKET.

Grain—

Wheat, red, bush	$0 76 to	$0 77
Wheat, white, bush	0 76½	....
Wheat, spring, bush	0 70	0 72
Wheat, goose, bush	0 70	....
Barley, bush	0 42½	....
Beans, bush	[illegible]	[illegible]
Beans, hand-picked	1 75	....
Peas, bush	0 78½	....
Rye, bush	0 45	....
Oats, bush	0 35	0 35½

NEW YORK DAIRY MARKET.

New York, July 6.—Butter, barely steady; receipts, 17,072; creamery, extras per lb., 20½c; do., firsts, 19c to 20c; do., seconds, 18c to 18½c; do., thirds, 16½c to 17½c; do., state dairy, tubs, extras, 19½c to 20c; do., firsts, 18½c to 19c; do., seconds, 17c to 18c; do., fourths to thirds, 15½c to 16½c; western, imitation creamery firsts, 18c; do., seconds, 16½c to 17½c; renovated extras, 18c; do., firsts, 17c to 17½c; do., seconds, 15c to 16c; do., thirds, 13c to 14c; western factory, firsts, 16c to 16½c; do., seconds, 15c to 15½c; do., thirds, 14c to 14½c; packing stock, No. 1, 15c; do., No. 2, 14c to 14½c; do., No. 3, 13c to 13½c.

Cheese—Quiet; receipts, 9425; state, full cream, small fancy, 10¼c; do., fair to prime, 8½c to 10c; do., large, colored, fancy, 10¼c; do., white fancy, 10¼c; do., fair to prime, 9c to 10c; do., light skims, choice 8½c; do., part skims, choice, 6½c to 7c; do., prime, 6c to 6½c; do., fair to good, 5c to 5½c; do., common, 3c; do., full skims, 2c.

Eggs—Steady; receipts, 13,330; state and Pennsylvania, fancy selected white, 19c to 19½c; do., mixed extras, 18c to 18½c; do., firsts, 16½c to 17c; western extras, 18c to 18½c; do., firsts, 16c to 17c; do., seconds, 15c; do., thirds, 13c to 14c; dirties, 12c to 13½c; checks, 11c to 12c; inferior culls, 9c to 11c.

LIVERPOOL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

Liverpool, July 6.—Wheat, spot dull; No. 2 red western winter, 6s 2d; No. 1 northern spring, 6s 5d; No. 1 California, 6s 6½d. Futures, firm; July, 6s 8½d; Sept., 6s 8½d. Corn, spot quiet; American mixed, 4s 10½d; futures, quiet; July, 4s 8½d; Sept., 4s 9d; Oct., nominal. Cheese, American finest white, dull, 50s; American finest colored, dull, 51s. Lard, American refined, in pails, quiet, 20s 6d. Cotton seed oil, Hull refined, spot firm, 22s 1½d.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Unchanged—Markets Easier, Except for Best Cattle.

London, July 6.—Live cattle steady at 11½c to 12c per lb. for American steers, dressed weight; Canadian steers, 10½c to 11½c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 9¾c per lb.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, July 6.—About 700 head of butchers' cattle, 300 calves and 800 sheep and lambs were offered for sale at the East End Abattoir to-day. Trade was good with a considerable decline in the price of all kinds of cattle, excepting prime stall fed beeves, which sold at from 5c to 5¼c per lb., and in one case 5¾c per lb. was paid for a choice steer. Medium cattle sold at from 3½c to 4¾c, and the common stock at from 2½c to 3½c per lb. A considerable number of the cattle will not be sold to-day. Calves sold at from $2.50 to $12 each, or from 3c to 5c per lb. Lambs sold at from $2.25 to $4.25 each. Sheep sold at from 3¼c to 3¾c per lb. Fat hogs are still declining in price and sales were made at from 5c to 5½c per lb., weighed off the cars.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, July 6.—Cattle—Receipts, 4800 head; market, slow, generally 15c to 25c lower; bulls, steady; prime and shipping steers, $4.70 to $5.20; butchers' steers, $3.85 to $4.65; culls and heifers, $2.50 to $4.40; bulls, $3 to $4.15; stockers and feeders, $3 to $4.15; fresh cows and springers, slow and steady; good to choice, $40 to $50. Medium to good, $30 to $38; common $20 to $28. Veals—Receipts, 420 head; steady, $5.25 to $8.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 21,300 head; market, active, 20c to 60c lower; heavy, $6 to $6.10; mixed, $6.05 to $6.10; yorkers, $6.10 to $6.15; pigs, $6.35 to $6.40; roughs, $5.15 to $5.35; stags, $4 to $4.50; dairies, $5.85 to $6.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 5600 head; slow, 10c to 50c lower; tops, $4 to $6; yearlings, $4.25 to $4.50; ewes, $3.50 to $3.65; sheep, mixed, $2 to $4; wethers, $4.25 to $4.50.

NEW YORK LIVE STOCK.

New York, July 6.—Beeves—Receipts, 3827; bulls and cows steady; steers, $4.40 to $5.30; stags, $4; bulls, $2.75 to $4; cows, $1.50 to $3.65. Calves—Receipts, 3861; good veals, 50c to 75c higher; some sales, $1 higher; old calves steady; veals, $4 to $6.75; tops, $7 to $7.25; buttermilks, $2.50 to $3.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 13,064; sheep more active; prime sheep, higher; others steady; good lambs, 10c to 15c higher; medium and common, steady; sheep, $2.75 to $4.33; extra handy sheep, quotable, $4.50; culls, $2.50; lambs, $5 to $6.90; two cars extra, $7; culls, $4.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 8609; market, lower for all weights; state and Pennsylvania hogs, $6.25 to $6.40.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Lindsay, Ont., July 6.—Victoria Cheese Board met here to-day, with Messrs. Flavelle, Fitzgerald, Cook, Gillespie and Bowes as buyers present. Mr. Fitzgerald got 728, Mr. Cook 340, Mr. Flavelle 610, Gillespie 210, Bowes 275, at 9¼c. Next boards meets on July 27.

Surveying New Townships.

Toronto, July 7.—Survey parties of some dozen men in each are being sent out to New Ontario to lay out the fifty or more new townships, of which 35 will be in the great clay belt. The work will cost about $100,000, and the men will be away until October.

Monument to Heroes.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., July 7.—With the singing of patriotic odes, dedicatory prayer by Chaplain Fullerton, stirring band music, and eloquent orations, the first soldiers' monument in Prince Edward Island was erected to our South African heroes.

To Photograph Documents.

Ottawa, July 7.—Mr. Joseph Pope, Under Secretary of State, and Mr. Topley, photographer of the Interior Department, left yesterday for Washington. They have gone to photograph certain documents in connection with the Alaskan boundary case.

Winnipeg, July 7. — The Ottawa Dairy, near the exhibition grounds, was burned yesterday morning. All the cattle were saved. The loss will be heavy. There was only an insurance of $800.

DURING THE WARM WEATHER.

Even during the warmest weather Angier's Petroleum Emulsion is pleasant to take, and agreeable to the stomach. For this reason it is the ideal remedy for consumption. Made of odorless and tasteless petroleum, glycerine, and hypophosphites, it is better in every way than emulsions made of fish oils or other fats.

SINCLAIR'S AD SINCLAIR'S AD.

SINCLAIR'S

MID-SUMMER CLEARING SALE

Is Now On

This week we give special attention to the clearing of:

Ladies' Dress Skirts.
Ladies' Shirt Waists.
Ladies' Underskirts.
Ladies' Rain Cloaks.
Ladies' Wash Dresses.
Children's Muslin Dresses.
Muslin and Wash Goods.
Prints, Ducks and Ginghams.
Ladies' and Children's Hosiery.
etc., etc., etc., etc.

D. V. SINCLAIR & CO.

An Ideal Summer Drink

BOVRIL CORDIAL

with

Mineral Water or Soda.

EASILY PREPARED.

Refreshing & Invigorating

30 Retail Stores DAVIES 30 Retail Stores

DAVIES, Headquarters for cooked meats, of which they have 32 varieties, Jellied, Cooked and Ready to Serve.

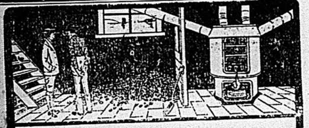
Davies make a specialty of supplying picnics and campers with all the neccessaries in Food Products during the summer months. Davies Pickles, Sauces and Catsup guaranteed, pure and unadulterated, which add to the relish of all meals.

Our store will be closed every Wednesday at 12 o'clock during the months of July and August.

Shop Early or Use Phone. 286.

Daily Deliveries,

The WM. DAVIES CO., Limited.



Sunshine Furnace

PROPRIETOR—"Well Tom, how did that new furnace work this winter—save any coal?"

JANITOR—"Yes, sir! put in two tons less than last winter and have about half a ton left—guess it paid you to throw out that old coal-eater and put in this up-to-date SUNSHINE."

PROPRIETOR—"Yes, I think so; and I noticed the house was comfortable in all kinds of weather. Easy to take care of?"

JANITOR—"Yes, sir! just had to attend it twice a day—never had any trouble with the fire going out, and didn't have to spend half my time sweeping, cleaning, shaking, dumping ashes, and all that sort of thing—wish all my customers had SUNSHINES."

In the end you pay more for fuel than the furnace in which you burn it—a furnace that saves fuel saves it's cost.

Burns coal, coke or wood. Catalogue free.

McClary's

LONDON, TORONTO, MONTREAL, WINNIPEG, VANCOUVER, ST. JOHN, N.B.

The W. W. CHOWN CO., Limited,

SOLE AGENTS.

The Finnegan Carriage & Wagon Co.

—FOR—

Stylish and Durable Turnouts.

- —Surreys
- —Corning Buggies
- —Piano Box Buggies
- —Rubber Tire Buggies
- —Micadoes
- —Phaetons
- —Bike Buggies
- —Democrats
- —Grocer Wagons
- —Butcher Wagons

Cheese Factory Milk Wagons.
Steel Tubular Axle Lumber Wagons.

Rubber Tires put on your old wheels at reasonable prices.

Mill St., - - Belleville.

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE

FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

Daily Intelligencer.

A LIBERAL TALKS PLAINLY!

Mr. W. E. Raney, an employee of the Ontario Legislature, that is, Secretary of the Private Bills Committee, at the request of the Toronto Junction Liberals, delivered a lecture which is reported in full in The Toronto News, and should be in the hands of every reader in Ontario, dealing as it does with the political corruption of the day.

As a Liberal, which he avows himself to be, it was not to be expected he would allow the Conservative party to escape certain condemnation. For this he can be readily excused, as he fearlessly deals with the iniquities of his own party, and calls for a healthier atmosphere in the political struggles of the day.

Dealing with the late Gamey-Stratton scandal, Mr. Raney says:—

> "The newspapers and magazines have made us familiar with "the shame of Minneapolis," and St. Louis and Delaware and Rhode Island. But in the scandals which have disgraced the public affairs of the United States, this at least is to be said, when disclosure came the people learned the truth, and in many cases the guilty men, some of them millionaires, are now serving terms in prison. Here, on the other hand, a great political scandal is enveloped in such a foetid fog of perjury that even after the report of a Royal Commission the people are left to guess whether the Government attempted to bribe a member of the Opposition or whether the Opposition entered into a criminal conspiracy to overthrow the Government."

Who could put the case in a clearer or more forcible manner? "The foetid fog of perjury" is an expression so truthful as to merit remembering.

To Mr. Raney "the handing of "$2,000 into court by the impecunious Mr. Gamey is corporeal and incontrovertible evidence that one "party or the other has been guilty "of a great crime."

And then he adds:—

> "It may have been a mere coincidence that at the very time that certain gentlemen were acting as go-betweens in the negotiations for the conversion of Mr. Gamey, one of them was being assisted by officials of the Government and the Liberal party to acquire for $250, Government property worth $9,000. It may have been a mere coincidence that while another gentleman who figured in the case was confiding to persons in Rochester his peculiar reasons for being there, the Minister was asking a witness to forget "irrelevant" testimony. These things and many more of a like nature may have been pure coincidences, but, if so, they were unfortunate coincidences, and the question simply is how many coincidences of that kind would be required to lead an intelligent and sensitive public opinion to a conclusion?"

The most scathing remark made by Mr. Raney is in reference to those who are howling themselves hoarse over the finding of the Judges. "On," he says, "the theory, apparently that "the Government is entitled to the "confidence of the party as long as "it can keep all its members out of "the penitentiary."

"How comes it," he exclaims, "that it has been left to him, of all the Liberals of Ontario, to discover the shortcomings of the present Government?"

His own answer is, "That would be an important question if the assumption it contains were true. The fact is as I have already indicated. I have said nothing that is not known to be true to thousands of Liberals in Ontario. Did I not know this to be so I might hesitate to express the conclusions to which I am compelled by my senses and my judgment. There is nothing novel to Liberals in what I have said—the only novelty is in saying it publicly, and for that I make no apology."

Mr. Raney closes his lecture with the remark that "If to-day, fifty, nay twenty, perhaps ten, disinterested and well-known members of the Liberal party were to stand up and publicly excommunicate the men who have led the people and the province away from the faith of the fathers of Liberalism, office and spoils might be lost, but in a better sense the province would be saved."

That Mr. Raney will receive the maledictions and vituperations of the hide-bound expectant hangers on of the Government there can be no doubt. It is evident that, like Mr. Blake, he has less reverence for party than for truth, and as a consequence will be denounced as a traitor.

Sandwiches

Let us make you a few Sandwiches to take with you next time you go Fishing or Picnicing.

We make them good and the price is reasonable.

J. ARTHUR MARSH.

A Stitch in Time Saves Nine

Bicycle Repairing

Costs money, especially when the small things are neglected.

If there appears to be anything wrong with your Wheel, Lawn Mower or any of your machines or tools take it to and see what he can do.

GREENLEAF

We are renting the next store so will soon be better able than ever to cater to your wants.

TIMELY TOPICS

It will be observed that the rails are still in their accustomed place on Front street. A perusal of the proceedings of yesterday afternoon's special Council meeting will show the reason why.

• • •

It seems that the City Solicitor has given the opinion that the Council has no right to sell the rails, seeing that they became the city's property through forfeiture. It is a pity the Solicitor did not make that known before certain of the City Fathers avowed their willingness to sell the rails at a loss to the city of $6.50 per ton.

• • •

The Intelligencer cheerfully disclaims connection with any "element in the city which objects to whatever the Council desires to do." This paper has found much to commend in the actions of the Council in the past, but has yet to learn that they are infallible. Being human, like the rest of us, the Aldermen—even the Mayor, too, perhaps—are liable to make mistakes; when, in our opinion, they do so, we shall not hesitate to point them out.

• • •

Now, in regard to that resolution to secure the opinion of a Toronto lawyer in regard to the Council's right to sell the rails. It is a well-known fact that doctors differ; so do lawyers. The city has a paid legal adviser, why reject his opinion when asked for and given? If the Council—or certain members of it—is determined to obtain the opinion it wants it may possibly do so, but what then? Only the opinion of one lawyer against another, proving nothing only that lawyers differ. There would still be the danger of legal proceedings."

• • •

The Intelligencer has all along been in favor of having the rails taken up and sold to the highest bidder. Some slight preference might well be shown to the Cement Company, as a partly local institution, but the preference should not be anything like $6.50 per ton. However, if the rails cannot be sold with a clear legal right it would be much better to give up the idea.

• • •

In conversation with Mr. Walter Fanning yesterday it was learned that his Detroit correspondent, Mt. Glass, has high hopes of not only running the Belleville Street Railway, but of securing a charter for an electric road to Tweed. The last charter granted for that purpose, Mr. Fanning says, which carried with it a bonus of $3,200 a mile, was for an electric road. Under the circumstances, as the rails seemingly cannot be sold with a clear title, it might be well to leave them where they are and heartily use every means in our power to bring about C.P.R. connection by means of an electric railway to Tweed.

• • •

It is to be hoped that, when the Old Boys do come back to Belleville, nobody will feel called upon to write poetry. Some of the versification in the Toronto papers recently has been of the fierce variety.

• • •

Two British sailors were killed while firing a Fourth of July salute. Perhaps the gun kicked when it heard of all the Union Jack destroying incidents in Yankeeland in late years.

• • •

The Ontario Government is sending out tons of the copies of the Judges' report in the Gamey investigation, but not an ounce of the copies of the evidence taken. They know a trick worth two of that.

• • •

Pope Leo, the Grand Old Man of Roman Catholicism, is very near his end, and no one will grudge him the "well done" of a faithful servant. The Pope's personal influence has always been for good, and this old world is better for his coming into it.

• • •

Nice time they're having over there in Evansville, Ind. One might call that a rough sketch in black and white. The free and independent U. S. citizen rebels very strenuously when the law questions his right to lynch a negro.

SEPARATE SCHOOL PROMOTION EXAMS.

PUPILS WHO WILL MOVE UP A STEP WHEN THEY NEXT GO TO SCHOOL.

PART I. TO PART II.

Lenore Taugher, teacher.

Frank Dalton, Arthur Donahue, Irene Brown, Lizzie Stoneburg, Flora Paterson, Harold Ingram, Kathleen Donahue, Marie Boyle, Willie Sullivan, Tessie Milne, Arthur Hayes, Irene Cahill, Tom Barrett, Lyola Malyea, Jofus McCormick, James O'Neil, Hilda McCormick, Kathleen McCourt, Helen Hogan, Howard Howe, Eva Peppin, Ellen Gernon, Edward Quinlan, Hugh McAuley, Leo Goldsmith, Fred Goyer, Clarence Donahue, Frank Deacon, Willie Donahue, Annie Deveney, Fred Keegan, Harold McDonell, Agnes Taylor, Jack Smith, August Burke, Joe Kelliher, Dorothy Cummins, Gerald Manahan, Lawrence Boyle, Mina Dery, Michael Callaghan, James Lorimer, Frank Weir.

PART II. TO SECOND BOOK.

Sr. M. St. Augustine, teacher.

Max. 300	Min. 150.
Evelyn Boyle	280
Olive Clogherty	278
Annie Cox	277
Mary Macaulay	268
Irene Brown	267
Annie Meagher	266
Kathleen Meagher	256
Harold Gauthier	255
Mary McHugh	251
Daniel Nafin	249
Olive Gorman	244
Willie Holland	243
Frances Hamilton	242
Edith Martin	241
Marguerite Burgoyne	239
Maude Burke	239
Stella Manley	238
Wallie Logue	238
Gyneth Mackie	234
Daniel Doran	233
Harry Whelan	232
Fred Deacon	229
Agnes Kelliher	227
Raymond Burke	223
Adolphus Cox	219
Helena Donavon	218
Robert Blaind	217
Annie Doyle	215
George Tallon	210
Marguerite Fitzgerald	209
Kathleen Callagnan	208
Eugene Donavon	207
Stephen Maville	203
Madeline Gorman	201
Joseph Roe	194
Daniel Doyle	193
Frances Ingram	190
Edward Eustace	187
James Eccles	180
Agatha Eccles	175
Joseph Dunn	161

SECOND TO THIRD.

Sr. M. Alexander, teacher.

Max. 608.	Min. 304.
Fred Milne	568
John McAuley	555
Mary Doran	525
Thomas Cushing	482
John Meagher	475
James Doran	448
Mary McCourt	440
George Martin	431
Reta Hughes	429
Wm. Hogan	420
Helen Taugher	416
Annie Keegan	406
Thomas Holland	405
Wm. Lafferty	401
Michael Callaghan	397
Norbert Barrett	394
Nellie Thompson	392
Clayton Frechette	389
Mina Hunter	386
Harry McDonald	386
Wm. Smith	380
Loretto Shea	374
Leo Barrett	373
Richard Gernon	369
Annie Lorimer	362
Irene Baker	357
Nellie Marlowe	356
Maggie McDonagh	354
Helena McDonald	341
Wm. Donovan	335
Wm. Woodcock	333
Nellie Donoghue	320
Edna Blaind	313
Eugene Dunn	306
Helen Goyer	304
Vincent Brown	304
James Horan	304
Mary Hayes	304
John Lynch	304
Julia Lynch	304

JR. THIRD TO SR. THIRD.

Sr. Mary of Nazareth, teacher.

Max. 800.	Min. 400.
Leo Gorman	657
Wm. Hogan	579
Basil Taugher	578
Louis Howe	574
Thomas Manley	564
Robert Davison	541
John Sullivan	524
Hugh Thompson	519
Walter Malyea	510
Fred Cox	505
Arthur Legeault	458
Robert Burke	458
Charles McDonell	454
John Lafferty	406
Eugene Sidley	405
George Dalton	400

THIRD TO FOURTH.

Stella Ford	741
Sarah Malyea	733
Norah Hurst	667
Flo. Downs	622
Mabel Waddell	616
Priscilla Doran	612
Maggie Callaghan	609
Lillie Rock	562
Lottie Meagher	543
Mary Nichols	541
Annie Connolly	521
Agnes Logue	494
Stella Eustace	436
Lizzie Burgoyne	431

Piles To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles, the manufacturers have guaranteed it. See testimonials in the daily press and ask your neighbors what they think of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. 60c a box, at all dealers or EDMANSON, BATES & CO., Toronto.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

"GOOD HEALTH IS PRICELESS"

Adulterated teas its enemy.

"SALADA"

Ceylon Natural GREEN tea. Absolutely the purest, and most delicious tea in the world. It is to the Japan tea drinker what "SALADA" Black tea is to the black tea drinker. Sealed lead packets only. 25c and 40c per lb. By all grocers.

GREAT SALE.

Stirring call to a great cheap sale of men's, boys' and children's high class clothing and furnishings at prices that will force you to buy. Out goes every stitch of the remaining lines of our spring and summer stock, no matter what the loss is. We are determined to clear out everything left, and we will easily do so as our prices to a point where buying is irresistible. Look at our ad.—The Globe Clothing House. 6t

Sports and Pastimes

SPORTING NOTE AND COMMENT.

Peterboro Review: Hastings has dropped out of the Junior C.L.A. and all the Athletics have to do is to defeat that strong Belleville team on their home grounds on July 22nd, and it won't be a cinch either.

Right you are, old man. It will be anything but a "skinch."

A meeting of those interested in the skiff and punt races to be held on Wednesday afternoons during the months of July and August, was held at Hotel Quinte last evening and quite a number were in attendance. The first business transacted was appointing officials, which resulted as follows:

Judges—J. V. Jenkins, Wm. Black and A. E. Lewis.
Starter—W. Carnew.
Secretary—R. S. Bell.
Assistant Secretary—B. Black.
Time-keeper—J. A. McFee.

Two beautiful cups have been procured for the yacht and skiff races, and as there are a number of these craft here at present the indications are that the competition will be keen.

A course has been arranged which, from the end of Victoria Park, is easily discernable. The start will be from the harbor to a buoy off Fairman's island, thence westerly to a buoy near the bay bridge, thence to the starting point. This course will be sailed over two or three times.

For the punt races cash prizes will be given, namely, $2 to first, $1.50 to second and $1 to third. A challenge flag at present the property of "The King of the Waters," will be competed for.

The first of the series of races will take place to-morrow afternoon, entries for which will be received up to 10 o'clock to-night at Hotel Quinte.

TELEPHONE JUDGMENT.

The injunction case of the town of Fort William against the Bell Telephone Co'y was held recently before Mr. Justice Teetzel at Port Arthur. This case was entered last February by the town. The court ordered that the case be dismissed; the plaintiffs shall not until judgment has been pronounced by the final appellate court, to which the action of the corporation of the city of Toronto against the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, Limited, now pending, may be carried; or such action shall otherwise be disposed of, bring action or take any proceedings to interfere with the erection of poles or the stringing of wires by the defendants in the said town, or the erection or use of any other appliances permitted by their charter and necessary or convenient for carrying on the business of defendants in the said town. The court ordered that the plaintiffs pay the defendants one dollar damages for loss sustained by reason of the injunction orders granted; and also pay to the defendants their costs of this action, including the costs of February 17th, 1903, and February 19th, 1903, and of the motion and order permitting the defendants to deliver their statement of defence, June 19th, 1903, as between solicitor and client forthwith after taxation. advt

THE WEATHER.

To-day's Probs—

To-day and Wednesday, light to moderate variable winds, fine and warm.

To-day's Temperature

As Registered by The Intelligencer's Guaranteed Thermometer:

8 a.m.	75
12 m.	86
2 p.m.	89
3 p.m.	90

To benefit from any other outing the Baths and Waters of the MAGI Caledonia Springs must be first taken. Season now open.

Encourage Your Boy.

Offer him a reward for proficiency at school.

If he had his say of what he should get he'd be pretty sure to take a watch.

Give him a watch.

There isn't a more serviceable article, nor one that would give a boy more pleasure.

We sell guaranteed movements, bearing our name, in different cases, from $6,00 up.

Angus McFee.
Jeweler & Optician
310 Front St.

25 per cent. Off

CORSETS

FOR THREE DAYS, so every lady can judge for herself, how beautifully our Corsets fit.

Sale of hats still continues.

MISS IRWIN
Millinery and Corset Specialist

W. H. JESSOP
"VOCAL TEACHER"
STUDIO "KARN HALL," Montreal

After Monday, 6th JULY, will be in Belleville until 1st SEPTEMBER.

Studio in Belleville "FORRESTERS' HALL," over Mr. S. Burrows Office.

VOICES TRIED FREE.

Further information at Mr. W. B. Riggs' Music Store.

DON'T

Go camping out, without a bottle of MOSQUITO SCAT it's guaranteed to keep Flies, Mosquitoes, etc., away. A 15c bottle will ensure plenty of comfort and rest.

WATERS'

Coin Pay Envelopes at The Intelligencer Job Office. Cheapest and best in the city.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

MEDICAL.

JOHN J. FARLEY, M.D., C.M., M.R., C.S., England.

Office and Residence — Corner of Bridge and George streets — three streets East of Post Office.

DR. J. F. MATHER

Has removed his office to Pinnacle St., three doors north of Hotel Quinte. my29-6mw

LEGAL.

WILLS & WRIGHT,

Barristers, Solicitors, Notary Public, &c., Belleville.
Office—2 Campbell Street.

MALCOLM WRIGHT.
J. FRANKLIN WILLS.

Money to Loan at Lowest Rates.

W. C. MIKEL, B. C. L.,

Barrister, &c.

Solicitor for the City of Belleville.

Office—Metropolitan Block, Corner Front and Campbell Streets.

PORTER & CARNEW,

Barristers, Solicitors, Notaries Public, etc.

Offices — Robertson Block, East Front St., Belleville, Ont.
'Phone 87.
E. G. PORTER. WM. CARNEW.

WILLIAM N. PONTON,

Barrister-at-law, Solicitor, Notary Public, Conveyancer. Office over Express and Telegraph Office, Bridge Street, Belleville.

Money to Loan — Private Funds; Solicitor Sun and Hastings Savings and Loan Company of Ontario.

FRANCIS S. WALLBRIDGE,

Successor to Hon. Lewis Wallbridge, Q.C.

Barrister, Solicitor, Conveyancer, Etc. Office, McAnnany Building, corner Front and Bridge Sts., Belleville, Ont. Private and Company money to loan at 6 per cent., on easy terms upon good land security. Charges moderate.

INSURANCE.

Fire Insurance.

Guardian . .	Est'd 1821
The North America, .	Est'd 1792
Quebec, . . .	Est'd 1818

City, Town and Village Property insure at lowest rates.

R. W. ADAMS. Agent.

Office opposite Post Office.

PERSONS desiring Life Assurance cannot do better than consult

W. J. THOMSON,

who is the Agent for the following well-known and old established Assurance Companies:

ROYAL. ALLIANCE.
OCEAN ACCIDENT STANDARD LIF
Office at Rathbun Co., Bridge St. oc5-d&w

FIRE, LIFE & ACCIDENT INSURANCE

At Lowest Rates The Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Perth Mutual on farm and city property. Also money to loan at 4½ per cent. upwards.

JAMES A. CHISHOLM,
Office Ashley Block, · Front st., Belleville.

THOS. STEWART,

Insurance and Commission Agent.

Agent for the Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Scottish Union National Ins. Co.
BRIDGE ST.

Money Saved is Money Earned

can earn you money by saving it for you in your Fire Insurance.

The Anglo-American Fire Ins. Co
The Merchants Fire Ins. Co.
The Equity Fire Ins. Co.

Are all strong Canadian stock companies and insure Farm and City Property at lower rate than other stock companies Call and see me before placing your fire insurance.

Office—Bridge St., same entrance Quinte Laundry, Belleville.
H. FREEMAN KET CHESON

Fire, Life & Plate Glass Insurance.

Liverpool & London & Globe of England.
Waterloo Mutual, of Waterloo, Ont,
Lloyd's Plate Glass,
Home Life Association, Toronto,
North British & Mercantile,

Farm and City Property insured in First-class Reliable Companies and at lowest current rates. Losses promptly settled. Land valuation, and transact general Real Estate business and sale or purchase and renting of property. Appraiser for the Hastings Loan & Investment Society. Money to Loan.

W. P. HUDSON, Office above Rathbun's office, cor. Bridge and Pinnacle Sts., opposite Postoffice and Hotel Quinte, Belleville,
'Phone 169.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A. G. NORTHROP,

Issuer of Marriage Licenses, Shire Hall, Belleville, Ont.

CHAUNCEY ASHLEY,

Issuer of Marriage Licenses.

Private Office, Bridge St., Belleville, opposite the Post Office.
Residence, first house east of W. W. Chown's Mfg. Co., Station St.
Appointments made.

REMOVAL.

Dr. Clarke has removed to the offices formerly occupied by the late Dr. Ward over Burrows', and opposite Scantlebury's Book Store. a27dtf

FAST MAIL SERVICE
Bay of Quinte Route
TO
ROCHESTER N. Y.
Strs. "North King" and "Caspian"
Taking Effect 27th June.

GOING DAILY (EXCEPT MONDAY)
Lv. Belleville .... 11.38 p. m.
Ar. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 6.43 a. m
RETURNING DAILY (Except Sunday)
Lv. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 8 30 p. m.
Ar. Belleville .... 3.25 a. m.

Baggage checked to all points. Connection with all railways.

$1.00 THOUSAND ISLANDS $1.00
AND RETURN.

Commencing 28th June. Steamer leaves Belleville at 3 25 a.m. daily except Monday for 1000 Islands, calling at Bay of Quinte ports, Kingston, Alexandria Bay and Gananoque Passing through American and Canadian channels.

Right reserved to change time with or without notice.

Full information from
THE RATHBUN CO., U. E. THOMPSON, } Agents.
E. E. HORSEY, G. P. & F. Agent, Kingston.

Str. "Alexandria"
Montreal, Rochester & Quebec Transit Co'y.
Popular Quebec Excursions
NOW ON.

Belleville to Quebec and return.. $18 00
Belleville to Montreal and return $12.00
(including meals and berth)

Steamer runs all rapids.

For Rochester, Olcott Beach, Niagara Falls and Buffalo every Saturday at 11 a.m.

Particulars from
A. W. HEPBURN, General Manager, Picton, Ont.
THE RATHBUN CO. Agents. Belleville.

The Deseronto Navigation Co
TIME TABLE
Taking effect April 13, 1903,
Belleville, Trenton, Picton & Napanee
Str. "ELLA ROSS"

Leaves Belleville for Trenton at 10 a. m., daily, Sundays Excepted, returning leaves Trenton at 1 p. m., leaving Belleville at 3 p.m. for Deseronto, Napanee and Picton.

Quick and Superior Service to NEW YORK CITY

Steamers RESOLUTE and RELIANCE will leave Deseronto for Oswego after arrival of Str. Ella Ross connecting at Oswego with the New York, Ontario Western Ry.

Fare to New York, Single, $2.40
Return, $13.25

For further particulars apply to THE RATHBUN CO., Local Agents

I. F CHAPMAN, Asst. Gen. Fr. Pass. Agt., Deseronto
A. ARTER General Manager Deseronto.

Str. "Niagara"

The popular excursion boat "Niagara," which has been very much improved since last season, will be open for charter on or after the 13th of July next. The "Niagara" is now lighted throughout by electricity, and will also have a search light, making her at once the safest, fastest and most comfortable excursion boat on the bay.

THOMAS STEWART, Manager,
45 Bridge St., Belleville.

Goods We Have
at Right Prices

—Hammocks.
—Fishing Tackle.
—Tennis Goods.
—Golf Goods.
—Lacrosse Goods.
—Base Ball Goods.
—Screen Doors and Windows.
—Fruit Jars.
—Fruit Jar Rubbers.
—Wall Paper.
—Crystal Glass Vases.
—Glass Ware.
—Dinner Sets.
—Toilet Sets.
—Ladies' Hose.
—Ladies' Vests.
Everything in smallwares.

AT THE BEE HIVE
Chas. N. Sulman

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

THE INTELLIGENCER is printed and published for The Intelligencer Printing and Publishing House (Limited) by CHARLES JAMES BOWELL, of the City of Belleville, in the County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, at their Office, No. 403 Front Street, Belleville, Ont.

Choose The Best

If it is only the framing of a picture you may as well have the best workmanship as well as the largest selection of mouldings—when it don't cost you any more, probably less.

If we do not give you perfect workmanship—you may demand of us non-payment—framing superior to ours is impossible—we would not do all of the framing for Albert College Art Students if our work were not fitting, and proper.

Another lot of new mouldings just arrived, it would surprise you to see the repeated shipments of mouldings we receive.

You know what to expect of us in WALL PAPERS, and now with our special prices it is amazing what you can get for a small amount of money.

A beautiful new line of American Wall Papers arriving almost all the time.

Better not forget us for PAINTING. Whether your house is to paint outside or inside, whether a fence or a barn, we will paint it at reasonable prices but our workmen are not of the Barn Painting Kind. None but expert workmen find employment with us, men who will please you in both quality and quantity and we have no frills on our prices.

We purpose doing our paper hanging and decorating and painting at actual cost in connection with our Wall Paper department.

If You Live in the Country.

In Stirling, Tweed, Madoc, Trenton, Napanee, Deseronto or within a radius of 50 miles—we will send you workmen and guarantee you every satisfaction.

Our Paints

If you want prepared paints we have them in all colors.

Also barn paint at $1.00 per gallon, but better than that we will mix you the best lead and oil paint, our own mixing and our own materials at the actual cost of the less valuable ready-mixed material.

Any quantity you want any color or shade, in a moments notice and at remarkably low prices — our customers are many in the paint line.

C. B. Scantlebury
Belleville's Decorator.
Wall Paper Wholesale and Retail.

For the Revelsworth Millions,

—or—

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fail by the Man She Loves.

softly to herself. "A year, eh—a year?"

"Yes."

"And his brother?"

"His brother? Oh—his brother"—and a sudden flood of color overspread Francesca's cheeks—"his brother wants to marry me immediately."

"Ha, ha, ha!" laughed Mrs. Harold Revelsworth.

"Don't laugh in that way!" cried Francesca sharply, as she began restlessly to pace up and down the room. "Even if he is in love with me, there is nothing funny in that!"

"No, no, my dear one!" said her mother soothingly. "Of course his love can be nothing to you."

"Did I say that?"

"No. But you must say it! Surely, my darling, you would not make the mistake of caring for this thickheaded hard-mannered Englishman? You meant that he and his brother should fall in love with you, and you have succeeded."

"And yet," cried Francesca, with a laugh that was half a sob, stretching her arms and clasping her hands behind her head—"and yet I am not satisfied!"

At this point a hurried tapping outside the door startled both women.

"Francesca—Francesca," cried Betty Mannington outside the door, "before you dress for dinner, will you please come down at once to Mrs. Revelsworth's room? She has something very important to say to you."

CHAPTER XIX.

Margaret Revelsworth was seated in her carved oak arm-chair by the bay-window, an open letter in her lap.

Her face was very pale, and her heavy eyebrows were contracted in an ominous frown. She was waiting for Francesca—waiting to confront her with certain accusations which had been made against her in this letter from her old friend in Rome—accusations which, if true, more than justified the strange prejudice she had from the first entertained against Harold Revelsworth's orphan daughter.

The old lady looked a most imposing figure as she sat, with her lips tightly compressed, erect and uncompromising in her attitude, awaiting her niece's coming. Yet in her secret heart a strange dread lay. Although she hated to own it even to herself, she felt afraid. Her heart's action was weak, as she knew, and she had not yet recovered from the shock and strain of the previous night's experiences—of Betty's screams and fainting-fit, and her graphic description of the coming of the "ghost." Mrs. Revelsworth's will was strong and her brain clear, yet she had with her own eyes beheld that shadowy figure in fadded yellow brocade, and the memory of it hourly haunted her. Betty had declared that to see Mistress Penfold meant death. Were, then, she and Betty both doomed to die shortly?

She tried to shake off the gloomy and superstitious forebodings which depressed her spirits, but the task seemed beyond her powers. Seldom had she been left so much alone as on this particular day. Betty, her constant companion for five years, seemed too ill and too shaken to do more than lie in unwonted idleness on the sofa, and her nephews and niece were all absent from the house until evening. By the time that letter from her correspondent in Rome arrived, Mrs. Revelsworth was really ill, suffering from a serious breakdown of the nerves, which the startling news contained in it tended greatly to aggravate.

Seated there, awaiting Francesca's coming, in the full afternoon sunlight by the bay-window at which she had sat daily for twenty uneventful years, Margaret Revelsworth's keen eyes sought out one by one the familiar objects by which she was surrounded with a sudden sense of strangeness. The great glass chandelier with its hangings lusterless, the woodwork, cushions and fender-stool, the fire-screen, elaborately mounted and worked with bright-plumaged birds in silk now faded, the little quarrelling love-birds in their gilded cage, the saturnine parrot which detested every one but Betty, the revolving book-case, the old-fashioned round green fan which shaded her eyes from the sunlight—all these animated and inanimate objects save the love-birds had come with Mrs. Margaret from her old home in Manchester, and been constantly in her sight for half a century growing old and faded, as she herself had done.

There seemed no reason why they should not all last out together some years more. Mrs. Margaret's father had died from an accident at ninety-three; yet she knew, knew suddenly, as she started in a strained pathetic way about the room, that, so far as she personally was concerned, the sands of life were running lo .

At the thought her will revolted. She sprang from her chair and began to pace the room with rapid unsteady steps.

"It is since that girl came!" she whispered, putting her hand up to her throat, which seemed so constricted that her breath came with difficulty. "She brought a blight into the house with her! I remember feeling it that first night, when she lay back in her chair and looked at me silly under her eyelids. It makes me believe those Italian stories of the evil eye. Dudley is restless and unhappy—in love with her; his brother is fretting himself to skin and bone about her; Betty has been frightened half out of her wits; and I—well, I am not the same woman I was before she came. And I don't feel I ever shall be the same woman again!"

She was standing in the middle of the room as she murmured the words half aloud. At that moment the door opened slowly, and Francesca, pale as death but perfectly composed, rustled softly in, and faced her aunt with a smile which had something a little strained about it.

It was the first time the two had met that day, and Francesca offered her aunt her hand. But the old lady ignored it, and without a word resumed her seat, pointing imperiously to another chair facing her at a little distance.

"This is not a friendly meeting," she began in a harsh voice, as Francesca arranged her silk skirts with her usual slow grace of movement and waited for her aunt to speak. "I have heard certain things about you which, if they are true, will necessitate your leaving my house at once."

"What things?"

"If this letter is true, you have deceived me and lied to me with the utmost effrontery."

"In what respect?"

"First, then"—Mrs. Revelsworth rose in her excitement, gripping the arms of her chair—"that woman up-stairs is not your mother!"

Every trace of color died out of Francesca's face; but her lips did not quiver, and her tones were steady as she spoke.

"Indeed! Who is she, then?"

"That is for you to say. My correspondent states positively that your mother, the Countess Conti or Mrs. Harold Revelsworth, died at Rome and was buried there fully twenty years ago. He has even seen her tomb!"

Francesca drew a deep breath.

"Well," she said quietly—"what then?"

"What then! Surely that alone would be bad enough, after the hypocritical and lying letter you wrote about your paralyzed mother! Who is this woman you have induced me to take into my house under false pretences?"

"She is what I said," answered the girl boldly—"a poor paralyzed woman, who has been a mother to me all my life since my own mother was taken from me—a woman I have called 'Mother' for twenty years—a woman who nursed me through my childish illnesses, who saved my life by her devotion, and who would willingly lay down her life for me. It is quite true that the shock of my father's death brought on an attack of paralysis, and that since then I have supported her. She is my nurse, my foster-mother, the first person in the world who ever kissed and caressed me. She has hardly been parted from me all my life; and, if it is a crime that I would not desert her and let her starve, and that I, her foster-daughter, introduced her into this house as the mother I have always considered her, then I have committed that crime. I own it!"

Francesca had risen too, and stood facing her aunt proudly, with flushed cheeks and sparkling eyes. There was something a little theatrical in her pose and in the declamatory ring of her voice. But it was none the less highly effective, and in the first portion of their encounter Mrs. Margaret felt herself worsted.

"All that sounds very fine and showy and foreign," she observed sarcastically; "but please remember you are not an Italian play-actress, but an English gentlewoman, and that there are no young men present to admire your fine words and fine attitudes. You have deceived me grossly by palming off a domestic servant upon me as my brother-in-law's widow and your father's wife. And I do not intend to forgive you."

"I do not ask your forgiveness," said Francesca, in very quiet tones. "I consider myself justified."

"Were you justified," Mrs. Revelsworth then asked harshly, "when at the age of sixteen you disgraced your dead father's name by eloping from your home with a disreputable Italian singing fellow in some strolling opera company? The acting tricks you learned when you went about the country with him as a performing vagrant have certainly stood you in good stead since you return to respectable society."

"I never performed," murmured Francesca faintly. "And I was his wife."

"His wife! And yet a few years I find you were driving openly about Rome as the mistress of a worthless young Englishman—a gambler and a rake!"

"That is false!" cried Francesca, flushing crimson. "My first husband was dead and I had married again. What right have you to call me up before you and drag out the dead past all the cruel sorrows and humiliations I have endured? Whose fault was it but yours that on my father's death I had no home to go to and barely enough money to keep body and soul together? Whose fault but yours was it that my only friend, my only counselor in the whole world, has been a poor, penniless, and ignorant old nurse who would have died to serve me? I had no home, no relatives, no money; I was beautiful, and I fell in love with and married first one and then another heartless villian. You, with your sheltered life, your money, and your position, even if you can neither understand nor sympathise—you ought to pity a girl in such a position. But I will not submit to any more cross-examining. You have never done anything for me, not even your bare duty towards your brother-in-law's orphan child; you have lived in ease and comfort while I was starving. By what right do you sit in judgement upon me? You have shown me no affection, you have disliked and insulted me ever since I entered your house, and you have tried to set other people against me too. You can drive me and my foster-mother out into the world to sink or swim, you can leave the portion of money which should be mine elsewhere; but I utterly deny your right to cross-question me upon my past life, and I refuse to speak another word to you upon the subject!"

Mrs. Revelsworth had resumed her seat. She was bending forward in her chair, clutching the arms with her long thin hands. Her eyes were steadfastly fixed upon Francesca's face, and she seemed to be striving to read whether truth or falsehood were written there. After her niece had finished speaking, she remained still silent for a few moments, watching her intently.

"I may be doing you an injustice," she said at last reflectively, "but I don't think so. You are a very clever young woman, and I dare say you have been badly treated; but, unless your face belies you or my instinct deceives me, as it has never done yet, you are downright wicked! In any case this house isn't large enough for both you and me. No—I am not going to turn you and that old woman into the street at a moment's notice; you shall never be able to say that! I shall write to my lawyer to-night, and to-morrow he will come and arrange with you a settlement, by which you will receive enough to keep you in comfort and respectability, but not in luxury. This money will be paid to you at once, as soon as you leave this roof, on the one condition that you do leave it, and that you do not trouble any of the inmates of this house again on pain of forfeiting your allowance. The division of the Revelsworth property next year will not concern you; you will receive no more and no less than the annuity I shall settle upon you when I alter my will. You say you refuse to answer my question—doubtless you have your reasons for keeping silent on the subject of your past career—but one thing you must tell me. Since, by you own admission, you have twice been married, you have certainly no longer any right to the name of Revelsworth. What is your real name?"

Francesca hesitated a moment.

"Francesca Devereux," she said hurriedly at last.

"I suppose it is useless to expect the truth from you, but it might be as well if I knew whether you are a wife or a widow?"

"I am a widow."

"For the second time?"—"For the second time."

"Whether that is true or false of course I have no means of knowing. But, as you say, that does not concern me. Please to make your arrangements to leave this house to-morrow with the person up-stairs. You shall be provided with sufficient money for expenses before you go, and, if you will communicate your address to Mr. Simpson, he will see that your allowance is paid to you quarterly, on the conditions that I have named. I do not think that it will be necessary for us to meet again—at least to-night. Can you arrange to dine in your own rooms."

Francesca stood perfectly still in front of her aunt, looking down at her. The girl's face was very pale and rigidly set, and an ominous light shone in her eyes.

"Then I am dismissed, aunt Margaret?" she said in a low voice, coming a step nearer towards Mrs. Revelsworth

"Yes."

"And I am to be paid a miserable pittance on condition that I never communicate with any of my father's relatives again?"

"Yes."

"And this is because I would not desert my old nurse, and because I have been twice unhappily married?"

"Because you have shamefully deceived and lied to me, and because I do not trust you."

"Why not say outright," Francesca asked, still with the same unnatural calmness of manner, "because you hate me—because you have hated me from the first moment that you saw me, and when you saw me, and when you realized that I had a spirit as well as you, and that I would

(To be continued.)

None Left To Bother You After Using Wilson's Fly Pads
Sold Everywhere. 10 cents

A WONDERFUL MEDICINE.
BEECHAM'S PILLS

For Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain in the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Blotches on the Skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c. THE FIRST DOSE WILL GIVE RELIEF IN TWENTY MINUTES. This is no fiction. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one Box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be WITHOUT A RIVAL.

BEECHAM'S PILLS taken as directed, will quickly restore Females to complete health. They promptly remove any obstruction or irregularity of the system. For a

Weak Stomach, Impaired Digestion, Disordered Liver,

they act like magic—a few doses will work wonders upon the Vital Organs; Strengthening the muscular System, restoring the long-lost Complexion, bringing back the keen edge of appetite, and arousing with the Rosebud of Health the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are "facts" admitted by thousands, in all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous and Debilitated is that BEECHAM'S PILLS have the Largest Sale of any Patent Medicines in the World.

Beecham's Pills have been before the public for half a century, and are the most popular family medicine. No testimonials are published, as Beecham's Pills

RECOMMEND THEMSELVES.

Prepared only by Thomas Beecham, St. Helens, England.
Sold everywhere in Canada and U. S. America. In boxes, 25 cents.

AT DEATH'S DOOR.—DYSPEPS CONQUERED.—A GREAT MEDIC TRIUMPH.—Gentlemen,—My medi adviser and others told me I co not possibly live when I commence to use Northrop & Lyman's Veg able Discovery for Dyspepsia. case was one of the worst of its kin For three years I could not eat me and my weight decreased from 219 119 lbs. All the food I took for th teen months previous to taking t Vegetable Discovery consisted milk. I am now entirely cured a have regained my usual weight, eat anything with a keen relish a feel like a new man. I have sol over thirty dozen Vegetable Discove since it cured me, as I am well-know and people in this section know h low I was, and thought I could n possibly be cured. They are eage to try this grand medicine. It c tainly saved my life as I never e pected to recover when first I co menced using it. I am not exagg ating anything, but feel glad to b able to contribute this testimonia and trust it may be the means of co vincing others of its merit as a cer tain cure for Dyspepsia.

Signed, JEAN VALCOURT
Wotton, P.Q. General Merchan

Much talk, many lies.

FOR INFLAMMATION OF THE EYES.—Among the many good quali ties which Parmelee's Vegetable Pills possess, besides regulating the diges tive organs, is their efficacy in redu ing inflammation of the eyes It has called forth many letters of recommendation from those who wer afflicted with this complaint and found a cure in the pills. They a fect the nerve centres and the blood in a surprisingly active way, and the result is almost immediately seen.

Many a man's self-conceit is due t his ignorance.

If you have a cough or cold do not neglect it; many without a trace of that hereditary disease have drifted into a consumptive's grave by neglecting what was only a slight cold. Had they used Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup before it was too late, their lives would have been saved. Mr. A. W. Levy, Mitchell, writes; "I think Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup the best preparation on the market for coughs and severe colds. About six years ago I caught a severe cold which settled on my lungs, and for three months I had a cough. I had a physician attending me, but gradually grew worse until I was on the verge of Consumption, and had given up hopes of being cured, when I was induced to try Bickle's Syrup. Before I had taken one bottle I found myself greatly relieved, and by the time I had finished the second bottle I was completely cured. I always recommend it for severe colds and consumption."

When one gets hopping mad his reason goes on a crutch.

No one knows better than those who have used Carter's Little Liver Pills what relief they have given when taken for dyspepsia, dizziness, pain in the side, constipation, and disordered stomach.

The average watch represents but 12 hours of human labor.

Do not despair of curing your sick headache when you can so easily obtain Carter's Little Liver Pills. They will effect a prompt and permanent cure. Their action is mild and na-

Coral is a talisman against thunder and evils by flood and field.

THEY DROVE PIMPLES AWAY.—A face covered with pimples is unsightly. It tells of internal irregularities which should long since have been corrected. The liver and the kidneys are not performing their functions in the healthy way they should, and these pimples are to let you know that the blood protests. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will drive them all away, and will leave the skin clear and clean. Try them, and there will be another witness to their excellence.

The wildcat's teeth are close to its purr.

HAD LA GRIPPE.—Mr. A. Nickerson, farmer, Dutton, writes; "Last winter I had La Grippe and it left me with a severe pain in the small of my back and hip that used to catch me whenever I tried to climb a fence. This lasted for about two months, when I bought a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil and used it both internally and externally, morning and evening, for three days, at the expiration of which time I was completely cured."

A long portage makes a heavy canoe.

Their gentle action and good effect on the system really make them a perfect little pill. They please those who use them. Carter's Little Liver Pills may well be termed 'Perfection.'

It takes money to voice the opinion of a lawyer.

Very many persons die annually from cholera and kindred summer complaints, who might have been saved if proper remedies had been used. If attacked do not delay in getting a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, the medicine that never fails to effect a cure. Those who have used it say it acts promptly, and thoroughly, subdues the pain and disease.

Life has no blessing like a prudent friend.

Use the safe, pleasant, and effectual worm killer, Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator; nothing equals it. Procure a bottle and take it home.

The best way to get even is to forget.

Have you tried Holloway's Corn Cure? It has no equal for removing these troublesome excrescences, as many have testified who have tried

Bank of Montreal
ESTABLISHED 1817
Capital and Rest, All Paid Up.
$23,000,000
(Twenty-three Millions)
Savings Bank Department
Interest on sums of $4.00 and upwards allowed at current rates.
A G. PARKER,
Manager Belleville Bran

SPECIAL SALE

. . . For . . .

Just a Few Days

—OF—

MEN'S LIGHT-WEIGHT CLOTHING

On account of the cool weather during June, our Light-Weight Clothing has been a little slow in moving. We are determined not to carry over any of this season's goods, and

Here is Our Offer

On all unlined goods for this week only, we will give a discount of 20 per cent. off our already low prices.

Come and Get Good Choice.

OAK HALL

Sole Agents for Sanfords Celebrated Clothing.

STOP Young —MAN

While we direct your attention to our excellent lines of

CANVAS FOOTWEAR

Canvas Shoes make cool, comfortable and stylish summer footwear—and cost much less than leather—you will find a superiority in style and neatness in these goods. We solicit your inspection of these up-to-date goods:

White Canvas Laced style, newest shape, at	$1.50
White Canvas Shoes, newest shape, at	$1.25
White Canvas Laced style, Goodyear welt, at	$2.50
Grey Canvas, Laced style, 2 lines at	$1.50

MEN'S SPECIAL LOW PRICED GREY CANVAS with leather soles—useful for camping shoes—sizes 6 to 10, at 75c.

In Men's and Boys' Tennis, Running and Outing Shoes we have a fine showing.—SEE WINDOW DISPLAY.

Trunk and Bag Department on 2nd floor.

The J. J. Haines

SHOE HOUSES at Belleville, Napanee and Trenton

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE

FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

Remanded For Sentence.

Kingston, July 7.—Ira Smith, a young man about 20 years of age, residing near the cotton mill, pleaded guilty in the Police Court to attempting to criminally assault a 14-year-old girl named Mary McIntyre. He was remanded for sentence.

A Famous Emerald.

The emerald is mentioned by St. John in his Apocalypse. An emerald of inestimable value ornamented the bezel of the ring of Polycrates, king of Samos. That monarch, having been all his life favored by fortune, determined to put his luck to a severe test. He threw the ring into the sea. The next day he went fishing.

The record of that day's sport still remains unbroken. His majesty caught a fine fish, and in the inside of the fish he found his ring. That happened in the year 230 of the foundation of Rome, and the ring, considered as a talisman, was placed among the royal treasures of the Temple of Concord.

At the Reception.

"I think Daisy is going to announce her engagement to Dick tonight."

"Did she tell you she was?"

"No. But see how uncomfortable Dick looks."

An Optimist.

"He's an optimist."

"Indeed?"

"Yes. He thinks he gets handsomer as he grows older."

Not

Even Crazy

People

would scour their faces with brickbats, but thousands of persons do things infinitely more foolish.

The skin of the face, though delicate, is rhinoceros hide compared with the mucous membrane of the stomach and bowels.

Yet these sensitive organs are constantly scoured with drastic medicines, to their incalculable injury.

The Cure for Constipation is not a violent cathartic, but a mild and tonic laxative—which is another way of saying

IRON-OX

TABLETS

Daily Intelligencer.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Some esteemed contemporaries have been writing the obituary of The Moon, Toronto's funny paper, while The Moon still shines and has no intention of going into eclipse. It must make the man in The Moon laugh.

• • •

An old fisherman in this city bemoans the fact that nowadays there are so many nets in the bay that black bass will soon be as rare as four-leaved shamrocks in Ireland. Cannot the people along the bay front, he says, petition the Government to have this fish murder stopped? To be sure they can, if they will, and the Government might take some action, but so far the difficulty has been to get people to take an interest in the matter, though it is important enough, goodness knows.

•

Doesn't this kind of weather make you think of your summer vacation?

• • •

Report says that Belleville's new school has prospects of doing excellently well. That's good news.

• • •

If Ontario people could import some kind of an army worm which would eat all the burdocks it would be a great boon.

• • •

The Wednesday half-holidays begin to-morrow, and, after they are over, if you have any money left it will be time to think about getting in your winter's coal.

• • •

A CAT'S CARE OF A SQUIRREL.

(Madoc Review.)

A queer case of feline affection was witnessed at Mr. Charles Tumelty's last week. A little squirrel, whose mother had been killed, strayed into a box where an old cat had her brood of kittens. Instead of, as is usually the case, being instantly killed by the old cat the strange little visitor was affectionally adopted into the kitten family, and was fed and protected by the cat for a week until it strayed away and was lost.

Paralysis and Locomotor Ataxia.

THE CERTAIN RESULT OF NEGLECTED NERVOUS TROUBLES—PREVENTION AND CURE IN DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

Sleeplessness, indigestion, headache and neuralgic pains, twitching of the nerves, weak or irregular heart action, inability to concentrate the mind, discouragement and despondency are among the symptoms which warn you of approaching prostration and paralysis. By forming new, rich blood and creating new nerve force Dr. Chase's Nerve Food prevents and cures the terrible nervous diseases which lead to so much suffering and helplessness. Being composed of nature's most powerful nerve restoratives, it is certain to do you good. Fifty cents a box at all dealers. 2

America's Largest Snake.

The largest American serpent is the anaconda, which may attain a length of thirty feet. It inhabits tropical America and is a handsome animal, with dark round spots scattered over its whole body on a groundwork of rich brown. It is very fond of water and haunts the banks of rivers, lakes and streams, there lying in wait for any deer or peccary which may come to the margin of the water to drink.

Flowers and Scents.

Some flowers appear to change their scents at different times. The common jasmine flowers when first opened have a delicate, fresh perfume which, after a time, becomes grosser and attracts bluebottle flies. Flowers of the orchid Odontoglossum hebraicum have a cinnamon fragrance and a hawthorn scent at different periods of their bloom.

Two Evils.

"I can't imagine a worse gilly than the man who's forever indulging in small talk."

"Oh, I don't know! He's no worse than the fellow who is forever talking big."

For a Switch Off.

"I wish you'd send ma to one of those electricians' schools, pop."

"Why, what do you mean, my son?"

"She's altogether too careless with the switch, pop."

Fully Explained.

"Yes, she has a case of 'nerves.'"

"What's that?"

"Well, to be frank, it's the name we use when a wealthy patient is just plain cranky."

People who grumble in cloudy weather usually wear veils when the sun shines.

Dressing the Wirksworth Wells

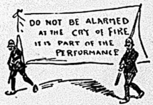
With fitting mirth and jollity Wirksworth, in Derbyshire, celebrated the centenary of the annual custom of dressing the wells or "taps." All the previous night long in the streets of Wirksworth the people worked hard with mosses and flowers and grasses, dressing the wells, in annual pursuance of a custom which is really thousands of years old. It is chronicled by Seneca, and was carried out in Pagan ritual by the Greeks and the Romans. When yesterday morning broke there were decorated shrines inside the old Derbyshire town, and flower-built structures hard by the gaunt quarries where millions of tons of hard stone have been hewn out of the sides of the great round hills. Little boys and girls with strong Midland accents sprang out from the small shrines and rattled mugs and asked the passer-by for a copper for the well-dressers, and at the large shrines, architectural structures of noble dimensions and praiseworthy design and coloring, men and women kept watch and ward, and set white china bowls on snow-white table cloths for the reception of coins thrown down in admiration of the work. As a matter of fact, there were no wells. The decorators piously erected monuments for the occasion in places where the wells used to be before the prosaic days of waterworks. A great slab based on mineral water boxes, approached by an improvised lawn, and decked out with a really charming picture of Chatsworth, all done in flowers and berries to make the lines and different colors (these stuck on with deftly-handled clay), won the first prize of seven sovereigns. The red berries were used beneath the picture to limn the words, "Fountains and gushing streams murmur, 'God is good.'" A stream of water forced through a gas-burner made an effective and feathery fountain in front. Most of the shrines about the town (and there were several dozens of them) bore scriptural texts. The first prize was won by Mr. Luther Gould, a mason's laborer; the second (£6) by Mr. Isaac Gratton, general dealer; the third (£5) by Mr. William Leeson, a farmer, and the fourth (£4) by Mr. William Oakley, a bricklayer's laborer.

Unionist Fault-finders.

The Parliamentary reporter of The Christian World says, in its issue of May 28th:—There is scarcely a sitting at which some of the most crushing criticisms of the Government do not come from their own side. In fact, the lethargy of leading Liberals is sometimes excused on the ground that it allows a greater opportunity for the Unionist fault-finders. The opportunity was improved on Monday night, when Sir George Bartley sneered and Sir John Gorst scoffed, and when even faithful Mr. Kimber, and equally faithful Mr. Cripps, hotly denounced the constitution of the education authority designed for London. Passion flared up when Mr. Middlemore, one of Mr. Chamberlain's colleagues in the representation of Birmingham, joined in the denunciation. Mr. Walter Long and the Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Education, who were in charge of the bill, had been impatient and disdainful under criticism, Sir William Anson's attitude being that of an Oxford don among troublesome undergraduates. "Rubbish!" exclaimed one Minister to the other, in an undertone. The word reaching Mr. Middlemore, he expressed his enraged feelings with almost savage severity. It was generally supposed that the offender was Mr. Long, who carries on a running commentary, but subsequent reference proved that the contemptuous word had fallen from Sir William Anson. "He speaks," said Mr. Middlemore, "as if he were one of the deities—as if he were omniscient. All the time, sir, he is only an ignorant child of time, for whom it is enough to follow his own nose." A roar of laughter from the Liberals greeted these words. They were uttered, as Mr. Middlemore afterwards remarked, in "a moment of irritation," but they seemed to have been lying in his mind. They revealed in a flash how strained are the feelings of certain Unionists.

A Way to Prevent Panics.

"With the arrival of Whitsuntide the Fire Exhibition at Earl's Court has settled into its stride, and all the side-shows are running strongly. None is going better than the fire display in the Empress Theatre, which has improved almost out of knowledge in compression and effect. Its principal features have already been described in The Daily Graphic. The curtain lifts on a view of two streets running to an apex in the middle of the stage. At the corner is a big stone house, with closed shutters and drawn blinds, and in the distance the lighted clock of some municipal buildings announces the hour as close on midnight. This hypothesis receives support from other appearances of the street. A 'palace of varieties' at another corner pours out its assorted crowd—people in evening dress from the boxes, and people who are going home on the last omnibus. Hansoms and four-wheelers go by; the men with the potato-can and the travelling coffee-stall take up their nightly positions; the policemen go by in single file to take up their midnight beats. But while a cabman is still haranguing his fare, there is a glow at a blind of the corner house, and then a cry of "Fire!" The sudden crowd of London streets assembles; the glow at the windows dies out and springs up again, and there is a quick crash of glass. The fire spreads with a rapidity which is explained on the ground that the corner house is a fancy goods warehouse, and as a policeman breaks the front door open a crowd of screaming girls pours out. This is but the prelude to a realistic presentation of a London fire, with every incident that can make such a scene dramatic, and every appurtenance that can prevent it from becoming a tragedy thrown in. Fire engines, the short escape and the long escape, the rescued women and the cheering crowd, the cool firemen, the hard-worked policemen—the whole scene is a triumph of realism, and a better stage-managed crowd or more exciting effects have never been produced in any theatre."



DO NOT BE ALARMED
AT THE CRY OF FIRE
IT IS PART OF THE PERFORMANCE

The foregoing from The Daily Graphic is accompanied by sketches of the performances, including the accompanying one, showing how the audiences are prepared beforehand for the thrilling act.

Football in Ecuador.

While our ship was lying in the Gulf of Guayaquil, in Ecuador, a few degrees south of the Equator, says The London Daily Graphic, from which the accompanying illustration is taken, some of our men, with an admirable zeal for sport under all circumstances, took a football ashore to punt about after they had bathed. Several of the natives gathered round to watch the proceedings, and after a short time started to participate by kicking the ball back when it came near them. Some English residents explained the rudiments of the game to the natives. They entered into the spirit of the thing at once, and a match was organized. Convenient palm trees were chosen as goal posts, and the Guayaquilians, having divested themselves of all but a loin cloth and sandals, kicked off. A sandy plain, covered with large boulders, does not make an ideal ground, and a temperature of about 100 degrees in the shade is not ideal footer weather—(the home team had the advantage of knowing both)—but the game went off splendidly. Of course, they knew nothing of "hands" or "offside," and their combination was distinctly lacking, but as far as speed was concerned the bluejackets could not get near them. However, skill told, and in the twenty minutes, which was as long as our men could stand, the navy managed to win by four goals to nil. Had the game gone on the home team could certainly have claimed a draw, for they would have been able to walk to our goal over the melted remains of their opponents.

Keep your Stomach Healthy.

When you get up in the morning with a bad taste in your mouth that the tooth brush will not remove, a coating on your tongue, and a general "out of sorts" feeling, don't blame it on what you had to eat the night before. A healthy stomach would be able to look after that. It's poor digestion that makes you feel so badly. A teaspoonful of Abbey's Effervescent Salt in half a tumbler of water at rising will make you feel better—will cure you if you follow directions. Abbey's revitilizes every organ of the body—it clears away fermenting matter and refreshes and cleanses the stomach. It prevents the suffering that often follows a pleasant evening.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt

is a pleasant, palatable and effective medicine for all stomach ills.

A Count's Proposal.

This is from The Chicago Record-Herald:—

Language Was Not Needed.—I don't see how the Count could propose to you when he can't talk any English and you don't speak French.

"Oh, it was very easy. We were sitting in the parlor. Pointing up at an oil painting of papa, the Count took out a piece of paper and a pencil. Then he set down a dollar mark, and after it placed a figure 1. Looking at me out of his big, deep, eloquent, lovely eyes, he began making ciphers after the dollar mark and the figure 1. When he had made four ciphers, which, with the other figure, meant $10,000, I nodded my head for him to go on. Then he made another cipher. That meant $100,000. I nodded my head again. He made another, which raised it to $1,000,000. I nodded for him to go ahead. He put down another cipher, making it $10,000,000. Then I smiled and took the pencil from him, and he caught me in his arms, and—and ah, it was so lovely. It almost seems like a dream to think that in three weeks I shall be a real Countess."

Beyond the Limit.

"How much do you love me?"

"I love you," exclaimed the young and ardent admirer, "as much as J. P. Morgan is worth—nay, I will add to this the United States sub-Treasury."

"That is not enough," she observed coldly.

"I love you," he continued, "as much as Hetty Green's millions added to those of Russell Sage. Nay, as much as Carnegie and Schwab combined."

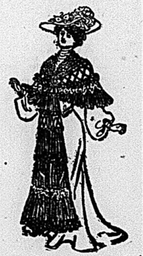
But she shook her head. She was playing for larger stakes. Her lover, however, did not despair.

"I love you much more than all these," he continued. "I love you as much as the Chemical Bank and the Standard Oil. What do you say to that?"

Then it was her turn to look pleasant.

"Do you," she observed carelessly, as if it were the easiest thing in the world, "love me as much as the Emperor thinks of himself?"

And her lover murmured abjectedly, "Alas! You ask the impossible!"—Life.



A Pretty Fichu.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

POPULAR TOURIST RESORTS

Muskoka Lakes	Lake of Bays
Kawartha Lakes	Georgian Bay
Orillia	Magnetewan River
Jackson's Point	Collingwood

Excellent train service making direct connection for all ports on Muskoka Lakes.

Special Excursion to Canadian North-West.

Tickets will be issued at reduced rates, good going July 4th, valid to return up to and including Sept. 8, 1903.

Special Reduced Rates are in effect for C. E. Convention, Denver, Col., July 9th to 13th. Tickets will be issued good going July 6th, 7th and 8th, valid for return arriving at destination on or before August 31st, 1903.

N. E. A. Convention, Boston, July 6th to 10th. Tickets good going July 2nd to 5th inclusive, valid for return, leaving Boston on or before July 12th.

For further information and descriptive literature of Summer Resorts in "Highlands of Ontario" apply to

U. E. THOMPSON, City Agent,
Bridge Street,
T. H. COPPIN, Depot Agent.
J. D. McDONALD,
Dist. Pass Agt., Toronto.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY.

WILL RUN

Homeseekers' 60 DAY Excursions

To The Canadian North-West at Return Fares.

Winnipeg, Waskada, Estevan, Elgin, Arcola, Moosomin, Wawanesa, Miniota, Binscarth, Grand View, Swan River } $28

Regina, Moosejaw, Yorkton, } $30

Prince Albert, Macleod, Calgary, } $35

Red Deer, Strathcona } $40

Going JUNE 4th, returning until AUGUST 4th (all rail or S.S. Athabasca). Going JUNE 18th, returning until AUGUST 18th (all rail or S.S. Athabasca). Going July 4th, returning until SEPTEMEBER 8th (all rail or S.S. Manitoba). Tickets are not good on "Imperial Limited." For tickets and pamphlet giving full particulars, apply to your nearest Canadian Pacific agent, or to

A. H. NOTMAN, Asst. Genl. Passr. Agent, 1 King St. East, Toronto.
S. BURROWS, C.P.R. and General Ticket Agent, Front St., Belleville.

NEW YORK CENTRAL & HUDSON RIVER R. R.

THE FOUR-TRACK TRUNK LINE.

SHORTEST Route to the United States via Cape Vincent, N.Y.

GOING EAST AND WEST.			After 1st May
Lv. Belleville (G.T.R.)		12.22 p.m.	1.30 a.m
Arr. Kingston	"	1.47 p.m.	3.12 a.m
Lv. Kingston (stage)	..	2.30 p.m.	5.00 a.m
Arr. Cape Vincent (stage)		4.30 p.m.	7.00 a.m
Lv. Cape Vincent N.Y.C.		5.05 p.m.	7.25 a.m
Arr. Watertown	"	5.55 p.m.	8.25 a.m
Arr. Oswego	"	9.05 p.m.	11.55 a.m
Arr. Syracuse	"	9.25 p.m.	12.07 p.m
Arr. Rochester	"	1.05 a.m.	2.20 a.m
Arr. Utica	"	9.45 p.m.	12.35 p.m
Arr. New York	"	7.25 a.m.	6.00 p.m

Convenient train service in opposite direction.

Pullman Sleeping and Parlor Cars.

2c a Mile.

Books for 500 miles of travel on New York Central and leased lines within State of New York, cost only $10 while books for 1000 miles over New York Central, Boston & Albany, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, Philadelphia & Reading and C. R. R. of New Jersey cost $20. Secure further information and purchase tickets from F. A. Folger, N.Y.C. Agent, Kingston, Ont.

GEORGE H. DANIELS,
Gen'l Pass'r Agent.
New York.
A. H. SMITH, Gen'l Supt.,
New York.
G. C. GRIDLEY, Gen'l Agent,
Watertown, N.Y.

It takes a long time to tell of what you have not done.

Shoe Bargains

See our Bargain Tables for

Ladies' fine Low Shoes, regular price 75c & $1.00, now	50c
Ladies' Low Shoes, worth from $1.25 to $2.00, for	75c
Travellers Samples at greatly reduced prices.
Boys' Tan Boots, worth $1.25 to $2.50.	$1.00, $1.25 and $1.50
Men's Tan Boots per pair worth $3.00, $4.00, and $5.00.	$2.00
Misses' Box Calf, Button Boots, per pair sizes 11 to 2	60c
Children's Laced and Button Boots, per pair worth 75c and $1.00	60c
Infants' Boots and Slippers, per pair	25c
Infants' Gaiter Boots	25c

VERMILYEA & SON.

FOR TWO WEEKS ONLY! 2 WEEKS

$5.00 Any Suit In This Great Clothing Store for $5.00

A STUPENDOUS CLOTHING OFFER WITHOUT PRECEDENT OR PARALLEL.

Some Suits $18, some $16, some $15, some $12, others $10. Just think of it! High grade, thoroughly tailored garments for Men, complete suits in fashionable fabrics, for

$5.00

This is just the opening gun in the great Mid-Summer Sale, in connection with this store. In every other department there will be equal sensational reductions. This Clothing Sale begins on July 11th and will end on July 25th. The earlier you come the better your choice as we anticipate a big rush.

The GLOBE CLOTHING HOUSE.

Up-to-date Clothiers and Gents' Furnishiers, Look for the Globe Over The Door, 390 Front Street, Belleville.

Wall Paper

At first sight of our Wall Papers you will say there's an attractiveness about them that puts them lengths ahead of other lines.

IN STOCKING

we select only the best, we have no "shelf warmers" all our Papers are quick sellers. If you choose your Papers from us you have best value for the price obtainable anywhere.

Painting, Paperhanging and Decorating done on shortest notice by best workmen in the city.

JOHN CORNELIUS.

3 Doors South of Intelligencer Office.

NEW GOODS

JAPAN TEA

The first of this season's crop, exta quality, regular 50c line, we quote

40c Per lb.

Canned Halibut

Fine solid Fish, very tasty,

15c per can.

J. C. Hanley & Co.

GROCERS

Telephone 214

Western Beef.

Prime Western Beef together with all kinds of choice meats, supplied by the district, at

C. GREEN'S

267 Front St., 'Phone 109.

Flowers & Vegetables

Of all kinds in season.

...AT...

J. D. COLLIP'S.

'Phone 205,

THREE PICTURES OF JESUS CHRIST.

Rev. H. P. Nichols, Holy Trinity Church, Harlem, New York City.

And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man. —Luke, ii, 52.

The Scripture is almost wholly silent on the early life of Jesus Christ. The circumstances of His birth are given with some detail—the visit of the shepherds and the wise men, the presentation in the Temple, the massacre of the innocents and the flight into Egypt. Then for twelve years silence, and we see the matured boy going up to the great feast of His people. Then again silence for eighteen years more, a silence illuminated by only two allusions found in the biography of His three years' ministry—"Is not this the carpenter's son?" "As His custom was, He went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day." Jesus Christ died a young man, and thirty years of His youth are unwritten, save one week at the age of twelve and two retrospective incidental hints.

There are three pictures suggested to us in these unrecorded years:—Jesus in His home; Jesus at worship. Jesus at the carpenter's bench.

Jesus in His home. That home was Nazareth, a quiet town isolated among the hills. Mary, the mother, sweetest type of womanhood, kept aloof from its roughness, guiding her household, cherishing the sweet mystery of her boy's birth. Joseph, gentle, quiet, fatherly, protected and cared for the little home. And Jesus, growing in height to manly vigor, growing in wisdom of mind and heart, growing in favor—the love of God, the love of the children in the market-place, the love of beasts and birds and flowers on the steep slopes of the village.

Jesus at worship. Every Sabbath He with his household attended the plain little synagogue. At the proper age He went up to Jerusalem for the greater worship, a narrative preserved for us in striking detail by St. Luke's graphic pen. In His Father's temple seems to have come to Him the first deep breath of the divine tragedy and triumph in which He was to be hero and conqueror.

Jesus at the carpenter's bench. His fellow-townsmen cried in contempt, "Is not this the carpenter?" Their scoff is His glory; the carpenter is the world's Saviour. A pious Bishop in the Middle Ages prayed often to God that it might be manifested to him what Jesus did in His youth. Then the Bishop had a dream. He saw a carpenter working at his trade, and a little boy beside him gathering chips. Then came forth a maiden clothed in green, who called them to their meal and set porridge before them. And the Bishop stood looking from behind the door. Then the little boy said: "Shall not the man also eat with us?" The glimpse of that reality is better than all the mediaeval fancies of Madonnas and aureoles.

Three unrecorded lessons are suggested to us from these thirty years of the maturing life of Jesus, the son of God—the lessons most ennobling for human living.

The family is divine. The Son of God for thirty years was a child, a dutiful son, a brother, a member of the home. Home comes to be the dearest word of human life; home comes to mean heaven. The hardest place to be good is in the family; there is no escape from the family table; there seems nothing big or noble in family righteousness. Jesus proved family life to be the best school for ripening divinity. Nothing is more true in theology than that in these family years Jesus was saving the world, even by living through these closest relations of life and making them beautiful. Then it was the great work of the second Adam was done, rather than in one transcendent moment on the cross; then it was that by one man's obedience many were made righteous; then it was God came among men in the gracious, cheerful, dutiful life this one boy lived on to His manhood. We may not follow Jesus in all His ministrations, as He teaches and heals and suffers a martyr's death; we may share the yet more effectual means of recovering God's children to their Heavenly Father by self-forgetful, self-sacrificing home living.

Labor is divine. The Son of God was an industrious carpenter. Every man needs to have something to do. It not only makes him safe for this life; it is a divinely-appointed means for making him safe for the life to come. Character is perfected, the divine possibility discovered, only by labor. Labor saves the man and saves the world. In Holman Hunt's noble picture, we see Jesus, the carpenter, sawing a board at the bench; the sun as it streams in from behind is caught by His figure at its toil, and there is cast on the workroom floor the shadow of himself on His cross. As we do our day's work we are bearing the world's burdens, are helping to save the world unto the Divine Carpenter.

Worship is divine. Every Sabbath the son of God was in the home synagogue. Every great feast He went with His fellow-worshippers, if possible, to the Temple. He who had no sins to confess, He who might well plead the privilege of privacy and quiet, did not fail to unite with his neighbors in public worship. No one is too good, too busy, too preoccupied, to spare from his life the worship of God with God's children. So he grows godlike, so he reveals God to his fellows and leads them with him into God's presence.

Such are some suggestions of these unrecorded thirty years—the divinity of home, of labor and of worship.

One fact stands out in clearest light: the hope of the world is in its youth. The lives that are to lift the world to God are the lives that with Jesus have begun and grown on in wisdom and stature and favor, grown on to be more and more divine. If we have begun late to put on Jesus, let us learn even now the lesson and bring others to begin early the divine way.

Mr. W. Denham

Of Denham's Drug Store, Petrolea, Ont., says:

"The O. R. Kidney Cure gives the best satisfaction to our customers of any kidney medicine we handle."

Belleville druggists speak highly of the O. R. Kidney Cure.

It does its work quickly.
It cures Lame Back.
It cures Lumbago.
It cures Bladder Trouble.
It cures Gravel in Bladder.
It cures Rheumatism.
It cures Kidney Troubles.
It will cure you.
Try one bottle.

O. R. KIDNEY CURE is put up in liquid form, contains no poisons, is quickly assimilated and will cure all kidney and urinary troubles.

O. R. Kidney Cure, 50c per bottle.
O. R. Liver Pills, 25c per bottle.
O. R. Dyspepsia Tablets 25c per box.

AT DRUGGISTS, OR WRITE—

THE O. R. MEDICINE CO.,
Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A poor couple living in the Emerald Isle went to the priest for marriage, and were met with a demand for the marriage fee. It was not forthcoming. Both the consenting parties were rich in love and in their prospects, but destitute of financial resources. The father was obdurate.

"No money, no marriage."

"Give me lave, your riverence," said the blushing bride, "to go and get the money."

It was given, and she sped forth on the delicate mission of raising a marriage fee out of pure nothing. After a short interval she returned with the sum of money, and the ceremony was completed to the satisfaction of all. When the parting was taking place the newly-made wife seemed a little uneasy.

"Anything on your mind, Catherine?" said the father.

"Well, your riverence, I would like to know if this marriage could not be spoiled now?"

"Certainly not, Catherine. No man can put you asunder."

"Could you not do it yerself, father? Could you not spoil the marriage?"

"No, no, Catherine. You are past me now. I have nothing more to do with your marriage."

"That alses me mind," said Catherine, "and God bless your riverence. There's the ticket for your hat. I picked it up in the lobby and pawned it."

CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY

CAPITAL

10,000 Shares 7 per cent Cumulative Preferred Stock, par value $100 each, $1,000,000
50,000 Shares Common Stock, par value $100, issued and fully paid 5,000,000
TOTAL CAPITALIZATION $6,000,000

Issues of $1,000,000 00 7 p.c. Preferred Stock in 10,000 Shares of $100 each at par.

This stock is preferred both as to Assets and Dividends.

The shares are entitled to cumulative preferred dividends from the net earnings of the Company, at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable half yearly on the first days of April and October. They may, at the option of the holder, be exchanged for common shares. They are subject to be called in, in whole or in parc, by the Company, at $115.00 per share, at any time after 1st January, 1909.

The total issue of Preferred Stock is only $1,000,000.00, the whole of which is now offered.

Subscriptions for 10,000 Shares of $100 each of the 7 per cent. Preferred Stock of the CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY will now be received at par, that is $100 Share, as follows

per cent on application,
25 " " on allotment,
35 " " 30 days thereafter.
35 " " 60 days thereafter.

One share of Common, par value $100, given with each share of preferred.

The whole of instalments remaining unpaid at any time may be prepaid in full. A discount of one per cent will be allowed upon the par of each share if prepaid at time of allotment

Notice of allotment will be sent promptly by ordinary letter.

COAL

PROPERTY IN FULL OPERATION

Company owns 9,600 acres of coal property known throughout the coal trade as the New Campbellton Colliery, located on Bras D'Or Bay, County of Victoria, Cape Breton, Novia Scotia. Mine is fully equipped, producing and marketing tons of coal a day at a net profit of $1.00 a ton. Improvements are now being made that will increase the output to over 1,000 tons a day. On present output, figuring 300 working days in year, the net result will more than pay interest on entire issue of preferred, with output of 1,000 tons a day net result will be $300,000 per annum.

IRON

RICHEST ORE IN THE WORLD

Company owns in fee simple, free and clear of all incumbrances; 4000 acres of iron ore deposit, located Natashquan (tidewater) situated on North shore of Gulf of St. Lawrence, in the County of Sagunay, province of Quebec.

Deposits contain 20,000,000 tons of ore ABOVE SEA LEVEL ALONE.

Quality of ore is highet ever discovered, running from 69 per cent to 72 per cent in metallic iron.

More orders for the sale of this ore has been received by the Company than can possibly be accepted, and at a price netting the Company a profit of $2 a ton F. O. B. vessels at Company's docks.

Send for prospectus giving full information as to earnings, reports, etc., etc.

Address all communications and send subscriptions to

COLONIAL SECURITIES CO.,
62 Wall Street. New York City

OR

W. L. MARSTON & COMPANY
110 State Street, Boston

The SAWYER COMPANY.
351 Temple Building, Montreal, Canada.

Diarrhoea

When you want a quick cure without any loss of time, and one that is followed by no bad results, use

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. It is equally valuable for children. It is famous for its cures over a large part of the civilized world.

THE Intelligencer

Bindery

MAKES A SPECIALTY OF

Ledgers,

Journals,

Cash Books,

And all descriptions of

Blank

Account

Books

Mailing Tubes

Gold Lettering on Leather Goods, &c.

MAGAZINES,
ART WORKS,
PERIODICALS,
SERIAL NUMBERS

NEATLY BOUND

Map Mounting & Varnishing

Estimates cheerfully furnished for every class of work.

ADDRESS—

The Intelligencer

BELLEVILLE, ONT.

The Tailor and Cutter's art critic (London) is again lamenting the lack of sartorial knowledge displayed by portrait painters in their pictures at the Royal Academy. In a recent issue of the journal he exclaims, in large capitals, that if these pictures represent the present day school of British artists, it is "high time England awoke!" "Are men's clothes to-day," he asks, "so utterly unworthy of the painter's art? Are they so completely devoid of taste and beauty that they are so shamefully reproduced? They cannot proge otherwise than to be the laughing-stock of tailors and their customers." Coming to details, the portrait of Lord Mount-Stephen shows a "total absence of buttons on the coat; there is not a buttonhole in the lapel, and the trousers are quite innocent of seams. The coat and vest are contortions in black, the trousers a smudge in grey.

"There were few of the pictures, indeed, that portrayed a gentleman in ordinary dress that was the least bit like what gentlemen of to-day wear.

"Coats are so miserably drawn that they bear no possible resemblance to the originals."

In one portrait "the right lapel is at least five times as large as the left," while in another "there is one solitary buttonhole in the lapel, and that is large enough for three, and there is not a single button indicated on either the coat or the vest." One coat presents "a style that no one but an old woman who is brought into the house sometimes to mend the clothes would adopt. It is a libel on tailordom."

A reverend gentleman, alas! is portrayed with his sleeve half way up to his elbow.

"We should like to condemn those who have produced them to wear only garments such as they have portrayed on their figures; they would then present such a pitiable spectacle that they would never dare to leave their homes."

ADVERTISING RATES

Measurement Nonpareil—12 lines to the inch.

Display advertisements, 10c per line.

Subsequent consecutive insertions, 5c.

Reading advertisements, 15c per line.

Preferred position, 25 per cent. advance upon casual or contract rates.

Minimum space, 10 lines.

Marriages and deaths, 50c each insertion. Births, 25c each insertion.

Rates for Condensed Advertisement will be found in 1st column of 2nd page.

All advertisements are subject to the approval of the Publisher of the Intelligencer.

Address all communications to the Intelligencer Printing & Publishing House Limited, or to Charles J. Bowell, Managing Director and Treasurer.

Canadians in London will find The Intelligencer on file at E. & J. Hardy & Co.'s Office, 30 Fleet Street, London, E. C.

CONDENSED ADVERTISEMENTS

SITUATIONS WANTED, HELP WANTED, LOST OR FOUND, FOR SALE OR TO RENT, &c

Auction Sales not included in this list

TERMS.—Twenty-five words or less, 25c first insertion; two insertions, 50c; four insertions, 75c; one week $1.00, two weeks, $1.75, three weeks, $2.25; one month, $2.50. Strictly cash in advance.

WANTED.

GIRLS WANTED.

Good wages, steady employment Apply at the office of the Quinte Laundry Company, Bridge St. 3t

Cook wanted, good wages. Apply Mrs. G. H. Drowley, City Hotel 3t

$6.00 per month will buy a home anywhere under our plan. Live in it while paying for it. Something new. Write for prospectus. Canadian Home Builder's Association, Manning Chambers, Toronto.

Help Wanted.—Good pay for spare time of intelligent men and women. No Canvassing. A Stegman, 429 La-Salle Ave., Chicago. jy2-6td

$1950 made by one man last year selling our household necessities. Did you make as much? Try our lines. Always selling. Write G. Marshall & Co., London, Ont. 2

Agents wanted, $2.50 per day. Apply Cooper, London, Ont. s27-1y

Young men ambitious to learn lucrative trades, of which there are eight in connection with the business. Apply The Belleville Hardware Company, Belleville, Ont. a7dtf

WANTED Reliable Men in every locality throughout Canada to introduce our goods, tacking up show cards on trees, fences, along roads and all conspicuous places, also distributing small advertising matter. Commission or salary $60.00 per month and expenses, not to exceed $2.50 per day. Steady employment to good, honest reliable men. No experience needful. Write for full particulars. THE EMPIRE MEDICINE CO., London, Ont.

FOR SALE OR TO-LET.

Stone house, 11 rooms, coal furnace, stable, barn. Large grounds. Cor. Frank and Moira Sts. north. Terms reasonable. H. Bull, on premises or Fred Bull, 133 Yonge St., Toronto. Terms easy. ap18-dtf

FOR SALE.

That splendid property on the south east corner of Dunbar and Catharine Sts. City water and sewer connection. m28-4w

Dressed and Matched Lumber of all kinds, at ALFORD'S factory, Market Square. j12-tf

Contractors and masons, any any person requiring lime may procure it from E. G. STAPLEY, Canifton Road, Belleville. New lime always on hand. a9-d&w6m

TO RENT

A house on Moira street containing 8 rooms. All modern conveniences. Possession on or before 20th July.—Adam Henry.. dtf

Why not own a copy or our 400 page "Guide to Investors." We mail it free, also send for our "Daily Market Letter." Correspondence solicited.

HAIGHT & FREESE CO.

Stocks, Bonds, Grain, Cotton.
7 Melinda St., Toronto, Ont.

"Determining the character and financial responsibility of your Broker, is as important as selection of right stocks"

PAYING TELLERS' ERRORS.

Those Officials Are Usually Ready to Rectify Mistakes.

A bank officer, referring in a recent address to the responsibility of paying tellers, declares that the idea that such officials were rarely willing to rectify mistakes had little basis in fact. He added: "How is it that there exists in the minds of many the idea that paying tellers are inclined to resent even the suggestion that they make errors in counting money? I have never known one who made the slightest claim to infallibility. Who has not heard the ancient and oft told story of a teller who was asked by a person for whom he has cashed a check if he had not made a mistake? As the narrative usually runs the self satisfied money counter behind the desk is inclined to become indignant and replies in a pompous and abrupt manner that he never makes mistakes. The considerate party then states that the amount paid him exceeded that named in the check, but the teller still maintains that there can be no error either way, as he never makes mistakes.

"Where is the teller who upon being told he had made an error would fail to politely inquire as to the nature of the same? The inference is that tellers are possessed of so much vanity and conceit that they lose the amount said to be overpaid rather than acknowledge an error. How unlikely and ridiculous!"

Justus von Liebig.

Von Liebig was skillful in correcting popular delusions on scientific subjects. A notable example of this may be found in the overthrow of the once much discussed theory of "spontaneous combustion," a comparatively modern error, dating, it seems, only from the year 1725, but which persisted long after Lavoisier had explained the real nature of fire, which was from time to time put forward with success in the defense of persons on trial for murder and received its last support from Charles Dickens. His success in this direction throws a pleasant light on the progress of civilization. One wonders what would have been the fate of Von Liebig had he opposed himself to such an error in the sixteenth century when Kepler could only save his mother from going to the stake for witchcraft by satisfying her judges that she possessed none of the signs essential to a witch. In those days Kepler did not dare to say that there were no such things as witches.—W. A. Shenstone in Cornhill Magazine.

Phrenology.

Phrenology is usually thought to have been first expounded by Gall and Spurzheim and to be a comparatively modern so called "science." But it can be traced back to the sixteenth century at least, for in a book published at that time by "Mayster Jherome of Bruynswicke" is a profile of a head on which are most distinctly marked phrenological attributes. "Imaginativa" occupies the place now given on the charts to "ideality;" "fantasia" takes the place of the modern "marvelousness," "estimantia" of "constructiveness," while "cogitantia" is given instead of "hope." The author states that the brain hath cells or chambers, and each cell contains a part of the understanding, and that these parts may be expressly seen in the figure of the head. Phrenologists can at least disclaim against their beliefs being newfangled.—London Chronicle.

Hat Etiquette.

Tipping the hat is a rare thing among men when there are no women around. A few fine old fellows cherish the habit of tipping to each other and to strangers when introduced, but ordinarily the hand never touches the brim. In business offices there is no sort of etiquette. Men in the sweep and rush of business have no time to give thought to hats. But certain decencies should preyail. On entering a private office look at the head of the occupant. If he has his hat on, keep yours on; if his hat is off, remove yours. The removal of your hat is a compliment and a courtesy and does not indicate that you are inferior or subservient.

Her Age.

"Madam," replied the judge sternly, "you must answer the question. What is your age?"

"I was born the same year your honor was. That would make me about"—

"It isn't necessary to go into particulars," interposed the judge stiffly. "Gentlemen, have you any further use for the witness? You may stand aside, madam."

A Typographical Error.

"I've come," said the visitor, "to see why you called me a political jobber in your paper today."

"I regret that error of the types quite as much as you," replied the editor.

"Ah! Then you didn't mean to call me that?"

"No, sir. I wrote 'robber' very distinctly."

Rejoicing With Her.

Minnie—Well, I'm glad Kit Spurlong is going to be married at last.

Lutie—The tone of your voice doesn't indicate it.

Minnie—But I am. When the list of marriage licenses is published everybody will find out she's thirty-seven years old.

Absent Minded.

"Butterfly is awfully absent minded."

"What is his latest?"

"He was driving a nail and hammered his thumb. He howled and put the nail in his mouth and tried to fling his thumb on the floor."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

Store Closed Every Wednesday During July and August at 12 O'Clock Noon.

CLOTHING SATISFACTION

Our greatest satisfaction is in the number of men our Summer Clothing is pleasing everyday.

Whether the Made-to-order or the Ready made variety—both seperate, but going to make up this complete Clothing Store—meet your requirements, the range in patterns and prices will suit your fancy.

Our best efforts are put forward to have every garment satisfaction—we have had no complaints as yet—to doubly guard your interests, we give our broad money refund guarantee.

Perfect tailoring is probably more neccessary in summer clothing than any other. Being unlined, unless properly cut and supported it gets out of shape in a short time.

No need to buy the "sagging" kind with our assortment near. No greater cost either. Here they are:

—Summer Suit in single and double breasted, sack and Norfolk styles at $5.00, $6.00, $6.50, $8.50, ... $10.00

—Light weight Coats, 75c, $1.50, $1.75, $2,00, ... $2.50

—Black and Blue, fine serge coats, unlined $2.50

—Duck Trousers, white or with black stripe, ... $1.25, $1.50

SHIRT COMFORT

The Soft Front Shirt has become a warm weather fixture.

Not only the comfort but the neat appearance with which this is combined make these indespensible to the summer outfit.

No need to dwell on the size and moderate price of our assortment.

Suffice to say it defeats all previous efforts.

Every reliable brand—enough desireable patterns to make pleasurable choosing. See our window.

—Men's American Percale, soft front shirts in stripes and fancy designs, cuffs attached, fast colors, all sizes 50c

—Mens soft front shirt of American dimity cloth in fancy patterns, cuffs seperate 75c

—Mens white canvas weave, mercerized, soft front shirt—very dressy $1.00

—Celebrated Salem brand colored shirts $1.00

PAROSOLS

To properly appreciatte a summer Parasol you should have one at once. These are the days when you need one.

The pleasure in choosing the dainty creations from our assortment is greatly increased by the very moderate prices we are asking. In New York you would pay double the price for not as pretty.

—Neat mercerized Cotton Parasols, hardly discernable from Silk with hemstitched edge, and colored flowers $1.25

—Fine Silk Parasols $2.00 to $5.50

GLOVINE

The innumerable uses to which Glovine can be applied make it a househould necessity.

Many ladies have removed spots and stains from garments and gloves which they thought were permanent.

If you have a summer parasol slighty soiled, this will make it look like new. Costs very little to make a trial anyway. Forsale at our glove counter.

—Large bottle Glovine, for cleaning Gloves, Laces, Silks, Velvets, etc., ... 25c

RIBBON VALUES

You would hardly credit us did we tell you the quantity of ribbons sold over our counters each day. Especialy Taffeta and Duchesse which are now so popular for neckwear.

A reason for everything, there is one for this. Read below and we think you can see at once and take advantage.

—Finequality Silk Duchesse Neck Ribbon, 4 inches wide, Green, Blue, Cream, Red, Yellow and White, per yard .. 20c

—Black, White and colored, pure Silk Taffeta wash ribbon 4 inches wide 18c

OUTING ACCESSORIES

The EXTENSIVE STYISH LOW PRICE assortment we show in neccessary furnishings for the summer outing have made this store popular with both men and women.

Our spring enlargement enables us to keep a larger and just as select a stock from which to satisfy your needs.

—Fine leather belts for men and Boys in patent leather, seal skin and Alligator 25c to $1 50

—Men's summer supenders in in fancy fast color designs to wear with soft shirts 25c

REDUCED TABLE CLOTHS

Many of our underpriced pattern Table Cloths have left us. We want them all to go. New fall shipment will be here soon. Probably no prettier or newer designs but they must have the place these now occupy.

Compared with values, the prices we ask are really insignificant.

If you have any use for a fine linen cloth the buying inducement—once you have seen these—will be irrestible.

—The remainder of our bordered patten table cloths, $1 50 for 75c, $2.00 for $1.00, $2 75 for $1 50, $3 00 for $2.00

Agents for Standard Patterns.

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

CLOTHING BOUGHT HERE PRESSED FREE OF CHARGE

Everything

Is Thoroughly Good

That's certain, at QUICK & ROBERTSON'S—we are more particular about giving than you are in getting it perhaps.

But there are other reasons why you should buy at this store where quality is the first consideration.

We not only make goodness certain by applying every known test for quality, but are equally as careful to price that goodness as common as the ordinary sorts are priced elsewhere.

HERE are a few suggestions of summer fixin's that should interest men and mothers of boys.

FOR BOYS.

Vacation Suits and other wear, things that after good hard wear show the difference between our good sorts at our common prices and cheap sorts, which cost a little less.

—Regulation Sailor Blouse Suits, Cheviot mixtures, stripes and serges. .... $1.25 to $4.50

—Norfolk Jackets, single and double-breasted suits for older boys, extensive showing of plain and fancy mixtures .... $2.00 to $5.00

—Washable Sailor Suits 50c to $1.50.

—Wash Waists and Blouses, 25c to $1.00.

FOR MEN.

—SUMMER SUITS—Such as are impossible to obtain except at the best custom tailors—perfect fitting, stylish garments, suited to men who want the out-of-the-ordinary sorts. Homespuns, Tropical Serges, Worsteds and Flannels.......................... $3.75 to $12.00

—OUTING TROUSERS $1.00 to $4.00.

—NEGLIGE SHIRTS—In stripes and patterned materials, such as custom shirt makers would show you as their newest—plain or plaited bosoms......... 50c to $1.50

—STRAW HATS—Every one new, the largest assortment of the smartest shapes the best makers have produced.

Sailors, in low crown .... 50c to $2.00

Panama shape, the right ones .... 75c to $2.50

QUICK & ROBERTSON

Here is where you buy Johnston's Clothing for Men and Boys.

FOR YOUR SUMMER

Cooking you should use a

Blue Flame Auto-Valvo Oil Stove

as they are perfect bakers and cookers and are operated at a small expense and furthermore you have no heat in your kitchen.

The W. W. CHOWN Company, Limited

Exclusive Agents.

GENTLEMEN, IF YOU ARE BALD, see Prof. Dorenwend's Art Coverings in Wigs and Toupees, worn on thousands of heads. They are a protection against Colds, Catarrh, etc., and give a most natural and younger appearance to the face.

Trying on and demonstrating the superior art of these goods free of charge.

He will be at Belleville, Quinte Hotel, Friday, July 10. wj2&d7-9

At Wallbridge & Clarke's

Seasonable Supplies

Montserrat Lime Juice
Raspberry Vinegar (Crosse & Blackwell's)
Gurd's Ginger Ale & Soda Water
Apollinaris and Radnor Water
Pabst Milwaukee Lager.

Clarets and Sauterne

Barton & Guestier's Bordeaux Clarets
Barton & Guestier's Bordeaux Sauterne
Nath. Johnston's Clarets
Rhine Wine and Burgundy
Light Canadian Wines—Red or White

Canned Meats

New Packs. Finest Quality.

Whole Ox Tongues
Lunch Tongues
Lamb's Tongues
Boned Chicken
Boned Turkey
Boned Duck
Pate de foie
Potted Ham
Potted Tongue
Sliced Dried Beef
Ham Loaf
Veal Loaf
Chicken Tamales
Lunch Beef
Lunch Bacon
Chicken, Ham & Tongue
Pigs Feet
Jellied Tenderloins
Vienna Sausages
Luncheon Sausages
Baked Beans—Plain or in Tomato or Chili Sauce, etc., etc., etc.

Camp & Picnic Supplies

Essence of Coffee—Patterson's, Symington's or Crosse & Blackwell's.
Condensed Milk, Evaporated Cream, etc.
Fancy Biscuits
Fine Old Cheese
Pickles and Sauces
Fine Teas and Coffee
Soups and Vegetables
French Sardines
New Pack Lobster and Shrimps
Salmon, Scallops, Tunny Fish, etc.

WALLBRIDGE & CLARKE

Bridge St.—Tel. 139.
Branch store Front St.—Tel. 157.

Floral Tributes.

The following list of floral tributes to the memory of the late Mr. Chas. Rainbow was received too late for publication yesterday afternoon:

Gates Ajar from his two sons; Pillow from Mizpah Lodge; Cross from Mr. and Mrs. H. Corby; Wreath from Mr. and Mrs. Laidlaw, Toronto; Anchor from Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Boyd; Cross from Mrs. F. C. O'Hara, Ottawa; Wreath from Miss Alice Corby; Crown from office staff of Mr. H. Corby; Wreath from Mr. Kaiser and Mr. Mitchell; Bouquets from Mrs. McKay, Mrs. Wm. Black, Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, Miss Minnie Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gay, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Warham, Miss Nellie Tugnett, Miss Carrie Gay, Mrs. John McCrodden, Percy, Jessie and Harry Ransom.

ST. ANDREW'S S.S. PICNIC.

The annual S.S. picnic of St. Andrew's Church will be held on Tuesday, July 14th, per steamer Niagara to 12 o'clock Point. Boat leaves at 9 a.m., 2.30 p.m. and 7.30 p.m. Tickets 25c. Children 15c. Infant's class free.—W. P. Hudson, chairman. j1-7-10-13

JUST A COLD IN THE HEAD! But if followed by another cold, or some extra exposure is liable to result in nasal catarrh. Unless a radical cure is obtained the throat, bronchial tubes and finally the lungs become affected. Nothing cures colds so quickly and pleasantly as Catarrhozone. The inspector of Mines for Nova Scotia, Mr. Neville, says, "Catarrhozone is the best remedy I have ever used. It cured me of catarrh of the head and throat, and I am pleased to recommend such a satisfactory remedy." Catarrhozone is a safeguard against colds, coughs and catarrh. It can be used while at work, in the church, theatre or street cars. Simply inhale Catarrhozone and it cures. Price $1. Small size 25 cents. Druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

NEVER SAY DIE.

You may be weak, miserable, nervous, sleepless, your digestion may be poor and you despair. Never say die, until you have used Ferrozone, the most wonderful blood maker, nerve strengthener and brain invigorator. It tones up the whole system. You can eat anything and digest it if you use Ferrozone. You sleep well. You make blood quickly, strength increases daily, in a short time you're well. Try Ferrozone, which you can obtain at all drug stores.

An eagle can live 20 days without food, and a condor 40 days.

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 30,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

CITY COUNCIL IN SPECIAL SESSION.

City Solicitor Advises That Council Has No Legal Right to Sell Rails

And the City Fathers, for the Time Being, Bow to His Decision.

Resolving, However, to Obtain Other Legal Advice From Toronto.

A special meeting of the City Council was held yesterday afternoon, at which Mayor Graham, Ald. Panter, Pope, Chown, Sinclair, Cooper, Sulman and Marsh were in attendance.

Mayor Graham stated that the object of the meeting was to take action in regard to the disposal of the street rails.

A letter was read from the Belleville Cement Company, offering $10 per long ton for the rails and also offering $250 towards assisting in afterwards placing Front street in a proper state of repairs.

Ald. Panter said that he understood the Council had not the power to sells the rails. If this was a fact the motion passed at the last session of the Council would have to be rescinded.

Mr. Mikel, City Solicitor, stated that a municipality could sell any personal property they acquired for the use of the corporation. He did not think the rails were acquired for the use of the corporation, therefore the city could not legally sell them.

Mayor Graham asked if the Council had not the right to lend them.

Mr. Mikel said that could no doubt be done, as long as the ownership remained in the corporation. The rails were acquired by the city as a forfeiture, the road no longer being operated.

Ald. Sinclair thought that as they had been acquired through a forfeiture the city certainly owned them.

Ald. Chown—"Under the Railway Act the rails were forfeited to the city."

Mr. Mikel said the mere fact that the city had a right to acquire the rails was not in his opinion proof that they had a right to sell them.

Ald. Chown thought that they could sell them, and repair the street with the money so obtained.

Mayor Graham—"Loan the rails, or rent them for a term of say 99 years.

Ald. Chown—"If they were loaned or rented for that period it would not make much difference."

Mayor Graham—"It would be for a term of years long enough to wear them out."

Ald. Chown stated that he had been informed by another solicitor in the city that the Council had a right to sell the rails.

Mayor Graham—"We must be guided in this matter by the opinion of our solicitor."

Ald. Pope asked if the rails would be allowed to remain where they are or would they be taken up.

Ald. Panter stated that whatever action was taken it would be necessary to rescind the motion passed at the Council meeting on Monday last, as the date therein specified was July 6th, which was today.

The Motion to Sell Rescinded.

Ald. Panter moved, seconded by Ald. Sinclair, that the resolution passed on June 29th, re the Belleville Cement Company's proposal to purchase the rails, be rescinded, the Solicitor having given his opinion that we have not the right to sell the rails, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the said company.—Carried.

Ald. Pope Wants Information.

Ald. Pope would like to have the city's rights clearly defined. It seemed rather strange that we had not the power to sell those rails when the city was practically the owner of them. He would be inclined to get the opinion of another solicitor upon the matter.

Mr. Mikel said he would be pleased to have the opinion of another solicitor.

The Mayor—"If the cement people would take a lease of the rails some arrangement might be made.

Ald. Chown moved, seconded by Ald. Pope, that the Solicitor and the chairman of the Executive Committee obtain the opinion of some good counsel of Toronto as to our right to dispose of the rails forfeited to us by the Belleville Traction Company by non-use of the franchise.

Ald. Panter was opposed to the motion, as he did not think any advice obtained would be any more beneficial to the city.

Ald. Pope said it was rather hard to determine just what our rights were in this matter. There appeared to be an element in the city which objected to whatever the Council desired to do. We might get an opinion and have no doubt as to what the city's rights were in reference to the disposing of the rails.

The motion proposed by Ald. Chown in reference to procuring further legal advice prevailed, Aldermen Chown, Pope, Sinclair and Marsh voting for it and Aldermen Cooper, Sulman and Panter against it.

Ald. Galbraith's Resignation.

Ald. Pope asked if the resignation of Ald. Galbraith had been received.

The City Clerk stated that he had not received it.

To Inform the Cement Company.

The Clerk was instructed to immediately inform the Belleville Cement Company of the position of affairs, and also provide them with a copy of the resolution passed.

Council adjourned.

SUNLIGHT SOAP REDUCES EXPENSE

$5,000 Reward will be paid by Lever Brothers Limited, Toronto, to any person who can prove that this soap contains any form of adulteration whatsoever, or contains any injurious chemicals.

Ask for the Octagon Bar. 815

BARGAINS THIS WEEK.

Two very special sales all this week at the Oak Hall. We are offering 12 to 15 doz. fine straw hats worth 50c, 75c and $1.00, at the unheard of price, 25c, and we are making a special 20 per cent. discount on all unlined clothing. See the hats in north window.

CITY AND DISTRICT.

The remains of the late Mr. James Howatson, who died at Anaconda, Mont., arrived here at noon to-day.

A number of parties who have neglected to register their canines will have to appear before the Magistrate to-morrow.

Do your shopping Wednesday mornings during July and August, as stores will close at noon on those days. je25-5tw&etd6t

Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, M.P.P., will be at the Conservative rooms tonight. Friends are cordially invited to meet him.

Bring your baskets to the picnic at Glenora to-morrow by Str. Aletha. Boat leaves at 2 o'clock, stopping at Deseronto, Glenora and Picton. Returns 10.30.

Go with Mr. Luton's Bible Class to-morrow afternoon and enjoy yourself. Deseronto, Glenora and Picton. Fresh air free. Refreshments for sale. Adults 35c, children 20c. Aletha leaves at 2 p.m.

A typographical error occurred in the Oak Hall local last night. They advertise a 20 per cent reduction on unlined clothing, not 25 per cent., as appeared in print.

According to the Government returns, the Mutual Life of Canada did the second largest amount of new business in this country last year, and did it on the lowest ratio of expense of any of them, and paid the largest dividends showing it to be the most profitable company to insure in. S. Burrows, General Agent.

1,000 ISLANDS AND ROCHESTER.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian" leave Belleville for Thousand Islands at 3.25 p.m., daily except Mondays. Fare $1.00. Returning Str. leaves at 11.38 p.m. for Rochester, N.Y. m26d&w3m

LOSS WAS HEAVY ON MR. C. P. HOLTON'S SAWMILL.

$8,000 WENT UP IN SMOKE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON—INSURANCE $4,000.

The loss sustained by Mr. C. P. Holton in the destruction by fire of his saw mill yesterday afternoon will be serious. The mill had just started operations for the season, it being the first day's run. The fire originated in the basement, and it is thought to have been caused by friction. The flames spread with such rapidity that some of the employees about the premises had to make a hasty exit. Mr. John Cronan had his hands and face blistered by the heat, which was intense.

In addition to the mill being a complete ruin, a large quantity of wood was burned. At the time of the fire the wind was from the west and this prevented the flames from igniting the lumber piles which are in the western part of the yard. Adjoining the mill property was the wood and coal yard of Capt. Allen, but by excellent work the firemen kept the fire from spreading.

The loss is estimated to be in the vicinity of $8,000. There was an insurance of $4,000 in the Anglo-American.

BUILDING.

R. McPherson, late foreman with Thos. Hanley, continues the same business at the same stand, executing, in first-class style, orders for Church and Office Furniture, Mantels, Grills, Artistic effects, etc. Carving to the trade a specialty. Will form class for instructions in carving. j8d&w1m

Your Hair Perhaps your mother had thin hair, but that is no reason why you must go through life with half-starved hair. If you want long, thick, dark and heavy hair, feed it with Ayer's Hair Vigor. $1. All druggists. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Fatal Accident on Midland Division.

BOILER EXPLOSION ON SUNDAY MORNING—ENGINEER LOST HIS LIFE—FIREMAN SEVERELY INJURED.

Stirling, July 7.—A fatal accident, horrible in its nature, occurred about two miles and a half from this village, on the line of the G. T. R., about two o'clock on Sunday morning, by which Robert C. McAuliffe, of Peterboro, lost his life, and his mate, Porter, of Millbrook, was severely injured, and is at present lying at St. Joseph's Hospital in an unconscious condition.

Mr. McAuliffe was engineer on a freight running from Lindsay to Belleville, and when near Stirling the crown sheet of the boiler, it is said, blew out, allowing the steam to escape, scalding the engineman and fireman to such an extent that the engineer afterwards succumbed to his injuries.

It will probably never be known just what was the cause of the accident. The deceased engineer was a thoroughly competent man, having been running a locomotive for 10 years, and was a strictly sober employee, and one who was regarded as particularly reliable.

Both the injured men were taken to Peterboro, and word has since been received that they were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where Engineer McAuliffe died about 7 o'clock on Sunday evening.

The fireman, Porter, is at present doing as well as can be expected, and hopes are entertained for his recovery.

REASONABLE PANT REASONS.

If there is any reason why you should wear pants, there is every reason why you should buy them of: Quick & Robertson. If you are particular about the kind of cloth that goes in them, particular about the cut and make, or particular about how much change you will have left, then we can satisfy you. At present we are offering over 300 pairs pants bought from a manufacturer at greatly reduced prices. We have divided them into two lots, $1.50 pants for $1.00, and $1.75 and $2.00 pants for $1.25.

"Suffer Little Children"

The funeral of little Hazel Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Thompson, was largely attended this afternoon. Services were held at the family residence, conducted by Rev. Mr. Gilliland. The bearers were four boy friends of the little one, namely, Eddie Warham, John Bryant, Robbie Ford and Ernest Wallace. The floral tributes were exceedingly numerous and beautiful, the following being a list:

Pillow—family.

Wreath—Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Gilliland.

Wreath—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McCoy.

Star—Sunday School Class R. E. Church.

Wreath—Staff of D. V. Sinclair & Co.

Wreath—Mrs. Wm. Thompson.

Cross—Miss Annie Large and Miss Dorothy Ford.

Cross—Miss Hampton and Sunday School Class.

Bouquets—Miss Ethel Demille, Mrs. Ed. Post, Miss P. Wilder, Miss I. Thompson, Mrs. C. J. Woodley, Miss Jennie McCoy, Mrs. D. V. Sinclair, Master Harold McCoy, Mrs. A. Harold, Miss Gael, Miss Martha McCoy, Mrs. Robt. Boyle, Mr. and Mrs. H. McCoy, Miss Matilda McCrudden, Miss R. Humphrey, Miss E. Trainer, Miss Nora Drumm, Misses Sarah and Mabel Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. John McCoy, Miss I. Earle, Miss Mary McCoy, Mr. Alf. Symons, Miss Bessie Cunningham, Miss Neta Bryant, Master Earl McCoy, Miss Julia O'Keefe, Miss Jennie Falle, Mrs. Dunnet, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, Miss Mabel Harrison, Miss Lilian Standish, Mrs. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Cole.

HALF HOLIDAY EXCURSION.

To Deseronto, Glenora and Picton, Wednesday, July 8th, at 2 o'clock. Five hours at Deseronto, or two hours at Glenora, or one hour at Picton. Str. Aletha returns at 10.30. Tickets 35c, children 20c. sm&t

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM TOURIST RESORTS.

Orillia, Penetang, Muskoka Lakes, Georgian Bay, Upper Lakes, Lake of Bays, Magnetowan River, Kawartha Lakes, Thousand Islands, Quebec, Portland, Me., Old Orchard, Me., White Mountains.

The above resorts are all reached via the Grand Trunk. Excellent service to Muskoka Wharf, connecting with steamers for "Royal Muskoka" Hotel and other ports on Lake of Bays.

Tourist tickets are on sale, embracing a trip through the Lakes in Highlands of Ontario, also to ports on Upper Lakes, and to Eastern points. For tickets, illustrated and descriptive literature of Canadian Resorts and all information as to routes and rates for summer tours apply to U. E. Thompson, C.P. and T.A. j7-6t

PERSONAL ...AND... SOCIAL.

The Intelligencer invites all its readers to contribute to this column all items of a personal nature, such as the arrival or departure of guests, and the movements of business men, etc. Send a post card to or telephone The Intelligencer.

Mr. Charles Rainbow returned to-day to New York City.

Mr. J. T. Burns left yesterday for a two weeks' visit with friends in the west.

Mr. and Mrs. George Post and child, of York, are visiting relatives in the city.

Mr. D. Grass and family, William St., left for their cottage at Crow Lake to-day.

Mr. H. R. MacLennan is holidaying in Albany, N.Y., and New Haven, Conn.

Mrs. C. J. Stevens, of Toronto, is visiting her mother, Mrs. C. F. Payne, Burnham street.

Miss Lena Wilson, of Montreal, is visiting her cousins, the Misses McCrudden, Catherine street.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Enwright, of New York, is visiting her sister, New York, are visiting her sister.

Miss Maggie Park left on Saturday last for her home at Ormsby, to attend her sick father's bed-side.

Mr. H. F. Canniff and son, Gemmell H., of Chicago, arrived here today on a visit to relatives.

C. W. Henderson, W. G. Miller, W. H. Berkinshaw, W. P. Clemes, W. C. Raines, W. Pinkerton, W. B. Scott, F. G. Soper, M. J. Cummings, R. B. Smith, P. F. Canniff, Toronto; T. Haskih, A. Byron, J. D. McLachlan, F. L. Smith, Montreal; W. H. Moore, L. W. Moore, L. D. Gaffray, E. D. Boyes, L. E. Harten, C. W. Gray, W. G. Miller, W. H. Steele, C. E. Cole, Watertown; F. S. Pearce, Marmora; S. Meyers, L. M. Fenner, Ottawa; W. Nichol, Kingsgton; W. J. Lowe, Berlin; J. Thornell, England; J. O. Anderson, Saginaw; J. H. Campbell, A. Forbes, Trenton; C. H. Henderson, A. C. Pratt, London; J. H. Canniff, Chicago; E. D. Watts, Brantford, are guests at the Quinte.

CLEARING SALE OF STRAW HATS

You want to see the straw hats the Oak Hall are selling for 25cts. Rather than carry them over, we have placed on sale at this price, a window full of 50c, 75c and $1 goods: and they are bound to move quick.

TOOTHACHE CURED IN ONE MINUTE.

Not only toothache, but any nerve pain is cured instantly by Polson's Nerviline. Thousands have testified that its powerful, penetrating, pain-subduing properties make it an absolute cure for neuralgia, rheumatism, toothache, cramps, colic and all other pains and aches that beset mankind. The world is challenged to equal Nerviline as a household liniment. Large bottle 25 cents.

LATEST NEW YORK STOCK QUOTATIONS

AS FURNISHED TO THE INTELLIGENCER BY H. R. BEATTIE, STOCK BROKER.

New York, July 7.

STOCK	Op'g	H'st	L'st	Close
Atchison	68	68¼	67⅞	68¼
do. pref ..	92½	....	....	....
St. Paul.. ..	150¼	152	150¼	151⅜
Mo. P.	103⅜	104	103	103⅝
Union Pac .	81⅞	82¼	81⅜	81⅞
C. P. R.	124¼	124⅞	124¼	124¼
South Pac. ..	49¾	50⅛	49½	49⅝
R. I.	33¼	34⅛	33¼	34
Ills. C.	134	....	....	....
Sou. Ry.....	24¼	24½	24¼	24¼
B & O.......	86	86⅜	85¼	86⅛
N. Y. C.	127	127	125½	125⅜
Penna	125¼	125⅞	125¼	125½
T. W....	97⅞	98½	97⅞	98⅛
Erie	33⅜	34⅛	33½	33½
do. pref. ...	68⅛	68½	67⅜	68
Reading	52	52⅛	51⅞	51⅞
C. O.	38⅜	....	....	....
O. & W.	25½	25¾	25½	25¾
Manhattan ..	136⅞	137⅜	136⅞	137
L. & N.... ..	111¼	....	...	....
A. F.	38¼	....	...	....
Nor..........	66⅞	67¼	66¼	66¼
Wab.........	24⅜	24⅞	24	24
do pref. ..	44⅜	44½	43⅞	43⅞
C. G. W. ..	19¼	19½	19⅛	19½
T.C.I.	52⅞	53	52⅛	52⅛
U.S. Stl......	30⅛	30⅜	29½	29½
do pref......	81⅞	81⅞	80⅞	80⅞
Sugar	120⅛	120½	120	120⅛
B. R. T......	57⅜	58¼	57⅜	57⅜
Po...........	98½	99¼	98½	98⅜
A. C. P.	53	53⅛	52½	53⅛
Met.........	122⅛	....	....	....

Sept. wheat opened at 75¾; closed at 77½.
Sept. corn opened at 51½; closed at 52½.

SEASIDE RESORTS.

The Grand Trunk Railway is the best and most comfortable route to all eastern points, including White Mountains, Old Orchard, Me.; Portland, Me.; "International Limited" leaving Toronto 9 a.m., daily, carries through Pullman to Portland, Cafe Parlor to Montreal. Eastern Flyer leaving Toronto 10.30 p.m. daily, is a solid train of vestibuled coaches and Pullman Sleepers.

Tourist tickets are on sale, embracing all the principal sea side resorts. j7-6t

GLASGOW WAREHOUSE.

Wash Goods

Reduced to Lowest Point.

Here's good news for Ladies who have their Summer Dresses yet to buy.

Tuesday morning we will place on sale the balance of this seasons purchases of Embroidered and Fancy Colored Organdie Muslins, Printed and Figured Lawns. Fancy Colored Dress Sateens, Anderson's best Scotch Ginghams and English Zephyrs, at a discount of 25 per cent.

Off present selling prices which are all marked in plain figures.

This discount will last 3 days.

TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY

When such seasonable goods as the above are offered you at this discount, don't delay in making your purchases early Tuesday.

There is always a choice for early comers.

Laidlaw & Ketcheson

DIRECT IMPORTERS

Daily Intelligencer.

THE INTELLIGENCER IS SOLD AT
J. W. London's and G. Wardhaugh's.

Local Reading Advertisements.

Words 50 cents; 2 cents per word first insertion, per word subsequent consecutive insertions. Headlines count as 12 words; contracts for long periods made at office.

Our Rolls, Pastries & Cakes

Take a prominent place at most of our excursions, picnics and etc. Get your supply to-night. Store closed to morrow afternoon.

CHAS. S. CLAPP

BATH HELPS

It adds much to the luxury and benefit of baths to have at hand all the usual requisites. There is we think no item of bath supplies we do not carry. It will not cost you much to provide a complete outfit.

Bath Brushes, Mitts, Bath Tablets, Soaps, Toilet Waters, Sea Salt, Loofahs, Sponges, etc.

McKeown's DRUG STORE

The Sun & Hastings Savings and Loan Co. of Ontario.

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL
$5,000,000.

3 1-2 per cent. allowed on Deposits, payable on Call.

4 per cent. on Deposits for one year or over.

Money to Loan upon favorable terms.

OFFICE, No. 46 Bridge St., Belleville.

J. P. C. PHILLIPS,
Manager Belleville Branch.

The longer you halt the steeper the mountain grows.

MONITOR

This is another fine Mantle Clock, not quite so expensive as Gadski in last week's advertisement, but fully as serviceable. It is an eight-day hour and half strike on cathedral gong, fancy columns with trimmings and drop handles, in every way a beautiful clock. Our price only $5 50.

T. BLACKBURN.

Eyes examined free of charge. Jeweller & Optician.

SPECIALS FOR THIS WEEK

This week will be an interesting one. We will work on all Odds and Ends. Special Job Lines at prices that will be sure to sell.

THE ARTICLES OFFERED

White Muslin, suitable for Ladies' and Children's Dresses, was 15 and 20c yd., Sale price	10c
6 Pieces Fine Print for Ladies' Fine Dresses. was 15c yard, to clear	10c
29 Pieces 33 in. wide Print, was 8c, sale price	5½c
31½ in. Pink Flannelette, was 10c, sale price	7c
Reversible Crettone, double width, was 25c yard, for	21c
Standard Shoe Dressing, 10c, for	6c
Tourist Drinking Cup and Bottles, job	25 to 35c
Naptha Washing Powder	5c

Fruit Jars, machine made, at Lowest Prices.

Fruit Jar Rubbers, per doz. 5c.

Traveller's Samples of Ladies' Blouses, ranging in price from 50c to $2.25, sale price 25c to 75c.

Ladies' Black Sateen Skirts, fluted, 69c.

Cut Prices on all our Coal Oil Stoves.

McINTOSH BROS.

THE LIGHT OF ANOTHER DAWN

Shines Upon the Earthly Life of His Holiness Pope Leo.

All Signs, However, Point to His Early Crossing the Bar—Awakes From Enforced Sleep This Morning Conscious But Feeble in the Extreme—History of Yesterday and This Morning of the Vatican's Patient by Bulletins.

Rome, July 7.—The following bulletins were issued yesterday afternoon and this morning, and furnish a current history of the Pontiff's illness:

2.45 p.m.—The Pope seemed somewhat prostrated after a rather exciting morning, and is now enjoying much needed sleep.

4. p. m.—A fit of coughing disturbed the Pope's sleep. Coughing might benefit him, by relieving the lungs of the catarrhal obstruction; but, owing to his weak state, it is very trying and exhausting.

8 p. m.—Accentuated symptoms of general depression are appearing. The Pope's respiration is more frequent and superficial, and his pulse is so weak that sometimes it is imperceptible. His temperature remains under normal, and his intellectual faculties are unimpaired.

Extreme Unction Given.

10.30 p.m.—The change for the worse in Pope Leo's condition is augmenting rapidly. At 9 o'clock His Holiness was unmistakably sinking, so that, Dr. Lapponi, alarmed, consulted with the Pope's relatives, Cardinal Rampolli and others, who decided that extreme unction should be given, and it was administered by Mgr. Pifferi, the Pope's confessor.

1.20 a.m.—Dr. Lapponi has just expressed the opinion that the Pope will live until morning. His Holiness is still conscious.

1.45 a.m.—Repeated doses of chloral have enabled the Pontiff to sleep, but, contrary to previous nights, artificial respiration is continued, and Dr. Lapponi goes every five minutes to the bedside to observe the patient and listen to his breathing.

3.35 a. m.—The Pope awoke from his sleep, which was induced by doses of chloral, very feeble and in pain, but with his mind quite clear.

The Latest Bulletin.

Rome, July 7, 6.45 a. m.—A bulletin has just been issued. It says the condition of the Pope is stationary. After twice taking a raw egg and a little brandy, he went to sleep. At nine o'clock Dr. Mazzoni will visit His Holiness again, and a new bulletin will then be issued.

THE LIGHT OF DAWN.

His Holiness Asked That Shutters Might Be Opened That He Might Once More See Sun's Rays.

3.55 a. m. — Another morning has broken on the pathetic scene within the simple chamber of the Vatican, where Pope Leo lies dying. As the soft light of dawn penetrated into the room the Pontiff whispered to his devoted physician that he desired the shutters of the windows to be opened, saying: "I wish to see once more, perhaps for the last time, the rays of the sun."

It is just a short while that the Pope came back to consciousness from a sleep which Dr. Lapponi had induced by a strong dose of chloral. His sleep was so deathlike that artificial respiration was continued, and Dr. Lapponi every few minutes leaned anxiously over the couch to observe the illustrious patient and listen to his hardly perceptible breathing.

"Tell Me When the Time Comes."

Pope Leo awoke wet with perspiration, feeble to the extreme, and his voice hardly audible. The fits of coughing had brought pains in his chest and shoulders, and he said to Dr. Lapponi: "Tell me when the time really comes."

The doctor assured His Holiness that he believed the danger of his immediate passage away was averted for the night and for to-day.

These seemingly last moments of Pope Leo are full of solemnity. Perhaps his last hours would be less melancholy and sad if the august sufferer were less conscious of the circumstances and his mind less clear as to the time remaining before he enters eternity. Although his physical powers are at the lowest ebb and his breathing comes more labored, the Pope's mind is clear as is manifest to all around him by his bright expressive eyes and the few words he now and then succeeds in uttering.

"Take Courage."

Count Camillo Pecci, the Pope's nephew, whom the dying man kept by his bedside yesterday, was so exhausted late last night by his emotions, that he had to be taken from his uncle's room, completely worn out. A few moments before, he stood bowed beside the bed, Pope Leo laid his hand on his head with paternal affection, saying: "Take courage."

Shortly after 10 o'clock at night the Pontiff received the extreme unction. An hour before it had seemed he had but a very short time to live. The Pontiff received the announcement that extreme unction was to be given with his usual calmness, and though scarcely able to speak audibly, he said he knew his time had come, and he was ready to appear before the sublime tribunal with full trust in the divine mercy. Mgr. Pifferi, Pope Leo's confessor, administered the unction. When the ceremony was over His Holiness sank back on the pillow with apparent great relief that all was done, and that he was entering into rest after his long pilgrimage.

After the administration of the viaticum telegrams hoping for his recovery were shown to the Pope, and he appeared to be much gratified.

For Poultry-Keepers.

Poultry and Small Fruit.

Keeping of poultry combined with care of small fruit makes the land doubly useful and the profit more than double, as each crop assists in the protection of the other, while the waste enriches the soil, and, if well stirred, rotation of crops and health of fowls are better than if either is pursued alone.

With the exception of strawberries and grapes, fowls enjoy the shade of the vines, without injury to the crop, and will do much good in picking up the fallen fruit, and thereby destroying the worm, which does much toward preventing the scourge of these insects during another season. The shade, too, is very essential to fowls during the hot summer days, and while they scratch and wallow under the bush the working of the soil keeps the moisture in the ground and improves the crop. If the little chicks are free to run in the garden as well, their food will consist of worms and insects injurious to the plants; in this little difference the amount of food saved in feeding them will be many dollars during the year. Many breeders seem afraid to let their poultry have access to the garden and berry field, while I have always found their presence a benefit to the crop. My flock is healthy, free from lice and disease, always laying, and go about with a lively cackle, seemingly glad that they are so; and I reap a profit from them just because I give them nature's way as far as possible in chickendom.

To conclude, I think $20 worth of fruit, and $20 worth of eggs and poultry can be raised on a single village lot each year.—Michigan Poultry Breeder.

Great Demand for Chickens.

The present time is most favorable for the production, fattening and marketing of farm chickens. There has been such a substantial increase in the consumption of chickens and eggs within the last few years that it is not possible to rear a greater number of suitable market chickens than can be sold with profit. Last year there were not sufficient chickens sold in Canada to supply the home markets. As a result of the shortage the trade with Great Britain was lessened. This is unfortunate on account of the great demand for Canadian chickens in Great Britain and the good prices that are paid.

The chief of the poultry division, Mr. F. C. Hare, states that numerous letters have been received from produce merchants, poulterers and commission merchants who desire to learn in what localities chickens can be bought in great numbers and at reasonable prices. From several Canadian cities, and especially from Montreal, produce firms have asked to be informed where market chickens suitable for shipping to Great Britain could be obtained in the greatest numbers. British poulterers and commission merchants have repeatedly asked for the same information. The letter of a well-established produce house in London, England, was received last week. This firm wished to "start an undertaking for the purpose of importing Canadian poultry to Great Britain." They desired information as to the probable success of such a project and the possibility of obtaining poultry (especially fowls) in large quantities, and the best districts for the collection of them. Last fall a firm in Cape Colony wished a poultry trade developed with that colony. One shipment of Canadian chickens was made to Cape Colony, which arrived in a satisfactory condition and pleased the trade. A New York firm wrote that they desired to import Canadian chickens and were recommended by the department to a firm in the Maritime Provinces, from whom they purchased chickens and were impressed favorably by them.

The above and similar requests are difficult of solution even by one in touch with the Canadian produce firms and packing houses that are buying and marketing chickens. The majority of our established firms are equipped with a complete plant for marketing in Canada or Great Britain several times more chickens than they can buy. Their profits are diminished through scarcity of chickens. Nevertheless merchants in Great Britain, Cape Colony, the United States, and even in Australia, are looking to a supply of Canadian chickens to satisfy their growing trade.

The problem of supplying this wonderfully increased demand for chickens can be solved by the farmers alone. Instead of the farmer rearing fifty or a hundred chickens that receive little attention or feed, he should rear from 200 to 1,000 chickens annually. These should be of a utility type, such as can be found in the popular breeds, Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes. The chickens should be hatched and reared by incubators and brooders, and when ready for market the cockerels should be placed in fattening crates and fatted. The equipment required to do this work is not an expensive one—$200 to $250 is the cost of incubators, brooders, houses and fattening crates for finishing 1,000 chickens. It is as necessary for realizing the greatest profits from the poultry business as threshing and mowing machinery is for general farming. The work connected with finishing 1,000 chickens with the proper appliances is no more than is necessary for rearing 200 chickens by the natural means. Poultry farming is a business that requires to be developed in the same manner as the butter, cheese and fruit branches. A substantial profit can be made from the poultry business when it is carried on as an adjunct to farming, and with the same careful attention and financing.

The Dominion Department of Agriculture is endeavoring to increase the poultry trade of Canada; to encourage the growing of the greatest number of high-class chickens, and to assist in the marketing of them. A revised edition of the bulletin "Profitable Poultry Farming" has just been issued, and will be mailed without charge on application to the Commissioner of Agriculture and Dairying, Ottawa. The information it contains is of great value in the poultry work, and it should be in the hands of every interested poultryman in Canada.

"If the rising generation of American girls is not taught to use the speaking voice properly we shall develop into a race of unconscious, unintentional shrews. If some rich woman wished to bring upon her head the blessings of posterity, she should endow a chair of voice development, which would not necessarily include singing lessons." So said Miss Helen Lord, one of the prima donnas in "The Runaways," as she sat at a table in the centre of a smart restaurant. "Listen to the penetrating feminine voices all around us, shrilling, almost shrieking in head tones. And I am sure that not one of those women realizes that her remarks are being heard all over the room. If she did she would talk less of personal matters. Ride on the elevated trains or on open surface cars, and your head will ache more from the piercing voices of the women around you than from the combined din of train and street. Have you ever had a telephone ring in your ear because the woman at the other end of the wire was using head tones in talking? It is frightful. The true root of evil is that the American woman either cannot or will not use her speaking voice properly. Hundreds of dollars to cultivate a singing voice, but not one cent nor a jot of her time to improve her speaking voice! Massage and lessons in physical culture to develop a plump throat, but not five minutes a day to enlarge her chest. And yet a gentle voice is woman's most effective weapon. If a woman will stand squarely before her glass, with her shoulders back, her head high, while she slowly inflates and empties her lungs, she will secure excellent chest development. Then let her give the sound of double O (oo) as the lungs are emptied, but in rich, low tones, which she feels come straight from the chest, or, as one woman expressed to me, from the pit of her stomach, and she will have taken the first step in developing a pleasing speaking voice. Next, let her take the same position and count up to ten as slowly as possible while emitting one long breath, steadily increasing her chest expansion. Then let her practise her new speaking tone on her family, seeing how deep she can place her voice and yet be heard distinctly by members of the home circle. When on trains or walking on the street let her aim to strike a voice tone below the din, and not above it, so low, in fact, that it rings like a second or alto part in singing. She can then be heard as distinctly as if she tried to shout above the roar of street traffic, and her voice will lose that penetrating, shrill quality which is the hallmark of the ill-bred woman."—Exchange.

BABY'S FUTURE

Something for Mothers to Think About

Lives of Suffering and Sorrow Averted

And Happiness and Prosperity Assured by

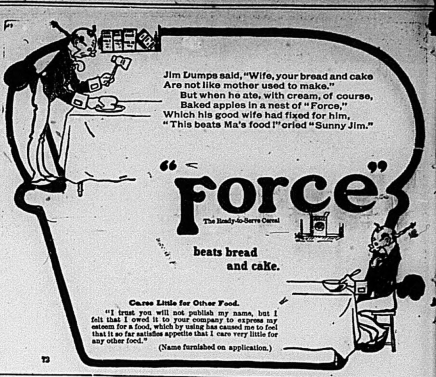
Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills When All Else Fails.

Every child born into the world with an inherited or early developed tendency to distressing, disfiguring humours of the skin, scalp and blood, becomes an object of the most tender solicitude, not only because of its suffering, but because of the dreadful fear that the disfiguration is to be lifelong and mar its future happiness and prosperity. Hence, it becomes the duty of mothers of such afflicted children to acquaint themselves with the best, the purest and most effective treatment available, viz., The Cuticura Treatment.

Warm baths with Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the skin and scalp of crusts and scales, gentle applications of Cuticura Ointment, to allay itching, irritation and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and mild doses of Cuticura Resolvent, to cool the blood in the severer cases, are all that can be desired for the speedy relief and permanent cure of skin tortured infants and children, and the comfort of worn-out parents.

Millions of women use Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair and hands, for annoying irritations and weaknesses, and for many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves.

Cuticura Resolvent, liquid and in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap are sold throughout the world. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Australia, R. Towns & Co., Sydney; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chemical Corp., Sole Proprietors.
Send for "How to Cure Baby Humours."



Jim Dumps said, "Wife, your bread and cake
Are not like mother used to make."
But when he ate, with cream, of course,
Baked apples in a nest of "Force,"
Which his good wife had fixed for him,
"This beats Ma's food!" cried "Sunny Jim."

"Force"

The Ready-to-Serve Cereal beats bread and cake.

Cares Little for Other Food.

"I trust you will not publish my name, but I felt that I owed it to your company to express my esteem for a food, which by using has caused me to feel that it so far satisfies appetite that I care very little for any other food."

(Name furnished on application.)

EVERYTHING GOING FAST

—AT—

Our Clearing Out Sale

NATHAN JONES.

The rush is on, our fine stock is rapidly disappearing, our bargains are appreciated. We now will clear out

Lace Curtains, Smyrna Rugs, Roller Linens

ALL TO GO AT GREATLY REDUCED PRICES.

Our Dress Goods at 20 p.c. off are great bargains. We urge again early buying in the day as possible.

NATHAN JONES.

First in Point of Fit.
First in durability.
First in graceful model.
First in genuine comfort.

It fits you, but does not squeeze you. It supports you, but does not burden you. It lends perfect grace to your figure, but does not weary you. You are sure to like it, sure to buy it, sure to enjoy it.

Drab, White, Black.

D & A Corsets

Are the Correct thing.

SPECIAL OFFER

MIDSUMMER CLUBBING RATES.

Two Papers to January 1st, 1904

Family Herald & Weekly Star, and the Best Home Paper—The Weekly Intelligencer, BOTH for

65 CENTS

We are making this special offer as we require 1000 new subscriptions to our Weekly.

This offer is good to new subscribers only.

ADDRESS—
The Weekly Intelligencer
BELLEVILLE, ONT.

No agents handle this offer.

The Daily Intelligencer.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL — LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL — CHARITY IN ALL.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, JULY 8, 1903 NO. 56

POPE'S WONDROUS VITALITY

Successful Operation Followed by Restless Sleep.

Cardinal Gotti Alone With the Pontiff—Interview, Supposed to Be Concerning the Affairs of the Church, Lasted Twenty Minutes—All Signs Point to Leo's Passing From Earth in a Few Hours.

Rome, July 8.—The following bulletins issued yesterday afternoon and this morning show the progress of Pope Leo's sickness:

1.25 a.m.—It is hoped that the Pope's strength will be maintained, as he has taken somewhat more nourishment, seeming to prefer the yolk of an egg with small sips of a stimulant, especially brandy.

8.30 p.m.—The condition of the Pope continues sufficiently satisfactory. His circulation and breathing are slow, but they are gradually improving.

An Operation Performed.

3.45.—The test puncture of the pleura has been made and eight hundred grams of liquid have been taken off. A rapid examination showed that some mucous was rattling in the lung which was originally affected. The Pope underwent the operation with courage. His general condition is now better, and he is resting.

4 p.m.—After the operation Dr. Mazzoni said the danger remained imminent, but the illness from which the Pope was suffering was full of surprises. His Holiness might even live three days longer.

3.15 a.m.—Pope Leo is in a troubled sleep.

Pope Sleeping at 3.45 a.m.

3.45 a.m.—Pope Leo is now sleeping, but his head lies uneasy on the pillow. The alleviation brought about by yesterday's operation of moving the fluid from his pleura was followed later in the evening by a restless period and fresh doses of chloral, digitalis and caffeine had to be administered. Under their influence the Pontiff fell into a slumber which, however, was not very peaceful on account of the difficulty the patient has in breathing.

Seeing Dr. Lapponi always at his bedside, the Pope just before falling asleep said kindly to him: "Now it is your turn to sleep. You must sleep."

Throughout the Vatican absolute calm prevailed last night, the excitement of yesterday having to a great extent died out with the revival of hope after the announcement that yesterday's operation was attended with success.

POPE OPERATED ON.

Pleura Punctured and the Aged Patient Is Relieved.

The Pope has been operated upon and his general condition was better at 2.30 p.m. yesterday. The immediate direction of the operation devolved on Mazzoni, who handled the instruments and made the preparatory arrangements. First a slight incision was made in the side of the venerable patient. A solution of alcohol and corrosive sublimate was then injected and cocoaine was used to deaden the sensation. The point of operation was just below the seventh rib and the operation itself consisted in the insertion of a large pravaz needle syringe. This penetrated to the region where the matter had accumulated, and by means of suction slowly drew it off. Unher the skillful guidance of Dr. Mazzoni the operation scarcely occupied over four minutes.

No Pain Manifested.

The Pope manifested no pain whatever, neither was there the slightest quiver from mental dread of the operation. In the language of one of the doctors, the cocoaine so deadened the parts that the Pontiff felt no more than a slight pin prick. As soon as the liquid was drawn off by the suction needle the patient felt great relief, owing to the removal of the pressure of the liquid on the lung and simultaneously the doctors could hear air passing through that zone which yesterday morning was declared to be impervious, owing to congestion. From a pathological standpoint the free passage of air was considered satisfactory; but, far more so were the results, the mental and physical relief which it brought to the Pope.

Manifested His Gratitude.

He immediately showed an exhilarating spirit. With a slight smile on his pallid face he whispered his thankfulness and bestowed benedictions on the doctors bending over him. The Pontiff even stroked Dr. Mazzoni's face in the benevolent way which is characteristic of him. Then with one hand he arranged his position, closed his eyes and in a few minutes passed into a calm, beautiful sleep. The doctors remained by the Pope's side, noting the regularity of his breathing, and pronounced the operation to have been in every way successful and leaving no perceptible adverse results.

The Pontiff Inquisitive.

The Pope afterwards expressed a desire to see the liquid which had been extracted from his thorax. The Pontiff then asked for minute explanations of the apparatus used in the operations. "It is a most ingenious instrument," he said, "but your hand is also very clever. That is why the operation was successful in not giving me any pain. I thank you."

After half an hour's peaceful and apparently refreshing repose, the Pope awoke and inquired about the doctors. Hearing they were both in the next room, he said: "I thought they had gone. What are they staying here for? What are they plotting?"

Dr. Lapponi re-entering the room said: "We were preparing bulletins regarding the operation, saying it was successful in all respects."

"Very well," replied His Holiness, "I wish to see myself these bulletins in exact text."

He then went on speaking about the causes of his illness. "I would like to know," he said, "from what it comes. I think I have always followed Dr. Lapponi's advice."

"Not always, Your Holiness," replied Dr. Lapponi, gently.

What He Could Not Do.

"Well," retorted Pope Leo, "you could not expect to remedy my old age."

After a short silence the Pope, turning to Dr. Mazzoni, said: "In the last consistory I appointed as a cardinal a fellow citizen of yours, Cardinal Marches. Do you know him?"

"Yes, Your Holiness, I know him. I hope that that will not be your last consistory."

"I am afraid so," sighed the Pope sadly, after which his head fell upon the pillow as though extremely tired, being again the prey of exhaustion. The happy and cheerful expressions of the Pontiff at the moment when he was in the very shadow of death astonished the doctors.

The Pope himself seems to glory in his ability to present a calm and bright demeanor.

Gotti Alone With the Pope.

Much significance is attached to an extended visit made by Cardinal Gotti, Prefect of the Propaganda, to the sick room, from which other conspicuous members of the Sacred College are excluded by the doctor's orders. Cardinal Gotti's interview lasted twenty minutes, even the doctors and attendants withdrawing.

Just what passed between the Pontiff and Cardinal Gotti only they know, but certainly the circumstance and length of the visit strongly support the view that the Pope was giving his attention to the administration of the affairs of the church when he himself has passed away.

None of the visiting cardinals except Cardinal Gotti saw the Pope yesterday.

The Pope's Disease.

Senile pneumonia, as its name indicates, occurs for the most part in persons who have either reached a very advanced age or have been worn out prematurely.

The general course of the disease is different from ordinary pneumonia in that there is very little expectoration and but slight febrile reaction, while the heart depression is extreme, death usually occurring quite suddenly from ultimate cardiac failure.

THE ALASKAN ARGUMENT.

Both Sides Are Now Ready—England Exchanges Counter Case With U.S. and Asks to See Maps.

Washington, July 8.—The counter cases in the Alaskan boundary matter have been exchanged within the time limit. The counter case of the United States was delivered last Friday to the British Charge d'Affaires at Newport, and at almost the same moment in London the British counter case was handed to the American Embassy. Each side is now ready for the preparation and submission of the arguments which are to be laid before the commission in London on Sept. 3.

The British Government has expressed a desire to see the originals of the charts and maps, which are the main reliance of the American agent. These include maps that never have been mentioned in connection with the case, and which the State Department has spent much time and money in obtaining from the most out of the way places.

The department has acceded to the British request.

CREDITORS GET THREE CENTS.

Fees of the Liquidator, Inspector and Counsel Amounted to $2,033.14.

Oakville, July 8.—The Anderson Bank failure matter was closed before County Judge Gorham as arbitrator here yesterday afternoon, when the fixing of the remuneration of Assignee Clarkson and that of the inspectors was made. The amount to be paid Mr. Clarkson was placed at $600 by the judge, the remuneration of the three inspectors, Messrs. George Andrews, John Macdonald and D. O. Cameron, for 50 days' work, together with expenses incurred, $133.14, was fixed at $733.14. The Hon. S. H. Blake's bill amounted to $700, and thus the total cost of closing out the affair is $2,033.14. The total assets realizable by the depositors was $8,500, together with certain property near Toronto, on which they expect to obtain $2,500 in the future. The creditors were owed $175,000. The depositors will thus get 3 cents on the dollar.

May Be $200,000.

St. Thomas, July 8.—The alleged stealings of George Rowley, ex-manager of the Elgin Loan Company, may, it is reported, now reach as high as $175,000 or $200,000. The liquidators are at present examining the mortgages, and it is said that even these show signs of having been tampered with, that numerous shortages in amounts paid on them have been discovered. The liquidators expect to make a statement of the affairs about the end of the week.

ULTIMATUM TO TURKEY.

Impression in Vienna That Bulgaria Will Send One.

London, July 8.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Vienna says the belief prevails there that Bulgaria intends to send an ultimatum to Turkey.

Afraid of Manchuria.

London, July 8.—Sir Ernest Satow, British Minister at Pekin, has arrived at Simla, India, to confer with Lord Curzon, Viceroy of India. The visit is generally attributed to the aspect of affairs in Manchuria, as an Anglo-Russian rupture would closely affect India through Afghanistan.

FLOODS IN ALBERTA.

Bow River Has Risen Five Feet—Part of Calgary Under Water.

Calgary, July 8.—A heavy rain extending from the coast started Monday, and still continues. The Bow River has risen five feet in the last twenty-four hours. It is still rising. The lower part of the city is under water. A hundred feet of the north end of Bow March bridge has gone out. A washout near Keith, thirty miles west of here, delayed the trains nine hours. The storm is abating, but with so much rain in the mountains there are grave fears of higher water.

Mr. Prior Won't Run.

Vancouver, B.C., July 8.—Ex-Premier Prior yesterday announced that he did not intend to be a candidate at the approaching provincial elections, and would not take any part in the election.

THE RIGHT TO THE STREETS

Long Discussion on Municipal Rights in Parliament.

Under Pressure Minister Blair Amends His Amending Clause of the Railway Commission Bill Dealing With This Matter—Rural Free Delivery Not Yet For Canada—Sir William Mulock Believes U.S. System Is Not a Success.

Ottawa, July 8.—The assumed rights of electric railways to enter upon the streets of a city or town without the consent of the municipality provoked a keen debate in the House last night. Clause 184 of Mr. Blair's Railway Commission bill brought on the discussion. To this clause Mr. Blair had prepared the following amended clause:

"The railway may be carried upon, along or across any existing highway, upon leave therefore having been first obtained from the board as hereinafter provided. But the board shall not grant leave to any company incorporated after the passing of this act or carry any street railway or tramway or any railway operated or to be operated as a street railway or tramway along any highway, which is within the limits of any city or incorporated town until the company shall have first obtained the consent therefore by a bylaw of the municipal authorities of such city or incorporated town."

After a discussion of some hours, in which several members vigorously attacked the amending clause, Mr. Blair proposed an amendment to his first amendment, striking out the words: "incorporated after the passing of this act," and substituting the following: "nothing in this section shall deprive the companies of rights conferred upon them by any special act of Parliament heretofore passed."

The clause as thus amended was passed.

The New Drainage Clauses.

The new drainage clauses proposed by Mr. Blair yesterday provide that the railway company may connect its drains with the drains, water courses, etc., of the lands through which the railway runs, so as to give efficient drainage and not interfere with existing drainage. Wherever lands are injuriously affected by insufficient railway drainage or whenever a municipality or land owner desires to drain across a railway application or complaint must be made to the board, accompanied by plans of the proposed drainage, the board may direct an engineer to inspect and report upon the situation, and order such work to be carried out. A land owner may also apply to the board for suitable farm crossings.

Animals at Large.

To the section dealing with animals at large, a sub-section is added, enabling the owner of cattle killed or injured on a railway to recover against the company in any competent court, if the judge is of the opinion that such cattle got at large without any negligence or wilful act or omission of the owner, and got upon the railway by reasons of fences, gates and cattle guards not being erected and maintained by the company as required by the act.

Municipal 'Phones.

Mr. Blair proposed the following amendment, which will be considered when the Railway Commission Bill is taken up again, in connection with Clause 193 of the Railway Bill:

"Whenever any municipality or corporation has authority to construct, operate and maintain a telephone system in any district, and is desirous of obtaining telephonic connection or communication with or within any station or premises of the company, in such district, and cannot agree with the company with respect thereto, such municipality or corporation may apply to the board for leave therefor, and the board may order the company to provide for such connection or communication upon such terms as to compensation as the board may deem just and expedient, and may order and direct how, when, by whom and upon what terms and conditions such telephonic connection or communication shall be constructed, operated and maintained."

Rural Free Delivery.

The Committee rose, and the House went into committee on the Postoffice estimates.

In the course of the discussion which followed, the Postmaster-General announced that it was not his intention to institute a system of rural postal delivery. He was satisfied that the reports as to the success of the system in the United States were fallacious, and he would wait for more practical results of the working of the system in the United States before attempting its introduction into Canada.

Canada and South Africa.

Sir Richard Cartwright tabled a copy of the contract between the Dominion Government and the Allan, Elder-Dempster and Furness Steamship Companies for a monthly steamship service between Canada and South Africa. The contract runs for five years from the 1st October, 1902, the annual subsidy being $150,000 per year. The contractors to forfeit $200 for one day's delay in sailing. The steamers are to be equipped with cold storage, and in the case of dispute as to compliance with the terms of the contract, Sir Richard Cartwright is to be the sole arbitrator.

The Municipalities Aroused.

Ottawa, July 8.—A conference was held last night by Mayor Urquhart, Toronto; Mayor Cook, ex-Mayor Lighthall, Westmount, and ex-Mayor Morris, on the question of corporate assault upon municipal rights. In view of the aggression of the Toronto Street Railway and other companies the conference discussed the advisability of calling a meeting of representatives of all the Canadian municipalities at Ottawa to take steps to meet the issue.

As to the Elgins.

Ottawa, July 8.—It is announced through an authoritative source that the new redistribution bill will constitute the Elgins for the Dominion House the same as they now are for local purposes. Of course, the portions of Kent now in West Elgin will return to their old county.

The Government Caucus.

Ottawa, July 8.—There was a big turnout of Liberal members and Senators for the party caucus in Room 16 yesterday. Archie Campbell of Toronto presided.

As the Prime Minister was only able to remain for a few minutes, consideration of the transcontinental railway question was laid over till day after to-morrow.

The meeting, however, endorsed the proposition for a fifteen thousand dollar grant from the public treasury towards the establishment of a direct cable service from the Old Country to Canadian newspapers.

The Ministerial policy of $15 a ton bounty on lead was endorsed by those present.

TWENTY-THREE KILLED.

Passenger Train Crashes Into a Freight at Rockfish, Va., That Did Not Obey Orders.

Washington, July 8.—Twenty-three persons were killed and nine persons injured in a head-on collision in the Virginia Midland Division of the Southern Railway at Rockfish, Va., about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Passenger train No. 35, leaving Washington at 11.15 a.m. yesterday for Atlanta, Ga., dashed into a local freight, No. 68. Both engines, baggage, express and second-class passenger coach of No. 35 were wrecked. The coach was occupied chiefly by colored people.

The freight train was in charge of Conductor Brubeck and Engineer Hale, and at the time of the accident was on the return trip from Lynchburg to Charlotteville. Rockfish Station is midway between these two points and the track is a single one. Engineer Hale had orders to get out of the way of the passenger train, but for some reason failed to take a siding. The trains came together with a horrible crash and a fearful scene of panic ensued.

PROTEST FILED IN NORTH GREY.

And Petitioner's Evidence May Disqualify Mr. MacKay.

Owen Sound, July 8.—The petition of protest against the election of Alexander G. MacKay was filed with the local registrar of the High Court, W. A. Bishop, by a local solicitor representing Bristol, Bailey & Armour of Toronto, which firm had been conducting the appeal. The document, like the original form of petition, includes the usual charges of bribery and corruption, and asks for the disqualification of Mr. MacKay.

George M. Boyd, the petitioner, came down from Manitoulin Island on Sunday, accompanied by R. R. Gamey. When seen yesterday, Mr. Boyd said that the evidence that would be offered was of the most formidable character, and he believed that the seat would not only be reopened but that his opponent would be disqualified.

A. G. MacKay, M.P.P., Ill.

Toronto, July 8.—Mr. A. G. MacKay, member of the Legislature for North Grey, is seriously ill at the Rossin House with inflammatory rheumatism, and it is doubtful if he will recover. He was in very bad condition Monday, and yesterday was not so well.

WATER'S VICTIMS.

George Thornton Took a Fit on the River Bank at Brantford.

Calgary, N.W.T., July 8.—Harrie Sharples, a patient at the Holy Cross Hospital, escaped yesterday morning, plunged in, and was drowned.

Brantford, July 8.—George Thornton, 47 years of age, who came here about six months ago from Woodstock, was drowned in the Grand River. The deceased was an enthusiastic angler, but was subject to fits. Yesterday afternoon he went fishing, and it is supposed that a fit came on as his body was lying partly on the bank, his head being under water.

Winnipeg, July 8.—A young English lad named Edward Priestly was drowned in a slough north of Indian Head.

Major Maude's Gruesome Find.

Ottawa, July 8.—The body of the 11-year-old daughter of John Cyr of Ironsides was found floating in the Gatineau River about half a mile above the C.P.R. bridge by Major Maude, who was with a party in a naptha launch.

WEAK AND EXHAUSTED.

"Though weak and exhausted I was often unable to eat. After taking Angier's Petroleum Emulsion for two weeks I was able to eat and enjoy three meals a day, and the nervousness left me entirely."—M. E. Nesbitt, Toronto, Canada.

NESTLE'S FOOD.

NESTLÉ'S FOOD.

The selection of a proper food for the baby is of vital importance It must be nourishing, easily assimilated, readily digested, and must never vary in quality.

Nestlé's Food has all these requisites. It is made from cow's milk—the most nourishing of all substances—and requires only the addition of water to be ready for use.

Samples (sufficient for eight meals) free.

LEEMING MILES & CO. MONTREAL.

SHERIFF BETTES RESIGNS.

Mr. H. B. Bridgland of Gravenhurst Appointed in His Stead.

Toronto, July 8.—The resignation of Mr. W. J. Bettes as Sheriff of Muskoka has been received and accepted by the Government, and Mr. Henry B. Bridgeland, Gravenhurst, brother of the late Dr. Samuel Bridgland, M.P.P., was yesterday appointed to the office.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Unchanged—Buffalo and New York Markets Steady.

London, July 7.—Live cattle steady at 11½c to 12c per lb. for American steers, dressed weight; Canadian steers, 10½c to 11½c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 9½c per lb.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Receipts of live stock were moderate, 61 carloads, composed of 773 cattle, 500 hogs, 1502 sheep and lambs, 50 calves.

Exporters—Best loads exporters are worth $5 to $5.25 per cwt.; medium to good at about $4.75 to $4.90.

Export Bulls—Choice quality bulls sold at $4 to $4.30 per cwt.; good bulls sold at $3.60 to $3.80 per cwt.

Export Cows—Export cows sold at $4.25 per cwt.

Butchers' Cattle—Choice picked lots of butchers, weighing from 1025 to 1100 lbs. each, equal in quality to best exporters, sold at $4.65 to $4.75; loads of good sold at $4.50 to $4.60; fair to good, $4.50; common, $4 to $4.25; rough to inferior, $3.50 to $3.90.

Feeders—Steers of good quality, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, are worth $4 to $4.40 per cwt.

Short-keep Feeders—Good steers, 1100 to 1200 lbs. each, are worth $4.50 to $4.75 per cwt.

Stockers—One-year to two-year-old steers, 400 to 700 lbs. each, are worth $3.50 to $3.90 per cwt.; off-colors and of poor breeding quality of same weights are worth $2.75 to $3 per cwt.

Milch Cows—Milch cows and springers are worth $25 to $50 each.

Calves—Calves sold at $2 to $8 each, or from $4.50 to $5.50 per cwt.

Sheep—Prices, $3.50 to $3.75 per cwt. for ewes, and bucks at $2.75 to $3.

Spring Lambs—Prices easy at $2.50 to $4 each.

Hogs—Best select bacon hogs, not less than 160 lbs., nor more than 200 lbs. each, off cars, sold at $5.65 per cwt.; lights and fats at $5.40; sows, $4 to $4.25 per cwt., and stags, $2 to $3 per cwt.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, N. Y., July 7.—Cattle—Receipts, 750 head; steady; prime and shipping steers, $4.75 to $5.25; butchers', $3.85 to $4.70; cows and heifers, $2.50 to $4.40; bulls, $3 to $4.15; stockers and feeders, $3 to $4.15; veals, steady, $5.25 to $6.50. Hogs—Receipts, 9100 head; fairly active, 5c to 20c lower; heavy, $5.90 to $5.92½; mixed, $5.90 to $6; Yorkers, $6.05 to $6.10; light Yorkers, $6.10 to $6.15; pigs, $6.30 to $6.40; roughs, $5.15 to $5.25; stags, $4 to $4.50. Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 800 head; steady; lambs, $4 to $6; yearlings, $4.25 to $4.50; wethers, $4.25 to $4.50; ewes, $3.50 to $3.65; sheep, mixed, $2 to $4.

NEW YORK LIVE STOCK.

New York, July 7.—Beeves—Receipts, 15 head; no sales reported; exports to-day, beef estimated, 1212 beeves, 1050 sheep, 3000 quarters of beef. Calves—Receipts, 106; extremely dull, with a few sales at about steady prices; veals sold at $5.50 to $6.50 per 100 lbs; a bunch of buttermilk calves at $3. Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 5022; sheep generally steady and good grades, firm if not too heavy; lambs slow, about steady in price; sheep, $3 to $4.50; lambs, $5 to $6.85; one car at $7. Hogs—Receipts, 504 head, nearly all consigned direct; no sales reported.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, July 7.—Cattle—Receipts, 15,000; slow; good to prime steers, $4.80 to $5.40; poor to medium, $3.90 to $4.60; stockers and feeders, $2.50 to $4.50; cows and heifers, $1.50 to $4.40; canners, $1.50 to $2.75; bulls, $2.25 to $4.15; calves, $2.50 to $5.75.

Hogs—Receipts, 13,000; light steady; heavy 10c to 15c lower; mixed and butchers', $5.65 to $5.85; good to choice, heavy, $5.60 to $5.75; rough, heavy, $5.40 to $5.60; light, $5.65 to $5.95; bulk of sales, $5.60 to $5.75.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 6000; sheep and lambs firm; good to choice wethers, $3.75 to $4; fair to choice, mixed, $3 to $3.60; native lambs, $3.50 to $6.40.

SINCLAIR'S AD SINCLAIR'S AD.

Are You Interested?

In underpriced Dress Muslins and Wash Goods. In connection with our Mid-Summer Clearing Sale we make these very attractive prices to clear all our Summer Cotton Wash Goods.

All our Fancy Dress Muslins from 15c to 20c are now on sale at	10c yd.
All our Scotch Ginghams from 15c to 20c are now on sale at	12½c yd.
All our Fancy Dress Sateens from 25c to 35c are now on sale at	15c yd.
All our Fancy Dress Muslins from 25c to 35c are now on sale at	19c yd.
All our Best Dress Muslins from 40c to 60c are now on sale at	35c yd.

Stylish Shirt Waists

We have just placed in stock some very New Styles in Ladies' White Muslin Shirt Waists to sell at $1.25, $1.50, $1.75 and $2.00 each; also

NEW WASH SILK WAISTS

In Black and White Jap Wash Taffetas, very nicely tucked, to sell at $3.00 each.

Fancy Parasol Clearing

We have all our Ladies' Fancy Parasols on sale and marked to clear at 25 per cent. off regular prices.

The New Idea Magazine. August Number is now on sale. Price 5c.

D. V. SINCLAIR & CO.

30 Retail Stores DAVIES 30 Retail Stores

DAVIES, Headquarters for cooked meats, of which they have 32 varieties, Jellied, Cooked and Ready to Serve.

Davies make a specialty of supplying picnic and campers with all the neccessaries in Food Products during the summer months. Davies Pickles, Sauces and Catsup guaranteed, pure and unadulterated, which add to the relish of all meals.

Our store will be closed every Wednesday at 12 o'clock during the months of July and August.

Daily Deliveries, Shop Early or Use Phone 286.

The WM. DAVIES CO., Limited.

For Torpid Liver, Flatulence, Constipation, Biliousness and Sick Headache, TAKE

BRISTOL'S Pills

Safe, Mild, Quick-acting, Painless, do not weaken, and always give satisfaction.

Reliable Household Medicine, can be taken at any season, by Adults or Children.

Druggists sell "BRISTOL'S."

RAILWAY TIME TABLES.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Time of departure from Belleville Station:

Going East.

New train 12.45 a.m., daily, except Sunday, for Brockville, Montreal and intermediate stations.

No. 16—Local, for Brockville, 7 a.m., arrives back from Brockville 8.40 p.m.

No. 2—1.45 a.m., Mail and Express, (Flyer), Daily.

No. 6—11.43 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.

No. 4—12.22 p.m., International Limited, Daily.

No. 12—5.55 p.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.

Going West.

No. 5—3 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily except Monday.

No. 3—4.10 a.m., Limited Express, Daily.

No. 9—5.50 a.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.

No. 11—11.22 a.m., Passenger, Daily except Sunday.

No. 1—1.48 p.m., International Limited, Daily.

No. 7—5.12 p.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.

Taking effect 12.01 o'clock, Sunday, June 14, 1903.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.

Belleville and Peterboro.

Going West.

	Leave.	Arr. Peterboro
Mail	5.45 a.m.	8.10 a.m.
Mixed	5.55 p.m.	9.05 p.m.

Going East.

	Arr.	L've Peterboro
Mixed	11.20 a.m.	8.25 a.m.
Mail	4.35 p.m.	8.05 p.m.

Belleville and Madoc.

Going North.

	L've	Arr. Madoc
Mixed	12.20 p.m.	1.20 p.m.
Mixed	6.30 p.m.	7.40 p.m.

Going South.

	Arr.	L've Madoc
Mixed	9.10 a.m.	7.30 a.m.
Mixed	5.00 p.m.	8.45 p.m.

None of the above trains run on Sunday.

At Wallbridge & Clarke's

Seasonable Supplies

Montserrat Lime Juice
Raspberry Vinegar (Crosse & Blackwell's)
Gurd's Ginger Ale & Soda Water
Apollinaris and Radnor Water
Pabst Milwaukee Lager.

Clarets and Sauterne

Barton & Guestier's Bordeaux Clarets
Barton & Guestier's Bordeaux Sauterne
Nath. Johnston's Clarets
Rhine Wine and Burgundy
Light Canadian Wines—Red or White

Canned Meats

New Packs. Finest Quality.

Whole Ox Tongues
Lunch Tongues
Lamb's Tongues
Boned Chicken
Boned Turkey
Boned Duck
Pate de foie
Potted Ham
Potted Tongue
Sliced Dried Beef
Ham Loaf
Veal Loaf
Chicken Tamales
Lunch Beef
Lunch Bacon
Chicken, Ham & Tongue
Pigs Feet
Jellied Tenderloins
Vienna Sausages
Luncheon Sausages
Baked Beans—Plain or in Tomato or Chili Sauce, etc., etc., etc.

Camp & Picnic Supplies

Essence of Coffee—Patterson's, Symington's or Crosse & Blackwell's.
Condensed Milk, Evaporated Cream, etc.
Fancy Biscuits
Fine Old Cheese
Pickles and Sauces
Fine Teas and Coffee
Soups and Vegetables
French Sardines
New Pack Lobster and Shrimps
Salmon, Scallops, Tunny Fish, etc.

WALLBRIDGE & CLARKE

Bridge St.—Tel. 139.
Branch store Front St.—Tel. 157.

DON'T

Go camping out, without a bottle of MOSQUITO-SCAT it's guaranteed to keep Flies, Mosquitoes, etc., away. A 15c bottle will ensure plenty of comfort and rest.

WATERS'

Coin Pay Envelopes at The Intelligencer Job Office. Cheapest and best in the city.

Daily Intelligencer.

WANTED — A TRANSPORTATION POLICY.

The Micawber-like Government at Ottawa is still undecided as to its transportation policy. It has submitted to Parliament a proposal to guarantee the bonds of the Canadian Northern Railway for new lines in the Northwest Territories, which will eventually form part of a transcontinental line, but the Minister of Railways was only able to give the most meagre details of the effect of its policy on the general question of transportation. Over a year ago it was announced that the administration intended to assist the Mackenzie & Mann system because of its importance from a national standpoint. With twelve months to consider what course it should adopt, it has failed to reach a decision, and the transportation question will still be held in abeyance for some time to come. In this as in other matters the Laurier cabinet is unwilling to take a lead and face the consequences. It must first gauge public opinion, and as this has already consumed the seven years since the Liberals came into power, the prospects for an early decision are indeed remote. The government of no policy should go.

TIMELY TOPICS

The London (Ont.) Free Press asserts that "the salmon can, for short distances, travel at the rate of 25 miles an hour." Does not that depend on the strength of the man who throws the salmon can?—Buffalo Express.

• • •

As between a calm, hot air and a cool breeze that stirs up the street dust, which do you prefer?

• • •

Sir Ralph William Payne, of Galway, recommends the use of shotguns to stop automobilists who try to run away after causing an accident. A man who goes around with a shotgun looking for somebody to run him down stands very slim chances of getting an opportunity to use it.

• • •

Editor The Intelligencer: Please tell me what the letters "R.S.V.P." mean in the lower left corner of an invitation. LILLIAN.

The letters stand for the French phrase, "respondez sil vous plait."—meaning, "Answer, if you please."

• • •

Dr. Patton was delivering a lecture recently in his course on ethics at the Princeton Theological Seminary and experienced much annoyance because some of the students ate peanuts instead of attending to him. Finally he administered this rebuke: "Gentlemen, I have delayed starting the most important part of to-day's lecture hoping that the stock of peanuts would be consumed and a restful quiet be restored. As the quantity seems ample to meet the demands and the supply seems inexhaustible, I feel constrained to request that your appetites be restrained until the conclusion of the lecture. I would be greatly pleased if, in the future anyone wishing to conduct a five o'clock tea in the class room would confine the refreshments to sponge cake."

• • •

The recent Chinese census gave the population of the Empire at about 426,000,000.

• • •

Vacation talk is popular, but the man who works this summer is likely to be the same chap who is ahead of the game next winter.

• • •

A Toronto minister says many of the women in his city are smokers. Is this meant for a tip to the tobacco dealers?

• • •

No more do friends ask where you got
That hat, as once they did.
Instead they say, "Hello, old man,
Where did you get the lid?"

• • •

Ten alligators have been found in a New Jersey stream. Possibly the mosquitoes imported the saurians to bite those officious persons who have taken to spreading oil on the waters.

• • •

Before being admitted to the bar the young legal aspirant studies law. Afterward he is obliged to study his clients.

• • •

No one knows how many cups Sir Thomas "has lifted," what is the use in saying he has not "raised any?"

• • •

Belleville has a paid Solicitor, as everyone knows. In the face of this fact, is it necessary to spend the money of our town in Toronto, getting an opinion different, or possibly THE SAME as that given by Mr. Mikel? Many say it is not.

• • •

Suppose the Toronto opinion upon the rail question should be "you can sell," would the Aldermen who "are said to own Cement stock" vote that the rails be sold to that corporation at a lower rate than others offer?

• • •

If these gentlemen do they should certainly be removed from office without delay.

Salted Peanuts

Next time you are passing our window we would like you to notice the new style package we have just imported from the States for our Salted Peanuts.

This package keeps the air away from the Peanuts thus keeping them dry and crisp, and preserving the flavor.

J. ARTHUR MARSH.

THERE IS
No Silk So Smooth,
No Silk So Long,
No Silk So Strong as
Corticelli
THE DRESSMAKERS FAVORITE SPOOL SILK
"Too Strong To Break"

MR. R. R. GAMEY,

THE MAN FROM MANITOULIN, IN TOWN.

Last night's train from the west brought three prominent members of the local Legislature into our fair city, namely, Mr. R. R. Gamey, Dr. Beattie Nesbitt and Mr. M. B. Morrison. They immediately went to the Quinte and thence to the Conservative rooms, where they were met by a number of friends. They came on no special mission other than to visit the city.

This morning it soon became noised about that the Man from Manitoulin, who had done so much to show up the corrupt methods of the Grits and got so little justice, was in town. To be sure every one wished to see him, and we can assure you that he was not at all like the Grit cartoonist depicted him. He is the mildest kind of man and quite a clever conversationalist.

During the morning he was shown about the city by Mr. Mikel, President of the Conservative Auxiliary. Shortly after lunch he returned to Toronto. Dr. Beattie Nesbitt and Mr. Thompson, son-in-law and private secretary of J. P. Whitney, M.P.P. (who was with the party), went east on the 12.17 p.m. train. Mr. Morrison returned to Trenton by the early train this morning.

The visitors were delighted with the park and the city generally.

Mr. Gamey states that since the House prorogued he has spent his time in Gore Bay, and has met with a friendly reception. He shortly intends to embark on a tour in all parts of the island, and will try to meet all his constituents. A big reunion will be held some time later.

TWO BIG SALES.

We wish to again draw your attention to the two special sales at the Oak Hall this week. All kinds of summer clothing 20 per cent. off and a window full of 50c, 75c, and $1 straw hats, clearing at 25c each. Don't miss this opportunity.

Y. M. C. A. Notes

At the Y. M. C. A. Board meeting last night the resignation of Dr. Galbraith was read, and Mr. D. V. Sinclair was unanimously chosen as his successor to the Presidency of the Association.

The vacancy caused by the removal of Dr. Galbraith was filled by the election of Dr. M. J. Clarke to the Board of Directors, his term to expire Jan. 1st, 1906.

Information regarding either of our summer camps will be cheerfully furnished on application to the Secretaries at the Association.—Com.

LONG LIFE TO YOUR SHOES

FOOT ELM MAKES SHOES LAST LONG.

Fully fifty per cent. is added to the wear of your shoes if you use Foot Elm. It keeps the leather soft and pliable, prevents hardening and cracking, and keeps the shoes dry, sweet and wholesome.

Besides this think of the comfort you have from the first day you wear the shoes till you discard them. It makes shoes easy to wear. Foot Elm is 25 cents a box, at druggists or by mail. B. I. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

PERSONAL ...AND... SOCIAL.

The Intelligencer invites all its readers to contribute to this column all items of a personal nature, such as the arrival or departure of guests, and the movements of business men, etc. Send a post card to or telephone The Intelligencer.

Mr. Willie Logue, of Picton, is visiting in the city.

Mr. Harry Pringle is spending his holidays in Toronto.

Rev. Mr. Gilliland is spending a few days at Wellington.

Mr. J. W. Pearce, M.P.P., of Marmora, was in the city to-day.

The Rev. Dr. Galbraith and family went to Toronto this morning.

E. H. Thompson, son-in-law of J. P. Whitney, Esq., is a guest at the Quinte.

Mr. Jas. D. Ford, editor of The Intelligencer, is holidaying at Wellington.

Misses Allen, of Ottawa, are visiting their aunt, Mrs. Young, Pine street.

Mrs. H. Hampton left to-day on a visit to relatives at Gananoque and Lansdowne.

Mrs. W. H. Hart and daughter, have gone to Kincardine to visit relatives.

Mr. W. J. Osborne, now of Fredericton, N.B., is in the city and will remain for a couple of weeks.

Mrs. (Dr.) Eakins, of Toronto, is visiting in Napanee, and will probably be here for several weeks.

Mr. Allen A. Schryver, now of Toronto, who was home on a brief visit, returned to the Queen City yesterday.

Mrs. George Sulman, Miss Dorothy and Masters George and Ted, of Chatham, are in the city the guests of Ald. Sulman.

R. R. Gamey, M.P.P., Manitoulin, was a guest at the Quinte over night in company with Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, M.P.P.

Mr. John Murray, formerly chief despatcher of the G.T.R. here, now of Montreal, and his niece, Miss Petrie, of Toronto, are in the city to-day. Mr. Murray had a busy time shaking hands.

At the Quinte: R. W. Ross, P. T. Perrott, D. M. Kenney, wife and daughter, J. D. Jones, P. Hahn, F. J. P. Gibson, L. M. Harris, G. A. Bilton, R. G. Wright, B. Nesbitt, E. H. Thompson, R. R. Gamey, A. Ansley, A. R. Gilmour, J. W. Williamson, Mrs. J. A. Wallbridge, S. J. Sharpe, Toronto; N. E. Maloney, J. Alexander, G. Lewis, J. F. Egan, J. Murray, S. W. Surtees, Miss Petrie, C. D. Fisher, Montreal; J. J. Roberts, Port Hope; A. Foster, Berlin; R. McDonald, Guelph; P. Carroll, Peterboro; A. Carman, Stratford; J. A. Wilson, Ingersoll; T. P. Thompson, Kingston; C. L. Farnsworth, Ottawa; M. B. Morrison, Trenton; Mrs. J. H. Smellie and son, Hammond's Point; C. M. Wallbridge, Madoc; C. B. Durfie, Ashland, Ohio.; J. W. Pearce, Marmora; J. McIntosh, Paris; M. Thwaite, Oshawa.

In the Justice Shop.

John N. Moore, Wm. Hamilton and Jos. Fox were to-day on trial on the charge of stealing $100 from D. Mumby, of Madoc township. The case was in progress this afternoon when we went to press. Mr. Anderson for Crown and Mr. McMahon for the accused.

Drunk.

Robert Bates, an old offender, was up on this charge. As he had not appeared before the Magistrate for for some time, he was allowed to go.

SERGEANTS' MESS 15th REGIMENT. A. L. I.

The regular annual meeting of Sergeants will be held on Friday, July 10th. All Sergeants are requested to attend. Election of officers and general business.

WM. ARIS, Sergt-Major.

TUFTSVILLE.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Eggleton, of Madoc, have been visiting friends here during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Cooke, of Thurlow, and Mr. and Mrs. Fitchett, of Tweed, have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Juby.

Mr. Robert Tufts, of High Grove farm, Tweed, presented his daughter, Mrs. Samuel Stapley, with a fine Jersey cow and calf.

Mrs. A. W. Andrews is on the sick list.

Mr. Philip B. Hamilton, of Rossmore, spent Sunday here, the guest of his father-in-aw, Mr. Tufts.

Mrs. Sheldrick, of Madoc, is visiting her niece, Mrs. Albert Eggleton.

Mrs. Herbert Zufelt, of Consecon, is visiting here with her children.

No Reasonable Man expects to cure a neglected cold in a day. But time and Allen's Lung Balsam will overcome the cold and stave off consumption. Cough will cease and lungs be sound as a new dollar.

1,000 ISLANDS AND ROCHESTER.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian" leave Belleville for Thousand Islands at 3.25 a.m., daily except Mondays. Fare $1.00. Returning Str. leaves at 11.38 p.m. for Rochester, N.Y. m26d&w3m

ROMAN HOT BATHS.

They May Have Caused the Downfall of the Imperial City.

When Rome was in her glory and men were strong and women beautiful, they set first importance upon the bath. There were 800 public baths in imperial Rome.

Before taking a bath the Roman took a little exercise. In the later history of Rome the room in which he undressed was heated, and after undressing he was anointed with oil. Then came the scratching and rubbing of the skin with the strigil. Following this perspiration was promoted by heated air or a hot bath. The bath was completed with a cold douche or cold plunge. Finally the body was anointed again.

It is believed by many writers that the introduction of the hot bath in the place of the cold bath among the Romans was the principal cause of their downfall. The luxury of the hot bath was weakening and destroyed that personal valor and hardihood for which the Romans were notorious in their earlier history.

Little by little the enervating influence of the hot bath gradually sapped away the vitality of the Roman soldier until the more hardy men of the north found them very easy foes to conquer.

Passing of the Aristocrats.

The Revolution, in giving us a separate nationality, had not destroyed time honored traditions. Our manners and customs were English, bred in the bone; our point of view that of the mother country. Freedom and equality were political terms that no one dreamed of applying to social life. What gave position at that time was inherited distinction. Its possession was free from self consciousness—simply an advantage of birth, which that Providence who had always shown an affinity to hierarchies saw fit to bestow on a favored class. The community was divided by the grace of God into gentlemen—and others; perhaps it would be more exact to say gentlemen, their servants and others. The privacy of these gentlemen concerned themselves only. There were no "social happenings" heralded in their newspapers to force notoriety upon family life. How it would have astonished those early aristocrats if they could have anticipated the fictitious importance later days would attach to their privileges!—Elizabeth Duer in Smart Set.

Oriental Jugglery.

An eyewitness of a celebrated feat of oriental jugglery tells the following story of what he thought he saw a band of Indian fakirs accomplish: "They produced a chain seventy-five feet in length and in my presence threw one end of it toward the sky, where it remained as if fastened to something in the air. A dog was then brought forward and, being placed at the lower end of the chain, immediately ran up and, reaching the other end, disappeared in the air. In the same manner a hog, a panther, a lion and a tiger were successively sent up the chain, and all disappeared at the upper end. At last they pulled down the chain and put it in a bag, no one ever discovering in what manner the different animals were made to vanish."

Spanish Brides.

There are no bridesmaids at a Spanish wedding, but instead a madrina (literally godmother) is present with the witnesses. There is no bride cake, but there is a reception and very often a feast after the ceremony. Before the wedding takes place the bride's new home is made ready for her reception, for the honeymooners do not start on their travels until the day after their marriage.

Before their departure they pay a polite visit to their respective parents. On their return dainty sweetmeats in pretty boxes are sent round to their friends. No visits are paid till little cards have been sent "offering their house."

A Lightning Change Artist.

The rapidity with which chameleons change their color is marvelous. You gather one from an outdoor shrub and it immediately becomes dark, almost black, hissing and with its mouth wide open, threatening to bite. Meanwhile it is never still, but continues to crawl upward whenever possible—up you, up your sleeve, always upward. By degrees the angry black changes into whatever color is nearest. If one's dress is of a brownish color so is the chameleon's.

Greed.

"Don't you think that people pay too much attention to money nowadays?"

"No, I don't," answered Senator Sorghum. "Time was when a five dollar bill looked as big as a farm to a member of the legislature. Now he won't pay any attention to it whatever."

Expert at It.

Townley—This paper says that one of those idiotic colleges is going to make Senator Boodler a "doctor of laws."

Brownley—Well, that's appropriate enough. He doctors the laws every time he gets a chance.—Exchange.

A Money Saver.

City Guest—Why don't you have your windows washed, landlord? I can't see out.

Country Innkeeper—No, don't want 'em cleaned. If they were clean I'd have to get curtains to keep the sun out.

Men do not change much, after all. Three hundred years ago a wise man wrote this: "A man knows little who tells his wife all he knows."—Atchison Globe.

The Sunlight way of washing requires little or no rubbing. You should try Sunlight Soap. Will not injure dainty fabrics.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

THE WEATHER.

To-day's Probs—

Moderate to fresh southwest winds, fine. Thursday moderate southwest winds, fair and warm, with scattered showers.

To-day's Temperature

As Registered by The Intelligencer's Guaranteed Thermometer:

8 a.m.	75
12 m.	86
2 p.m.	89
3 p.m.	90

To benefit from any other outing the Baths and Waters of the MAGI Caledonia Springs must be first taken. Season now open.

Encourage Your Boy.

Offer him a reward for proficiency at school.

If he had his say of what he should get he'd be pretty sure to take a watch.

Give him a watch.

There isn't a more serviceable article, nor one that would give a boy more pleasure.

We sell guaranteed movements, bearing our name, in different cases from $6.00 up.

Angus McFee.
Jeweler & Optician
310 Front St.

MILLINERY
—AT—
Half Price

All our Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats at HALF PRICE.

A few very choice ones still to choose from.

10 per cent. off Corsets Thursday Friday and Saturday.

MISS IRWIN
Millinery and Corset Specialist

W. H. JESSOP
"VOCAL TEACHER"
STUDIO "KARN HALL," Montreal

After Monday, 6th JULY, will be in Belleville until 1st SEPTEMBER.

Studio in Belleville "FORRESTERS' HALL," over Mr. S. Burrows Office.

VOICES TRIED FREE.

Further information at Mr. W. B. Riggs' Music Store.

BLESSINGTON.

Mrs. James Hodge and daughter are spending this week with her brother, Mr. R. A. Roblin.

Mr. T. Vanmeer passed away yesterday, after an illness of some weeks.

Mr. William Johnson is ill with rheumatism.

Mrs. Owen Roblin spent last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Gibson, of Mount Pleasant.

Harvest has begun here in earnest, the mowers making the music of the day.

BUILDING.

R. McPherson, late foreman with Thos. Hanley, continues the same business at the same stand, executing, in first-class style, orders for Church and Office Furniture, Mantels, Grills, Artistic effects, etc. Carving to the trade a specialty. Will form class for instructions in carving. j8d&w1m

Coin Pay Envelopes at The Intelligencer Job Office. Cheapest and best in the city.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

MEDICAL.

JOHN J. FARLEY, M.D., C.M., M.R., C.S., England.
Office and Residence — Corner of Bridge and George streets — three streets East of Post Office.

DR. J. F. MATHER
Has removed his office to Pinnacle St., three doors north of Hotel Quinte.
my29-6mw

LEGAL.

WILLS & WRIGHT,
Barristers, Solicitors, Notary Public, &c., Belleville.
Office—8 Campbell Street.

MALCOLM WRIGHT. J. FRANKLIN WILLS.
Money to Loan at Lowest Rates.

W. C. MIKEL, B. C. L.,
Barrister, &c.
Solicitor for the City of Belleville,
Office—Metropolitan Block, Corner Front and Campbell Streets.

PORTER & CARNEW,
Barristers, Solicitors, Notaries Public, etc.
Offices — Robertson Block, East Front St., Belleville, Ont.
'Phone 87.
E. G. PORTER. WM. CARNEW.

WILLIAM N. PONTON,
Barrister-at-law, Solicitor, Notary Public, Conveyancer. Office over Express and Telegraph Office, Bridge Street, Belleville.
Money to Loan — Private Funds, Solicitor Sun and Hastings Savings and Loan Company of Ontario.

FRANCIS S. WALLBRIDGE,
Successor to Hon. Lewis Wallbridge, Q.C.
Barrister, Solicitor, Conveyancer, Etc. Office, McAnnany Building, corner Front and Bridge Sts., Belleville, Ont. Private and Company money to loan at 6 per cent., on easy terms upon good land security.
Charges moderate.

INSURANCE.

Fire Insurance.

Guardian	Est'd 1821
The North America,	Est'd 1792
Quebec,	Est'd 1818

City, Town and Village Property insure at lowest rates.
R. W. ADAMS. Agent.
Office opposite Post Office.

PERSONS desiring Life insurance cannot do better than consult
W. J. THOMSON,
who is the Agent for the following well-known and old established Assurance Companies:
ROYAL. ALLIANCE.
OCEAN ACCIDENT STANDARD LIFE
Office at Rathbun Co., Bridge St. ocs-d&w

FIRE, LIFE & ACCIDENT INSURANCE
At Lowest Rates The Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Perth Mutual on farm and city property. Also money to loan at 4½ per cent. upwards.
JAMES A. CHISHOLM,
Office Ashley Block, Front st., Belleville.

THOS. STEWART,
Insurance and Commission Agent.
Agent for the Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Scottish Union National Ins. Co.
BRIDGE ST.

Money Saved is Money Earned
can earn you money by saving it for you in your Fire Insurance.
The Anglo-American Fire Ins. Co.
The Merchants Fire Ins. Co.
The Equity Fire Ins. Co.
Are all strong Canadian stock companies and insure Farm and City Property at lower rate than other stock companies. Call and see me before placing your fire insurance.
Office—Bridge St., same entrance Quinte Laundry, Belleville.
H. FREEMAN KETCHESON

Fire, Life & Plate Glass Insurance.
Liverpool & London & Globe of England.
Waterloo Mutual, of Waterloo, Ont.
Lloyd's Plate Glass,
Home Life Association, Toronto,
North British & Mercantile,
Farm and City Property insured in First-class Reliable Companies and at lowest current rates. Losses promptly settled. Land valuation, and transact general Real Estate business and sale or purchase and renting of property. Appraiser for the Hastings Loan & Investment Society. Money to Loan.
W. P. HUDSON, Office above Rathbun's office, cor. Bridge and Pinnacle Sts., opposite Postoffice and Hotel Quinte, Belleville,
'Phone 168.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A. G. NORTHROP,
Issuer of Marriage Licenses, Shire Hall, Belleville, Ont.

CHAUNCEY ASHLEY,
Issuer of Marriage Licenses.
Private Office, Bridge St., Belleville, opposite the Post Office.
Residence, first house east of W. F. Chown's Mfg. Co., Station St.
Appointments made.

REMOVAL.
Dr. Clarke has removed to the offices formerly occupied by the late Dr. Ward over Burrows', and opposite Scantlebury's Book Store.
a27dtf

FAST MAIL SERVICE
Bay of Quinte Route
TO
ROCHESTER N. Y.
Strs. "North King" and "Caspian"
Taking Effect 27th June.
GOING DAILY (EXCEPT MONDAY)
Lv. Belleville .... 11.38 p. m.
Ar. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 6.43 a. m
RETURNING DAILY (Except Sunday)
Lv. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 8 30 p. m.
Ar. Belleville .... 3.15 a. m.
Baggage checked to all points. Connection with all railways.

$1.00 THOUSAND ISLANDS $1.00
AND RETURN.
Commencing 28th June. Steamer leaves Belleville at 3 25 a.m. daily except Monday for 1000 Islands, calling at Bay of Quinte ports, Kingston. Alexandria Bay and Gananoque. Passing through American and Canadian channels.
Right reserved to change time with or without notice.
Full information from
THE RATHBUN CO., } Agents.
U. E. THOMPSON, }
E. E. HORSEY, G. P. & F. Agent, Kingston.

Str. "Alexandria"
Montreal, Rochester & Quebec Transit Co'y.
Popular Quebec Excursions
NOW ON.
Belleville to Quebec and return .. $18 00
Belleville to Montreal and return . $12.00
(including meals and berth)
Steamer runs all rapids.
For Rochester, Olcott Beach, Niagara Falls and Buffalo every Saturday at 11 a.m.
Particulars from
A. W. HEPBURN, General Manager, Picton, Ont.
THE RATHBUN CO. Agents. Belleville.

The Deseronto Navigation Co
TIME TABLE.
Taking effect April 13, 1903.
Belleville, Trenton, Picton & Napanee
Str. "ELLA ROSS"
Leaves Belleville for Trenton at 10 a. m., daily, Sundays Excepted, returning leaves Trenton at 1 p. m., leaving Belleville at 3 p.m. for Deseronto, Napanee and Picton.
Quick and Superior Service to NEW YORK CITY
Steamers RESOLUTE and RELIANCE will leave Deseronto for Oswego after arrival of Str. Ella Ross connecting at Oswego with the New York, Ontario Western Ry.
Fare to New York, Single, $8.40
Return, $13.25
For further particulars apply to THE RATHBUN CO., Local Agents
J. F. CHAPMAN, Asst. Gen. Fr. Pass, Agt., Deseronto
A. AYER General Manager Deseronto.

Str. "Niagara"
The popular excursion boat "Niagara," which has been very much improved since last season, will be open for charter on or after the 13th of July next. The "Niagara" is now lighted throughout by electricity, and will also have a search light, making her at once the safest, fastest and most comfortable excursion boat on the bay.
THOMAS STEWART,
Manager,
45 Bridge St., Belleville.

Goods We Have at Right Prices
—Hammocks.
—Fishing Tackle.
—Tennis Goods.
—Golf Goods.
—Lacrosse Goods.
—Base Ball Goods.
—Screen Doors and Windows.
—Fruit Jars.
—Fruit Jar Rubbers.
—Wall Paper.
—Crystal Glass Vases.
—Glass Ware.
—Dinner Sets.
—Toilet Sets.
—Ladies' Hose.
—Ladies' Vests.
Everything in smallwares.
AT THE BEE HIVE
Chas. N. Sulman

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

THE INTELLIGENCER is printed and published for The Intelligencer Printing and Publishing House (Limited) by CHARLES JAMES BOWELL, of the City of Belleville, in the County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, at their Office, No. 403 Front Street, Belleville, Ont.

Choose The Best

If it is only the framing of a picture you may as well have the best workmanship as well as the largest selection of mouldings—when it don't cost you any more, probably less.

If we do not give you perfect workmanship—you may demand of us non-payment—framing superior to ours is impossible—we would not do all of the framing for Albert College Art Students if our work were not fitting, and proper.

Another lot of new mouldings just arrived, it would surprise you to see the repeated shipments of mouldings we receive.

You know what to expect of us in WALL PAPERS, and now with our special prices it is amazing what you can get for a small amount of money.

A beautiful new line of American Wall Papers arriving almost all the time.

Better not forget us for PAINTING. Whether your house is to paint outside or inside, whether a fence or a barn, we will paint it at reasonable prices but our workmen are not of the Barn Painting Kind. None but expert workmen find employment with us, men who will please you in both quality and quantity and we have no frills on our prices.

We purpose doing our paper hanging and decorating and painting at actual cost in connection with our Wall Paper department.

If You Live in the Country.

In Stirling, Tweed, Madoc, Trenton, Napance, Deseronto or within a radius of 50 miles—we will send you workmen and guarantee you every satisfaction.

Our Paints

If you want prepared paints we have them in all colors.

Also barn paint at $1.00 per gallon, but better than that we will mix you the best lead and oil paint, our own mixing and our own materials at the actual cost of the less valuable ready-mixed materials.

Any quantity you want any color or shade, in a moments notice and at remarkably low prices — our customers are many in the paint line.

C. B. Scantlebury
Belleville's Decorator.
Wall Paper Wholesale and Retail.

For the Revelsworth Millions,

—OR—

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fail by the Man She Loves.

not tamely submit to be insulted and domineered over? Just because you have money and I have none you think you are at liberty to treat me as you do that poor little Betty Mannington, your bullied unpaid drudge! You forget, I think, that I am a Revelsworth as well as you. I would not stay under your roof one hour but for that poor crippled creature who depends upon me; and so long as you live you need not fear that I shall ever try to comunitcate with you again. This our last meeting on earth, I solemnly swear that I will not look upon your face again! As early as possible to-morrow I will leave your house aunt Margaret. You have treated me with cruel injustice from the beginning, and I am not going to pretend that I forgive you. But one thing I must ask—I must insist upon. I have not the least wish to see or speak to Betty or to either of my cousins to-night. But, if I dine in my mother's room and do not appear again this evening, you at least owe it to me to uphold me in the statement that my mother is ill and requires my attendance. When we have left the house, you can inform my cousins and Betty of my heinous wickedness in losing both my parents and making two wretched marriages; but, until I have left it, I must beg you to keep silence on the subject or my affairs, as I myself shall do!"

There was a note of command and not of entreaty in Francesca's voice as she spoke, looking down into Mrs. Revelsworth's eyes with that fierce light in her own; and, fight against the feeling as she might, the old lady was for the moment cowed by her tone of authority.

"I have no wish to talk about you," she said coldly. "You can send down what message you please to explain your absence from the dinner-table."

"Thank you! Good night, aunt Margaret!"

"Good night!"

Their hands did not touch, but their eyes met, and in Francesca's there lurked a triumphant look. She was to be driven from her aunt's house on the morrow, she was to be shut out from all share of the Revelsworth fortune, the mistake and errors of her unshielded youth had been raked up against her, she had been forbidden even to hold communication with those who bore her father's name. Yet, in spite of all these things, it was triumph that shone in her eyes and curved her lips into a disdainful smile as she left her aunt's presence for the last time.

Dinner was a dull function that evening. Each one of the four persons present had reasons for feeling unusually anxious and agitated; and little Betty, who, as a rule, did her best to smooth over all difficulties, had not yet sufficiently recovered from the previous night's ghost-adventure to exercise her gifts of social tact and pleasantness.

Victor and Dudley, for their part, were almost equally disappointed by Francesca's non-appearance at table. The former was buoyed up by his belief in the secret understanding which existed between himself and his beautiful cousin, while his brother Dudley longed against his better judgment to see and speak with Francesca again.

Mrs. Revelsworth was [illegible] pressed. Again and again her conscience smote her for her harsh treatment of her beautiful niece. But Simpson had not yet been summoned. After dinner she would write to him, she decided. The first dinner-bell had rung immediately upon the conclusion of her interview with Francesca, and there had been no time as yet for letter-writing. When Simpson came to-morrow, she would lay all the facts of the case before him, and consult with him as to a suitable provision for her niece. Of course her devotion to that dirty-looking old invalid nurse had something touching about it, and presumably it was not her fault that her two matrimonial ventures had been so unfortunate.

But what could be the meaning of that look of triumph Francesca's face had worn when she said "Good night"?

The question puzzled and troubled the old lady. That interview with Francesca had disturbed and agitated her greatly. At dinner she could eat nothing, and in the drawing-room afterwards neither her knitting nor Betty's playing could exercise their wonted soothing effect upon her unquiet mind. Her letter to the lawyer Simpson was written and entrusted to Dudley's hands to post. True to her promise, Mrs. Revelsworth did not confide one word of what had passed between Francesca and herself to any inmate of her house that evening; and, although little Betty not unnaturally connected the interview between aunt and niece with Miss Revelsworth's non-appearance at table, as well as with Mrs. Revelsworth's letter to the lawyer, she was left to her own surmises on the subject and in no way enlightened by her employer.

At a little before her usual time Mrs. Revelsworth retired to her room. All her life she had dispensed with the services of a maid, but Betty Mannington invariably brushed and arranged her hair, and placed her watch, night-light, candle and matches, barley-water and novel on the table by her bedside, and kissed her the last thing before drawing the curtains of her bed.

On this particular night the old lady was very silent, and more than once sighed deeply, but, somewhat to Betty's surprise, she did not allude to the subject which was troubling her.

"I am afraid I have been a hard woman all my life, Betty!" she said, as she lay in bed and stared at the girl with a pathetic expression in her eyes. "Perhaps, if I'd had children, I would have been gentler; but we Revelsworths are not a gentle family. 'I work and wait' is our motto, you know, and our crest a mailed hand clenched, which means, as I take it, 'and, if necessary, I strike too—strike hard where I hate.' My grandfather Isaac adopted the crest and motto when he took his wife's name a hundred years ago. We have been a tough hard family. Very soon there will be only two of us left—Victor and Dudley."

"And Francesca."

"And Francesca," Mrs. Revelsworth repeated after a slight pause. "I should like to have seen those boys married, and young children growing up about them to carry on the name."

"You will, dear Mrs. Revelsworth—you will, some day."

The old woman shook her head.

"They are both bewitched," she murmured. "I should have liked my nephew Dudley to have taken a fancy to you, Betty; and I think you would have liked it too. You have been a good daughter to me for five years—you are a kind unselfish girl. I am afraid, dear, I have been hard with you at times."

"You have always been kind," exclaimed Betty—"very kind! I can't bear to hear you talk like this."

"Would you have married my nephew Dudley if he had asked you?" Mrs. Revelsworth said, after a slight pause.

"I should have loved to!" little Betty answered frankly. "But please, please, dear Mrs. Revelsworth, never let any one know I said so! He doesn't care in the least little bit for me in that way, and I would not for the world that he should ever know I had been silly enough to fall in love with him."

"He shall never know it from me, my little girl," Margaret Revelsworth said gently, as she patted Betty's hand. "But I wish things had turned out otherwise. And now you must say 'Good night' to me, for I feel worn out. We old things cannot stand excitement!"

"Good night, dear Mrs. Revelsworth!"

As Betty was leaving the room, after kissing her, Mrs. Revelsworth called her back.

"I have been mean to you, Betty," she said, in quick nervous tones. "That woman said so to-day, and she was right. But, when Simpson comes to-morrow, I will alter all that. Bend your head—there is something I want to give you."

The girl obeyed, wondering, and Margaret Revelsworth took from her own neck and fastened round that of Betty the fine gold chain she always wore, attached to which was a cross formed of large and flawless diamonds.

"Don't say a word!" she whispered. "Don't thank me! Wear it and think about me. Heaven bless you, dear! Good night!"

Three hours later Betty sprang up in bed, wide awake and trembling, conscious that some one had called her by name, and yet hearing nothing. Hurrying to the door of Mrs. Revelsworth's room, she tapped at it and listened intently for an answer. At first there was silence, and then a faint groaning reached her ears.

Opening the door in terror, she found the room in complete darkness, and, as she sprang forward, she stumbled over some object on the floor. Falling upon her knees and groping in the dark, she discovered that it was Mrs. Revelsworth who lay there, pone and helpless, gasping for breath, and trying vainly to speak.

Crying aloud for help, the young girl flung her arms about the elder woman and strove to lift her in the direction of the bed. But, by the time that help came and lights were lit and a doctor sent for, the mistress of Revelsworth House was past all human aid. From acute and burning pain she passed to a comatose condition, and before the day broke her spirit had passed away while her body lay supported in Betty's loving arms.

CHAPTER XX.

Francesca Revelsworth's grief over her aunt's death was extremely touching.

"I know she never loved me," she confided to Dudley and Betty as she sat with them in her "den" three days after the funeral, pouring out the tea, and looking, in her flowing draperies of funeral crape and cashmere, more dazzlingly fair than ever; "but on the very day of her death we had a long talk—a real confidential talk, and, for the first time we began to understand each other. I told her"—and she bent her head and spoke in low sad accents—"the whole story of my wretched past experiences. At first she was cold and hard, but gradually her sympathy was awakened, and she spoke to me with such real motherly tenderness that I burst into tears. Indeed I was so agitated that, if you remember, I stayed upstairs all the rest of the evening. My mother was far from well and wanted me; but, had I known that I should never have seen aunt Margaret alive again, I would not for the world have spent the evening away from her!"

Dudley was clearly struck by the feeling and tenderness displayed by his cousin; but little Betty, ordinarily the most sympathetic of mortals, reddened and looked extremely uncomfortable. Fortunately Miss Revelsworth was too much occupied in noting the effect of her words upon her hearer to take any particular notice of Betty's demeanor. Betty was such a dear unsuspicous little thing, so devoted to her, that it did not occur to Francesca to mark especially her reception of these confidences. But the fact was that something had happened which had materially shaken Betty's belief in her beautiful friend's veracity.

Almost before the breath was out of Mrs. Revelsworth's body, and long before Betty had recovered from the first cruel shock of her sudden death, Francesca had been discovered by Susan the parlormaid on her knees in the dead woman's drawing-room, hunting high and low for a letter with an Italian post-mark, which she alleged she had dropped during her last interview with her aunt, and for the recovery of which she offered a reward of a guinea.

Even in the distraction of her sincere grief Betty recalled the fact that Mrs. Revelsworth had herself received a letter from Rome on the day in question; and, when subsequently Francesca begged to be allowed to search in Mrs. Revelsworth's bedroom for the missing letter, a sense of her duty to her dead relative made little Miss Mannington glance first about the room for her own satisfaction, with the result that, within the pages of the library novel which she herself had placed upon the table by Mrs. Revelsworth's bedside, she discovered a letter in a man's hand-writing, bearing the post-mark "Rome," and addressed, not to Francesca, but to "Mrs. Margaret Revelsworth."

It was long before Betty could decide as to what was her duty with regard to the letter in question. Clearly it did not belong to Francesca, and as clearly it concerned her, for it was, as Betty knew full well, the only letter from Italy which had arrived at Revelsworth House on that particular day, and Francesca's anxiety to possess it was abundantly manifest. On the evening of the funeral, having had the open envelope and letter in her possession, unread, for two whole days, Betty decided that she would best carry out her late friend and employer's wish by reading it, and, in the solitude of her own apartment, she drew the thin crackling sheet from its covering and read as follows—

"My dear Mrs. Revelsworth—I received your letter ten days ago, and I am now in a position to answer the inquiries you made with regard to your niece Francesca, or, as I see you call her, Frances, the only daughter of your late brother-in-law Harold. My affection and esteem for your dead husband and for you are so strong that I cannot help regretting the task you have assigned me. At the same time I feel incumbent upon me in the circumstances you state to tell you the whole truth. I knew Harold Revelsworth at one time fairly well—a handsome, pleasant, erratic, almost a brilliant man, but hampered by a sensitive and irritable temper, by extravagant tastes, and by a craze for scientific experiments which half ruined him. You puzzle me greatly by your reference to his invalid widow. His wife, an extremely lovely Italian lady of high rank, died of malarial fever fully twenty years ago. I have often seen her tomb, inscribed with her name in full. She was one of the Conti family. As far as I can recollect, your niece, who was a strikingly beautiful child, was brought up by an old nurse. Very shortly after poor Harold's sudden death Miss Revelsworth eloped, so I heard, with a young Italian tenor—a handsome dissipated fellow, of no fortune, family, or education, a member of a traveling opera company. A few years later I myself recognized her driving about Rome in a showy carriage beside a worthless young gambler, a man of good family, a younger son, so I was told, of an Irish peer. She was subsequently seen in his company in Paris and at Nice. I believe the man's name to be Devereux, but of this I am not sure. I am sorry to give you so bad an account of the girl, but I have to speak as I know; and, if, as you say, two of your nephews are in love with her, it is only fair to them that she should at least be asked to explain these suspicious incidents in her career. Hoping that she will be able to do so to your complete satisfaction, I remain, dear Mrs. Revelsworth,

"Always very sincerely yours,

"Graham Andrew Harker."

The contents of this letter filled Betty with the deepest concern. Piecing it together with Mrs. Revelsworth's demand for an interview with her niece immediately the latter returned from town, with Francesca's absence from dinner, Mrs. Revelsworth's subsequent silence and evident agitation, and her summons of her lawyer Mr. Simpson, Betty arrived not unnaturally at the conclusion that Francesca was deliberately misrepresenting the actual facts when she asserted that her last talk with her aunt had been wholly a pleasant and friendly one.

From the lawyer himself there was little to learn, but that little was important in the light of what Betty now knew.

"I require your presence to-morrow at noon," the old lady had written to Mr. Simpson, the dapper little gray-haired gentleman, whose firm had looked after the Revelsworth legal interests for half a century. "Certain facts have come to my knowledge which render it imperative that I should destroy my existing will and make another; so please come prepared, not to advise, but to assist me in this undertaking."

CHAPTER XXI.

Most fortunately however, as it turned out, for Francesca, Mrs. Revelsworth's intentions were frustrated by her death, and the old will continued valid. According to this document, the purport of which was tolerably well known to all concerned even before the public reading by Mr. Simpson, the testatrix desired that her heirs should continue to reside at Revelsworth House until the centenary of the founding of the firm was reached in midsummer of the following year, at which date the entire property was to be divided into three portions—Dudley, as the eldest son of the eldest son, taking the lion's share, and Victor and Francesca less. Revelsworth House with its stabling and all it contained, except a few heirlooms and the family plate, was left to "my dear friend and companion, my cousin's child Elizabeth Mannington, together with two hundred a year, and such of my trinkets as she shall choose to the value of one hundred pounds."

(To be continued.)

The Surest Remedy is
Allen's Lung Balsam
It never fails to cure a SIMPLE COLD, HEAVY COLD, and all BRONCHIAL TROUBLES.
Large Bottles $1.00. Medium Size 50c. Small or Trial Size 25c.
Endorsed by all who have tried it.

AT DEATH'S DOOR.—DYSPEPSIA CONQUERED.—A GREAT MEDICAL TRIUMPH.—Gentlemen,—My medical adviser and others told me I could not possibly live when I commenced to use Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery for Dyspepsia. My case was one of the worst of its kind. For three years I could not eat meat and my weight decreased from 219 to 119 lbs. All the food I took for thirteen months previous to taking the Vegetable Discovery consisted of milk. I am now entirely cured and have regained my usual weight, can eat anything with a keen relish and feel like a new man. I have sold over thirty dozen Vegetable Discovery since it cured me, as I am well known and people in this section know how low I was, and thought I could not possibly be cured. They are eager to try this grand medicine. It certainly saved my life as I never expected to recover when first I commenced using it. I am not exaggerating anything, but feel glad to be able to contribute this testimonial and trust it may be the means of convincing others of its merit as a certain cure for Dyspepsia.
Signed, JEAN VALCOURT,
Wotton, P.Q. General Merchant

Much talk, many lies.

FOR INFLAMMATION OF THE EYES.—Among the many good qualities which Parmelee's Vegetable Pills possess, besides regulating the digestive organs, is their efficacy in reducing inflammation of the eyes. It has called forth many letters of recommendation from those who were afflicted with this complaint and found a cure in the pills. They affect the nerve centres and the blood in a surprisingly active way, and the result is almost immediately seen.

Many a man's self-conceit is due to his ignorance.

If you have a cough or cold do not neglect it; many without a trace of that hereditary disease have drifted into a consumptive's grave by neglecting what was only a slight cold. Had they used Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup before it was too late, their lives would have been saved. Mr. A. W. Levy, Mitchell, writes; "I think Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup the best preparation on the market for coughs and severe colds. About six years ago I caught a severe cold which settled on my lungs, and for three months I had a cough. I had a physician attending me, but gradually grew worse until I was on the verge of Consumption, and had given up hopes of being cured, when I was induced to try Bickle's Syrup. Before I had taken one bottle I found myself greatly relieved, and by the time I had finished the second bottle I was completely cured. I always recommend it for severe colds and consumption."

When one gets hopping mad his reason goes on a crutch.

No one knows better than those who have used Carter's Little Liver Pills what relief they have given when taken for dyspepsia, dizziness, pain in the side, constipation, and disordered stomach.

The average watch represents but 12 hours of human labor.

Do not despair of curing your sick headache when you can so easily obtain Carter's Little Liver Pills. They will effect a prompt and permanent cure. Their action is mild and na-

Coral is a talisman against thunder and evils by flood and field.

THEY DROVE PIMPLES AWAY.—A face covered with pimples is unsightly. It tells of internal irregularities which should long since have been corrected. The liver and the kidneys are not performing their functions in the healthy way they should, and these pimples are to let you know that the blood protests. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will drive them all away, and will leave the skin clear and clean. Try them, and there will be another witness to their excellence.

The wildcat's teeth are close to its purr.

HAD LA GRIPPE.—Mr. A. Nickerson, farmer, Dutton, writes: "Last winter I had La Grippe and it left me with a severe pain in the small of my back and hip that used to catch me whenever I tried to climb a fence. This lasted for about two months, when I bought a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil and used it both internally and externally, morning and evening, for three days, at the expiration of which time I was completely cured."

A long portage makes a heavy canoe.

Their gentle action and good effect on the system really make them a perfect little pill. They please those who use them. Carter's Little Liver Pills may well be termed "Perfection."

It takes money to voice the opinion of a lawyer.

Very many persons die annually from cholera and kindred summer complaints, who might have been saved if proper remedies had been used. If attacked do not delay in getting a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, the medicine that never fails to effect a cure. Those who have used it say it acts promptly, and thoroughly subdues the pain and disease.

Life has no blessing like a prudent friend.

Use the safe, pleasant, and effectual worm killer, Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator; nothing equals it. Procure a bottle and take it home.

The best way to get even is to forget.

Have you tried Holloway's Corn Cure? It has no equal for removing these troublesome excrescences, as many have testified who have tried

Bank of Montreal
ESTABLISHED 1817.
Capital and Rest, All Paid Up.
$23,000,000
(Twenty-three Millions)
Savings Bank Department
Interest on sums of $1.00 and upwards allowed at current rates.
A. G. PARKER,
Manager [illegible]

SPECIAL SALE

. . . For . . .

Just a Few Days

—OF—

MEN'S LIGHT-WEIGHT CLOTHING

On account of the cool weather during June, our Light-Weight Clothing has been a little slow in moving. We are determined not to carry over any of this season's goods, and

Here is Our Offer

On all unlined goods for this week only, we will give a discount of 20 per cent. off our already low prices.

Come and Get Good Choice.

OAK HALL

Sole Agents for Sanford's Celebrated Clothing.

STOP Young MAN

While we direct your attention to our excellent lines of

CANVAS FOOTWEAR

Canvas Shoes make cool, comfortable and stylish summer footwear—and cost much less than leather—you will find a superiority in style and neatness in these goods. We solicit your inspection of these up-to-date goods:

White Canvas Laced style, newest shape, at $1.50

White Canvas Shoes, newest shape, at $1.25

White Canvas Laced style, Goodyear welt, at $2.50

Grey Canvas, Laced style, 2 lines at................ $1.50

MEN'S SPECIAL LOW PRICED GREY CANVAS with leather soles—useful for camping shoes—sizes 6 to 10, at 75c.

In Men's and Boys' Tennis, Running and Outing Shoes we have a fine showing.—SEE WINDOW DISPLAY.

Trunk and Bag Department on 2nd floor.

The J. J. Haines

SHOE HOUSES at Belleville, Napanee and Trenton

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE

FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

THE MARKETS.

Wheat Has Another Rally at Chicago—Liverpool Markets Steady — Live Stock—The Latest Quotations.

Tuesday Evening, July 7.

Liverpool wheat futures closed ¼d higher to-day than yesterday, and corn futures ⅜d higher.

Wheat futures advanced 10 centimes at Paris to-day.

At Chicago September wheat advanced 1⅛c from yesterday; September corn, 1⅛c, and September oats ⅛c.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

London—Close: Wheat on passage, buyers indifferent operators. Maize on passage, less offering. Spot American mixed, 22s 6d. Flour, spot Minnesota, 20s 6d.

Paris—Close: Wheat, tone steady, July, 23f 20c; November and February, 22f 00c. Flour, tone steady, July 33f 75c; November and February, 30f 65c.

Antwerp—Wheat, spot, quiet; No. 2 R. W., 16½f.

LEADING WHEAT MARKETS.

Following are the closing quotations at important wheat centres to-day:

	Cash.	July.	Sept.	Dec.
New York	....	....	81⅛	81⅛
Chicago	....	....	77½	77
Toledo	78	78	78¼	....
Duluth, No. 1 N.	85½	85½	77⅛	75¼

TORONTO ST. LAWRENCE MARKET.

Grain—

Wheat, red, bush	$0 76 to	$0 77
Wheat, white, bush	0 77	....
Wheat, spring, bush	0 70	0 72
Wheat, goose, bush	0 70½	....
Barley, bush	0 42½	....
Beans, bush	1 30	1 50
Beans, hand-picked	1 75	....
Peas, bush	0 78½	....
Rye, bush	0 45	....
Oats, bush	0 35	0 35½

LIVERPOOL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

Liverpool, July 7.—Wheat—Spot, dull; No. 2 red Western winter, 5s 2d; No. 1 Northern spring, 6s 5d; No. 1 California, 6s 6½d; futures, quiet; July, 6s 6½d; September, 6s 3½d. Corn—Spot, quiet; American mixed, 4s 10½d; futures, quiet, July, 4s 8⅝d; September, 6s 6⅜d; October, nominal. Beef—Extra India mess, easy, 68s 9d. Bacon—Long, clear middles, light, steady, 52s 6d; long clear middles, heavy, steady, 51s 6d; short clear backs, quiet, 49s 6d. Lard—American refined, in pails, quiet, 39s 3d. Cheese—American finest, white, easy, 49s; American finest, colored, easy, 50s.

NEW YORK GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

New York, July 7.—Flour—Receipts, 33,147 bbls; sales, 3000 packages; flour was firm and held a trifle higher on spring patents. Rye flour—Firm; fair to good, $3 to $3.35, choice to fancy, $3.40 to $4.60. Wheat—Receipts, 19,500 bush; sales, 960,000 bush; wheat was fairly active and higher this morning on support induced by a strong corn market; July, 83⅝c to 84c; September, 80⅝c to 81c; December, 80⅝c to 81⅛c. Rye—Firm; State, 58c to 59½c; c.i.f. New York, No. 2 Western, 60½c f.o.b. afloat. Corn—Receipts, 65,100 bush; sales, 115,000 bush; the corn upturn was based on a belief in a short crop and good commission house buying, partly for Wall-street account; July, 57⅛c to 57⅝c; September, 57⅝c to 57⅞c. Oats—Receipts, 88,500 bush; oats were steady without much change; track white, State and Western, 43½c to 49c. Sugar—Raw, quiet; fair refining, 3c; Centrifugal, 96 test, 3½c to 3 9-16c; molasses sugar, 2⅝c to 2⅞c; refined, quiet; coffee, quiet; No. 7 Rio, 5 3-16c. Lead—Quiet. Wool—Firm. Hops—Easy.

NEW YORK DAIRY MARKET.

New York, July 7.—Butter—Unsettled; receipts, 12,343; Western imitation creamery, seconds, 16c to 17c; Western factory, firsts, 16c. Cheese—Weak, unchanged; receipts, 9006. Eggs—Dull, unchanged; receipts, 12,333.

Daily Intelligencer.

TIMELY TOPICS.

The majority of the bakers in the city are bound to have "light" bread, as they have reduced the weight of their loaves some ounces. This won't do—give the poor man the old standard loaf.

* * *

People who complain of the heat should remember the price of coal.

* * *

Your old friend "Timely Topics," having become thoroughly tired out after his many efforts in getting the d.s.b.g. fence, and working at Kingston, etc., etc., has gone off to Wellington for a well-earned rest.

* * *

Recent antiquarian researches have shown that tight lacing and cosmetics were in vogue among women in 1800 B. C. It wouldn't take much of a backward glance from that date to make them prehistoric. How old are the fads and follies of fashion.

* * *

A New York magistrate decides that it is a misdemeanor to call a woman an old maid. It's certainly bad taste, bad manners, bad form, but this is the first precedent declaring it a crime save against good breeding. How glad the dear ladies of Kingston would be could that judge reside in Penitentiary Town.

Itching Eczema or Salt Rheum

THE MOST TORTURING OF SKIN DISEASES IS CURED BY DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

The very fact that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a positive cure for eczema and salt rheum is sufficient evidence of its superior value as a means of allaying irritation and healing inflamed itching skin. Dr. Chase's Ointment is a necessity in every home in which it is known; for there has yet to be discovered a preparation which so quickly stops itching and heals sores or wounds. Ask your neighbors about it. Most people know of wonderful cures effected by its use. Sixty cents a box at all dealers. 3

THE SOUP PLATE.

A Seventeenth Century Cookbook Tells Why It Was Invented.

A valet of Louis XIV. published a cookbook in 1655 in which he gives as follows the reason for the invention of the hollow soup plate:

The plates of the guests will be hollow in order that they may help themselves to as much soup as they may want without being obliged to take it spoonful by spoonful, because of the disgust they may have for one another on seeing the spoon go from the mouth to the tureen.

Guests, it will be seen, used their own spoons to fill their plates, the large spoon to be used for serving the soup not being invented till some time later. Yet even a hundred years after the invention of the soup plate (1749) a work on civility advised that all the dishes should be so placed on the table that every one could reach them with his spoon and that if the soup was served in a dish (tureen) every one should help himself with his own spoon without seeming to be in a hurry. A work on manners that appeared just before the French revolution deemed it best to advise its readers that it was impolite to pass the spoon back and forth between the mouth and the tureen.

A Plea For Descriptive Titles.

Setting aside the flood not to be counted as literature, the naming of a book that is worthy of a name is a matter of real moment. Two methods seem to have been followed—that of using the name of a leading character, as "Jane Eyre" and "Rob Roy;" the other that of giving some hint of the nature of the book, as in "Vanity Fair" and "The Cloister and the Hearth." The first method has no justification. What we plead for is that a title shall contain the soul or the keynote of the book. Then the author and reader start on fair terms. Jane Austen, a consummate artist, understood this well, as in "Pride and Prejudice," but forsook her advantage in "Emma"—a better book and susceptible to as telling a title. It is difficult to estimate what would have been the loss to literature if "The Scarlet Letter" had been labeled "Hester Prynne" and "The House of Seven Gables"—a title that has worked its way into architecture—had been called "The Pyncheons."—Dr. Theodore T. Munger in Booklovers' Magazine.

The Age of the Harp.

The harp, which was suggested by the lute, is ascribed to Jubal, 3875 B. C., and was King David's favorite instrument. The harp was used by the Welsh and Saxons, and also by the ancient peoples of Ireland. One of the oldest harps in existence is in the Dublin College museum, and originally belonged to Brian Borolhme, king of Ireland.

Curious Bits of News.

The present mace of the British House of Commons has been in use since the reign of Charles II. It has accordingly witnessed the rise and development of constitutional principles and practice, and of the responsibility of Ministers of the Crown to the House of Commons, and through the House of Commons to the people at large.

Most people, if they were asked to state the color of the sun, would say that it was orange, and they would as confidently assert that the color of the atmosphere was blue. Recent researches and investigations, however, says "Knowledge," point to the conclusion that the real color of the sun is blue, while that of the atmosphere surrounding the earth is orange.

A good many formalities are necessary for the women of Sumatra before they can lay aside their widow's weeds, says "Womanhood." Immediately after the husband's death the disconsolate widow places a flagstaff in front of her door, and on this a flag is raised. As long as the flag remains untorn by the wind etiquette forbids her to marry, but with the appearance of the first rent she can lay aside her mourning garb, begin to take notice and to receive offers of marriage.

A little machine which threads one thousand needles a minute is at work in St. Gall, Switzerland. The purpose of the machine is to thread needles that are placed afterwards in an embroidery loom for making Swiss or Hamburg lace. The device is almost entirely automatic. It takes the needle from a hopper, carries it along and threads it, ties the knot, cuts the thread off a uniform length, then carries the needle across an open space and sticks it in a rack. The work of threading these needles was formerly done by hand.

The highest waterfall in the world, geography tells us, is the Cerosola cascade, in the Alps, having a fall of 2,400 feet; that of Arvey, in Savoy, is 1,100 feet, and the falls of the Yosemite Valley range from 700 to 1,000 feet. But higher yet is the fall in the San Cayatan canyon, in the State of Durango, Mexico. It was discovered by some prospectors ten years ago in the great Barranca district, which is called the Tierras Desconocidas. While searching for the famous lost mine, Naranjal, a great roar of water was heard. With great difficulty the party pushed on and up and down the mighty chasms, until they beheld the superb fall that is at least 3,000 feet high.

The date-palm may solve the problem of what to do with the arid and alkali lands of Arizona and other Western States. Experiments have been made in the past, but renewed interest is being taken by the section of plant introduction of the Department of Agriculture at Washington. According to the New York "Sun," Professor D. G. Fairchild, agricultural explorer for the department, now traveling in Africa, has procured a number of suckers, or off-shoots, from the Delta of the Nile, which will be distributed in the south-western States. In the United States the date is an article of luxury, but in its native country it is a most important food, many regions in Arabia and the Sahara being uninhabitable but for the date-palm.

President Harper of the University of Chicago recently received the following letter from a prospective girl-student at Pecatonica, Ill.: "Dear Dr. Harper—I know you will be pleased to learn that I have decided to attend the university school of education this fall. I am going to Chicago next Saturday on the morning train, and as I have never been in the city before, I would be glad if you would meet me at the depot. I am five feet four inches tall, have light hair and eyes, and a pleasing appearance. I shall wear a dark-brown traveling skirt and a blue waist with white yoke. I think I shall know you from your pictures, but for fear I make a mistake, will you please wear your card in your hat?"

"A pathetic incident in connection with a biograph scene occurred in Detroit, Mich., March 17 last," says "Popular Science." "A view made at the occupation of Peking was being flashed across the screen. It represented a detachment of the Fourteenth United States Infantry entering the gates of the Chinese capital. As the last file of soldiers seemed literally stepping out of the frame on to the stage, there rose a scream from a woman who sat in front. 'My God!' she cried hysterically, 'there is my dead brother Allen marching with the soldiers.' The figure had been recognised by others in the audience as that of Allen McCaskill, who had mysteriously disappeared some years before. Subsequently Mrs. Booth, the sister, wrote to the War Department and learned that it really was her brother whose presentment she so strangely had been confronted with."

Evidence to the Contrary.

Citizen—Madam, why do you persist in punching me with your umbrella?

Madam—I want to make you look around, so I can thank you for giving me your seat. Now, sir, don't you go off and say that women haven't any manners.—Chicago "Record-Herald."

An Ambiguous Compliment.

Miss Beekley—I'm so glad I'm not an heiress, Mr. Soper. I should never know whether my suitors were attracted by myself or my money.

Mr. Soper—Oh, Miss Beekley, your mirror should leave you in no doubt on that score!—"Punch."

Changed Her Mind.

The house was "handy to the street car line" and in good repair, there were the proper number of closets and the rental was reasonable, but before coming to terms the house-hunting matron said to the agent:

"It is only fair for me to tell you that we have five boys."

"That won't make any difference, ma'am," he said, with a smile. "You will find big families of boys on both sides of you."

"Oh, then I don't want the house at all!" she exclaimed. "I want to find a neighborhood where there won't be any boys but mine!"

At last accounts she was still hunting.

Wit and Wisdom from New Books

(From the "Era.")

Good health is very much like money; it is valued most by those who have to work hardest to get it, and it is squandered by those who come by it easily.—Caleb Wright.

The man who hesitates may be lost, but the woman who hesitates is surely won.—The Spinster Book.

The good word of a plain fisherman or hunter is worth more than a degree of doctor of divinity from a learned university.—The Ruling Passion.

In order to be happy, a woman needs only a good digestion, a satisfactory complexion, and a lover.—The Spinster Book.

For theer ban't no law brought in yet against tellin' the truth about a party after they'm gone, thank God—though 'tis a dangerous offence while they'm livin'.—The Striking Hours.

You are not to suppose that the one man was a saint and a hero, and the other a fool and a ruffian. No; that sort of thing happens only in books.—Ruling Passion.

There are but two sorts of women in the world—those who take the strength out of a man and those who put it back.—Kim.

Any man who's got a woman wrapped round his finger has also got her wrapped round his throat.—The Cavalier.

As it must happen in this world, the answer to our prayers comes in a way and at a cost we little dream of.—Sylvia.

I know something better than the usefulness of piety. It is the piety of usefulness.—The Lion's Whelp.

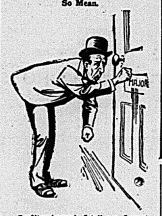
There are many lies in the world, and not a few liars, but there are no liars like our bodies, except it be the sensations of our bodies.—Kim.

Who can make a conscience out of expediency? Expediency says "It may be;" conscience says "It is!"—The Lion's Whelp.

She had imbibed in her Sunday school days the usual formulas of dogmatic religion, but upon matters of morality her ideas were of the vaguest description.—King Midas.

There is nothing more aggressive than the virtue of an ugly, untempted woman, or the determination of a young man to set every wrong thing in the world right.—Lazarre.

So Mean.



Creditor (angry)—I tell you, I want my money.

Voice From Behind—Well, you can't get blood out of a turnip.

Creditor—No, but I can out of a beet.

Like the Mormons.

AMONG more serious literature recently published is Mr Poultney Bigelow's "Children of the Nations," the narrative of the beginnings of the various peoples. Mr. Bigelow has discovered a parallel between the Boers and the Mormons that is likely not to please many of his fellow-"Americans." He offers his parallel (and prophecy) in these words:

"In a rough way his (the Boer's) case bears analogy to that of the strange community of English Boers who with a peculiar religion, hardy constitutions and boundless ignorance, penetrated the American desert and created a splendid isolation for themselves in Utah. The people asked no favor of the United States, save to be let alone. . . . But precious metals were discovered in their neighborhood, the New England Yankee knocked at the Mormon gate; he was refused admission, so he went in without. The fight commenced, and now the Mormon figures in American political life just as any other white man, no more and no less. The Mormon had thought himself as strong, physically, as he conceived himself to be theologically infallible. When his mistake was demonstrated, he conformed to the new order of things; and so will the Boers."

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

POPULAR TOURIST RESORTS

Muskoka Lakes	Lake of Bays
Kawartha Lakes	Georgian Bay
Orillia	Magnetewan River
Jackson's Point	Collingwood

Excellent train service making direct connection for all ports on Muskoka Lakes.

Special Excursion to Canadian North-West.

Tickets will be issued at reduced rates, good going July 4th, valid to return up to and including Sept. 8, 1903.

Special Reduced Rates are in effect for C. E. Convention, Denver, Col., July 9th to 13th. Tickets will be issued good going July 6th, 7th and 8th, valid for return arriving at destination on or before August 31st, 1903.

N. E. A. Convention, Boston, July 6th to 10th. Tickets good going July 2nd to 5th inclusive, valid for return, leaving Boston on or before July 12th.

For further information and descriptive literature of Summer Resorts in "Highlands of Ontario" apply to

U. E. THOMPSON, City Agent,
Bridge Street,
T. H. COPPIN, Depot Agent.
J. D. McDONALD,
Dist. Pass Agt., Toronto.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY.

WILL RUN

Homeseekers' 60 DAY Excursions

To The Canadian North-West at Return Fares.

Winnipeg, Waskada Estevan, Elgin Arcola Moosomin, Wawanesa Miniota, Binscarth, Grand View Swan River,	$28	Regina, Moosejaw, Yorkton,	$30
		Prince Albert, Macleod, Calgary	$35
		Red Deer, Strathcona	$40

Going JUNE 4th, returning until AUGUST 4th (all rail or S.S. Athabasca). Going JUNE 18th, returning until AUGUST 18th (all rail or S.S. Athabasca). Going July 4th, returning until SEPTEMBER 8th (all rail or S.S. Manitoba). Tickets are not good on "Imperial Limited." For tickets and pamphlet giving full particulars, apply to your nearest Canadian Pacific agent, or to

A. H. NOTMAN, Asst. Genl. Passr. Agent, 1 King St. East, Toronto.
S. BURROWS, C.P.R. and General Ticket Agent, Front St., Belleville.

NEW YORK CENTRAL

& HUDSON RIVER R. R.

THE FOUR-TRACK TRUNK LINE.

SHORTEST Route to the United States via Cape Vincent, N.Y.

GOING EAST AND WEST.			After 1st May
Lv. Belleville (G.T.R.)		12.22 p.m.	1.30 a.m
Arr. Kingston	"	1.47 p.m.	3.12 a.m
Lv. Kingston (stage)..		2.30 p.m.	5.00 a.m
Arr. Cape Vincent (stage)		4.30 p.m.	7.00 a.m
Lv. Cape Vincent N.Y.C.		5.05 p.m.	7.25 a.m
Arr. Watertown	"	5.55 p.m.	8.25 a.m
Arr. Oswego	"	9.05 p.m.	11.55 a.m
Arr. Syracuse	"	9.25 p.m.	12.07 p.m
Arr. Rochester	"	1.05 a.m.	2.20 a.m
Arr. Utica	"	9.45 p.m.	12.35 p.m
Arr. New York	"	7.25 a.m.	6.00 p.m

Convenient train service in opposite direction.

Pullman Sleeping and Parlor Cars.

2c a Mile.

Books for 500 miles of travel on New York Central and leased lines within State of New York, cost only $10 while books for 1000 miles over New York Central, Boston & Albany, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, Philadelphia & Reading and C. R. R. of New Jersey cost $20. Secure further information and purchase tickets from F. A. Folger, N.Y.C. Agent, Kingston, Ont.

GEORGE H. DANIELS,
Gen'l Pass'r Agent,
New York.
A. H. SMITH, Gen'l Supt.,
New York.
G. C. GRIDLEY, Gen'l Agent,
Watertown, N.Y.

It takes a long time to tell of what you have not done.

Children's Slippers

Children's Red Kid Slippers .... 60c, 75c, and $1.00

Children's White Kid Slippers .... $1.00 and $1.25

Children's Patent Leather Slippers .. .. 75c, $1.00 and $1.25

We are offering a special line of Ladies' Dongola Kid Slippers for ....75c, regular price $1.00

VERMILYEA & SON.

FOR TWO WEEKS ONLY! 2 WEEKS

$5.00 Any Suit In This Great Clothing Store for $5.00

A STUPENDOUS CLOTHING OFFER WITHOUT PRECEDENT OR PARALLEL.

Some Suits $18, some $16, some $15, some $12, others $10. Just think of it! High grade, thoroughly tailored garments for Men, complete suits in fashionable fabrics, for

$5.00

This is just the opening gun in the great Mid-Summer Sale, in connection with this store. In every other department there will be equal sensational reductions. This Clothing Sale begins on July 11th and will end on July 25th. The earlier you come the better your choice as we anticipate a big rush.

The GLOBE CLOTHING HOUSE.

Up-to-date Clothiers and Gents' Furnishiers, Look for the Globe Over The Door, 390 Front Street, Belleville.

Wall Paper

At first sight of our Wall Papers you will say there's an attractiveness about them that puts them lengths ahead of other lines.

IN STOCKING

we select only the best, we have no "shelf warmers" all our Papers are quick sellers. If you choose your Papers from us you have best value for the price obtainable anywhere.

Painting, Paperhanging and Decorating done on shortest notice by best workmen in the city.

JOHN CORNELIUS.
3 Doors South of Intelligencer Office.

NEW GOODS
JAPAN TEA

The first of this season's crop, exta quality, regular 50c line, we quote

40c Per lb.

Canned Halibut

Fine solid Fish, very tasty,

15c per can.

J. C. Hanley & Co.
GROCERS
Telephone 214

Western Beef.

Prime Western Beef together with all kinds of choice meats, supplied by the district, at

C. GREEN'S
267 Front St., 'Phone 109.

Flowers & Vegetables
Of all kinds in season.
... AT ...
J. D. COLLIP'S.
'Phone 205.

Anecdotal.

A country convert, full of zeal, offered himself for service in his first prayer-meeting remarks. "I'm ready to do anything the Lord asks of me," he said, "so long as it's honorable."

Some years ago at a Mardi Gras ball at the Hopkins Institute in San Francisco, a man, masked, approached a woman, masked, and asked her for a dance, as is considered right and proper at Mardi Gras. "But I don't know you, sir," said the lady in her most icy tone. "Well, I'm taking as big a risk as you are," retorted the man.

A tender-hearted youth was once present at an Oxford supper, where the fathers of those assembled were being roundly abused for their parsimony in supplying the demands of their sons. At last, after having long kept silence, he lifted up his voice in mild protest. "After all, gentlemen," he said, "let us remember that they are our fellow-creatures."

The Chatsworth (Ont.) "News" says. "A good joke is told on a Chatsworth young man who went to Owen Sound one day last week and dropped into Dr. Lang's office to be vaccinated. The doctor asked him if he had ever been vaccinated before and he replied: 'I've been vaccinated twice and baptized three times and neither one of them took.' The doctor hesitated, but finally concluded to vaccinate him, and judging from the way he holds his arm the third vaccination 'took,' even if the third baptism didn't."

Jacob A. Riis tells of an Irish teamster who went to the priest in a fright: he had seen a ghost on the church wall as he passed it in the night. "And what was it like?" asked the priest. "It was like nothing so much as a big ass," said Patrick, wild-eyed. "Go home, Pat! and be easy," replied the priest, soothingly; "you've only seen your own shadow."

Thomas Bailey Aldrich once received a pathetic letter in a feminine hand announcing the death of a little daughter and asking if he would not send in his own handwriting a verse or two from "Babie Bell" to assuage the grief of the household. Aldrich sent the whole poem, and not long after saw it displayed in the shop of an autograph dealer, with a good, round price attached thereto.

Senator Cullom of Illinois was asked by a correspondent why the Committee on Foreign Relations had enjoined secrecy on the text of the new treaty with Great Britain, when the text of the treaty was printed in all the morning papers. "Just so, just so," said the senator; "that's the reason the injunction of secrecy was placed upon the treaty. We knew that if we made it public at once not a paper in the country would print its full text."

During his visit to New York Thackeray was very much attracted by the beauty and brilliancy of a Miss B., and, in accordance with foreign custom, made a morning call, when she did not expect anyone. Hearing some talking in the lower hall, she leaned over the banisters and asked the servant who it was. "It's Mr. Thackeray, ma'am." "Oh, damn Thackeray!" replied Miss B. "No," said Thackeray, who could not but hear the remark, "it's not Misther O'Dam Thackeray, but Mr. Makepeace Thackeray." And, with a laugh, Miss B. came down.

The venerable Mr. —— believed unqualifiedly in Boston, as not the hub only, but the forward wheels also, of the universe. The excellent old gentleman, having confessed to L. G. that he had never found time, during his busy life, to read Shakespeare, was advised to do so during the winter then approaching. In the spring G. called on the estimable citizen, and casually asked if he had read any of the plays during the season just passed. "Yes," he replied, "he had read them all." "Do you like them?" ventured G., feeling his way cautiously to an opinion. "Like them!" replied the old man, with effusive ardor; "that is not the word, sir! They are glorious, sir; far beyond my expectation, sir! There are not twenty men in Boston, sir, who could have written those plays!"

Lord John (Russell) with a curious artlessness of disposition which made it impossible for him to feign a cordiality he did not feel, united an astonishing want of tact. Once, at a concert at Buckingham Palace, he was seen to get up suddenly, turn his back on the Duchess of Sutherland, by whom he had been sitting, walk to the remotest part of the room, and sit down by the Duchess of Inverness. When questioned afterwards as to the cause of his unceremonious move, which had the look of a quarrel, he said: "I could not have sat any longer by that great fire; I should have fainted." "Oh, that was a very good reason for moving; but I hope you told the Duchess of Sutherland why you left her." "Well—no. I don't think I did that. But I told the Duchess of Inverness why I came and sat by her."

David Lloyd-George, a member of Parliament from Wales, tells a good story on himself in connection with a Disestablishment meeting in which he has been taking part in Wales. A few days previous, it seems, there had been a Church Defence meeting held in the same place at which a certain prominent dignitary of the Establishment had spoken, referring to whom Mr. Lloyd-George's chairman observed: "In my opinion that Churchman is one of the biggest liars in North Wales, but, thank goodness, we've got a match for him here to-night!"

"Chums" tells of a certain wild beast tamer who had been on bad terms for some time with one of his neighbors, and the other day, as the result of a violent quarrel, the latter, with a friend, attacked the former just before he was timed to give his performance. The tamer, unwilling to make a scene, took refuge in the lion's den. Judge of the amusement of the spectators when they beheld the two men standing in front of the cage and shouting through the bars at regular intervals: "Come out of that, you big coward; come out of that!"

Some little while ago a rather eccentric cotton manufacturer, owning large mills not a score of miles from Halifax, England, and who was familiarly known in the district round about as "Owd H——," overheard one of the lads in his employ remark to somebody: "Aw wish Aw hed 'Owd H——'s' brass, an' he wor i' th' warkhaase." Quickly retiring, "Owd H——" sent for the offender into his office, and asked him what he would do with the money, supposing his wish were to be fulfilled. The youngster was quite equal to the occasion, promptly replying: "Whoy, th' furst thing Aw'd do wod be ta fotch yo aat (out), maister." This clever reply so appeased the old gentleman that the boy was sent back to his work with half a sovereign in his pocket.

The other afternoon, says the New York "Tribune," when President Roosevelt reached Dupont Circle, a "seeing Washington" electric car hove in sight, and the guide continued his lecture through a megaphone in this way: "On the left we see the elegant residence of Mr. George Westinghouse, the millionaire inventor and electrician, formerly the home of the late James G. Blaine; a little to the left of front we perceive the palatial mansion of Mr. L. Z. Leiter, the Chicago millionaire, and father of the famous beauty, Miss Mary Leiter, now Lady Curzon, the wife of the Governor-General of India; in the park in front we are confronted by the statue of Admiral Dupont, and also in front we see the President of the United States on horseback." The crowd looked, and one woman said, "Whose statue is it, McKinley's?" "It's Roosevelt," the guide responded. "He ain't a statue yet."

In spite of the opposition of his famous mother Maurice Bernhardt has applied to the state council of Paris for permission to change his name to Maurice Clairin. This is in order to conform to the usage which requires that children should bear the name of their father, not their mother. This step is said to have been taken at the instigation of Mme. Maurice Bernhardt who is about to become a mother, and does not desire to inflict the brand of illegitimacy upon her offspring. M. Clairin, whom Maurice now selects as his father, was a painter, whose infatuation for the "Divine Sarah" nearly caused a triple tragedy twenty-five years ago.

A remarkable instance of the intelligence of ants is described by Dr. Schroeder, in the "Zeitschrift fur Entomologie." Last summer a country house was so overrun by ants that the owner, after destroying a large anthill near the house and collecting the numerous pupae for poultry feed, laid sticky fly-paper before the door of the house in such a manner that the ants could not enter without crossing it. In the morning he found his poultry feed gone and the fly-paper covered with sand, dry grass and pine needles, over which the ants had passed "dry-shod." The anthill had also been rebuilt during the night. This case is well-authenticated, and a piece of the fly-paper is shown in evidence."

A somewhat apocryphal anecdote of Sir Wilfrid Laurier is going the rounds of the United States press. During the last general elections, it is related, a Quebec Liberal, whose acquaintance with Sir Wilfrid was only political, sent this telegram to his leader, who was in Ontario on a speech-making tour: "Report in circulation in this county that your children have not been baptized. Telegraph denial." To which despatch the Premier sent this reply: "Sorry to say report is correct. I have no children."

CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY

CAPITAL

10,000 Shares 7 per cent Cumulative Preferred Stock, par value $100 each, $1,000,000
50,000 Shares Common Stock, par value $100, issued and fully paid 5,000,000
TOTAL CAPITALIZATION $6,000,900

Issues of $1,000,000 00 7 p.c. Preferred Stock in 10,000 Shares of $100 each at par.

This stock is preferred both as to Assets and Dividends.

The shares are entitled to cumulative preferred dividends from the net earnings of the Company, at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable half yearly on the first days of April and October. They may, at the option of the holder, be exchanged for common shares. They are subject to be called in, in whole or in part, by the Company, at $115,00 per share, at any time after 1st January, 1909.

The total issue of Preferred Stock is only $1,000,000.00, the whole of which is now offered.

Subcriptions for 10,000 Shares of $100 each of the 7 per cent. Preferred Stock of the CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY will now be received at par, that is $100 Share, as follows

per cent on application,
25 " " on allotment,
35 " " 30 days thereafter.
35 " " 60 days thereafter.

One share of Common, par value $100, given with each share of preferred.

The whole of instalments remaining unpaid at any time may be prepaid in full. A discount of one per cent will be allowed upon the par of each share if prepaid at time of allotment

Notice of allotment will be sent promptly by ordinary letter.

COAL

PROPERTY IN FULL OPERATION

Company owns 9,600 acres of coal property known throughout the coal trade as the New Campbellton Colliery, located on Bras D'Or Bay, County of Victoria, Cape Breton, Nova Scotia. Mine is fully equipped, producing and marketing tons of coal a day at a net profit of $1.00 a ton. Improvements are now being made that will increase the output to over 1,000 tons a day. On present output, figuring 300 working days in year, the net result will more than pay interest on entire issue of preferred, with output of 1,000 tons a day net result will be $300,000 per annum.

IRON

RICHEST ORE IN THE WORLD

Company owns in fee simple, free and clear of all incumbrances, 4000 acres of iron ore deposit, located Natashquan (tidewater) situated on North shore of Gulf of St. Lawrence, in the County of Sagunay, province of Quebec.

Deposits contain 20,000,000 tons of ore ABOVE SEA LEVEL ALONE.

Quality of ore is highet ever discovered, running from 69 per cent to 72 per cent in metallic iron.

More orders for the sale of this ore has been received by the Company than can possibly be accepted, and at a price netting the Company a profit of $2 a ton F. O. B. vessels at Company's docks.

Send for prospectus giving full information as to earnings, reports, etc., etc.

Address all communications and send subscriptions to

COLONIAL SECURITIES CO.,
62 Wall Street, New York City

OR

W. L. MARSTON & COMPANY
110 State Street, Boston

The SAWYER COMPANY.
351 Temple Building, Montreal, Canada.

THE Intelligencer Bindery

MAKES A SPECIALTY OF

Ledgers,
Journals,
Cash Books,
And all descriptions of Blank
Account
Books

Mailing Tubes

Gold Lettering on Leather Goods, &c.

MAGAZINES,
ART WORKS,
PERIODICALS,
SERIAL NUMBERS
NEATLY BOUND

Map Mounting & Varnishing

☞Estimates cheerfully furnished for every class of work.

ADDRESS—
The Intelligencer
BELLEVILLE, ONT.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Measurement Nonpareil—12 lines to th inch.

Display advertisements, 10c per line.
Subsequent consecutive insertions, 8c.

Reading advertisements, 15c per line.

Preferred position, 20 per cent. advance upon usual or contract rates.

Minimum space, 10 lines.

Marriages and deaths, 50c each insertion
Births, 25c each insertion.

Rates for Condensed Advertisement will be found in 1st column of 2nd page.

All advertisements are subject to the approval of the Publisher of the Intelligencer.

Address all communications to the Intelligencer Printing & Publishing House Limited, or to Charles J. Bowell, Managing Director and Treasurer.

Canadians in London will find The Intelligencer on file at E. & J. Hardy & Co.'s Office, 30 Fleet Street, London, E. C.

CONDENSED ADVERTISEMENTS

SITUATIONS WANTED, HELP WANTED, LOST OR FOUND, FOR SALE OR TO RENT, &c

(Auction Sales not included in this list)

TERMS.—Twenty-five words or less, 25c first insertion; two insertions, 50c; four insertions, 75c; one week $1.00, two weeks, $1.75, three weeks, $2.25; one month, $2.50. Strictly cash in advance.

WANTED.

GIRLS WANTED.

Good wages, steady employment Apply at the office of the Quinte Laundry Company, Bridge St. 3t

$6.00 per month will buy a home anywhere under our plan. Live in it while paying for it. Something new. Write for prospectus. Canadian Home Builder's Association, Manning Chambers,, Toronto.

Help Wanted.—Good pay for spare time of intelligent men and women. No Canvassing. A Stegman, 429 La-Salle Ave., Chicago. jy2-6td

$1950 made by one man last year selling our household necessities. Did you make as much? Try our lines. Always selling. Write G. Marshall & Co., London, Ont. 2

Agents wanted, $2.50 per day. Apply Cooper, London, Ont. s27-1y

Young men ambitious to learn lucrative trades, of which there are eight in connection with the business. Apply The Belleville Hardware Company, Belleville, Ont. a7dtf

FOR SALE OR TO-LET.

Stone house, 11 rooms, coal furnace, stable, barn. Large grounds. Cor. Frank and Moira Sts. north. Terms reasonable. H. Bull, on premises or Fred Bull, 133 Yonge St., Toronto. Terms easy. ap18-dtf

FOR SALE.

That splendid property on the south east corner of Dunbar and Catharine Sts. City water and sewer connection. m28-4w

Dressed and Matched Lumber of all kinds, at ALFORD'S factory, Market Square. j12-tf

Contractors and masons, any any person requiring lime may procure it from E. G. STAPLEY, Canifton Road, Belleville. New lime always on hand. a9-d&w6m

TO RENT

A house on Moira street containing 8 rooms. All modern conveniences. Possession on or before 20th July.—Adam Henry.. dtf

You May Need
Pain-Killer
For Cuts
Burns
Bruises
Cramps
Diarrhoea
All Bowel Complaints

It is a sure, safe and quick remedy.
There's only one PAIN-KILLER Perry Davis'.
Two sizes, 25c. and 50c.

BABY'S DEFENCE
For Soft, White, Fregrant Skin, Use
BABY'S OWN SOAP
No other Soap is just as good. 031
ALBERT TOILET SOAP CO., Mfrs. MONTREAL.

THE MASTER MECHANIC'S PURE TAR SOAP heals and softens the skin, while promptly cleansing it of grease, oil, rust, etc. Invaluable for mechanics, farmers, sportsmen. Free Sample on receipt of 2c for postage. Albert Toilet Soap Co., Mfrs. Montreal.

Relieve those Inflamed Eyes!
Pond's Extract

Reduced one-half with pure soft water, applied frequently with dropper or eye cup, the congestion will be removed and the pain and inflammation instantly relieved.

CAUTION!—Avoid dangerous, irritating Witch Hazel preparations represented to be "the same as" Pond's Extract which easily sour and generally contain "wood alcohol," a deadly poison.

TIMING EXPOSURES.

A Work in Which Photographers Become Remarkably Accurate.

The photographer was about to take a picture of a young woman. "It's so dark here," he said, "that I guess I'll give you about thirty seconds," and, drawing out the slide and removing the cap, he began to count in a measured and mechanical tone, "one, two, three, four, five," and so on. When the exposure was finished the sitter said: "You gave more than thirty seconds to that plate. You counted very slow—I'm sure it took you a full minute to count thirty."

The photographer handed his watch to the young woman. He said: "I'll count thirty again. Time me." And he made the count exactly as before and he was just twenty-nine seconds making it. "One second off—not so bad. Near my old record, in fact," said the photographer. "Ten years ago, when I made more pictures than I do today, I could by counting make exposures up to five minutes without being more than a second off. Usually I'd be a second under; but, over or under, it was only by one second that I'd be out of the way. But," he added, "this gift is not remarkable. Nearly every photographer has it. Nearly every one of us can guess spaces of time running from a half a second to five or six minutes with what is for all practical purposes perfect accuracy."

Nature the Only Healer.

Medicine never did any person a particle of good except by digestion, assimilation—going into circulation, etc. No salve contains any healing property except as a protection to keep away the effect of oxygen in the air, dirt or any foreign substance from coming in contact with the part affected. The natural powers of our being possess the only power to heal. Anything that may be done to assist in a natural way is good—contrary, bad. Give good food to make good blood. Breathe good air, rest and not overexercise to the extent of fatigue. Then the body will recuperate. Then the wound will be healed by healthy serum that is secreted to heal all wounds, not the salve. The salve protects from outside influence, while the machinery within goes on with its work. Nature does it all.

One Way to Keep Accounts.

In a book of accounts found on the premises of a bankrupt dealer in a city in the west of England were the following names of customers to whom credit had been given and which would have puzzled all the official receivers in the kingdom: Woman on the key, Jew woman, coal woman, old coal woman, fat coal woman, market woman, pale woman, a man, old woman, littel milk girl, candle man, stableman, coachman, big woman, lame woman, quiet woman, egg man, littel black girl, Jew man, Mrs. in a cart, old Irish woman, woman in Corn street, a lad, man in the country, long Sal, Mrs. Irish woman, Mrs. feather bonnett, blue bonnett, green bonnett, green coat, blue britches, big britches, the woman that was married and the woman that told me of the man.

In an Old Time House.

To go down into the low ceiled kitchen, with its heavy, rough hewn timbers and its great fireplace with the logs fast turning to coals; to look into the old brick oven, where bread for a regiment could easily have been baked, and, perchance, to be asked to sit down on the old wooden settee under the little window where the pot of flowers stands and drink tea from a quaint blue cup will complete the charm the place has thrown about you. Many fantasies will throng the mind, and the shadows cast upon the walls by the wavering light make this house their home—one booted and spurred and with a military step, the other a rustle of silk and a whiff of rare perfume.

Shipping Cinnamon.

Cinnamon is so extraordinarily sensitive that great care has to be taken with regard to its surroundings on board ship, as a bale of very fine cinnamon will lose much of its delicate aroma if packed among bales of coarser bark. Various expedients have been tried to remedy this. The Portuguese and Dutch isolated the bales by packing them in cocoanut fiber or in cattle hides, but it is found that the only real safeguard is to pack bags of pepper between the bales.—"Two Happy Years In Ceylon."

Just the Reverse.

"Th' boss don't allus keep his word," remarked the office boy.

"What's he been doin' now?" inquired the stenographer.

"He told me when he went out this mornin' that he'd call me up on the telephone. 'Stead of that he called me down for not answerin' it when he come back from lunch."

Her Ultimatum.

Railway Surveyor—We are going to run a railway line right through your barn.

Farmer's Wife—All right; I don't mind. But you remember that I will have no trains after 9 o'clock at night. I have no intention of getting up after that to open the door for the trains to go through.

All Arranged.

Manager—When you come to that line wait for the applause.

Actor—How do you know there will be applause?

Manager—That is my business, not yours.

An obstinate man does not hold opinions; they hold him.—Butler.

The Ritchie Coy. Limited

Store Closed Every Wednesday During July and August at 12 O'Clock Noon.

CLOTHING SATISFACTION

Our greatest satisfaction is in the number of men our Summer Clothing is pleasing everyday.

Whether the Made-to-order or the Ready made variety—both seperate, but going to make up this complete Clothing Store—meet your requirements, the range in patterns and prices will suit your fancy.

Our best efforts are put forward to have every garment satisfaction—we have had no complaints as yet—to doubly guard your interests, we give our broad money refund guarantee.

Perfect tailoring is probably more necessary in summer clothing than any other. Being unlined, unless properly cut and supported it gets out of shape in a short time.

No need to buy the "sagging" kind with our assortment near. No greater cost either. Here they are:

—Summer Suit in single and double breasted, sack and Norfolk styles at $5.00, $6.00, $6.50, $8.50, ... $10 00
—Light weight Coats, 75c, $1.50, $1.75, $2,00, ... $2.50
—Black and Blue, fine serge coats, unlined $2 50
—Duck Trousers, white or with black stripe, ... $1.25, $1.50

SHIRT COMFORT

The Soft Front Shirt has become a warm weather fixture.
Not only the comfort but the neat appearance with which this is combined make these indespensible to the summer outfit.
No need to dwell on the size and moderate price of our assortment.
Suffice to say it defeats all previous efforts.
Every reliable brand—enough desireable patterns to make pleasurable choosing. See our window.

—Men's American Percale, soft front shirts in stripes and fancy designs, cuffs attached, fast colors, all sizes 50c
—Mens soft front shirt of American dimity cloth in fancy patterns, cuffs seperate 75c
—Mens white canvas weave, mercerized, soft front shirt—very dressy $1 00
—Celebrated Salem brand colored shirts $1.00

PAROSOLS

To properly appreciatte a summer Parasol you should have one at once. These are the days when you need one.

The pleasure in choosing the dainty creations from our assortment is greatly increased by the very moderate prices we are asking. In New York you would pay double the price for not as pretty.

—Neat mercerized Cotton Parasols, hardly discernable from Silk with hemstitched edge, and colored flowers $1.25
—Fine Silk Parasols $2.00 to $5.50

GLOVINE

The innumerable uses to which Glovine can be applied make it a househould necessity.

Many ladies have removed spots and stains from garments and gloves which they thought were permanent.

If you have a summer parasol slighty soiled, this will make it look like new. Costs very little to make a trial anyway. Forsale at our glove counter.

—Large bottle Glovine, for cleaning Gloves, Laces, Silks, Velvets, etc., ... 25c

RIBBON VALUES

You would hardly credit us did we tell you the quantity of ribbons sold over our counters each day. Especialy Taffeta and Duchesse which are now so popular for neckwear.

A reason for everything, there is one for this, Read below and we think you can see at once and take advantage.

—Finequality Silk Duchesse Neck Ribbon, 4 inches wide, Green, Blue, Cream, Red, Yellow and White, per yard ..20c
—Black, White and colored, pure Silk Taffeta wash ribbon 4 inches wide 18c

OUTING ACCESSORIES

The EXTENSIVE STYISH LOW PRICE assortment we show in neccessary furnishings for the summer outing have made this store popular with both men and women.

Our spring enlargement enables us to keep a larger and just as select a stock from which to satisfy your needs.

—Fine leather belts for men and Boys in patent leather, seal skin and Alligator 25c to $1 50
—Men's summer supenders in in fancy fast color designs to wear with soft shirts 25c

REDUCED TABLE CLOTHS

Many of our underpriced pattern Table Cloths have left us. We want them all to go. New fall shipment will be here soon. Probably no prettier or newer designs but they must have the place these now occupy.

Compared with values, the prices we ask are really insignificant.

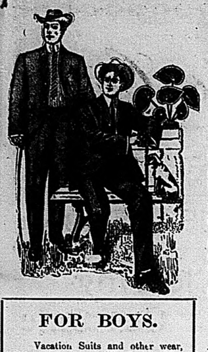
If you have any use for a fine linen cloth the buying inducement—once you have seen these—will be irrestible.

—The remainder of our bordered patten table cloths, $1 50 for 75c, $2.00 for $1.00, $2 75 for $1.50, $3 00 for $2.00

Agents for Standard Patterns.

The Ritchie Coy. Limited

CLOTHING BOUGHT HERE PRESSED FREE OF CHARGE



Everything

Is Thoroughly Good

That's certain, at QUICK & ROBERTSON'S—we are more particular about giving than you are in getting it perhaps.

But there are other reasons why you should buy at this store where quality is the first consideration.

We not only make goodness certain by applying every known test for quality, but are equally as careful to price that goodness as common as the ordinary sorts are priced elsewhere.

HERE are a few suggestions of summer fixin's that should interest men and mothers of boys.

FOR BOYS.

Vacation Suits and other wear, things that after good hard wear show the difference between our good sorts at our common prices and cheap sorts, which cost a little less.

—Regulation Sailor Blouse Suits, Cheviot mixtures, stripes and serges. .... $1.25 to $4.50

—Norfolk Jackets, single and double-breasted suits for older boys, extensive showing of plain and fancy mixtures .... $2.00 to $5.00

—Washable Sailor Suits 50c to $1.50.

—Wash Waists and Blouses, 25c to $1.00.

FOR MEN.

—SUMMER SUITS—Such as are impossible to obtain except at the best custom tailors—perfect fitting, stylish garments, suited to men who want the out-of-the-ordinary sorts. Homespuns, Tropical Serges, Worsteds and Flannels.......................... $3.75 to $12.00

—OUTING TROUSERS $1.00 to $4.00.

—NEGLIGE SHIRTS—In stripes and patterned materials, such as custom shirt makers would show you as their newest—plain or plaited bosoms.......... 50c to $1.50

—STRAW HATS—Every one new, the largest assortment of the smartest shapes the best makers have produced.

Sailors, in low crown .... 50c to $2.00

Panama shape, the right ones .... 75c to $2.50

QUICK & ROBERTSON

Here is where you buy Johnston's Clothing for Men and Boys.

Why Be Bothered

With the flies in your house when you can get

Screen Doors

complete with hinges, screws, handle, hook and eye, for 75c

AND—

Screen Windows

20c

The W. W. CHOWN Company, Limited

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines, or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

THE WEST BELLEVILLE METHODIST CHURCH.

REV. MR. MARTIN REJOICES IN THAT ITS DEBT BIDS FAIR TO BE SOON WIPED OUT.

Few churches have labored under a greater incubus of debt than Holloway Street Methodist Church. It was erected under the pastorate of the late Rev. Dr. E. B. Harper, with Rev. Dr. Rose junior pastor, in the year 1876. It has enjoyed the services of a succession of able ministers.

At one time, it was suggested to abandon the church to the mortgagee, which could only mean financial ruin to the trustees individually. More hopeful counsels prevailed. About thirteen thousand dollars have been paid for interest alone since 1876. During the term of the present President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, the Rev. T. J. Edmison, B.A., D.D., an effort was made to reduce the debt, which resulted in cutting it in two, but still the pall of debt hung over the church. Early this spring another effort was instituted, which bids fair to remove the last vestige of encumbrance. The movement was begun in the Sunday School.

Mr. W. J. Magrath, the energetic superintendent, proposed to raise $1,000.00 in the School, provided the congregation would raise the remaining $2,300.00. Almost everybody except Mr. Magrath thought the proposition quixotic, but on May 24th Mr. Magrath proved he had not overestimated the ability and zeal of his School. Over $1,000 was pledged, which has since been increased to over $1,300.00. But where was the other $2,300.00 to come from? Where there is a will there is a way.

The popular pastor, Rev. J. R. Real, seconded by Messrs. Magrath, Canniff and Embury, was equal to the task. Last Sunday was a red letter day for West Belleville Church. The Rev. D. O. Crossley was the preacher, but the work was well under hand when he came. The $3,200.00 debt is covered by good subscription with a handsome margin to cover interest until the debt is paid, which it is anticipated will be inside the next two years. All honor to Rev. Real and his noble lieutenants, Magrath, Canniff and Embury, not forgetting Rev. Crossley. A happy and thankful congregation went home from the church last Sunday night. Well might they sing the grand old doxology.

The canvass has revealed the fact that West Belleville Church has a warm place in the affection of the people of Belleville. A large percentage of the subscriptions came from outside the congregation. West Belleville Church has demonstrated the fact that she ought to live and is truly grateful for substantial aid from outside.

It is only proper to say that the debt was reduced $1,000.00 during the pastorate of Rev. Mr. Watch. Former pastors will rejoice with us at our abundant success.

A. MARTIN.

GREAT SALE.

Stirring call to a great cheap sale of men's, boys' and children's high class clothing and furnishings at prices that will force you to buy. Out goes every stitch of the remaining lines of our spring and summer stock, no matter what the loss is. We are determined to clear out everything left, and we will easily do so as our prices to a point where buying is irresistible. Look at our ad.—The Globe Clothing House. 6t

In Memoriam.

THE LATE WILLIAM KELLEY.

There died at his late residence, Front of Sidney, on May 27th, Mr. Wm. Kelley. No man in Sidney was better known or more truly beloved than Mr. Kelley.

Of a naturally retiring disposition he never sought public office. His delight was more in the secluded walks of life and it was there that he did his work.

In his early training he had the advantages that a truly Christian father and mother afford and he grew up to be a man, despising meanness in any form and loving truth and honesty. Such men make true Christians when the Spirit has done its work. He was converted to God about 25 years ago and joined the Methodist church. He soon became one of the prominent men of White's Church, Sidney, and his zeal never flagged. In the Sunday School especially, among the young his influence was felt. He labored there untiringly and the young people knew and felt he was their friend and few men ever held the hearts of the youth as he did. Although his body has been laid to rest, his work is not finished in White's School. Seed sown there by him will yet spring forth and bear fruit.

He was born on the farm where he died, February 28th, 1845, and was thus 59 years of age. On 21st March, 1870, he was married to Miss Maggie Metcalfe, who with one son mourns his loss.

CHAMBERLAIN'S COLIC, CHOLERA AND DIARRHOEA REMEDY.

The uniform size of this remedy has made it the most popular preparation in use for bowel complaints. It is everywhere recognized as the one remedy that can always be depended upon and that is pleasant to take. It is especially valuable for summer diarrhoea in children and is undoubtedly the means of saving the lives of a great many children each year. For sale by all druggist.

THE BEAUTIES OF ST. AGNES' SCHOOL

Were Vividly Impressed on an Intelligencer Representative Yesterday Afternoon.

An Ideal Location, and Accommodations Which Could Hardly be Surpassed.

School Will Open, D.V., on the 9th of September Next—A Giant Tree.

If old Time could only turn backward in his flight and make the writer a boy again—a little boy, that is—he would like to have that wish granted and, next September, go as a pupil to St. Agnes' School. Of course, you know that St. Agnes' School is to be, first of all, a young ladies' school, but little boys will be allowed to there master the difficulties of the primary class. After that they must go away and leave St. Agnes' to their more fortunate sisters. It is doubtful if, when the late Hon. Billa Flint was erecting that magnificent building on Bridge street, he dreamed that one day the walls would resound with the fresh, happy voices of young ladies who, beneath its roof, would acquire an up-to-date education. Old bachelor as he was, Mr. Flint must have had some notion of the kind, or he would not have planned all those beautiful nooks in the grounds, where "Airy Fairy Lillians," their arms locked, could stroll during leisure hours, exchanging dreams of the future. School days are proverbially happy ones, and assuredly the boys and girls who are fortunate enough to acquire any part of their education in "Elmpool," Belleville's new Church of England educational institution, will have ideal surroundings.

On the invitation of Mrs. F. R. Lingham, an Intelligencer representative yesterday afternoon had the privilege of going through the building and grounds, and hearing that very energetic and enthusiastic lady describe what has been done and what is going to be.

"Would you like to see the plans?" said Mrs. Lingham, and the writer saw that the west front room is to be a school room, and the east one a reception room. From the reception room to the office is but a step. The remainder of the rooms on the main floor will be school rooms. The old kitchen—which was very small for its age—has been removed, and on its site will rise a fine new building to be used as a chapel and hall for social gatherings, 24 x 60 feet, with acoustic properties of the best. The dining-room will be below the chapel, also the domestic science room. Above the chapel will be the art room. On the second floor of the main building will be the dormitories for boarding pupils, bright, airy and well ventilated, which will be partitioned off to accommodate four persons. The big brick building behind the kitchen, formerly used as a woodshed, will be utilized for the housekeepers' and servants' quarters, and will also contain a hospital room, fitted up with all modern appliances. The fittings of the rooms in the main building are notable for their richness and good taste, and it speaks well for the builders of fifty years ago that the panellings and oak fittings are still in excellent repair. The roof of the servants' quarters is being raised about eight feet, so as to make it uniform with the main building. The large coach house in the rear of the servants' quarters is to be fitted up as a primary school room and gymnasium, and one can well believe, after seeing it and hearing Mrs. Lingham's description, that it will be exceedingly well suited for that purpose.

The grounds and garden cover two and a half acres, and the latter contains a healthy crop of vegetables which will help to augment next winter's table supply. In front of the grounds will be provided a space for basket ball, etc., while in the rear of that a space will be cleared for a grand tennis court. This article would not be complete without a description of the artificial lake, or pool, which gives the place its new name. The pool is fed by a spring and the water runs off through a drain covered by an iron grate. In Mr. Flint's time the pool was stocked with gold and silver fish, which, after his death, were allowed to escape and were subsequently found alive down by the bay, having passed safely through the drain, thus showing the excellent qualities of that waterway. Beside the pool stands a giant elm tree, 20 feet in circumference, the age of which one can only guess at. Altogether, the buildings and grounds would seem to be perfectly suited for the purpose, and one could not help being infected with Mrs. Lingham's enthusiasm when she declared that St. Agnes' School, when completed, would be, in location and perfection of method, second to none in Canada.

The faculty will number at least ten, perhaps twelve. Thirty resident pupils will be taken at first, which number may shortly be increased to fifty. The number of primary scholars will, of course, depend on circumstances.

The curriculum will be such as to make the school a midway place between the High School and the University, the institution having affiliation with the Toronto Conservatory and the Toronto colleges.

Altogether, St. Agnes' School bids fair to be an institution of which the citizens of Belleville may well be proud, and we predict for it an era of prosperity commensurate with the energy of its projectors and the beauty of its location. More than that could hardly be looked for.

The school will open on September 9th.

A SOCIETY FUNERAL.

REMAINS OF THE LATE JAMES HOWATSON LAID AWAY IN THE TOMB.

The remains of the late Mr. James Howatson, who died at Anaconda, Mont., and which were brought here, were interred this afternoon. The funeral was held from the lodge room of Mizpah Lodge, I. O. O. F., under whose auspices it was held. A large number of the brethren and relatives were in attendance at the obsequies. Rev. A. H. Drumm, of the John St. Presbyterian Church, conducted the services, and the services of the lodge were also gone through with. A large number of beautiful floral designs were placed upon the casket. The bearers were: Bros. J. Duckworth, L. B. Cooper, W. A. Pringle, D. Baker, N. M. Ostrom and J. E. Parks. The interment took place at the cemetery. The I.O.O.F. band preceded the cortege from the lodge room to Commercial street.

NEVER SAY DIE.

You may be weak, miserable, nervous, sleepless, your digestion may be poor and you despair. Never say die, until you have used Ferrozone, the most wonderful blood maker, nerve strengthener and brain invigorator. It tones up the whole system. You can eat anything and digest it if you use Ferrozone. You sleep well. You make blood quickly, strength increases daily, in a short time you're well. Try Ferrozone, which you can obtain at all drug stores.

Not That Kind of a Grit.

The Hamilton Herald says that Harold Marsh, son of Harry Marsh, formerly of the 1st concession of Huntingdon, but now living in Hamilton, had his foot so badly crushed by a street car at the corner of Pine and Locck streets that it was necessary to amputate it at the city hospital. The operation was performed without administering chloroform. After the dressing had been completed one of the doctors said: "Harold, you are a good grit." The little fellow slightly raised his head and said: "No, t'aint a Grit. My father is a Tory and I am a Tory, too."

JUST A COLD IN THE HEAD! But if followed by another cold, or some extra exposure is liable to result in nasal catarrh. Unless a radical cure is obtained the throat, bronchial tubes and finally the lungs become affected. Nothing cures colds so quickly and pleasantly as Catarrhozone. The inspector of Mines for Nova Scotia, Mr. Neville, says, "Catarrhozone is the best remedy I have ever used. It cured me of catarrh of the head and throat, and I am pleased to recommend such a satisfactory remedy." Catarrhozone is a safeguard against colds, coughs and catarrh. It can be used while at work, in the church, theatre or street cars. Simply inhale Catarrhozone and it cures. Price $1. Small size 25 cents. Druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Veterans' Land Grants.

The Commissioner of Crown Lands has decided that veterans may select free grant lands not only in New Ontario but also in the Counties of Hastings, Addington and Frontenac.

TOOTHACHE CURED IN ONE MINUTE.

Not only toothache, but any nerve pain is cured instantly by Polson's Nerviline. Thousands have testified that its powerful, penetrating, pain-subduing properties make it an absolute cure for neuralgia, rheumatism, toothache, cramps, colic and all other pains and aches that beset mankind. The world is challenged to equal Nerviline as a household liniment. Large bottle 25 cents.

MARRIAGES

FANNING—GULLETT — On the 30th inst., at the residence of the bride's mother, by the Rev. Rich. Duke, Nellie Werden, third daughter of the late William Gullett, to Burrell Aubrey Fanning, all of the township of Rawdon.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM TOURIST RESORTS.

Orillia, 'Penetang, Muskoka Lakes, Georgian Bay, Upper Lakes, Lake of Bays, Magnetowan River, Kawartha Lakes, Thousand Islands, Quebec, Portland, Me., Old Orchard, Me., White Mountains.

The above resorts are all reached via the Grand Trunk. Excellent service to Muskoka Wharf, connecting with steamers for "Royal Muskoka" Hotel and other ports on Lake of Bays.

Tourist tickets are on sale, embracing a trip through the Lakes in Highlands of Ontario, also to ports on Upper Lakes, and to Eastern points. For tickets, illustrated and descriptive literature of Canadian Resorts and all information as to routes and rates for summer tours apply to U. E. Thompson, C.P. and T.A. j7-6t

BadCoughs Neglected colds always lead to something serious. They run into chronic bronchitis, pneumonia, asthma, or consumption. Don't wait. Take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and stop your cough. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sports and Pastimes

SPORTING NOTE AND COMMENT.

A local team of baseball players went to Picton to-day to play a match in that town.

The first of a series of yacht, skiff and punt races were held this afternoon on the bay. The various classes were well filled.

CITY AND DISTRICT.

Advertisements under this heading TWO CENTS A WORD; subsequent consecutive insertions ONE CENT A WORD. No loss charged at less than twenty-five words.

A drunk last night had possession of the cells.

The result of the entrance examinations will be published to-morrow.

The first half holiday was generally observed to-day, the majority of the business places being closed.

Well kept finger nails are indicative of a refined person. We have nail files, nail powders, nail brushes, etc., all styles. Prices as low as possible.—Alex. Ray.

A large consignment of live hogs were shipped from here to-day.

The clerks of that old and well established firm, The Ritchie Company, have their annual outing this afternoon on a special steamer chartered by the firm, which will take them to Napanee.

If your eyes ache whenever you try to read or if you get drowsy let us examine them. It won't cost you anything and we will tell you what's the matter with them. Delays are dangerous.—Alex. Ray.

Liberals in Arms.

Oshawa, July 7.—(Special)— This town is divided into several political camps. There have always been two camps, Liberals and Conservatives, but at this time the former division is split into several factions, and it all came about through the recent appointment of John F. Tamblyn to the postmastership of Oshawa. James Carmichael, who filled the office for 26 years, died on June 14, at the age of 82 years, and on the following Wednesday the official announcement was made, that Mr. Tamblyn had been appointed, although the position was really filled on Monday, the day after Mr. Carmichael's death. When it became known that Mr. Tamblyn was the man, a howl went up from the Liberal camp.

WOOL CRASH.

People are asking what it is. Wool crash is a sort of misnomer. It is not crash, but simply a light cool worsted in a crash weave. Hold it up to the light—you can see through it. Yet it's as tough and strong almost as thick beaver, and wiry enough to hold its shape. For a cool summer vacation knockabout suit, wool crash takes the lead. Good enough, too, for business. Come, see! Suit prices, $3.75, $5, $6 and $7.50.—Quick & Robertson, Belleville's Best Clothiers.

Literary Notes

Accordion plaiting and smocking will again aid in beautifying garments for women and children. To know all about either process one should read the Designer for August, which, in addition to illustrating and describing the above, pictures all that is stylish in millinery and fashions for this season of the year. "How and Where Perfumes are Made," by Katherine Louise Smith, "Women Who Make Money," by Landon Knight, and "Floral Stands of Honolulu" are three interesting articles to be found in this issue, which also contains three excellent short stories, as well as many other articles timely and interesting.

The City of Evansville, Ind., is under the control of Brig.-Gen. McKee and Mayor Covert, assisted by police armed with shotguns. The regular police force will be tripled and enforced by the several companies of militia now on guard.

All the boot and shoe workers in the employ of the J. & T. Bell Co., Montreal, are on strike. The men say they have no demands to make, but that the firm has violated its agreement with the Union.

Union Picnic.—Bleecker Ave. and Kingston Road Sunday Schools tomorrow (Thursday), Str. Varuna, at 8.30 a.m., to Orphans' Home, Picton. Tickets 25c and 15c. Come sure, everybody.

LATEST NEW YORK STOCK QUOTATIONS

AS FURNISHED TO THE INTELLIGENCER BY H. R. BEATTIE, STOCK BROKER.

New York, July 8.

STOCK	Op'g	H'st	L'st	Close
Atchison	68½	69	68⅜	68⅝
do. pref ..	92½	92½	92¼	92¼
St. Paul.. ..	151⅝	152¼	151⅜	151¾
Mo. P. ...	103½	104⅛	103½	103¾
Union. Pac .	82	82⅛	81⅞	81⅞
C. P. R.	125	125	124¾	124⅞
South Pac. ..	50	50¼	49⅝	49¾
R. I.	34⅛	34⅜	33⅞	34
Ills. C.	134⅛	134⅜	134½	134¾
Sou. Ry.....	24⅛	24⅜	24	24⅜
Texas...... ..	29¼	....	....	....
B & O.......	86⅛	86¾	86¼	86⅝
N. Y.C.	126	126⅛	125⅜	125⅝
Penna	125¾	126⅛	125½	125½
T. W....	99¼	100	99	100
Soo	59¾	60⅛	59¾	60¼
Erie	33¾	33⅞	33½	33⅝
do. pref. ...	68¼	68⅛	67¾	67¾
Reading	52½	52⅝	52⅛	52¼
C. O.	39	39	38½	38½
O. & W.	25⅞	25⅞	24½	25⅝
Manhattan ..	137¼	137¼	137	137
L. & N	111¼	111¼	111	111
A. F.	38⅛	38⅛	38	38
Nor.........	67¼	67¼	67	67⅛
Wab........	24⅛	24⅛	24	24
do pref. ..	44⅛	44⅛	43⅞	43⅞
C. G. W. ..	19⅜	19½	19½	19⅜
T.C.I.	52¾	53¼	52¾	53
U S. Stl......	30[illegible]	30⅛	29⅜	29¾
do pref.....	81	81⅜	80⅞	81
Sugar	120⅛	120⅛	120	120½
B. R. T......	58	58⅛	57¾	57⅜
Po..........	98½	99	98½	99
A. C. P. . ..	53⅝	53¾	53¼	53⅝
Met.........	122⅛	....	....	....
Alc	23¾	23⅛	23¼	23½

Sept. wheat opened at 77⅛; closed at 77¾.

Sept. corn opened at 52¼; closed at 51⅜.

Former Bellevillian Married.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Milne, Broadview avenue, Toronto, on Thursday their only daughter, Miss Maggie Mae, was married to Capt. N. Merrill, L.L.B., of Buffalo, N.Y., formerly of this city. The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. J. McP. Scott. Miss Ada Pringle, of Belleville, was the bridesmaid, and Mr. L. Sewell, of Toronto, was best man. Captain and Mrs. Merrill will reside in Buffalo.

FIVE LITTLE MINUTES are all the time Perry Davis' Painkiller needs to stop a stomachache, even when it is sharp enough to make a strong man groan. Don't be fooled by imitations. 25c and 50c.

SEASIDE RESORTS.

The Grand Trunk Railway is the best and most comfortable route to all eastern points, including White Mountains, Old Orchard, Me; Portland, Me.; "International Limited" leaving Toronto 9 a.m., daily, carries through Pullman to Portland, Cafe Parlor to Montreal. Eastern Flyer leaving Toronto 10.30 p.m. daily, is a solid train of vestibuled coaches and Pullman Sleepers.

Tourist tickets are on sale, embracing all the principal sea side resorts. j7-6t

HAROLD.

The recent rains have done great good to the crops and the farmers are again smiling and happy.

Some farmers in this vicinity contemplate cutting hay this week, which is a fair yield, considering the long drought.

Mr. David Cotton, who had the misfortune to fall from a horse, breaking his right arm and injuring his knee, is doing well.

Mrs. T. Adams (nee Miss Hurst) and Master Teddy are spending the summer with her mother and other friends in this vicinity.

Mrs. Sidney Woodward is gaining slowly, after being confined to her bed for two weeks.

Mr. Alex. Wellman wears a smile these days. Another boy.

Miss Bella Gay, our popular P.M., returned home, after spending a very enjoyable vacation.

Honey will return to wax if left untouched for some years.

In the British army 90,000 men have good conduct badges.

Italy makes [illegible] million a year out of foreign visitors.

A horse has been known to jump 37 feet in a steeplechase.

Nearly 500 different kinds of tiny shells go to make up chalk.

There are nearly 650,000 women dressmakers in the United Kingdom.

Piles To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles, the manufacturers have guaranteed it. See testimonials in the daily press and ask your neighbors what they think of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. 60c a box, at all dealers or EDMANSON, BATES & CO., Toronto.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

ESTABLISHED 1870.

Light Weight Felts

$3.00 Hats.............................. $1.50
$2.50 Hats.............................. 1.25
$2.00 Hats.............................. 1.00

These are this season's style. All sizes.

S. A. HYMAN & CO.

GLASGOW WAREHOUSE.

Wash Goods

Reduced to Lowest Point.

Here's good news for Ladies who have their Summer Dresses yet to buy.

Tuesday morning we will place on sale the balance of this seasons purchases of Embroidered and Fancy Colored Organdie Muslins, Printed and Figured Lawns, Fancy Colored Dress Sateens, Anderson's best Scotch Ginghams and English Zephyrs, at a discount of 25 per cent.

Off present selling prices which are all marked in plain figures.

This discount will last 3 days.

TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY

When such seasonable goods as the above are offered you at this discount, don't delay in making your purchases early Tuesday.

There is always a choice for early comers.

Laidlaw & Ketcheson

DIRECT IMPORTERS

Daily Intelligencer.

THE INTELLIGENCER IS SOLD AT J. W. London's and G. Wardhaugh's.

Local Reading Advertisements,

words 50 cents; 2 cents per word first insertion, per word subsequent consecutive insertions. Headlines count as 12 words; contracts for long periods made at office

BATH HELPS

It adds much to the luxury and benefit of baths to have at hand all the usual requisites. There is we think no item of bath supplies we do not carry. It will not cost you much to provide a complete outfit.

Bath Brushes, Mitts, Bath Tablets, Soaps, Toilet Waters, Sea Salt, Loofahs, Sponges, etc.

McKeown's DRUG STORE

The Sun & Hastings Savings and Loan Co. of Ontario.

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL

$5,000,000.

3 1-2 per cent. allowed on Deposits, payable on Call,

4 per cent. on Deposits for one year or over.

Money to Loan upon favorable terms.

OFFICE, No. 46 Bridge St., Belleville,

J. P. C. PHILLIPS,
Manager Belleville Branch.

An eagle can live 20 days without food, and a condor 40 days.

Our Rolls, Pastries & Cakes

Take a prominent place at most of our excursions, picnics and etc. Get your supply to-night. Store closed this afternoon.

CHAS. S. CLAPP

MONITOR

This is another fine Mantle Clock, not quite so expensive as Gadski in last week's advertisement, but fully as serviceable. It is an eight-day hour and half strike on cathedral gong, fancy columns with trimmings and drop handles, in every way a beautiful clock. Our price only $5 50.

T. BLACKBURN.

Eyes examined free of charge. Jeweller & Optician.

SPECIALS FOR THIS WEEK

This week will be an interesting one. We will work on all Odds and Ends. Special Job Lines at prices that will be sure to sell.

THE ARTICLES OFFERED

White Muslin, suitable for Ladies' and Children's Dresses, was 15 and 20c yd., Sale price	10c
6 Pieces Fine Print for Ladies' Fine Dresses, was 15c yard, to clear	10c
29 Pieces 33 in. wide Print, was 8c, sale price	5½c
31½ in. Pink Flannelette, was 10c, sale price	7c
Reversible Crettone, double width, was 25c yard, for	21c
Standard Shoe Dressing, 10c, for	6c
Tourist Drinking Cup and Bottles, job	25 to 35c
Naptha Washing Powder	5c

Fruit Jars, machine made, at Lowest Prices.

Fruit Jar Rubbers, per doz. 5c.

Traveller's Samples of Ladies' Blouses, ranging in price from 50c to $2 25, sale price 25c to 75c.

Ladies' Black Sateen Skirts, fluted, 69c.

Cut Prices on all our Coal Oil Stoves.

McINTOSH BROS.

LONDON RECEIVES LOUBET

French President Pays Visit in Semi-State.

His Reply to the Lord Mayor's Toast—Whole French Government Values Friendly Relations Between the Two Countries—Confers Decorations on Well-Known Englishmen—Visits Royal Family, and Dines King Edward.

London, July 8.—President Loubet yesterday called at the French Hospital and the Home for French Governesses, and returned to St. James' Palace about 10 o'clock. He was everywhere greeted with great cordiality and cries of "Vive Loubet." A reception was accorded a deputation from the Diplomatic Corps, and shortly after noon the President, accompanied by Ambassador and Foreign Minister Delcasse, started in semi-state to visit the city. Shortly before 1 o'clock a visit was paid to the Guild Hall. After luncheon the Lord Mayor toasted the President, who, in reply, said: "The presence at my side of the Minister for Foreign Affairs of the republic, "is a pledge to you of the value which the whole French Government attaches to the development of these happy relations of friendship between our two countries."

President Loubet bestowed the decoration of Grand Officer of the Legion of Honor upon the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Marcus Samuel, Admiral Sir Lewis Beaumont, known in America as the former commander of the British Pacific Squadron, and Lord Avebury (formerly Sir John Lubbock.)

M. Loubet returned to St. James' Palace at about 3.30 p.m., and spent the rest of the afternoon in a round of visits to members of the royal family.

King Edward drove to the French Embassy at 7.30 o'clock last night to dine with President Loubet. A great crowd of people outside gave His Majesty an ovation. The King was met at the door of the Embassy by M. Loubet, Ambassador Cambon and the staff of the French Embassy. The guests included Premier Balfour, Colonial Secretary Chamberlain, Foreign Minister Lansdowne, Mr. Choate, United States Ambassador; Lord Rosebery, and the Duke of Devonshire.

A gala operatic performance was given at Convent Garden last night in honor of President Loubet. A salute and a roar of cheers announced the arrival of King Edward and President Loubet, who entered the royal box and stood bowing while the bands played the British and French national anthems.

Exchange of Courtesies.

Portsmouth, Eng., July 8. — The British fleet yesterday welcomed the United States European squadron to Britain's naval headquarters. The British ships formed two lines and down this lane of huge grey warships moved the Americans. As the American warships approached the jetty "attention" was sounded on the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, Nelson's flagship Victory and the other ships. The Mayor of Portsmouth cordially welcomed the Americans.

BASEBALL TUESDAY.

The Eastern League.

Toronto ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 3 0—3
Worcester ....0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 1—2

Two-base hits—Kellackey, Merritt. Sacrifice hits—Merritt, Toft. Stolen bases—Brodie, Massey, Miller. First base on balls—Off Hardy, 2. Struck out—By Hardy 1; by Falkenburg 1. Time—1.45. Umpire—Kelly. Attendance—500.

First game— R.H.E.
Buffalo ....0 3 0 0 2 1 0 0 0—6 13 3
Providence ......0 0 0 2 1 0 0 0 0—3 8 1

Batteries—Hooker and Shaw; Viau and Diggins.

Second game— R.H.E.
Buffalo ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 1—2 5 2
Providence ......0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0—1 7 2

Batteries—Ferry and Shaw; Jones and Diggins. Umpire—Brown. Attendance—800.

R.H.E.
Jersey City .....0 0 0 0 0 0 4 2 *—6 12 4
Baltimore ....0 0 0 0 0 0 4 0 1—5 8 0

Batteries—Pfanmiller and McManus; Burchell, Pounds, Robinson and Ahearn. Umpire—Latham. Attendance—2300.

R.H.E.
Newark ....4 2 0 2 0 0 1 0 *—9 12 2
Rochester ....0 0 0 0 1 0 0 1 0—2 5 1

Batteries—Burke and Thiery; Leary, Steelman and Fuller. Umpires—Moriarity, Mills and Swartwood. Attendance—8000.

National League Scores.

At Chicago— R.H.E.
Chicago ....0 0 0 0 0 3 0 0 0—3 8 2
Philadelphia .....1 0 1 1 2 0 0 0 1—6 12 3

Batteries—Wicker and Kling; Duggleby and Roth. Umpire—O'Day. Attendance—1200.

At Pittsburg— R.H.E.
Pittsburg ....1 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0—2 7 5
Brooklyn ....2 0 0 0 0 1 2 0 0—5 0 2

Batteries—Doheny and Smith; Jones and Ritter. Umpire—Johnstone. Attendance—3030.

At St. Louis— R.H.E.
St. Louis ....2 0 0 0 1 0 0 1 *—4 9 1
New York ......0 0 2 0 0 1 0 0 0—3 9 2

Batteries—Currie and Ryan; Taylor and Bowerman. Umpire—Emslie. Attendance—1200.

At Cincinnati— R.H.E.
Cincinnati .. ....0 1 0 0 2 0 0 0 0—3 11 3
Boston ....0 0 3 0 0 0 0 2 0—5 8 0

Batteries—Poole and Bergen; Pratt and Moran. Umpires—Moran and Holliday. Attendance—2500.

American League Results.

At New York— R.H.E.
Chicago ....1 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—3 11 3
New York ....0 0 0 1 0 0 0 1 0 0—2 8 1

Batteries—White and McFarland; Tannehill and O'Connor. Umpires—Sheridan, Beville and Flaherty. Attendance—2240.

At Washington— R.H.E.
Washington .....0 0 0 1 2 0 2 0 *—5 7 1
Cleveland .. ....0 0 0 1 0 0 0 1 0—2 11 1

Batteries—Orth and Kittredge; Dorner and Bemis. Umpires—Drill and Bernhardt. Atendance—1102.

At Philadelphia— R.H.E.
Detroit ....1 1 3 0 1 0 1 1 0—8 13 2
Philadelphia ....0 0 0 0 1 3 0 1 2—7 9 8

Batteries—Donovan and McGuire; Plank, Herley, Coakley and Schreck. Umpire—O'Laughlin. Attendance—4870.

At Boston— R.H.E.
Boston ....1 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0—2 9 4
St. Louis ....0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 2—3 13 1

Batteries—Sudhoff and Evans; E. Gibson and Criger. Umpire—Hassett. Attendance—4320.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Campbellford, Ont., July 7.—There were 1875 white cheese offered. Sales: Magrath, 480 at 9⅝c; Hodgson, 400 at 9⅝c; Brenton, 200 at 9⅝c; Cook, 200 at 9⅝c. Balance refused at 9⅝c.

John McNairn, Prospector.

By SID HOWARD.

GOOD old John McNairn is down from Whitefish to see about his mine. Whitefish, a map-forgotten station up on the north shore, be it known, is John's postoffice address, and where, tiring of the woods and hungry for the gentle ways of civilization and the sight of petticoats and clean, smooth faces, John comes to camp in the sectionmen's house and watch the trains go by. Two passenger trains a day, one from the east and the other going back there—the east where the money is, where the soft-mannered, gentle-voiced women are, from whom John, having lived all his life in the woods, is now forever cut off.

For that is the saddest part of John's life. He is absolutely alone. His friends are dead or lost, and the relatives of his boyhood away down on the St. Lawrence. All the days of his manhood John has dwelt in the wilderness, in the lumber woods of the Gatineau and far up at the head waters of the Ottawa, where the mighty river rises on the lower Canada side. At the time of the construction, the great birth epoch of the West, the building of the C.P.R., John found himself with the trestle gang at Whitefish. And when the last rail was laid and the North Shore section was finally, after laborious years, complete, John took his money, made up his pack and struck north into the woods. It was a new country, and he intended to make a "stake" some day; then, in the hazy future, go back east, marry maybe, and settle down. He had a girl back there once, but she died. So John didn't care much where he went for a while. As he said, "There was no strings on him." There were no strings on him then, and there are none on him now. But sometimes, after playing the mouthorgan to him in his little log shack at night, he used to tell me that he "sort of wished he had somebody belongin' to him."

"But I've waited too long, I guess," he'd say. "Nobody'd take to me now, a wild man o' the woods like me."

He'd smile and sigh at the same time, with that lovable gentleness that belonged to him in spite of his grizzled, weather-beaten face.

"Do you think," he'd say, lighting his pipe and holding his hands so as to half hide his face, "do you think there be's any old spinsters, or widow-women, down there in Toronto who'd be willin' to stake out a claim up here with a feller like me? I guess not, eh?"

His face would brighten when we assured him there were plenty of unmarried ladies who would be only too glad to have him. He smiled always, but he didn't believe it, and neither did we. He had waited too long.

"There was one time here," he said once, "I had an ambition to board up the floor, but I never done it."

Two-inch cracks between the squared spruce logs which now separate John from the bare earth make his shack a decidedly precarious place when it comes to dropping little things for which one has any immediate requirement.

"A man grows careless," explained John. "You're easily satisfied when you're by yourself. It's let her go, Casey, any ways at all; good enough, good enough!"

He showed me a photograph one time of himself before he became a prospector—before the construction, as they date things up on the North Shore. It pictured a straight, vigorous man, with a strong, clean-shaved chin and a full moustache. Evidently roughing it in the bush had begun to tell during the last years. John was a much older man than the photo showed—older than the years since it was taken should have carried him. He handed me another picture too, a faded tintype affair, of a woman. He didn't tell me anything about that one.

Good old John! Owner of two or three mining locations that he half believes will one day make him a millionaire. If he lives long enough they may, but he's lived the heavier end of his life already. The North Shore is not a poor man's country. Money makes money the world over, and it takes capital to crush the gold out of the low-grade ore of the North Shore. But John hunts and traps and works in the other mines of the district, and waits. In the summer he goes out into the woods and the splintered granite hills alone with his gun and his pack-sack for weeks at a time, living on pork and biscuit and fried "pa'tridge," rapping at rock exposures with his geologist's hammer or crushing quartz in an iron bowl and washing it out to look for "colors" in the dregs. He hopes that the people down east will take a hold some time soon and put their money into the country and make it hum. "How are you pannin'?" is his "how do you do," and when you return the question he is always cheerful in his reply, "Pretty good." "She's bound to boom," he says when you ask about prospects in the North Shore country. "She can't help it. Man, dear, the mineral's here, ain't it?"

And recently he came to town! Good old John, with his camp-stained pack-sack instead of a trunk, and the rough, square-cut suit of tweed he ordered from the department store catalogue five years ago. But he disdained a collar, just as he disdained the water they offered him after his whiskey. He put up in a good down-town hotel, gave the manager his money to put in the safe, and hung uneasily about the smoking-room, going in to his meals with welcome relief. They set half a dozen knives and forks to each place at that hotel, but John gives his order to His Dress-suited Haughtiness—who would most surely die if it came to carrying a hundred-pound pack over a portage—with the quiet natural dignity of simplicity. He doesn't go right through the course, John. His idea is merely to coal up, to eat what will keep him working. Meat and bread and potatoes—and, "Hey, young feller, a dish o' tea"—that's all he calls for, and he eats with his knife as an unaffected matter of course. And then a pipe. Tea and tobacco are about the only artificial luxuries to be had in the bush. Sunshine and fine weather are the greatest comforts, but they are doled out spasmodically, by nature. A brush bed and a "white-man's fire" may be had for the swinging of an axe, but tea and tobacco come under a different head. John depends as utterly upon tea as a nervous old woman of sixty. But he couldn't find his tobacco the other day.

"Have you got a c'gar?" he asked finally.

I had two pure mild Havanas, which a quarter had provided especially for this occasion—cool, mellow fifteen-centers. I passed him one. John had his old black pipe in his teeth. He took the cigar, and before I could stop him he had cut half of it up and packed it into his pipe.

"Good heavens, John!" I said. "Here's half a plug of T. & B."

"This is just as good," said John, holding his "six-day" match in the hollow of his brown leathery hands. "I'm just come out to settle up my affairs," he explained. "I've put it all in the hands of my l'yer. Soon's he says I kin go—shake hands—good-bye—away I go."

"Well, you'll stay and see the Duke?" I said.

"Oh, I've seen hundreds o' men," said John. "I seen his father close as you are, up in Ottawa. He was just a man. Men's men wherever you go. The Dook o' Cornwall's train stopped at Whitefish for coal and water when I was comin' down. I was gittin' shaved in the section house and I didn't come out. I wasn't goin' to let him see me just out o' the woods, not shaved up or nothin'. Besides, I've seen lots o' men, thousands of 'em."

It's a dyke this time, a mile and a half straight across country, with gold, silver and copper.

"This man knows about whiskey, don't he, and feedin' people to make 'em fat? I've gained seven pounds since I been here. It's his business." (John and the hotelkeeper are already fast friends, and John's going to send him down some "pa'tridge.") "Well, I know about rocks, and quartz, and minin', don't I? It's my business. Well, get down where the rock is wet and she's good, she's first-rate. It's the truth. I know, don't I? Look!"

John is loaded down with quartz specimens. He must be carrying pounds around with him. He pulled out a jagged fragment as big as his fist and flashing with yellow blotches.

"Mile and a half she goes, up and down, across cricks and everything. An' nobody knows nothin' about it. Government nor nobody. But my l'yer says the money's all in real estate. There ain't no money fer minin'."

"Come and have something comfortable, John," I said, "to mind us of old days on the survey."

"All right," exclaimed he, with his peculiarly cheerful emphasis on the "all."

It may be a mine ostensibly, but I fancy it's loneliness that's at the bottom of John's "comin' out" this fall. For he confided to me presently that he'd like to meet a "nice, sociable gal afore he went back north."

And if any nice, sociable spinster doesn't mind a one-roomed, log-walled, tar-paper-roofed cabin, with two-inch cracks in the floor, she might do worse. For she'd get one of the far-fabled "nature's gentlemen" in Old John McNairn—philosopher, dry humorist, prospector and backwoodsman.

Grasshopper Bricks For Hens.

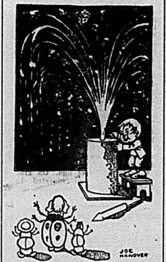
GRASSHOPPERS are being put to a new use out in Nebraska. The farmers have killed incredible numbers of them by the help of a machine which is, perhaps, the most effective ever devised for the purpose. It is called a "hopperdozer," and is nothing more nor less than a large flat pan, with a small amount of kerosene contained in a depression in the rear part of it. The contrivance, being attached to a horse, is pushed along in front of the animal as the latter is driven across the fields. Pretty nearly every grasshopper is encountered, jumps upon the pan, and is promptly suffocated by the kerosene.

This ingenious instrument has been in use for a number of years in parts of the West, but hitherto it has not occurred to the farmers to make any use of the dead grasshoppers. Most commonly they were burned, though some more enterprising agriculturists turned a portion of them to account as poultry-feed. They found that the hens liked them exceedingly; for it is a fact that a grasshopper is to a hen what a canvasback duck is to a human epicure—the very choicest and most esteemed of delicacies.

Hence the idea which is now being developed on a commercial scale. The grasshoppers, after being killed by the hopperdozer, are left in winrows in the fields, where they are soon dried. When they have been exposed to the sun for a sufficient time to reduce them to a properly desiccated condition they are gathered up with rakes, shoveled into carts, and conveyed to a shed, where they are put into a press somewhat resembling an ordinary cheese-press, and converted into solid bricks.

The bricks are shipped in quantities to poultry-raisers, who find this new kind of hen-provender most satisfactory, and they are anxious to get more of it. Apparently, it is a great encourager of egg-production.

It is not necessary to grind the bricks before feeding the stuff to the chickens, but merely to break them into pieces and soften with water.



Mama Bug—Look! children, Mt. Pelee is in eruption again!

SUMMER VISIT OF 1903.

Prof. Dorenwend

Of Toronto, the Famous HAIR GOODS ARTIST, IS COMING. HE WILL BE AT HOTEL QUINTE, BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, JULY 10.

With every kind and style of Ladies' and Gentlemen's Wigs, Toupees, Bangs, Wavy and Plain Fronts, Switches of all long hair in every length and shade.

His Art Styles are known and worn by all classes everywhere.

Be sure to visit his Show Rooms at the Hotel and see his new designs. He will, free of charge, demonstrate by fitting you what is the most suitable and becoming to you.

Their use adds Health, Comfort and Younger Appearance.

Gentlemen who are Bald should investigate and see his Feather Weight Toupees and Wigs, worn on over 55,000 heads.

Please Remember Day and Date

Hotel Quinte,
Belleville,
Friday, July 10th

DORENWEND'S TOUPEE'S.

Great Clearing Out Sale.

NATHAN JONES.

We have now made a general reduction on our entire stock.

Ladies' Whitewear

We offer our stock of Whitewear and Summer Vests at 33 1-3 per cent discount.

Parasols

Our stock of Parasols are all new goods. We would like you to see quality and price.

Corsets

We have all the latest styles in Corsets. You should see our 40c, 60c & 80c lines.

Prints

We would call your attention to our fine washing prints

10c lines now	8c
12½ & 15c lines now	10c

20 per cent. Discount off our Dress Goods.

NATHAN JONES.

SPECIAL OFFER

MIDSUMMER CLUBBING RATES.

Two Papers to January 1st, 1904

Family Herald & Weekly Star, and the Best Home Paper—The Weekly Intelligencer, BOTH for

65 CENTS

We are making this special offer as we require 1000 new subscriptions to our Weekly.

This offer is good to new subscribers only.

ADDRESS—
The Weekly Intelligencer
BELLEVILLE, ONT.

No agents handle this offer.

The Finnegan Carriage & Wagon Co.

—FOR—

Stylish and Durable Turnouts.

- —Surreys
- —Corning Buggies
- —Piano Box Buggies
- —Rubber Tire Buggies
- —Micadoes
- —Phaetons
- —Bike Buggies
- —Democrats
- —Grocer Wagons
- —Butcher Wagons

Cheese Factory Milk Wagons.
Steel Tubular Axle Lumber Wagons.

Rubber Tires put on your old wheels at reasonable prices.

Mill St., - - Belleville.

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE

FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

The Daily Intelligencer.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL — LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL — CHARITY IN ALL.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JULY 9, 1903 NO. 57

RAILWAY COMMISSION BILL

Minister Blair Gives Something to Independent 'Phones.

Commission Can Compel Admission of Wires to Railway Stations—Under the Bill Railways Are in the Same Position as Private Owners of Land as Regards Drainage—Question of Side-Ladders For Box Cars Held Over.

Ottawa, July 9.—Hon. Mr. Fielding last night gave notice of the following resolution governing bounties on iron and steel. The Governor-in-Council may authorize payment of the following bounties on the undermentioned articles, manufactured in Canada from steel produced in Canada from ingredients of which not less than 50 per cent. of the weight thereof consists of pig iron made in Canada.

That is to say:

(a) On rolled, round wire coils not over 3-8 inches in diameter when sold to wire manufacturers for use in making wire in their own factories in Canada, a bounty of $6 per ton.

(b) On rolled angles, trees, channels, beams, joists, girders, or bridge building or structural rolled sections, and on other rolled shapes not round, oval, square or flat, weighing not less than 35 pounds per lineal yard, and also on flat eye bar blanks when sold for consumption in Canada, a bounty of $3 per ton.

(c) On rolled plates not less than 30 inches in width and not less than 1-4 inch in thickness when sold for consumption in Canada for manufacturing purposes for which such plates are usually required, and not to include plates to be sheared into plates of less width, a bounty of $3 per ton.

2. The Governor-in-Council may make regulations to carry out the intention of the foregoing section.

3. Chapter 8 of the statutes of 1899 be so amended as to provide that the bounty on steel and iron authorized by chapter 6 of the statutes of 1897 shall be continued until the 30th of June, 1907, and that the rates of such bounties shall be as follows:

(a) From the first of July, 1903, to June 30, 1904, both inclusive, shall be 90 per cent. of the amount fixed by the said chapter 6 of the statutes of 1897.

(b) From July 1, 1904, to June 30, 1905, both inclusive, the bounty shall be 75 per cent. of the amount fixed by the said chapter.

(c) From July 1, 1905, to June 30, 1906, both inclusive, the bounty shall be 55 per cent. of the amount fixed by the said chapter.

(d) From July 1, 1906, to June 30, 1907, both inclusive, the bounty shall be 35 per cent. of the amount fixed by the said chapter.

Appropriations Passed.

Mr. Fielding moved two resolutions making good $708,179 of supplies granted to His Majesty for the year ending June 30, 1903, and $18,342,659 for the year 1904. These sums represent appropriations passed in Committee of Supply for special and immediate purposes.

Replying to Mr. Scott, the Premier stated that Mr. Justice Richards of Manitoba has been appointed a commission to enquire into complaints arising in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories concerning the lumber trade. The investigation will begin at once.

Mr. McCreary enquired if in deciding to pay over to Manitoba interest in the deferred payments upon the sale of school lands was the Government influenced in any way by the Colonial Secretary or any one acting on behalf of the Imperial Government.

"No," replied Sir Wilfrid Laurier, "neither directly or indirectly."

Mr. Henderson Fails.

When the House went into committee on the Railway Commission Bill, on clause 184, Mr. Henderson moved his amendment giving rural municipalities the same protection against electric railways in respect to railway rights on public highways that is provided for towns and cities. The amendment was declared lost on division.

The Minister of Railways moved an amendment to clause 193, giving the commission power to compel the admission of telephone wires of a company or municipality to railway stations.

After a short discussion the clause as amended passed.

The Drainage Clauses.

On the drainage clause, Mr. Cowan objected that the wording of it rendered it compulsory only as regards railways to be constructed to furnish sufficient drainage. He desired to have the clause amended to make it certain that it shall apply to existing railways.

Mr. Blair said that the clause was open to no such construction, but made it obligatory upon all railways to maintain efficient drainage and rendered them liable for damage arising from insufficient drainage.

Mr. Cowan proposed an amending clause to provide that in carrying drains across railways the cost to the land owner shall only be so much as the work would cost if the railway was not there, the balance to be borne by the railway company. The amendment carried after some discussion.

The Toronto and Hamilton Railway Bill and the G. T. Pacific Bill were held over.

The House then resumed consideration of the Railway Commission Bill in committee of the whole.

Cattle Guards.

The sections relating to fences, gates and cattle guards were next taken up. An amendment to the effect that nobody was in charge of an animal killed on the track should not deprive the owner of compensation was carried.

Mr. Ingram offered an amendment requiring all box cars to be equipped with side ladders and hand grips. Mr. Blair said that the House was hardly competent to decide a question of that kind, and the matter should be left to the board. Mr. Ingram insisted, however, upon having his proposition fairly considered, and as the hour was growing late, it was decided to defer the consideration of the subject to another sitting. The House adjourned at 1.40 a.m.

Put Off For a Time.

The bill incorporating the Canadian Telephone and Telegraph Co., which is promoted by a number of American capitalists, who have associated with them several members of the Canadian Parliament, was talked out by T. O. Davis, who claimed that it was a great trust which intended to control all the companies in Canada.

Supplies For the Penitentiary.

Ottawa, July 9.—The following contracts for supplies to Kingston Penitentiary have been awarded: Flour, M. McLaughlin & Co., Toronto; fresh meat, Thomas McConville, Kingston; coal, James Swift & Co., and G. Plunkett; sole leather and findings, H. Lamontagne; coal oil, R. J. Carson; hardware, Lewis Bros. & Co.; dry goods sundries, Hodgson, Summer & Co.; dry goods staples, the Hamilton Co.; groceries, sundries, J. Gilbert; groceries, staples, J. Crawford; drugs, J. B. McLeod.

Hamiltonian Died From Heat.

Hamilton, July 9.—The intense heat of yesterday was the cause of a death in this city last evening. Martin Phillips, who resides at 361 North Wellington street, and was employed as wheel tapper at the Stuart street station, was overcome by the heat and removed to the hospital in an unconscious condition, where he died half an hour later. He was 39 years old and unmarried.

SINCLAIR'S AD SINCLAIR'S AD.

Are You Interested?

In underpriced Dress Muslins and Wash Goods. In connection with our Mid-Summer Clearing Sale we make these very attractive prices to clear all our Summer Cotton Wash Goods.

All our Fancy Dress Muslins from 15c to 20c are now on sale at 10c yd.
All our Scotch Ginghams from 15c to 20c are now on sale at 12½c yd.
All our Fancy Dress Sateens from 25c to 35c are now on sale at 15c yd.
All our Fancy Dress Muslins from 25c to 35c are now on sale at 19c yd.
All our Best Dress Muslins from 40c to 60c are now on sale at 35c yd.

Stylish Shirt Waists

We have just placed in stock some very New Styles in Ladies' White Muslin Shirt Waists to sell at $1.25, $1.50, $1 75 and $2.00 each; also

NEW WASH SILK WAISTS

In Black and White Jap Wash Taffetas, very nicely tucked, to sell at $3 00 each.

Fancy Parasol Clearing

We have all our Ladies' Fancy Parasols on sale and marked to clear at 25 per cent. off regular prices.

The New Idea Magazine. August Number is now on sale. Price 5c.

D. V. SINCLAIR & CO.

LIFE HANGING BY A THREAD

His Holiness Pope Leo May Die at Any Hour.

Wonderful Vitality Combatting Complication of Diseases That Would Kill an Ordinary Man—Chloral and Caffeine Were Administered About Sunrise and He Fell Into More Restorative Sleep Than He Had Had All Night.

Rome, July 9.—(5.25 a.m.)—The Pope is asleep. The condition of his lungs is no worse. There is as yet no suspicion of serum gathering again in the pleura, but the disorder of his kidneys is disquieting. During the early part of the night His Holiness was somewhat restless. The occasional brief periods of sleep were disturbed by difficulty in breathing. Dr. Lapponi and the Pope's valet, Contra, did their best to nourish the patient at brief intervals. The Pontiff spoke little and seemed much depressed. Chloral and caffeine were administered with good effect about sunrise, and the Pontiff fell into a more restorative sleep than he had had all night.

Life Hangs by a Thread.

The life of Pope Leo continues to hang by a thread, with the expectation that any moment may bring the final catastrophe. Yet the wonderful vitality of the remarkable old man is combatting a complication of diseases which would endanger a strong man in the prime of life, throughout the day the reports from the sickroom have alternated with fears and hopes.

During the night the Pope secured but little refreshing sleep, and with this sleeplessness was augmented the depression. The difficulty in breathing had increased and a derangement of the kidneys began to seriously manifest itself. The official bulletin was supplemented in the course of personal conversation, by the doctors, in which they showed that they entertained scarcely any hopes of recovery. Yet they always qualified their statements, setting forth the Pope's remarkable constitutional strength.

The Silent People Watch.

Groups of silent people watched the lights glimmer in the sick chamber till past midnight. The prevailing sentiment of those admitted nearest to the sufferer is that his life is gradually ebbing away, but whether the final agony will be a matter of hours, or days, neither the doctors nor his nearest friends can tell.

POPE FEELS WEAKER.

Has Many Things to Do, Fears He Is Not Strong Enough.

The following particulars were obtained of the doctor's visit yesterday morning to the Pope. "How feels His Holiness?" asked Dr. Mazzoni.

"I do not feel as well. I am weaker," replied the Pontiff.

"Perhaps you did not sleep sufficiently?"

"No, no," answered the Pope. "I was better last night. I am sorry, because to-day should be a day of great work."

"Surely," Dr. Mazzoni replied, "His Holiness does not intend to work?"

"Certainly," answered the Pope. "I have so many things to do. But I am afraid I have not the strength."

Both of the doctors then proceeded to convince the Pontiff of the necessity for rest, urging him not to place obstacles in the way of his recovery.

"I shall do as you wish," said the Pope, in conclusion, with a sigh of resignation.

Afterwards His Holiness expressed a desire to rise, saying he would be more comfortable in his arm chair.

The Pope's attendant, Pio Cintra, then proceeded to help him to arise, but the Pope refused his assistance, saying he could still move by himself. In fact, without any help, except that afforded by his cane, the Pontiff walked a few steps to his arm chair, repeating now and then: "I am weaker. I am weaker."

Absolute Physical Harmony.

Dr. Mazzoni, speaking about the Pope this afternoon, remarked: "It has always been said that Pope Leo has shown powers of extraordinary resistance to diseases of the constitution, which is true; but he also, which is little known, enjoys the absolute harmony of all his organs and of his physical, moral and intellectual qualities, which is the real cause of his great resistance to illness."

The arrival of telegrams from all parts of the world, addressed to the Vatican, has been so numerous that the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs has been obliged to recall clerks who had gone on their summer vacations, besides establishing a special service in the transmission, delivering and replying to despatches to and from the Vatican.

King Edward, Emperor William, King Leopold, King Alfonso and the Queen Mother, the Prince of Montenegro, Emperor Francis Joseph, the King of Saxony and King Carlos of Portugal make frequent inquiries by telegraph as to the condition of the Pope.

DATA OF POPE'S ILLNESS.

Drs. Lapponi and Mazzoni Defend Themselves Against Attacks of Their Diagnosis.

lished a history of the Pope's illness, evidently inspired by Drs. Lapponi and Mazzoni, who wish to defend themselves from the attacks on their diagnosis of the case, but it is interesting as the first document giving exact data from a medical point of view. The account runs as follows:

"On the morning of Tuesday, June 30, Pope Leo went for a drive in the Vatican gardens. On returning he declared that he had been greatly benefited by the fresh air and wished to repeat the drive. The Pope said he felt no need of a medical visit and informed Dr. Lapponi not to go and see him.

"During the night of Wednesday, July 1, Pope Leo complained of intestinal disturbance, which he attributed to constipation. Notwithstanding, he went into the Vatican gardens and returned to his apartments again feeling benefited from his drive.

"On Thursday he declared he felt well, but Dr. Lapponi, wishing to know personally the nature of the disturbance complained of, spent the night at the Vatican. During the night the Pope was sleepless and restless.

"On Friday Dr. Lapponi examined the Pope and found pulmonary inflammation in the right of the thorax between the inferior and middle lobes. He informed Cardinal Rampolla and began the treatment which he thought right on Saturday. During the day the inflammation spread. Dr. Lapponi wired direct to have Pope Leo seen by Dr. Mazzoni, who, since the operation in 1899, has visited the Pontiff occasionally, replacing Dr. Lapponi during his illness with appendicitis.

"On Sunday Dr. Mazzoni went to the Vatican and examined the patient with Dr. Lapponi, confirming the latter's diagnosis, viz., an inflammatory process in the lung, which was defined in the medical bulletin as pulmonary hepatization. The original treatment was continued, consisting of supporting the strength, the heart and general condition of the patient.

"No noticeable change was observed until Monday evening. It was then found that the lowest part of the right of the thorax, which previously was pervious to respiration had become impervious, affecting the function of the lung. The presence of liquid was suspected. The Pontiff spent an agitated and sleepless night.

"On Tuesday many symptoms confirmed the presence of liquid. Its increase was considered to account for the Pope's general growing worse. After a test puncture 800 grammes of bloody liquid was extracted. The condition of the patient improved immediately, reviving hopes, slight in some persons and exaggerated in others. The amelioration in the condition of the patient was not continued during Tuesday. Indeed, depression gained the upper hand."

Cardinal Gibbons Leaves.

Baltimore, July 9.—Cardinal Gibbons left for New York yesterday on his way to Rome.

RETAIL GROCERS TO CO-OPERATE.

In Management of Large New Wholesale Grocery Establishment.

Toronto, July 9.—A charter has been granted by the Ontario Government to W. R. Rogers, John J. Davidson, M. M. Clancy and John Medland, to carry on in all its branches the business of wholesale grocers. The company is to be known as the Provincial Grocers, Limited. The capital is to be $250,000. The head office is to be in Toronto.

The proposal is to make it a sort of co-operative concern, in which the retail grocers throughout the province will take stock. They will purchase their goods at regular wholesale rates, and at the end of each year, after devoting a certain percentage of the profits to a sinking fund, the balance will be apportioned pro rata among the different book accounts.

18 Passengers Killed.

Richmond, Va., July 9.—A revised story of a wreck on the Southern Railway at Rockfish Tuesday puts the number of passengers killed at 18. About ten small children, who escaped injury, are foreigners, and cannot tell anything about their parents who were killed in the wreck. The entire crews of both the passenger and freight trains are said to be either killed or injured.

Drowned at Ottawa.

Ottawa, July 9.—Arthur Burt, 13 years of age, son of Jos. Burt, Inkerman street, Hull, was drowned last evening while in swimming near the Eddy Works. He was with two companions and was drawn into a swirling eddy. The body was recovered in a very few minutes after the accident.

Delehanty Likely Drowned.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 9.—A close watch is being kept along the river below the International bridge for the re-appearance of the body of a man, now believed to be Edward Delehanty, the famous baseball player, who fell through the open draw of the bridge last Thursday night.

Guilty of Murder.

Halifax, N.S., July 9.—The trial of Joseph Carver, who shot and killed Alexander Stewart at Southport, P. E.I., on Easter Sunday morning was concluded yesterday afternoon. The jury, after 10 hours, returned a verdict of "guilty," with a strong re-

TWO LONDON ATTRACTIONS

Loubet and Uncle Sam's Sailors Divide Applause.

French President Laid Wreath on Late Queen Victoria's Tomb and Witnessed the King Review 16,000 Troops at Aldershot — U.S. Squadron's Officers Welcomed—King Pays Them Honor at the State Ball.

London, July 9.—President Loubet and his suite visited Windsor Castle yesterday. He traveled in the King's train and was welcomed to Windsor by the Mayor and corporation. The President drove to Windsor Castle, escorted by Horse Guards, and after inspecting the castle, visited the Mausoleum at Frogmore, where he deposited a wreath on Queen Victoria's tomb. M. Loubet and party then returned to London.

Yesterday afternoon the President, accompanied by King Edward, Queen Alexandra, the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Foreign Minister Delcasse and Ambassador Cambon, reviewed 16,000 troops at Aldershot.

Yankee Sailors Welcomed.

The officers of the United States squadron and large detachments from all the crews arrived in London yesterday. They paid a round of official visits. The 1,500 American officers and men remaining at Portsmouth were entertained at luncheon, at which the Mayor presided. The procession to and from the hall was headed by the band of the Kearsage. The American were welcomed with immense enthusiasm. The luncheon was followed by a matinee at the Theatre Royal. Subsequently the visitors attended the unveiling by the Mayoress of a memorial statue to Queen Victoria.

The squadron will remain about a week longer than was intended in English waters.

King Receives Yankees.

King Edward signally honored the officers of the American squadron last night at the state ball given at Buckingham Palace—the climax of the visit of President Loubet. His Majesty formally received Admiral Cotton, the captains of the American ships and 25 of the junior officers, and Queen Alexandria, later gave them the same distinction. The ball—the first since the accession of King Edward—was a brilliant function, 2,200 guests being present, including President Loubet and his suite, practically all the ambassadors and ministers in London, the majority of the members of the Royal family, prominent representatives of the nobility, and the officers of the American and French squadrons now in British waters.

BASEBALL WEDNESDAY.

The Eastern League.

		R.	H.	E.
Worcester	1 0 0 0 0 1 1 2 *	5
Toronto	0 0 0 1 3 0 0 0 0	4

Two-base hits—Carr, Massey, Clancey. Sacrifice hits—Wolfe, Bruce, Demont. Stolen bases—McCauley 2, Bourdon. Double plays—Miller to Massey, Downey to Massey; Miller, Downey to Massey. First base on balls—Off Pappalau 4, off Wolfe 3, off Kissinger 1. Hit by pitched ball—By Wolfe, Clancey, Merritt, Sharrott; by Pappalau, Carr. First base on errors—Worcester 1, Toronto 1. Struck out—By Pappalau 3, by Wolfe 1, by Kissinger 2. Wild pitch—Wolfe. Time—1.50. Umpire—Kelly. Attendance—316.

		R.	H.	E.
Jersey City	1 1 1 0 0 0 1 0 0	4	11	6
Baltimore	0 1 0 1 2 0 2 0 0	6	12	2

Batteries—Barnett and McManus; Burchell and Robinson. Umpire—Latham. Attendance—1200.

		R.	H.	E.
Newark	0 1 0 0 0 2 0 2 *	5	11	1
Rochester	0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0	0	4	2

Batteries—Pardee and Tiery; Mills and Fuller. Umpire—Swartwood. Attendance—600.

		R.	H.	E.
Buffalo	3 1 0 1 0 1 1 3 0	10	19	0
Providence	0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0	1	4	2

Batteries—McGee and Laporte; Conn and Diggins. Umpire—Brown.

National League Scores.

At Pittsburg—

		R.	H.	E.
Pittsburg	0 3 0 0 0 0 0 2 *	5	11	0
Brooklyn	0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0	0	2	1

Batteries—Kennedy and Smith; Schmidt and Ritter. Umpire—Johnstone. Attendance—285.

At St. Louis—

		R.	H.	E.
St. Louis	0 0 0 1 0 0 1 1 2	5	8	6
New York	0 0 0 4 0 1 0 4 1	10	19	1

Batteries—Murphy and Ryan; McGinnity and Bowerman. Umpire—Emslie. Attendance—1220.

At Cincinnati—

		R.	H.	E.
Cincinnati	0 0 0 1 0 0 4 3 *	8	15	1
Boston	1 0 2 0 0 0 3 0 0	6	12	1

Batteries—Phillips and Bergen; Pittenger, Willis and Moran. Umpires—Moran and Holliday. Attendance—1500.

At Chicago—

		R.	H.	E.
Chicago	0 1 0 1 4 0 0 0 1	7	10	3
Philadelphia	0 2 0 0 2 0 0 1 0	5	8	3

Batteries—Lundgren and Kling; Fraser and Roth and Doonn. Umpire—O'Day. Attendance—1122.

American League Results.

At Boston—

		R.	H.	E.
Boston	0 0 0 4 0 0 2 0 *	6	7	[illegible]
Chicago	1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0	1	6	[illegible]

Batteries—Winter and Criger; Altrock and McFarland. Umpires—Flaherty and Young. Attendance—4517.

At Philadelphia—

		R.	H.	E.
Cleveland	0 0 0 0 3 0 0 0 0	3	5	[illegible]
Philadelphia	0 0 0 0 0 0 2 1 1	4	8	1

Batteries—Moore and Abbott; Bender and Schreck. Umpire—Hassett. Attendance—4319.

At New York—

		R.	H.	E.
St. Louis	0 0 0 2 0 0 1 3 0	6	9	[illegible]
New York	0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0	1	5	[illegible]

Batteries—Sudhoff and Kahoe; Chesbro and O'Connor. Umpire—Sheridan. Attendance—1229.

At Washington—

		R.	H.	E.
Washington	2 0 0 0 0 0 3 0 0	5	13	1
Detroit	2 0 0 3 0 0 0 0 2	7	8	1

Batteries—Patten and Kittredge; Kitson, Deering and Donovan. Umpire—O'Loughlin. Attendance—1133.

A Skylight Robber.

Toronto, July 9.—Hanging from a rope in the dark shadow of the walls of the massive Rice Lewis warehouse, the burglar who has been responsible for a dozen or more skylight robberies in the downtown

MODERN MEDICINE.

Cod-liver oil is good. Purified Petroleum is better. Angier's Emulsion is made of odorless and tasteless petroleum, glycerine and hypophosphites. It does all,—and more,—than cod-liver oil and similar preparations. It is pleasant to take, and agreeable to the stomach.

by the police last night. He is young, well-dressed and good looking, and gave his name as Henry J. Patterson of Hamilton. He was taken to the cells.

Child Fatally Burned.

London, Ont., July 9.—Tuesday the little son of Mr. W. T. Atcheson, keeper of the Central Hotel, Exeter, was fatally burned, owing to his clothes having caught fire at an acetylene gas lamp.

MAY TERMINATE IN WAR.

Russia and Japan Seem Very Likely to Clash Soon.

Kin Chau, opposite New Chwang, Manchuria, July 9.—All the prominent Russian officials in China, Manchuria and Corea, are attending the conference at Port Arthur. The proceedings at the conference are enveloped in profound secrecy. It is popularly supposed that the Russian officials are considering war questions. The foreign commercial officials at New Chwang and Port Arthur believe that the possibility of war is increasing steadily.

The Russian policy is believed to be to hold the present positions in Manchuria, including New Chwang, and to take no steps to avert hostility with Japan, if it is assured that Japan will fight unaided. The war feeling among the Japanese in North China is intensifying.

Bulgaria Will Stop.

London, July 9.—The Constantinople correspondent of The Daily Telegraph quotes an officer of high rank in the Turkish army as declaring that war with Bulgaria appears to be inevitable, and that Turkey was never so well prepared for hostilities. As a result of urgent representations from Austria and Russia, Prince Ferdinand has given the strongest assurances that Bulgaria will make no further military preparations against Turkey.

Captured U.S. Vessels.

Port of Spain, Island of Trinidad, July 9.—The French gunboat Jouffroy passed here Tuesday night on her way to Ciudad Bolivar, Venezuela, which is in the hands of revolutionists, to protect French interests. It is reported from Ciudad Bolivar that the Venezuelan Government forces Monday captured three American steamers near Apure, and that the revolutionists at Ciudad Bolivar have captured two American vessels.

IRISH LAND BILL.

Compensation to Trinity College Upheld by a Majority of 63.

London, July 9.—All the regular clauses of the Irish Land Bill being adopted, the House of Commons yesterday took up the newly proposed clauses, on the first of which the Government showed the smallest majority of the whole debate. Irish Secretary Wyndham proposed appropriating $25,000 annually out of the development grant to indemnify Trinity College, Dublin, for any loss of income arising from the sale of land owned by the college. The new clause was vigorously opposed by the Nationalists, but after a long debate it was adopted by a Government majority of 63.

After several minor amendments had carried, the Irish land bill last night was reported to the House amid cheers. Mr. Wyndham agreed to pay landlords a uniform bonus of 12 per cent.

Cabinet Didn't Last Long.

Athens, Greece, July 9.—The formal announcement in the chamber yesterday by Premier Theotokis of the resignation of the Cabinet (which was only formed ten days ago), was followed by a scene of the wildest disorder, during which the opposing deputies exchanged blows and the galleries joined in the general uproar. The Premier said that the Government was confronted by a formidable upheaval of the whole people, and rather than use severe measures, which the maintenance of order demanded, the Cabinet had resigned.

Mr. A. F. Gault Dead.

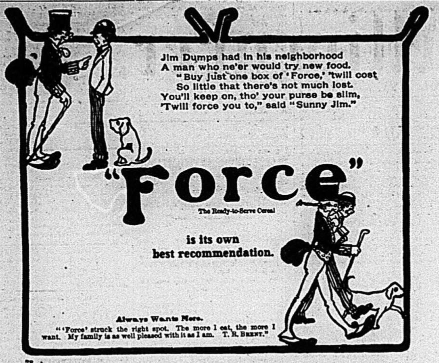
Montreal, July 9.—A. F. Gault, president of the Dominion Cotton Company, and head of the firm of Gault Bros., the largest wholesale dry goods house in Canada, died Tuesday night at his summer home at Georgeville, Quebec, aged 71 years. He had long been suffering from Bright's disease. Andrew Frederick Gault was born at Strabane, Tyrone, in 1833. Since the adoption of the N.P. he has borne the name of "The Cotton King of Canada."

Will Forward Jewish Petition.

Washington, July 8. — Secretary Hay returned to Washington from Oyster Bay yesterday afternoon. There has been no change of plan respecting the Jewish petition, so far as the general features are concerned.

Branch Left at Toronto.

Ottawa, July 9.—The Department of Marine and Fisheries has decided to move the Meteorological Office



Jim Dumps had in his neighborhood
A man who ne'er would try new food.
"Buy just one box of 'Force,' 'twill cost
So little that there's not much lost.
You'll keep on, tho' your purse be slim,
'Twill force you to," said "Sunny Jim."

"Force"
The Ready-to-Serve Cereal is its own best recommendation.

Always Wants More.
"'Force' struck the right spot. The more I eat, the more I want. My family is as well pleased with it as I am. T. R. BRENT."

78

The Finnegan Carriage & Wagon Co.

—FOR—

Stylish and Durable Turnouts.

—Surreys
—Corning Buggies
—Piano Box Buggies
—Rubber Tire Buggies
—Micadoes
—Phaetons
—Bike Buggies
—Democrats
—Grocer Wagons
—Butcher Wagons

Cheese Factory Milk Wagons.
Steel Tubular Axle Lumber Wagons.

Rubber Tires put on your old wheels at reasonable prices.

Mill St., - - Belleville.

RAILWAY TIME TABLES.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Time of departure from Belleville Station:

Going East.

New train 12.45 a.m., daily, except Sunday, for Brockville, Montreal and intermediate stations.

No. 16—Local, for Brockville, 7 a.m., arrives back from Brockville 8.40 p.m.

No. 2—1.45 a.m., Mail and Express, (Flyer), Daily.

No. 6—11.43 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.

No. 4—12.22 p.m., International Limited, Daily.

No. 12—5.55 p.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.

Going West.

No. 5—3 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily except Monday.

No. 3—4.10 a.m., Limited Express, Daily.

No. 9—5.50 a.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.

No. 11—11.22 a.m., Passenger, Daily except Sunday.

No. 1—1.48 p.m., International Limited, Daily.

No. 7—5.12 p.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.

Taking effect 12,01 o'clock, Sunday, June 14, 1903.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.

Belleville and Peterboro.

Going West.

	Leave.	Arr. Peterboro
Mail	5.45 a.m.	8.10 a.m.
Mixed	5.55 p.m.	9.05 p.m.

Going East.

	Arr.	L've Peterboro
Mixed	11.20 a.m.	8.25 a.m.
Mail	8.35 p.m.	5.05 p.m.

Belleville and Madoc.

Going North.

	L've	Arr. Madoc
Mixed	12.20 p.m.	1.20 p.m.
Mixed	6.30 p.m.	7.40 p.m.

Going South.

	Arr.	L've Madoc
Mixed	9.10 a.m.	7.30 a.m.
Mixed	5.00 p.m.	3.45 p.m.

None of the above trains run on Sunday.

GARDENVILLE.

The strawberry crop was not as large as expected.

Miss Della Chase is home on a visit from Gilmour.

Miss Lydia Thompson, of Consecon, was the guest of Miss F. Moynes.

Mr. H. A. Boyce and wife, of Carrying Place, visited our postmaster last Sunday.

Mr. M. B. Chase spent Sunday in Gardenville.

Mr. W. Clark has removed to Trenton.

Mr. L. A. Chase, of Trenton, is spending a week on his farm.

The farmers are very busy, cutting clover, which is a very good crop.

GENTLEMEN, IF YOU ARE BALD,
See Prof. Dorenwend's Art Coverings in Wigs and Toupees, worn on thousands of heads. They are a protection against Colds, Catarrh, etc., and give a most natural and younger appearance to the face.

Trying on and demonstrating the superior art of these goods free of charge.

He will be at Belleville, Quinte Hotel, Friday, July 10. wj2&d7-9

A Little Coal Goes A Long Way

towards heating a house if fed into a Furnace made to heat—one which does not send the fuel up the chimney in smoke.

'Sunshine' Furnaces

will extract more heat from a unit of coal than any other good Furnace.

Every square inch from the bottom of fire-pot to top of dome is a direct radiating surface.

The dome is made of heavy steel-plate, which makes it a more effective heater than the cast-iron dome put in common Furnaces.

The "Sunshine" has every improved feature and still is so simple that any person can operate it.

McClary's

London, Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg, Vancouver, St. John, N. B.

THE W. W. CHOWN CO.
LIMITED, AGENTS.

Daily Intelligencer.

THE ROSS GOVERNMENT.

At the last general election the people recorded a majority of over 5,000 against the Ross Government.

A charge of bribery was made against Stratton and his colleagues. Stratton selected his own jury to try him, the rest refused to be tried. A verdict was rendered, which was challenged in the Legislature, a vote taken, and by a majority of four, including the six culprits, voted Stratton and the Government innocent. Had the accused not voted for their own acquittal the Judges' finding would have been condemned by a majority of two.

Ontario has a Government condemned by the people by an overwhelming majority, yet they keep themselves in office by their own votes.

An enviable position, is it not? None but Grits would so demean themselves!

TIMELY TOPICS

Where are the police that they do not stop that indecent practice of those boys and young men who go swimming off the Grand Junction dock?

• • •

Yesterday during the latter part of the afternoon and evening young men could be seen in a naked condition off this place.

• • •

Are our mothers, wives, sisters and children to be subjected to this gross insult? Surely the authorities can make an example of some of them, or, at least, force them to wear swimming trunks which can be bought for the small sum of ten cents.

• • •

To sum the whole matter up in a nut-shell—give us a Public Bath.

• • •

A high P.O. official when told it was warm this morning, remarked "get a little fish blood in you and you will keep cool. They say I am cold-blooded, but then I have a little fish blood." The writer remarked. "I know you are cold-blooded all right enough, but didn't know you were part fish before."

• • •

Those Wednesday afternoon holidays are fine affairs for the clerks and others who can enjoy them. The Printer and Undertaker, however, work without ceasing.

• • •

If this is to become an automobile town, we rise to remark, is our park to be the speedway for these machines especially of an afternoon or evening?

• • •

It means this: Autos sometimes go at a high rate of speed, many women and children frequent the park and in all common sense should not these machines be kept from the people's breathing spot?

• • •

There are plenty of fine roads for autos and horses other than the Park road, and the Council should see that they be kept therefrom, or at least, should regulate the speed. It can't be done too soon.

• • •

Congratulations to the bright girls and boys who have passed the recent entrance examination. Those who failed have any consolation that may be derived from having plenty of company. The examiners must have marked papers very closely—were they suffering from a little bit of indigestion?

• • •

Hon. U. R. Stratton and others will give addresses at the dedicatory services in connection with the new chapel at the Mercer Reformatory on Friday next. Very appropriate that Mr. Stratton should attend that function, as he needs reforming.

• • •

"What became of your brother Charles? I regarded him as a very promising young man."

"I'm ashamed to tell you! He fell into bad company, went from bad to worse, became involved in some dishonorable transactions and finally landed in the Missouri legislature. It broke father's heart!"

This must be an error. Charles must have become a Grit member of the Toronto Legislature, and an admirer and follower of Stratton!

• • •

Disappointed politicians should not be discouraged. A scientist declares the world will last at least 20,000,000 years yet.

• • •

When a Chicago Alderman resigns to engage in the milk business, it may be concluded that he has the "stripping" process down pretty fine.—Buffalo Enquirer.

• • •

Here is a story which President Roosevelt is credited with having told the other day to members of his Cabinet. "Up in York State some years ago, a man was elected to an office in which the salary was $1,500 a year. He was poor and in debt when he took the job. After serving eleven months he invested $5,000 in real estate, $6,000 in cattle and had $3,000 in bank. The taxpayers were mean enough to start an investigation as to what he had done with the rest of his salary."

• • •

Three Sioux squaws have filed applications for Dakota divorces which shows that there is such a paradoxical thing as retrogression toward civilization.

• • •

A gentleman tells the story of his 4-year-old boy who, noticing for the first time a lock of gray hair on his father's head, asked:

"Papa, why are some of your hairs gray?"

Thinking to drive home a moral lesson, the father answered: "Papa gets a gray hair every time his little boy is naughty."

The child seemed lost in thought but after a short pause said naively:

"Well, then, grandpapa must have had awful naughty boys."

• • •

A dispatch from the West tells of a new style of worm which is invading the Walla Walla Valley and which eats weeds and lets the crops alone. Nothing but actual sight of the creature in full operation will convince the Eastern farmer that there is such a benevolent worm.

• • •

A Washington barber has the record of shaving eighteen men in 30 minutes. He couldn't have spent much time talking about baseball or the ponies!—Buffalo Express.

• • •

Gold has begun to arrive from the Klondike country. It has been estimated that the output for the Canadian and American gold-bearing districts would run close to $20,000,000 this year. Every year should see an increase in the production of the precious metal in that country, if it is as rich as has been thought.

Without wishing to become tiresome, we would like to remind you again

—that we were the first ones to introduce Ice Cream Sundys in Belleville, and almost the first to introduce them into Canada—

—that we are still a good first, inasmuch as we offer you a list of fifteen flavors to select from, and charge only five cents a dish.

J. ARTHUR MARSH.

Counterfeit Canadian $2 bank notes are in circulation in Kingston. They are said to be clever productions. United States $1 notes raised to $10 are also circulated.

SEASIDE RESORTS.

The Grand Trunk Railway is the best and most comfortable route to all eastern points, including White Mountains, Old Orchard, Me; Portland, Me.; "International Limited" leaving Toronto 9 a.m., daily, carries through Pullman to Portland, Cafe Parlor to Montreal. Eastern Flyer leaving Toronto 10.30 p.m. daily, is a solid train of vestibuled coaches and Pullman Sleepers.

Tourist tickets are on sale, embracing all the principal sea side resorts. j7-6t

SHOCKED AT CORRUPTION

PROMINENT LIBERAL OF FRONTENAC ISSUES WRITS AGAINST GRITS.

Kingston, Ont. July 8.—A peculiar political condition has arisen among the Liberals of the county, in connection with the Shibley election. It seems that a prominent Liberal, who lives at Yarker, has become shocked at the corruption which was practised at the contest, and, although the same is now matter of the past, he has had writs sworn out against five prominent Liberals who live in the County of Frontenac. The writs are now in the hands of Sheriff Dawson, and will be served at once.

TOOTHACHE CURED IN ONE MINUTE.

Not only toothache, but any nerve pain is cured instantly by Polson's Nerviline. Thousands have testified that its powerful, penetrating, pain-subduing properties make it an absolute cure for neuralgia, rheumatism, toothache, cramps, colic and all other pains and aches that beset mankind. The world is challenged to equal Nerviline as a household liniment. Large bottle 25 cents.

DIED AT A RIPE AGE.

MR. PELKEY, OF SIDNEY, JOINS THE GREAT MAJORITY.

Mr. Lewis F. Pelkey died yesterday in the Township of Sidney, being in his 83rd year. Deceased was born in Lower Canada, but the greater portion of his life was spent in this vicinity. He resided for many years in Belleville, and also lived in Cannifton for some time. Mr. Pelkey was well and favorably known here. He was a member of St. Michael's Church. A widow and eight sons survive. Had the deceased lived until next month Mr. and Mrs. Pelkey would have celebrated the 63rd anniversary of their wedding.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.

The members of the Methodist church on Foxboro circuit met in the church on Tuesday evening, June 30, and after spending a social hour, presented the pastor, Rev. R. N. Pope, with an address of a very complimentary nature. It was read by Mr. M. W. Mott, while Miss May Pope presented a purse. Mr. Pope made a very feeling and suitable reply on behalf of himself and family, after which a short programme was rendered. Dr. Faulkner occupied the chair.

DEATHS

PELKEY.—In Sidney, on July 8, 1903, Lewis Frederick Pelkey, formerly of this city, aged 83 years.

The funeral will take place on Friday, July 10, at 9 o'clock, to St. Michael's Church, thence to the R. C. cemetery.

Coin Pay Envelopes at The Intelligencer Job Office. Cheapest and best in the city.

NOTICE OF DISSOLUTION.

Notice is hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing between us, the undersigned, as Wholesale Grocers, in the City of Belleville, has this day been dissolved by mutual consent. All debts owing to the said partnership are to be paid to the firm of Kenney, Walmsley & Co., at their place of business, and all claims against the said partnership are to be presented to the said firm by whom the same will be settled.

Dated at Belleville, July 2nd, A.D. 1903.

GALBRAITH, WALMSLEY & CO.
Witness
W. Jeffers Diamond.

Mr. W. Denham

Of Denham's Drug Store, Petrolea, Ont., says:

"The O. R. Kidney Cure gives the best satisfaction to our customers of any kidney medicine we handle."

Belleville druggists speak highly of the O. R. Kidney Cure.

It does its work quickly.
It cures Lame Back.
It cures Lumbago.
It cures Bladder Trouble.
It cures Gravel in Bladder.
It cures Rheumatism.
It cures Kidney Troubles.
It will cure you.
Try one bottle.

O. R. KIDNEY CURE is put up in liquid form, contains no poisons, is quickly assimilated and will cure all kidney and urinary troubles.

O. R. Kidney Cure, 50c per bottle.
O. R. Liver Pills, 25c per bottle.
O. R. Dyspepsia Tablets 25c per box.

AT DRUGGISTS, OR WRITE—
THE O. R. MEDICINE CO.,
Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Successful Traders, Keep well informed. To do so, read our 400 page "Guide to Investors" and "Daily Market Letter." Issued Gratis—Mailed free.

HAIGHT & FREESE CO.
Stocks, Bonds, Grain, Cotton.
7 Melinda St., Toronto, Ont.

"Determining the character and financial responsibility of your Broker, is as important as selection of right stocks."

THE TOBACCO PLANT.

Its Origin, According to a Quaint Legend of the East.

The prophet was taking a stroll in the country when he saw a serpent, stiff with cold, lying on the ground. He compassionately took it up and warmed it in his bosom. When the serpent had recovered it said:

"Divine prophet, listen. I am now going to bite thee."

"Why, pray?" inquired Mohammed.

"Because thy race makes perpetual war on mine," said the serpent.

"But thy race, too, makes perpetual war against mine," was the prophet's rejoinder. "How canst thou, besides, be so ungrateful and so soon forget that I saved thy life?"

"There is no such thing as gratitude upon this earth," replied the serpent, "and if I were now to spare thee either thou or another of thy race would kill me. By Allah, I shall bite thee!"

"If thou hast sworn by Allah I will not cause thee to break thy vow," said the prophet, holding his hand to the serpent's mouth. The serpent bit him, but he sucked the wound with his lips and spat the venom on the ground. And on that very spot there sprung up a plant which combines within itself the venom of the serpent and the compassion of the prophet. Men call this plant by the name of tobacco.—"Tobacco In Song and Story."

Wind and Temperature.

The wind does not affect the thermometer, as any one may find out for himself by a simple test. Take two dry bulb thermometers of exactly the same kind and hang one of them where it will be exposed to the wind and the other where it will be sheltered—say, on two sides of the corner of the house—and after allowing them to hang thus for a few minutes you will find that they register the same. And yet the person who stands near the thermometer that hangs in the wind will feel the cold more sensibly than the person who stands near the sheltered one.

The wind is simply air in motion, and air in motion is no colder than the same air in a state of rest. We feel colder in the wind simply because its blowing over us takes the heat away from the body by causing a more rapid evaporation from the skin. There is no evaporation from the dry bulb of a thermometer, and therefore the wind does not affect it.

Thomas Carlyle and His Wife.

As a married couple they were indeed to be pitied if the world had known it. They were childless, and therefore half the world was dark to them. No man can be a "sage" who has no children. A barren woman is like half a story. Let her be ever so clever, so literary, so witty, when it comes to the essentials of life she is open to the retort, How do you know? And so it was with the Carlyles in their unsatisfying world of literary eminence. Pity them, gentle reader! When they shut the doors of their several bedrooms at night a mouse might not squeak or a fly buzz but they must start full awake in the blessed dark and moralize, the one on eternity and the other on Thomas.—London Outlook.

Wagner as an Acrobat.

Ferdinand Praeger related an incident of a visit to Wagner at his Swiss home. The two men sat one morning on an ottoman in the drawing room talking over the events of the years.

Suddenly Wagner, who was sixty years old, rose and stood on his head upon the ottoman.

At that moment Wagner's wife entered. Her surprise and alarm caused her to run to her husband, exclaiming, "Ah, Richard, Richard!" Quickly recovering himself, he assured her that he was sane and wished to show that he could stand on his head at sixty, which was more than Ferdinand could do.

Frogs and Snakes.

The common snake is very fond of water. Its food consists exclusively of frogs and fishes. All snakes eat either living food, including eggs, or creatures they have themselves killed. When pursued by a snake the frog seems to be half paralyzed with fear, leaping less and less powerfully as the snake approaches it more nearly and uttering feeble cries. If a stick be so pushed through the grass toward a frog as to imitate the movement of a snake the frog will exhibit the symptoms of terror just noted.

Contradicted.

"I never waste words on a fool," said the pompous person.

"That doesn't correspond with your wife's statement," replied a member of the skeptical faction.

"What did my wife say?" queried the P. P.

"That you were in the habit of talking to yourself," answered the other.

True Gratitude.

At Wichita a woman passing along the street with an armful of packages dropped her purse, containing $750. A gentleman found the purse and returned it to her. "Oh, how grateful I am!" she exclaimed. And then she impulsively opened one of her packages and said "Won't you have a cookie?"

Plenty of Practice.

"Yes, father, when I finish my education I am going to follow my literary bent and write for money."

"Humph, John, you ought to be successful. That's all you did the four years you spent in college."

His Indiscretion.

Clara—What came between you?

Chloe—Oh, he showed so much impatience with Fido.—Detroit Free Press.

Sunlight Soap will not burn the nap off woolens nor the surface off linens.

SUNLIGHT SOAP REDUCES EXPENSE

Ask for the Octagon Bar.

THE WEATHER.

To-day's Probs—

Moderate southerly winds, fine and very warm to-day and on Friday.

To-day's Temperature

As Registered by The Intelligencer's Guaranteed Thermometer:

8 a.m.	75
12 m.	86
2 p.m.	89
3 p.m.	96

To benefit from any other outing the Baths and Waters of the MAGI Caledonia Springs must be first taken. Season now open.

You Can't Oversleep

If it takes quite a noise to awaken you in the morning we have Clocks that will furnish the necessary disturbance.

They will not arouse you too soon, neither will they let you sleep too long.

If you set them properly they never fail to do their duty.

They are useful in most homes at odd times. They are indispensable in many homes every working day in the year.

$1 50 buys a GOOD ONE, though we have them cheaper as well as dearer.

Angus McFee.
Jeweler & Optician
310 Front St.

MILLINERY
—AT—
Half Price

All our Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats at HALF PRICE.

A few very choice ones still to choose from.

10 per cent. off Corsets Thursday' Friday and Saturday.

MISS IRWIN
Millinery and Corset Specialist

W. H. JESSOP
"VOCAL TEACHER"
STUDIO "KARN HALL," Montreal

After Monday, 6th JULY, will be in Belleville until 1st SEPTEMBER.

Studio in Belleville "FORRESTERS' HALL," over Mr. S. Burrows Office.

VOICES TRIED FREE.

Further information at Mr. W. B. Riggs' Music Store.

DON'T

Go camping out, without a bottle of MOSQUITO SCAT it's guaranteed to keep Flies, Mosquitoes, etc., away. A 15c bottle will ensure plenty of comfort and rest,

WATERS'

THE INTELLIGENCER is printed and published for The Intelligencer Printing and Publishing House (Limited) by CHARLES JAMES BOWELL, of the City of Belleville, in the County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, at their Office, No. 403 Front Street, Belleville, Ont.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

MEDICAL.

JOHN J. FARLEY, M.D., C.M., M.R.C.S., England.
Office and Residence — Corner of Bridge and George streets — three streets East of Post Office.

DR. J. F. MATHER
Has removed his office to Pinnacle St., three doors north of Hotel Quinte.
my29-6mw

LEGAL.

WILLS & WRIGHT,
Barristers, Solicitors, Notary Public, &c., Belleville.
Office—9 Campbell Street.

MALCOLM WRIGHT. J. FRANKLIN WILLS.
Money to Loan at Lowest Rates.

W. C. MIKEL, B. C. L.,
Barrister, &c.
Solicitor for the City of Belleville.
Office—Metropolitan Block, Corner Front and Campbell Streets.

PORTER & CARNEW,
Barristers, Solicitors, Notaries Public, etc.
Offices — Robertson Block, East Front St., Belleville, Ont.
'Phone 87.
E. G. PORTER. WM. CARNEW.

WILLIAM N. PONTON,
Barrister-at-law, Solicitor, Notary Public, Conveyancer. Office over Express and Telegraph Office, Bridge Street, Belleville.
Money to Loan — Private Funds, Solicitor Sun and Hastings Savings and Loan Company of Ontario.

FRANCIS S. WALLBRIDGE,
Successor to Hon. Lewis Wallbridge, Q.C.
Barrister, Solicitor, Conveyancer, Etc. Office, McAnnany Building, corner Front and Bridge Sts., Belleville, Ont. Private and Company money to loan at 6 per cent., on easy terms upon good land security.
Charges moderate.

INSURANCE.

Fire Insurance.

Guardian . .	Est'd 1821
The North America, .	Est'd 1792
Quebec, . . .	Est'd 1818

City, Town and Village Property insure at lowest rates.

R. W. ADAMS. Agent.
Office opposite Post Office.

PERSONS desiring Life assurance cannot do better than consult

W. J. THOMSON,

who is the Agent for the following well-known and 18 established Assurance Companies:
ROYAL. ALLIANCE.
OCEAN ACCIDENT STANDARD LIFE
Office at Rathbun Co., Bridge St. ocs-d&w

FIRE, LIFE & ACCIDENT INSURANCE

At Lowest Rates The Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Perth Mutual on farm and city property. Also money to loan at 4½ per cent. upwards.
JAMES A. CHISHOLM,
Office Ashley Block, - Front st., Belleville.

THOS. STEWART,
Insurance and Commission Agent.
Agent for the Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Scottish Union and National Ins. Co.
BRIDGE ST.

Money Saved is Money Earned

I can save you money by saving it for you in your Fire Insurance.
The Anglo-American Fire Ins. Co
The Merchants Fire Ins. Co.
The Equity Fire Ins. Co.
Are all strong Canadian stock companies and insure Farm and City Property at lower rate than other stock companies. Call and see me before placing your fire insurance.
Office—Bridge St., same entrance Quinte Laundry, Belleville.
H. FREEMAN KET[illegible]

Fire, Life & Plate Glass Insurance.

Liverpool & London & Globe of England.
Waterloo Mutual, of Waterloo, Ont.
Lloyd's Plate Glass,
Home Life Association, Toronto,
North British & Mercantile,
Farm and City Property insured in First-class Reliable Companies and at lowest current rates. Losses promptly settled. Land valuation, and transact general Real Estate business and sale or purchase and renting of property. Appraiser for the Hastings Loan & Investment Society. Money to Loan.
W. F. HUDSON, Office above Rathbun's office, cor. Bridge and Pinnacle Sts., opposite Postoffice and Hotel Quinte, Belleville,
'Phone 168.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A. G. NORTHRUP.
Issuer of Marriage Licenses, Shire Hall, Belleville, Ont.

CHAUNCEY ASHLEY,
Issuer of Marriage Licenses.
Private Office, Bridge St., Belleville, opposite the Post Office.
Residence, first house east of W. W. Chown's Mfg. Co., Station St.
Appointments made.

REMOVAL.
Dr. Clarke has removed to the offices formerly occupied by the late Dr. Ward, over Burrows', and opposite Scantlebury's Book Store.
a27dtf

FAST MAIL SERVICE

Bay of Quinte Route
TO
ROCHESTER N. Y.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian"

Taking Effect 27th June.

GOING DAILY (EXCEPT MONDAY)
Lv. Belleville .... 11.38 p. m.
Ar. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 0.43 a. m.
RETURNING DAILY (Except Sunday)
Lv. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 8 30 p. m.
Ar. Belleville .... 3.15 a. m.

Baggage checked to all points. Connection with all railways.

$1.00 THOUSAND ISLANDS $1.00

AND RETURN.

Commencing 28th June. Steamer leaves Belleville at 3 25 a.m. daily except Monday for 1000 Islands, calling at Bay of Quinte ports, Kingston, Alexandria Bay and Gananoque. Passing through American and Canadian channels.

Right reserved to change time with or without notice.

Full information from
THE RATHBUN CO., } Agents.
U. E. THOMPSON, }
E. E. HORSEY, G. P. & F. Agent, Kingston.

Str. "Alexandria"

Montreal, Rochester & Quebec Transit Co'y.

Popular Quebec Excursions NOW ON.

Belleville to Quebec and return.. $18 00
Belleville to Montreal and return $12.00
(including meals and berth)
Steamer runs all rapids.
For Rochester, Olcott Beach, Niagara Falls and Buffalo every Saturday at 11 a.m.
Particulars from
A. W. HEPBURN, General Manager, Picton, Ont.
THE RATHBUN CO. Agents. Belleville.

The Deseronto Navigation Co

TIME TABLE.
Taking effect April 13, 1903,
Belleville, Trenton, Picton & Napanee

Str. "ELLA ROSS"

Leaves Belleville for Trenton at 10 a. m., daily, Sundays Excepted, returning leaves Trenton at 1 p. m., leaving Belleville at 3 p.m. for Deseronto, Napanee and Picton.

Quick and Superior Service to NEW YORK CITY

Steamers RESOLUTE and RELIANCE will leave Deseronto for Oswego after arrival of Str. Ella Ross connecting at Oswego with the New York, Ontario Western Ry.

Fare to New York, Single, $8.40
Return, $13.25

For further particulars apply to THE RATHBUN CO., Local Agents
J. F. CHAPMAN, Asst. Gen. Fr. Pass. Agt., Deseronto
A ABYER General Manager Deseronto.

Str. "Niagara"

Monday 13th July—True Blues to Picton.
Tuesday, 14th July — St. Andrew's Church Sunday School to Twelve O'Clock Point.
Wednesday, 15th July—Baptist Sunday School to Twelve O'Clock Point.
Saturday 18th July—First Saturday Afternoon Excursion to Picton. Fare 35c. Leaves wharf at 2.30 p.m. sharp.

THOMAS STEWART,
Manager,
45 Bridge St., Belleville.

Goods We Have at Right Prices

—Hammocks.
—Fishing Tackle.
—Tennis Goods.
—Golf Goods.
—Lacrosse Goods.
—Base Ball Goods.
—Screen Doors and Windows.
—Fruit Jars.
—Fruit Jar Rubbers.
—Wall Paper.
—Crystal Glass Vases.
—Glass Ware.
—Dinner Sets.
—Toilet Sets.
—Ladies' Hose.
—Ladies' Vests.
Everything in smallwares.

AT THE BEE HIVE

Chas. N. Sulman

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

Choose The Best

If it is only the framing of a picture you may as well have the best workmanship as well as the largest selection of mouldings—when it don't cost you any more, probably less.

If we do not give you perfect workmanship—you may demand of us non-payment—framing superior to ours is impossible—we would not do all of the framing for Albert College Art Students if our work were not fitting, and proper.

Another lot of new mouldings just arrived, it would surprise you to see the repeated shipments of mouldings we receive.

You know what to expect of us in WALL PAPERS, and now with our special prices it is amazing what you can get for a small amount of money.

A beautiful new line of American Wall Papers arriving almost all the time.

Better not forget us for PAINTING. Whether your house is to paint outside or inside, whether a fence or a barn, we will paint it at reasonable prices but our workmen are not of the Barn Painting Kind. None but expert workmen find employment with us, men who will please you in both quality and quantity and we have no frills on our prices.

We purpose doing our paper hanging and decorating and painting at actual cost in connection with our Wall Paper department.

If You Live in the Country.

In Stirling, Tweed, Madoc, Trenton, Napanee, Deseronto or within a radius of 50 miles—we will send you workmen and guarantee you every satisfaction.

Our Paints

If you want prepared paints we have them in all colors.

Also barn paint at $1.00 per gallon, but better than that we will mix you the best lead and oil paint, our own mixing and our own materials at the actual cost of the less valuable ready-mixed materials.

Any quantity you want any color or shade, in a moments notice and at remarkably low prices — our customers are many in the paint line.

C. B. Scantlebury

Belleville's Decorator.

Wall Paper Wholesale and Retail.

For the Revelsworth Millions,

—OR—

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fail by the Man She Loves.

This portion of the will which related to the deceased lady's private property was to take effect immediately; so that Betty, to her own extreme surprise, found herself the mistress of Revelsworth House, and in the position of receiving as guests the assembled bearers of the family name.

This responsibility increased the difficulties of Betty's position. Mrs. Revelsworth had wished all to reside together under one roof until the division of the Revelsworth property. But, when the old lady made this proviso, she had no anticipation of sudden death, nor had she received the letter from Italy which cast such grave aspersions upon the character of her beautiful niece. Betty, feeling herself to be in some sense her dead employer's representative, was strongly exercised in mind as to what course she should pursue with regard to this letter. Her instinct told her that to show it to Francesca would be worse than useless. It seemed indeed as though Mrs. Revelsworth had bequeathed to Betty that lurking suspicion of Francesca under which she herself had always labored. Francesca would tell lies upon the subject—Betty felt sure of that—artful, plausible lies. Betty was beginning to fear her friend's capabilities in this direction, and to be slightly afraid of her too.

She stenuously fought against this feeling, telling herself, with burning cheeks, that is must be caused by a mean jealousy of Francesca's influence over Dudley.

"Because I am an insignificant little creature, not to be spoken of in the same breath with Francesca, must I be foolishly jealous of her?" she asked herself. "Or, because I have been silly enough to fall in love with a man who looks upon me as a sister, must I feel suspicious of Francesca just because she has fascinated him, and because she has had strange and sad experiences such as have never befallen me in my uneventful existence?"

So Betty locked up Mr. Graham Harker's letter within her desk, and said nothing about it to any one, by which act of unselfish loyalty and good nature she was the unconscious means of bringing many and dire misfortunes upon others in whom she was interested.

Meantime a glowing June had passed into a burning July and a hot dry August. The river was the one great resource of the Revelsworth household during these torrid days of unprecedentedly hot summer, and almost every afternoon the skiff and punt, or the punt and one of Heremon O'Meara's boats, were requisitioned to convey the five young people picnicking up the river.

By the lily-bordered banks at Pentor Hook they lunched in the sunny afternoons beneath the pollard willows and among the tall forget-me-nots, over which the dragon-flies hovered. Or they pushed up beyond Datchet, and, before the heights of Windsor loomed above them in the gray symmetry of historic age, they flirted, and made tea under a certain tree whose far-reaching branches formed a leafy screen from the passing boats outside.

Halcyon days of unchaperoned pleasure, the sweeter perhaps for a certain inward conviction felt by each one in the party that this comradeship was but a thing of days, and this quiet the lull before the storm! Certain elements among this party of five made it impossible that such enjoyment could be lasting. Victor's passion for Francesca semed to become intensified as his bodily strength failed day by day through the burning summer. Gradually he left off being aught but "passenger" inthe boating-parties; and at length, midway through August, it was often thought advisable, if the day was to be a long one, to leave him behind.

By this time Victor's naturally sweet temper had grown fitful and melancholy, and his jealousy increased to something like mania. He slept but little, and lost all appitite for food, seeming capable of nothing but to watch Francesca with hollow longing eyes.

She, for her part, was to all outward appearance perfect in her manner towards him, tender, gentle, and considerate, while she gave no encouragement to his passion—at least, in the presence of others. Again and again as they sat together alone in her luxuriously-furnished "den," and he devoured her with his eyes while she worked at her upright embroidery-frame, or picked out tunes, with fair head bent over the lute upon her knee, Victor would implore her permission to make their engagement public or at least to let him confide in his brother.

"It tortures me, my dear one," he urged upon her, "to see Dudley watch you as you lie on cushions in the punt, or as you sit by Betty's side while she is steering. I cannot bear that even you should make me hate my brother, and yet, when you look into his eyes as you sometimes do, and let your hand rest in his when he helps you in and out of the boat, I feel my fists clench in a longing to strike him! But it is not his fault. He does not know that you are my promised wife. But, now that our aunt is dead, there is no sense, no reason in keeping our engagement a secret. Will you not be pitiful? Can you not see that love and jealousy together are killing me?"

It's worth
Ten cents to clear your house of flies and Wilson's Fly Pads
will do it.

He flung himself upon the ground at her feet. Francesca looked at him intently—looked at the worn pallid face, the sunken cheeks and hollow eyes, and pushed back the damp hair from his forehead with her cool strong fingers.

"You certainly look very ill," she said. "I don't believe this house is healthy. It is too near the river, and it does no one any good to live in a haunted house. Do you ever hear that horrid rustling now?"

"Often at night, when I lie awake thinking of you. But it is not the house, Francesca. If you will marry me, I shall grow well instantly. If you will only let me tell the others, let me fix an early date——"

"What was that I heard you say to Dudley," she asked, interrupting him suddenly, "about going to stay at your mother's country house near Calais?"

"Ah—it is the little mother's chateau! Dudley has told her in his letters lately all sorts of things, you understand, that are not quite true—sillinesses about, me making her think I am very ill. And then that little Doctor Vernon—he has been talking to Dudley, insisting that I should have change of air——"

"And do you want to go?"

A tired hopless look came into the young man's face.

"It is not that I want to go, Francesca," he murmured, letting his head droop upon her hands as they lay folded in her lap, and covering them with hot kisses. "But sometimes it seems to me that I shall not live in this way many months longer. I can neither eat nor sleep—sometimes it seems that I cannot breathe, and that something holds me closely by the throat, suffocating me! If it were that I cannot bear to be away from you even for a day, I should be very, very glad to see my dear little mother again. And she loves me so dearly, and is so clever at nursing, that she would, I believe, make me well! But how can I leave you here with Dudley and O'Meara, unless I can tell them that you have promised to be my wife?"

"Yet you mean to go?" Francesca asked.

"But for leaving you my adored one, I should long to go for just one little week, perhaps. Think—it is nearly five months that I have not seen my mother; and all my life I have hardly been so long away from her! Every day now Dudley says that I must go, and Doctor Vernon too. The little mother is not just now strong enough to come over, or she would be here with me now that Dudley has told her I am not quite strong. You shall hear what she says to me."

And, drawing a sheet of foreign notepaper from his pocket, Victor read aloud to his cousin a portion of his mother's letter in tones which grew involuntarily tender as he repeated the "Little One's" words.

"'Come to me directly, mon fils bien-aime—come as soon as you read these words. My good husband is so clever—he will soon cure you; and here, in the beautiful sea-air which blows across our rabbit-warrens, you will soon be strong and fat and happy again. Above all, your little mother, who loves you so dearly, so tenderly, who can never for one moment forget her dear, dear boy, will never leave you until you are quite well! My husband does not think it well that I should cross the sea just at present—you know, what a bad sailor I am—and then I am sure it is change of air and scene you need. You must confide everything in me when we meet, mon cheri; but I fear I can understand that you break your heart over a love affair. It cannot be that charming Betty of whom you both talk so often, and whom I feel I love like a daughter already, though I have not seen her! It must, then, be the beautiful cousin who you tell me is a widow. Oh, I do hope with all my heart she will not treat you badly! She could not, if I could meet her and plead for you. But come to your mother, my darling boy, and tell her all, and she will console you and cry over you and laugh with you, as she has always done since she first held you, a weak, little baby, in her loving arms!'"

Victor's voice broke as he read the concluding words; but Francesca's face was calm and unmoved.

"A very kind letter," she said rather wearily; "and of course you must go."

"I will, if I may tell her and the other that you will be my wife," Victor replied.

"Let me see," Francesca said meditatively—"this is Tuesday. To-morrow we are going to be on the river all day. It is Walton Regatta, you know; and there will be fireworks and illuminations. We sha'n't be home until about eleven."

"Doctor Vernon told me this morning I must not go; but——"

"But you must obey him, dearest," Francesca said, laying her hand firmly upon his. "You must obey him for my sake. Write to your mother to-night, and tell her that you will cross to France by the mid-day boat on Thursday, if Doctor Vernon thinks you will be strong enough. I myself will go with you as far as Dover."

"And I may tell my mother?"

"You may tell her everything," she said with a sweet smile, placing her hand in his. "But not by letter—only when you get there. And, as soon as you return from France, you may tell your brother also. Not only that, but I promise, dear Victor, since you take it so much to heart, to marry you before the end of this year."

"My angel! But I cannot leave you here without telling Dudley."

"You may write to Dudley from France as soon as you have seen your mother, and tell him I will marry you this year."

"Next month?"

"Next month, if you like, though that is terribly sudden. But mind—not one word to any one until you reach French shores. It is my caprice—my wish. And now let me go, Victor dear, for I must break the news to my mother too."

Very quietly, very swiftly Francesca passed up the two flights of stairs to the invalid's room, and after calling her name outside the door, entered, and faced the little, wrinkled, black-eyed woman lying back in her chair.

"To-day is Tuesday," she said, in an impressive whisper. "To morrow we all go to Walton Regatta for the day—all except Victor. And on Thursday he is going to France to stay with his mother."

The cunning black eyes met the cruel blue ones.

"I understand," said the foster-mother.

CHAPTER XXII.

That letter from Victor's mother which so completely failed to produce any effect upon Francesca had moved little Betty to tears.

But then Betty was a soft-hearted little soul, to whom the word "mother" was a dear and sacred one. Somehow she got the idea into her head that little Madame Victoire, who had spoken so kindly about her, would look to her to watch over her son, and, viewed in this light, there were symptoms in Victor's illness which alarmed and puzzled Betty greatly.

In the bright sunshine at the regatta, as she and Heremon O'Meara and his St. Bernard sat in the skiff together, the young Irishman rowing and Betty steering, with the dog lying at her feet, she looked so serious that Heremon remonstrated with her.

"Even if you won't marry me, Betty, you needn't look as if you were attending a funeral when I take you out. For the life of me, I cant see what you find to admire in that Dudley Revelsworth! He's a big hulking fellow, certainly; but I'm sure the looks of him, that his temper isn't as good as mine, and——"

"I am not thinking about Dudley at all, you silly Heremon, but about his brother!"

"Do you really mean to say you have so little proper pride that you can think twice about a sallow Frenchman, who is madly in love with our friend the pantheress?"

"Heremon," Betty exclaimed, "if I hadn't known you long enough to know how supremely absurd you can be, I would be very angry with you indeed! I shall think twice or I shall think a hundred times of Victor, if I like, for his mother's sake. For do you know that I believe he is dying?"

"So bad as that? I hope not!" the young man replied, evidently much concerned.

"He looked like death itself this morning," Betty continued. "He has developed a little hacking cough, and is spitting blood. I can't get his face out of my sight. Dudley wanted to remain home with him; but Victor is very unselfish, and insisted that his brother should take Francesca in the punt to the regatta, because she has never seen one—we have kept away from all those things on account of my dear Mrs. Revelsworth's death. Victor hopes to go to France to-morrow, to stay with his mother and step-father at their country house. But I am more than half afriad he won't be strong enough to travel."

"Poor chap! There seems to be something wrong with Revelsworth House, Betty. First it was Briton, the mastiff; then Mrs. Revelsworth, herself, dies of sudden heart attack; then Sikes slinks off and is found dead in the yard outside——"

"I believe that was grief for his mistress's death!" Betty interrupted.

"Anyhow, he died," Heremon returned. "And now the Frenchman, who seems to me an awfully nice fellow if he wasn't so gone on Miss Revelsworth, is falling into sort of decline. That's what Doctor Vernon said was the matter with him. You'd much better marry me and clear out of the place before it settles you too. You have never looked the same girl since the night you had that ghost fright."

"I can't forget it," said Betty, with a little shiver. "But now, Heremon, if you really want to please me, you will row me right away from the regatta and back home. You will laugh at me for growing nervous, but I feel I really must see how Victor is getting on. Then you can row me bark for the fire works. Victor said he meant to doze through the afternoon in his room, since he couldn't sleep last night, and I asked cook to look after him, as Susan is going out. But I feel he ought not to be left alone until the evening without some one at least asking how he is."

Seeing that Betty had made up her mind, O'Meara reluctantly obeyed, and at five o'clock they passed over the "rollers" by Molesey lock, and landed on the towing-path below the Palace enclosure. At the door of Revelsworth House they parted, it being arranged that Betty should cross over the Green to take a cup of tea with Heremon's mother before returning with him to the boat.

Letting herself in with her latchkey, Betty found the house wonderfully quiet. It was certainly Susan's afternoon out, but there seemed to be no one at all stirring. Possibly, Betty told herself, the cook had accompanied her fellow-servant, as the party from the regatta were not expected back much before ten o'clock. But Victor would surely want some attention, and, feeling a little indignant on his account, Betty ran lightly up the two flights of stairs to his room on the second floor.

To reach it she had to pass through Dudley's, and the outer door of this was closed. Betty tapped upon the panels; but it would be difficult, as she knew, for any one in the inner room to hear a knock, and, oppressed with a sudden anxiety, she turned the handle of the door and, opening it, stood just outside, listening intently.

Presently, to her great relief, a long sigh reached her ears, for in the stillness she had half dreaded to find Victor already dead. The sigh was repeated and she could hear him turning restlessly upon his bed and faintly moaning. Moved by the irrepressible anxiety, she stepped lightly across the in-

(To be continued.)

AT DEATH'S DOOR.—DYSPEPSIA CONQUERED.—A GREAT MEDICAL TRIUMPH.—Gentlemen,—My medical adviser and others told me I could not possibly live when I commenced to use Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery for Dyspepsia. My case was one of the worst of its kind. For three years I could not eat meat and my weight decreased from 219 to 119 lbs. All the food I took for thirteen months previous to taking the Vegetable Discovery consisted of milk. I am now entirely cured and have regained my usual weight, can eat anything with a keen relish and feel like a new man. I have sold over thirty dozen Vegetable Discovery since it cured me, as I am well-known and people in this section know how low I was, and thought I could not possibly be cured. They are eager to try this grand medicine. It certainly saved my life as I never expected to recover when first I commenced using it. I am not exaggerating anything, but feel glad to be able to contribute this testimonial and trust it may be the means of convincing others of its merit as a certain cure for Dyspepsia.

Signed, JEAN VALCOURT,
Wotton, P.Q. General Merchant

Much talk, many lies.

FOR INFLAMMATION OF THE EYES.—Among the many good qualities which Parmelee's Vegetable Pills possess, besides regulating the digestive organs, is their efficacy in reducing inflammation of the eyes. It has called forth many letters of recommendation from those who were afflicted with this complaint and found a cure in the pills. They affect the nerve centres and the blood in a surprisingly active way, and the result is almost immediately seen.

Many a man's self-conceit is due to his ignorance.

If you have a cough or cold do not neglect it; many without a trace of that hereditary disease have drifted into a consumptive's grave by neglecting what was only a slight cold. Had they used Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup before it was too late, their lives would have been saved. Mr. A. W. Levy, Mitchell, writes: "I think Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup the best preparation on the market for coughs and severe colds. About six years ago I caught a severe cold which settled on my lungs, and for three months I had a cough. I had a physician attending me, but gradually grew worse until I was on the verge of Consumption, and had given up hopes of being cured, when I was induced to try Bickle's Syrup. Before I had taken one bottle I found myself greatly relieved, and by the time I had finished the second bottle I was completely cured. I always recommend it for severe colds and consumption."

When one gets hopping mad his reason goes on a crutch.

No one knows better than those who have used Carter's Little Liver Pills what relief they have given when taken for dyspepsia, dizziness, pain in the side, constipation, and disordered stomach.

The average watch represents but 12 hours of human labor.

Do not despair of curing your sick headache when you can so easily obtain Carter's Little Liver Pills. They will effect a prompt and permanent cure. Their action is mild and na-

Coral is a talisman against thunder and evils by flood and field.

THEY DROVE PIMPLES AWAY.—A face covered with pimples is unsightly. It tells of internal irregularities which should long since have been corrected. The liver and the kidneys are not performing their functions in the healthy way they should, and these pimples are to let you know that the blood protests. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will drive them all away, and will leave the skin clear and clean. Try them, and there will be another witness to their excellence.

The wildcat's teeth are close to its purr.

HAD LA GRIPPE.—Mr. A. Nickerson, farmer, Dutton, writes: "Last winter I had La Grippe and it left me with a severe pain in the small of my back and hip that used to catch me whenever I tried to climb a fence. This lasted for about two months, when I bought a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil and used it both internally and externally, morning and evening, for three days, at the expiration of which time I was completely cured."

A long portage makes a heavy canoe.

Their gentle action and good effect on the system really make them a perfect little pill. They please those who use them. Carter's Little Liver Pills may well be termed 'Perfection.'

It takes money to voice the opinion of a lawyer.

Very many persons die annually from cholera and kindred summer complaints, who might have been saved if proper remedies had been used. If attacked do not delay in getting a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, the medicine that never fails to effect a cure. Those who have used it say it acts promptly, and thoroughly subdues the pain and disease.

Life has no blessing like a prudent friend.

Use the safe, pleasant, and effectual worm killer, Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator; nothing equals it. Procure a bottle and take it home.

The best way to get even is to forget.

Have you tried Holloway's Corn Cure? It has no equal for removing these troublesome excrescences, as many have testified who have tried

Bank of Montreal

ESTABLISHED 1817.
Capital and Rest, All Paid Up.
$23,000,000
(Twenty-three Millions)

Savings Bank Department
Interest on sums of $1.00 and upwards allowed at current rates.
A. G. PARKER,
Manager [illegible]

TWO BIG SALES

Summer Clothing AND Straw Hats

We are having a great clearing up of summer goods these warm days. In addition to our 20 per cent. discount sale on summer clothing, we are offering 25 to 50 doz. Men's and Boys' Straw Hats, worth 50c cts, 75c and $1.00. for only 25c ea.

This is almost a present for the man who has any need for a Straw Hat They are selling very fast, come quick if you want one.

See Them In Our North Window.

OAK HALL

Sole Agents for Sanford's Celebrated Clothing.

STOP Young —MAN

While we direct your attention to our excellent lines of

CANVAS FOOTWEAR

Canvas Shoes make cool, comfortable and stylish summer footwear,—and cost much less than leather—you will find a superiority in style and neatness in these goods. We solicit your inspection of these up-to-date goods.

White Canvas Laced style, newest shape, at	$1.50
White Canvas Shoes, newest shape, at	$1.25
White Canvas Laced style, Goodyear welt, at	$2.50
Grey Canvas, Laced style, 2 lines at	$1.50

MEN'S SPECIAL LOW PRICED GREY CANVAS with leather soles—useful for camping shoes—sizes 6 to 10, at 75c.

In Men's and Boys' Tennis, Running and Outing Shoes we have a fine showing.—SEE WINDOW DISPLAY.

Trunk and Bag Department on 2nd floor.

The J. J. Haines

SHOE HOUSES at Belleville, Napanee and Trenton

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE

FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

MAYNOOTH.

Showers abundant, hay improving, grain excellent at present.

Most of the teachers left for their homes to-day. Silvan Hill, Barr's and Fitzgerald's schools are open through midsummer.

Social gatherings and picnics are at fever height. Rain alone controls them.

Mrs. H. Fiss was buried last week at the White Church. Rev. C. H. Shephard preached the funeral sermon.

The Hybla Cheese Factory is now under headway.

Mr. Ed. Bartlett left to-day to have a cataract removed from his eye. He is accompanied by G. A. Jordison. They may be away a couple of weeks. We trust Mr. Bartlett may meet with a successful treatment.

Miss Kate Robinson left this week for the hospital at Pembroke.

The pupils who were successful at the promotion examinations, S.S. No. 3, Monteagle, were: For Fourth, Jos. McAlpine and Lena Fiss; Sr. Third, Robt. Best; Third, Myrtle Keluskey, Wada Keluskey, Jno. Keluskey, and Lizzie Carmichael.

Signatures made with lead pencil are good in law.

There are over 21,000 stitches in an ordinary white shirt.

Nearly 500 different kinds of tiny shells go to make up chalk.

He who foresees calamities suffers them twice over.

A horse has been known to jump 37 feet in a steeplechase.

"My customers, in almost every case, are highly pleased with the results of and so buy them again. They think Fifty Tablets, so beautifully put up and containing iron, good value for their money, as they also serve so nicely as a regulator of stomach and bowels."—S. E. HICK, Druggist, Goderich, Ont.

IRON-OX TABLETS

Price 25 Cents

Daily Intelligencer.

TIMELY TOPICS.

A citizen wants to know why Belleville although a city, is unlike other cities in Canada, and then answers us thus: "Because the merchants and property holders generally allow their business places to be placarded with show bills of any and all descriptions, something not seen in other cities."

• • •

We agree with "citizen" that the beauty of our Front street stores and windows is not enhanced by circus or theatre posters of any kind.

• • •

A society paper says most of the bridal dresses of the season show a touch of silver. From time immemorial it has been a touch of gold.

• • •

It would be well if the country would strike a happy medium between drought and deluge.

• • •

Only one man can be free from error; the one who makes no effort. And some will say he makes the greatest error of all.

• • •

"One company, commanded by an excellent officer, who in times past has recruited with success, consisted of a captain, a subaltern, three sergeants, three corporals, and one private."—Toronto News. May not this be in accord with the theory of "skeleton drill."

• • •

"Our house was blown away by the cyclone," writes a Georgia editor, "and now, if an earthquake would only swallow the land it stood on, we'd be entirely relieved of taxes!"—Hear, hear, we've heard of a tax rate in Belleville.

• • •

Everybody is loudly praising Sir Thomas Lipton to-day in the U. S., but should he win the cup—

• • •

A contemporary asks: "What does that eminent Prohibitoinist, the Hon. E. J. Davis, think of the maladministration of the Liquor License Law in North York, as narrated by Mr. W. E. Raney?"

What does he think? Why, that the Commissioners were doing God's service if it secured a Grit vote.

• • •

Bob Burdette's story about the farmer who went on foot several miles to meet his expected guests, because the weather wasn't good enuogh for his horses, was evidently no exaggeration. In New Jersey the farmers this year have been doing a lot of their plowing themselves in order to save their beasts. Next year they may have become Doukhobors.

Liver Complaint and Biliousness

ACCOMPANIED BY STOMACH TROUBLES AND HEADACHE ARE CURED BY DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Pale, sallow, yellow skin tells of a torpid, sluggish liver and impurities in the blood which will be entirely removed by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. By acting directly on the liver and bowels this great medicine brings prompt and lasting cure for all derangements of these organs, cures indigestion and dyspepsia and removes the cause of headaches and biliousness. One pill a dose. Twenty-five cents a box at all dealers. Portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase on every box.

Bad Eggs For Barr.

Winnipeg, July 9.—A Regina dispatch says: Rev. Mr. Barr was rotten-egged by a defiant Englishman and had to be granted protection by the police.

Scalded to Death.

Berlin, July 9.—The three-year-old daughter of Conrad Fischer, an employe of Swantz' Foundry, was scalded to death yesterday afternoon by running against a bucket of hot water, being carried by her mother.

Died From Heat.

Chicago, July 9.—Six deaths and a score of prostrations resulted from the heat here yesterday.

Memphis, Tenn., July 9.— Two deaths occurred in the city yesterday as a result of the heat.

The better class of Japanese take a warm bath every day.

A man is generally at his heaviest in his fortieth year.

There are nearly 650,000 women dressmakers in the United Kingdom.

Honey will return to wax if left untouched for some years.

Anecdotal.

According to "Vanity Fair," a celebrated surgeon met a young officer in Piccadilly the other day, and greeted him with surprise: "Well, I am pleased to see you! I am surprised! Do you know I have a portion of your brain in a jar at home?" "Ah, well," laughed the other, "I can easily spare that; I have got a berth in the war office!"

In one of his conversations with Augustus Hare, Chief Justice Morris said he was sitting on the bench in Ireland, and after a case had been tried he said to the jurymen: "Now, to consider this matter, you will retire to your accustomed place," and two-thirds of them went into the dock. Another time he said to a culprit: "I can produce five witnesses who saw you steal that cow." "Yes," said the prisoner, "but I can produce five hundred who did not."

One of the stories that is going about London just now deals with Sir Henry Irving's revival of "Coriolanus," which has not been such a great success. During one of the later rehearsals, a consultation was held on the stage between Sir Henry, Sir Alexander Mackenzie, who wrote the music, and Sir Laurence Alma Tadema, who designed the scenery. "Three blooming knights," remarked a supernumerary. "Yes," replied another, "and that's about as long as the piece will run."

The Duke of Wellington was once much surprised by receiving a letter which he read as follows: "Being in the neighborhood, I venture to ask permission to see some of your grace's best breeches. C. London." He answered to the Bishop of London that he had great pleasure in assenting to his request, though he must confess it had given him very considerable surprise. London House was thrown into confusion. The note was from Loudon, the great gardener, and "breeches" should have been read "beeches."

On being ushered into the home of Dr. Parkhurst the other day, a visitor noted that a mammoth tiger-rug was spread across the floor of the reception-room. In his surprise, he remarked: "I should think, doctor, that you, of all men, would be the last to keep the emblem of Tammany Hall so prominently displayed in your home." Dr. Parkhurst smiled, and replied: "I keep the tiger here to constantly remind me that my enemy is always near. Then, again, I keep the tiger here to walk all over occasionally."

It is said that not long ago Rear-Admiral Robley Evans entered a fashionable house of worship in New York and took a seat far forward. He was well but not very expensively dressed. Soon after the admiral had seated himself a man and his wife entered. He looked uneasy, and pulling out his card wrote on it: "Do you know I pay fifteen hundred dollars a year for this pew?" Not to be outdone in courtesy, Admiral Evans took one of his own cards, and above his name, which necessarily gave his naval rank, wrote in reply: "Well, you pay too d——d much."

A country minister in a certain town took permanent leave of his congregation in the following pathetic manner: "Brothers and sisters, I come to say good-bye. I don't think God loves this church, because none of you ever die. I don't think you love each other, because you have not paid my salary. Your donations are mouldy fruit and wormy apples, and 'by their fruits ye shall know them.' Brothers, I am going away to a better place. I have been called to be chaplain of a penitentiary. I go to prepare a place for you, and may the Lord have mercy on your souls! Good-bye."

In one of his terrible editorial articles arraigning the Erie conspirators and describing their lavish living, Horace Greeley used the phrase "Champagne and Heidsieck." One of the staff, after the paper containing the article had been printed, called the great editor's attention to this slip, telling him—what he, as a strict temperance man, did not know—that Heidsieck was a brand of champagne, and to mention the two together was as tautological as to speak of "liquid and water." Entirely satisfied with the power of his article, and undismayed by the discovery of an error that seemed to him immaterial, Greeley said: "Well, I guess I am the only man in this office that could make a mistake of that sort."

A Human Curiosity.

There are bad bargains that we remember, sometimes with regret and often a little bitter amusement. Says Mrs. E. D. Gillespie in her "Book of Remembrance:"

"My father had taken some land in Illinois for a bad debt, and this he had never visited. After he had paid taxes on it for several years, he was asked to sell the tract. He agreed to do it, and named the price, which was the sum he had paid for it, without the taxes.

"The deeds were scarcely signed when my father found that a city, Peoria, was growing up on the spot. He was naturally disappointed at what seemed the ill-luck of the occurrence, but several years after his annoyance was tinged with amusement. A man came into his office and asked:

" 'Are you W. J. Duane?'

" 'Yes.'

" 'Did you own the site of the city of Peoria?'

" 'Yes.'

" 'Did you sell it for six hundred dollars?'

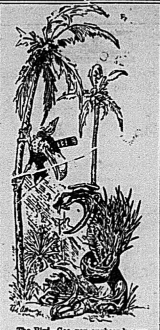
" 'Yes.'

"The man rose from his chair.

" 'Good-bye,' said he. 'I only thought I'd like to look at you.' "

The Swiftest Creatures.

Greyhounds are the swiftest of all four-footed creatures, and their speed may be regarded as equal to that of carrier pigeons. English greyhounds, which are carefully selected, and which are used for coursing, are able to cover at full gallop a space between eighteen and twenty-three yards every second. How great an achievement this is may be judged from the fact that a thoroughbred horse rarely, if ever, exceeds nineteen yards. Moreover, it is said that a hare at its greatest speed never goes faster than at the rate of eighteen yards. These interesting statistics are exciting much comment among sportsmen and other lovers of dogs, and the opinion is unanimous that M. Dusolier has fully proved the right of the greyhound to rank as the swiftest of the quadrupeds. Express engines only surpass them.



The Bird—Gee, you oughter known better than to swallow a porcupine.

Queer Facts About Orchids.

THE life of an orchid hunter combines in itself all the most sensational features of exploration in untrodden districts, often infested by ferocious beasts and by even more savage natives, and in many cases highly malarious and disease laden. The rarer orchids are generally found in the most inaccessible spots, and in the densest and most marshy jungles. Even the natives avoid the districts into which the intrepid orchid hunter penetrates in search of his floral quarry.

A few years ago eight orchid hunters met at Tamatave, and then separated in search of specimens. Within a year only one of them survived, and he had spent months in the most pestilential swamps, from which he emerged with his health permanently impaired. One of the others had been captured by native priests, who drenched him with oil and burned him to death on their altar.

The expense of collecting the orchids and getting them at last into the salesroom is very great. For example, a fine orchid is found in a very out of the way part of Colombia. After being gathered the plants are wired to sticks and nailed inside boxes. These boxes are conveyed on a journey of several days to Bogota, whence another six days' journey takes them to Honda, where they are placed on rafts and conveyed down the Magdalena River to Savanilla—a fortnight's journey—where the steamer is awaited.

When at last, after a heavy outlay, the consignment reaches England, quite half the specimens will be dead, and in many cases the whole of them will be too far gone for recovery. The orchid importer has always to be prepared for heavy losses.

Twenty-seven thousand valuable plants were sent home on one occasion from Colombia by Mr. Roezl, and of these only two survived the voyage. They were sold for 40 guineas each—not a high price when one considers what they had cost.

Until the plant flowers its value is purely speculative. Its species is in most cases readily determined, but it may present some variation which will greatly enhance its value. For example, a certain orchid with a purple bloom may be worth about five shillings, but an example of the same species with white flowers will realize £100 at auction. The value of a plant depends upon its rarity and novelty even more than upon its beauty.

Many years ago an orchid, of quite new and unknown species, arrived in the packing in which some foreign plants were sent home. No one knew where it came from, and for a long while it continued unique. Orchid hunters sought everywhere for it, but not till seventy years later was it found.

Another orchid arrived in 1854 without any known place of origin, and, notwithstanding persistent search, its native habitation has not been found yet.

Some years ago two orchids were found in the Zoological Gardens on a heap of rubbish. They came in the packing with some South American monkeys, but their place of origin has not yet been discovered.—"Harmsworth Magazine."

Mrs. Oldun—I hope you and your husband live happily together. Mrs. Strongmind—I should say we do. I'd just like to see him try to live unhappily with me.—Philadelphia "Record."

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

TOURIST RESORTS

Orillia, 'Penetang, Muskoka Lakes, Georgian Bay, Upper Lakes, Lake of Bays, Magnetowan River, Kawartha Lakes, Thousand Islands, Quebec, Portland, Me., Old Orchard, Me., White Mountains.

The above resorts are all reached via the Grand Trunk. Excellent service to Muskoka Wharf, connecting with steamers for "Royal Muskoka" Hotel and other ports on Lake of Bays.

Tourist tickets are on sale, embracing a trip through the Lakes in Highlands of Ontario, also to ports on Upper Lakes, and to Eastern points. For tickets, illustrated and descriptive literature of Canadian Resorts and all information as to routes and rates for summer tours apply to U. E. THOMPSON, City Agent, Bridge Street.

T. H. COPPIN, Depot Agent.
J. D. McDONALD, Dist. Pass Agt., Toronto.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY.

"Imperial Limited."

Fast tri-weekly Transcontinental service between Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver. Connection leaves Toronto at 1.45 p.m., Sunday, Wednesday, Friday, making run Toronto to Vancouver in 97 hours.

Upper Lake Steamships

Leave Owen Sound Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 5.30 p.m., on arrival of S.S. Express leaving Toronto at 1.30 p.m. Connections at Fort William and Port Arthur for Winnipeg and Pacific Coast points.

Daily First-Class Service Toronto to Winnipeg, Calgary, Banff and Pacific Coast.

Fully Equipped Through Tourist Cars leave Toronto Tuesday and Saturday for Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Full particulars from your nearest Canadian Pacific Agent or to

A. H. NOTMAN, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agent, TORONTO.
J. S. BURROWS, C.P.R. and General Ticket Agent, Front St., Belleville.

NEW YORK CENTRAL & HUDSON RIVER R. R.

THE FOUR-TRACK TRUNK LINE.

SHORTEST Route to the United States via Cape Vincent, N.Y.

GOING EAST AND WEST.			After 1st May
Lv. Belleville (G.T.R.)		12.22 p.m.	1.30 a.m
Arr. Kingston	"	1.47 p.m.	3.12 a.m
Lv. Kingston (stage)	"	2.30 p.m.	5 00 a.m
Arr. Cape Vincent (stage)		4.30 p.m.	7.00 a.m
Lv. Cape Vincent N.Y.C.		5.05 p.m.	7.25 a.m
Arr. Watertown	"	5.55 p.m.	8.25 a.m
Arr. Oswego	"	9.05 p.m.	11.55 a.m
Arr. Syracuse	"	9.25 p.m.	12.07 p.m
Arr. Rochester	"	1.05 a.m.	2.20 a.m
Arr. Utica	"	9.45 p.m.	12.35 p.m
Arr. New York	"	7.25 a.m.	6.00 p.m

Convenient train service in opposite direction.

Pullman Sleeping and Parlor Cars.

2c a Mile.

Books for 500 miles of travel on New York Central and leased lines within State of New York, cost only $10 while books for 1000 miles over New York Central, Boston & Albany, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, Philadelphia & Reading and C. R. R. of New Jersey cost $20. Secure further information and purchase tickets from F. A. Folger, N.Y.C. Agent, Kingston, Ont.

GEORGE H. DANIELS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent, New York.
A. H. SMITH, Gen'l Supt., New York.
G. C. GRIDLEY, Gen'l Agent, Watertown, N.Y.

It takes a long time to tell of what you have not done.

Turkey now exports $3,000,000 worth of opium a year.

Seven hundred British subjects are yearly born at sea.

Children's Slippers

Children's Red Kid Slippers	60c, 75c, and $1.00
Children's White Kid Slippers	$1.00 and $1.25
Children's Patent Leather Slippers	75c, $1.00 and $1 25

We are offering a special line of Ladies' Dongola Kid Slippers for ....75c, regular price $1.00

VERMILYEA & SON.

FOR TWO WEEKS ONLY! 2 WEEKS

$5.00 Any Suit In This Great Clothing Store for $5.00

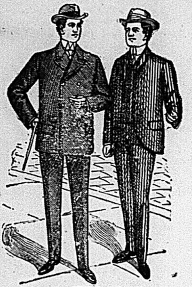
A STUPENDOUS CLOTHING OFFER WITHOUT PRECEDENT OR PARALLEL.



Some Suits $18, some $16, some $15, some $12, others $10. Just think of it! High grade, thoroughly tailored garments for Men, complete suits in fashionable fabrics, for

$5.00

This is just the opening gun in the great Mid-Summer Sale, in connection with this store. In every other department there will be equal sensational reductions. This Clothing Sale begins on July 11th and will end on July 25th. The earlier you come the better your choice as we anticipate a big rush.

The GLOBE CLOTHING HOUSE.

Up-to-date Clothiers and Gents' Furnishiers, Look for the Globe Over The Door, 390 Front Street, Belleville.

Wall Paper

At first sight of our Wall Papers you will say there's an attractiveness about them that puts them lengths ahead of other lines.

IN STOCKING

we select only the best, we have no "shelf warmers" all our Papers are quick sellers. If you choose your Papers from us you have best value for the price obtainable anywhere.

Painting, Paperhanging and Decorating done on shortest notice by best workmen in the city.

JOHN CORNELIUS.
3 Doors South of Intelligencer Office.

NEW GOODS

JAPAN TEA

The first of this season's crop, exta quality, regular 50c line, we quote

40c per lb.

Canned Halibut

Fine solid Fish, very tasty,

15c per can.

J. C. Hanley & Co.
GROCERS
Telephone 214

Western Beef.

Prime Western Beef together with all kinds of choice meats, supplied by the district, at

C. GREEN'S
267 Front St., 'Phone 109.

Flowers & Vegetables
Of all kinds in season.
. . . AT . . .
J. D. COLLIP'S.
'Phone 205.

At a Portuguese Bull-Fight.

It was to be a very great event—twelve bulls were to make their entry, and some famous Spanish bull-fighters were to prove their prowess, and the King was to be there, and Portugal's handsome Queen.

Out along the white, dusty roads, on past the outskirts of the town where olives and fig-trees peeped over the stone walls, and occasional palms reared their tall stems—all hurry, rush and bustle, until at last the open dusty plain was reached, and before us, like a modern Coliseum, rose the great, massive arena of the Bull Ring.

How like the Coliseum, though, in weak architecture, was the building; and all the mass of sightseers pressing on to their different corridors—the poor to the sunny side, the richer to that in shade.

Inside were the great arcades under the arches, and the wide flights of steps to the various tiers of seats or rows of boxes.

Up we went to where our ticket told me was the fauteuil allotted to us (No. 106, first "fila"), a good position we saw as we entered the tier, and at a "coup d'oeil" the whole vast arena was before us. Beneath was the level ring where Toro would appear; on our left the King's box, a Mauresque canopy in blue and gold, and draped in red and gold velvet. On our right and left, on this shady side of the arena, the boxes are hung with bright draperies of blue, gray, and yellow, setting off the gay dresses of the ladies fanning themselves in the boxes with tiny little Portuguese fans.

At last a roar goes up from some 15,000 throats—the arena will hold 20,000, but it is not packed—and then exactly opposite us enter all the toreadors—that is, all who take part in the fight. Cavallieros (or picadors, as the Spanish call them), bandarilheiros, furcados, and the assistants dressed in rich Georgian costume—in red and blue satin and velvet, with plumed flat hats.

Two cavaliers mounted upon two magnificent steeds, very unlike the wretched animals ridden into the ring to be slaughtered at a Spanish bull-fight; a dozen bandarilheiros and a dozen furcados and the assistants, all in their gay costumes, make a brilliant show on the smooth arena. The crash of music, the roar of the populace, and the brilliant spectacle send the Portuguese blood to fever heat; and quickly, after salutations to the King or President, all the toreadors retire and one horseman enters alone. A signal is given, the doors are thrown open, and in rushes a fine black bull. Like an arrow he makes for the horseman, who leaps aside; but Toro is after him, and chases him round the ring. With a deft movement, just as the bull's horns nearly reach the horse's flanks, the cavalier swerves and plants a dart in the bull's shoulders; the matadors rush in, and distract the bull's attention with their red cloaks. The bull no longer cares for horse or man; the red rag is his enemy, and he goes for it, and tosses and paws it and tramples on it until it is snatched from him, and a bandarilheiro stands before him, watches him; and leaps aside when Toro tries to toss him.

At last, maddened, the bull rushes at his tormentor, who races to the barrier of the arena, but halts there; and at the moment the bull's horns seem to touch him, plants his two decorated darts well in the bull's shoulders and leaps the barrier. But the bull leaps after him—half his black body is over; some of the assistants leap into the arena at the safest side; but Toro fails and falls back inside the arena, to start to his feet again and rush for the matadors, who advance with their cloaks to draw him toward them.

It is these red cloaks that prove how dull is Toro in his rage. The matador holds the red cloak at arm's length, the bull rushes at it—never at the man holding it—and the matadors pass the cloak over his head as he strives to gore it; the bull turns and goes for it again, seemingly oblivious that a man is moving it. Very agile and dexterous are the matadors; but there seems no danger to them, so wholly is the bull occupied with the cloak.

Not so the bandarilheiros. To face a rushing bull even with padded horns until his hot breath is in your face, and his horns lowered for the toss; to plant darts scarcely two feet long in his shoulders, and leap aside ere the toss is given, is a feat of courage, great swiftness and agility; and mighty is the shout from the vast crowd when this is done deftly and neatly, and the barbs stick well in the bull's tough hide. As the bulls get tired out with their tormentors, a group of eight or ten tame bulls, with long tube-like bells, are let into the arena. These encircle the wild bull that at once is tamed; and these trained bulls trot him out of the circle to his den, and a fresh bull is then introduced.—James Baker in "Ainslee's Magazine."

Just a Glimpse.

Papa—By the way, who is the lady that bowed to us as we left the carriage?

Dorothy—The one with the black silk skirt, and rose petticoat, plaid blouse, purple colarette with silver clasp, tan coat, black hat with purple tips, carrying a silver-mounted card-case?

Papa—Yes.

Dorothy—I don't know. I merely just caught a glimpse of her.—Cape "Register."

Fish Not Brain Food.

The popular notion that "fish is a brain food" is a mistake, for eminent physiologists tells us that fish, no more than any other nitrogenous food, contributes to brain growth and development. All nitrogenous foods, such as fish, meat, eggs and so on, repair the waste tissues of the body, but fish is of no more importance than the others.

Mayor Low of New York when "off duty" is a jolly sort of philosopher, and the quick twinkle in his eyes shows it. Talking one day about laughter, which he declared, with a noted writer, has a basis of malice, Mayor Low said: "The more I ponder the more I marvel at the slinking, double-eyed, sinister villainy of the wretched, laughter-making Mark Twain, who, so far as I know, does not repent a single joke in his long career of crime."

"To be fashionable in Dawson City," says a correspondent of the Indianapolis "Journal," "one must have his dog team. It is no uncommon sight to see a Dawson belle or a wealthy matron enveloped in her costly furs, skimming along behind a team of dashing dogs. These dogs are urged to greater speed by the call of 'mush on,' which means in English 'get up' or 'go ahead.' The men in Dawson City are by no means deprived of club-life. The fashionable organization of this kind in Dawson is known as the Zero Club. In summer the men play tennis, lacrosse, cricket and baseball. The women play tennis and serve tea. In winter they have the curling club and the skating rinks. It costs money to live in the Klondike, but one can buy anything from an automobile down if one has the price. A gown that a woman in Indianapolis would pay $25 for, she could not expect to get in Dawson for less than $100. However, if one has the money one can get the most fashionable gown there. A very good meal, accompanied by music, is now served in the best hotels in Dawson for $1. Wood is worth $20 a cord. Good apples were 50 cents apiece last winter, and beefsteak brings from 75 cents to $1.50 a pound during the winter. Christmas turkeys were $1 a pound last winter."

A good pun is rather uncommon, but a joke that may be so described was made recently by Mr. Andrew Carnegie, to whom some advocates of an Anglo-American alliance had appealed for an emblematic flower. Mr. Carnegie promptly suggested the dandelion, urging that the American "dandy," in the shrewd, Yankee, business sense of the term, joined with the British "lion," would result in a blossom which must rule the world.

A Big Army.

During the period extending from the first of May until September over 450,000 men will be under military training at the various camps in Britain. The present drill season is the first of consequence since 1858. Prior to the grand maneouvres on Salisbury Plain in September this year, the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Regular Army Corps will be exercised independently at Aldershot, Salisbury Plain, and the Curragh in very important work, in which Marconigrams and motors will figure. Sandwiched in with the training of the regulars the militia and volunteers will occupy the great southern camping grounds between Shorncliffe and Salisbury with nearly 100,000 men.

A Sporty King.

Among the King of Portugal's varied tastes is an English passion for sport of all kinds, and it is known that once even, when Duke of Braganza, he entered the ring to face a bull "with points unbated," that is to say not padded, as is generally the case in Portugal as distinguished from Spain. One of the ladies of the court had dared the Duke to face a bull with his horns unguarded, and so he entered the arena in the Spanish manner—incognito, though every one knew who the bold banderillo was. Unfortunately the Duke slipped and fell, but starting up, before the bull could charge again, he ran for the barricade, and cleared it in a bound, just a moment or two before the infuriated animal splintered the woodwork with his horns.

CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY

CAPITAL

10,000	Shares 7 per cent Cumulative Preferred Stock, par value $100 each,	$1,000,000
50,000	Shares Common Stock, par value $100, issued and fully paid	5,000,000
	TOTAL CAPITALIZATION	$6,000,000

Issues of $1,000,000 00 7 p.c. Preferred Stock in 10,000 Shares of $100 each at par.

This stock is preferred both as to Assets and Dividends.

The shares are entitled to cumulative preferred dividends from the net earnings of the Company, at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable half yearly on the first days of April and October. They may, at the option of the holder, be exchanged for common shares. They are subject to be called in, in whole or in part, by the Company, at $115.00 per share, at any time after 1st January, 1909.

The total issue of Preferred Stock is only $1,000,000.00, the whole of which is now offered.

Subsriptions for 10,000 Shares of $100 each of the 7 per cent. Preferred Stock of the CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY will now be received at par, that is $100 Share, as follows

per cent on application,
25 " " on allotment,
35 " " 30 days thereafter.
35 " " 60 days thereafter.

One share of Common, par value $100, given with each share of preferred.

The whole of instalments remaining unpaid at any time may be prepaid in full. A discount of one per cent will be allowed upon the par of each share if prepaid at time of allotment

Notice of allotment will be sent promptly by ordinary letter.

COAL

PROPERTY IN FULL OPERATION

Company owns 9,600 acres of coal property known throughout the coal trade as the New Campbellton Colliery, located on Bras D'Or Bay, County of Victoria, Cape Breton, Nova Scotia. Mine is fully equipped, producing and marketing tons of coal a day at a net profit of $1.00 a ton. Improvements are now being made that will increase the output to over 1,000 tons a day. On present output, figuring 300 working days in year, the net result will more than pay interest on entire issue of preferred, with output of 1 000 tons a day net result will be $300,000 per annum.

IRON

RICHEST ORE IN THE WORLD

Company owns in fee simple, free and clear of all incumbrances, 4000 acres of iron ore deposit, located Natashquan (tidewater) situated on North shore of Gulf of St. Lawrence, in the County of Sagunay, province of Quebec.

Deposits contain 20,000,000 tons of ore ABOVE SEA LEVEL ALONE.

Quality of ore is highet ever discovered, running from 69 per cent to 72 per cent in metallic iron.

More orders for the sale of this ore has been received by the Company than can possibly be accepted, and at a price netting the Company a profit of $2 a ton F. O. B. vessels at Company's docks.

Send for prospectus giving full information as to earnings, reports, etc., etc.

Address all communications and send subscriptions to

COLONIAL SECURITIES CO.,
62 Wall Street, New York City

OR

W. L. MARSTON & COMPANY
110 State Street, Boston

The SAWYER COMPANY.

351 Temple Building, Montreal, Canada.

THE Intelligencer Bindery

MAKES A SPECIALTY OF

Ledgers,
Journals,
Cash Books,
And all descriptions of
Blank Account Books

Mailing Tubes

Gold Lettering on Leather Goods, &c.

MAGAZINES,
ART WORKS,
PERIODICALS,
SERIAL NUMBERS
NEATLY BOUND

Map Mounting & Varnishing

☞Estimates cheerfully furnished for every class of work.

ADDRESS—
The Intelligencer
BELLEVILLE, ONT.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Measurement Nonpareil—12 lines to th inch.

Display advertisements, 10c per line.
Subsequent consecutive insertions, ne.

Reading advertisements, 15c per line.
Preferred position, 20 per cent. advanc upon usual or contract rates.
Minimum space, 10 lines.
Marriages and deaths, 50c each insertio
Births, 25c each insertion.
Rates for Condensed Advertisement will be found in 1st column of 2nd page.
All advertisements are subject to th approval of the Publisher of the Intelligencer.
Address all communications to the Intelligencer Printing & Publishing House Limited, or to Charles J. Bowell, Managing Director and Treasurer.
Canadians in London will find The Intelligencer on file at E. & J. Hardy & Co.'s Office, 30 Fleet Street, London, E. C.

CONDENSED ADVERTISEMENTS

SITUATIONS WANTED, HELP WANTED, LOST OR FOUND, FOR SALE OR TO RENT, &c

(Auction Sales not included in this list)

TERMS.—Twenty-five words or less, 25c first insertion; two insertions, 50c; four insertions, 75c; one week $1.00, two weeks, $1.75, three weeks, $2.25; one month, $2.50. Strictly cash in advance.

WANTED.

GIRLS WANTED.

Good wages, steady employment Apply at the office of the Quinte Laundry Company, Bridge St. 3t

Experienced girl to clerk in store. Apply to Bell Dry Goods House, Belleville.

100 machinery moulders and coremakers. Steady work. Wages for moulders at least $4.00; coremakers $3.25. Address Post Office Box 511, Toronto. jy9-d10t

$6.00 per month will buy a home anywhere under our plan. Live in it while paying for it. Something new. Write for prospectus. Canadian Home Builder's Association, Manning Chambers, Toronto.

$1950 made by one man last year selling our household necessities. Did you make as much? Try our lines. Always selling. Write G. Marshall & Co., London, Ont. 2

Agents wanted, $2.50 per day. Apply Cooper, London, Ont. s27-1y

Young men ambitious to learn lucrative trades, of which there are eight in connection with the business. Apply The Belleville Hardware Company, Belleville, Ont. a7dtf

WANTED Reliable Men in every locality throughout Canada to introduce our goods, tacking up show cards on trees, fences, along roads and all conspicuous places, also distributing small advertising matter. Commission or salary $60.00 per month and expenses, not to exceed $2.50 per day. Steady employment to good, honest reliable men. No experience needful. Write for full particulars THE EMPIRE MEDICINE CO., London, Ont

FOR SALE OR TO-LET.

Stone house, 11 rooms, coal furnace, stable, barn. Large grounds. Cor. Frank and Moira Sts. north. Terms reasonable. H. Bull, on premises or Fred Bull, 133 Yonge St., Toronto. Terms easy. ap18-dtf

FOR SALE.

Two surreys, two phaetons, two buggies, one horse. Apply to H. L. CURRY, Pinnacle street. jy9-6td&16,23w

Dressed and Matched Lumber of all kinds, at ALFORD'S factory, Market Square. jl2-tf

Contractors and masons, any any person requiring lime may procure it from E. G. STAPLEY, Canifton Road, Belleville. New lime always on hand. a9-d&w6m

TO RENT

A house on Moira street containing 8 rooms. All modern conveniences. Possession on or before 20th July.—Adam Henry. dtf

Curse
—OF—DRINK
CURED BY
COLONIAL REMEDY

No taste. No Odor—Can be given in a glass of water, tea, or coffee, without patient's knowledge.

Colonial Remedy will cure or destroy the diseased appetite for alcoholic stimulants, whether the patient is a confirmed inebriate, "tippler," social drinker or drunkard. Impossible for anyone to have an appetite for alcoholic liquors after using Colonial Remedy.

Indorsed by Members of the W.C.T.U.

Mrs. Moore, Superintendent of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Ventura, Cal., writes: "I have tested Colonial Remedy on very obstinate drunkards, and the cures have been many. In many cases the Remedy was given secretly. I cheerfully recommend and endorse Colonial Remedy. Members of our Union are delighted to find a practical and economical treatment to aid us in our temperance work."

Sold by druggists everywhere and by mail. Price $1. Trial package free by writing or calling on Mrs. M. A. Cowan (for years member of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union), 2204 St. Catherine St., Montreal.

Sold in Belleville by F. Chas. Clarke Front St. and D. M. Waters, Bridge St

Little Children can safely take this famous well-known remedy. Made entirely of herbs, warranted free from mercury, and poisonous substance, that is why everyone likes

Beecham's Pills.

Sold Everywhere. In boxes, 25 cents.

WILD ANIMALS.

The Dealers Get Most of Their Lions From Nubia.

Dealers in wild animals get most of their lions from Nubia. There the natives search for a lioness with newborn cubs, kill the mother and bring up the young beasts on goats' milk. When they are two months old they are taken to the coast on the backs of camels and shipped to Europe. Lions are also obtained from Abyssinia and Senegal. Formerly the Atlas mountains furnished the finest lions, but the species now no longer exists except a few specimens in menageries. Adult Nubian lions are worth $1,000 apiece, while Senegal lions range in price from $500 to $750.

Tigers vary in price from $375 to $1,500 apiece and more, according to the variety and rarity of the animal. Siberian tigers, for instance, sell at the latter figure. They are large, beautifully striped creatures. In the winter they grow a long, woolly winter coat. Some full grown tigers are captured in pitfalls, but most specimens of these animals are caught while small cubs and raised on milk.

The hippopotamus, the rhinoceros and the giraffe are difficult to secure. It is practically impossible to capture a full grown beast of these species, and the young ones are hard to rear. A baby hippopotamus will drink thirty pints of milk a day and a baby rhinoceros almost as much. Thus it requires the presence of a large herd of goats in the wilderness to supply milk for such creatures. A hippopotamus is worth from $2,500 to $3,000, a rhinoceros slightly more, while giraffes sell at $2,500 or more, according to size, age and condition.

Jamaica Crocodiles.

There are a good many crocodiles in the more distant reserves of Kingston harbor and at the mouths of the Jamaica rivers, but they are exceedingly wary, and a most cautious approach is necessary if one wishes to get close enough for an effective shot.

Just as the lion has his jackal and the shark his pilot fish so the crocodile is almost always accompanied by a small plover, which perches upon the scaly ridge of its back and is just visible above the filthy water in which its big patron loves to wallow.

On the approach of man or any other danger this tiny bird flutters into the air and utters a shrill cry to warn its "chum."

The crocodile dives, and you may sit in your canoe and nurse your rifle for an hour without a chance of a shot.

The Jamaican crocodile is shyer of man than most of its kind.

The Dinner Hour.

The hour for dinner has undergone several changes. About 1400 it was 10 a. m. Henry VIII. dined at this time and supped at 4. In the sixteenth century dinner was at 11, breakfast at 7 and supper at 5 or 6. In the following century meals were an hour later.

Disraeli tells us that in the reign of Francis I. of France folks rose at 5, dined at 9, supped at 5 and went to bed at 9, which, according to a popular saying, made them live to the age of ninety-nine. Louis XII., it is said, hastened his death by altering his hours to please his young wife. Instead of dining at 8 a. m and going to bed at 6 p. m., he took to dining at noon and often sat up till midnight.

The Ladder Dwarf.

"Among the strange and weird demons and bogies which are believed by miners to haunt the workings underground not the least horrible is the 'Ladder Dwarf,'" said a former prospector. "I never saw the creature myself, but he is described as hunchbacked, with a short body, large head and enormously long and powerful arms. In fact, he resembles an exaggerated gorilla. His favorite trick is climbing the ladders by means of which the miners leave the mines, raising himself with his long arms, and as he passes the rungs kicking them out one by one. He is supposed to always do this just before an accident of some kind in the mine."

The Rattle as a Decoy.

That the rattlesnake uses his tail to decoy birds has been observed a number of times by a correspondent of the Scientific American, who says: "The snake hides himself in the tall grass and imitates the buzzing of a bee. The insectivorous birds, such as the phœbe and kingbird, are attracted by the sound and become an easy prey for his snakeship. I have seen rattlesnakes concealed in the dense foliage of trees twenty feet from the ground practicing the same deception on the birds and getting the bird every time."

The Penalty.

Mr. Workhardd—My dear, I have lost my situation, and it just happens that I haven't a dollar ahead. We must go to the poorhouse for dinner.

Mrs. W.—Surely some of the grocers with whom we have dealt for so many years will trust us.

Mr. W. (sadly)—No; I have no credit anywhere. We always paid cash.

Quite a Linguist.

Mr. S. had just welcomed his nephew home from school. "Now, then, Tommy," he said, "let us see what you have been learning all this time. What is the meaning of felo de se?" Instantly replied the lad, a little contemptuously: "Oh, that's only French for a sailor. Ask me something in Latin."

The pride that many unblemished persons affect in their ancestry is so melancholy that they might as well be dead themselves.—Schoolmaster.

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

Store Closed Every Wednesday During July and August at 12 O'Clock Noon.

Half Price Days

Friday and Saturday.

Take one dollar and multiply it by two and the result will give you the purchasing power of that dollar in many lines on these days. On other lines it will be more than double.

We might sell these goods offered at regular prices, did we wait, but that is too slow for us, and you could not appreciatte the offering then as you can now.

Oddments and ends—you may not find exactly the size or length you require. If you could, they would not be so priced.

You can get a longer length for much less than just what you want, would regularly cost you.

We must have your co-operation in our house-clearing so make these tempting offers below.

The regular prices of these goods are on in plain figures. You can see exactly what they were and are.

Here are some—space does not permit mention of many deserving lines—you will see them when you come.

HALF PRICE COLORED WAISTS

Busy selling has sadly depleted our Colored Waist assortment and in nearly every line only a few remain.

Here are prices which should not leave one Waist with us Saturday.

Not neccessary to spend space on the description of the perfect fit and excellent materials in these. Suffice to say they are from our regular assortment which has sold so freely.

Many here that we cannot mention.

—Colored Black and White or Blue and White spot and figured Print Waist with Muslin yoke and tucked front, regular $1.00 for	.39
—Fine Pink and White Gingham Waist with rows of Valenciennes Insertion back and front, regular $1.75 for	.75
—Fine Linen Batiste Waist trimmed with self strapping and black embroidery insertion, pointed cuffs—small tucks back and front, regular $2.00 for	1.00
—3 only Waists of fine colored thin Knicker cloth Blue, Grey and Old Rose, plain full front $1.25 for	.89

HALF PRICE MILLINERY

Our half price offering has already cleared a number of pretty styles from our tables but there still remain a few which should keep up the interest in this department.

Prices will be interesting here as elsewhere on Friday and Saturday. Besides the trimmed hats we mention below other lines which come under our Half Price hammer.

Only thing wrong—they have sold out quickly and left the assortment incomplete.

—Child's Fine White Muslin Hat with accordion plaited brim and embroidered crown, regular 75c for	.38
—Child's Fine White Muslin Hat with goffered brim, regular 45c for	.23
—24 only Children's Muslin bonnets of fancy open work muslin with mull frill and ties, regular 15c for	.8

HALF PRICE WASH GOODS

Regular Remnant prices alone on Wash Goods make a worthy offering and at half price the interest is doubled.

Add to this, many pieces from our assortment which have not been selling as rapidly as we desire and you have selling conditions for Friday and Saturday.

Fine White Vesting 32" wide, regular 15c for	c 8c
Good quality Print, 36" wide, regular 12½c	6
Fancy figured colored Sateens, regular 25c for	13c
A number of fine Ginghams were 15c for	8c

HALF PRICE WRAPPERS

Our anticipation was ahead of the actual demand for Print and Muslin Wrappers.

We have a few more than we desire at this season, so to bring the assortment to normal point we have half priced them for Friday and Saturday.

Pretty material, well made, fast colors. Nothing desirable is missing in their make up. Just—to many.

—Fine Print Wrappers in variety of colors and patterns with and without yoke, regular $1.50 for	.75
—A few fine Print Dresses, regular $3.50 to $4.75 for	.89

Agents for Standard Patterns.

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

CLOTHING BOUGHT HERE PRESSED FREE OF CHARGE

Everything Is Thoroughly Good

That's certain, at QUICK & ROBERTSON'S—we are more particular about giving than you are in getting it perhaps.

But there are other reasons why you should buy at this store where quality is the first consideration.

We not only make goodness certain by applying every known test for quality, but are equally as careful to price that goodness as common as the ordinary sorts are priced elsewhere.

HERE are a few suggestions of summer fixin's that should interest men and mothers of boys.

FOR BOYS.

Vacation Suits and other wear, things that after good hard wear show the difference between our good sorts at our common prices and cheap sorts, which cost a little less.

—Regulation Sailor Blouse Suits, Cheviot mixtures, stripes and serges, ... $1.25 to $4.50

—Norfolk Jackets, single and double-breasted suits for older boys, extensive showing of plain and fancy mixtures .... $2.00 to $5.00

—Washable Sailor Suits 50c to $1.50.

—Wash Waists and Blouses, 25c to $1.00.

FOR MEN.

—SUMMER SUITS—Such as are impossible to obtain except at the best custom tailors—perfect fitting, stylish garments, suited to men who want the out-of-the-ordinary sorts. Homespuns, Tropical Serges, Worsteds and Flannels .... $3.75 to $12.00

—OUTING TROUSERS $1.00 to $4.00.

—NEGLIGE SHIRTS—In stripes and patterned materials, such as custom shirt makers would show you as their newest—plain or plaited bosoms.......... 50c to $1.50

—STRAW HATS—Every one new, the largest assortment of the smartest shapes the best makers have produced.

Sailors, in low crown .... 50c to $2.00

Panama shape, the right ones .... 75c to $2.50

QUICK & ROBERTSON

Here is where you buy Johnston's Clothing for Men and Boys.

Why Be Bothered

With the flies in your house when you can get

Screen Doors

complete with hinges, screws, handle, hook and eye, for 75c

AND—

Screen Windows

20c

The W. W. CHOWN Company, Limited

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines, or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

At Wallbridge & Clarke's

Seasonable Supplies

Montserrat Lime Juice
Raspberry Vinegar (Crosse & Blackwell's)
Gurd's Ginger Ale & Soda Water
Apollinaris and Radnor Water
Pabst Milwaukee Lager.

Clarets and Sauterne

Barton & Guestier's Bordeaux Clarets
Barton & Guestier's Bordeaux Sauterne
Nath. Johnston's Clarets

Rhine Wine and Burgundy
Light Canadian Wines—Red or White

Canned Meats

New Packs. Finest Quality.

Whole Ox Tongues
Lunch Tongues
Lamb's Tongues
Boned Chicken
Boned Turkey
Boned Duck
Pate de foie
Potted Ham
Potted Tongue
Sliced Dried Beef
Ham Loaf
Veal Loaf
Chicken Tamales
Lunch Beef
Lunch Bacon
Chicken, Ham & Tongue
Pigs Feet
Jellied Tenderloins
Vienna Sausages
Luncheon Sausages
Baked Beans—Plain or in Tomato or Chili Sauce, etc., etc., etc.

Camp & Picnic Supplies

Essence of Coffee—Patterson's, Symington's or Crosse & Blackwell's.
Condensed Milk, Evaporated Cream, etc.
Fancy Biscuits
Fine Old Cheese
Pickles and Sauces
Fine Teas and Coffee
Soups and Vegetaples

French Sardines
New Pack Lobster and Shrimps
Salmon, Scallops, Tunny Fish, etc.

WALLBRIDGE & CLARKE
Bridge St.—Tel. 139.
Branch store Front St.—Tel. 157.

A Quiet Wedding.

A quiet wedding took place last evening on Moira street, when Mr. Lester Young and Miss Marguerite Montgomery, both of this city, were united in marriage. Rev. Dr. Crothers was the officiating minister. Miss Maggie Montgomery, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Mr. Ralph Gibson attended the groom. The young couple were married in the home in which they will reside. After the wedding a sumptuous repast was partaken of.

JUST A COLD IN THE HEAD! But if followed by another cold, or some extra exposure is liable to result in nasal catarrh. Unless a radical cure is obtained the throat, bronchial tubes and finally the lungs become affected. Nothing cures colds so quickly and pleasantly as Catarrhozone. The inspector of Mines for Nova Scotia, Mr. Neville, says, "Catarrhozone is the best remedy I have ever used. It cured me of catarrh of the head and throat, and I am pleased to recommend such a satisfactory remedy." Catarrhozone is a safeguard against colds, coughs and catarrh. It can be used while at work, in the church, theatre or street cars. Simply inhale Catarrhozone and it cures. Price $1. Small size 25 cents. Druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Band Concert To-night.

Weather permitting, the I.O.O.F. Band, under the leadership of Prof. Denmark, will render the following programme on Queen Victoria Park to-night:

March—"American Fireman" ...Collins
Overture—"Excelsior" ....H. Ronud
Waltz—"When Knighthood Was In Flower" ....Gustin
Medley—"Hot Potatoes"...M. H. Hall
Two Step—"Pickaninnies on Parade" .... Barnard
March—"The Post Express,"...Sutton
Medley—"All to the Good" .... Mackie-Beyer
Cornet and Saxophone Duet—"Love's Declaration" ....C. Kegel
Waltz—"Thinking of Her" .... L. Frederick
Two Step in Irish style—"Tipperary" .... Fulton
God Save the King.

WOOL CRASH.

People are asking what it is. Wool crash is a sort of misnomer. It is not crash, but simply a light cool worsted in a crash weave. Hold it up to the light—you can see through it. Yet it's as tough and strong almost as thick beaver, and wiry enough to hold its shape. For a cool summer vacation knockabout suit, wool crash takes the lead. Good enough, too, for business. Come, see! Suit prices, $3.75, $5, $6 and $7.50.—Quick & Robertson, Belleville's Best Clothiers.

Bright Boys and Girls

A LARGE NUMBER PASS FROM THE PUBLIC TO THE HIGH SCHOOL.

The examination for admission to High Schools or to Fifth Classes in the Public Schools of South Hastings was held in the High School, Belleville, on the 24th, 25th and 26th days of June.

219 candidates—101 boys and 118 girls—wrote at this examination. Of the 219 boys and girls that wrote 86 were from the Public Schools of South Hastings, 69 from Mr. Gardner's room, 27 from Mr. Dafoe's room, 7 from Mr. Barragar's, 22 from the Separate School, taught by Mr. Hardy, and 8 from the Convent School.

We give the names of the successful candidates, arranged in order of merit, with the marks obtained by each, and their teachers.

Max. 1,100. Min. 550.

Edna Benjamin, Mr. Gardner	842
Mary Bryant, Mr. Mott	733
Fred Leavens, Mr. Barragar	708
Wallace Robb, Mr. Gardner	698
Janie Cunnington, Mr. Gardner	687
Harry Handley, Mr. Barragar	677
Marjorie Hope, Mr. Gardner	644
Maud Anderson, Mr. Gardner	642
M. G. Latta, Mr. Nobes	642
Clifford Clarke, Mr. Gardner	639
Sylvia Mills, Mr. Gardner	634
Burton Asselstine, Mr. Gardner	632
Blanche Wenger, Mr. Gardner	631
Hannah Harrison, Mr. Gardner	630
Florence Graham, Mr. Gardner	627
Lulu Eaton, Mr. Gardner	624
Pearl Hubble, Mr. Barker	622
Mattie Mills, Mr. Gardner	621
Jimmy Tower, Mr. Barragar	620
Harold Chown, Mr. Gardner	620
Chas. Aikens, Mr. Barker	618
Jack White, Mr. Barker	617
Mabel Cook, Mr. Gardner	616
Nina Ferguson, Mr. Gardner	614
Lillie Patterson, Mr. Gardner	613
Blanche Hicks, Mr. Nobes	607
Kathleen Vermilyea, Mr. Gardner	60.
Percy Anderson, Mr. Gardner	605
Hattie Ketcheson, Mr. Ross	605
J. R. Thrasher, Mr. Barragar	602
Maggie Mallock, Mr. Gardner	600
Annie Gay, Mr. Mott	597
Joseph McPherson, Mr. Barker	595
Susie Wiggins, Mr. Gardner	594
Olive Aikens, Mr. Barker	593
Myrtle Reid, Miss Moon	593
Nie Denmark, Mr. Gardner	587
Josephine Brenton, Mr. Simpkins	584
Nathan Jones, Mr. Gardner	584
Eva Archibald, Mr. Gardner	582
Kathleen Vermilyea, Mr. Gardner	581
Archie Cochrane, Mr. Gardner	579
Horace Carroll, Mr. Gardner	578
Clara Thompson, Mr. Gardner	576
Harry Wallace, Mr. Gardner	576
Mabel Phippen, Mr. Gardner	572
Lawrence Sewell, Mr. Gardner	570
Gertie Alford, Mr. Gardner	567
Harold Wilson, Mr. Simpkins	567
Bessie Clarke, Mr. Gardner	566
Ethel Crump, Mr. Simpkins	565
Percy McDavitt, Mr. Mott	565
Dora Sine, Mr. Simpkins	565
Mary Brownlee, Mr. Gardner	564
Ella Rowland, Mr. Dafoe	562
Norma Sherk, Mr. Gardner	562
Gwen Hamilton, Mr. Gardner	561
Annie Bowen, Mr. Dafoe	560
Henry Grass, Mr. Barragar	560
Essa Tallon, Convent	559
Florence Wickett, Mr. Mott	559
Robert Ford, Mr. Barragar	558
Bertha Garrett, Miss Clapp	557
Irene Millard, Mr. Gardner	557
Vera Borbridge, Mr. Gardner	556
Addie Lancaster, Miss Sine	556
Grace Latta, Mr. Simpkins	555
Eddie Duboe, Mr. Hardy	554
Annie O'Neil, Convent	553
Gertrude Beer, Mr. Simpkins	552
Jennie Bishop, Mr. Gardner	552
Winnie Harker, Mr. Gardner	551
Mabel Jeffrey, Mr. Dafoe	551
Gertrude Lahey, Miss Ketcheson	551
Olive Moon, Mr. Dafoe	551
Mary McCoy, Mr. Dafoe	551
Florence Redick, Miss Sine	550
Muriel Osborne, Mr. Gardner	550
Arthur Henthorne, Mr. Gardner	550
Addison Hall, Mr. Nobes	550
Harry Elvins, Mr. Gardner	550
Fred Brason, Mr. Gardner	550
Douglas Brenton, Mr. Simpkins	550
Archie Carson, Mr. Peterson	550
Willie Cochrane, Mr. Gardner	550
Harry Colling, Mr. Barragar	550
Athol May, Mr. Dafoe	550
Jack Panter, Mr. Dafoe	550
L. Ray Peppin, Mr. Hardy	550
Eyra Smith, Miss Bird	550
Ethel Spafford, Mr. Gardner	550
Flossie White, Mr. Simpkins	550
E. G. Ward, Mr. Mott	550
Nellie Shrubb, Mr. Simpkins	550
Eunice Robinson, Mr. Dafoe	550
Keitha Hawley, Mr. Sherry	550
Irene Keeler, Mr. Gardner	550

HOW TO KEEP COOL.

Don't worry, be careful what you eat and drink and wear Oak Hall light weight clothing. By the way, do you know the Oak Hall are giving a discount of 20 per cent. on all summer clothing for this week. Also a 25 cent straw hat sale.

In the Justice Shop.

Drunk.

For this offence Stephen Lynch was fined $3 or 30 days. He was given a few days in which to pay the fine.

A Trunk Case.

John Latta was charged with appropriating a trunk the property of one Miss Hart. The case was settled between the parties.

NEVER SAY DIE.

You may be weak, miserable, nervous, sleepless, your digestion may be poor and you despair. Never say die, until you have used Ferrozone, the most wonderful blood maker, nerve strengthener and brain invigorator. It tones up the whole system. You can eat anything and digest it if you use Ferrozone. You sleep well. You make blood quickly, strength increases daily, in a short time you're well. Try Ferrozone, which you can obtain at all drug stores.

Sports and Pastimes

BASEBALL.

The local team of baseball which went to Picton yesterday and played with a team of that town, suffered a defeat. The score was 15 to 8 in favor of Picton. The boys were used well by the Pictonians.

LACROSSE.

The local lacrosse players are practising hard for their match with the Athletics, of Peterboro, here on the 22nd inst., and a good game is assured. The Peterboro papers refer to the Belleville players as being a fast bunch.

PERSONAL ...AND... SOCIAL.

The Intelligencer invites all its readers to contribute to this column all items of a personal nature, such as the arrival or departure of guests, and the movements of business men, etc. Send a post card to or telephone The Intelligencer.

Mrs. George Brooker, of Chicago, is visiting relatives in the city.

Mr. D. B. Robertson, City Clerk, is confined to the house through illness.

Mrs. C. H. Barker, of Charlotte, is visiting Mrs. Walter Alford, Victoria Avenue.

Miss Gertie Lyng arrived in the city last evening to spend the summer with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Enwright, of New York, are visiting her sister, Mrs. T. Harris, St. Charles street.

Master Morrey Stork went into camp yesterday with the Church Boys' Brigade at Twelve o'Clock Point.

Corporal Sydney Stork, No 5 Co., XV. A.L.I., left yesterday for Ottawa, to take a course at the School of Musketry.

Rev. Mr. Beamish is spending a few days at 12 o'Clock Point with the Boy's Brigade of St. Thomas' Church. Mr. Beamish returns Saturday. Mr. Farrow takes charge over Sunday.

Ald. J. J. Belair, of Kingston, who has just been appointed the Secretary of the Catholic Mutual Benevolent Association, was in the city this morning, consulting with Mr. Wm. Johnson, the District Inspector of Weights and Measures and Electric Lights, as to his resignation of the office of Assistant Inspector of Weights and Measures and Electric Lights, which he has held since 1898. Mr. Johnson has a good many complimentary things to say of Mr. Belair, and very much regrets Mr. Belair's loss to the public service, as he was an ideal officer.

At the Quinte;—M. Kirby, Birmingham; S. Taylor, Trenton; J. Hall, J. Young, London; E. James, E. E. Walker, J. R. Prosser, A. L. Scott, R. G. Wright, N. W. Ferguson, C. E. Davies, J. H. Ritchie, H. R. Flett, R. H. Long, J. A. Cameron, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Meagher, C. D. Fisher, G. Harrison, G. H. Findley, W. A. Brophy, Z. P. Benoit, Montreal; C. H. Keefer, Ottawa; E. C. Hunt, St. Louis, Mo.; S. A. Austin, Ogdensburg; G. C. Geddes and wife, New Bedford, Mass.; G. A. Witmer, Brantford, W. S. Remington, S. S. Burr, G. J. McNall, C. Nutbrown, Rochester; E. D. O'Flynn, Madoc; T. D. Burgess, Newark.

Wedding Bells.

The home of Mr. John B. Vandewater presented a pretty appearance on the evening of July the 8th when his youngest daughter, Hettie J., was united in marriage with Mr. G. C. Geddes, of New Bedford, Mass.

The bride was nicely attired in white. She wore a bridal veil and carried a shower boquet of roses.

Miss Jennie Vandewater, of Foxboro, who acted as bridesmaid, was also prettily attired in white. Albert Vandewater, the brother of the bride, assisted the groom.

After the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. R. M. Pope, of Rednersville, invited guests numbering between forty and fifty partook of a most savory wedding supper.

The presents were numerous and well selected, showing the high esteem in which the bride was held.

After spending two or three weeks visiting friends, the newly wedded couple intend going to their future home in New Bedford, Mass.

Piles To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles, the manufacturers have guaranteed it. See testimonials in the daily press and ask your neighbors what they think of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. 60c a box, at all dealers or EDMANSON, BATES & CO., Toronto.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Two deaths and several prostrations from the heat were reported in New York to-day.

BUILDING.

R. McPherson, late foreman with Thos. Hanley, continues the same business at the same stand, executing, in first-class style, orders for Church and Office Furniture, Mantels, Grills, Artistic effects, etc. Carving to the trade a specialty. Will form class for instructions in carving. j8d&w1m

Gray? The color of seventy years in your hair? Perhaps you are seventy, and you like your gray hair! If not, use Ayer's Hair Vigor. In less than a month your gray hair will be rich and dark.

$1. All druggists. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

YESTERDAY'S SAILING RACES

FUN ON THE BAY.

The first of a series of yacht, skiff and punt races for valuable trophies was sailed yesterday, in a breeze which was favorable for showing the speed of the various craft. The course was off from the southern point of the park, and the course traversed was easily discernible. A large number of interested spectators were upon the park and the sport was thoroughly enjoyed. The events started at 2 o'clock and the afternoon was spent before they were concluded, the result being as follows:

Yacht race.—There were but two entries, namely, the yachts Ada and Spray. It proved to be a good race between the boats, the former winning by 2.40.

Skiff race.—Only two skiffs entered in this race, the Memo, owned by F. Wallbridge, and the Viva, owned by F. Burrows. The former won, although the Viva pressed her closely and by many was considered to be the better sailer, but owing to the fact that a mistake was made in rounding the wrong buoy on the first round, the Viva might have won out.

Punt race.—This was an event that provided considerable sport. There were eight entries and the competition for first place was keen. The King of the Waters was looked upon by many as the winner, but the Oddfellow beat her out. The Flirt won third money.

1,000 ISLANDS AND ROCHESTER.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian" leave Belleville for Thousand Islands at 3.15 p.m., daily except Mondays. Fare $1.00. Returning Str. leaves at 11.38 p.m. for Rochester, N.Y. m26d&w3m

CITY AND DISTRICT.

Advertisements under this heading TWO CENTS A WORD; subsequent consecutive insertions ONE CENT A WORD. No locs charged as less than twenty-five words.

There was a fair market to-day and prices were good for all products offered for sale.

The newly elected officers of Belleville Lodge, I.O.O.F., will be installed this evening by Bro. T. Noyor, D.D.G.M., of Deseronto.

The Thursday morning services at St. Thomas' Church hall have been discontinued during the heated term.

Learn a trade or profession and support yourself while learning. How? Call or write to D. Corbett, 82 Victoria Ave., Belleville, representative of the International Correspondence School. We have only 562,000 students equipping themselves for life. 9-2td

A drunk and a tramp last night were provided with quarters at the police station.

LATEST NEW YORK STOCK QUOTATIONS

AS FURNISHED TO THE INTELLIGENCER BY H. R. BEATTIE, STOCK BROKER.

New York, July 9.

STOCK	Op'g	H'st	L'st	Close.
Atchison	68¾	68⅝	66¼	67⅛
do. pref	92¼	92¼	92	92
St. Paul	151⅜	151⅜	149¼	149¾
Mo. P.	103⅜	103⅜	102¼	102⅜
Union Pac	82	82	80⅜	80⅝
C. P. R.	125⅜	125⅜	123⅜	123⅜
South Pac.	50	50	48½	48½
R. I.	34⅛	34⅛	32⅜	33⅛
Ills. C.	133¾	133¾	132⅞	132¾
Sou. Ry.	24⅛	24⅛	23¾	23¾
Texas	29	29	28	28
B & O.	86½	86½	85	85
N. Y. C.	125½	125⅛	171¼	121½
Penna	125⅜	125⅜	124½	124⅝
Soo	59¼	59½	59	59
T. W.	100¾	101	99	99⅛
Erie	33⅜	33¾	32¾	32⅞
do. pref.	68¾	68¼	67⅜	67⅝
Reading	52	52	50	50⅝
C. O.	38½	38½	37½	37⅝
O. & W.	25¾	25¾	25	25¾
Manhattan	136¾	136¾	136	136
L. & N.	111½	111½	110	110
A. F.	37¾	37¾	37¼	37½
Nor.	67¼	67¼	65¼	66
Wab.	24	24	23½	23½
do pref.	43⅞	43⅞	42½	42½
C. G. W.	19	19⅛	18⅜	18½
T.C.I.	52	52¼	49¾	49¾
U.S. St.	29¼	29⅞	28¾	28⅞
do pref.	81¼	81¼	79⅞	80¼
Sugar	119	119	117¾	119
B. R. T.	57¾	57¾	56⅜	56½
Po.	99	99	98	98
A. C. P.	53⅜	53¾	52¾	52¾
Met.	122	122¼	120¾	121⅛
Alc.	22¾	22¾	22⅛	22½

Sept. wheat opened at 77½; closed at 78⅜.
Sept. corn opened at 51½; closed at 51⅜.

SIDNEY CROSSING.

July 6.—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Farwell, of Oshawa, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Vandervoort during last week.

Mrs. J. W. Young and Mrs. D. Hyde spent Sunday with friends in Rawdon.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Wager, of Moscow, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Seldon Ketcheson this week.

A flower service will be held at White's Church, Bayside, on Sunday, July 12th, at 2 p.m.

Miss Florence Hyde had an operation performed by an eye specialist, on Saturday. It is hoped with success.

A series of meetings will be held under the auspices of the West Hastings Women's Institute at Harder's school house, Friday, July 10th, at 2 p.m., when Miss Miller, of Guelph, will talk on "Some ideas on comfortable dressing" and Miss Agnes Smith, of Hamilton, on "the needs of the home of the present day."

At Bayside school house on Saturday, July 11th, at 2 p.m., the same ladies will give addresses on "What may be accomplished by Women's Institute" and on the "Principles of cooking with demonstrations."

Theses meetings are both interesting and instructive and should be well attended.

Cholera Infantum

There is no danger whatever from this disease when taken in time and properly treated. All that is necessary is to give

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

after each operation of the bowels more than natural and then castor oil to cleanse the system. It is safe and sure. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take.

30 Retail Stores DAVIES 30 Retail Stores

Take special notice of this space for Saturday's special, which will appear in Friday and Saturday's paper. When ordering kindly order early, as we are anxious to accommodate everyone.

Daily Deliveries, Phone. 286.

The WM. DAVIES CO., Limited.

ESTABLISHED 1870.

Light Weight Felts

$3.00 Hats........................ $1.50
$2.50 Hats........................ 1.25
$2.00 Hats........................ 1.00

These are this season's style. All sizes.

S. A. HYMAN & CO.

GLASGOW WAREHOUSE.

Wash Goods

Reduced to Lowest Point.

Here's good news for Ladies who have their Summer Dresses yet to buy.

Tuesday morning we will place on sale the balance of this seasons purchases of Embroidered and Fancy Colored Organdie Muslins, Printed and Figured Lawns. Fancy Colored Dress Sateens, Anderson's best Scotch Ginghams and English Zephyrs, at a discount of 25 per cent.

Off present selling prices which are all marked in plain figures.

This discount will last 3 days.

TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY

When such seasonable goods as the above are offered you at this discount, don't delay in making your purchases early Tuesday.

There is always a choice for early comers.

Laidlaw & Ketcheson

DIRECT IMPORTERS

Daily Intelligencer.

THE INTELLIGENCER IS SOLD AT
J. W. London's and G. Wardhaugh's.

Local Reading Advertisements.

ords 50 cents; 2 cents per word first insertion, per word subsequent consecutive insertions. Headlines count as 12 words; contracts for ong periods made at office.

BATH HELPS

It adds much to the luxury and benefit of baths to have at hand all the usual requisites. There is we think no item of bath supplies we do not carry. It will not cost you much to provide a complete outfit.
Bath Brushes, Mitts, Bath Tablets, Soaps, Toilet Waters, Sea Salt, Loofahs, Sponges, etc.

McKeown's DRUG STORE

Some Form of Brick Ice Cream

Served in our rooms every afternoon and evening.
This afternoon we have Vanilla with Cherries. This evening Chocolate with crushed walnuts. 10c a dish.

CHAS. S. CLAPP

The Sun & Hastings Savings and Loan Co. of Ontario.

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL
$5,000,000.

3 1-2 per cent. allowed on Deposits, payable on Call.

4 per cent, on Deposits for one year or over.
Money to Loan upon favorable terms.
OFFICE, No. 46 Bridge St., Belleville.

J. P. C. PHILLIPS,
Manager Belleville Branch.

An eagle can live 20 days without food, and a condor 40 days.

MONITOR

This is another fine Mantle Clock, not quite so expensive as Gadski in last week's advertisement, but fully as serviceable. It is an eight-day hour and half strike on cathedral gong, fancy columns with trimmings and drop handles, in every way a beautiful clock. Our price only $5 50.

T. BLACKBURN.

Eyes examined free of charge. Jeweler & Optician.

SPECIALS FOR THIS WEEK

This week will be an interesting one. We will work on all Odds and Ends. Special Job Lines at prices that will be sure to sell.

THE ARTICLES OFFERED

White Muslin, suitable for Ladies' and Children's Dresses, was 15 and 20c yd., Sale price 10c
6 Pieces Fine Print for Ladies' Fine Dresses, was 15c yard, to clear 10c
29 Pieces 33 in. wide Print, was 8c, sale price 5½c
31½ in. Pink Flannelette, was 10c, sale price 7c
Reversible Crettone, double width, was 25c yard, for 21c
Standard Shoe Dressing, 10c, for 6c
Tourist Drinking Cup and Bottles, job .... 25 to 35c
Naptha Washing Powder 5c
Fruit Jars, machine made, at Lowest Prices.
Fruit Jar Rubbers, per doz. 5c.
Traveller's Samples of Ladies' Blouses, ranging in price from 50c to $2 25, sale price 25c to 75c.
Ladies' Black Sateen Skirts, fluted, 69c.
Cut Prices on all our Coal Oil Stoves.

McINTOSH BROS.

THE MARKETS.

Grain Markets Steadier, But Cables Do Not Follow American Advance—Live Stock—The Latest Quotations.

Wednesday Evening, July 8.

Liverpool wheat futures closed unchanged to ½d higher to-day than yesterday and corn futures ½d lower to ¼d higher.

At Chicago Sept. wheat closed ¼c below yesterday; Sept. corn ⅛c lower, and Sept. oats ½c lower.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

London—Close—Wheat, on passage, buyers and sellers apart. Parcels No. 1 Northern Manitoba, passage, 31s 1½d; July, 31s and 31s 1½d. Maize, on passage, firm, but not active; spot American mixed, 22s 6d. Flour, spot Minn., 26s 6d.

Paris—Close—Wheat, tone quiet; July, 23f 20c; Nov. and February, 22f 50c. Flour, tone dull; July, 33f 50c; Nov. and Feb., 30f 50c.

Antwerp—Wheat, spot, quiet; No. 2 R. W., 16½f.

LEADING WHEAT MARKETS.

Following are the closing quotations at important wheat centres to-day:

	Cash.	July.	Sept.	Dec.
New York	....	....	81⅜	81⅞
Chicago	....	....	77¼	76⅞
Toledo	78¼	78⅛	78⅜	....
Duluth, No. 1	86	86	....	....

TORONTO ST. LAWRENCE MARKET.

Grain—

Wheat, red, bush	$0 76 to	$0 77
Wheat, white, bush	0 77	....
Wheat, spring, bush	0 70	0 72
Wheat, goose, bush	0 70½	....
Barley, bush	0 42½	....
Beans, bush	1 30	1 50
Beans, hand-picked	1 75	....
Peas, bush	0 78½	....
Rye, bush	0 45	....
Oats, bush	0 35½	0 36

LIVERPOOL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

Liverpool, July 8.—Wheat, spot, dull; No. 2 red western winter, 6s 2d; No. 1 Northern spring, 6s 5d; No. 1 California, 6s 6½d; futures, steady; July, 6s 6½d; Sept., 6s 5¾d; Dec., 6s 3¾d. Corn, spot quiet; American mixed, 4s 9¾d. Futures, quiet; July, 4s 8½d; Sept., 4s 6⅝d. Pork, prime mess western, easy, 80s; bacon, Cumberland cut, steady, 47s 6d; long clear middles, light, steady, 52s; long clear middles, heavy, steady, 51s; clear bellies, steady, 47s 6d; lard, prime western, in tierces, dull, 39s 6d; American, refined, in pails, dull, 38s 6d. tallow, Australian, in London, easy, 30s. Cotton seed oil, Hull refined, spot firm, 22s. 6d.

NEW YORK GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

New York, July 8.—Flour—Receipts 22,-800 barrels; sales, 3200 packages. Flour was well sustained, but without much inquiry, except for spring patents. Rye flour firm. Wheat—Receipts, 42,125 bushels; sales, 1,170,000 bushels. Wheat, opened easier on cooling weather in the Northwest, but recovered on a strong St. Louis advance, that led to activity among shorts. July, 85⅞c; Sept., 81⅝c to 82⅛c; Dec., 81⅝c to 82⅜c. Rye, dull; state, 58c to 59½c, c.i.f., New York; No. 2 western, 60c f.o.b., afloat.

Corn—Receipts, 93,550 bushels; sales, 65,-000 bushels. Corn was weakened by fine weather and unloading among yesterday's buyers; July, 58⅝c to 58⅞c; Sept., 58⅝c to 58½c; Dec., 57⅞c to 58⅛c.

Oats—Receipts, 62,000; oats acted barely steady and dull; track, white, 41c to 49c. Sugar, raw, quiet; fair refining, 3c; centrifugal, 96 test, 3½c to 3 9-16c; molasses sugar, 2⅝c to 2⅞c; refined, quiet. Coffee, quiet; No. 7 Rio, 5 3-16c. Lead, quiet; Wool, firm; domestic fleece, 28c to 32c. Hops, quiet.

NEW YORK DAIRY MARKET.

New York, July 8.—Butter, steady, unchanged; receipts, 10,327.

Cheese—Steady, unchanged; receipts, 2063.

Eggs, irregular; receipts, 13,318; state and Pennsylvania, seconds to firsts, 15c to 17c; western, seconds, 14c to 15c; do., thirds, 12½c to 13½c; dirties, 10c to 13c; checks, 10c to 11c; inferior culls, 6c to 9c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Large Supplies and Heat Weakens Prices at Montreal.

London, July 8.—Live cattle steady at 11½c to 12c per lb. for American steers, dressed weight; Canadian steers, 10½c to 11½c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 9⅜c per lb.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, July 8.—About 550 head of butchers' cattle, 300 calves and 900 sheep and lambs were offered for sale at the East End Abattoir to-day. The large supplies in such warm weather caused a general decline in the prices of all kinds of live stock, excepting hogs, which brought higher prices than on Monday. Prime beeves sold at from 4¾c to 5c per lb; medium cattle from 3¼c to 4½c, and the common stock at from 2½c to 3¼c per lb. A good many of the common cattle will not be sold to-day. Calves sold at from $1.50 to $10 each, or from 2½c to 5c per lb. Sheep sold at from 3c to 3½c per lb. Lambs sold at from $2 to near $4 each, very few sold at more than $3.50 each. Good lots of fat hogs sold at about 5½c per lb., weighed off the cars.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, July 8.—Cattle—Receipts, 550 head; quiet; prime and shipping steers, $4.75 to $5.10; butchers' steers, $3.85 to $4.70; cows, heifers, $2.50 to $4.30; bulls, $3 to $4.10; feeders and stockers, $3 to $3.15. Veals, 145 head; steady, $5.25 to $6.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 5500 head; fairly active on light grades; dull and lower on heavy; heavy, $5.70 to $5.75; mixed, $5.75 to $5.80; Yorkers, $6.10 to $6.15; pigs, $6.35 to $6.40; roughs, $5 to $5.10; stags, $4 to $4.25; dairies, $5.50 to $5.60.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 600 head; ewes, steady; others, 15c to 25c higher; lambs, $4 to $6.25; yearlings, $4.25 to $4.50; ewes, $3.50 to $3.65; sheep, mixed, $2 to $4.25; wethers, $4.25 to $4.50.

NEW YORK LIVE STOCK.

New York, July 8.—Beeves—Receipts, 2500; steers, 10c lower, closed steady; bulls and cows, steady to firm; about 3 cars unsold; steers, $4.20 to $5.30; 2 cars extra, $5.40; oxen and stags, $3 to $4.75; bulls, $3 to $4.30; cows, $1.70 to $3.75; exports, 6254 quarters of beef. Calves—Receipts, 4913, firm; veals, $4.50 to $7; tops, $7.50; culls, $4; buttermilks, $2.50 to $3.25; western, $3.50 to $5; city dressed veals, firmer at 7c to 10½c per lb.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 10,935; good handy sheep, barely steady; heavy sheep, lower; lambs, 10c to 15c lower on top grades; common and medium, about steady, five cars unsold; sheep, $2.75 to $4.25; culls, $2 to $2.50; lambs, $5 to $6.75; one car, $6.87½.

Hogs—Receipts, 6124; heavy hogs, lower; pigs, scarce and steady; state hogs, $6.15 to $6.25; choice light, $6.40 to $6.45.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, July 8.—Cattle—Receipts, 12,000, including 5000 Texans; market 10c to 20c higher; good to prime steers, $4.90 to $5.15; poor to medium, $3.90 to $4.75; stockers and feeders, $2.50 to $4.40; cows and heifers, $1.50 to $4.40; canners, $1.50 to $2.80; bulls, $2.25 to $4.80; Texas fed steers, $3.55 to $4.45.

Hogs—Receipts to-day, 30,000; to-morrow, 25,000; left over, 5500; market 10c to 15c lower; mixed and butchers, $5.40 to $5.65; good to choice heavy, $5.50 to $5.60; rough heavy, $5.25 to $5.45; light, $5.50 to $5.80; bulk of sales, $5.50 to $5.60.

Sheep—Receipts, 12,000; sheep and lambs, steady to firm; good to choice wethers, $3.75 to $6; fair to choice mixed, $3 to $3.50; native lambs, $3 to $6.50.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Stirling, Ont., July 8.—At Stirling Cheese Board to-day, 1140 cheese were boarded. Sales: Magrath, 265 at 9¼; Magrath, 220 at 9 7-16c; Cook, 270 at 9 7-16c; Bird, 300 at 9 7-16c. Balance unsold.

Picton, Ont., July 8.—At our Cheese Board to-day, 15 factories boarded 1560 boxes, all colored. Highest bid, 9½c; 1440 boxes sold. Buyers: Sprague, Bailey, Ayer and Morgan.

Anecdotal.

The death of Li Hung Chang recalls many stories of the "grand old man" of China. None is more amusing—and none more to the point, seeing that his final illness was superinduced by devouring a whole roast duck—than the following: While in England Li was presented with a valuable terrier by the then Prince of Wales. Later the Prince received a special letter of acknowledgment, in which the Chinaman thanked Albert Edward for his present. "I enjoyed him very much," concluded the letter. Presumably the poor terrier had met with a far different fate from any that had been thought of by the Prince in making the present.

Tact is by no means a common possession. A man who was bicycling in Southern France was pushing his machine up a steep hill when he overtook a peasant with a donkey cart who was making but little progress, though the donkey was doing his best. The benevolent cyclist, putting his left hand against the back of the cart and guiding his machine with the other hand, pushed so hard that the donkey, taking fresh courage, pulled his load up to the top successfully. The summit reached, the peasant burst into thanks to his benefactor. "It was good of you, indeed, monsieur," he protested. "I should never in the world have got up the hill with only one donkey."

Abe Lincoln, though captain of a company of Illinois volunteers enlisted during an Indian uprising under "Black Hawk," knew very little of military rules. One day he was drilling his men, and they were marching twenty abreast across a field, when he wished to pass through a gate into the next field. "I could not for the life of me," said Lincoln afterwards, "recall the proper word of command for getting my company endwise so that it could get through the gate; so, as we came near the gate I shouted: 'This company is dismissed for two minutes, when it will fall in again on the other side of the gate.'" When he became a great public man, Lincoln told no story with more gusto than he did this one.

The bridge-builder with Stonewall Jackson's army was a rare character, if the following story be true: The Union soldiers, retreating from the valley of Virginia, burned a bridge over the Shenandoah. Jackson, who wanted to pursue, sent for his old bridge-builder. "Sir," he said, "you must keep men at work all day and all night, and finish that bridge by to-morrow morning. My engineer shall give you a plan." Old Miles saluted and withdrew. Early the next morning the general sent for Miles again. "Well, sir," said Jackson, "did the engineer give you the plan for the bridge?" "General," said the old man, slowly, "the bridge is done; I don't know whether the picture is or not."

A well-known Scotch "meenister" took up golf, and, despite great practice, could not succeed in passing the tyro stage. His simple exclamations of "Tut, tut," "Oh, dear, now," "Well, well," and the like, were plain evidences of a perturbed spirit. One day, when the perspiration flowed freely from his lofty brow and his honest countenance shone with a lustre and radiance which, alas! was not due to calmness of soul, but rather the heat of the sun and his laborious efforts to move the obstinate gutta-percha from its station on the tee, he was tempted to indulge in strong language. "Dear, dear, but I'll have to gie it up. I'll have to gie it up!" he said at last, with a despairing look at the ball. "Give up the game, Mr. D——!" exclaimed his friend, who had been a witness of his attempts. "Na, na, the meenistry," answered the other, with a sigh.

An hotelkeeper in the Catskills put up a sign as an advertisement: "Fifty dollars will be paid to anyone who can beat this hotel for two dollars a day." Not long afterwards a slick fellow arrived. He occupied a room and took three square meals; then he vanished. The proprietor had him arrested by the village constable, under the charge of defrauding or "beating" his hotel. The fellow hired a country lawyer, who promptly sued the landlord for the fifty dollars reward, claiming that it was a fair game, as he had "beaten" the house for the two dollars a day. The prisoner, being discharged, gave the claim for fifty dollars to the lawyer for his fee. The lawyer sued, and, in the course of events, being indebted to the judge, turned the claim over to him. His Honor went promptly to the hotel to board out the bill, and on Sunday had the landlord arrested for contempt of court because there was no chicken pie served.

That the proverbial absent-minded professor is sometimes ably abetted by his wife is illustrated by a story told of Professor Bunsen. One evening, about the usual hour for retiring, he took it into his head to run over to the club, just as he and madam were returning from an evening call. "But," said the lady, "I must have the front door locked before I retire." This emergency staggered the professor, and as he looked bewildered at his wife, the lady, seized with an inspiration, continued: "I'll go in and lock the door and throw you the key from the window." This programme was carried out, and when he reached the club the professor related the incident to a friend as evidence of his wife's unusual sagacity. The friend greeted the story with a roar of laughter. "And why, my dear professor," he said, "did you not simply admit your wife, lock the door from the outside and come away?" "True," ejaculated the learned man of science; "we never thought of that." The climax of the incident was reached an hour later when, returning home, the professor discovered that the lady, in her excitement, had thrown out the wrong key.

Emperor William's Beard.

Berlin newspapers have been making good copy out of a semi-serious agitation, recently inaugurated in Germany by women against the moustache and beard habit, which has sprung into existence since the Kaiser set the example by allowing his beard to grow. These women rebel against men wearing such adornments, and declare they are relics of barbarism. The Kaiser's barber was interviewed on the subject, and unhesitatingly declared that as long as the ruler of Germany continued to set this fashion all the women in Germany could not induce the best of the men to go clean shaven. He added that the beardless face had come to stand for cab-drivers and butlers.

Curious Bits of News.

Few persons know that an ordinary gas jet will consume as much oxygen as four human beings. It is, therefore, well to remember when sitting long in a gas-lighted room to occasionally open a door or a window for a few moments and bring in some fresh air.

"Roughly speaking, the world's consumption of sugar in the last fifteen years has doubled, while in Great Britain it has trebled per head in forty years," says the "Medical Times." "The English and Americans stand easily at the head of the list as the sugar-eating nations."

Adding to his already long list of horticultural triumphs, Luther Burbank of Santa Rosa has produced a prune without a pit, says the San Francisco "Bulletin." Years of experience, of hard, patient work on the part of the Santa Rosa wizard were required to perfect this latest marvel. The hybrid is understood to be a cross between a plum and a prune. The pit of the ordinary prune has been a great drawback to the popular consumption of the fruit. Burbank's creation has no pit, but a tiny seed that is edible and in no way requires removal.

"American promoters must take a back seat," says the "Railway Age," "while a French mining engineer outlines his project of a trans-Alaskan-Siberian railway about 4,000 miles long, besides immense steam ferries across Behring Sea, and capitalized at $200,-000,000. Circle City, a charming winter resort in the Arctic regions, on the Yukon River, a couple of thousand miles or so from its mouth, is to be the southern terminus of the road, and Vladivostock, in Russia, will be the always convenient Asian end."

It is generally understood that journalism, especially "yellow journalism," is expensive, but most people probably do not realize how very expensive it is. Dr. Parkhurst and other reformers have talked about the desirability of establishing endowed newspapers, which should be independent of popular patronage. If a paper like the "Journal" were living on the interest of an endowment fund without any business income to balance its outgo, the fund would have to be over $100,-000,000. The pay-rolls of the great New York newspapers run from $30,-000 to $60,000 a week, and that is only part of their expenses.

A German judge cites a rather remarkable case of lese majeste, which, he says, may be called "unintentional information." A peasant woman who had seen the Kaiser's consort as a slender girl in Prein Kenau, gave blunt rustic expression to her astonishment as to how the figure looked after the birth of several children. Her outcry was mentioned in gossip at a village inn, when it struck the ear of a gendarme who happened to be present. This gendarme reported the matter. His superior prosecuted it, and the amazed and bewildered old woman was transported from her cottage to a cell.

Among the many uses to which the automobile is applied in military service is that of a new Austrian invention, called the Schweitzer Military Mill-Bakery Automobile. This will follow the regiments on the march and make fresh bread from the wheat obtained on the spot. There is mounted on an automobile car a mill with bolters and kneading-troughs, all run by the same motor which runs the automobile. The oven is drawn along in the rear. The bran obtained serves as food for the cavalry horses. By this method five thousand men can be fed daily. This mill-bakery can also render service in cases of large labor contracts which bring together numbers of workmen.

Australians have queer nicknames for different states and for one another. The Queenslanders are dubbed "banana-landers;" Western Australians, known as "sandgropers" or "gropers," now abbreviated into Westralians. The Westralians class the whole of the other states in one group, and call them "t'other side," and the inhabitants "t'other siders." Tasmania, so much like England in climate and other characteristics, is usually regarded as a little behind the times, and referred to as "the land of lots o' time," "the land of sleep a lot," and so on. Tasmanians are called Tassies, also "jameaters," jam being one of the chief productions of the "tight little island."

"During the progress of the construction of the reservoirs for the enlargement of the London water-supply, a splendid specimen of an ancient ship," says the "Scientific American," "has been discovered in the bed of the old River Lea, the course of which has been diverted in order to permit the excavations. The vessel was found at a depth of seven feet below the surface. It is about 50 feet long and is constructed of oak throughout, with the exception of the keel, which is of elm. The ribs of the boat are secured to the sides by treenails, while the timbers are secured with crude and primitive, though well-made, iron nails. The floor-boards are also fastened together with nails and the calking is done with felt. Many antiquarians, who have examined the relic, think that it constitutes a part of the fleet with which King Alfred the Great fought against the Danes. Another curious dugout boat, estimated to be about 2,500 years old, was also unearthed and is to be deposited in the British Museum.

Unconditional Surrender.

The following advertisement appeared in a recent issue of a Chicago paper:

Wanted—A girl for general housework; union or non-union; any old kind; family of three adults and three children with nurse, and occupy small house at Sheridan Park, two blocks from N.W. Elevated; nice, large, airy room, with south-west breeze for girl; no washing or much of anything else to do; our girl quit yesterday because we invited some relatives to help us celebrate the Fourth; next Fourth, if the girl demands it, we will disown our relatives and renounce our country; wages, five dollars.

Weary's Objection.

Willie Wentwork—I'm glad I ain't got no relashuns.

Weary Waddleton—Me, too; I cu'dn't tell whedder dey luv'd me er wuz after me munny.

Man's Christianity to man makes countless thousands mourn.

"GOOD HEALTH IS PRICELESS"

Adulterated teas its enemy.

"SALADA"

Ceylon Natural GREEN tea. Absolutely the purest, and most delicious tea in the world. It is to the Japan tea drinker what "SALADA" Black tea is to the black tea drinker. Sealed lead packets only. 25c and 40c per lb. By all grocers.

A Monopoly.

We have the Monopoly of this Corset, because it is a patented Corset, and nobody else can make it.

Every woman knows that a "CREST" Corset cannot break at the waist, and is therefore especially adapted to every active woman, and invaluable to those with rather full figures.

Do not fail to try one. If you do you will buy no other style of Corsets.

D&A
CREST 400

WEAR 'CREST" CORSETS

MADE IN THREE STYLES

REGULAR SHAPES STRAIGHT FRONT DIP HIP

D

Great Clearing Out Sale.

NATHAN JONES.

We have now made a general reduction on our entire stock.

Ladies' Whitewear

We offer our stock of Whitewear and Summer Vests at 33 1 3 per cent discount.

Corsets

We have all the latest styles in Corsets You should see our 40c, 60c & 80c lines.

Parasols

Our stock of Parasols are all new goods. We would like you to see quality and price.

Prints

We would call your attention to our fine washing prints
10c lines now - - 8c
12½ & 15c lines now - 10c

20 per cent. Discount off our Dress Goods.

NATHAN JONES.

SPECIAL OFFER

MIDSUMMER CLUBBING RATES.

Two Papers to January 1st, 1904

Family Herald & Weekly Star, and the Best Home Paper—The Weekly Intelligencer, BOTH for

65 CENTS

We are making this special offer as we require 1000 new subscriptions to our Weekly.

This offer is good to new subscribers only.

ADDRESS—
The Weekly Intelligencer
BELLEVILLE, ONT.

No agents handle this offer.

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE

FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

The Daily Intelligencer.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL – LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL – CHARITY IN ALL.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, JULY 10, 1903 NO. 58

MEMBER HAD A CLOSE CALL

Man Dropped Pail of Ice Through Glass Ceiling of Commons.

Government Yields Point on Safety Aids For Trainmen—Text of the Amendment to Save Life—Passenger Rate of Two Cents Per Mile on Railways Proposed in the House But Voted Down.

Ottawa, July 10.—One of the glass squares which form the ceiling of the Commons Chamber came crashing down while the House was in session yesterday afternoon, and Mr. John McGowan of Centre Wellington, who sat immediately beneath, had a narrow escape from death.

An employe carrying a pail of ice to place in a ventilating pipe was the cause of the accident. He tripped and fell, and suddenly there was precipitated into the chamber a pail of ice and some thirty or forty glass prisms.

There was several intense seconds, as the roof seemed to fairly rain glass over the head of Mr. McGowan, but it glanced off his forehead, leaving him half stunned and bleeding.

The employe had his hands badly lacerated, but, was able to draw himself up again. For fifteen minutes the proceedings of the House were informally suspended.

Mr. McGowan was led out of the chamber. His wound was attended to and half an hour later he was back in his seat in the House.

Side-Ladders For Box Cars.

When the House went into committee on the Railway Commission Bill last night, when the clause and Mr. Ingram's amendment were called, Mr. Ingram said that the Minister of Labor and Mr. Hali and himself had agreed to a clause on the lines of Mr. Ingram's. Thereupon Mr. Sutherland got up and moved the following clause, which was unopposed, and is now incorporated in the Railway Act:

All box freight cars built in Canada, for use on Canadian railways, after the passing of this act, shall be provided with the following attachments for the security of railway employes, viz.:

(a) Outside ladders, or two of diagonally opposite ends, and sides of each car, projecting below the frame, the ladders being placed close to the ends and sides tp which they are attached.

(b) Hand grips placed anglewise over the ladders of each box car and so arranged as to assist persons in climbing on the roof by means of the ladder.

All cars built prior to the passing of this act shall be fitted with such attachments on or before Dec. 31, 1905, provided that if there should, at any time, be any other improved side attachment, which, in the opinion of the board, is better calculated to promote the safety of the train hands, then the board may require any of such cars not already fitted with the side attachments first mentioned to be fitted with said improved attachments.

Two Cents a Mile.

Mr. W. F. Maclean moved an amendment, in the form of a subclause, enacting that the maximum passenger tariff on the railroads of Canada shall not exceed two cents a mile.

A keen discussion ensued, but the amendment was declared lost.

After considerable debate clause 279 was finally amended so that the commission may make regulations that any person or company making false classifications shall in addition to the regular tolls be liable to the railway for fifty per cent. additional to the regular charges.

As to Fires.

Another new section proposed by Mr. Blair provides that a railway company must keep its rights of way free from inflammable material, and if the fire spreads from the right of way to adjoining property, or if fire is started on any adjoining property by the company's engineer, the burden of proving thgt the fire was not caused by the negligence of the company shall be upon the company.

Mr. Demers of St. John moved in amendment that in case of fires communicated by a railway to adjoining property the company shall be responsible for the damage.

Mr. Belcourt supported the amendment. It was a principle of law as old as the hills, he said, that a man must not use his property in a way that will cause damage to the property of others. "The amendment," said Mr. Belcourt, "is justified by equity, by precedent and by the soundest principles of law."

Mr. Demers' amendment was carried by a large majority, Mr. Blair's being the only voice raised against it.

Att the clauses of the bill having been disposed of, Mr. Blair stated that the bill would be reprinted before the committee was asked to sit again. At the same time he expressed appreciation of the spirit in which the bill had been discussed by both sides of the House, and thanked the members for the assistance given to make the bill as complete as possible.

In committee of supply last night on the supplementary estimates for Indian affairs, items amounting to $10,870 were taken up and finally passed. The House rose at midnight.

THE REDISTRIBUTION.

Looks as If Committee Would Practically Agree on Whole Plan.

Ottawa, July 10.—A long session of the Redistribution Committee was held last night. Fairly good progress was made and it now looks as if the committee would agree on practically the whole plan of redistribution.

Renewed protests were made against the under representation of Toronto. Mr. E. F. Clarke insisted that the city should have five more members.

Mr. Fitzpatrick said that Montreal, though a larger city than Toronto, had only five members.

Schedules were presented, awarding one member to each of the following counties: Prescott, Glengarry, Stormont, Frontenac (excluding the Village of Portmouth), Russell (with the Townships of Gloucester and Osgoode), Grenville, Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward, Durham, Muskoka, Parry Sound, Peel, Dufferin, Halton, Lincoln, Welland, Haldimand, Norfolk, the territorial district of Nipissing (with the Townships of Clara, Maria and Head), the territorial districts of Thunder Bay and Rainy River, the City of Kingston (with Portsmouth Village), Wentworth, the electoral districts of Algoma and Manitoulin.

Will Co-operate With U.S.

Ottawa, July 10.—The Secretary of State announced in the Senate yesterday that the Government of the United States had invited the Imperial Government to co-operate on the appointment of an international commission to investigate the waterways common to Canada and the United States. To this the Dominion Government had assented, but no commissioners had yet been named.

The Canadian Northern Railway Bill and the Lumbermen's Fire Insurance Bill were read a third time and passed.

SINCLAIR'S

Saturday All=Day Sale

These are some of the many lines we offer for our Saturday All-Day Sale.

25 Ladies' Print and Sateen Dresses from $2.75 to $6.50 will be sold at Half Price.

14 Ladies' All Wool Dress Skirts, light colors from $4.50 to $6.50 will sell for ..... $1.65 each.

All our Dress Muslins from 15 to 20c will sell for .... 10c a yard

All our Fancy Dress Muslins from 25c to 35c will sell for .... 19c.

All our Best Dress Muslins from 40c to 60c will sell for .... 35c a yard.

All our Fancy Dress Sateens from 25c to 35c will sell for .... 15c a yard

12 patterns of 50c Linen and Silk Stripe Waistings will sell for .. 25c a yard.

10 doz Ladies' Fancy Silk Stock Collars will sell for .... 25c each

8 doz. Children's Cotton Bleeched Vests, buttoned front will sell for 5c each

Special Hosiery Sale

For Saturday All-Day we offer all our Ladies' and Children's Fancy Cotton and Lisle Thread Stockings at a discount of 20 per cent. or 1-5 off regular prices.

These prices are good for All-Day Saturday.

D. V. Sinclair & Co.

CAUCUS CALLED TO CONFIRM.

Sir Wilfrid Asks Support For Government Owned Railway.

Ottawa, July 10.—When the Grand Trunk Pacific charter is considered in committee of the House next Monday, Hon. A. G. Blair will announce the Government's policy as sanctioned at the Ministerial caucus held yesterday.

The caucus was reasonably harmonious. Liberal members criticized with some severity the proposed scheme, especially that part of it which contemplates the construction of a Government owned road from Winnipeg to Moncton. It soon became apparent that the caucus was not called to criticize, but to confirm.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier outlined the Government's policy, which does not differ materially from the terms as published in the newspapers. When objections began to grow slightly uncomfortable the Premier stated that the Government was pledged to the bargain with the Grand Trunk Pacific, and it could not be modified in any important particular.

TRIED TO KILL THREE.

Alliston Auctioneer Attempts to Kill Wife, Wife's Mother and Self.

Alliston, July 10.—W. S. Wallace, auctioneer of this town, while laboring under a fit of despondency, shot at his wife and his wife's mother without effect. He then deliberately placed the barrel of the revolver in his mouth and fired twice,, inflicting flesh wounds. He will likely recover. He was taken into custody.

Christian Endeavorers Meet.

Denver, Colo., July 10.—Thousands of Christian Endeavorers from all parts of the United States and Canada, with a few from abroad, arrived here during the day, and many more are on the way. More than 10,000 persons attended the opening mass meeting of the convention yesterday afternoon. At the annual business meeting of the United Society, all the old officers were re-elected as follows: President, Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D.; treasurer, William A. Hawes; clerk, George B. Graff; auditor, Fred Kidder.

Woman Shoots a Burglar.

Aurora, July 10.—Mrs. Warne, while hunting for a burglar with her husband in his grocery store at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, shot at a man hiding in the hallway. After his taking over by the police it was found that the ball had broken his jawbone. Mr. Warne's two shots entered the man's shoulder. He gave up the proceeds of his thieving, a few coppers. He said his name was Hall, and that he was a barber in Hamilton. His wounds were dressed, and he was remanded for a week by Magistrate Lundy.

Found $1 000 on a Barrel.

Brockville, July 10.—John Sheridan, a carter, yesterday morning found a bundle of banknotes amounting to $1,000 on top of a barrel down near the river front. They were a portion of a parcel containing several thousand dollars stolen from the mail while in transit from a Montreal bank to its branch in Smith's Falls some weeks ago. The thief is evidently an amateur, and, fearful of detection, has been trying to rid himself of the incriminating money without having the nerve to destroy it.

Evaporator Burned.

Teeswater, July 10.—J. Joint's apple evaporator at the C.P.R. station was burned to the ground about noon yesterday. The fire caught in the roof by a spark from a passing engine. Joseph Pinnel's cider and flax mill, half a mile away, caught from flying cinders and was burned down, together with the stable and ice house. J. Joint's loss is about $1,000, partly insured. Joseph Pinnel's loss is about $1,000; insured for $200.

Killed in a Second.

Sparta, July 10. — Cecil Rodley went shooting woodchucks yesterday near here and was killed by his gun discharging while he was getting over a fence. The whole charge entered his forehead, blowing the top of his head off. He died instantly.

As a Free Port.

Montreal, July 10.—The Montreal Board of Trade decided to petition the Dominion Government to assume the Montreal Harbor debt and make it practically a free port.

Wiping Off Mortgages.

Montreal, July 10.—It was announced yesterday that the floating debt on the St. James' Methodist Church had been reduced from $175,000 to $3,000, and the blanket mortgage on the Temple building from $150,000 to $50,000, all of which will be wiped off shortly.

Delehanty's Body Identified.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 10.—The body of Edward Delehanty, the right fielder of the Washington baseball team of the American League, who fell from the International Bridge last Thursday night, was taken from the river at the lower Niagara Gorge yesterday.

Will of Late Justice Mills.

Ottawa, July 10.—Application was made yesterday for probate of the will of the late Hon. Justice David Mills. The estate is valued at $41,200, of which $30,000 is real estate, and the balance personal.

A CONFERENCE ON POWER

Talks Question and Decides to Form a Union of Municipalities.

Committee Named to Secure Information and Take the Necessary Steps For Organization—Chairman Snyder, in His Address, Reviewed the Situation, and Advised Buying Power Delivered at Their Limits—$5 Per Horse Power.

Berlin, July 10.—A conference was held yesterday to consider what action should be taken under the recently passed Provincial Power Act. E. W. B. Snyder of St. Jacobs presided and among those present were: Mayor Butcher, H. L. Rice and Jas. Maxwell of St. Mary's; Mayor Hamilton, Colonel White and Ald. Carter of Guelph; G. H. Douglas, Stratford; Robt. Scott, Galt; Mayor Beck and City Clerk C. Edward of London; Mayor Bean and J. C. Haight, Waterloo; Dr. Lackner, M.P.P., Mayor Eden, J. G. Wing, John Lang, C. K. Hagedorn, W. H. Breithaupt, G. M. DeBus, Berlin; E. W. B. Snyder, St. Jacobs; Mayor Maxwell and S. Chance, St. Thomas; S. J. Cherry, Preston; Peter Brisk, Bridgeport.

Interviewed Companies.

Mr. Snyder addressed the meeting. He outlined the scope of the bill and said he had interviewed the power companies, one of which claimed to be able to deliver power in a year, and it was not up to the municipalities to go together. The bill, he said, gave these options:

1. For the municipalities to develop, transmit and distribute power, through a commission appointed by justices.

2. To buy the power at its source, transmit and distribute, also under a similar commission.

3. To buy power delivered at their limits and distribute it among the consumers. In this case the municipality will elect its own commission.

Best to Buy Power.

Under clauses 1 and 2 municipal corporations will have to do their own financing, and it is a question if they are ready to do so. It seems they are hardly ready for this step. Personally he thought it best to buy the power and do the distributing.

Mr. Snyder gave some interesting figures gleaned from the engineer's report made to the Niagara Power Commission. He claims that transmission of electricity by duplicate lines can be made at $3,600 a mile. To reach all these western corporations about 200 miles would have to be covered. This would mean a cost of $720,000. Add to that about $160,000 for right of way, and the total cost will be close onto $1,000,000. The engineer who gave these figures designed the successful transmission line from California to Colorado.

Allowing for the cost of maintenance annually, and distributing 20,000 horse-power, the entire cost would be met by selling power at $5 per horse-power and paying off the indebtedness in 20 years.

In carrying out the work under the third plan, which he considers most reasonable, it would be well to appoint a committee of five, whose duty it will be to merge the various municipalities into a group.

Committee Named.

The chairman was authorized to appoint a committee of seven to gather information and to take the necessary steps to form a union of municipalities. The following gentlemen were named: R. McGregor, Galt; Adam Beck, London; P. W. Ellis, Toronto; C. H. Waterous, Brantford; G. MacLagan, Stratford; A. Goldie, Guelph; E. W. B. Snyder, St. Jacobs.

ANIMAL AND HUMAN CONSUMPTION.

German Commission's Investigation Coincides With Prof. Koch's Views.

Berlin, July 10.—The Berlin Medical Society assembled to hear Professor Kossel of the Imperial Health Office report the results of the prolonged experiments of the tuberculosis commission in infecting calves with human tuberculosis. Prof. Koch's observations, prior to the celebrated London address, caused the Health Office to appoint the commission to make systematic experiments.

The commission summarizes as follows: "The series of experiments strengthens Prof. Koch's view that animal consumption as the cause of human consumption does not play the role generally attributed to it; but definite judgment requires further experimentation."

In the discussion which followed Prof. Orth strongly combatted the view that human and animal consumption were dissimilar and non-transferable.

Secretary of Railway Commission.

Ottawa, July 10.—It is understood that Prof. Simon J. MacLean will be appointed secretary of the Railway Commission. Mr. MacLean has made several reports to the Government on railway questions. He has made a long and careful study along these lines. The salary will be $5,000 a year. He is a graduate of Toronto University of the class of '91, and is a son-in-law of the Auditor-General.

A DAY OF HOPES AND FEARS

Life Hangs in the Balance, Scales Tending Downwards.

Dr. Lapponi Says There Is No Hope For Pope Leo's Recovery — Two Hours' Consultation With Prof. Rossoni, Who Examined His Distinguished Patient Very Minutely—The Bulletins Tell the Day's Story Succinctly.

Rome, July 10.—(2 m.)—Another day of alternate hopes and fears has passed, and Pope Leo's life still hangs in the balance. Beginning with renewed hopes, the day closed with the scales tending slowly, but surely downwards. How long this agonizing period of suspense will last not even the attending doctors dare to say.

At 12.15 this morning, it was learned from Dr. Mazzoni that the condition of the Pontiff had not changed since the issue of the evening bulletin at 7.30 o'clock, which announced that the patient's state was grave, and at which hour Dr. Lapponi had declared his fear that there was no hope, but that the end might come during the night.

The news of the sudden relapse of the Pope, the consultation of physicians and the alarming bulletin, which followed, was an unexpected thunder in what had already become in the public feeling an unclouded sky. The idea now prevails that this brings to a definite end all of the bright hopes which were cherished this morning.

Prof. Rossoni went through the most careful examination of the illustrious patient, employing again what is known as the bacell system. The consultation lasted over two hours.

The investigation unfortunately proved, not only the presence of fluid in the pleura, but its rapid augmentation, so that it already afflicted the patient with the same disturbances that were observed on last Tuesday. It was evident that another operation would be indispensable, but no decision on this point will be reached until after another consultation, which has been postponed until to-night, because of the weakness of the patient. The three doctors will make another examination within an hour or two.

A state of great prostration has ensued, rendering worse the affection of the kidneys. It is likely that an injection of salt water into the veins will be resorted to. The diarrhoea which appeared yesterday afternoon and occasioned the consultation has now ceased.

Every detail for conducting the affairs of the church during the interregnum and for carrying out the election of Pope Leo's successor is being systematically arranged.

THE BULLETINS.

July 9.—5.05 p.m.—Dr. Rossoni arrived at the sick room, in consequence of a sudden change for the worse in the condition of the Pope.

7.30 p.m.—The following bulletin has been issued: "The general condition of the illustrious patient, having become depressed, a consultation was held at 4 o'clock, with the participation of Prof. Rossoni. From objective examinations, it appears that the liquid is again rapidly gathering in the pleura. The sounds of the heart are weak, without any symptoms of valvular lesion. The pulse is easily compressible, and it has 90 pulsations instead of 65, which is normal. The breathing is superficial and at long intervals. The kidneys are not performing their regular functions. The state of His Holiness is considered grave."

(Signed) Rossoni, Lapponi, Mazzoni.

7.30 p.m.—After a consultation of the physicians Dr. Lapponi said: "I fear there is no hope, no hope whatever, and yet the end may not come to-night."

July 10.—4 a.m.—The injections given first by Dr. Mazzoni and then by Dr. Lapponi have had in part the desired effect, as the Pope has succeeded in getting some sleep, although his slumber was not entirely tranquil. The patient's diet has been somewhat lightened since the attack of diarrhoea yesterday, and is now limited mainly to beef broth tea.

6.10 a.m.—It is reported that when, shortly after sunrise this morning, Dr. Lapponi went to see His Holiness he found him with his hands together in the attitude of prayer. On the doctor inquiring whether he required anything His Holiness replied: "To-day finishes a week since I was taken ill. I am thanking God for having given me strength to still pray to him."

Cane For Mr. Lariviere, M.P.

Ottawa, July 10.—Mr. Lariviere, M.P. for Provencher, was presented with a black ebony cane with a gold head on the occasion of his having completed 25 years in political life. The cane was from his political friends in the House. He made a neat speech in which he took occasion to refer to the pleasant time he had spent in Ottawa.

SNAP AND VIM.

Angier's Petroleum Emulsion makes weak lungs strong and strong lungs stronger. Besides, it rids the system of disease, creates rich, red blood, firm flesh, and develops the snap and vim that denote health and strength. Pleasant to take, agreeable to the stomach.

Save the Baby

Nestlé's Food will so strengthen an infant that it can withstand the enervating effects of hot weather. It is a preventive of Cholera Infantum. Your physician will recommend it.

Nestlé's Food

Sample (sufficient for eight meals) Free.
LEEMING, MILES & CO., MONTREAL.

"THE FRIEND OF ENGLAND."

President Loubet So Declares For France —Ends His Visit—Escorted to the Train by King Edward.

London, July 10.—President Loubet's visit to London was brought to a close at 8.40 o'clock yesterday, when he left the Victoria Station for Dover. The scenes and incidents of his departure testified to how the Republican President had captured all classes and won the popular good will. As M. Loubet's carriage drew up at the station, King Edward advanced with outstretched hand, and, taking the President familiarly by the arm, led him through the waiting-room to the royal car. His Majesty stood chatting with him until the train pulled out, amid cheers, mingled with the strains of "The Marseillaise."

Upon his arrival at Dover, M. Loubet embarked on the French cruiser Guichen, and the vessel sailed at once for Calais, escorted by a British torpedo flotilla and followed by farewell salutes from the fleet and castle. Before his departure the President telegraphed to King Edward, thanking him for the hearty reception accorded him "as the representative of France, the friend of England."

At Calais the President was given a great reception, and in replying, said his visit to London had given him the opportunity of discovering once more that greater justice was done to France abroad than she did to herself at home. The impression which he had brought back was profoundly satisfactory, and he felt patriotic joy in proclaiming it aloud.

King Edward's reply to President Loubet's telegram was as follows: The kind words of your telegram touched me greatly. We are all delighted that your visit pleased you. It is my most ardent desire that the reapproachment of our two countries should be lasting.

Edward the Peacemaker.

London, June 10.—At the Pilgrim's Club luncheon to the visiting American officers at the Carlton Club yesterday afternoon, Vice-Admiral Lord Charles Beresford in proposing the toast of "The King," said he believed the day was coming when King Edward would be known as "Edward the Peacemaker." Lord Beresford then toasted "President Roosevelt" in a eulogistic speech.

BASEBALL THURSDAY.

The Eastern League.

Providence	0 0 0 0 0 0 0 3 0	3
Toronto	0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 0	2

Two-base hit—Massey. Home run—Crisham. Stolen bases—White, Brodie, Miller 2. Sacrifice hits—Stafford, Sylvester, Toft 2. Double play—Stafford to Conner to Crisham. Bases on balls—Off Yerkes 4, off Kissinger 1. Struck out—By Yerkes 1, by Kissinger 6. Time 1.30. Umpire—Brown.

		R.	H.	E.
Buffalo	0 3 3 0 0 0 1 0 0	7	10	3
Worcester	0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 3	4	9	3

Batteries—Milligan and Laporte; Winham, Falkenburg and McCauley. Umpire—Kelly. Attendance—470.

		R.	H.	E.
Jersey City	1 2 0 0 0 0 0 0 3	6	13	3
Rochester	2 0 0 0 0 3 0 0 0	5	7	1

Batteries—Thielman and Dillon; Gettig, Steelman and Fuller. Umpire—Latham. Attendance—600.

		R.	H.	E.
Newark	0 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 *	2	6	1
Baltimore	0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0	1	5	0

Batteries—Hesterfer and Shea; Wiltse and Robinson. Umpire—Swartwood. Attendance—1400.

National League Scores.

At Pittsburg—

		R.	H.	E.
Pittsburg	0 0 0 0 0 3 0 0 x	3	8	2
Brooklyn	0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0	1	5	3

Batteries—Leever and Smith; Garvin and Ritter. Umpire—Johnstone. Attendance—2445.

At Chicago—

		R.	H.	E.
Chicago	0 0 1 0 0 0 5 0 x	6	10	1
Philadelphia	1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0	1	9	0

Batteries—Landgren and Kling; Sparks and Roth. Umpire—O'Day. Attendance—1050.

At St. Louis—

		R.	H.	E.
St. Louis	0 0 0 0 0 1 1 0 0	2	10	1
New York	0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 3	4	14	1

Batteries—Brown and O'Neil; McGinnity and Mathewson and Bowerman. Umpire—Emslie. Attendance—1200.

At Cincinnati (first game)—

		R.	H.	E.
Cincinnati	1 1 0 2 1 0 1 5 ?	11	16	1
Boston	1 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 0	3	9	7

Batteries—Sudhoff and Peitz; Pittinger and Moran.

Second game—

		R.	H.	E.
Cincinnati	2 0 3 0 0 0 *	5	8	3
Boston	0 0 3 1 0 0 0	3	6	2

Batteries—Hahn and Bergen; Mellarkey and Moran. Umpires—Moran and Holliday. Attendance—4000. (Game called by agreement.)

American League Results.

At Boston—

		R.	H.	E.
Boston	0 0 4 0 0 0 0 1 x	5	7	0
Chicago	0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 3	3	7	1

Batteries—Dineen and Criger; Flaherty and Slattery. Umpire—Connolly. Attendance—5083.

At New York—

		R.	H.	E.
New York	1 0 0 1 0 0 0 3 *	5	10	2
St. Louis	0 0 0 0 0 3 0 1 0	4	10	3

Batteries—Griffith and Beville; Seevers and Kahoe. Umpire—Sheridan. Attendance—1750.

At Washington—

		R.	H.	E.
Washington	6 0 1 1 0 3 2 4	17	24	4
Detroit	0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 3	4	3	5

Batteries—Wilson and Drill; Deering, Mullen and McGuire. Umpire—O'Loughlin. Attendance—11,105.

At Philadelphia—

		R.	H.	E.
Cleveland	0 0 0 0 0 4 0 4 0 0	8	11	2
Philadelphia	0 5 0 1 0 2 0 0 0 1	9	12	3

Batteries—Bernhardt, Wright and Bemis; Henley, Plank and Powers. Umpire—Hassett. Attendance—4557.

The better class of Japanese take a warm bath every day.

You couldn't be paid to eat it now.

Many of us can remember how our mothers used to pay us to eat porridge for breakfast—or they would say we couldn't have anything else until we had eaten it. In the light of present day ideas doesn't that seem to have been barbarism, but we must remember that they had nothing better in those days—now we have that everybody likes—and it suits everybody—So nourishing, so easily digested, so palatable. It has become almost the universal food of all conditions of people.

Malta-Vita

THE PERFECT FOOD.

No Work—No Heat—Just Cream—Then Eat.

30 Retail Stores DAVIES 30 Retail Stores

Saturday Specials

Butter A large consignment of Choice Dairy Butter 18c lb
Finest Creamery Butter .... 20c lb

Bacon New Mild Smoked Breakfast Bacon, by the whole or half side.................. 13c lb

Hams Sugar Cured, by the whole or half ham, 14c lb.

Tea A 40c quality selling for 25c per lb., guaranteed best value in the city.

Peas, Beans and Pumpkin, new stock, 3 cans for 25c

Beef Our choice Western Beef is very much apprreciated by the people of Belleville, try a roast for Sunday Dinner.

Cheese Just arrived and fresh made, new mild cheese .... 14c lb
Rich old cheese full flavor .... 16c lb

Daily Deliveries, Phone. 286.

The WM. DAVIES CO., Limited.

The Finnegan Carriage & Wagon Co.

—FOR—

Stylish and Durable Turnouts.

—Surreys
—Corning Buggies
—Piano Box Buggies
—Rubber Tire Buggies
—Micadoes
—Phaetons
—Bike Buggies
—Democrats
—Grocer Wagons
—Butcher Wagons

Cheese Factory Milk Wagons.
Steel Tubular Axle Lumber Wagons.

Rubber Tires put on your old wheels at reasonable prices.

Mill St, - - Belleville.

At Wallbridge & Clarke's. At Wallbridge & Clarke's

Supplies For Camp or Cruise

New York Biscuits

In "In-er Seal" pkgs.

Uneeda "Jinger" Wafers, Butter Gems, Cheese Biscuits, German zwieback, Pretzelettes, etc., etc.

Christie's Fancy Biscuits

Fresh supplies every week — 40 varities.

Heintz's Pickles

Heintz's Celery Sauce,
Heintz's India Relish.
Heintz's Sweet Midgets.
Heintz's Sweet Pickles.

Spanish Olives

A fine assortment of Olives from 10cts per bottle up.

Delicious Teas

Wallbridge & Clarke's Delicious English Breakfast Teas in lead packets at 30, 40, 50 and 60cts per lb.

Campers Supplies

Essence of Coffee, Condensed Milk, Lime Juice, Raspberry Vinegar, Fancy Cheese, New Pack Lobster and Shrimps, French Sardines, Scallops, Deviled Crabs, Concentrated Soups, French Potage, Beef Extracts, etc., etc.

Pickles and Sauces

A complete assortment of English and American Pickles and Sauces, including Pickled Walnuts, Onions, Chow Chow, Lea & Perrin's Worcestershire Sauce, Yorkshire Relish, Mushroom Catsup, Harvey's Sauce, Sultana Sauce, Chutney's Capers, Durkee's Salad Dressing, etc., etc.

Canned Meats

New Packs. Finest Quality.
Whole Ox Tongues.
Lunch Tongues.
Lamb's Tongues.
Boned Chicken.
Boned Turkey.
Boned Duck.
Pate de foie.
Potted Ham.
Potted Tongue.
Sliced Dried Beef.
Ham Loaf.
Veal Loaf.
Chicken Tamales.
Lunch Beef.
Lunch Bacon.
Chicken, Ham and Tongue.
Pigs Feet.
Jellied Tenderloins.
Vienna Sausages.
Luncheon Sausages.
Baked Beans—plain or in Tomato or Chili Sauce, etc., etc., etc.

Ale and Stout, Wines, etc.

Carling's, Labatt and Davies' Dominion Ale, Bass' Ale, Dow's Sand Porter, Emmness' Stout, Pabst Milwaukee Lager in prime condition.

Gurd's Ginger and Soda Water Appolinaris and Radnor Water.

Barton & Guestire's and Nath. Johnston's Bordeaux Clarets and Sauterne AT POPULAR PRICES.

Rhine Wine and Burgundy Cordials and Liqueurs.

Light Canadian Wines, red or white, at lowest prices.

WALLBRIDGE & CLARKE

EST'D. 1871.
BRIDGE ST. Tel. 139.
Branch Store
Front St.—Tel. 157.

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE

FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

Daily Intelligencer.

UNITED STATES VS. RUSSIA—NEGRO VS. JEW.

The people of the United States are very fond of offering sympathy to what they term the "oppressed" subjects of a monarchy, and have a decided penchant for offering a plea for mercy based upon their own vaunted liberal constitutions. Just now the poor Jews of Russia are subjects of their pity and commisseration. The Czar is to be memorialized by the professedly humane people of the neighboring Republic, where their constitution declares that "every man is born free and equal."

Looking at the treatment meted out to their own colored subjects, one would come to the conclusion that it would be more becoming for them to pluck the beam from their own eye before troubling themselves about the mote in their neighbor's.

While the cruelties and barbarities inflicted by the Russians upon the Jews deserved the execration and denunciation of every civilized nation, how much better are the sympathizers in the United States, in the treatment which they mete out to the colored race of their own country?

Examine the record of lawlessness and lynching in the land of the Fourth of July, orations, in which freedom and equality are boastingly proclaimed in truly spread-eagle style, and it will be found that from January 27th to June the 24th of the present year there were the following cases of lynching:

Negro burned near New Orleans, January 27.
Negro hanged, Wrightsville, Ga., February 8.
Negro hanged, Bluefields, W. Va., March 29.
Negro hanged, Tampa, Fla., March 10.
Two negroes killed in race riot, Laurel, Miss., May 15.
Negro shot to death, Shreveport, La., April 12.
Negro burned, Juplin, Mo., April 15.
Negro hanged, Carthage, Tex., April 25.
Negro hanged, Santa Fe, Ill., April 26.
Two negroes hanged, Hayes' Bluff, Miss., May 4.
White man hanged, Madison, Fla., May 20.
White man hanged, New Castle, Wyoming, May 22.
Negro beaten to death near Pittsburg, Penn., June 1.
Negro hanged, Greenville, Miss., June 4.
Negro burned, Belleville, Ill., June 6.
Negro hanged near Fort Valley Ga., June 8.
Negro hanged, Alexandria, Fla., June 11.
Negro burned near Wilmington, Del., June 22.
Negro hanged at Elk Valley, Tenn., June 24.
Negro hanged in Mississippi swamps, June 24.

In the last case mentioned the negro was lynched for having "seriously wounded" two men five years ago.

This list might be easily increased, for scarcely a week passes but additional cases are recorded in the press of similar brutalities.

The light in which these barbarities are viewed by the people can be better understood when it is known that a man calling himself a Rev., in a sermon, "encouraged the mob to "burn at the stake a negro, George "White, who no doubt is a proud "man because he is in receipt of "hundreds of letters congratulating "him upon his achievement."

Following in the wake of these teachings, is it any wonder that a coroner's jury should find a verdict of the following character:

"Resolved, That George White came to his death between the hours of ten p.m., on June 22, 1903, and four a.m., June 23, 1903, by being burned in a field adjoining the road leading to the Ferris Industrial School by a party or parties unknown to the jury."

Is not such a record sufficient to make one blush for the boasted civilization of the 20th century? Is it any wonder that another Rev. gentleman, colored, should advise "a meeting of negroes at Belleville, Ill., to sell their coats and buy guns to defend themselves if the hanging and burning of negroes is not stopped by the regular authorities."

Is it not likely the Czar's reply will be "look after and punish your own criminals before troubling yourself about mine?" From a Russian standpoint, shooting and burning negroes is no more human than persecuting and murdering Jews.

WATER MELONS

Large, juicy, Southern Water melons 50 cents each.

Or 5 cents a slice. Big, generous slices ready to serve, and kept

ON ICE.

J. ARTHUR MARSH.

DON'T

Go camping out, without a bottle of MOSQUITO-SCAT it's guaranteed to keep Flies, Mosquitoes, etc, away. A 15c bottle will ensure plenty of comfort and rest.

WATERS'

TIMELY TOPICS

Lipton says he expects to win three heats with Shamrock III. and win out by minutes. Well, here's hoping you will, Sir Thomas.

• • •

The Rev. Barr is getting close to the fact that an immigration chief's life in the N.W.T. is not altogether a rosy dream. When he started in the business a shower of eggs was not anticipated.

• • •

When the low circulation sheet of this city loosens its sarcasm on this flourishing journal of truth and honesty, it is time to reflect, also to quake with terror.

• • •

Of course the owner of the down town paper, or his son-in-law, have absolutely nothing to do with or any interest in the Cement Works, nor a desire to purchase our street rails at a lower rate than others offer. Oh dear, no — banish the thought.

• • •

The sole interest of the gentleman who conducts the sheet down town is, of course, the interest of Belleville. No self interest—certainly not—certainly not.

• • •

We cordially subscribe to the suggestion made by The Mail and Empire that the prizes in the cat show at the Dominion Exhibition should go to the felines that refrain from the nightly serenade.

• • •

The constant drops of water wear away the hardest stone,
The constant gnaw of Towser masticates the toughest bone,
The constant caressing lover carries off the blushing maid,
And the constant advertiser is the one who gets the trade.

• • •

If it is the case that arms are being distributed among the Russian Jews it is quite likely that the cowardly persecutors of the Jews will not be in such haste to attack them. Self-preservation is the first law of existence, and the Jews are more than justified in arming themselves.

• • •

A ring around the moon is a certain indication of rain; but a plain, gold ring around a woman's finger is not a sure sign that she reigns.

Editor The Intelligencer: What is platonic friendship and how does it differ from ordinary friendship?

DISCIPLE.

Platonic friendship is a purely spiritual affection, subsisting between the sexes, having regard only for the excellencies of the mind. Plato was an advocate of this sort of relationship, from which fact its name is derived. The only difference between it and ordinary friendship is that the term is applied nowadays to relationship between those of opposite sex, although Plato wrote of friendship between men alone.

GET A STRAW HAT.

Why don't you get a straw hat? You go around with that heavy felt these hot days when you can get such a bargain at the Oak Hall. See the north window and take notice of the 50 cent, 75 cent and $1.00 hats you can buy for 25 cents. Cool yourself off a bit now.

Died at Kingston.

Mr. John Teale, father of Mr. George Teale, of this city, died last night at Kingston. Deceased was over 80 years of age. The remains will be brought to this city for interment.

WOOL CRASH.

People are asking what it is. Wool crash is a sort of misnomer. It is not crash, but simply a light cool worsted in a crash weave. Hold it up to the light—you can see through it. Yet it's as tough and strong almost as thick beaver, and wiry enough to hold its shape. For a cool summer vacation knockabout suit, wool crash takes the lead. Good enough, too, for business. Come, see! Suit prices, $3.75, $5, $6 and $7.50.—Quick & Robertson, Belleville's Best Clothiers.

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

ARITHMETIC TRICKS

Here Is Something to Interest Boys and Girls

A good method of keeping up the interest of boys and girls in mathematics is to explain to them easy arithmetical tricks which they can readily perform for themselves, says The Open Court. A very simple card trick, which appears quite wonderful to the uninitiated, is as follows:

Ten cards from ace to ten are laid in order in a row, beginning at the right and with their faces down. The performer of the trick announces that he will tell the number of the cards which may be moved by one of the company from the right to the left and in addition pick up the card bearing this number. As we wish to explain the trick, we will play with the faces of the cards upward; and the original order (when uncovered) will be this:

10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1

The magician then leaves the room and some one who wishes to test the extraordinary accomplishment of his young friend transfers a few cards in their regular order from the right side to the left. Let four cards be moved, then the new order will be this:

4 3 2 1 10 9 8 7 6 5

You will at once see that the four-spot has become the first card of the row. The first card tells the number of the cards moved. Accordingly the young performer lifts up the first card, and seeing that it is a four-spot declares, "four cards have been moved." The art of the magician consists in giving the impression that he knows the card before he picks it up, and the discovery of the position of the four-spot is only an additional proof of his omniscience. He goes out again, knowing beforehand that whatever number of cards may be moved from the right side to the left the card which bears the number will always be found in the last position of the ten-spot, which at present is the next place after the four cards transposed in the first move, i.e., in the fifth place. If no card is moved, the ten-spot will remain in its place and be picked up as a sign that all ten cards, or none at all, which means the same thing, have been moved. But suppose that three cards have been moved, then the three will be in the fifth place:

7 6 5 4 3 2 1 10 9 8

The place of the card showing the number of cards moved will always be "one plus the total number of moves," and it is a matter of course that only units count.

After the second move the card to be taken in will be 1x4x3—8, and supposing that five cards are now moved the five will appear in the eighth place. Thus we may continue, and the uninitiated will wonder what trick is at the bottom of the performance, which is nothing but a very simple example in addition.

Another trick, which may be called "mind reading," is also the work of simple arithmetic.

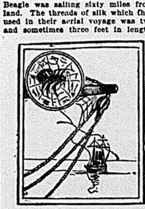
Supppose you request a person to think of any number from 1 to 15 and to point out to you the rows in which his number occurs in the following scheme:

1	3	5	7	9	11	13	15
2	3	6	7	10	11	14	15
4	5	6	7	12	13	14	15
8	9	10	11	12	13	14	15

You will at once know the number which the person has in mind when he tells you in which horizontal rows it occurs, for all you have to do is to add together the first three numbers of these rows. A close inspection will tell you that 3 occurs in the two lines beginning with 1 and 2; the number 5 in the lines beginning with 1 and 4, etc., and 15 in all four lines beginning with 1, 2, 4, and 8.

Spiders Make Balloon Voyages.

The spider is a born aeronaut and makes ascensions that sometimes carry him far out to sea. During his voyage around the world in the ship Beagle the naturalist Darwin gave particular attention to the spider and his airship. This last consisted of a strand of web silk, and the insect—in this case a tiny red gossamer spider one-tenth of an inch long—came aboard in great numbers while the Beagle was sailing sixty miles from land. The threads of silk which they used in their aerial voyage was two and sometimes three feet in length, while they themselves were so light that they were able to voyage about on the heat waves that rose from the water on a warm day.



Companies of several thousand—Male, female and young—would appear in the Beagle's rigging, and immediately upon arriving they would drink thirstily of any water that could be come at. The sharp-eyed Charles Darwin thought that this thirst was caused not so much by the salt ocean air as by their passing through the dry, rarefied upper regions of the atmosphere, showing that they sailed at considerable heights in their voyages.

The output of watches in Switzerland last year was the largest ever recorded. According to statistics just published, the total export amounted to 2,366,426 nickel watches, 3,086,777 silver watches, 800,258 gold watches and 6,769 chronographs and repeaters.

At the Sea Side or the Country is invaluable.

BOVRIL

After Bathing

A cup of Bovril warms and invigorates the entire system.

SPREAD ON BREAD OR TOAST
it makes delicious and nutritious sandwiches.

NOTED CONVICT DEAD.

ROBBED WOMAN IN ROLE OF LAURIER'S PRIVATE SECRETARY.

Kingston, Ont., July 9.—A noted convict in the penitentiary has passed away, in the person of Eaton, alias Stonge, from cancer of the stomach. Eaton passed himself off as Sir Wilfrid Laurier's private secretary, and offered the wife of a prisoner in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary to get her husband out if she paid him the sum of $200. The woman did so, and Stonge was arrested, and got eight years. He is the son of a prominent medical man in Montreal, to whom the body was shipped.

IF YOUR FEET

ITCH.
ACHE.
TIRE.
BURN.
BLISTER.
CHAFE.
SWELL.
SWEAT.
SMART.
Use
FOOT ELM.

Price, 25 cents a box of 18 powders, at druggists or by mail. B. I. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont. Be sure you get Foot Elm.

Military Notes.

The Militia Gazette announces a number of changes in the militia, of which the following are local:

15th Regiment (Argyll Light Infantry)—To be captain, Lieut. J. C. McLeod; to be lieutenant, Second Lieut. D. Barragar; to be second lieutenant, provisionally, F. Bushfield; to be second lieutenants, provisionally, Sergt. A. P. Allen, C. McFee.

49th Regiment (Hastings Rifles)—To be second lieutenant, provisionally, J. S. Carstairs, vice Lewis, retired.

All druggists will refund your money if you are not satisfied after using Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is everywhere admitted to be the most successful remedy in use for bowel complaints and the only one that never fails. It is pleasant, safe and reliable.

In the Justice Shop.

Dog Cases.

A number of citizens were to-day summoned to appear before the Magistrate for not registering their canines. Some had taken out a license since the summonses were issued and a few were fined $1 and costs.

Alleged Theft.

The charge of theft preferred against John Moore, Jos. Fox and Wm. Hamilton, of Bannockburn, was further enlarged to-day. Mr. D. Mumby is the complainant, claiming that he was relieved of $100.

After some evidence had been submitted the case was enlarged until Tuesday next. Mr. Anderson for Crown and Mr. McMahon for the defendants.

Band Concert.

The attendance at the band concert last evening was exceptionally large. This was to a great extent owing to the intense heat and the fact that during the evening there was a refreshing breeze from off the bay. The programme provided by the band gave general satisfaction, and all were glad they heard it, no matter why they went to the park.

A little Sunlight Soap will clean cut glass and other articles until they shine and sparkle. Sunlight Soap will wash other things than clothes. 3B

THE WEATHER.

To-day's Probs—

Moderate to fresh westerly to northerly winds, fine. Saturday, fine and a little cooler.

To-day's Temperature

As Registered by The Intelligencer's Guaranteed Thermometer:

8 a.m.	86
12 m.	90
2 p.m.	91
3 p.m.	95

To benefit from any other outing the Baths and Waters of the MAGI Caledonia Springs must be first taken. Season now open.

You Can't Oversleep

If it takes quite a noise to awaken you in the morning we have Clocks that will furnish the necessary disturbance.

They will not arouse you too soon, neither will they let you sleep too long.

If you set them properly they never fail to do their duty.

They are useful in most homes at odd times. They are indispensable in many homes every working day in the year.

$1.50 buys a GOOD ONE, though we have them cheaper as well as dearer.

Angus McFee.
Jeweler & Optician
310 Front St.

MILLINERY

—AT—

Half Price

All our Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats at HALF PRICE.

A few very choice ones still to choose from.

10 per cent. off Corsets Thursday' Friday and Saturday.

MISS IRWIN
Millinery and Corset Specialist

W. H. JESSOP

"VOCAL TEACHER"

STUDIO "KARN HALL," Montreal

After Monday, 6th JULY, will be in Belleville until 1st SEPTEMBER.

Studio in Belleville "FORRESTERS' HALL," over Mr. S. Burrows Office.

VOICES TRIED FREE.

Further information at Mr. W. B. Riggs' Music Store.

THE INTELLIGENCER is printed and published for The Intelligencer Printing and Publishing House (Limited) by CHARLES JAMES BOWELL, of the City of Belleville, in the County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, at their Office, No. 403 Front Street, Belleville, Ont.

There are nearly 650,000 women dressmakers in the United Kingdom.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

MEDICAL.

JOHN J. FARLEY, M.D., C.M., M.R., C.S., England.

Office and Residence :— Corner of Bridge and George streets :— three streets East of Post Office.

DR. J. F. MATHER

Has removed his office to Pinnacle St., three doors north of Hotel Quinte.
my29-6mw

LEGAL.

WILLS & WRIGHT,

Barristers, Solicitors, Notary Public, &c., Belleville.
Office—2 Campbell Street.

MALCOLM WRIGHT.
J. FRANKLIN WILLS.

Money to Loan at Lowest Rates.

W. C. MIKEL, B. C. L.,
Barrister, &c.

Solicitor for the City of Belleville.
Office—Metropolitan Block, Corner Front and Campbell Streets.

PORTER & CARNEW,

Barristers, Solicitors, Notaries Public, etc.
Offices — Robertson Block, East Front St., Belleville, Ont.
'Phone 87.
E. G. PORTER. WM. CARNEW.

WILLIAM N. PONTON,

Barrister-at-law, Solicitor, Notary Public, Conveyancer. Office over Express and Telegraph Office, Bridge Street, Belleville.
Money to Loan :— Private Funds. Solicitor Sun and Hastings Savings and Loan Company of Ontario.

FRANCIS S. WALLBRIDGE,
Successor to Hon. Lewis Wallbridge, Q.C.

Barrister, Solicitor, Conveyancer, Etc. Office, McAnnany Building, corner Front and Bridge Sts., Belleville, Ont. Private and Company money to loan at 6 per cent., on easy terms upon good land security.
Charges moderate.

INSURANCE.

Fire Insurance.

Guardian . . .	Est'd 1821
The North America,	Est'd 1792
Quebec, . . .	Est'd 1818

City, Town and Village Property insure at lowest rates.

R. W. ADAMS. Agent.
Office opposite Post Office.

PERSONS desiring Life Insurance cannot do better than consult

W. J. THOMSON,

who is the Agent for the following well-known and old established Assurance Companies:

ROYAL. ALLIANCE.
OCEAN ACCIDENT STANDARD LIFE
Office at Rathbun Co., Bridge St ocs-d&w

FIRE, LIFE & ACCIDENT INSURANCE

At Lowest Rates The Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Perth Mutual on farm and city property. Also mone to loan at 4½ per cent. upwards.
JAMES A. CHISHOLM,
Office Ashley Block, - Front st., Belleville.

THOS. STEWART,
Insurance and Commission Agent.

Agent for the Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Scottish Union National Ins. Co.
BRIDGE ST.

Money Saved is Money Earned

can earn you money by saving it for you in your Fire Insurance.
The Anglo-American Fire Ins. Co
The Merchants Fire Ins. Co.
The Equity Fire Ins. Co.
Are all strong Canadian stock companies and insure Farm and City Property at lower rate than other stock companies Call and see me before placing your fire insurance.
Office—Bridge St., same entrance Quinte Laundry, Belleville.
H. FREEMAN KET [illegible]

Fire, Life & Plate Glass Insurance.

Liverpool & London & Globe of England.
Waterloo Mutual, of Waterloo, Ont,
Lloyd's Plate Glass,
Home Life Association, Toronto,
North British & Mercantile,
Farm and City Property insured in First-class Reliable Companies and at lowest current rates. Losses promptly settled. Land valuation, and transact general Real Estate business and sale or purchase and renting of property. Appraiser for the Hastings Loan & Investment Society. Money to Loan.
W. P. HUDSON, Office above Rathbun's office, cor. Bridge and Pinnacle Sts., opposite Postoffice and Hotel Quinte, Belleville,
'Phone 168.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A. G. NORTHROP,

Issuer of Marriage Licenses, Shire Hall, Belleville, Ont.

CHAUNCEY ASHLEY,

Issuer of Marriage Licenses.
Private Office, Bridge St., Belleville, opposite the Post Office.
Residence, first house east of W. W. Chown's Mfg. Co., Station St.
'Appointments made.

REMOVAL.

Dr. Clarke has removed to the offices formerly occupied by the late Dr. Ward, over Burrows', and opposite Scantlebury's Book Store.
a27dtf

FAST MAIL SERVICE

Bay of Quinte Route
TO
ROCHESTER N.Y.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian"

Taking Effect 27th June.

GOING DAILY (EXCEPT MONDAY)
Lv. Belleville .... 11.38 p. m.
Ar. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 6.43 a. m
RETURNING DAILY (Except Sunday)
Lv. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 8.30 p. m.
Ar. Belleville .... 3.25 a. m.
Baggage checked to all points. Connection with all railways.

$1.00 THOUSAND ISLANDS $1.00
AND RETURN.

Commencing 28th June. Steamer leaves Belleville at 3.25 a.m. daily except Monday for 1000 Islands, calling at Bay of Quinte ports, Kingston, Alexandria Bay and Gananoque. Passing through American and Canadian channels.
Right reserved to change time with or without notice.
Full information from
THE RATHBUN CO., } Agents.
U. E. THOMPSON, }
E. E. HORSEY, G. P. & F. Agent, Kingston.

Str. "Alexandria"

Montreal, Rochester & Quebec Transit Co'y.

Popular Quebec Excursions NOW ON.

Belleville to Quebec and return .. $18 00
Belleville to Montreal and return $12.00
(including meals and berth)
Steamer runs all rapids.
For Rochester, Olcott Beach, Niagara Falls and Buffalo every Saturday at 11 a.m.
Particulars from
A. W. HEPBURN, General Manager, Picton, Ont.
THE RATHBUN CO. Agents, Belleville.

The Deseronto Navigation Co

TIME TABLE
Taking effect April 13, 1903,
Belleville, Trenton, Picton & Napanee

Str. "ELLA ROSS"

Leaves Belleville for Trenton at 10 a. m., daily, Sundays Excepted, returning leaves Trenton at 1 p. m., leaving Belleville at 3 p.m. for Deseronto, Napanee and Picton.

Quick and Superior Service to NEW YORK CITY

Steamers RESOLUTE and RELIANCE will leave Deseronto for Oswego after arrival of Str. Ella Ross connecting at Oswego with the New York, Ontario Western Ry.
Fare to New York, Single, $8.40
Return, $13.25
For further particulars apply to THE RATHBUN CO., Local Agents
J. F. CHAPMAN, Asst. Gen. Frt. Pass. Agt., Deseronto
A. [illegible] d Manager Deseronto.

Str. "Niagara"

Monday 13th July—True Blues to Picton.
Tuesday, 14th July — St. Andrew's Church Sunday School to Twelve O'Clock Point.
Wednesday, 15th July—Baptist Sunday School to Twelve O'Clock Point.
Saturday 18th July—First Saturday Afternoon Excursion to Picton. Fare 35c. Leaves wharf at 2.30 p.m. sharp.
THOMAS STEWART, Manager,
45 Bridge St., Belleville.

Goods We Have at Right Prices

—Hammocks.
—Fishing Tackle.
—Tennis Goods.
—Golf Goods.
—Lacrosse Goods.
—Base Ball Goods.
—Screen Doors and Windows.
—Fruit Jars.
—Fruit Jar Rubbers.
—Wall Paper.
—Crystal Glass Vases.
—Glass Ware.
—Dinner Sets.
—Toilet Sets.
—Ladies' Hose.
—Ladies' Vests.
Everything in smallwares.

AT THE BEE HIVE
Chas. N. Sulman

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

Choose The Best

It is only the framing of a picture you may as well have the best workmanship as well as the largest selection of mouldings—when it don't cost you any more, probably less.

If we do not give you perfect workmanship—you may demand of us non-payment—framing superior to ours is impossible—we would not do all of the framing for Albert College Art Students if our work were not fitting, and proper.

Another lot of new mouldings just arrived, it would surprise you to see the repeated shipments of mouldings we receive.

You know what to expect of us in WALL PAPERS, and now with our special prices it is amazing what you can get for a small amount of money.

A beautiful new line of American Wall Papers arriving almost all the time.

Better not forget us for PAINTING. Whether your house is to paint outside or inside, whether a fence or a barn, we will paint it at reasonable prices but our workmen are not of the Barn Painting Kind. None but expert workmen find employment with us, men who will please you in both quality and quantity and we have no frills on our prices.

We purpose doing our paper hanging and decorating and painting at actual cost in connection with our Wall Paper department.

If You Live in the Country.

In Stirling, Tweed, Madoc, Trenton, Napanee, Deseronto or within a radius of 50 miles—we will send you workmen and guarantee you every satisfaction.

Our Paints

If you want prepared paints we have them in all colors.

Also barn paint at $1.00 per gallon, but better than that we will mix you the best lead and oil paint, our own mixing and our own materials at the actual cost of the less valuable ready-mixed materials.

Any quantity you want any color or shade, in a moments notice and at remarkably low prices — our customers are many in the paint line.

C. B. Scantlebury

Belleville's Decorator.

Wall Paper Wholesale and Retail.

For the Revelsworth Millions,

—or—

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fail by the Man She Loves.

tervening space, and, on reaching the door of communication between the two rooms, she pushed it a little farther open and looked in.

At first she could barely distinguish any object, owing to the blind being drawn half-way down over the window. Growing accustomed to the semi-obscurity, she perceived that Victor was lying fully dressed but for his coat upon the large old-fashioned "four-poster" bed, tossing every now and then restlessly from side to side. On a table close at hand, touching the curtains of faded crimson red which hung round the bed, stood a glass jug of the American cooling drink with which Francesca was always so obligingly ready to supply her cousins and the other members of the household, and floating in it were little lumps of ice.

The window was open, and the blind blowing to and fro, pleasantly cooled the atmosphere of the room. A large framed portrait of Francesca, in evening dress, smiled down upon the restless form on the bed from the opposite wall, and immediately beneath it a bouquet of fresh roses was placed in a glass bowl, as though it were a votive offering. The room was perfectly tidy and cool, and, as Victor appeared to be asleep, Betty was about softly to withdraw her head, when a faint rustling, similar to that ghostly sound she herself had so often heard in the corridors at night, attracted her attention to that ue of the bed upon which the table with the jug of iced lemonade was standing.

After a few seconds' pause, there came a slight creaking sound. Betty listened with strained attention. The apartment on the other side was, as she knew well, the so-called haunted room, into which she had ventured but once during her five years residence in Revelsworth House. This room was always kept locked, and it seemed impossible that any sound except the possible scurrying of rats and mice could proceed from there; yet the conviction gathered strength with Betty every moment that some one was moving on the other side of the paper panelling, which, as she knew, divided the rooms.

She held her breath, watching and listening she knew not for what. And, as she watched, standing still and almost breathless in the darkened room, a feeling of sick terror began to oppress her, a certainty that she was about to witness for the second time some horrid sight which through all her life she was never destined to forget. Black upon her memory with startling vividness there rushed the image of that ghostly form which had so terrified her on the night before Mrs. Revelsworth's death—the fantastic figure in faded yellow brocade, with the dead face mocking the pearl-decked golden hair.

She had really beheld it—she knew that. It had been no creation of a diseased brain, but an actual malevolent presence, sent as it would seem, from another world as a forewarning of death.

Into the same room where Victor lay, half awake and half asleep, weakened and wasted by fever, they had brought the drowned body of Mistress Catherine Penfold, whose picture still hung in the adjoining haunted room, which had at one time formed a portion of the same apartment. Could it be possible, Betty asked herself as she stood, trembling in every limb, with every nerve strained to the utmost tension, that the spirit of the dead girl was indeed hovering near, exercising a malignant influence upon the living dwellers in old Penfold House, where she herself had loved and sinned and suffered so many years ago?

CHAPTER XXIII.

The rustling sounds began again, and a stealthy catlike footfall reached the listener's ears. Suddenly her heart leaped within her, and her eyes, distorted with horror, became fixed upon a point in the wall behind Victor's bed and immediately above the table. Out of the heavy shadow cast by the curtain a ghostly hand seemed to resolve itself, a small clenched hand, the hand of a woman, coming apparently out of the wooden partition wall, and poised for a few seconds motionless over the table.

Betty could hear the beating of her heart, and her forehead was damp with terror; but she moved not a hair's-breadth, and uttered no sound. The hand in the wall grasped a phial, the fingers curved forward, and drop by drop its contents fell with a little splash down into the jug below. Then, noiselessly and mysteriously as it had appeared, the hand was withdrawn, and to all appearance the partition wall resumed its normal unbroken surface.

Still Betty stood in the doorway as if rooted to the ground. During those few terrible seconds a thought had flashed into her mind—a thought so monstrous and appalling that its mere inception seemed to paralyse her limbs.

Was it credible that a sinister and deadly intent lay behind these seemingly supernatural apparitions? The mere idea turned her sick and faint. She put her hand to her head and staggered a step forward into the room, and the movement disturbed Victor.

With a long sigh he sat up, and, still with half-closed eyes, he stretched out his hands and sought the cooling drink by his bedside. Before he could raise the glass to his lips, Betty had sprung forward and dashed it out of his hands. Then, acting upon an uncontrollable impulse, she seized the jug and flung its contents out of the open window.

"Mon Dieu, Betty, but it is you! Why have you come back? I thought you were all upon the river. And why in the name of humanity have you thrown my lemonade out of the window? I am parched with thirst, and it is the only thing that I can drink."

Betty stood quite still with the jug in her hand, looking at him. His ghastly pallor, hollow eyes, and worn, almost moribund appearance, stirred a deep pity within her. Certainly he was not in a fit state to receive any strange and violent shock, scarcely was he even likely to believe so strange a tale as hers. And beyond all these considerations Betty felt sure that any communication she might make to him would be heard by others, that the neighborhood of this room was haunted, whether by the living or dead she could not tell, and that the very air was full of a baleful influence.

"I threw your lemonade away because it is really very bad for you," she said at length, striving to keep the fear she felt out of her voice. "Don't you remember what Doctor Vernon was saying only yesterday about the microbes in the unfiltered water from which ice is made? I came back from the regatta only to see how you were; and, if you will come down with me, I will make you some tea in my little den.' Or would you rather that I brought it up to you?"

"I will come down," he said, following her out of the room while he slipped his arms into his coat. "It always does me good to watch you, Betty. You remind me so tenderly of the little mother, whom I shall see to-morrow, thank Heaven!"

She took him down with her to her little tea-room, she lit the spirit-lamp, and put on the kettle and set out the cups. Then, excusing herself she left him with a book while she hurried up again to the second floor.

Betty was not naturally brave, and she was trembling like a leaf when she tried the handle of the haunted room. It was locked, and the key was withdrawn; but, remembering that the key of her own bed-room fitted the lock Betty ran down-stairs to the floor below in search of it, certain that she would find it, as she invariably locked the door of her own room every night.

The key was gone!

For a few moments she stood by the door, lost in thought. Then, entering and taking a box of matches and a candle from her dressing-table, she retraced her steps to the second floor, and, going straight to the spot in the wall at which the ghostly hand had appeared, she drew up the blind, lit the candel, and proceeded closely to examine the place, passing her hand carefully over the wall-paper and gently pushing the panelling with her fingers.

All the while an intense nervous dread dominated her—a dread lest some ice-cold hand should suddenly clutch at her, or lest through some unsuspecting opening she should meet the stare of Mistress Penfold's sightless eyes.

After trying unsuccessfully for a time to unravel the mystery of the hand, and when about to leave the room, Betty's eyes fell upon a broken line in the wall-paper a little below the spot she had been examining. Following this up eagerly with fingers trembling with excitement, Betty discovered it reached the level of the door, and that it extended fully three feet until that a corresponding broken lint of paper, running in a parallel direction at the distance of one foot, seemed to indicate that a portion of the papered panelling which divided Victor's bedroom from the haunted room was loose and could be removed at will.

Nerved to fresh efforts by this startling discovery, Betty suddenly placed both her hands against the panel and pushed it with all her might. For one moment it seemed to her that it was yielding under her hands, but the next that the weight of some heavy body was keeping the panel upright from the other side of the partition.

White and trembling, she withdrew from the spot. Upon one point she was resolved. No one should enter those rooms again until she had seen Dudley, and until he, knowing what she knew, could decide what action it were best to take. Through all her sensitiveness and timidity Betty was shrewd and sensible enough to realize that ghosts do not require to tamper with walls in order to effect an entrance into any room they may desire to favor with their presence, and, strengthened by this conviction, she locked the door leading to the young men's rooms and slipped the key into her pocket, resolved upon placing it in Dudley's hands with as little delay as possible.

How to dispose of Victor and how to keep him out of his room without arousing his suspicions was her next care; but here Victor himself solved the difficulty. The water in the brass kettle had boiled, and he had made the tea in her absence, and was now walking restlessly up and down the room awaiting her coming.

"Dear little Betty," he exclaimed, as she entered the room, "I have been thinking how kind it was of you to leave your fete and your good Heremon, who loves you, just to see if I was well! But I am almost well dear. There has been nothing at any time the matter with me but a little what you call malaria from living in this Thames valley; and then I have been so much —ah, so much—in love! You do not know how miserable it makes a man to be very much in love. But I shall be miserable no longer."

"Are you going to forget Francesca, then?"

"Forget her? Not in my life! But a great, great happiness is coming to me, Betty—so great and so near that I could let my darling go away to-day in the punt with Dudley without feeling one little bit jealous. Tell me, Betty—how did she look? Did every one stare at her?"

"She looked lovely!" Betty answered, with some reluctance. "When I last saw her, she was lying on the yellow cushions she bought for the punt, dressed and in black serge, as you know, and wearing a knot of crimson roses at her waistbelt. She had taken off her hat and was holding a bright Japanese sunshade over her head, and the sunshine coming through it cast a pink glow over her. There were heaps of pretty girls in the boats; but the men seemed to look at no one but Francesca."

"Ah, I do not wonder! How they would envy a man who would shortly be her husband—would they not, Betty?"

"I suppose so. All except one man, who was with a noisy party on a steam-launch—a very handsome man with a fair boyish face. I think he was scarcely sober, for, when, in the middle of laughing and talking, as the launch was passing close to Mr. O'Meara's boat, some one pointed out Francesca to him, he threw his glass of champagne into the river and cried loudly that the sight of her made him sick, and other wild and dreadful things."

"The tipsy ruffian! Did she hear?"

"Yes, but she only laughed; and the men round about managed to quiet him."

"It is dreadful that she should be exposed to such insults! I should have been with her! Oh, I know all about the man! Francesca has no secrets from me. Look, Betty—it is now a quarter-past six o'clock. That tea has done me good, and what you have told me has excited me. The heat of the day has passed; I may now safely go out. I ought not to have let Francesca go with Dudley without me—I who am so soon to be her husband!"

"Her husband!"

"But—yes—hush! It is a secret; but in two days it will be a secret no longer. My mother will know—every one will know. But you must never tell her that I broke my word and confided in you. Promise me that, Betty!"

"I promise."

"And now we will take a boat, you and I ought to be with her—I cannot keep away from her any longer. This is my last evening in England, and I want to see her and think of her, and remember her as you describe—lying like a Cleopatra on her silk cushions, with roses at her waist."

"But, Victor, it will be almost night before we get to Walton, and in the crowd of boats we may very likely miss them. Besides, you are not strong enough."

"I am strong enough to find Francesca," he said impatiently; and it seemed to Betty that there was the delirium of fever in his bright eyes and flushed cheeks. "Allons, Betty—do you want to go with me? And how, then, did you come back from the regatta?"

"I made Mr. O'Meara row me. Oh—and I quite forgot! I promised, as soon as I found out how you were, to run across and have a cup of tea with his mother and him before going back to the boat."

"Then go now at once; and ask O'Meara if you may take me also. Dear Betty, I insist! I must see Francesca, if I have to swim all the way! And I am a champion swimmer, do you know! I have taken prizes on the Seine for swimming and, parole d'honneur, if you do not take me to her directly, I will find her somehow by myself!"

Thus adjured, Betty unwillingly consented, and, putting on her hat, hurried across the Green in the direction of Mrs. O'Meara's house. Hardly had the door closed upon her when Mrs. Harold Revelsworth's bell, a rope from which communicated with her invalid-chair, rang sharply, and Joseph Wellion, who invariably answered Mrs. Revelsworth's summonses, ran up to her room, whence he returned in a few moments with a tiny parcel wrapped in paper, and a note addressed to "Mr. Victor Revelsworth" in Francesca's handwriting.

The boy was almost as pale as Victor himself when he delivered these things into the latter's hands, and his manner was strangely embarrassed as he gave Mrs. Harrold's message.

"Mrs. Harold says, sir, that Miss Revelsworth left this letter and this little parcel for you, and said as you was to have them during the afternoon to cheer you."

"Did she say that? How kind—how good of her! Thank you, my little Joseph! See—here is a half-a-crown, all bright, new silver, to bring you luck! That shall be yours for bringing me good news."

The lad flushed crimson as he took the money, and for a moment he hesitated by the door, as though he longed yet feared to say more. But Victor, who wanted to be alone with his precious letter, laughingly hurried him off; and Joseph stole quietly away in the direction of his own room, which was situated on the ground-floor next to that of his father. Here he flung Victor's half-crown into a corner of the room, as though afraid to touch it; and, locking the door, threw himself face downwards upon the bed and buried his head in the pillows.

"It isn't my fault—it isn't my fault!" he whispered, as though in answer to some accusing voice. "And I don't know anything for certain; it's only guessing. I shall stop here locked in, and let 'em all forget me if anything happens. But she isn't a woman—she's a devil!"

CHAPTER XXIV.

When Betty returned in Heremon's company to Revelsworth House in search of Victor, the latter was not to be found.

Up-stairs and down-stairs Betty ran to look for him, and she even went to the length of tapping at Mrs. Harold's door and asking through the key-hole whether Victor had been there. Receiving a reply in the negative in the Italian woman's thin sweet voice, Betty went thoughtfully down stairs again. Ever since the reading of that letter from the late Mrs. Revelsworth's correspondent in Rome, Betty had avoid visiting the invalid unless absolutely forced by courtesy to do so, and then made her visits as brief as possible. With the knowledge she possessed that this woman, whoever she was, was only masquerading as Francesca's mother, a strong distrust of the old Italian's carneying ways and flattering speeches had grown up in Betty's mind, and a feeling of repulsion stole over her whenever "Mrs. Harold," as she was called, addressed a remark to her, or fixed upon her the piercing gaze of her keen black eyes.

She did not therefore attempt to enter Mrs. Harold's room, but went slowly down-stairs, lost in perplexing thought.

"I hope—I do hope that Victor isn't in there with that dreadful old woman!" she said to herself. "But I never can believe one word that either she or Francesca says."

(To be continued.)

AT DEATH'S DOOR.—DYSPEPSIA CONQUERED.—A GREAT MEDICAL TRIUMPH.—Gentlemen,—My medical adviser and others told me I could not possibly live when I commenced to use Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery for Dyspepsia. My case was one of the worst of its kind. For three years I could not eat meat and my weight decreased from 219 to 119 lbs. All the food I took for thirteen months previous to taking the Vegetable Discovery consisted of milk. I am now entirely cured and have regained my usual weight, can eat anything with a keen relish and feel like a new man. I have sold over thirty dozen Vegetable Discovery since it cured me, as I am well-known and people in this section know how low I was, and thought I could not possibly be cured. They are eager to try this grand medicine. It certainly saved my life as I never expected to recover when first I commenced using it. I am not exaggerating anything, but feel glad to be able to contribute this testimonial and trust it may be the means of convincing others of its merit as a certain cure for Dyspepsia.

Signed, JEAN VALCOURT,
Wotton, P.Q. General Merchant

Much talk, many lies.

FOR INFLAMMATION OF THE EYES.—Among the many good qualities which Parmelee's Vegetable Pills possess, besides regulating the digestive organs, is their efficacy in reducing inflammation of the eyes. It has called forth many letters of recommendation from those who were afflicted with this complaint and found a cure in the pills. They affect the nerve centres and the blood in a surprisingly active way, and the result is almost immediately seen.

Many a man's self-conceit is due to his ignorance.

If you have a cough or cold do not neglect it; many without a trace of that hereditary disease have drifted into a consumptive's grave by neglecting what was only a slight cold. Had they used Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup before it was too late, their lives would have been saved. Mr. A. W. Levy, Mitchell, writes; "I think Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup the best preparation on the market for coughs and severe colds. About six years ago I caught a severe cold which settled on my lungs, and for three months I had a cough. I had a physician attending me, but gradually grew worse until I was on the verge of Consumption, and had given up hopes of being cured, when I was induced to try Bickle's Syrup. Before I had taken one bottle I found myself greatly relieved, and by the time I had finished the second bottle I was completely cured. I always recommend it for severe colds and consumption."

When one gets hopping mad his reason goes on a crutch.

No one knows better than those who have used Carter's Little Liver Pills what relief they have given when taken for dyspepsia, dizziness, pain in the side, constipation, and disordered stomach.

The average watch represents but 12 hours of human labor.

Do not despair of curing your sick headache when you can so easily obtain Carter's Little Liver Pills. They will effect a prompt and permanent cure. Their action is mild and na-

Coral is a talisman against thunder and evils by flood and field.

THEY DROVE PIMPLES AWAY.—A face covered with pimples is unsightly. It tells of internal irregularities which should long since have been corrected. The liver and the kidneys are not performing their functions in the healthy way they should, and these pimples are to let you know that the blood protests. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will drive them all away, and will leave the skin clear and clean. Try them, and there will be another witness to their excellence.

The wildcat's teeth are close to its purr.

HAD LA GRIPPE.—Mr. A. Nickerson, farmer, Dutton, writes; "Last winter I had La Grippe and it left me with a severe pain in the small of my back and hip that used to catch me whenever I tried to climb a fence. This lasted for about two months, when I bought a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil and used it both internally and externally, morning and evening, for three days, at the expiration of which time I was completely cured."

A long portage makes a heavy canoe.

Their gentle action and good effect on the system really make them a perfect little pill. They please those who use them. Carter's Little Liver Pills may well be termed 'Perfection.'

It takes money to voice the opinion of a lawyer.

Very many persons die annually from cholera and kindred summer complaints, who might have been saved if proper remedies had been used. If attacked do not delay in getting a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, the medicine that never fails to effect a cure. Those who have used it say it acts promptly, and thoroughly, subdues the pain and disease.

Life has no blessing like a prudent friend.

Use the safe, pleasant, and effectual worm killer, Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator; nothing equals it. Procure a bottle and take it home.

The best way to get even is to forget.

Have you tried Holloway's Corn Cure? It has no equal for removing these troublesome excrescences, as many have testified who have tried

Bank of Montreal

ESTABLISHED 1817.
Capital and Rest, All Paid Up.
$23,000,000
(Twenty-three Millions)

Savings Bank Department

Interest on sums of $1.00 and upwards allowed at current rates.

A. G. PARKER,
Manager Belleville Branch

TWO BIG SALES

Summer Clothing AND Straw Hats

We are having a great clearing up of summer goods these warm days. In addition to our 20 per cent. discount sale on summer clothing, we are offering 25 to 50 doz. Men's and Boys' Straw Hats, worth 50c cts, 75c and $1.00. for only 25c ea.

This is almost a present for the man who has any need for a Straw Hat. They are selling very fast, come quick if you want one.

See Them In Our North Window.

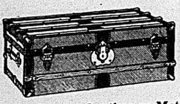
OAK HALL

Sole Agents for Sanford's Celebrated Clothing.

Holiday seekers will find full lines of

Trunks and Travelling Bags

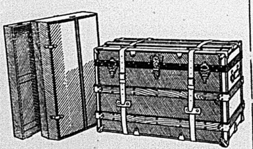
At The J. J. Haines Shoe Houses.



Steamer Trunks
Round and Flat Top Trunks

Canvas, Leather or Metal Covered Trunks.

Bags, Suit Cases, TELESCOPE VALISES



Fibre Cases, Club Bags, Shawl Straps, etc

TEMPTING Shoe Bargains on our Bargain Tables for old or young.

The J. J. Haines SHOE HOUSES at Belleville, Napanee and Trenton

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE
FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

Killed by the Heat.

Sarnia, July 10.—David Morton, who had been employed on the farm of Patrick Boyle, Sarnia Township, for a few days past, was overcome by the heat while working in the fields yesterday afternoon, and died in a few minutes. Deceased was an unmarried man, forty years of age.

Hon. Lt.-Col. Alex. Clerk Dead.

Montreal, July 10. — Alexander Clerk passed away at his late residence, No. 2 Beaver Hall square, yesterday afternoon, after a brief illness, aged 88 years. Mr. Clerk fought side by side with Col. Sir William Meredith in the rebellion of 1837-38, being in action at the storming of the Church at Ste. Eustache and other engagements. He retired with the rank of hon. lieutenant-colonel. He was one of those who helped to run down Sir George Cartier when the Government put a price on his head.

If He Lives He'll Be Blind.

Ottawa, July 10.—Rene Schings, a young French-Canadian, lies in the Water street Hospital, dying from the effects of a revolver shot in the head. He placed the revolver close to his head and fired. He was in love with a young lady named Albertina Fiset, whose parents forbade his suit. In desperation he took liquor and attempted to blow his brains out. The bullet entered by the right ear and came out at the left eye. Should he recover he will be totally blind.

Weighing a Field of Turnips.

The English farmer makes use of mathematics in his work, says a London paper. Suppose, for example, that he wishes to know the weight of his turnip crop while it is still in the ground, which is sometimes a matter of importance, a simple calculation will give him the information.

It is the custom in England to plant turnips in ridges twenty-eight inches apart; this makes ninety ridges to the acre. The farmer selects a row where the crop seems about the average and pulls up all the turnips in a measured yard of the row and weighs them.

Assuming that they weigh ten pounds, a simple calculation shows that the crop averages a little more than twenty-eight tons to the acre. If they weigh eleven pounds, the average will be about thirty-one tons to the acre.

Piles To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles, the manufacturers have guaranteed it. See testimonials in the daily press and ask your neighbors what they think of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. 60c a box, at all dealers or EDMANSON, BATES & Co., Toronto.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

A man is generally at his heaviest in his fortieth year.

Daily Intelligencer.

TIMELY TOPICS.

That Montana snow storm doesn't seem to be working this way.

• • •

The cigarette fiend who tried to commit suicide by inhaling smoke might have succeeded if he'd only been content to continue the slow method.

• • •

It's also the season when it's up to the mountain climber to fall over a precipice, lodge half way down and get himself rescued and advertised.

• • •

"The devil lurks in the soda water fountain and iced tea is simply suicide." To the contrary, neither the much-abused soda nor the refreshing and nerve-stringing iced tea is lethal if used with a little common sense mixed in.

• • •

There is a pathetic significance in the Pope's last poem, whose subject is the writer's approaching death. Pope Leo has long been known as having the scholarly accomplishment of writing polished Latin verse, and this gift has been one of his sources of pleasure almost to these final days.

• • •

The murderous riots in the States are positive proofs of the fearful consequences of winking at lawlessness in its feeble beginnings.—Toronto Globe.

• • •

A young man who was sitting in a hammock with a Waterloo girl at 12.45 a.m. was banged on the head with a club in the hands of a stranger who had been crouching near. This must have been worse, even, than hearing the girl yawn.

• • •

Too bad that so many of the June weddings had to run over into July.

• • •

There were eighteen deaths in the United States during June that might really be termed premature. They were distributed in eight states and in each case the deceased was a negro. Lynched.

• • •

One southern sheriff has displayed exceptional devotion to duty by being shot down, rather than yield to the demands of a prisoner-seeking mob.

• • •

Now is the time when the tired-out teacher is figuring on the comparative advantages of taking an absolute rest or of pursuing favorite studies in vacation.

• • •

A London doctor used hypnotism instead of an anesthetic in cutting off a leg recently. Hypnotism has frequently been used to lessen the shock of leg pulling, but never before has it been employed in leg cutting, observes an exchange.

• • •

A man charged with having forged postal orders at Cape Nome has been arrested in Africa, after a chase of 17,000 miles. What a small place the world is after all. The danger that the criminal will cheat justice lies in inadequate legal procedure at home—not in any fear that he will remain concealed abroad.

• • •

According to the Boston Globe, the language of love is not written on the typewriter. Then all these newspaper stories have been fakes, and the wife of the business man may disperse her fears.

JUST A COLD IN THE HEAD! But if followed by another cold, or some extra exposure is liable to result in nasal catarrh. Unless a radical cure is obtained the throat, bronchial tubes and finally the lungs become affected. Nothing cures colds so quickly and pleasantly as Catarrhozone. The inspector of Mines for Nova Scotia, Mr. Neville, says, "Catarrhozone is the best remedy I have ever used. It cured me of catarrh of the head and throat, and I am pleased to recommend such a satisfactory remedy." Catarrhozone is a safeguard against colds, coughs and catarrh. It can be used while at work, in the church, theatre or street cars. Simply inhale Catarrhozone and it cures. Price $1. Small size 25 cents. Druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Blunderbuss.

In using the word "blunderbuss" we unconsciously imply a sense of disparagement for the shooting powers of our forefathers contracted with the precision of the modern rifle. The word itself has, however, a terrible enough meaning and disdains all connection with "blunder." "Blunderbuss," in fact, as we have it, is a strange corruption—perhaps not altogether untinged with the sense and sound of "blunder"—of the old Dutch word "donderbuss," which can be literally translated into the English "thunder box" or "thunder barrel."

Curious Bits of News.

The number of retail liquor dealers in the United States at the close of last year was 206,000. The total vote of the Prohibition party in the election of the same year was 209,000.

In the bottom of a strawberry-box opened at Hutchinson, Kan., the other day, the following note was found written on the smooth wood: "I am Cora Marsh, aged sixteen, of Logan, Mo. Never been kissed."

A man in Ray County, Mo., became convinced recently that he had incipient consumption. Every time he drew a full breath he heard a crackling sound. A doctor discovered that the crackling sound was made by a small buckle on his suspender.

A curious old custom was recently revived at Great Oakley, England, where parish lands were let by "pin in candle." The local clergyman presided. A pin is inserted in a burning candle, and so long as it remains in its tallow resting-place bids are taken. The last bidder before the pin drops is declared the tenant for the year.

A Paris schoolmaster has petitioned the French Chamber against kings still reigning on French playing cards. He suggests kings should be replaced by pictures of Thiers, MacMahon, Grevy, and Carnot; and queens by equally prominent women Republicans. The Parliamentary Commission sitting on the petition has replied that the change is impossible, since it would ruin quite a number of playing-card factories.

What is probably the most extraordinary plant ever discovered has now been found by E. A. Suverkrop, of Philadelphia, who, during trips to South America, has for some years been contributing to the collection of his friend, Professor N. E. Brown, of the Herbarium, Kew Gardens, London. The amazing plant which Mr. Suverkrop has now found is an orchid that takes a drink whenever it feels thirsty by letting down a tube into the water, the tube, when not in use, being coiled up on top of the plant.

Baltimore, Md., had a bulldog until recently, that made a practice of milking cows in the fields. Just how the dog formed the habit is not known, but it is thought he acquired it by following the example of calves. He had often been seen with the many cows in pasture about Mount Washington across a cow's back while she was lying down. His appetite for milk grew so strong that he was not satisfied with part of the supply, but wanted it all, and attacked a dairymaid who went into her barnyard to milk. He was despatched by a policeman with a revolver.

The capital invested in electrical enterprises in the United States is estimated by "American Trade" at four billion dollars. We have the same authority for the assertion that those industries employ more than half a million persons. Almost half of the aggregate capital is represented by the electric railways, which, it would be safe to assume, employ a majority of the half-million persons. There were dismal predictions current ten or fifteen years ago of things that would befall certain classes of labor when electric cars came in; but the abolishment of the horse-car has probably thrown no one out of work—except the horse.

Coats of mail are now being manufactured from papier-mache that cannot be distinguished from real antique armor. According to the wishes of the customer, the armor can be turned out bright steel, silver and gold inlay, hammered brass, rusty iron or malachite. As described by the New York "Evening Post," the new goods are calculated to deceive the best critics, and to give all the satisfaction of the genuine coat of mail. They are warranted not to break easily or to cut any unfortunate guest upon whom they may happen to fall. All descriptions of armor can be had. The new invention has aroused the anger of the dealers in antique armor, who declare that it is intended to ruin their trade.

A well-known English firm of tobacconists are giving away in their packets of cigarettes a small map of the Klondike district. It is colored red, and the words "British Territory" are printed upon it in large letters. On the back is found the following little history of the gold fields: "There is no doubt that the Klondike district is the richest gold field yet discovered. It comprises some 192,000 square miles, mostly in British territory, and although mining has been going on steadily for the past ten years, it was only in August, 1896, that the extraordinary richness of the diggings was discovered." We have been accustomed to portraits of fat women and popular heroes for so long that the novelty is as pleasant as it is instructive.

Where He Failed.

The young man drew himself up to his full height.

"I have," he cried, "an unsullied character, an ardent heart, a versatile mind and strenuous biceps."

The young girl yawned and seemed interested. He was quick to push his advantage.

"I am the possessor of a town and country house, a yacht, a stable of thoroughbreds and a box at the opera."

She hesitated, and a slight flush betrayed that she was listening.

"I have got," he continued with a certain fierceness, "thirty servants, forty pairs of trousers, fifty ancestors, three automobiles, six prize bull pups and an army commission."

Ah! she had found her tongue at last.

"And how many golf medals?" she lisped.

The young man shuddered.

He felt that he had lost. He had played nervily and high, but she was above his limit.—"Waverley Magazine."

Mrs. Fitz-Caudle—Ah, me! There was a time when you always called me "Daisy;" now it's "Mrs. Fitz-Caudle," as if I were the merest stranger to you. Fitz-Caudle—Found out my mistake, my dear. Daisies shut up at night. You don't.—"Pick-Me-Up."

For pure confusion of thought the following brief essay by a board school child of twelve on the "human body" would be hard to beat:

"The human body is divided into three parts—the head, the chest and the tummick.

"The head contains the eyes, ears, nose, mouth and brains, if any.

"The chest contains the heart, lungs and part of the liver.

"The tummick is entirely devoted to the vowels, of which there are five, a, e, i, o, u, and sometimes y and z."—St. James' Gazette.

Everybody knows how hard David Belasco works, and how incessantly he keeps at it. The other day a friend was talking to him about it.

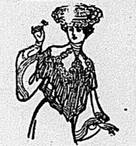
"You work too hard," said the good Samaritan. "Why do you do it? By Jove, you'll die the first thing you know."

"Yes, yes," sighed the toiler. "I know I may die. But what's the use of dying? I wouldn't have time to go to the funeral."—New York Times

American and Russian Jews.

The New York Tribune of Wednesday last, in an editorial under the caption, "America and Russian Jews," said in part:—"The cry is still raised that the President does not interfere. He does not 'read the riot act' to Russia. Such carpings are, of course, insincere and dishonest when they are not ignorant. They are prompted by purely factional purposes. But lest their speciousness should perhaps deceive some, it may be well to treat them for a moment with a seriousness which they do not deserve. Let us suppose for a moment that the Russian, or the German, or the British Government should seek to interfere in the negro lynchings, which have claimed more victims in America than the massacres of Kishineff. Suppose some foreign Government should 'read the riot act' to us on that account; or, seeing that a United States Senator had, in the Senate Chamber, defended and approved such lynchings, should arraign the American Government as responsible for them. What would be the American reply? What would be the reply of those very critics who are now railing at the President for not 'reading the riot act' to Russia?

"But the President might at least suggest to the Czar that religious liberty would be desirable in Russia, they say. Yes. The other day a French gentleman of official rank was arrested in the suburbs of Washington for riding in the 'Jim Crow' section of a street-car. Suppose the French Government should suggest to the President that equal rights for men of all races would be desirable in the United States. Suppose some foreign Government should make representations to this country concerning the desirability of letting negroes vote in the Southern States. There would be an outburst of indignation from Maine to California against the impertinent meddling of a foreign country in a purely domestic affair of this country. But that which is sauce for the American goose, is it not also sauce for the Russian gander?"



The Latest Blouse.

"My dear," whispered the husband who had accompanied his better half to the shop where she expected to purchase a spring gown, "I think that dress with the black lace fixings on it is nobby. Why don't you get it?"

"Oh, it would never do," answered the wife. "Everybody is wearing that style."

"Then, here's another good-looking one—this one with the separate jacket and the strap fixings on the skirt."

"Mercy, no! Why nobody is wearing that!"—Life.

Knox—Why do you always put "dictated" at the bottom of your letters? You have no stenographer.

Knix—Well, you see, I'm a very poor speller.—Evening Wisconsin.

A negro preacher down south has discovered the real cause of the recent volcanic disasters. He says: "De earf, my friends, resolves on axels, as we all know. Somefin' is needed to keep the axels greased; so when de earf was made, petrolyum was put inside for dat purpose. De Standard Oil Comp'ny comes along an' strax dat petrolyum by borin' holes in de earf? De earf stix on its axels an' won't go round no more; den dere is a hot box, just as ef de earf wuz a big railway train—and den, my frien', dere is trouble."

"We might just as well come to an understanding at once," said the angry husband. "It's hard for you to hear the truth, especiallly from me, but"—

"Indeed it is," interrupted the patient wife. "I hear it so seldom."

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

SINGLE FARE

To Detroit and Return

in connection with

INTERNATIONAL EPWORTH LEAGUE CONVENTION,

July 16th to 19th.

Tickets good going July 15th and 16th. Valid for return until July 20th. Tickets may be extended for return until August 15th, on depositing tickets with joint agent not later than July 19th, and on payment of 50 cents.

The Grand Trunk service is unexcelled for those attending the convention. Fast and convenient.

TOURIST RESORTS.

Muskoka Lakes, Georgian Bay, Lake of Bays, Kawartha Lakes, Thousand Islands, Quebec, Portland, Old Orchard, White Mountains. All reached via the Grand Trunk.

For tickets and all information apply to

J. E. THOMPSON, City Agent, Bridge Street,
T. H. COPPIN, Depot Agent,
J. D. McDONALD, Dist. Pass Agt., Toronto.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY.

"Imperial Limited."

Fast tri-weekly Transcontinental service between Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver. Connection leaves Toronto at 1.45 p.m., Sunday, Wednesday, Friday, making run Toronto to Vancouver in 97 hours.

Upper Lake Steamships

Leave Owen Sound Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 5.30 p.m., on arrival of S.S. Express leaving Toronto at 1.30 p.m. Connections at Fort William and Port Arthur for Winnipeg and Pacific Coast points.

Daily First-Class Service Toronto to Winnipeg, Calgary, Banff and Pacific Coast.

Fully Equipped Through Tourist Cars leave Toronto Tuesday and Saturday for Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Full particulars from your nearest Canadian Pacific Agent or to

A. H. NOTMAN, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agent, TORONTO.
S. BURROWS, C.P.R. and General Ticket Agent, Front St., Belleville.

NEW YORK CENTRAL & HUDSON RIVER R. R.

THE FOUR-TRACK TRUNK LINE.

SHORTEST Route to the United States via Cape Vincent, N.Y.

GOING EAST AND WEST.			After 1st May
Lv. Belleville (G.T.R.)		12.22 p.m.	1.30 a.m
Arr. Kingston	"	1.47 p.m.	3.12 a.m
Lv. Kingston (stage)..		2.30 p.m.	5.00 a.m
Arr. CapeVincent (stage)		4 30 p.m.	7.00 a.m
Lv. Cape Vincent N.Y.C.		5.05 p.m.	7.25 a.m
Arr. Watertown	"	5.55 p.m.	8.25 a.m
Arr. Oswego	"	9.05 p.m.	11.55 a.m
Arr. Syracuse	"	9.25 p.m.	12.07 p.m
Arr. Rochester	"	1.05 a.m.	2.20 a.m
Arr. Utica	"	9.45 p.m.	12.35 p.m
Arr. New York	"	7.25 a.m.	6.00 p.m

Convenient train service in opposite direction.

Pullman Sleeping and Parlor Cars.

2c a Mile.

Books for 500 miles of travel on New York Central and leased lines within State of New York, cost only $10 while books for 1000 miles over New York Central, Boston & Albany, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, Philadelphia & Reading and C. R. R. of New Jersey cost $20. Secure further information and purchase tickets from F. A. Folger, N.Y.C. Agent, Kingston, Ont.

GEORGE H. DANIELS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent. New York.
A. H. SMITH, Gen'l Supt., New York.
G. C. GRIDLEY, Gen'l Agent, Watertown, N.Y.

It takes a long time to tell of what you have not done.

Turkey now exports $3,000,000 worth of opium a year.

Seven hundred British subjects are yearly born at sea.

Children's Slippers

Children's Red Kid Slippers	60c, 75c, and $1.00
Children's White Kid Slippers	$1.00 and $1.25
Children's Patent Leather Slippers	75c, $1.00 and $1 25
We are offering a special line of Ladies' Dongola Kid Slippers for	75c, regular price $1.00

VERMILYEA & SON.

FOR TWO WEEKS ONLY! 2 WEEKS

$5.00 Any Suit In This Great Clothing Store for $5.00

A STUPENDOUS CLOTHING OFFER WITHOUT PRECEDENT OR PARALLEL,

Some Suits $18, some $16, some $15, some $12, others $10. Just think of it! High grade, thoroughly tailored garments for Men, complete suits in fashionable fabrics, for

$5.00

This is just the opening gun in the great Mid-Summer Sale, in connection with this store. In every other department there will be equal sensational reductions. This Clothing Sale begins on July 11th and will end on July 25th.

The earlier you come the better your choice as we anticipate a big rush.

The GLOBE CLOTHING HOUSE.

Up-to-date Clothiers and Gents' Furnishiers, Look for the Globe Over The Door, 390 Front Street, Belleville.

Wall Paper

At first sight of our Wall Papers you will say there's an attractiveness about them that puts them lengths ahead of other lines.

IN STOCKING

we select only the best, we have no "shelf warmers" all our Papers are quick sellers. If you choose your Papers from us you have best value for the price obtainable anywhere.

Painting, Paperhanging and Decorating done on shortest notice by best workmen in the city.

JOHN CORNELIUS.
3 Doors South of Intelligencer Office.

NEW GOODS

JAPAN TEA

The first of this season's crop, exta quality, regular 50c line, we quote

40c Per lb.

Canned Halibut

Fine solid Fish, very tasty,

15c per can.

J. C. Hanley & Co.
GROCERS
Telephone 214

Western Beef.

Prime Western Beef together with all kinds of choice meats, supplied by the district, at

C. GREEN'S
267 Front St., 'Phone 109.

Flowers & Vegetables
Of all kinds in season.
... AT ...
J. D. COLLIP'S.
'Phone 205,

The "Fake" Element in Success.

It is well enough to prate about the beauties of absolute truth and sincerity, but there is no successful merit without a little "faking" to set it off; and "faking" without merit will prosper where merit without "faking" would starve. Barnum's declaration that the public loves to be humbugged is not flippancy, but a serious criticism of human nature. Apropos, an exchange relates the following:

"Here, Willie," said one of the foremost members of the bar, the other day, to his office boy, "spill a little red ink on this will." The boy took the document, which had been neatly typewritten and backed, and proceeded to rule red lines about the margin and across the indentations and spaces; underscored initial words in paragraphs and doubly underscored divers names and phrases; and then returned the paper to his employer.

"This red ink is a little bit of 'faking' one must do to please people," remarked the lawyer to a newspaperman who happened to be present. "Most clients won't believe that a will, a deed or a contract is valid unless there is red ink on it. Once I drew a will for a rich old man. I gave the matter much care and study and drafted the instrument briefly and in very simple language. I had it typewritten, but neglected to enliven the document with fancy designs in red. Really, I was proud of the simplicity and at the same time of the clearness of the draft. About a fortnight later another lawyer, a friend of mine, con-

Pierre-Marie, who was older than his companion and had been wrecked once before, was the first to come to himself again; he looked out upon the sea and I heard him mumble a savage oath. Then, as he took off his wet woollen jacket he caught sight of the laniard of his watch; this he drew from under his belt and held to his ear.

"H'm!" he exclaimed in surprise, "it has not stopped! That—" and he tapped it lightly with his finger—"that is a good watch!"

As soon as they were dressed in dry clothes and cheered a little by the hot wine, they were eager to know what had become of the boat. Pierre-Marie flushed purple when he heard that the pilot Alexandre had hastened to the place of the accident and had righted her.

With their knees still trembling, their hair stuck to their foreheads by the salt water and the sweat of their agony, their bodies shaken with suppressed sobs at the thought of the young companion they had lost, they climbed into the boat again and sailed away. They turned the Pointe des Poulains, passed the gay little port of Denborck on their way to the pretty little port of Bordery. The Gouenantin girl had to be notified. I kept to the land and arrived at the same time as the others. It was the fateful murmur of the crowd that warned the child.

She came out on the threshold of her door, upright in her black costume, her anxious little face flanked by the white wings of her coif. From afar she saw the peasants and the fishermen who were gathering together. They were pitying her. She could see it in their looks; she could hear it in their sorrowful words and the "Alas! alas!" that the wind brought her.

Driven by some unknown force, she ran towards the slope of the road that rose between her and those who were approaching. The child's face was pale and her eyes were wide with terror. When she saw the two fishermen returning alone, she understood at once what had happened. With a cry of anguish she ran back to the house calling out, "He is dead! he is dead!" to those within.

"He is dead! he is dead!" she cried to the pictures of the two departed parents. "He is dead! he is dead!"—and she threw herself down at the foot of the black cross fastened to the white wall. "He is dead! he is dead!" she murmured, choked with sobbing, as she crouched down, her head pressed against the wall and her arms stretched up to the image of Christ.

The fishermen and peasants, their hats in their hands, stood in silence outside the threshold, unable to find any words of consolation. I was among them, and, like them, was speechless.

fided to me as a joke that the man for whom I drew the will had gone to him with the document, expressed doubts whether so simple a will could be valid and when assured that it was valid had gone away unsatisfied. When the old man died a will was filed, bearing date a few weeks after that which I had drawn. The document was gorgeous in red embroidery and heavy with unnecessary technical phrases. Evidently the old man had had another will drafted that pleased his eye. It is some satisfaction to me to know that the court construed the ornamental will to mean what I knew to be the very contrary of the testator's intention. Since then I have not spared the red ink."

A Touch of Doggerel.

In the "North American Review" we find an interesting article by Dr. A. W. P. Martin on the poetry of the Chinese. The Celestial poets, like our own, are mainly minor. One of them addresses his lady-love in this wise:

Twin trees whose boughs together twine,
  Two birds that guard one nest,
We'll soon be far asunder torn,
  As sunrise from the West.

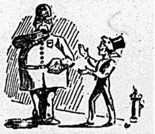
Hearts knit in childhood's innocence,
  Long bound in Hymen's ties,
One goes to distant battlefields,
  One sits at home and sighs.

Like carrier dove, though seas divide,
  I'll seek my lonely mate;
But if afar I find a grave,
  You'll mourn my hapless fate.

The flavor seems quite familiar. In fact, adds the "Outlook," one touch of doggerel makes the whole world kin.

Some people are so anxious to keep their left hand in ignorance of the deeds of their right that they keep it in perpetual idleness.—Ex.

Bought Medicine Himself.



"I've just been drugged and robbed," said he. "I think it is a shame!"

The officer just yawned, and said, "What was the druggist's name?"—N.Y. "Life."

Practical Joking at Washington.

A few weeks ago a wild excitement was caused in the War Department at Washington, D.C., when a rumor spread around that the Civil Service rules had been disregarded in the case of an old soldier, who, after being in the department for many years, had had his head taken off without warning. It was also hinted that if the old soldier's case were reopened reinstatement would surely follow. Interested parties were directed to a certain place on the second floor for particulars. Imagine their feelings when they saw two men at a large table in the corridor at work on the lay figure taken from one of the glass cases in which the uniforms of the United States army at various periods are displayed to an admiring public. The moths had got into the stuffing of a very old soldier indeed, wearing a Confederate uniform, and the ghastly spectacle presented itself of his wooden head standing on the table, entirely apart from his trunk. The reopening of his case occurred later in the day, when, the moths having been killed and a fresh instalment of camphor mixed with the stuffing, the figure was returned to its place under glass.

His Able Proxy.

"My wife makes me stand round—I can't deny that." "Doesn't it humiliate you?" "No; our baby is the living image of me—and he makes her stand round."—Chicago "Record-Herald."

"He is awfully nice," she sobbed, "but I can't—I can't."

"Can't what?" queries her mother.

"Give up my name of Willoughby for his of Snobkins," was the tearful answer.

CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY

CAPITAL

10,000 Shares 7 per cent Cumulative Preferred Stock, par value $100 each,	$1,000,000
50,000 Shares Common Stock, par value $100, issued and fully paid	5,000,000
TOTAL CAPITALIZATION	$6,000,000

Issues of $1,000,000.00 7 p.c. Preferred Stock in 10,000 Shares of $100 each at par.

This stock is preferred both as to Assets and Dividends.

The shares are entitled to cumulative preferred dividends from the net earnings of the Company, at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable half yearly on the first days of April and October. They may, at the option of the holder, be exchanged for common shares. They are subject to be called in, in whole or in part, by the Company, at $115.00 per share, at any time after 1st January, 1909.

The total issue of Preferred Stock is only $1,000,000.00, the whole of which is now offered.

Subscriptions for 10,000 Shares of $100 each of the 7 per cent. Preferred Stock of the CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY will now be received at par, that is $100 Share, as follows

per cent on application,
25 " " on allotment,
35 " " 30 days thereafter.
35 " " 60 days thereafter.

One share of Common, par value $100, given with each share of preferred.

The whole of instalments remaining unpaid at any time may be prepaid in full. A discount of one per cent will be allowed upon the par of each share if prepaid at time of allotment

Notice of allotment will be sent promptly by ordinary letter.

COAL

PROPERTY IN FULL OPERATION

Company owns 9,600 acres of coal property known throughout the coal trade as the New Campbellton Colliery, located on Bras D'Or Bay, County of Victoria, Cape Breton, Novia Scotia. Mine is fully equipped, producing and marketing tons of coal a day at a net profit of $1.00 a ton. Improvements are now being made that will increase the output to over 1,000 tons a day. On present output, figuring 300 working days in year, the net result will more than pay interest on entire issue of preferred, with output of 1 000 tons a day net result will be $300,000 per annum.

IRON

RICHEST ORE IN THE WORLD

Company owns in fee simple, free and clear of all incumbrances, 4000 acres of iron ore deposit, located Natashquan (tidewater) situated on North shore of Gulf of St. Lawrence, in the County of Saguenay, province of Quebec.

Deposits contain 20,000,000 tons of ore ABOVE SEA LEVEL ALONE.

Quality of ore is highet ever discovered, running from 69 per cent to 72 per cent in metallic iron.

More orders for the sale of this ore has been received by the Company than can possibly be accepted, and at a price netting the Company a profit of $2 a ton F. O. B. vessels at Company's docks.

Send for prospectus giving full information as to earnings, reports, etc., etc.

Address all communications and send subscriptions to

COLONIAL SECURITIES CO., 62 Wall Street, New York City OR W. L. MARSTON & COMPANY 110 State Street, Boston

The SAWYER COMPANY.

351 Temple Building, Montreal, Canada.

THE

Intelligencer Bindery

MAKES A SPECIALTY OF

Ledgers,

Journals,

Cash Books,

And all descriptions of

Blank Account Books

Mailing Tubes

Gold Lettering on Leather Goods, &c.

MAGAZINES,
ART WORKS,
PERIODICALS,
SERIAL NUMBERS

NEATLY BOUND

Map Mounting & Varnishing

☞ Estimates cheerfully furnished for every class of work.

ADDRESS—

The Intelligencer

BELLEVILLE, ONT.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Measurement Nonpareil—12 lines to th inch.

Display advertisements, 10c per line.
Subsequent consecutive insertions, nc.

Reading advertisements, 15c per line.

Preferred position, 20 per cent. advance upon usual or contract rates.

Minimum space, 10 lines.

Marriages and deaths, 50c each insertion.

Births, 25c each insertion.

Rates for Condensed Advertisement will be found in 1st column of 2nd page.

All advertisements are subject to the approval of the Publisher of the Intelligencer.

Address all communications to the Intelligencer Printing & Publishing House Limited, or to Charles J. Bowell, Managing Director and Treasurer.

Canadians in London will find The Intelligencer on file at E. & J. Hardy & Co.'s Office, 30 Fleet Street, London, E. C.

CONDENSED ADVERTISEMENTS

SITUATIONS WANTED, HELP WANTED, LOST OR FOUND, FOR SALE OR TO RENT, &c

(Auction Sales not included in this list)

TERMS.—Twenty-five words or less, 25c first insertion; two insertions, 50c; four insertions, 75c; one week $1.00, two weeks, $1.75, three weeks, $2.25; one month, $2.50. Strictly cash in advance.

WANTED.

A boy about 15 years of age to carry messages. Apply to G.N.W. Telegraph Office, Bridge St. jy10-tf

To rent, house with modern improvements and lawn. Good locality. Apply immediately MRS. POWER, Dominion House. 10-2t

100 machinery moulders and coremakers. Steady work. Wages for moulders at least $4.00; coremakers $3.25. Address Post Office Box 511, Toronto. jy9-d10t

$6.00 per month will buy a home anywhere under our plan. Live in it while paying for it. Something new. Write for prospectus. Canadian Home Builder's Association, Manning Chambers, Toronto.

$1950 made by one man last year selling our household necessities. Did you make as much? Try our lines. Always selling. Write G. Marshall & Co., London, Ont. 2

Agents wanted, $2.50 per day. Apply Cooper, London, Ont. s27-1y

Young men ambitious to learn lucrative trades, of which there are eight in connection with the business. Apply The Belleville Hardware Company, Belleville, Ont. a7dtf

FOR SALE OR TO-LET.

Stone house, 11 rooms, coal furnace, stable, barn. Large grounds. Cor. Frank and Moira Sts. north. Terms reasonable. H. Bull, on premises or Fred Bull, 133 Yonge St., Toronto. Terms easy. ap18-dtf

FOR SALE.

Two surreys, two phaetons, two buggies, one horse. Apply to H. L. CURRY, Pinnacle street. jy9-6td&16.23w

Dressed and Matched Lumber of all kinds, at ALFORD'S factory, Market Square. j12-tf

Contractors and masons, any any person requiring lime may procure it from E. G. STAPLEY, Canifton Road, Belleville. New lime always on hand. a9-d&w6m

TO RENT

A house on Moira street containing 8 rooms. All modern conveniences. Possession on or before 20th July.—Adam Henry.. dtf

RAILWAY TIME TABLES.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Time of departure from Belleville Station:

Going East.

New train 12.45 a.m., daily, except Sunday, for Brockville, Montreal and intermediate stations.

No. 16—Local, for Brockville, 7 a.m., arrives back from Brockville 8.40 p.m.

No. 2—1.45 a.m., Mail and Express, (Flyer), Daily.

No. 6—11.43 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.

No. 4—12.22 p.m., International Limited, Daily.

No. 12—5.55 p.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.

Going West.

No. 5—3 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily except Monday.

No. 3—4.10 a.m., Limited Express, Daily.

No. 9—5.50 a.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.

No. 11—11.22 a.m., Passenger, Daily except Sunday.

No. 1—1.48 p.m., International Limited, Daily.

No. 7—5.12 p.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.

Taking effect 12.01 o'clock, Sunday, June 14, 1903.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.

Belleville and Peterboro.

Going West.

	Leave.	Arr. Peterboro
Mail	5.45 a.m.	8.10 a.m.
Mixed	5.55 p.m.	9.05 p.m.

Going East.

	Arr.	L've Peterboro
Mixed	11.20 a.m.	8.25 a.m.
Mail	4.25 p.m.	2.05 p.m.

Belleville and Madoc.

Going North.

	L've	Arr. Madoc
Mixed	12.20 p.m.	1.20 p.m.
Mixed	6.30 p.m.	7.40 p.m.

Going South.

	Arr.	L've Madoc
Mixed	9.10 a.m.	7.30 a.m.
Mixed	5.08 p.m.	3.45 p.m.

None of the above trains run on Sunday.

Saving Labor at The Hub:

"They're busy—I'll call you." That is the exasperating sentence usually heard on the telephone when one is in a great hurry to "get" the person at the other end of the line. The man who uses the telephone often knows that the phrase "I'll call you" means nothing—that it is never used seriously—and after waiting a few minutes he calls again. Sometimes the message comes back, "Still busy," or "Busy yet," or "Busy—I'll call you," and occasionally the operator delights the man in the booth by saying, "There they are!"

They have a different method in Boston, as a visitor to that city discovered a few days ago. He called up a business house and was told, "The line is busy; ring off!" It was a sharp, rasping voice, and the stranger connected it at once with a small cigarette smoking boy. "I don't believe they're busy at all," he said to the people near him. "I'll try again."

"Give me No. 4000, please."

"The line is busy; ring off."

"How do you——"

"The line is busy; ring off."

"Well, try them again, and——"

"The line is busy; ring off."

There was never a change in the tone, never a word more or less, and the stranger saw in his mind's eye how the impertinent youngster sat repeating over and over again the reason-destroying sentence.

After a five minutes' waiting he made another attempt to reach his friend.

A woman's voice answered and asked the regulation question, and in a few seconds the rasping voice was heard again, "The line is busy; ring off."

"Say! are you sure there is——"

"The line is busy; ring off."

Then he hung up the receiver, and when he gained the ear of the central office again he asked: "Can that boy say anything besides 'The line is busy; ring off'?"

"Yes, if it's fixed right. That's the graphophone by which we save work. What number?"

A Sad Story.

The shell-fish that grow in the waters of the Pacific on the California coast are a poor lot, and repeated attempts have been made to improve their quality. Oysters from the East have been planted in San Francisco Bay, but they don't thrive. Lobsters also have been carried there. The first lot of young lobsters that went out quarreled so violently in their tanks that they arrived in a deplorable state of dismemberment. Many were dead, and the bottoms of the tanks were strewed deep with claws. "We can better that," said the fish commissioners; so when they shipped another lot (at a cost of ten thousand dollars) they put wooden wedges in the big claws of all the young lobsters, so that they could not fight. They arrived in good order, were put into the bay, and not one of them was ever seen alive again. After a while it was remembered that the wedges had not been taken out of the lobsters' claws before they were turned loose. Consequently they could not shut their claws; consequently they could not get their living; consequently they starved. Does anyone know a sadder story than that?

A Japanese Boadicea.

(From the "Nineteenth Century.")

Seventeen centuries ago the Japanese Emperor Chual was playing his lute in the presence of his wife and Prime Minister. Whether on account of the music or from some other cause, the Empress became inspired with a divine afflatus and began to utter the thoughts put into her mind by the deity. "There is a land to the westward," she exclaimed, "and in that land an abundance of treasure, gold and silver, dazzling to look upon. This land I will now bestow upon you."

The Emperor pushed away his lute. "If you go up to a high place and look toward the west," said he, "there is no land to be seen, but only the great waters. They are lying spirits who have spoken to you."

Then the god was filled with anger, and again he moved the Empress to prophesy. "You are not fit," she said, "to rule this empire. Go the one road!"

But the Prime Minister trembled when he heard these words, and said to his master: "I am troubled, my heavenly sovereign, by this terrible message. Continue, I pray, to play the august lute."

The Emperor Chual commenced to play softly; gradually the sound died away; all was still. They held a light to his face and saw that he was dead. But the Empress put herself at the head of her fleet, invaded the land of gold and silver with her warriors, and soon made the three kingdoms of Corea tributary to Japan.

These things happened, we are told, in the year 201 A.D., and the story of the valiant Empress is as familiar to a Japanese as is that of Boadicea to ourselves.

Soothing the Savage Breast.

The idea of tooth-extracting to the accompaniment of music is being trotted out as a Parisian novelty, but the itinerant musical tooth-yanker was not unknown in this country a few years since. One of these gentry used to extract teeth to the strains of a brass band, amid the plaudits of an admiring crowd and the flare of naphtha lamps. The object in this case, however, was not to soothe, but to drown the yells of the victim. The selections were carefully chosen to meet the requirements of each case. When a victim was unduly skittish, it was: "See me Dance the Polka," and when the tooth was about to rip, the victim was encouraged by the strains of: "Hold the Fort for I Am Coming." There was no charge for the job, but you were expected to shell out a few pence for a bottle of physic that would cure anything from a wart to a ham.

Poor Boy!

His mother told him not to swear,
  His father taught him golf.
He minded both with utmost care—
  Brain-fever took him off.

—"Judge."

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

Store Closed Every Wednesday During July and August at 12 O'Clock Noon.

Half Price Days

Friday and Saturday.

Take one dollar and multiply it by two and the result will give you the purchasing power of that dollar in many lines on these days. On other lines it will be more than double.

We might sell these goods offered at regular prices, did we wait, but that is too slow for us, and you could not appreciatte the offering then as you can now.

Oddments and ends—you may not find exactly the size or length you require. If you could, they would not be so priced.

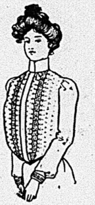
You can get a longer length for much less than just what you want, would regularly cost you.

We must have your co-operation in our house-clearing so make these tempting offers below.

The regular prices of these goods are on in plain figures. You can see exactly what they were and are.

Here are some—space does not permit mention of many deserving lines—you will see them when you come.

HALF PRICE COLORED WAISTS



Busy selling has sadly depleted our Colored Waist assortment and in nearly every line only a few remain.

Here are prices which should not leave one Waist with us Saturday.

Not neccessary to spend space on the description of the perfect fit and excellent materials in these. Suffice to say they are from our regular assortment which has sold so freely.

Many here that we cannot mention.

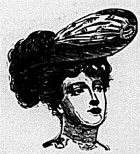
—Colored Black and White or Blue and White spot and figured Print Waist with Muslin yoke and tucked front, regular $1.00 for .... .39

—Fine Pink and White Gingham Waist with rows of Valenciennes Insertion back and front, regular $1.75 for .... .75

—Fine Linen Batiste Waist trimmed with self strapping and black embroidery insertion. pointed cuffs—small tucks back and front, regular $299 for 1.00

—3 only Waists of fine colored thin Knicker cloth Blue, Grey and Old Rose, plain full front $1.25 for .... .89

HALF PRICE MILLINERY



Our half price offering has already cleared a number of pretty styles from our tables but there still remain a few which should keep up the interest in this department.

Prices will be interesting here as elsewhere on Friday and Saturday. Besides the trimmed hats we mention below other lines which come under our Half Price hammer.

Only thing wrong—they have sold out quickly and left the assortment incomplete.

—Child's Fine White Muslin Hat with accordion plaited brim and embroidered crown, regular 75c for .... .38

—Child's Fine White Muslin Hat with goffered brim, regular 45c for .... .23

—24 only Children's Muslin bonnets of fancy open work muslin with mull frill and ties, regular 15c for .. .8

HALF PRICE WASH GOODS

Regular Remnant prices alone on Wash Goods make a worthy offering and at half price the interest is doubled.

Add to this, many pieces from our assortment which have not been selling as rapidly as we desire and you have selling conditions for Friday and Saturday.

	c
Fine White Vesting 32" wide, regular 15c for	8c
—Good quality Print, 36" wide, regular 12½c	6
—Fancy figured colored Sateens, regular 25c for	13c
—A number of fine Ginghams were 15c for	8c

HALF PRICE WRAPPERS

Our anticipation was ahead of the actual demand for Print and Muslin Wrappers.

We have a few more than we desire at this season, so to bring the assortment to normal point we have half priced them for Friday and Saturday.

Pretty material, well made, fast colors. Nothing desirable is missing in their make up. Just—to many.

—Fine Print Wrappers in variety of colors and patterns with and without yoke, regular $1.50 for .75

—A few fine Print Dresses, regular $3.50 to $4.75 for .89

Agents for Standard Patterns.

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

CLOTHING BOUGHT HERE PRESSED FREE OF CHARGE

Everything
Is Thoroughly Good

That's certain, at QUICK & ROBERTSON'S—we are more particular about giving than you are in getting it perhaps.

But there are other reasons why you should buy at this store where quality is the first consideration.

We not only make goodness certain by applying every known test for quality, but are equally as careful to price that goodness as common as the ordinary sorts are priced elsewhere.

HERE are a few suggestions of summer fixin's that should interest men and mothers of boys.

FOR BOYS.

Vacation Suits and other wear, things that after good hard wear show the difference between our good sorts at our common prices and cheap sorts, which cost a little less.

—Regulation Sailor Blouse Suits, Cheviot mixtures, stripes and serges. .... $1.25 to $4.50

—Norfolk Jackets, single and double-breasted suits for older boys, extensive showing of plain and fancy mixtures .... $2.00 to $5.00

—Washable Sailor Suits 50c to $1.50.

—Wash Waists and Blouses, 25c to $1.00.

FOR MEN.

—SUMMER SUITS—Such as are impossible to obtain except at the best custom tailors—perfect fitting, stylish garments, suited to men who want the out-of-the-ordinary sorts. Homespuns, Tropical Serges, Worsteds and Flannels.......................... $3.75 to $12.00

—OUTING TROUSERS $1.00 to $4.00.

—NEGLIGE SHIRTS—In stripes and patterned materials, such as custom shirt makers would show you as their newest—plain or plaited bosoms.......... 50c to $1.50

—STRAW HATS—Every one new, the largest assortment of the smartest shapes the best makers have produced.

Sailors, in low crown .... 50c to $2.00

Panama shape, the right ones .... 75c to $2.50

QUICK & ROBERTSON

Here is where you buy Johnston's Clothing for Men and Boys.

Refrigerators

This warm weather you will readily appreciate the advantages of a good refrigerator.

We have only three left and if you are talking of getting one, you had better come in and see us as we will make the price interesting.

The W. W. CHOWN Company, Limited

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines, or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

Union Picnic.

No happier crowd of old and young has left our harbor for a day's enjoyment in a long time than that of Bleecker Avenue and Kingston Road Methodist Sunday schools yesterday. The objective point the Orphan's Home was reached at 11.50, after a delightful sail. At the above point the crowd laden with numberless baskets, decamped and formed right by the dock, one of the finest grounds for spending a days outing that this country can produce. So shady, grassy, breezy and overlooking a beautiful bay. The Home for the Orphans is a magnificent, tidy building. Miss Young, the matron, had everything in apple pie order for our coming—took us through the Institution, and ere we left, called all the children together and gave us an exhibition of their singing in the nice rendition of several songs by wee ones between 3 and 14 years of age. As no entrance fee is charged for the use of the grounds, tables, ice water, etc., it was thought proper to take a collection which was done, amounting to over $6 and presented to the very worthy object of helping care for orphans. Very much credit for the grand success of this Union Picnic is due to the superintendents of the schools, Miss Watson and Mrs. Snulk. Rev. F. B. Stratton, their new preacher, was quite at home with this strange crowd and in a short pithy talk, introduced himself to the people, and invited them to the services of his church.

The party reached home at 6 p.m., greatly pleased with everything in connection with this grand outing.

Belleville, July 10, 1903.

One in Four Has Piles

FOR WHICH DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT IS AN ABSOLUTE AND GUARANTEED CURE.

One person in every four suffers more or less from itching piles, some do not know the nature of their ailment and others have not heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment as the only absolute and guaranteed cure for this distressing disease. If you are a sufferer from piles, pin worms, or any itching skin disease, ask your neighbor about this great preparation. It has grown popular as a result of the news of its merits being passed from friend to friend. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

A Residence Burglarized.

On Friday afternoon last the kitchen in rear of Mr. S. Seryver's residence on Parker street was forced open, and a razor, some carpenter bits and other articles were stolen. The affair was not reported to the police until Wednesday of this week. The articles in question have since been recovered, but the thief will probably never be found, as it was a tramp who committed the offence.

BUILDING.

R. McPherson, late foreman with Thos. Hanley, continues the same business at the same stand, executing, in first-class style, orders for Church and Office Furniture, Mantels, Grills, Artistic effects, etc. Carving to the trade a specialty. Will form class for instructions in carving. j8d&w1m

CITY AND DISTRICT.

Advertisements under this heading TWO CENTS A WORD; subsequent consecutive insertions ONE CENT A WORD. No less charged as less than twenty-five words.

A regular meeting of the Board of Education will be held this evening.

The various Civic Committees will meet to-night.

Learn a trade or profession and support yourself while learning. How? Call or write to D. Corbett, 82 Victoria Ave., Belleville, representative of the International Correspondence School. We have only 562,000 students equipping themselves for life. 9-2td

Mr. Bushfield will speak in the City Mission to-night on the Boer war.

Montreal cab-drivers will apply for an injunction to restrain the Street Railway Company from running observation cars.

Officers Installed.

The newly elected officers of Belleville Lodge, No. 81, I. O. O. F., were last evening installed by Bro. T. Naylor, D.D.G.M., of Deseronto. They were as follows:

P.N.G.—A. McFee.
N.G.—W. Reeves.
V.G.—C. F. Thorpe.
Rec. Sec.—S. S. Bongard.
Fin. Sec.—R. W. Adams.
Treas.—J. Fenn.
Chap.—Rev. A. L. Geen.
Organist—A. W. Dickens.
R.S.N.G.—S. Barkley.
L.S.N.G.—W. J. Givens.
R.S.V.G.—F. D. Diamond.
Warden—L. C. Pascoe.
Con.—J. Coon.
O.G.—N. Thompson.
I.G.—H. Ransom.
R.S.S.—Wm. Harden.
L.S.S.—Jas. Mills.

ESTIMABLE LADY DEAD.

MRS. NORTHCOTT PASSES AWAY IN NEW YORK STATE, WHERE SHE WAS VISITING.

A message was received in the city this morning announcing the death of a well-known lady, namely, Mrs. John Northcott, which sad event occurred last evening at Tupper Lake, N. Y. Deceased some time ago went to visit her daughter, Mrs. (Prof.) G. G. Street, who resides at Syracuse. She was unwell at the time and the change of air was expected to do her good, but it has proved otherwise. Mrs. Northcott was about 76 years of age and had resided in Belleville many years. She was a lady who had a large circle of acquaintances and was universally esteemed. She was a member of St. Andrew's Church. The remains will arrive here to-morrow for interment. Mr. Northcott has been dead for some years. The surviving members of the family are: Mr. Walter Northcotte, of Syracuse, N.Y.; Mrs. Prof. G. R. Street, of Syracuse, N.Y.; Mrs. W. H. Panter, Misses Mary and Bella, of this city.

THE TRAMP NUISANCE.

THE GOVERNMENT DIRECTS THAT THEY BE SEVERELY DEALT WITH.

The Provincial Government is sending out a circular letter to the various Police Magistrates, calling upon them to deal severely with all tramps brought before them. The majority of crimes committed in Canada are attributed to the tramp, and it is believed by using severe methods Ontario will soon be rid of the tramp nuisance. The constables employed by the different railway companies will co-operate with the Detective Department and local police to assist in driving out the tramp. When the tramps are without funds that are to be given the full term of imprisonment in the Central. If the instructions are carried out the Central Prison will soon be filled to overflowing.

PERSONAL ...AND... SOCIAL.

The Intelligencer invites all its readers to contribute to this column all items of a personal nature, such as the arrival or departure of guests, and the movements of business men, etc. Send a post card to or telephone The Intelligencer.

Mr. A. E. Fish has returned from Winnipeg.

Miss Imogen Palen has arrived home from Moose Jaw.

Miss Spangenberg, of this city, is visiting friends at Kingston.

Mr. W. F. Meyers, M.L.A., Kinistino, Sas., N.W.T., is in the city.

Mr. Harry Burrell has returned from his trip to Europe, much improved in health.

Mrs. Lowery and daughter, of Kingston, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. Bull, Moira St.

Mr. Andrew Wilson has returned to the city, after a sojourn of some time in the States.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Enwright, of New York have returned home, after visiting relatives in this city.

Miss Lena J. Boyd, daughter of Mr. N. Boyd, M.P., for Carberry, Man., is visiting in the vicinity.

Miss Ruth Mallory, who has been residing in Sturgeon Falls, has returned to the city on a visit to her mother.

Mr. C. F. Aylsworth, sen., who has been Inspector of Colonization Roads in this county for many years has resigned.

Miss M. Brock left to-day to spend the summer at her home on the lower St. Lawrence. Her nephew, Mr. Brock Astle, who has been at school here, accompanied her.

Mrs. James Patrick and daughter arrived home, after spending a month's visit with her aunt and uncle at Watertown. They were accompanied by her cousin, Miss Florence Belcher.

At the Quinte ;—G. N. Hodges, R. B. Fairburn, G. F. Hanson, A. E. Kennedy, P. R. Hanson, Montreal; F. J. P. Gibson, G. E. Jenner and wife, E. A. Prine, J. H. Hodge, Prof. Dorenwend, J. W. Mellon, F. D. Cockburn, L. N. Vanstone, J. Morrison, D. Rupert, J. W. Barrington, A. W. Blaike, J. D. Voght, C. H. Williamson, R. E. Jamieson, J. H. Hunter, A. M. Boyington, F. A. Brady, Toronto; J. P. Browning, Brantford; B. O. Lott, J. E. Halliwell, Stirling; Mrs. Rheannie, D. E. Rheannie, Ottawa; W. B. Riley, Niagara Falls; W. R. Campbell, London; T. J. Naylor, Deseronto; R. J. Wiswall, New York; W. S. Rennington, E. S. Burr, G. J. McNall, Rochester; H. J. McIntyre, Hamilton; W. F. Meyers, Kinistim, Sas.; G. H. Canniff, Chicago; J. Hudgins, Smith's Falls; T. N. Howatson, Minominne, Mich.; Mrs. J. Howatson, Anaconda, Mont.; Miss B. Wallbridge, Rossmore.

ST. ANDREW'S S.S. PICNIC.

The annual S.S. picnic of St. Andrew's Church will be held on Tuesday, July 14th, per steamer Niagara to 12 o'clock Point. Boat leaves at 9 a.m., 2.30 p.m. and 7.30 p.m. Tickets 25c. Children 15c. Infant's class free.—W. P. Hudson, chairman. j4-7-10-13

HOME FROM CAMP.

THE FORTY-NINTH REGIMENT MADE A CREDITABLE RECORD THIS YEAR.

The old 49th made new records for themselves at camp this year. The regiment averaged about 200 men on parade, and were several times complimented for their good work and discipline, both on the field and in camp. The Commanding Officer, Lt.-Col. Harrison, was specially complimented on the general efficiency of his command by the Brigadier, Col. John Hughes.

The new Companies lately organized, No. 7 at Bancroft, and No. 8 at Marmora, are a source of great strength to the Regiment. Both companies are well officered.

In shooting returns it is expected the 49th will lead the camp. The returns are not yet compiled, but several "possibles" were made by members of different companies.

In the big "Sham Battle" on Friday last, the Regiment bore off high honors. The 49th and 56th Regiments constituted the principal defence of Barriefield Heights, and had opposed to them four Regiments of Infantry and six squadrons of cavalry. The 49th on the left of the line bore the brunt of the heaviest attack, but had the satisfaction of hearing the decision of the Umpires, of whom Lord Dundonald was chief, that everywhere the attack had been splendidly repulsed.

At the last mess dinner of the officers, before breaking camp, a toast to the health of the Commanding Officer, Lt.-Col. Harrison, was enthusiastically honored. Since his appointment to the command five years ago, Col. Harrison has labored assiduously and unceasingly for the welfare of the 49th Regiment, which he loves as a father, and he has the proud satisfaction of viewing the result of his expenditure of time, labor, anxiety and means in the building up of one of the best country Regiments in the district, in the old 49th "Hastings Rifles." The regiment is a credit to the county, and merits a more liberal treatment than it has yet received.

The chaplain of the regiment, Rev. T. J. Thompson, late of Belleville, was present most of the time in camp and had the honor of being selected to preach the sermon to the whole Division on Sunday morning.

The officers of the 49th are as follows:—

Lt.-Col. Edward Harrison.
Major J. R. Orr.
Adjutant, Major A. H. Smith.
Paymaster, Major R. Grass.
Quartermaster, Capt. F. Slater.
Surgeon, Capt. H. H. Alger.
Chaplain, Rev. T. J. Thompson.
No. 1 Co., Belleville—Capt. Graham and Lieuts. Keith and Haight.
No. 2 Co., Stirling—Capt. McKee and Lieuts. Scott and Green.
No. 3 Co., Sidney—Capt. W. Ketcheson.
No. 4 Co., Madoc—Capt. C. M. Wallbridge.
No. 5 Co., Tyendinaga—Capt. W. H. Ketcheson, Lieut. J. S. Carstairs.
No. 6 Co., Trenton—Capt. Arnott and Lieut. Bywater.
No. 7 Co., Bancroft—Capt. E. Wood and Lieuts. Simmons and Mullett.
No. 8 Co., Marmora—Capt. Chas. W. Bleecker and Lieut. Loufit.

TOOTHACHE CURED IN ONE MINUTE.

Not only toothache, but any nerve pain is cured instantly by Polson's Nerviline. Thousands have testified that its powerful, penetrating, pain-subduing properties make it an absolute cure for neuralgia, rheumatism, toothache, cramps, colic and all other pains and aches that beset mankind. The world is challenged to equal Nerviline as a household liniment. Large bottle 25 cents.

The income of the Pope last year reached the respectable total of $4,370,000.

GREAT SALE.

Stirring call to a great cheap sale of men's, boys' and children's high class clothing and furnishings at prices that will force you to buy. Out goes every stitch of the remaining lines of our spring and summer stock, no matter what the loss is. We are determined to clear out everything left, and we will easily do so as our prices to a point where buying is irresistible. Look at our ad.—The Globe Clothing House. 6t

DEATHS

NORTHCOTT.—In Tupper Lake, N.Y., on Friday, July 10, 1903, Mrs. John Northcott, aged 76 years.

The funeral will take place on Sunday, July 12, at 3 o'clock. Funeral private.

SEASIDE RESORTS.

The Grand Trunk Railway is the best and most comfortable route to all eastern points, including White Mountains, Old Orchard, Me; Portland, Me.; "International Limited" leaving Toronto 9 a.m., daily, carries through Pullman to Portland, Cafe Parlor to Montreal. Eastern Flyer leaving Toronto 10.30 p.m. daily, is a solid train of vestibuled coaches and Pullman Sleepers.

Tourist tickets are on sale, embracing all the principal sea side resorts. j7-6t

1,000 ISLANDS AND ROCHESTER.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian" leave Belleville for Thousand Islands at 3.25 p.m., daily except Mondays. Fare $1.00. Returning Str. leaves at 11.38 p.m. for Rochester, N.Y. m26d&w3m

Colds How will your cold be tonight? Worse, probably. It's first a cold, then a cough, then bronchitis. Colds always tend downward. Stop this downward tendency quickly with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

25c., 50c., $1.00. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Peel and core two and a half pounds of apples, chop one pound of onions very finely, and one pound of stewed raisins. Boil all together with two quarts of best vinegar for two hours, then add a quarter of a pound of powdered ginger, one pound of coarse sugar, two teaspoonfuls of cayenne pepper, quarter of a pound of salt, one pound and a half of mustard seed. Mix the ingredients well together, and the chutney is fit for use at once.

Take the smallest onions that can be got. They must be quite ripe and dry. Be careful not to use a steel knife in peeling them, or their color will be spoiled. Take off the two outer skins with a silver knife. Put the onions as fast as they are ready into perfectly dry jars, and cover them with cold vinegar and two spoonfuls of all-spice and two spoonfuls of pepper to each quart of vinegar. Tie them down closely. In a few weeks they will be ready.

Prick three pounds of small tomatoes with a silver fork and lay in a deep preserving pan, sprinkling salt over each layer, cover closely and allow them to stand for three days. Then strain the juice and add one quart of vinegar and a quarter of an ounce each of powdered sugar, mustard seed, cloves and white pepper and half a teaspoonful of ground mace. Boil all these ingredients together in an enamelled vessel, pour over the tomatoes, and when cold put in wide-mouthed jars. In about ten days the pickle will be ready for use.

Mushroom Sauce

Place one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan and when it is brown add one tablespoonful of flour. Add salt, pepper and one and one-half cups of stock. Cook five minutes, stirring constantly, then add one-half cup of fresh mushrooms, but in small pieces. Allow the mushrooms to cook until well heated, take them from the fire and stir in the yolk of one egg and a teaspoonful of butter. When the egg is set add a sprig of chopped parsley and serve.

The Brides Sofa Pillow.

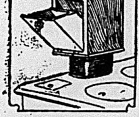
The latest idea in the sofa-pillow craze is intended for a bride, and will be sure to occupy a prominent position on the hall seat of her new home.

It is made of bits of ribbons and silk left from the trousseau. The smallest pieces may be used and a very rich effect produced. It should be made on the old-fashioned patchwork pattern of our grandmother's.

Dispose of Your Garbage at Home.

No more gathered garbage standing round, no more flies, no more waiting the janitor's pleasure. Charles R. Harris, of Williamsport, Pa., has invented a clever device for disposing of refuse at once and without odor.

It takes the place of a link of pipe, and while it does not obstruct the passage of the smoke, yet there is sufficient heat passing up the pipe to carbonize the solid garbage placed therein. The hopper is readily opened to deposit the waste, and when closed the odors pass up the chimney with the smoke. Whatever remains after the carbonizing process is readily emptied into the firebox, the hopper tilting downward for that purpose.



Bargain Counter Voting.

The woman candidate faced the mean man who wished to sell his vote.

"No, sir!" she said, "I will not give you $1 for your vote. It is not worth it."

"Take it for 90 cents, lady," said the mean man.

"Why didn't you say that before? And can you vote twice for $1.97?"

Undaunted.

Stubb—That fellow Maroon is a clever artist. You know in moving his "Fox Hunt" a large hole was punctured in the canvas.

Penn—I suppose the painting was ruined?

Stubb—Not at all. Maroon tells people there is no hole there. That it is a realistic fox den.

LATEST NEW YORK STOCK QUOTATIONS

AS FURNISHED TO THE INTELLIGENCER BY H. R. BEATTIE, STOCK BROKER.

New York, July 10.

STOCK	Op'g	H'st	L'st	Close
Atch'son	66¼	66¾	64⅛	65¼
do. pref	91¼	91¼	90½	90½
St. Paul	149½	149⅛	147⅛	148¼
Mo. P.	102	102	100½	101½
Union. Pac	79⅛	80	78	79¼
C. P. R.	123	123¼	121¼	122⅜
South Pac.	48⅜	48⅜	46½	47¼
R. I.	32¼	32¼	31½	32½
Ills. C.	132¼	132¼	132	132
Sou. Ry.	23½	23½	22⅞	23
Texas	28	28	27	27½
B & O.	84½	84½	83½	84
N. Y. C.	121	121⅛	118¾	119¾
Penna	124½	124½	123	123⅜
Soo	58½	58½	57⅛	58
T. W.	99	99	97¾	98½
Erie	31¼	31⅞	31	31¼
do. pref.	66⅞	67	66	66⅜
Reading	50	50	48⅜	49⅜
C. O.	37	37	36⅛	36⅛
O. & W.	25	25	24¼	24⅛
Manhattan	135¼	135¼	134¼	135½
L. & N.	109½	109½	108½	109
A. F.	36	36	35	36
Nor.	65	65½	64½	65½
Wab.	23⅜	23⅜	22	22
do pref.	42¼	42¼	41	41⅛
C. G. W.	18¼	18¼	17⅛	18
T.C.I.	49⅜	49⅜	48⅜	48¼
U.S. S.	28¼	28¼	28	28¾
do pref.	79⅞	79⅞	79¼	79¼
Sugar	118⅜	119	117¼	119
B. R. T.	56¼	56¼	54¾	55⅛
Po	98	98	97¼	97½
A. C. P.	52½	52½	51½	51⅞
Met.	120⅛	120⅛	120	120¼
Ak	22	22	21	21⅛

Sept. wheat opened at 78¼; closed at 79
Sept. corn opened at 51¼; closed at 51¼.

NEVER SAY DIE.

You may be weak, miserable, nervous, sleepless, your digestion may be poor and you despair. Never say die, until you have used Ferrozone, the most wonderful blood maker, nerve strengthener and brain invigorator. It tones up the whole system. You can eat anything and digest it if you use Ferrozone. You sleep well. You make blood quickly, strength increases daily, in a short time you're well. Try Ferrozone, which you can obtain at all drug stores.

Ventilating the Hair.

A woman who will make a habit of brushing and combing the hair at night and vigorously rubbing the scalp, rubbing till the blood tingles, may be sure, if she inaugurates this habit before her hair has begun to fall, that her hair will keep its color and useful quality. Even falling hair will often be brought back to vigor by such treatment.

A good deal is said in favor of brushing the hair. Brushing cleans the hair itself, but it does not invigorate the scalp as does combing, and neither is half so good as vigorous rubbing. When one begins she will find it takes a lot of rubbing to make the head tingle, but in a few weeks the first rub will start the blood. That tells its own story, for where the circulation is sluggish there deterioration of vitality has begun. Where the blood runs freely, there life renews itself.

It is good to let the hair hang loosely at night, especially if one sleeps in a room in which outside air circulates freely. The roots need air. Twice a week braid the hair into little braids all over the head. Hair thus treated will keep a glossy look, yet not hang together, and it will turn back prettily in a pompadour with better effect than as if the curling irons are used. Besides, curling irons are ruinous to the health of the hair

Sauce Hollandaise.

Mix one tablespoonful each of butter and flour in a saucepan; add gradually half a pint of boiling water. Stir until it just reaches the boiling point; take from the fire, add the yolks of two eggs. In another saucepan put a slice of onion, a bay leaf and a clove of garlic; add four tablespoonfuls of vinegar and stand over the fire until the vinegar is reduced one-half. Turn this into the sauce, stir for a moment; strain through a fine sieve.

Youthful Strategy.

Jones—See those obys throwing one of their number into the water! And he doesn't seem to mind it a bit!

Jims—Of course not! His mother told him not to go in the water, and he's having his gang throw him in, so he can tell her a whole lot o' bad boys got hold of him and threw him in.

Scotland has 146 parishes without paupers, poor rates or public houses.

When a storm is approaching, glow-worms are far more brilliant than at other times.

Trial by jury in Britain dates from the reign of Ethered I., 866—871 A.D.

ESTABLISHED 1870.

Light Weight Felts

$3.00 Hats.............................. $1.50
$2.50 Hats.............................. 1.25
$2.00 Hats.............................. 1.00

These are this season's style. All sizes.

S. A. HYMAN & CO.

GLASGOW WAREHOUSE.

Whitewear Sale

33⅓ Per Cent. Saturday Night

To clear in a hurry, at 7 30. We have decided to place on sale a quantity of Ladies' Whitewear, consisting of Corset Covers, Drawers, Skirts and Gowns, some of which are a little soiled and some are not, at exactly

1-3 off

The present low prices.

Adding to this special sale we will give our customers the privilege of selecting from a list of Ready-to-wear Cotton Skirts and Blouses.

15 only Shirt Waists that were $1 00, $1.25 and $1 50, for	50c
3 only Navy Blue Spot Duck Skirts that were $2 50 for	$1.75
10 only Linen Crash Skirts, nicely trimmed, that were $2.50, for - - - - - -	$1 75
11 only Navy, Grey and Resida Denim Skirts that were $2 00, for - - - - - -	$1 45
7 only Linen Crash Skirts that were 85c for - -	65c

Come early as there is only a limited quantity.

Laidlaw & Ketcheson

DIRECT IMPORTERS

Daily Intelligencer.

THE INTELLIGENCER IS SOLD AT J. W. London's and G. Wardhaugh's.

Local Reading Advertisements.

words 50 cents; 2 cents per word first insertion, per word subsequent consecutive insertions. Headlines count as 12 words; contracts for long periods made at office.

World's Best Sweets.

It will pay you always when you need confectionery to come here and get Lowney's goods. We are sure there is nothing better made in the world. The purity of Lowney's Candies is assured, and they are always just as delicious as they are pure. We have a large variety of chocolates, bon bons, etc., in packages, from 5c to 75c.

McKeown's DRUG STORE

Some Form of Brick Ice Cream

Served in our rooms every afternoon and evening.

This afternoon we have Vanilla with Cherries. This evening Chocolate with crushed walnuts. 10c a dish.

CHAS. S. CLAPP

The Sun & Hastings Savings and Loan Co. of Ontario.

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL $5,000,000.

3 1-2 per cent. allowed on Deposits, payable on Call,

4 per cent. on Deposits for one year or over.

Money to Loan upon favorable terms.

OFFICE, No. 46 Bridge St., Belleville,

J. P. C. PHILLIPS,
Manager Belleville Branch.

An eagle can live 20 days without food, and a condor 40 days.

MONITOR

This is another fine Mantle Clock, not quite so expensive as Gadski in last week's advertisement, but fully as serviceable. It is an eight-day hour and half strike on cathedral gong, fancy columns with trimmings and drop handles, in every way a beautiful clock. Our price only $5 50.

T. BLACKBURN.

Eyes examined free of charge. Jeweller & Optician.

Specials For Saturday

6 Cups and Saucers Iron Stone China	25c
6 only Iron stone Breakfast Plates for	30c
White Iron Stone Chambers, best quality	25c
Printed Iron Stone Pitchers, hold 3 pts. 40c for	25c
5 lb. Butter Crocks	7c
Large White Wash Basins, Iron Stone China,	37c
White Bedroom Pitchers 50c for	35c
Beautiful China Butter Dishes	25c
Large size Printed Salad Bowls, China 40c for	25c
Double Egg Cup (Glass and China)	5c
Glass Lemon Squeezers	5c
Glass Lemon Squeezers	15c, 10
English Rockingham Tea-Pots, Black and Decorated	25c
Fruit Jars, all sizes and at lowest prices.
Fruit Jar Rings 5c per dozen.
Japanese fans 10 and 15c for	5c
White, Cream, Black and Pink Silk and Satin Neck Ribbon 18c and 20c for	13c
Ladies' Puff Combs 20c for	14c
Patent Medicines of all kinds at very low prices. at

McINTOSH BROS.

THE MARKETS.

Wheat Strong at Chicago—Liverpool Cables Do Not Follow the Advance—Live Stock—The Quotations.

Thursday Evening, July 9.

Liverpool wheat futures closed ¾d lower to-day than yesterday and corn futures unchanged to ⅛d higher.

At Chicago Sept. wheat advanced 1⅝c higher than yesterday; Sept. corn ¼c higher and Sept. oats ⅛c higher.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

London—Close—Wheat, on passage, buyers indifferent operators. Parcels No. 1 northern Manitoba, passage, 30s 3d. Maize, on passage, quiet but steady. Spot American mixed, 22s 6d.

Paris—Close—Wheat, tone dull; July, 23f; Sept. and Nov., 22f 35c. Flour, tone dull; July, 33f 15c; Sept. and November, 30f 35c.

Antwerp—Wheat, spot, quiet; No. 2 R. W., 16¾f.

LEADING WHEAT MARKETS.

Following are the closing quotations at important wheat centres to-day:

	Cash.	July.	Sept.	Dec.
New York	....	....	82⅜	82⅜
Chicago	....	....	78⅜	77⅞
Toledo	79¼	79¼	79¼	....
Duluth, No. 1 N.	86½	85½	78⅜	75⅜

TORONTO ST. LAWRENCE MARKET.

Grain—

Wheat, red, bush	$0 76 to	$0 77
Wheat, white, bush	0 77	....
Wheat, spring, bush	0 70	0 72
Wheat, goose, bush	0 70½	....
Barley, bush	0 42½	....
Beans, bush	1 30	1 50
Beans, hand-picked	1 75	....
Peas, bush	0 78½	....
Rye, bush	0 45	....
Oats, bush	0 35½	0 36

LIVERPOOL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

Liverpool, July 9.—Close—Wheat, spot dull; No. 2 red western winter, 6s 2d; No. 1 northern spring, 6s 5d; No. 1 California, 6s 6½d. Futures, quiet: July, 6s 5⅛d; Sept., 6s 8¼d; Dec., 6s 7¾d. Corn—Spot, quiet: American mixed, 4s 9⅞d. Futures, steady; July, 4s 8¼d; Sept., 4s 6⅞d.

Bacon, short clear backs, quiet, 49s; clear bellies, steady, 47s; shoulders, square, quiet, 38s 6d. Lard, American refined, in pails, easy, 39s. Cotton seed oil, Hull refined, spot firm, 22s 9d.

NEW YORK DAIRY MARKET.

New York, July 9.—Butter, steady to firm, unchanged; receipts, 9193.

Cheese—Weak; receipts, 8949; state, full cream, large colored fancy, 10c; do., white, fancy, 10c; do., fair to prime, 8⅜c to 9⅜c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—American Markets Steady and Firm for Exporters.

London, July 9.—Live cattle steady at 11½c to 12c per lb. for American steers, dressed weight; Canadian steers, 10½c to 11½c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 9⅜c per lb.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Receipts of live stock were large, 100 car loads, composed of 1282 cattle, 1225 hogs, 2252 sheep and lambs and 140 calves.

Exporters—Best loads exporters are worth $5 to $5.20 per cwt.; medium to good at about $4.75 to $4.90.

Export Bulls—Choice quality bulls sold at $4 to $4.30 per cwt.; good bulls sold at $3.60 to $3 80 per cwt.

Export Cows—Export cows sold at $4.25 per cwt.

Butchers' Cattle—Choice picked lots of butchers, weighing from 1025 to 1100 lbs. each, equal in quality to best exporters, sold at $4.60 to $4.70; loads of good sold at $4.50 to $4.60; fair to good, $4.30; common, $4 to $4.25; rough to inferior, $2.75 to $2.85.

Feeders—Steers of good quality, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, are worth $4 to $4.40 per cwt.

Short-keep Feeders—Good steers, 1100 to 1200 lbs. each, are worth $4.50 to $4.60 per cwt.

Stockers—One-year to two-year-old steers, 400 to 700 lbs. each, are worth $3.50 to $4.00 per cwt.; off-colors and of poor breeding quality of same weights are worth $2.75 to $3 per cwt.

Milch Cows—Milch cows and springers are worth $25 to $50 each.

Calves—Calves sold at $2 to $10 each, or from $3.50 to $5.50 per cwt.

Sheep—Prices, $3.50 to $3.00 per cwt. for ewes, and bucks at $2.75 to $3.

Spring Lambs—Prices easy at $2.50 to $4 each.

Hogs—Best select bacon hogs, not less than 160 lbs., nor more than 200 lbs. each, off cars, sold at $5.65 per cwt.; lights and fats at $5.40; sows, $4 to $4.25 per cwt., and stags, $2 to $3 per cwt.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, July 9.—About 500 head of butchers' cattle, 250 calves and 900 sheep and lambs were offered for sale at the East End Abattoir to-day. A considerable number of the cattle were held over from yesterday's market. The warm weather and over supplies of stock had a very depressing effect on prices. Cattle being fully one-quarter of a cent per lb. lower than a week ago and the sheep and lambs especially the latter are also declining in price. Prime beeves sold at about 4¾c per lb.; medium cattle, at from 3½c to 4½c and the common stock at from 2½c to 3¼c per lb. A clearance will not be made to-day. Calves sold at from $2 to $8 each, or from 3c to 5c per lb. Shippers paid from 3½c to 3¾c per lb. for good large sheep and the butchers paid from 2¾c to 3¼c for the others. Only choice lambs bring over $3.50 each, or 4½c per lb. Fat hogs sold at from 5¼c to 5⅜c per lb., weighed off the cars.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, July 9.—Cattle—Receipts, 350 head; market steady to strong; prime shipping steers, $4.90 to $5.15; butchers' steers, $3.85 to $4.75; cows and heifers, $2.50 to $4.35; stockers and feeders, $3 to $4.15. Veals—Receipts, 180 head; steady, $5.25 to $6.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 6200 head; fairly active, 5c to 10c lower; heavy, $5.60 to $5.65; mixed, $5.70 to $5.80; yorkers, $6; light yorkers, $6 to $6.10; pigs, $6.30 to $6.35; roughs, $4.75 to $5; stags, $3.75 to $4; dairies, $5.50.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 600 head; active and steady; lambs, $4 to $8.25; yearlings, $4.25 to $4.50; ewes, $3.50 to $3.65; sheep, top mixed, $2 to $4.25; wethers, $4.25 to $4.50.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, July 9.—Cattle—Receipts, 7700, including 500 Texans; strong to 10c higher; good to prime steers, $5 to $6.50; poor to medium, $3.90 to $4.90; stockers and feeders, $2.50 to $4.50; cows and heifers, $1.50 to $4.50; canners, $1.50 to $2.75; bulls, $2.25 to $4.00; calves, $2.50 to $6; Texas-fed steers, $3.50 to $4.65.

Hogs—Receipts to-day, 20,000; to-morrow, 15,000; left over, 4000; 5c to 10c higher; close, weak; mixed and butchers', $5.45 to $5.75; good to choice heavy, $5.60 to $5.70; rough heavy, $5.25 to $5.50; light, $5.60 to $5.90; bulk of sales, $5.55 to $5.65.

Sheep—Receipts, 10000; sheep and lambs steady; good to choice wethers, $3.75 to $4; fair to choice mixed, $3 to $3.50; Western sheep, $2.50 to $4.25; native lambs, $3 to $6.50.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Tweed, Ont., July 9.—There were 895 boarded here to-day; 700 sold at 9 3-16c; balance unsold.

Kingston, July 9.—To-day 1450 boxes of cheese were boarded on the Frontenac Board; 215 boxes of the stock were taken at 9½c.

Vankleek Hill, Ont., July 9.—There were 1111 boxes of white cheese and 84 boxes of colored cheese boarded here to-day. Bidding commenced at 8½c, but was finally raised to 9½c for white and 9⅝c for colored. At this price all sold on the board. McGregor got 38, Fraser got 371 white and 84 colored, Welch got 330, all white at 9½c. Colored sold at 9⅝c. There were eight buyers present: McGregor, Welsh, Fraser, Pitt, Denning, Bennett, Wegar and McRae.

Manchester, Ont., July 9.—Cheese board held here this evening; white 613, colored 705, were boarded; price bid 9⅝c. Sold: White 213 and colored 298. Buyers: Messrs. Ault, Logan, Keenan, Weir and Gibson.

Curious Bits of News.

A man in Tennessee got four cords of wood, three gallons of honey and five coons from a single tree. "Take care of the forests if you want to get rich," comments the local paper which announces the man's good luck.

A Yankee country weekly prints an advertisement, according to the New York "Press," that deserves a response. It reads: "If John Smith, who twenty years ago deserted his poor wife and babe, will return, said babe will knock the stuffing out of him."

Matthew J. Steffens, a Chicago photographer, has invented and patented an automatic "nickel-in-the-slot" photographing machine which will make a complete picture in twenty seconds. The machine is called the "photographist," and is as simple as it is remarkable. It is the first automatic picture-making machine which has been perfected in the world, and Mr. Steffens looks for large results from the invention. He will not manufacture and sell the machines himself, but will sell the right or franchise for the different States and cities to individual companies which will place them on the market. He has already sold several "rights" in New York and elsewhere.

It is hard to realize that the bootblack is an invention of the last half-century, yet he is now celebrating, in London, the fiftieth anniversary of his appearance. He came upon the scene in 1851, the year of the great exhibition in London, the first of the "world's fairs." The city was full of visitors from all parts of the world, and the problem of the street arab was a serious one. Mr. Macgregor of the famous Rob Roy canoe, suggested that the boys be organized into a great boot-blacking brigade, and he himself made the first box for holding the "kit," the model of those still in use. Idlers jeered the boys at first, and sometimes stoned them, but the public found their services so convenient that the trade soon became profitable.

An annual increase of income in three Western States alone of over $22,000,000 from improvement of the wheat crop—this is what is being accomplished by the work of experimental wheat-breeding now carried on at the Minnesota Agricultural Station. This work and its results are described in the "World's Work" (May) by W. S. Harwood. The work of wheat-breeding, he says, was begun in France many years ago by M. Henri Vilmorin, more than a thousand new wheats having been tested by him. Ten years ago similar work was begun at the State institution in Minnesota. Mr. Harwood writes: "To create a new wheat, the pollen from the flower of one wheat must be artificially transferred to the stigma of the flower of another wheat. Wheat is a self-fertilizing plant. Left to itself, it will reproduce itself throughout endless centuries. Great care is necessary in the work, and trained men are essential. As soon as the pollen is transferred—which is done about four o'clock in the morning, at the hour when the wheat florets open—the head of wheat is encased in a tissue sack so that the work may not be interfered with by any pilfering insect or bird. Two of the best-known varieties are selected, one for the father, the other for the mother of the new race. When the harvest comes it may be that the new wheat has some of the poor and few of the good characteristics of the parents; or the reverse may be the case. It is impossible to say in advance what the new wheat will be. From the single head which results as the first harvest, only a handful of kernels is threshed out. This handful is of immense importance, for these kernels may become the source of a mighty race, destined not only to supplant the old wheats, but to add enormously to the wealth of the world."

BLOOD HUMOURS

Skin Humours, Scalp Humours, Hair Humours,

Whether Simple Scrofulous or Hereditary

Speedily Cured by Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills.

Complete Treatment for All Kinds of Humours.

In the treatment of torturing, disfiguring, itching, scaly, crusted, pimply, blotchy and scrofulous humours of the skin, scalp and blood, with loss of hair, Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills have been wonderfully successful. Even the most obstinate of constitutional humours, such as bad blood, scrofula, inherited and contagious humours, with loss of hair, glandular swellings, ulcerous patches in the throat and mouth, sore eyes, copper-coloured blotches, as well as boils, carbuncles, scurvy, sties, ulcers and sores arising from an impure or impoverished condition of the blood, yield to the Cuticura Treatment, when all other remedies fail.

And greater still, if possible, is the wonderful record of cures of torturing, disfiguring humours among infants and children. The suffering which Cuticura Remedies have alleviated among the young, and the comfort they have afforded worn-out and worried parents, have led to their adoption in countless homes as priceless curatives for the skin and blood. Infantile and birth humours, milk crust, scalled head, eczema, rashes and every form of itching, scaly, pimply skin and scalp humours, with loss of hair, of infancy and childhood, are speedily, permanently and economically cured when all other remedies suitable for children, and even the best physicians, fail.

Cuticura Resolvent, liquid and in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap are sold throughout the world. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Australia, R. Towns & Co., Sydney; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chemical Corp., Sole Proprietors.

☞ Send for "The Great Humour Cure."

Anecdotal.

In "War's Brighter Side," Mr. Julian Ralph tells the following story of sentry humor: A French-Canadian member of the Royal Canadian Regiment of Infantry was doing sentry-go one night at Enslin (Graspan). The countersign for the night was "Halifax." Presently there came a strolling soldier, whom our gallant Canadian promptly challenged: "Who go dare?" "Friend." "Advance, fren, and pace on—and say 'Haversack'—all is vale."

The burial service of the Church of England is not very well known in Scotland. An English parson touring in the North was hurriedly called upon to read the service over the mortal remains of an old resident of the Episcopal faith. Reaching that part of the burial service referring to "the soul of our dear brother (or sister) departed," he paused momentarily to ask the nearest mourner in a stage aside, "Brother or sister?" The mourner addressed at once answered, "Nae relation at all, sir; just the auld landlady from the inn."

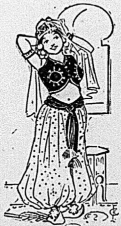
Lord Cardwell was in the habit of using the church prayers at family prayers. One day his valet came to him and said: "I must leave your lordship's service at once." "Why, what have you to complain of?" "Nothing personally, but your lordship will repeat every morning: 'We have done those things which we ought not to have done, and have left undone those things which we ought to have done.' Now I freely admit that I have often done things I ought not, but that I have left undone things that I ought to have done, I utterly deny; and I will not stay here to hear it said."

In one of the later settlements of New South Wales a man was put on trial for stealing a watch. The evidence had been very conflicting, and as the jury retired the judge remarked kindly that if he could give any assistance in the way of smoothing out possible difficulties he should be happy to do so. Eleven of the jury had filed out of the box, but the twelfth remained, and the expression on his face showed that he was in deep trouble. "Well, sir," remarked the judge, "is there any question you would like to ask me before you retire?" The juror's face brightened, and he replied eagerly: "I would like to know, my lord, if you could tell us whether the prisoner stole the watch."

An English lord of the manor was returning home one night, when he found a country bumpkin standing by the kitchen door with a lantern in his hand. "What are you doing here?" the lord asked, roughly. "I've come a-coortin', sir," was the reply. "A-courting? What do you mean by that?" "I'm a follower o' Mary, the kitchen maid." "Is it your habit to carry a lantern when you are on such errands?" "Yes, sir." "Nonsense!" retorted the master, angrily. "Don't talk such stuff to me! Be off with yourself! Courting with a lantern! When I was young I never used such a thing." "No, sir," said the yokel, moving rapidly away. "Judgin' by the missus, I shouldn't think ye did."

A new book about the Sultan describes that sovereign as the possessor of an overmastering hobby—the collection of animals. It is said that on one occasion, in 1882, Musurus Pacha, the Turkish Ambassador, waited three days in great anxiety for a reply to a communication to the Sultan, at the instance of Mr. Gladstone, on the subject of Egypt. At length a long despatch arrived; it was an order for some wild sheep which Abdul Hamid wanted for his park. The Sultan is very fond of parrots. But once a favorite bird called out the name of a eunuch, Djafer, who came in obedience, as he thought, to the voice of his master. Abdul wrung the bird's neck with his own hands, saying, "In this palace there must be only one voice to command."

Lord Justice Clark Braxfield of Scotland was a man of few words and strong business habits. In courting his second wife his procedure was entirely illustrative of the peculiarities of his character. Calling on the lady, he said to her, without preliminary remark: "Lizzie, I am looking out for a wife, and I thought you just the person that would suit me. Let me have your answer, 'Yes' or 'No,' the morn, and nae mair about it." The lady, the next day, replied in the affirmative. Perhaps he repented his precipitancy, for when a butler gave warning, on account of Mrs. Braxfield's scolding propensities, the judge replied: "Lord, mon, ye've little to complain o'; ye may be thankful ye're no married to her."



A waist of raw material.—N.Y. "Life."

In the Days of Less.

The coatless man puts a careless arm
'Round the waist of the hatless girl,
As over the dustless and mudless roads
In a horseless carriage they whirl.
Like a leadless bullet from hammerless gun,
By smokeless powder driven,
They fly to taste the speechless joy
By endless union given.
Though the only lunch his coinless purse
Affords to them the means
Is a tasteless meal of boneless cod
With a "side" of stringless beans,
He puffs a tobaccoless cigarette
And laughs a mirthless laugh
When papa tries to coax her back
By wireless telegraph.
—Ex.

This is the maid with lovely eyes.
Like some fair dream of lands afar;
With Abbey's Salt, her health defies
Those baleful ills which beauty mar.

THE JOY OF PERFECT HEALTH, how slightly prized by its possessors and how eagerly sought for by the thousands of pale, sallow women who are a prey to chronic constipation and all the ills which follow in its train—Indigestion—Sour Stomach—Nausea—Headache—etc., etc.

ABBEY'S SALT is nature's own cure for all these troubles. The simplest, safest, surest aperient; no pain—no re-action.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt

Gives Pale, Sallow Women the Glow of Health.

Great Clearing Out Sale.

NATHAN JONES.

We have now made a general reduction on our entire stock.

Ladies' Whitewear

We offer our stock of Whitewear and Summer Vests at 33 1-3 per cent. discount.

Corsets

We have all the latest styles in Corsets You should see our 40c, 60c & 80c lines.

Parasols

Our stock of Parasols are all new goods. We would like you to see quality and price.

Prints

We would call your attention to our fine washing prints

10c lines now - -	8c
12½ & 15c lines now -	10c

20 per cent. Discount off our Dress Goods.

NATHAN JONES.

SPECIAL OFFER

MIDSUMMER CLUBBING RATES.

Two Papers to January 1st, 1904

Family Herald & Weekly Star, and the Best Home Paper—The Weekly Intelligencer, BOTH for

65 CENTS

We are making this special offer as we require 1000 new subscriptions to our Weekly.

This offer is good to new subscribers only.

ADDRESS——
The Weekly Intelligencer
BELLEVILLE, ONT.

No agents handle this offer.

For Torpid Liver, Flatulence, Constipation, Billiousness and Sick Headache, TAKE

BRISTOL'S Pills

Safe, Mild, Quick-acting, Painless, do not weaken, and always give satisfaction.

reliable Household Medicine, can be taken at any season, by Adults or Children.

Druggists sell "BRISTOL'S."

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE

FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

The Daily Intelligencer.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL — LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL — CHA[illegible] ALL.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, JULY 11, 1903 NO. 59

RECEIVED ROYAL ASSENT.

Lord Minto in Senate Chamber Assented to Many Bills.

Barr and His Colonists Discussed in the House of Commons—Mr. Sifton Denies That the Government Was Financially Interested in the Matter—A Statement of Government's Transportation Policy Promised in a Few Days.

Ottawa, July 11.—His Excellency the Governor-General attended in the Senate at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and gave the royal assent to the following bills, which had passed both Houses, including an interim supply bill:

To incorporate the Home Bank of Canada.

Respecting the Quebec Bridge Company and to change its name to the Quebec Bridge and Railway Company.

Respecting the Vancouver and Coast Kootenay Railway Company.

To confer on the Commissioner of Patents certain powers for the relief of James S. McDougall.

Respecting the London and Port Stanley Railway Company.

Respecting the Rocky Mountain Railway Company.

To incorporate the New Canadian Company, Limited.

To amend Chapter 27 of the revised statutes, respecting the Department of Public Printing and Stationery.

Respecting and restricting Chinese immigration.

To amend the Customs Act.

To provide for further advances to the Harbor Commissioners of Montreal.

Respecting certain acts for the extension of the Canadian Northern Railway.

To incorporate the Lumberman's Fire Insurance Company.

To aid in the settlement of railway labor disputes.

An act for granting to His Majesty certain sums of money for the public service of the financial years ending, respectively, June 30, 1903, and June 30, 1904.

The Barr Colonists.

The woes of the Barr colony were ventilated in the Commons yesterday. The subject was brought up by Mr. E. F. Clarke, who read a speech delivered in the Northwest Legislature by Premier Haultain, in which the mismanagement of the whole affair was commented upon and a demand on the Government made for a thorough investigation. Premier Haultain's statement was, that judging from conversations with members of the Barr colony there had been gross mismanagement in its financial dealings. Mr. Clarke insisted that the Government's connection with the scheme was such that an investigation was necessary.

Mr. Sifton's Defence.

Mr. Sifton's defence was that he had not previously had his attention called to Mr. Haultain's speech. As to Mr. Barr, all the department had done in the way of assisting him was to set apart a certain block of land for the colony: that the department being doubtful of Mr. Barr's abilities to handle the project had seen to it that the colonists upon their arrival in Canada were well looked after. The Government had nothing to do with the financial relations between the colonists and Dr. Barr, and those of them who had applied for information at the London office had been informed there was no need of an intermediary if they wished to settle in Canada. In view of the fact that the department had had nothing to do with Mr. Barr it was not quite clear to the Minister what there was to investigate, but he promised to look into the matter.

Mr. Borden said that on the basis of two thousand immigrants, Mr. Barr would receive a bonus of $12,000, as he was getting 25 shillings per head from the steamship company, and seven shillings from the Government. Moreover, Mr. Preston had declared that "from the very first the Canadian Government had this party in charge."

Mr. Sifton said that no body of people had been treated with such consideration and care by the Department of the Interior. People were sent out to put up tents for them with stoves and temporary stopping places erected at every twenty miles of their journey on the prairie. They had also been provided with farming instructors. The immigration officials in England had more difficulty in meeting the statements against the treatment of immigrants made by members of the Opposition than in meeting complaints of the Barr colonists. Mr. Sifton declared he had proof that not a single one of the original Barr settlers had returned to England.

Mr. E. F. Clarke asked if the Minister had anything to contradict in the statement of Mr. Haultain as to the necessity for an investigation.

Mr. Sifton replied that he knew nothing of the financial relations between Mr. Barr and the colonists. All the department had to do with Mr. Barr was to set apart certain townships for the colonists, but the department had not agreed to pay Mr. Barr anything. It was unfortunate that the financial arrangements between Mr. Barr and the colonists had turned out so badly, but no complaint had been made to the department, and there was no case for investigation.

Mr. Borden submitted that it was the duty of the Government to telegraph Mr. Preston and find out if it were true that he had stated that the Government was to pay Mr. Barr seven shillings per head for the settlers, a statement that was entirely at variance with the statement of the Minister.

Mr. Henderson of Halton defended Rev. Mr. Barr as a man of sterling character, who fell from his high estate when he came in contact with the corrupting influences of the Interior Department.

This ended the discussion.

Statement in a Few Days.

In reply to a question by Mr. Haggart, Sir William Mulock said the Government would announce its transportation policy in a few days.

Sir William said that Sir William Van Horne had definitely replied that he could not act on the commission at present, and the question before the Government was whether they should postpone the issuing of the commission until Sir William Van Horne could act or should appoint someone else.

During the hour for private bills, the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway Company's bill and the Depew patent bill were read a third time and passed.

The bill to incorporate the Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia Railway Company was passed with an amendment providing that the road shall not run within five miles of the Quebec and New Brunswick Railway, except with permission of the Governor-in-Council.

The House went into committee on the estimates of the Indian Department, and made good progress.

The House adjourned at 11 o'clock.

The Bill Talked Out.

Ottawa, July 11.—The act to incorporate the Canadian Telephone and Telegraph Company was taken up by the Railway Committee yesterday morning at section eight. The bill was talked out.

SINCLAIR'S

Saturday All=Day Sale

These are some of the many lines we offer for our Saturday All-Day Sale.

25 Ladies' Print and Sateen Dresses from $2.75 to $6.50 will be sold at Half Price.

14 Ladies' All Wool Dress Skirts, light colors from $4.50 to $6.50 will sell for ..... $1.65 each.

All our Dress Muslins from 15 to 20c will sell for .... 10c a yard

All our Fancy Dress Muslins from 25c to 35c will sell for .... 19c.

All our Best Dress Muslins from 40c to 60c will sell for .... 35c a yard.

All our Fancy Dress Sateens from 25c to 35c will sell for .... 15c a yard

12 patterns of 50c Linen and Silk Stripe Waistings will sell for .. 25c a yard.

10 doz Ladies' Fancy Silk Stock Collars will sell for .... 25c each

8 doz. Children's Cotton Bleached Vests, buttoned front will sell for 5c each

Special Hosiery Sale

For Saturday All-Day we offer all our Ladies' and Children's Fancy Cotton and Lisle Thread Stockings at a discount of 20 per cent. or 1-5 off regular prices.

These prices are good for All-Day Saturday.

D. V. Sinclair & Co.

Ontario Remodelled.

Ottawa, July 11.—The Redistribution Committee last night practically finished remodelling the Ontario constituencies.

DROWNING ACCIDENTS.

George Harcourt Goes Down in Toronto Bay—Vaughan Johnston Sinks in Seven Feet of Water.

Toronto, July 11.—George Harcourt, son of Richard Harcourt of Elm Grove avenue, was drowned at the foot of Waverley road, near Balmy Beach, yesterday morning. He was out sailing and must have rolled off into the water without any outcry, some time before his friends noticed his absence. Deceased was 19 years of age, and a night clerk at the general office of the Canadian Express Company.

Drowned in Jordan Bay.

Jordan Harbor, July 11.—A young man named Vaughan Johnston, of Niagara Falls, Ont., was drowned in the bay at this place last evening, about 8 p.m., directly in front of Jordan Harbor, P.O. He, in company with two other young men, went in bathing. All three were unable to swim. It is supposed he took a cramp, as, after sinking once or twice, he never rose. The water was not over 7 feet deep. Owing to the excitement the location of the place where he sank was lost. A number of parties were quickly at work wading and grappling, but it was half an hour before the body was recovered. Dr. Addi was at once summoned and worked over the body for nearly one hour, but life was extinct. Johnston was here in the employ of William Fretz.

Threw Himself Into River.

Ottawa, July 11.—Harold Winters, No. 1 Company, Royal Canadian Regiment, London, threw himself in the Ottawa River at Rockliffe yesterday morning. Winters had all his clothes on. He was 30 years of age, and was attending the school of musketry now going on at Rockliffe. His body has not yet been found.

The White Star Burned.

Toronto, July 11.—In a spectacular fire, the steamer White Star was burned to the water's edge at the city dock at the foot of Bay street at 1 o'clock this morning. Thirteen people, including three women, who were on board, escaped in their night attire. The fire also badly burned a great part of the wharfing and destroyed a quantity of singles that were piled near by. The ferry boat Kathleen was shoved out into the bay to avoid ignition from the flames, and the Shamrock and Mayflower were also in danger for a short time from the showers of sparks. There was a brisk breeze, and the fire had great headway before the firemen were called. In an hour the steamer was practically only a smouldering hulk.

For Palma Trophy.

London, July 11.—Lieut.-Col. Sherwood, who is in command of the Bisley team, expresses himself as well satisfied with the team practice. The members have been shooting in good form.

The following team has been selected from the Canadians at Bisley to represent Canada in the Palma competition to be shot off to-day: T. H. Hayhurst of the 13th, J. M. Jones of the 32nd, W. C. King of the 46th, E. C. O'Brien of the 20th, J. T. Peddie of the 5th Royal Scots, J. H. Simpson of the 10th Royal Grenadiers, J. Duff Stuart of the 6th D.C.O.R., and J. White of the 13th.

University Federation.

Toronto, July 11.—A deputation representing Trinity University and Toronto University waited on the provincial conference yesterday afternoon and submitted a scheme for the federation of the two universities and the union of the medical faculties. The memorandum was confidential and the press were not favored with copies. It will be submitted to the governing bodies of the universities as well as the faculties of the medical schools.

Mayor Wins Out.

Windsor, July 11.—Judge McHugh yesterday set aside the conviction by Magistrate McGee, in the case of Mayor Drault of Amherstburg, who was fined for alleged entering the bar of the Lakeview Hotel on Saturday, June 6. The question of errors in filling the appeal was raised on behalf of the Crown and Judge McHugh reserved judgment on this point.

Torn by Machinery.

London, July 11.—Sydney Parrot, a young man employed at White's boiler works, was testing a threshing engine when he came in contact with the revolving cylinder, and his clothing was caught in the iron teeth and he was dragged into the machinery. Luckily some of the workmen saw him and stopped the engine, which saved his life. The left side of the abdomen, from the hip up, however, was badly torn before he was liberated.

A Baby Strangled.

Galt, July 11.—The seven-months-old child of Charles Watson of Blair fell out of its carriage yesterday morning, and, getting its neck in the strap, was strangled. The mother had left the baby for only a few minutes. The shock of finding it dead on her return has prostrated her.

HIS HOUR HAS NOT YET COME

General Feeling of Tranquility Marked Friday in Rome.

The People Permeated by the Sublime Self-Confidence of His Holiness—A Second Operation Performed With Good Results—The Pope, at 4.50 This Morning Was Restless and Chloral Was Administered.

Rome, July 11.—(12.10 a. m.)—A general feeling of tranqulity marked the day in Rome yesterday, due to the widespread belief that, though the Pope's days are numbered, his hour has not yet come. The sublime self-confidence of the patient permeates the people, especially the simple folk, who go about their day's work, postponing signs of sorrow and mourning until from the sick bed itself they hear that the unusual struggle is nearing its end.

The Second Operation.

Dr. Mazzoni's operation yesterday morning was almost identical with that of Tuesday afternoon. The patient lay on his couch, with his side exposed. The skin above the affected parts was washed with a solution of alcohol, cocaine was hypodermically injected, and Dr. Mazzoni inserted a Pravaz needle, which, by suction, drew off the vitiated matter. The operation was comparatively painless, and was performed without recourse to chloroform or other anesthetics. After the operation the Pope felt so relieved that he insisted on getting up, and took several steps towards his armchair and seated himself for a few minutes. He shen rose, going to the book shelves where he keeps his favorite authors, took down Horace's "Ars Poetica," returned to the armchair and began reading, holding one leg over the other. He seemed to feel no ill effects from the operation. On the contrary, he appeared to have derived benefit from it. Later in the day the Pope had lunch and then took a long rest.

THE BULLETINS.

July 10.—10.30 a.m.—The august patient passed the first part of the night fairly peacefully, but afterwards the difficulty in his breathing became more marked, coupled with discomfort and an increase of the feeling of oppression. The pulse is small and weak, at the rate of 92. Apyrexia was complete and there was a little diuresis. A flow of endopleuritic matter being observed, a second operation was decided upon and immediately performed by Dr. Mazzoni. About a thousand grammes of bloody serum was extracted. The Pontiff bore the second operation very well, and in consequence of it both the respiration and the power of the heart at once improved. (Signed) Rossini, Lapponi, Mazzoni.

9 p.m.—The following bulletin has just been issued: "During the day His Holiness had hours of rest without suffering. His pulse maintains its frequency and force. This morning, after operation, his pulsation was 92, his respiration 28, and his temperature 36 centigrade. The kidneys continue functionally deficient. His general state is stationary."

Had Refreshing Sleep.

July 11.—2.10 a.m.—The Pope just awakened afreshed from sleep, which lasted over two hours.

4.50 a.m.—Since awakening the Pontiff has been restless, and a dose of chloral was administered.

TRAIN FALLS 2,000 FEET.

Three Engines and 20 Cars Jump Track—Five Men Disappear.

Canon City, Col., July 11.—Three engines and twenty cars of a freight train have jumped the Denver & Rio Grande track in the Royal Gorge and plunged into the Arkansas River, a sheer fall of 2,000 feet. The engines have not yet been found. Ten freight cars are also missing. The river is very deep and high and the current runs at a terrific speed. The three engineers, a fireman and a brakeman disappeared in the wreck.

HEAT THAT KILLED.

In New York and Brooklyn 22 Deaths Were Due to Heat.

New York, July 11.—Twenty-two deaths and sixty-five prostrations in and around New York and Brooklyn tell the story of yesterday's heat. It was the hottest July 10 in the history of the local weather bureau, the highest previous record being 91 degrees on July 10, 1880.

Statue of Sir Oliver Mowat.

Toronto, July 11.—Walter S. Alward, who designed the statue of Governor Simcoe in Queen's Park, has been commissioned by the Ontario Government to model a statue of the late Sir Oliver Mowat. The statue will be of bronze, nine feet high 19 Had to Go Back.

Quebec, July 11.—Nineteen immigrants from Europe, who are suffering from trachoma, brought to Quebec by the C.P.R. line, were deported yesterday morning by the Lake Champlain.

Killed by a Train.

Bracebridge, July 11.—James W. Bygott of Sterling, Ont., father of J. M. Bygott, station agent at Bracebridge, about 4 o.clock, was struck by a Grand Trunk freight train and killed.

THE G.T. PACIFIC CHARTER

Will Have New Clauses Added When Next It Comes Up.

These Are Necessary to Make It Square With the Scheme of Government Ownership—The Directors to Be Authorized as Construction Company For the Government—Company to Have Power to Build Branch Lines.

Ottawa, July 11.—When next the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Bill comes up in committee of the whole House, a number of amendments will be moved to make the charter square with the scheme of Government assistance. One of the new clauses will be as follows:

"The directors of the company shall have power to enter into an agreement, or agreements, with the Government of Canada, or with the commissioners authorized to enter such agreements on behalf of the Government of Canada, respecting the construction and operation of a line of railway or any portion thereof, to be the property of the Government, between the city of Moncton, N. B., and the city of Winnipeg, Man."

It is provided, however, that the agreement shall only take effect after sanction of the shareholders. There will be added to the clause of the bill designating the route of the G. T. P., the following:

"Provided also that should the Government of Canada undertake the construction of a line of railway from Winnipeg to Moncton, and the company does not exercise the powers hereby conferred upon it in respect to the construction of the eastern section, the Quebec section and the Woodland section, the company shall nevertheless have power to build branch lines from points on the line of railway to be constructed by the Government to a point at or near North Bay, Nipissing Junction or Gravenhurst, and to Port Arthur and Port William, respectively, and also to a point on the Montreal and Western Railway, or to the city of Montreal."

Those who have been fighting the battle of the municipalities will have satisfaction in reading the new clause relating to the construction of short tramways for the carriage of ore and other freight. It contains a provision that "no such tramway shall be constructed upon or along any street, highway or other public place within the limits of any municipality until the company shall have first obtained the consent of such municipality within which such street, highway or other public place is situate."

Another amendment provides that "a majority of the directors of the company shall be residents of Canada."

To the names of directors are added: Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, Lord Welby, John Clutter Brock, Joseph Price and A. W. Granthers. The capital is to be reduced from $75,000,000 to $40,000,000.

BASEBALL FRIDAY.

The Eastern League.

Toronto .... 3 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 *—4
Providence ..... 0 0 3 0 0 0 0 0 0—3

Two-base hit—Crisham. Home run—Massey. Stolen bases—Bruce, Brodie, Crisham. Sacrifice hits—White, Miller. Double-play—Connor, Francis and Crisham. Struck out—By Briggs 4, by Viau 1. Time—1.30. Umpire—Brown.

R.H.E.
Buffalo .... 4 1 0 0 1 1 0 0 2—9 8 [illegible]
Worcester .... 2 2 0 1 0 0 0 0 0—5 13 4

Batteries—Laroy, Hooker, Ferry and Laporte; Winham and McCauley. Umpire—Kelly. Attendance—600.

R.H.E.
Newark ...... 2 1 0 0 2 0 1 0 x—6 8 4
Baltimore .... 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1 8 1

Batteries—Moriarity and Shea; Pounds and Ahearn. Umpire—Swartwood. Attendance—4000.

R.H.E.
Jersey City.. 0 0 2 1 1 0 0 0 1 0—5 10 2
Rochester .. 0 1 2 0 0 0 1 1 0 1—6 13 1

Batteries—Pfanmiller and McManus; Leary and Fuller. Umpire—Shannon. Attendance—800.

National League Scores.

At Chicago—
R.H.E.
Chicago .... 0 0 0 2 0 0 4 1 *—7 15 2
Philadelphia ..... 3 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0—4 9 1

Batteries—Menefee and Kling; Duggleby and Slagel. Umpire—O'Day. Attendance—1203.

At St. Louis—
R.H.E.
St. Louis ..... 1 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—4 15 4
New York .... 1 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0—3 6 4

Batteries—MacFarland and O'Neil; Miller, McGinnity and Bowerman. Umpire—Moran. Attendance—1200.

At Cincinnati—
R.H.E.
Cincinnati ...... 1 1 0 2 0 0 0 2 *—6 13 1
Boston .... 0 0 0 2 1 0 0 1 1—5 12 3

Batteries—Harper and Peitz; Platt and Aubrey. Umpire—Holliday. Attendance—1564.

American League Results.

At Philadelphia—
R.H.E.
Cleveland .... 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 0 2—4 7 [illegible]
Philadelphia .. .. 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1 5 [illegible]

Batteries—Joss and Abbott; Coakley and Powers. Umpire—Hassett. Attendance—2683.

At New York—
R.H.E.
New York .... 0 0 0 3 0 0 0 0 0—3 5 1
St. Louis .... 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1 8 2

Batteries—Wolfe and Beville; Powell and Kane. Umpire—Sheridan. Attendance—1377.

At Boston—
R.H.E.
Boston .... 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 3 0—4 4 3
Chicago .... 3 3 0 0 2 0 0 0 0—8 14 2

Batteries—Hughes, Gibson and Stahl; Waite and Slattery. Umpire—Connolly. Attendance—2320.

At Washington—
R.H.E.
Washington .... 1 0 0 0 2 2 0 0 1—6 13 3
Detroit .... 0 3 0 0 1 2 1 2 1—10 15 3

Batteries—Orth and Kittredge; Donovan, McGuire and Buelow. Umpire—O'Loughlin. Attendance—1182.

A Convict Escapes.

Toronto, July 11.—A daring escape was made from Central Prison yesterday afternoon. Charles Quackenbush, a young Toronto burglar, dug through a section of the wall and got away. He had probably been at liberty but a few minutes when the hunt commence. He has not been caught and the police officials who know him are not sanguine of his early capture. Quackenbush had been confined there since April 20. Though but 21 years old, he is regarded by police authorities as an all round crook. He is hard to hold behind steel bars. He bears the distinction of having made three escapes from Toronto officials, all under circumstances requiring equal daring and ingenuity.

HAD QUICK CONSUMPTION.

"Three doctors said I had quick consumption. Angier's Petroleum Emulsion was prescribed. In six months I had gained fifty-nine pounds in weight, had no more night sweats or hemorrhages. Am now in perfect health."—B. H. Walton, Medford, Mass.

THE WEATHER.

To-day's Probs—

To-day and Sunday, moderate winds, mostly westerly, fair and moderately warm.

To-day's Temperature

As Registered by The Intelligencer's Guaranteed Thermometer:

8 a.m.	72
12 m.	82
2 p.m.	84

ALASKAN BOUNDARY CASE.

Chicago Newspaper Man Declares U.S. Commissioners Go to London Instructed Not to Give In.

Chicago, July 11.—The Tribune's Washington correspondent wires: Prof. O. H. Tittman, Superintendent of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, sails for Europe on July 23 on an important mission in connection with the Alaskan boundary question. The Alaskan Commission will meet in London early in August.

There will also be three British members of the commission and the belief is entertained that one of these will be won over to the American view and thus settle the dispute, which has been pending for years. With the strong case of the United States it is certain that none of the American representatives will yield to the British. There is excellent authority for the statement that the representatives will go to London with instructions to yield nothing, as the claim of the United States is so well authenticated. Unless the British yield there will be a disagreement by the commission and this will practically decide the case in favor of the United States, for in the event of the failure of the negotiations this Government will stand by its claims and retain control of the territory in dispute, and in all probability will decline to enter into further negotiations.

THE FISCAL ENQUIRY.

India Will Be Included—Experts From All Parts of the Empire Will Be Employed by Britain.

London, July 11.—The question of India's position in the coming fiscal enquiry was raised by Lord Northbrook (Liberal), formerly Governor-General of India, in the House of Lords yesterday afternoon, and brought out from Foreign Secretary Lansdowne a fuller statement of the Government's intention than had previously been elicited.

Lord Lansdowne said India would certainly be included in the inquiry. The Government intended to call ample expert evidence, not only from India, but from all other parts of the Empire. The interests of Great Britain and India would be fully considered from the economic, commercial and political standpoint, and thereafter the Government would publish the facts collected and give the public access to the same information on which the Government itself would rely in forming an opinion.

WAR IS IMMINENT.

Bulgaria Getting Ready to Cross Swords With Turkey.

Salonica, European Turkey, July 11.—In spite of the reassuring official advice from Constantinople the belief prevails here that war between Turkey and Bulgaria is imminent. Bulgarian bands in Macedonia are being reorganized, under officers sent from Sofia, to use as scouts and guerillas, and a large concentration of troops is taking place in the hills near Yenidye, though orders have been issued to avoid an immediate conflict with the Turks, who are concentrating large forces at Koumanovo.

War Clouds Have Rolled By.

Constantinople, July 11.—Official news received from Sofia is more reassuring. Bulgaria has abandoned her intention of reinforcing her troops on the frontier. In diplomatic circles a calm view of the situation is now taken, and it is believed the storm has passed away.

Judge Armour Grows Weaker.

London, July 11.—The latest bulletin concerning the condition of Judge Armour shows that his death is expected any moment. He is steadily growing weaker.

Strathcona as Host.

London, July 11.—Lord Strathcona dined the representatives of the Allied Universities at his Grosvenor Square residence yesterday.

Diarrhoea

When you want a quick cure without any loss of time, and one that is followed by no bad results, use

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. It is equally valuable for children. It is famous for its cures over a large part of the civilized world.

30 Retail Stores DAVIES 30 Retail Stores

Saturday Specials

Butter	A large consignment of Choice Dairy Butter	18c lb
	Finest Creamery Butter	20c lb
Bacon	New Mild Smoked Breakfast Bacon, by the whole or half side	13c lb
Hams	Sugar Cured, by the whole or half ham,	14c lb.
Tea	A 40c quality selling for 25c per lb., guaranteed best value in the city.
Peas,	Beans and Pumpkin, new stock, 3 cans for	25c
Beef	Our choice Western Beef is very much appreciated by the people of Belleville, try a roast for Sunday Dinner.
Cheese	Just arrived and fresh made, new mild cheese	14c lb
	Rich old cheese full flavor	16c lb

Daily Deliveries, Phone. 286.

The WM. DAVIES CO., Limited.

The Finnegan Carriage & Wagon Co.

—FOR—

Stylish and Durable Turnouts.

—Surreys
—Corning Buggies
—Piano Box Buggies
—Rubber Tire Buggies
—Micadoes
—Phaetons
—Bike Buggies
—Democrats
—Grocer Wagons
—Butcher Wagons

Cheese Factory Milk Wagons.
Steel Tubular Axle Lumber Wagons.

Rubber Tires put on your old wheels at reasonable prices.

Mill St., - - Belleville.

At Wallbridge & Clarke's. At Wallbridge & Clarke's

Supplies For Camp or Cruise

New York Biscuits

In "In-er Seal" pkgs.

Uneeda "Jinger" Wafers, Butter Gems, Cheese Biscuits, German Zwieback, Pretzelettes, etc., etc.

Christie's Fancy Biscuits

Fresh supplies every week — 40 varities.

Heintz's Pickles

Heintz's Celery Sauce.
Heintz's India Relish.
Heintz's Sweet Midgets.
Heintz's Sweet Pickles.

Spanish Olives

A fine assortment of Olives from 10cts per bottle up.

Campers Supplies

Essence of Coffee, Condensed Milk, Lime Juice, Raspberry Vinegar, Fancy Cheese, New Pack Lobster and Shrimps, French Sardines, Scallops, Devilled Crabs, Concentrated Soups, French Potage, Beef Extracts, etc., etc.

Pickles and Sauces

A complete assortment of English and American Pickles and Sauces, including Pickled Walnuts, Onions, Chow Chow, Lea & Perrin's Worcestershire Sauce, Yorkshire Relish, Mushroom Catsup, Harvey's Sauce, Sultana Sauce, Chutney's Capers, Durkee's Salad Dressing, etc., etc.

Delicious Teas

Wallbridge & Clarke's Delicious English Breakfast Teas in lead packets at 30, 40, 50 and 60cts per lb.

Canned Meats

New Packs. Finest Quality.

Whole Ox Tongues.
Lunch Tongues.
Lamb's Tongues.
Boned Chicken.
Boned Turkey.
Boned Duck.
Pate de foie.
Potted Ham.
Potted Tongue.
Sliced Dried Beef.
Ham Loaf.
Veal Loaf.
Chicken Tamales.
Lunch Beef.
Lunch Bacon.
Chicken, Ham and Tongue.
Pigs Feet.
Jellied Tenderloins.
Vienna Sausages.
Luncheon Sausages.
Baked Beans—plain or in Tomato or Chili Sauce, etc., etc., etc.

Ale and Stout, Wines, etc.

Carling's, Labatt and Davies' Dominion Ale, Bass' Ale, Dow's Sand Porter, Guinness' Stout, in prime condition.

Gurd's Ginger and Soda Water Appollinaris and Radnor Water.

Barton & Guestier's and Nath. Johnston's Bordeaux Clarets and Sauterne AT POPULAR PRICES.

Rhine Wine and Burgundy Cordials and Liqueurs.

Light Canadian Wines, red or white, at lowest prices.

WALLBRIDGE & CLARKE

EST'D. 1871.
BRIDGE ST. Tel. 139.

Branch Store
Front St.—Tel. 157.

Western Beef.

Prime Western Beef together with all kinds of choice meats, supplied by the district, at

C. GREEN'S
267 Front St., 'Phone 109.

The King is the first British monarch to play golf since the days of James II.

What to buy; when to sell; better determined by readers of our "Guide to Investors and Daily Market Letter." Both yours free—for the asking. Correspondence solicited.

HAIGHT & FREESE CO.

Stocks, Bonds, Grain, Cotton.
7 Melinda St., Toronto, Ont.

"Determining the character and financial responsibility of your Broker, is as important as selection of right stocks."

Daily Intelligencer.

A TRUE PICTURE OF ONTARIO GOVERNMENT.

Seldom is so much truth contained in so small a space as is to be found in the following extract. It contains a volume in itself. Coming as it does from the pen of a former editor of The Toronto Globe, who knows whereof he speaks, it should be accepted by every honest Liberal as a true picture of how Ontario is at present governed:

> "The administration of public affairs (in Ontario) is undergoing a serious deterioration. Electoral honesty has been assailed. The Crown Lands Department, once the pride of Ontario, has been plundered by machine politicians and greedy officials. The Liquor License Law, which touches serious questions of public morals, is badly administered. It is not a Conservative who says these things; it is a sound and life-long Liberal. The public service of the province needs to be put on a sound basis. Mr. Raney not only makes the diagnosis, he prescribes the remedy. "The blame rests primarily with public opinion, that is to say, with us."

TIMELY TOPICS

He strolled into the sanctum minus coat, vest and collar, and even then he didn't look comfortable. "Where are your coat and vest?" queried the scribe. "Where they ought to be, hanging on their hook at home," came the reply in crushing tones. And we inwardly admitted that he was right.

• • •

"Justice" will excuse Timely Topics if his letter of defence in re the sale of street rails is not published. The contemptible mercenary creature who attacks is too well-known in Belleville to merit even notice, much less consideration. The Intelligencer's course in aid of the Cement enterprise is too well-known by its readers to require defence from any one. It has not been of a pecuniary character such as actuate the leach, who sucks blood from every possible source.

• • •

If the City Council desires to give the street rails as a bonus to the Cement Company, let them submit a by-law to the people for that purpose, and it shall have the hearty support of The Intelligencer, but it will not be a party to dispose of city property by a fluke.

• • •

One of those useful-information paragraphs going the rounds asserts that fully 2,500 persons commit suicide in Russia every year. Probably "suicide" and "sass the police" are alike in Russia.

• • •

Now it's said that Great Salt Lake is growing fresh. This is probably as veracious as the recurrent talk that Mormonism is being obliterated.

• • •

An anti-flirting club has been organized in St. Petersburg, the penalty for flirting being $500 given to charity for the first offence, and $2,500 for the second. At this rate Russian charities ought to take a boom.

• • •

The story is told of a man who was riding on a train and pretended to become ill after eating a sandwich, says the Baltimore Herald. The man opened his grip and took out a hot water bag. He got a sympathetic porter to fill the bag with boiling water, and then he opened his luncheon basket, took out a piece of fried steak and warmed it up on the water bag. Then after he had warmed the steak he cut it all up with a pair of scissors and fed it to himself with sugar tongs, because he would not take a chance with a fork going around a curve. After he had eaten the steak he unscrewed the stopper of the water bag and poured himself out a cup of hot coffee. He had the grounds in the bag all the time.

WATER MELONS

Large, juicy, Southern Water melons 50 cents each.

Or 5 cents a slice. Big, generous slices ready to serve, and kept

ON ICE.

J. ARTHUR MARSH.

DON'T

Go camping out, without a bottle of MOSQUITO SCAT it's guaranteed to keep Flies, Mosquitoes, etc., away. A 15c bottle will ensure plenty of comfort and rest.

WATERS'

THE GLORIOUS TWELFTH.

THE ANNIVERSARY OF THE BATTLE OF BOYNE WILL BE FITTINGLY OBSERVED.

Before another issue of The Intelligencer appears the two hundred and thirteenth anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne will have been celebrated, and if appearances count for anything, with greater enthusiasm than ever. In cities, towns and rural districts the brethren are prepared, and the day fixed for the celebration will find thousands astir with their colors on their breasts, and warmth in their hearts, for the one whose memory is honored by the annual "walk." The custom never grows stale. In all parts of the province the enthusiasm is greater and the standard higher as the years revolve. Instead of declining, as used to be predicted, the Order is increasing, until there is hardly a place on this continent where some kind of celebration will not be held on the 11th, 12th or 13th.

A POPULAR ANNUAL EXCURSION.

The Baptist and John St. Presbyterian S.S.'s have engaged the elegant Str. Niagara for their excursion to 12 o'Clock Point on Wednesday, July 15th, making 3 trips, 9 a.m., 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. The I.O.O.F. Band will give a concert on the grounds afternoon and evening. Tickets only 25c. Children under 12, 15 cts.

54-11-13

ASSUMED THE ROAD.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL EXCHANGE A PIECE OF ROAD IN MARMORA TOWNSHIP.

At the recent meeting of the County Council a petition was presented and a deputation was present to prosecute the petition asking the Council to assume a piece of road as a county road from Ryan's Corners to Cordova Mines. The matter was referred to a special committee composed of Messrs. P. P. Clark, T. J. Thompson and Peter Vankleek who inspected Cordova road from Ryan's Corners to Cordova on Friday last. They were accompanied by Reeve Hilton, A. W. Carscallen, M.P., Reeve McWilliams, J. A. McDonnell and J. H. Warren. Upon their return to Marmora village a meeting was held and and an agreement passed whereby the county assumes that portion of road in lieu of an equal length of road from north end of the county road leading to Lake. The committee expressed themselves pleased to find the matter exactly as it was represented to County Council. The road is 3 3-4 miles long which shows that the distance from Marmora to Cordova is not more than 8 miles.

TOOTHACHE CURED IN ONE MINUTE.

Not only toothache, but any nerve pain is cured instantly by Polson's Nerviline. Thousands have testified that its powerful, penetrating, pain-subduing properties make it an absolute cure for neuralgia, rheumatism, toothache, cramps, colic and all other pains and aches that beset mankind. The world is challenged to equal Nerviline as a household liniment. Large bottle 25 cents.

GREAT SALE.

Stirring call to a great cheap sale of men's, boys' and children's high class clothing and furnishings at prices that will force you to buy. Out goes every stitch of the remaining lines of our spring and summer stock, no matter what the loss is. We are determined to clear out everything left, and we will easily do so as our prices to a point where buying is irresistible. Look at our ad.—The Globe Clothing House. 6t

McGill University.

MONTREAL.
Session 1903-1904.

Courses in Art, Applied Science (Civil, Mechanical, Electrical and Mining Engineering; Architecture and Practical Chemistry), Law and Medicines.

Matriculation Examinations and Examinations for Exhibitions and Scholarships, will be held on the 9th September, 1903.

Lectures in Law will begin on 15th September, 1903. In all other Faculties Lectures will begin on the 22nd September.

Particulars of examinations and copies of the Calendar containing full information as to entrance, courses of study, scholarship, fees, etc., may be obtained on application to

J. A. NICHOLSON,
Registrar.

There are nearly 650,000 women dressmakers in the United Kingdom.

KEEP YOUR EYES OPEN and be sure that when you ask for Perry Davis' Painkiller you get just that and nothing else. Use it promptly to cure cramps, diarrhoea and all other bowel complaints in summer.

A French physiologist has discovered that nearly all criminals have large ears.

Honey will return to wax if left untouched for some years.

Could Not Sleep

ON ACCOUNT OF HEADACHES AND PAINS IN THE SIDE.

THE SAD CONDITION OF A BRIGHT LITTLE GIRL UNTIL DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS CAME TO HER RESCUE.

Many young girls, seemingly in the best of health, suddenly grow listless and lose strength. The color leaves their cheeks; they become thin, have little or no appetite, and suffer from headaches and other bodily pain. Such was the case of Bessie, youngest daughter of Mr. Chas Cobleigh, Eaton Corner, Que. Speaking of his daughter's illness and subsequent cure, Mr. Cobleigh says:—"Up to the age of eleven, Bessie has always enjoyed the best of health and took great pleasure in out-of-door play. Suddenly, however, she seemed to lose her energy; her appetite failed her; she grew thin and pale; slept badly at night, and complained of distressing headaches in the morning. We thought that rest would be beneficial to her, and so kept her from school, but instead of regaining her strength, she grew weaker and weaker. To make matters worse, she began to suffer from pains in the side which were almost past endurance. At this stage we decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After a couple of weeks the good effect of this medicine was decidedly apparent. Bessie became more cheerful, her step quicker, her eyes were brighter and she seemed more like her former self. We continued giving her the pills for several weeks longer until we felt that she had fully recovered her health and strength. I honestly believe had it not been for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, our daughter would not have recovered her health and strength, and I shall always have a good word to say for this medicine."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure all troubles that arise from poverty of the blood or weak nerves. Among such troubles may be classed anaemia, headache, neuralgia, erysipelas, rheumatism, heart ailments, dyspepsia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, and the ailments that render miserable the lives of so many women. Be sure you get the genuine with the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around every box. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail post paid, at 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50, by writing direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

A Defect of Reformers.

THE newspaper despatch from Topeka, Kansas, about Mrs. Charles M. Sheldon's hired girl has been very popular, and acres of comment have appeared about it. The story is that the hired girl, who was new, had read in one of Mr. Sheldon's the-world-made-over stories that it was a good plan for the servants of a household to take their meals with the rest of the family, so she expressed to Mrs. Sheldon her willingness to follow that course, but Mrs. Sheldon dissented, and the girl left. This is thought to be a joke on Mr. Sheldon, but, remarks New York "Life," really it makes him appear in a good light as a reformer who respects the rights of others, and does not try to compel even his immediate family to share his social experiments. That is the way it is in the family of Tolstoi. He lives the ideal life, and goes barefoot, and cobbles shoes for recreation, but his wife and most of his children respect conventional customs, and live a life modified, but not stunted by his ideals.

A great and common defect about ordinary reformers is that they are not content to let their light so shine, but insist that every one whom they can control shall emulate their good works. Says the Women's Christian Temperance Union to the army, "We think it's wicked to drink beer, and you shan't have any." Says Mrs. Carrie Nation to Apollo Belvidere, "It is an outrage that you have no trousers on. Let me smash you!" Mr. Sheldon's way is better. He goes in for precept, and, maybe, example, but not for constraint. If the Women's Christian Temperance Union followed his example it might still distribute tracts to the army, but it would not legislate away the canteen, and Mrs. Nation, acting Sheldonwise, would be content to say to Apollo Belvidere, "Wear trousers, like me."

Good Hearts and Bad Manners.

An exchange tells about a judge more noted for his bad manners than his knowledge of law. He continually insults lawyers, litigants and witnesses—especially women—in the most outrageous way, and spares no one except certain members of the bar whose political influence he fears. Recently a young lawyer, having more backbone than discretion, perhaps, was bullied by His Honor beyond the limit of endurance, and began to talk back. With the aid of a cool head and a polite but sarcastic tongue the young practitioner soon had the bencher apoplectic and nigh to frenzy and yet lacking ground for holding the lawyer guilty of contempt.

When the case had been decided against the young man an older member of the bar said:

"You did not take the judge in the right way. He is cranky, but you should have humored him. At heart he is a pretty good man."

"His heart may be good," said the young man, "but his manners are bad; and I'm tired of humoring people whose hearts are so good that they feel privileged to be bullies and curmudgeons."

Piles To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles, the manufacturers have guaranteed it. See testimonials in the daily press and ask your neighbors what they think of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. 60c a box, at all dealers or EDMANSON, BATES & Co., Toronto.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

HIS FIRST PATIENT.

The Farmer Thought He Was a Horse Doctor.

The portly physician was in a reminiscent mood, and this is the story he told after the cigars had been passed around and lighted.

"After I was turned out of the medical college a full fledged physician I looked around for a likely looking town to locate in. After a search of over a month I found a small town where I thought they needed another doctor; so I determined to locate there.

"As I was entering the shop of the local sign painter to have a shingle painted an old man drove up before the place and excitedly asked the sign painter if he knew where Doc Smith was.

"'Doc's gone fishin,' said the painter. 'What's the matter?'

"'Betsy's sick,' fumed the old man. 'I wish that feller would stay home and attend to business!'

"Here was my opportunity, I thought; so I stepped forward and said:

"'Perhaps I can help you out; I am a doctor.'

"The old man looked me over rather doubtfully and then shouted for me to jump in. I did so, and he put the gad to his horse, and we dashed away at a rate that threatened to wreck us before we had gone a mile.

"'What is the matter?' I shouted, to make myself heard over the noise that the old rattletrap of a wagon made.

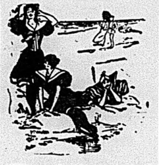
"'What do you suppose I'm taking you out there for if it isn't to find out?' he snapped.

"Well, I held my peace after that, and awaited developments. We had a drive of twelve miles before we reached his home, and when we reached there he drove straight for the barn.

"'Now, git to work!' he shouted, indicating with a wave of his hand a mare that was lying upon the barn floor.

"Then it burst upon me that he wanted a horse doctor, and with the best command of dignity that I could muster I told him that my practice was solely confined to human beings. The way that old man went for me was awful, and while the fireworks were playing about my head the mare died, and there was nothing for me to do but to walk home, as the old man said he would see me elsewhere before he would drive me back; and that I ought to be thankful if I didn't get a suit for damages on my hands."—Detroit Free Press.

On the Beach.



"What are the wild waves saying?"

"Oh, some current remarks, probably."

Too Good.

"Mr. Landlord, I have a complaint to make."

It was a guest at the summer hotel who spoke.

"What is it?" asked the polite landlord.

"My room," said the angry guest, "it is comfortable, and the bed is soft."

"But——"

"There are no mosquitoes."

"But, my dear sir——"

"The bathing is actually good, and the New York papers reach here in three hours."

"Why, I——"

"There are more pretty girls than you can shake a stick at. Rowboats cost only ten cents an hour. The table is good, and the waiters do not have to be tipped."

"But, sir, I don't see—"

"In fact, the place is delightful, and your bill for last week didn't bear a single thing I had not had. I can't stand it!"

"But what do you mean? I have purposely arranged everything for the comfort of my guests, and thought I had done all in my power."

"That's the trouble. Everything's so blamed good that I can't believe it's true, and lie awake all night waiting for something to happen and my dream to end. I'm fretting myself sick over it, and if you can't give me something to kick about pretty soon I'll have to pack up and go home!"

Her Only Reason.

A woman who had ignored a subpoena to appear as a witness in a case recently tried in Westmoreland, Kan., was brought before the court by the sheriff to answer for contempt.

"What reason, madam," said the judge, severely, "have you for not obeying the summons of the court?"

"I hain't got none, Mr. Judge," she replied, "only we have smallpox down at our house, an' I thought you might be kinder sorter prejudiced ag'in it."

Court was instantly adjourned, and the judge, sheriff, and onlookers stampeded for the outside.—New York Tribune.

She'd Do It.

Crash!

There came the sound of falling dishes from the kitchen. The cook appeared at the dining-room door.

"Plaze, mum," she said, "the whole av your besht dinner set is broken fwhoile Oi wuz washin' it!"

The housewife wept.

"B'gee!" said her husband, "if the powers could only get that girl, the job of breaking up China would soon be finished."

What shrunk your woolens?
Why did holes wear so soon?
You used common soap.

SUNLIGHT SOAP REDUCES EXPENSE

Ask for the Octagon Bar.

Consumptives are not admitted as guests to some of the hotels in America.

Mr. W. Denham

Of Denham's Drug Store, Petrolea, Ont., says:

"The O. R. Kidney Cure gives the best satisfaction to our customers of any kidney medicine we handle."

Belleville druggists speak highly of the O. R. Kidney Cure.

It does its work quickly.
It cures Lame Back.
It cures Lumbago.
It cures Bladder Trouble.
It cures Gravel in Bladder.
It cures Rheumatism.
It cures Kidney Troubles.
It will cure you.
Try one bottle.

O. R. KIDNEY CURE is put up in liquid form, contains no poisons, is quickly assimilated and will cure all kidney and urinary troubles.

O. R. Kidney Cure, 50c per bottle.
O. R. Liver Pills, 25c per bottle.
O. R. Dyspepsia Tablets 25c per box.

AT DRUGGISTS, OR WRITE—

THE O. R. MEDICINE CO.,
Limited, Toronto, Ont.

To benefit from any other outing the Baths and Waters of the MAGI Caledonia Springs must be first taken. Season now open.

You Can't Oversleep

If it takes quite a noise to awaken you in the morning we have Clocks that will furnish the necessary disturbance.

They will not arouse you too soon, neither will they let you sleep too long.

If you set them properly they never fail to do their duty.

They are useful in most homes at odd times. They are indispensable in many homes every working day in the year.

$1.50 buys a GOOD ONE, though we have them cheaper as well as dearer.

Angus McFee.
Jeweler & Optician
310 Front St.

MILLINERY
—AT—
Half Price

All our Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats at HALF PRICE.

A few very choice ones still to choose from.

10 per cent. off Corsets Thursday' Friday and Saturday.

MISS IRWIN
Millinery and Corset Specialist

ST. AGNES' SCHOOL,

Elmpool, Belleville,

OPENS D.V., SEPT. 9th.

A high-class Boarding and Day School for girls. Under the patronage of the Lord Bishop of Ontario.

Boys admitted to primary department only.

MISS F. E. CARROLL,
Lady Principal

Prospectus sent upon application. Address P. O. Box 535, Belleville.

THE INTELLIGENCER is printed and published for The Intelligencer Printing and Publishing House (Limited) by CHARLES JAMES BOWELL, of the City of Belleville, in the County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, at their Office, No. 403 Front Street, Belleville, Ont.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

MEDICAL.

JOHN J. FARLEY, M.D., C.M., M.B., C.S., England.
Office and Residence — Corner of Bridge and George streets — three streets East of Post Office.

DR. J. F. MATHER
Has removed his office to Pinnacle St., three doors north of Hotel Quinte.
my29-6mw

LEGAL.

WILLS & WRIGHT,
Barristers, Solicitors, Notary Public, &c., Belleville.
Office—2 Campbell Street.

MALCOLM WRIGHT. J. FRANKLIN WILLS.
Money to Loan at Lowest Rates.

W. C. MIKEL, B. C. L.,
Barrister, &c.
Solicitor for the City of Belleville.
Office—Metropolitan Block, Corner Front and Campbell Streets.

PORTER & CARNEW,
Barristers, Solicitors, Notaries Public, etc.
Offices — Robertson Block, East Front St., Belleville, Ont.
'Phone 87.
E. G. PORTER. WM. CARNEW.

WILLIAM N. PONTON,
Barrister-at-law, Solicitor, Notary Public, Conveyancer. Office over Express and Telegraph Office, Bridge Street, Belleville.
Money to Loan :— Private Funds, Solicitor Sun and Hastings Savings and Loan Company of Ontario.

FRANCIS S. WALLBRIDGE,
Successor to Hon. Lewis Wallbridge, Q.C.
Barrister, Solicitor, Conveyancer, Etc. Office, McAnnany Building, corner Front and Bridge Sts., Belleville, Ont. Private and Company money to loan at 6 per cent., on easy terms upon good land security. Charges moderate.

INSURANCE.

Fire Insurance.
Guardian . . . Est'd 1821
The North America, Est'd 1792
Quebec, . . . Est'd 1818
City, Town and Village Property insure at lowest rates.
R. W. ADAMS. Agent.
Office opposite Post Office.

PERSONS desiring Life Assurance cannot do better than consult
W. J. THOMSON,
who is the Agent for the following well-known and old established Assurance Companies:
ROYAL. ALLIANCE.
OCEAN ACCIDENT STANDARD LIFE
Office at Rathbun Co., Bridge St ocs-d&w

FIRE, LIFE & ACCIDENT INSURANCE
At Lowest Rates The Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Perth Mutual on farm and city property. Also money to loan at 4½ per cent. upwards.
JAMES A. CHISHOLM.
Office Ashley Block, - Front st., Belleville.

THOS. STEWART,
Insurance and Commission Agent.
Agent for the Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Scottish Union National Ins. Co.
BRIDGE ST.

Money Saved is Money Earned
can earn you money by saving it for you in your Fire Insurance.
The Anglo-American Fire Ins. Co
The Merchants Fire Ins. Co.
The Equity Fire Ins. Co.
Are all strong Canadian stock companies and insure Farm and City Property at lower rate than other stock companies Call and see me before placing your fire insurance.
Office—Bridge St., same entrance Quinte Laundry, Belleville.
H. FREEMAN KETCHESON

Fire, Life & Plate Glass Insurance.
Liverpool & London & Globe of England.
Waterloo Mutual, of Waterloo, Ont,
Lloyd's Plate Glass,
Home Life Association, Toronto,
North British & Mercantile,
Farm and City Property insured in First-class Reliable Companies and at lowest current rates. Losses promptly settled. Land valuation, and transact general Real Estate business and sale or purchase and renting of property. Appraiser for the Hastings Loan & Investment Society. Money to Loan.
W. P. HUDSON, Office above Rathbun's office, cor. Bridge and Pinnacle Sts., opposite Postoffice and Hotel Quinte, Belleville,
'Phone 168.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A. G. NORTHRUP,
Issuer of Marriage Licenses, Shire Hall, Belleville, Ont.

CHAUNCEY ASHLEY,
Issuer of Marriage Licenses.
Private Office, Bridge St., Belleville, opposite the Post Office.
Residence, first house east of W. W. Chown's Mfg. Co., Station St.
Appointments made.

REMOVAL.
Dr. Clarke has removed to the offices formerly occupied by the late Dr. Ward, over Burrows', and opposite Scantlebury's Book Store.
a27dtf

Our Mid=Summer Sale

Including China (cups and saucers, Vases, Dishes, etc., etc.), Brass Goods, Candles, Silk Shades, Brushes (both hat and hair), Mirrors, Candlebras, Dickens and Art Pottery Ware, all 40 per cent. off regular prices

Wrist Bags AND Chatelaines
Latest New York designs in walrus, seal and other leathers, from 35c to $7.00 each, all 25 per cent. off regular price.

Framed Pictures
Entire stock of our Art Gallery, comprising Steel Engravings, Platimums, Prints, etc., beautifully framed. Prices from 50c to 75c, all 30 per cent. off regular prices

Wall Paper
Special prices on all Wall Papers and free bordering—2 yards with each double roll,
Paper Hanging and Painting—the largest and most efficient staff of workmen.

C. B. Scantlebury
Belleville's Decorator.
Wall Paper Wholesale and Retail.

AT DEATH'S DOOR.—DYSPEPSIA CONQUERED.—A GREAT MEDICAL TRIUMPH.—Gentlemen,—My medical adviser and others told me I could not possibly live when I commenced to use Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery for Dyspepsia. My case was one of the worst of its kind For three years I could not eat meat and my weight decreased from 219 to 119 lbs. All the food I took for thirteen months previous to taking the Vegetable Discovery consisted of milk. I am now entirely cured and have regained my usual weight, can eat anything with a keen relish and feel like a new man. I have sold over thirty dozen Vegetable Discovery since it cured me, as I am well-known and people in this section know how low I was, and thought I could not possibly be cured. They are eager to try this grand medicine. It certainly saved my life as I never expected to recover when first I commenced using it. I am not exaggerating anything, but feel glad to be able to contribute this testimonial and trust it may be the means of convincing others of its merit as a certain cure for Dyspepsia.

Signed, JEAN VALCOURT.
Wotton, P.Q. General Merchant

Much talk, many lies.

FOR INFLAMMATION OF THE EYES.—Among the many good qualities which Parmelee's Vegetable Pills possess, besides regulating the digestive organs, is their efficacy in reducing inflammation of the eyes It has called forth many letters of recommendation from those who were afflicted with this complaint and found a cure in the pills. They affect the nerve centres and the blood in a surprisingly active way, and the result is almost immediately seen.

Many a man's self-conceit is due to his ignorance.

If you have a cough or cold do not neglect it; many without a trace of that hereditary disease have drifted into a consumptive's grave by neglecting what was only a slight cold Had they used Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup before it was too late, their lives would have been saved. Mr. A. W. Levy, Mitchell, writes: "I think Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup the best preparation on the market for coughs and severe colds. About six years ago I caught a severe cold which settled on my lungs, and for three months I had a cough. I had a physician attending me, but gradually grew worse until I was on the verge of Consumption, and had given up hopes of being cured, when I was induced to try Bickle's Syrup. Before I had taken one bottle I found myself greatly relieved, and by the time I had finished the second bottle I was completely cured. I always recommend it for severe colds and consumption."

When one gets hopping mad his reason goes on a crutch.

No one knows better than those who have used Carter's Little Liver Pills what relief they have given when taken for dyspepsia, dizziness, pain in the side, constipation, and disordered stomach.

The average watch represents but 12 hours of human labor.

Do not despair of curing your sick headache when you can so easily obtain Carter's Little Liver Pills. They will effect a prompt and permanent cure. Their action is mild and na-

Coral is a talisman against thunder and evils by flood and field.

THEY DROVE PIMPLES AWAY.—A face covered with pimples is unsightly. It tells of internal irregularities which should long since have been corrected. The liver and the kidneys are not performing their functions in the healthy way they should, and these pimples are to let you know that the blood protests. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will drive them all away, and will leave the skin clear and clean. Try them, and there will be another witness to their excellence.

The wildcat's teeth are close to its purr.

HAD LA GRIPPE.—Mr. A. Nickesson, farmer, Dutton, writes: "Last winter I had La Grippe and it left me with a severe pain in the small of my back and hip that used to catch me whenever I tried to climb a fence. This lasted for about two months, when I bought a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil and used it both internally and externally, morning and evening, for three days, at the expiration of which time I was completely cured."

A long portage makes a heavy canoe.

Their gentle action and good effect on the system really make them a perfect little pill. They please those who use them. Carter's Little Liver Pills may well be termed 'Perfection.'

It takes money to voice the opinion of a lawyer.

Very many persons die annually from cholera and kindred summer complaints, who might have been saved if proper remedies had been used If attacked do not delay in getting a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, the medicine that never fails to effect a cure. Those who have used it say it acts promptly, and thoroughly, subdues the pain and disease.

All trails are long to the lazy.

Use the safe, pleasant, and effectual worm killer, Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator; nothing equals it. Procure a bottle and take it home.

The best way to get even is to forget.

Holloway's Corn Cure is the medicine to remove all kinds of corns and warts, and only costs the small sum of twenty-five cents.

Few Flies last year
No Flies this year
if you use
Wilson's Fly Pads

For the Revelsworth Millions,

—or—

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fail by the Man She Loves.

It seemed far more probable that Victor, in his present state of feverish impatience, had grown tired of waiting for Betty, who had been detained for some time by Mrs. O'Meara, and had started off for Walton alone.

Inquiries at the water's edge and at the Hampton boat-house elicited the fact that every boat had been requisitioned, some time quite recently; but, as Victor's appearance was not well known, and as Betty could not identify him from the description of the various men who had hired boats within the past hour, she finally had to give up the search for her cousin in despair, and allow Heremon to row her in the direction of Walton, where she haped to exchange a few words with Dudley before he should be able to reenter Revelsworth House, and hoped also to overtake his brother.

However, in both respects Miss Mannington was doomed to disappointment. Stare as she might with eager inquiry at the occupants of each passing boat, she could find no one in the least resembling Victor, nor, in the crush of pleasure-craft assembled to see the fireworks, could she identify the punt containing Dudley and Francesca.

Miss Revelsworth had thoroughly enjoyed her day. To lie at ease on silken cushions beneath a sky of cloudless sunshine, with the eyes of dozens of good-looking young Englishmen in flannel, fixed admiringly upon her lovely face and figure, displayed to full advantage by her graceful recumbent attitude, to land and lunch excellently if not extravagantly at a riverside hotel, to watch with lazy pleasure and gaily-colored animated scene around her, the bright tints of the dresses and sunshades of the "river girls," and of the awnings and cushions which adorned several of the craft, to note here and there the picturesque effect of a snow-white, ruddy brown, or crimson sail against the glistening water and verdure-clad banks, to listen to the plash of the sculls, the clatter and laughter, and the tinkling of banjos—all these things were very grateful to Francesca and, more that all, the companionship of Dudley Revelsworth helped to make her thoroughly happy.

From under half-closed eyelids she watched each quick, strong movement of his atheletic frame as he manipulated the punt-pole.

How handsome he was, she thought, how manly and vigorous in appearance, and how unlike those two other men she had at different times thought she cared for. How could she ever have loved any other man who was not taller than herself, or who did not possess curly brown hair and deep-blue eyes under long black lashes, and a square jaw with a suggestion of hardness about it?

Those two other faces—the sleepy-eyed, olive-skinned Italian singer and the fair effeminate English aristocrat—came back to her mind, to be dismissed with contempt when compared with the man before her. And they had yielded so readily, while this one held out against her, fought down the passion she did her utmost to strengthen, put his will in opposition to hers, and so far held his own, though not without difficulty.

"But he shall be mine!" she whispered to herself, as she looked up at him with shining blue eyes under her gay-colored Japanese sunshade. "He must be mine! I really love him! I feel faint with longing to throw my arms round his fine firm neck, and nestle against his broad chest and kiss his beautiful determined lips. And, when once that sickly mawkish Victor is out of the way, my task ought not to be difficult!"

It was difficult even to make Dudley look at her long when they were alone together. He seemed to prefer to comment laughingly upon the effect of her beauty upon others than to feast his own eyes upon it; and, when at length as the day drew to a close, the magnetism of her continued gaze attracted his, he smiled rather satirically as he looked down at her.

"Why do you smile?" she asked. "What are you thinking of?"

"I was thinking of a line of Swinburne's which exactly applies to you, but it isn't very complimentary, so perhaps I had better not quote it."

"I don't expect compliments from you, Dudley. Please tell me the line."

He laughed, and quoted—

"'Cold eyelids that hide, like a jewel, Hard eyes that grow soft for an hour.'"

"Are my eyes hard?" Francesca asked, fixing them full upon him with a most alluring tenderness. "Not to you surely?"

"They are 'soft for an hour' at present," he answered lightly.

"What does it matter, so long as it is your hour?"

"I have no doubt they would soon grow hard again," Dudley returned, looking quickly away from her, which action Francesca interpreted as a confession of weakness.

"Well, the lines were not so very uncomplimentary," she said, after a pause. "I am not at all offended."

"Ah, but they get worse as they go on to describe the 'cruel red mouth like a venomous flower'!"

"And does that apply to me?" she asked, sitting up to look at him with an enchanting smile upon her lips. "Is my mouth cruel?"

"Not more cruel than you are."

"I—I cruel? Dudley, explain yourself!"

"You know perfectly well what I mean," the young man returned. "You are breaking my brother's heart with your coquetries. And he is the best and dearest fellow living!"

"But I don't coquet with him. You know that. You know that I have refused to marry him again and again. What more can I do? Would you have me marry him when I am in love with another man?"

"Well, it's horrible to see the way in which he takes it to heart. His mother will scarcely recognize him when she welcomes him to-morrow—if indeed Vernon thinks he is strong enough to go. I've made up my mind upon one point—I shall go with him, and shall not leave him until he is safe with the little mother."

Francesca gave him a strange look.

"I think you are quite right," she said. "Indeed I have hoped all the time you would go with him to take care of him; though Betty and I will be very dull without you both. And, Dudley, have you noticed that Betty has changed towards me lately?"

"She certainly doesn't seem quite so affectionate as she used to be," Dudley replied, with some hesitation. "But I don't think it is fair to judge her just now. She has never been quite the same since aunt Margaret's death. She will take a long time getting over such a shock, coming on the top of that ghost-seeing fit. But I hope she will get over it, and be her bright sunny little self again before long. I am very fond of that girl!"

"Fond of her," murmured Francesca softly—"yes, but not in the way she would like, you see!"

"What on earth do you mean?" he asked, flushing and knitting his brows.

"Surely you must see that the dear child fancies herself in love with you, and that but for that she would marry that nice young Irishman?"

"What abominable nonsense! I beg pardon, Francesca, but it really makes me angry to hear you say anything so silly! There isn't much trace of the love-sick maid about that dear, energetic, unselfish little Betty!"

"How dense you men are! Now a woman would know the child's secret in a moment merely by seeing the way in which she looks at you."

"If you please," Dudley said very coldly, "we will not allude to this mistaken idea of yours again."

"Some men would like to hear that a pretty and charming girl was in love with them."

"Some men are conceited cads! I think we shall see the fireworks very well from here. Ah, there goes the first rocket! It's time to light our Chinese lanterns."

Lines of thin rope, attached to upright staves, had been arranged along the sides of the punt, and swinging therefrom were many bright-colored lanterns. Owing to Mrs. Revelsworth's recent death, the young men had not entered for the boat-decoration competition, nor did their boats take part in the illuminated procession; but Francesca had pleaded for "just a few lanterns," and, as usual, she had had her way.

The evening wore on, bright lights and music everywhere, the showers of artificial fire breaking upon the silver-spangled sky almost with a desecrating touch. Or, at least, so it seemed to Dudley, into whose heart the gentle melancholy inseparable from a lovely evening on the river began to steal. The day had died in splendor, flooding the boat-loads of chattering and laughing revellers with a crimson radiance, and the night air was full of a still peacefulness. A strange foreboding crept into Dudley Revelsworth's heart as he looked up from the face of the beautiful woman reclining upon the silken cushions at his feet, with the light from the lanterns reflected in her jewel-like eyes, to the solemn beauty of the evening sky, stained now and again with gold and crimson streaks of artificial fire.

Something new, something terrible, he felt was taking place, some awful misfortune was rushing upon one dear to him. That was the warning which the night-breeze bore to him, and suddenly, without any preamble, he put his fears into words.

"Francesca, we must go home! Something is the matter with Victor. He is ill—he wants me—I am sure of it!"

He was surprised and touched by the feeling his cousin showed. Raising herself upon her elbow, she stared at him for a moment with dilated eyes and a face from which all color had for the moment fled.

"Oh, how can you possibly know?" she faltered. "He seemed so much better when we left home——"

"He is worse now," Dudley interrupted, almost curtly. "Oh, Victor and I are like the Corsican Brothers in that. I intuitively know when any great misfortune threatens him: I am sorry to cut short your pleasure, Francesca; but we must go home at once!"

Already he was vigorously using his punt-pole and making his way from among the clustering boats. Francesca did not attempt to detain him, but remained for some moments in silence. When she spoke again, it was in accents tremulous with feeling.

"Dear, dear Victor," she murmured—"I would not for the world that any harm should come to him! I have been hoping so much from his journey to his mother! So often, in cases of consumption——"

"Consumption!"

"Yes. Surely you know he was in consumption? I don't think Doctor Vernon has any doubt upon the subject. And Victor himself told me that several members of his mother's family were consumptive."

"Did he? That is curious! Certainly he had an uncle, his mother's brother, who caught a fatal chill——"

"Exactly. But I can't help thinking that, if we get Victor safely over to his mother, he will be saved. This is only a sudden superstitious fancy, born of your natural affection and anxiety, Dudley, as you will find when we get home. I have little doubt that our dear Victor is at this moment wholly free from pain."

"Pray Heaven he is!" murmured Dudley, half to himself.

Long afterwards he remembered these words of Francesca's—remembered them with a heart which contracted in horror and loathing. But at the time he was touched by her tender speeches, by her reiterated expressions of anxiety to "get back to dear Victor as fast as possible," and by her sympathetic silence, as though she feared to trouble him with trivial talk on indifferent subjects when she knew that his thoughts were with his beloved brother.

Sunbury and Molesey locks were passed in the gathering night, lit by a crescent moon which cast a shimmering line along the middle of the stream, while the banks loomed darkly in contrast. And, as the punt passed out of Molesey Lock in company with a few other boats, gaily bedecked with flowers and lanterns and full of happy noisy young people of both sexes, a strange thing happened.

Just where the main body of the stream joins the broad backwater that flows below Queen Elizabeth's red-roofed stables—at the identical spot where, three hundred years before, the stiffened corpse of Mistress Catherine Penfold was found, in bedraggled bravery of yellow brocade and pearl-decked hair, floating on the tide with her broken heart stilled for ever in death, a crouching figure, whether of man or woman they could not tell, stretched out appealing hands and arms across the water, and a cry rang out—a cry of human agony—

"Francesca—Francesca!"

The despairing cry silenced the gay chattering revellers in the boats and struck an awful fear into Dudley's heart.

"It was your name!" he whispered hoarsely to his cousin.

"No—no!" she cried, springing up in the boat, almost as agitated as he. "It is impossible! There is no pathway along there—it is private property. What are you doing?"

With that awful cry still ringing in his ears, Dudley was making strenuous efforts to reach the spot whence it had seemed to proceed. But the form he had dimly seen was gone, and, although he passed with the punt closely along the banks, calling his brother's name, no answer was returned to him.

"Oh, Dudley," sobbed Francesca, as, with a face blanched and distorted by terror, she bent towards him, "for Heaven's sake, take me home! I cannot bear it—the shock of that terrible scream we thought we heard——"

"Thought we heard!"

"Yes—it was nothing real. It came from that awful rustling thing that haunts our house. It was here she was found—don't you remember?—floating in the stream on a winter morning cold and dead. Ah! Mon Dieu, what is that?"

"I see nothing."

"Nothing! But I see!" she almost screamed, with a burst of hysterical laughter. "There—there—close to our boat—the white face floating! The saints protect me! Dudley, Dudley—save me!"

Francesca had sprung erect in the boat, and then had fallen, half swooning, at his feet; but for the moment he had forgotten her. An icy terror held his heart fast and seemed to paralyze his hands.

For his eyes had followed hers, and there, floating upon the stream just beyond his reach, with white anguished face and blind eyes staring up into the night, was the dead body of his brother.

CHAPTER XXV.

"Sad Fatality at Molesey"—that was what the newspapers called it; and "Found Drowned" was the verdict at the inquest which was of necessity held on Victor Revelsworth's body.

Out of respect for the family, the proceedings were brief and formal. Doctor Vernon's evidence amply proved the weak state of health and nerves of his late patient; no one had seen him leave the house, and it was surmised that, in a feverish and light-headed condition, he had wandered to the water's edge, and, slipping in, had been drowned.

Francesca's grief was absolutely frantic in its first demonstrations. When she and Dudley discovered Victor's body, she had herself helped to lift it into the punt, and, after vainly trying to chafe the cold hands back to warmth and life, she had cast herself in an abandonment of grief upon the corpse; and, while Dudley stared down at her in tearless despair, she had adroitly contrived to extract from the dead man's breast-pocket its contents, including a folded note and a tiny jewelled bonbonniere. These last she retained, doubtless in reverent memory of the dead.

Betty Mannington, for all her tender heart, when she learned the dreadful news on her return home, showed none of the effusive grief which characterized Francesca, and mechanically produced from her pocket the missing key of the young men's rooms. No tear fell from her eyes when, half an hour later, the maid Susan, sobbing, led her into the darkened chamber where Victor's body lay in the massive curtained bed he had been wont to occupy. Francesca was there already, kneeling by the bedside, a most dignified and tragic figure, with her golden head lowered, and clad in long black

(To be continued.)

WHAT A MOTHER SAYS.

"It gives me great pleasure to say a good word for Baby's Own Tablets. At the age of two months my baby was dreadfully constipated. He could not digest his food and screamed incessantly. I was almost in despair, but since giving him the Tablets he has been well and is growing splendidly." Such is the testimony of Mrs. C. Craig, 329 Bathurst Street, Toronto, and thousands of other mothers speak in a similar strain.

Summer is here and mothers should take special pains to guard their little ones against illness. At this season infant mortality is at its greatest; colic, diarrhoea and summer complaint can be guarded against and prevented by the use of Baby's Own Tablets. Keep a box in the house—they may save you little one's life. Sold by druggists or may be had by mail, at 25 cents a box by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FAST MAIL SERVICE
Bay of Quinte Route
TO
ROCHESTER N. Y.
Strs. "North King" and "Caspian"
Taking Effect 27th June.
GOING DAILY (EXCEPT MONDAY)
Lv. Belleville .... 11.38 p. m.
Ar. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 6.43 a. m.
RETURNING DAILY (Except Sunday)
Lv. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 8.30 p. m.
Ar. Belleville .... 3.25 a. m.
Baggage checked to all points. Connection with all railways.

$1.00 THOUSAND ISLANDS $1.00
AND RETURN.
Commencing 28th June. Steamer leaves Belleville at 3.25 a.m. daily except Monday for 1000 Islands, calling at Bay of Quinte ports, Kingston, Alexandria Bay and Gananoque. Passing through American and Canadian channels.
Right reserved to change time with or without notice.
Full information from
THE RATHBUN CO., U. E. THOMPSON, } Agents.
E. E. HORSEY, G. P. & F. Agent, Kingston.

Str. "Alexandria"
Montreal, Rochester & Quebec Transit Co'y.
Popular Quebec Excursions
NOW ON.
Belleville to Quebec and return .. $18.00
Belleville to Montreal and return .. $12.00
(including meals and berth)
Steamer runs all rapids.
For Rochester, Olcott Beach, Niagara Falls and Buffalo every Saturday at 11 a.m.
Particulars from
A. W. HEPBURN, General Manager, Picton, Ont.
THE RATHBUN CO. Agents. Belleville.

The Deseronto Navigation Co
TIME TABLE.
Taking effect April 13, 1903,
Belleville, Trenton, Picton & Napanee
Str. "ELLA ROSS"
Leaves Belleville for Trenton at 10 a. m., daily, Sundays Excepted, returning leaves Trenton at 1 p. m. leaving Belleville at 3 p.m. for Deseronto, Napanee and Picton.
Quick and Superior Service to NEW YORK CITY
Steamers RESOLUTE and RELIANCE will leave Deseronto for Oswego after arrival of Str. Ella Ross connecting at Oswego with the New York, Ontario Western Ry.
Fare to New York, Single, $2.40
Return, $13.25
For further particulars apply to THE RATHBUN CO., Local Agents
J. F. CHAPMAN, Asst. Gen. Frt. Pass. Agt., Deseronto
A. [illegible] [illegible] Manager Deseronto.

Str. "Niagara"
Monday 13th July—True Blues to Picton.
Tuesday, 14th July — St. Andrew's Church Sunday School to Twelve O'Clock Point.
Wednesday, 15th July—Baptist Sunday School to Twelve O'Clock Point.
Saturday 18th July—First Saturday Afternoon Excursion to Picton. Fare 35c. Leaves wharf at 2.30 p.m. sharp.
THOMAS STEWART, Manager,
45 Bridge St., Belleville.

Goods We Have
at Right Prices
—Hammocks.
—Fishing Tackle.
—Tennis Goods.
—Golf Goods.
—Lacrosse Goods.
—Base Ball Goods.
—Screen Doors and Windows.
—Fruit Jars.
—Fruit Jar Rubbers.
—Wall Paper.
—Crystal Glass Vases.
—Glass Ware.
—Dinner Sets.
—Toilet Sets.
—Ladies' Hose.
—Ladies' Vests.
Everything in smallwares.
AT THE BEE HIVE
Chas. N. Sulman

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

TWO BIG SALES

Summer Clothing

AND

Straw Hats

We are having a great clearing up of summer goods these warm days. In addition to our 20 per cent. discount sale on summer clothing, we are offering 25 to 50 doz. Men's and Boys' Straw Hats, worth 50c cts, 75c and $1.00. for only 25c ea.

This is almost a present for the man who has any need for a Straw Hat They are selling very fast, come quick if you want one.

See Them In Our North Window.

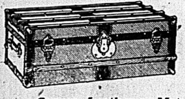
OAK HALL

Sole Agents for Sanford's Celebrated Clothing.

Holiday seekers will find full lines of

Trunks and Travelling Bags

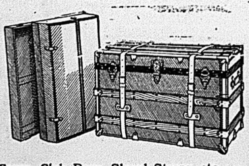
At The J. J. Haines Shoe Houses.



Steamer Trunks
Round and Flat Top Trunks

Canvas, Leather or Metal Covered Trunks.

Bags, Suit Cases, TELESCOPE VALISES



Fibre Cases, Club Bags, Shawl Straps, etc

TEMPTING Shoe Bargains on our Bargain Tables for old or young.

The J. J. Haines

SHOE HOUSES at Belleville, Napanee and Trenton

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE
FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

Daily Intelligencer.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Less lengthy talk and down to business should be the key-note of the Board of Education.

• • •

Dear reader, notwithstanding the dirty fellows, the prospects are bright for a PUBLIC BATH.

• • •

A subscriber tells us that a great deal of profanity was unavoidably heard last evening by any person within earshot of the hospital lot, where a number of young men were playing ball. This is another wrong that should be righted, and that speedily. Our citizens are not necessarily extremists, but they certainly have a right to expect ordinary, every-day decency, even from budding athletes.

• • •

It is more fun to see a man read a puff of himself in a newspaper than to see a fat man slip on a banana peel. The narrowed-minded man reads it over seven or eight times and then goes around and appropriates what copies he can. The kind-hearted man goes home and reads it to his wife and then goes to the office and pays up what he owes. The successful business man who advertises regularly and makes money by it, immediately starts out to find the editor, and then the two walk silently and thoughtfully down the street together, and the business man takes sugar in his'n, and they both eat a clove or two and life is sweeter, peace settles down on their hearts for the moment. Such is the experience of mustard seeds that fall on different soil.—Exchange.

• • •

Kingston Whig: Last evening while Mayor Bell was driving across Cataraqui bridge he saw some boys, who were swimming, climb up on the railing. He ordered them to get under cover, as some ladies were approaching. The reply was in the nature of abuse. As the Mayor was unable to secure the offenders, he captured the clothing of one of them and took the garments to the police station. The police later visited the spot, but were unable to secure any trace of the owner of the clothing, which still reposes in the police station.

Something of this sort might well be done by some one at the Grand Junction dock, where the young reprobates go in bathing in a nude condition.

• • •

TOO HOT.

(Baltimore News.)

Too hot to crawl, too hot to creep,
Too hot to wake, too hot to sleep;
Too hot to stand, too hot to fall;
Too hot to laugh, too hot to bawl;
Too hot to ride, too hot to walk,
Too hot to whisper, or to talk;
Too hot to starve, too hot to eat;
My head's too hot, so are my feet;
Too hot to write, too hot to think;
Too hot to drown myself in drink;
Too hot to live, too hot to die,
Too hot to work, too hot to try;
Too hot to kick about the heat;
Too hot for eggs, too hot for meat;
Too hot for another line to sing—
Too dadgummed hot for anything.

• • •

The only way a man can convince people nowadays that he has brains is to get money.

• • •

"Are authors still hungry?" enquires a current magazine. Well, it depends a good deal on whether it's dinnertime.

• • •

The pickpocket is on his beat again, and it behooves the excursionist to look out, unless the latter wants to experiment in trying to borrow money among strangers to get home with.

NEVER SAY DIE.

You may be weak, miserable, nervous, sleepless, your digestion may be poor and you despair. Never say die, until you have used Ferrozone, the most wonderful blood maker, nerve strengthener and brain invigorator. It tones up the whole system. You can eat anything and digest it if you use Ferrozone. You sleep well. You make blood quickly, strength increases daily, in a short time you're well. Try Ferrozone, which you can obtain at all drug stores.

YOU NEED NOT BE AFRAID TO USE

IRON-OX TABLETS

Every day of your life, as an aid to digestion, as a gentle laxative, or as a tonic for the nerves.

They are Absolutely Safe. They are Invariably Effective.

50 TABLETS FOR 25 CTS.

LATEST NEW YORK STOCK QUOTATIONS

As Furnished to The Intelligencer by H. R. Beattie, Stock Broker.

New York, July 11.

Stock	Op'g	H'st	L'st	Close
Atchison	65⅛	65⅛	63⅞	64¼
do. pref ..	90¼	90¼	90	90¼
St. Paul.. ..	148	148	144⅛	145
Mo. P.	101½	101¼	99¼	100⅛
Union. Pac .	78¼	78⅛	77⅛	77⅞
C. P. R.	122¼	122½	120¼	120½
South Pac. ..	46¼	46¼	45⅛	46⅛
R. I.	32¼	32¼	31¼	31½
Sou. Ry.....	23	23	22⅛	22⅛
Texas....	27	27⅛	26¼	27
B & O.......	83¼	83⅛	82⅛	82¾
N. Y.C.	119	119	114¾	115
Penna	123¼	123¼	121¼	121⅞
Soo	57	....	....	....
T. W....	98¼	98¼	97	97
Erie	31⅞	31⅞	30¼	31
do. pref. ..	66¼	66¼	65¼	65¼
Reading	49¼	49¼	48½	48½
C. O.	36	36	35¼	35⅞
O. & W.	24⅛	24⅛	24	24⅛
W. C.	19⅞	19⅞	19⅜	19⅞
Manhattan ..	135¼	135½	134	134
L. & N... ..	108½	108¼	108	108
A. F.	36	36	35	35
Nor.	65½	65⅛	64	64½
Wab........	22	22	21⅞	22
do pref. ..	41¼	41¼	40½	40½
C. G. W. ..	18	18	17⅛	17
T.C.I.	48½	48½	48	48
U S. Stl......	28⅛	28¼	28	28⅜
do pref.....	79¼	79½	79¼	79¼
Sugar	118⅞	....	....	....
B. R. T......	55½	55½	54	54⅜
Po..........	97⅛	97⅛	97	97
A. C. P. ..	52	52	50	50⅛
Met.........	120	120	119⅛	119⅛
Alc....	21	21	20¼	21

Died in California.

News has just been received of the death in Los Angeles, Cal., of Mr. James Burdette, a prominent lawyer, and a former Bellevillian, after a year's illness from Bright's Disease. Mr. Burdette was a son of the late Alex. Burdette and a brother of Messrs. Byron and Leo. Burdette. He was about 40 years of age. His wife died about a year ago.

A horse has been known to jump 37 feet in a steeplechase.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

BRIDGE ST. METHODIST CHURCH

Morning subject—The Light in the Cloud.

2.30 p.m. Sunday School. Mr. J. Frith Jeffers' class meets in the church at 3 o'clock.

Evening subject—Christianity its own proof.

Strangers in the City, students at Albert College, Ontario Business College, Belleville Business College, and all other visitors welcomed.

JOHN ST. PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Corner of Victoria Avenue and John Street.

REV. A. H. DRUMM, Pastor.

Sunday services at 11 a.m., and 7 p. m.

Sunday School at 3 p.m.

Pastor's Class for Bible Study—Sunday at 3 p.m.

Young People's Guild—Monday at 8 p.m. Prayer meeting—Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Service at 11 a.m., and 7 p.m.

THE TABERNACLE METHODIST CHURCH.

Church St.

Services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Sunday School and Bible Classes at 2.30.

Strangers and visitors conducted to seats by obliging ushers.

VICTORIA AVE BAPTIST CHURCH,

Cor. Victoria Ave. and Pinnacle St

REV. O. C. ELLIOTT, Pastor.

Prayer meeting—10.30 a.m

Services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Sunday School at three o'clock.

The Pastor will conduct both services.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend the above services. All seats are free.

HOLLOWAY ST. METH. CHURCH

Rev. J. R. Real, Pastor.

Services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. by the Pastor.

2.30 Sunday School.

Epworth League on Monday at 8.

Prayer meeting on Wednesday at 7.45.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

BELLEVILLE NORTH (BLEECKER AVE) METHODIST CHURCH.

Rev. F. B. Stratton, Pastor.

Bleecker Avenue sermons at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Morning subject—"The man in Iron Shoes.

2.30 Sunday School.

League Monday 8 p m.

Kingston Road. Sermon 2.30 Rev. F. B. Stratton.

Sabbath School 10 30 a.m.

League Thursday 8 p.m.

Centre Street—Rev. A. Martin 7 p.m.

Sabbath School 2 30 p m.

Seats free in all the churches. Come and welcome.

BETHEL HALL, Front St.

11 a.m.—Lord's Supper.

3 p.m.—Sunday School.

Subject for evening—Judgment of the Sheep and the Goats and Christ's return to reign for 1000 years.

ALL WELCOME.

July 12th, 1903.

Fifth Sunday After Trinity

EMMANUEL REFORMED EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

(Free Church of England).

Victoria Avenue, between Church and Pinnacle Streets.

Rev. William J. Gilliland, Rector.

Orange Orders of city will attend Divine Service at 11 o'clock.

Evening service, 7 o'clock—Memorial service.

Sunday School and Bible Classes 10 o'clock a.m.

Young People's Meeting Sunday 8 p m.

Strangers and visitors in the city welcome.

All seats free.

DIED LIKE HIS MOTHER.

William Baxter Fell Out of Window and Broke His Skull.

Chatham, July 11.—Wm. Baxter, an old Chatham boy, but now of New York city, met a shocking death here yesterday. He came here a week ago to spend his vacation at the home of his brother-in-law, P. S. Coate, when he was seized with typhoid and removed to the public general hospital. Yesterday he asked his [illegible] for a glass of water, and in [illegible] momentary absence left his bed [illegible] and got out of the window, two stories up, and fell to the ground. His skull was fractured and he died in two hours. He was a son of the late Col. Baxter, once chief of police of this city. He leaves a wife and two children. Deceased's mother met a similar death about seven years ago, falling on a rail in getting off a train at Glencoe and fracturing her skull, dying in a few hours.

Kicked by a Horse.

Watford, July 11.—Mrs. E. Burlington of this place was probably fatally injured in a runaway accident three miles west of Watford yesterday morning. In company with three other ladies, she was driving out to pick berries, when the breeching broke and the horse started to kick. Mrs. Burlington was kicked in the head, her skull being fractured. Three doctors were summoned and removed a portion of the skull, but the chances of recovery are slight.

Signatures made with lead pencil are good in law.

There are over 21,000 stitches in an ordinary white shirt.

Nearly 500 different kinds of tiny shells go to make up chalk.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Measurement Nonpareil—12 lines to th inch.

Display advertisements, 10c per line.

Subsequent consecutive insertions, ne.

Reading advertisements, 15c per line.

Preferred position, 20 per cent. advance upon usual or contract rates.

Minimum space, 10 lines.

Marriages and deaths, 50c each insertion. Births, 25c each insertion.

Rates for Condensed Advertisement will be found in 1st column of 2nd page.

All advertisements are subject to the approval of the Publisher of the Intelligencer.

Address all communications to the Intelligencer Printing & Publishing House Limited, or to Charles J. Bowell, Managing Director and Treasurer.

Canadians in London will find The Intelligencer on file at E. & J. Hardy & Co.'s Office, 30 Fleet Street, London, E. C.

CONDENSED ADVERTISEMENTS

SITUATIONS WANTED, HELP WANTED, LOST OR FOUND, FOR SALE OR TO RENT, &c

(Auction Sales not included in this list)

TERMS.—Twenty-five words or less, 25c first insertion; two insertions, 50c; four insertions, 75c; one week $1.00, two weeks, $1.75, three weeks, $2.25; one month, $2.50. Strictly cash in advance.

WANTED,

A boy about 15 years of age to carry messages. Apply to G.N.W. Telegraph Office, Bridge St. jy10-tf

To rent, house with modern improvements and lawn. Good locality. Apply immediately, MRS. POWER, Dominion House. 10-2t

100 machinery moulders and coremakers. Steady work. Wages for moulders at least $4.00; coremakers $3.25. Address Post Office Box 511, Toronto. jy9-d10t

$6 per month will buy you a home anywhere under our plan. Live in it while paying for it Write for prospectus. Canadian Home Builders' Asciation, Manning Chambers, Toronto. jy11-6t

Have you spare time? Increase your income by work at night. Others are doing it. Our goods are used everyday everywhere. Write G. Marshall & Co., Teas, London, Ont.

Agents wanted, $2.50 per day. Apply Cooper, London, Ont. s27-1y

Young men ambitious to learn lucrative trades, of which there are eight in connection with the business. Apply The Belleville Hardware Company, Belleville, Ont. a7dtf

WANTED Reliable Men in every locality throughout Canada to introduce our goods, tacking up show cards on trees, fences, along roads and all conspicuous places, also distributing small advertising matter. Commission or salary $60.00 per month and expenses, not to exceed $2.50 per day. Steady employment to good, honest reliable men. No experience needful. Write for full particulars, THE EMPIRE MEDICINE CO., London, Ont.

FOR SALE OR TO-LET.

Stone house, 11 rooms, coal furnace, stable, barn. Large grounds. Cor. Frank and Moira Sts. north. Terms reasonable. H. Bull, on premises or Fred Bull, 133 Yonge St., Toronto. Terms easy. ap18-dtf

FOR SALE.

Two surreys, two phaetons, two buggies, one horse. Apply to H. L. CURRY, Pinnacle street. jy9-6td&16,23w

Dressed and Matched Lumber of all kinds, at ALFORD'S factory, Market Square. j12-tf

Contractors and masons, any any person requiring lime may procure it from E. G. STAPLEY, Canifton Road, Belleville. New lime always on hand. a9-d&w6m

TO RENT

A house on Moira street containing 8 rooms. All modern conveniences. Possession on or before 20th July.—Adam Henry. dtf

Bank of Montreal

ESTABLISHED 1817.

Capital and Rest, All Paid Up.
$23,000,000
(Twenty-three Millions)

Savings Bank Department

Interest on sums of $1.00 and upwards allowed at current rates.

A. G. PARKER,
Manager Belleville Branch

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

SINGLE FARE

To Detroit and Return

in connection with

INTERNATIONAL EPWORTH LEAGUE CONVENTION,

July 16th to 19th.

Tickets good going July 15th and 16th. Valid for return until July 20th. Tickets may be extended for return until August 15th, on depositing tickets with joint agent not later than July 19th, and on payment of 50 cents.

The Grand Trunk service is unexcelled for those attending the convention. Fast and convenient.

TOURIST RESORTS.

Muskoka Lakes, Georgian Bay, Lake of Bays, Kawartha Lakes, Thousand Islands, Quebec, Portland, Old Orchard, White Mountains. All reached via the Grand Trunk.

For tickets and all information apply to

J. E. THOMPSON, City Agent,
Bridge Street,
T. H. COPPIN, Depot Agent,
J. D. McDONALD,
Dist. Pass Agt., Toronto.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY.

"Imperial Limited."

Fast tri-weekly Transcontinental service between Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver. Connection leaves Toronto at 1.45 p.m., Sunday, Wednesday, Friday, making run Toronto to Vancouver in 97 hours.

Upper Lake Steamships

Leave Owen Sound Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 5.30 p.m., on arrival of S.S. Express leaving Toronto at 1.30 p.m. Connections at Fort William and Port Arthur for Winnipeg and Pacific Coast points.

Daily First-Class Service Toronto to Winnipeg, Calgary, Banff and Pacific Coast.

Fully Equipped Through Tourist Cars leave Toronto Tuesday and Saturday for Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Full particulars from your nearest Canadian Pacific Agent or to

A. H. NOTMAN,
Asst. Gen. Pass. Agent, TORONTO.
S. BURROWS, C.P.R. and General Ticket Agent, Front St., Belleville.

NEW YORK CENTRAL

& HUDSON RIVER R. R.

THE FOUR-TRACK TRUNK LINE.

SHORTEST Route to the United States via Cape Vincent, N.Y.

GOING EAST AND WEST.		After 1st May
Lv. Belleville (G.T.R.)	12.22 p.m.	1.30 a.m
Arr. Kingston "	1.47 p.m.	3.12 a.m
Lv. Kingston (stage)..	2.30 p.m.	5 00 a.m
Arr. CapeVincent (stage)	4 30 p m.	7.00 a.m
Lv.Cape Vincent N.Y.C.	5.05 p.m.	7.25 a.m
Arr. Watertown "	5.55 p.m.	8,25 a.m
Arr. Oswego "	9.05 p.m.	11.55 a.m
Arr. Syracuse "	9.25 p.m.	12.07 p.m
Arr. Rochester "	1.05 a.m.	2.20 a.m
Arr. Utica "	9.45 p.m.	12.35 p.m
Arr. New York "	7.25 a.m.	6.00 p.m

Convenient train service in opposite direction.

Pullman Sleeping and Parlor Cars.

2c a Mile.

Books for 500 miles of travel on New York Central and leased lines within State of New York, cost only $10 while books for 1000 miles over New York Central, Boston & Albany, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, Philadelphia & Reading and C. R. R. of New Jersey cost $20. Secure further information and purchase tickets from F. A. Folger, N.Y.C. Agent, Kingston, Ont.

GEORGE H. DANIELS,
Gen'l Pass'r Agent.
New York.
A. H. SMITH, Gen'l Supt.,
New York.
G. C. GRIDLEY, Gen'l Agent,
Watertown, N.Y.

It takes a long time to tell of what you have not done.

Turkey now exports $3,000,000 worth of opium a year.

Seven hundred British subjects are yearly born at sea.

Children's Slippers

Children's Red Kid Slippers	60c, 75c, and $1.00
Children's White Kid Slippers	$1.00 and $1.25
Children's Patent Leather Slippers	75c, $1.00 and $1 25

We are offering a special line of Ladies' Dongola Kid Slippers for ....75c, regular price $1.00

VERMILYEA & SON.

FERROL IN SUMMER

Those who are prevented by want of time, or lack of means, or both, from going to the mountains or the seaside during the heated term, often feel the need of a concentrated and easily assimilated food to afford proper nourishment wher ordinary food cleys the appettite and clogs the digestion.

To combat the depressing and enervating effects of hard work in hot weather there is nothing like FERROL. Do not imagine that because FERROL contains Cod Liver Oil, it is therefore unsuited for summer use. Nothing could be more erroneous. FERROL is a food quite as much as a medicine; it is, moreover, a highly concentrated food and so scintifically prepared that it is almost ready for instant absorption. It therefore furnished the most valuable nourishment without impairing the digestion in the slightest.

When the hot weather comes, and you begin to feel languid, depressed and unfit for business, just try FERROL. You will find it pleasant to take, easy to digest and absolutely infallible in its results.

Sample free. 75c at all druggists or rom

THE FERROL COMPANY, Limited,
134 King St. West,
TORONTO.

Allen's Lung Balsam

The best Cough Medicine.

ABSOLUTE SAFETY should be the first thought and must be rigorously insisted upon when buying medicine, for upon its safety depends one's life. ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM contains no opium in any form and is safe, sure, and prompt in cases of Croup, Colds, deep-seated Coughs.

Try it now, and be convinced.

DEATHS

TEALE—At Kingston, July 9, 1903, John Teale, aged 82 years.

The funeral will take place from the residence of his son, Mr. George Teale, Bleecker Ave., on Sunday afternoon, July 12, at 3.30, to Christ Church, thence to the Belleville cemetery.

He who foresees calamities suffers them twice over.

PERSONAL ...AND... SOCIAL.

The Intelligencer invites all its readers to contribute to this column all items of a personal nature, such as the arrival or departure of guests, and the movements of business men, etc. Send a post card to or telephone The Intelligencer.

Judge Fraleck and family have gone to Salmon Lake for the summer.

Mr. H. Corby and family have gone to the Sandbanks for a couple of weeks.

Mr. Geo. Truscott who was operated on at the Hospital is doing nicely.

Mr. James Conley, of New York is visiting his uncle, Mr. C. F. Draycott, N. Front St.

Miss Lillian Foxton, of Brockville, is the guest of Miss Clara Marshall, McDonald St.

Miss Lottie and Master Eddie Warham left to-day to spend a few weeks with friends at Hastings, Norwood and Stoney Lake.

Mr. T. Daly and Miss Hannah left this morning for an axtended trip to visit friends in Winnipeg and Dakota and from there they will proceed to the Pacific Coast.

Sports and Pastimes

SPORTING NOTE AND COMMENT.

Joe Wilson Defeated.

London, July 10.—The hundred yards amateur swimming championship was won by Derbyshire, an Emglishman, by one minute. Joe Wilson, of Toronto, was third in his heat, defeating the Swedish champion, but being beaten by two Englishmen, one by seven seconds.

The Toronto Star is again offering as a prize for the heaviest black bass caught in Ontario during the season of 1903, a fine split bamboo bass road, worth $15, with a plate suitably inscribed. Cannot one of the Intelligencer readers secure it?

BARGAINS IN PERFUMES.

This is a real bargain sale of Choice Perfumes of all the popular odors—it is not "cheap perfume" but first class, sold cheap. We bought a specail job lot and got a special discount above the regular wholesale price and are now offering for the regular wholesale price. See our window for prices, etc.—Alex. Ray.

CIVIC COMMITTEES.

CONSIDERABLE BUSINESS TRANSACTED AT LAST NIGHT'S MEETING.

At the various civic committees held last evening considerable business was transacted. The members present were: Mayor Graham, Aldermen McFee, Pope, Chown, Sinclair, Sulman, Panter and Marsh.

WATERWORKS.

Ald. Sulman presided over the committee.

The following accounts were passed:

Pay sheet No. 11	$34.53
C. B. Foster	25.10
Downey Co.	282.45
J. M. Hancock	49.80
G.T.R., freight	75.58
S. T. Harris	32.57
Rathbun Co.	8.95

A recommendation prevailed that the barbers be given a uniform rate of $6 per annum for one tap.

The resignation of Ald. Galbraith as Chairman was presented. On motion Ald. Sulman was made Chairman and Ald. Marsh was added to the committee.

The Mayor was instructed to communicate with Kingsville regarding the purchasing of second-hand meters.

PUBLIC WORKS.

Ald. Panter, Chairman, presided over this committee.

The following accounts were passed:

Pay sheet No. 74	$220.00
Walker Foundry	33.15
Rathbun Co.	98.54
G. Walton	17.84

It was recommended that a portion of Church street from Mr. S. Sheehan's residence to Bridge street be repaired.

It was recommended that both sides of Front street be cleaned.

The Surveyor was instructed to remove some piles of dirt in front of Mr. Lake's residence on Pinnacle street.

The Mayor and Chairman were appointed a committee with power to act, regarding a storage bin and screenings at the island.

The Surveyor was instructed to repair Mill street.

A motion prevailed that Victoria avenue to Pinnacle street be macadamized as soon as Bridge and Church streets are completed.

John street, from Bridge street to Victoria avenue, was ordered to be graded.

The special committee appointed to inspect the streets and crossings was instructed to report at an early date the crossings necessary to be built. Ald. Sinclair was added to the committee.

FIRE.

Ald. McFee, Chairman, presided over this committee.

The following accounts were passed:

Geo. D. Frost	$20.00
W. McGie	30.65
Jas. Orr	2.70

PARKS.

Ald. Pope, Chairman, presided.

The following accounts were passed:

Johnston & Austin	$ 5.10
Pay sheet	10.20
J. Malyea	3.50

MARKET.

The only business transacted in this committee was a recommendation to the Council that Ald. Green be Chairman of this committee in place of Ald. Sulman.

EXECUTIVE.

Ald. Chown, Chairman, presided.

The only account passed was $30 to Miss E. B. Roberts.

The Chairman of this committee was added to the special committee in reference to the lumber piles on Pinnacle street, also Ald. Sinclair.

CITY AND DISTRICT.

Advertisements under this heading TWO CENTS A WORD; subsequent consecutive insertions ONE CENT A WORD. No loca charged as less than twenty-five words.

There was a large market to-day and prices were fair for all products offered for sale.

At an early hour this morning the police found a bicycle on Front St.

As the result of a call to Campbell street last evening a drunk was picked up.

Judgment of the sheep and the goats and Christ's millennial reign, Bethel Hall, Sunday evening.

The North King and Caspian, and the smaller bay excursion steamers, are now doing a large excursion business—the warm weather causing all who can to get away and enjoy the refreshing breezes of the bay, lake and river.

DEATH OF MRS. LITHGOW.

A WELL KNOWN SIDNEY LADY PASSES AWAY.

Mrs. Robert Lithgow died yesterday at her late home at Chatterton, Sidney township. Deceased whose maiden name was Miss Johnston, was well known in this vicinity and was a lady who was universally esteemed. She had been ill for some time and the accident which occurred a few weeks ago, resulting in the death of Mr. Lithgow, was to her a severe blow. Mrs. Lithgow was a member of the Roman Catholic Church. No family survive. Mr. John Johnston, School Inspector, of this city, is a brother of the deceased.

OBITUARY.

MRS. JAMES HILL.

A highly respected resident of Shannonville passed away on Thursday, 9th inst., in the person of Mrs. James Hill. The deceased lady whose maiden name was Isabella McGergor, was born 83 years ago in County Down, Ireland. At the age of thirteen years she came with her friends to Canada, and some ten years later was married to her late husband, who died in 1877 at the good old age of 80 years, in Shannonville, where they had lived ever since their marriage. Their surviving children are two sons, Mathew of Shannonville, Andrew of Manitoba, and three daughters, Mrs. W. H. Carscallen of this city and Mrs. Leverton and Mrs. Pegan (with whom she lived) of Shannonville. Although she had passed fourcore yearss Mrs. Hill was clear of intellect almost to the last. Her illness was a very painful one, patiently borne. She was a faithful member of the Presbyterian Church. The remains will be interred in the Shannonville cemetery.

Married in Montreal.

A quiet wedding took place a Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, on Thursday afternoon at 5.30, when Mr. Charles Franklin Dale, of Belleville, Ont., was united in marriage to Florence Curlette, only daughter of the late E. J. Fish, of that city. The Rev. T. Stannage Boyle officiated. The bride was given away by Mr. J. E. Kirkpatrick. Miss Enid Hyman acted as bridesmaid. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Dale left by the Quebec boat for their wedding trip, and later will reside in Belleville.—Com.

WHY SUFFER FROM HEAT?

You suffer from heat because you do not properly dress. Notice the men, one-half you meet are wearing heavy clothing and a black hat. The man to be cool must be properly clothed. Do you know the Oak Hall are having a big clearing out sale of summer clothing and straw hats?

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

CAME HOME TAGGED

Mr. Burren's Cruel Neighbors Found Ingenious Means to Rebuke Him.

Down near the historic old village of Cahokia, on the east side, there are some old residents whose minds are in a state of turmoil. There are vague rumors rife as to what will happen if a certain resident gets his hands on certain other residents, or their sons or daughters, or even relatives. In fact, there is as close to a fued in existence as ever excited the people of this section of the country.

All the trouble is over a score or more of fowls owned by Jacques Burren. The poultry is of blooded stock and imported, so Burren asserts, from portions of the country where cock fights are not uncommon, and where people delight in raising fine specimens of hens and roosters, especially the latter. Mr. Burren has the habit of poultry raising, especially of the fighting variety, thoroughly engrafted and he has been known to go to almost any length to secure a promising chicken to add to his well-stocked farm.

Recently Mr. Burren has been in the habit of allowing his poultry to wander at will over the neighborhood. Sometimes the poultry got into the yards of neighbors and uprooted beds of garden vegetables in their search for delicacies. Irate women, and at times the heads of the families, drove the poultry away, but feared to kill any of the members of Mr. Burren's poultry family because of his possible wrath.

Within the last week the depredations by the blooded chickens have been the cause of much complaint, and a few days ago some of the younger element of the neighborhood got together to devise ways and means to compell Mr. Burren to pen his stock up, or at least to keep them on his premises. The meeting was secret, and the result of the deliberations of the members of the conference was not known until about noon. Then it was that the chickens wended their way homeward to partake of the boiled corn-meal mash and milk that is always ready for them when the hands of the clock point to the hour of 12.

Mr. Burren was waiting in his yard for the return of his poultry. The first to return home was a large game cock which had won its spurs several times over. Mr. Burren was astonished at the appearance of his favorite chicken. A tag hung from its mouth. It vainly tried to dislodge it, and scratched and clawed fiercely. It was with difficulty that Mr. Buren got close enough to grab the chicken and make a closer examination. A card had been attached with a piece of string to a kernel of corn. The chicken had swallowed the corn, but could not swallow the card. It hung out of its mouth. An inscription on it read: "I am a straight-out-and-out Democrat and dislike scratching.

A WONDERFUL MEDICINE.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

For Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain in the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Blotches on the Skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c. THE FIRST DOSE WILL GIVE RELIEF IN TWENTY MINUTES. This is no fiction. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one Box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be WITHOUT A RIVAL.

BEECHAM'S PILLS taken as directed, will quickly restore Females to complete health. They promptly remove any obstruction or irregularity of the system. For a

Weak Stomach,
Impaired Digestion,
Disordered Liver,

they act like magic—a few doses will work wonders upon the Vital Organs; Strengthening the muscular System, restoring the long-lost Complexion, bringing back the keen edge of appetite, and arousing with the Rosebud of Health the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are "facts" admitted by thousands, in all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous and Debilitated is that BEECHAM'S PILLS have the Largest Sale of any Patent Medicines in the World.

Beecham's Pills have been before the public for half a century, and are the most popular family medicine. No testimonials are published, as Beecham's Pills

RECOMMEND THEMSELVES.

Prepared only by Thomas Beecham, St. Helens, England.

Sold everywhere in Canada and U. S. America. In boxes, 25 cents.

SAVE MONEY
By JOINING The MUTUAL LITERARY-MUSIC CLUB
OF AMERICA

25 Cents pays for three months' membership. Each member receives the official club organ every month, including 6 pieces of high-class vocal and instrumental new music each month, 18 pieces in all; also a Certificate of Membership which gives the privilege of Club Room in New York City, and of buying literature, music or musical instruments of any description at wholesale prices, saving you from 20% to 60% on your purchases. Don't fail to join at once. You will get much more than your money's worth. MUTUAL LITERARY-MUSIC CLUB, Dept. , 150 Nassau St., N.Y.

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines, or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

Soldiers in the Italian army are allowed cigars as part of their daily rations.

Life has no blessing like a prudent friend.

FOR TWO WEEKS ONLY! 2 WEEKS

$5.00 Any Suit In This Great Clothing Store for $5.00

A STUPENDOUS CLOTHING OFFER WITHOUT PRECEDENT OR PARALLEL.

Some Suits $18, some $16, some $15, some $12, others $10. Just think of it! High grade, thoroughly tailored garments for Men, complete suits in fashionable fabrics, for

$5.00

This is just the opening gun in the great Mid-Summer Sale, in connection with this store. In every other department there will be equal sensational reductions. This Clothing Sale begins on July 11th and will end on July 25th. The earlier you come the better your choice as we anticipate a big rush.

The GLOBE CLOTHING HOUSE.

Up-to-date Clothiers and Gents' Furnishiers, Look for the Globe Over The Door, 390 Front Street, Belleville.

NEW GOODS

JAPAN TEA

The first of this season's crop, exta quality, regular 50c line, we quote

40c Per lb.

Canned Halibut

Fine solid Fish, very tasty,

15c per can.

J. C. Hanley & Co.
GROCERS
Telephone 214

SANTAL-MIDY
Standard remedy for Gleet, Gonorrhœa and Runnings IN 48 HOURS. Cures Kidney and Bladder Troubles.
MIDY

The chance of two finger-prints being alike is not one in sixty-four billions.

Burns Coal
Burns Wood

Sunshine Furnace

No need to worry about coal strikes if your home is heated with a "Sunshine" Furnace.

By placing our patented wood grate over the coal grates it will burn wood or coke and give as perfect satisfaction as with coal—also saves starting a coal fire in spring and fall when a wood fire will take the chill off the house in a few minutes.

Feed-doors are double and extra large—will admit rough chunks.

Radiator is made of heavy steel plate and encircles the dome in such a way that it leaves a wide space between the two for the circulation of air and gives an immense radiating surface.

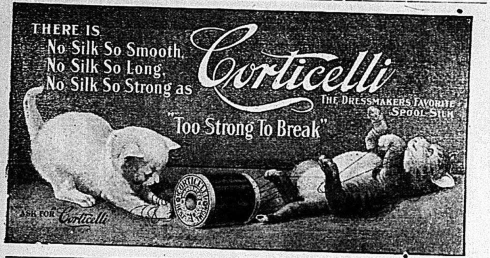
The "Sunshine" is the only Canadian heater which will burn coal, coke or wood with entire satisfaction.

Sold by all Enterprising Dealers. Booklet Free.

McClary's

LONDON, TORONTO, MONTREAL, WINNIPEG, VANCOUVER, ST. JOHN, N.B.

The W. W. CHOWN CO., Limited
SOLE AGENTS.



CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY

CAPITAL

10,000 Shares 7 per cent Cumulative Preferred Stock, par value $100 each, $1,000,000
50,000 Shares Common Stock, par value $100, issued and fully paid 5,000,000
TOTAL CAPITALIZATION $6,000,000

Issues of $1,000,000.00 7 p.c. Preferred Stock in 10,000 Shares of $100 each at par.

This stock is preferred both as to Assets and Dividends.

The shares are entitled to cumulative preferred dividends from the net earnings of the Company, at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable half yearly on the first days of April and October. They may, at the option of the holder, be exchanged for common shares. They are subject to be called in, in whole or in part, by the Company, at $115.00 per share, at any time after 1st January, 1909.

The total issue of Preferred Stock is only $1,000,000.00, the whole of which is now offered.

Subscriptions for 10,000 Shares of $100 each of the 7 per cent. Preferred Stock of the CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY will now be received at par, that is $100 Share, as follows

per cent on application,
25 " " on allotment,
35 " " 30 days thereafter.
35 " " 60 days thereafter.

One share of Common, par value $100, given with each share of preferred.

The whole of instalments remaining unpaid at any time may be prepaid in full. A discount of one per cent will be allowed upon the par of each share if prepaid at time of allotment

Notice of allotment will be sent promptly by ordinary letter.

COAL

PROPERTY IN FULL OPERATION

Company owns 9,600 acres of coal property known throughout the coal trade as the New Campbellton Colliery, located on Bras D'Or Bay, County of Victoria, Cape Breton, Nova Scotia. Mine is fully equipped, producing and marketing tons of coal a day at a net profit of $1.00 a ton. Improvements are now being made that will increase the output to over 1,000 tons a day. On present output, figuring 300 working days in year, the net result will more than pay interest on entire issue of preferred, with output of 1,000 tons a day net result will be $300,000 per annum.

IRON

RICHEST ORE IN THE WORLD

Company owns in fee simple, free and clear of all incumbrances, 4000 acres of iron ore deposit, located Natashquan (tidewater) situated on North shore of Gulf of St. Lawrence, in the County of Saguenay, province of Quebec.

Deposits contain 20,000,000 tons of ore ABOVE SEA LEVEL ALONE.

Quality of ore is highest ever discovered, running from 69 per cent to 72 per cent in metallic iron.

More orders for the sale of this ore has been received by the Company than can possibly be accepted, and at a price netting the Company a profit of $2 a ton F. O. B. vessels at Company's docks.

Send for prospectus giving full information as to earnings, reports, etc., etc.

Address all communications and send subscriptions to

COLONIAL SECURITIES CO.,
62 Wall Street, New York City

OR

W. L. MARSTON & COMPANY
110 State Street, Boston

The SAWYER COMPANY.
351 Temple Building, Montreal, Canada.

AN ADOPTED CHICKEN.

"Lucky" Was Accidently Hatched With a Hatch of Little Chickens.

When I was a little girl I lived on a farm where there were a great many chickens, turkeys, ducks and geese, and among them was a brown hen named Yellow Foot, who wanted very much to have a nice family of little yellow chickens, and she knew if she laid one egg every day until there was twelve eggs, and then sat on them patiently for three weeks, she would have twelve dear little chicks. So she laid a nice white egg every day, but she could never get twelve as the cook took the egg away every morning, so Yellow Foot felt very sad.

Now, another hen named Tufty thought it would be nice to have little chickens, too; but she was very smart and found a place away off that cook didn't know about, and there she laid her eggs, and one day she surprised all the other hens by walking into the chicken yard with twelve little chicks toddling after her. Now I had learned how sorry Mrs. Yellow Foot felt because she had no little chickens, when I saw Mrs. Tufty walking about so proudly, I felt very sorry indeed for Mrs. Yellow Foot.

Well that afternoon something vary funny happened. I was walking about the farm, and I found in the corner of a rail fence, a turkey sitting on some eggs, and running around her was a lonely little chicken, just out of its shell, making such a pitiful "peep, peep." I took it up in my apron and ran and asked one of the men what it could mean. He said that a hen's egg had by mistake been put with the turkey's eggs, and it takes just a week longer for turkeys to hatch than it does for the hen's eggs. The poor little chick had come out of its shell a week before there was any one to take care of it.

When I heard that I thought, "Poor little chicken, what will you do, for I don't know how to take care of you at all, and it will be a week before that ugly turkey gets ready to do it, and you can not wait until then?" And then suddenly I thought, "Why, this little chicken is just as old as the twelve that were hatched this morning. I'll take it to the chicken-yard and set it down among them, and Tufty will take care of it. So I ran to the chicken-yard and put it with the other little chicks, and it ran after Tufty like the others. But you can't believe how bad Tufty acted. The minute she heard the strange little "peep" she turned around and stood still a moment, and then all her feathers stuck out, and she bobbed her head, and then pounced on my poor little chicken and gave it an awful pick. Wasn't it cruel?

I didn't know what to do, I was afraid to go near Tufty, because she would think that I was going to catch her little chicks, and I knew she would try to pick me just as she did my poor little chicken. While I was thinking she flew at it again and gave it another pick. This time I didn't stop to think, but I jumped and caught it, and ran before Tufty could catch me. I ran till I felt quite safe, and then sat down on the kitchen doorstep with my poor little chicken in my apron and cried. I think I must have cried pretty loud, because mother heard me and came out. When I told her all about it, she said: "Why didn't you try old Yellow Foot?"

At that I jumped up and clapped my hands with delight, and my poor little chicken dropped on the grass, but it didn't hurt it, and I put it carefully in my apron and went to the chicken yard again to try mother's plan. I had a hard time finding Mrs. Yellow Foot, but finally I came upon her, looking doleful in the bottom of a barrel. I poked her out with a stick, but she would not come out. At last I turned the barrel over and she had to come out. She looked very angry and made a great deal of noise about it. I waited until she got out, and then put my little chicken down by her, and oh, you should have seen her then; she looked at it a minute, and when it "peeped" she gave a quiet little cluck, just as if she was trying to see how it sounded, and then the little chicken "peeped" again, and Yellow Foot clucked again, and walked around, and the chicken followed her.

So my little chicken had some one to take care of her, and I named her Lucky, right away, and oh, how proud Yellow Foot was! She strutted everywhere with her odd chick, and all the love and care she was going to give the twelve she gave to this one. She scratched for it, and clucked for it, and fought for it, and gave it all the warm cover of her wings at night. Little Lucky seemed to know that she had all the care that was meant for twelve, for she was the happiest chick that ever lived.—Kindergarten Gems, St. Louis.

At a conundrum party on Clinton Ave, a few nights ago, I am told, the following familiar question was put: "What is the difference between a white baby and a black baby?" After all the young folk had given it up one of the grandfathers present, who had been a slave owner in the South, remarked: "I don't know what it is now, but I can tell you what it used to be." All appealed for the answer in chorus, and as he marched triumphantly out of the room, hands deep in trousers pockets, he chuckled "Nine hundred dollars!"

No one loves the man who he fears.

No great genius was ever without some mixture of madness, nor can anything grand or superior to the voice of common mortals be spoken except by the agitated soul.

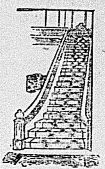
For one swallow does not make spring, nor yet one fine day.

A king ruleth as he ought, a tyrant as he lists; a king to the profit of all, a tyrant only to please a few.—Aristotle.

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

Store Closed Every Wednesday During July and August at 12 O'Clock Noon.

Underpriced Housefurnishings



Here are some items from our Housefurnishing Department which will show conclusively its ability to at least equal the other departments in low price value giving.

Our reputation for complete assortments neccessitates the clearing of ends and odd lots in all lines which, after the season's selling have dropped below this high standard.

This and the neccesity for valuable space now occupied by these make such prices an advantage to you and to us.

Our desire is not only to sell but to sell quickly. The prices below should convince you we have made our best effort to make early visiting profitable.

—5 only Fancy Wool Doormats, regular 35c for .. 20c
—6 only Rugs 18x36 assorted colors, regular 50c for 25c
—5 only fringed Axminister Rugs 18"x36" regular 90c for 58c
—A lot of choice remnants in Brussel's Carpets made up into rugs with wool fringed ends, lengths from 1 to 2 yards, prices from $1.00 to $2.00 all clearing at HALF PRICE.
—3 only Turkish designs, Rugs 30x60 inches, regular $1 75 for $1 00
—2 only Turkish design Rugs, were $2.50 for .. $1.50
—2 only Union Rugs 2½x3 yds. regular $4 50 for $2.50
—Ends of borders and Bodies in Carpets ranging in price from 90c to $1 25 suitable for mats, seasonable patterns at HALF PRICE.

HALF PRICE COVERS.

An odd lot of small table covers which have not sold as freely as we desire.

We have cut the price in two to clear them before continual handling makes them soiled and indesirable.

Not the newest designs, still many of them would not be out of place in the best fitted rooms. And then the price—just HALF.

—Odd lot of Silk, Velvet and Wool table covers with and without fringe were 95c to $4 50, HALF PRICE
—A desirable lot of white Bed Spreads slightly soiled in the manufacture, size 72x90 inches all much below regular value price at 95c

50c Boy's Straw Hats 25c

Boys straws have not been selling up to our desire. Dont know why unless the boys are all away to camp. Values are our best ever.

Here is an offering which should attract the mothers to our furnishing department even though the boys be away.

—Boys' fine straw sailors in fine and heavy weaves, plain and fancy bands, regular 35, 40 & 50c, for 25c

75c SUMMER CORSETS 50c

Cash and quantity buying enables us to make this offering in one of our most desireable summer Corsets.

New stock made from reliable material by a firm that stands foremost among Corset makers for fit and serviceability, they offer value which every lady can appreciate.

—Fine White Percale Corsets with straight front and erect form, lace and ribbon trimmed, elsewhere, 75c, for 50c

SOFT SHIRTS

If you go without your vest these days you should have a soft front Shirt. Looks better—feels better.

Not hard or costly either to obtain the season's choicest patterns if you consult our stock.

Of course the more you pay the better material. Fit—workmanship and designs are as pleasing in the cheap as the more expensive qualities.

Ask to see our colored soft front Shirts at $1.00. Better at this price are not purchaseable.

—Men's Fine colored Shirts—reliable makes 50c o $1 50

MEN'S COTTON HOSIERY

The increased trade resultant from our spring improvements is gratifying to us and our daily object is, the best at the lowest price for men.

If our goods are in anyway unsatisfactory you will favor us by promptly returning them.

Just now our Cotton Hosiery seems to be the satisfying article.

Every desirable plain and fancy quality is here all in fast Hermsdorf Black.

—Fine qualities in plain and fancy Hosiery 12½ to 35c
—Perhaps you use and need Hose supporters, we have the best at every price 15c, 20c, 25c, 35c

Moderate Priced Ordered Suits.

Our made to Order Clothing is everyday meeting satisfactorily the needs of a larger number of men who desire stylish perfect fitting guaranteed clothing at moderate prices.

Already many repeat orders have been taken from among our city's most careful dressers.

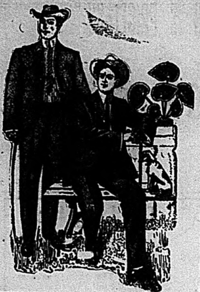
You could not improve FIT or STYLE at double the price. The rest we guarantee.

Come in and consult our prices on a made to order summer Suit.

Agents for Standard Patterns.

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

CLOTHING BOUGHT HERE PRESSED FREE OF CHARGE



Everything Is Thoroughly Good

That's certain, at QUICK & ROBERTSON'S—we are more particular about giving than you are in getting it perhaps.

But there are other reasons why you should buy at this store where quality is the first consideration.

We not only make goodness certain by applying every known test for quality, but are equally as careful to price that goodness as common as the ordinary sorts are priced elsewhere.

HERE are a few suggestions of summer fixin's that should interest men and mothers of boys.

FOR BOYS.

Vacation Suits and other wear, things that after good hard wear show the difference between our good sorts at our common prices and cheap sorts, which cost a little less.

—Regulation Sailor Blouse Suits, Cheviot mixtures, stripes and serges. .... $1.25 to $4.50

—Norfolk Jackets, single and double-breasted suits for older boys, extensive showing of plain and fancy mixtures .... $2.00 to $5.00

—Washable Sailor Suits 50c to $1.50.

—Wash Waists and Blouses, 25c to $1.00.

FOR MEN.

—SUMMER SUITS—Such as are impossible to obtain except at the best custom tailors—perfect fitting, stylish garments, suited to men who want the out-of-the-ordinary sorts. Homespuns, Tropical Serges, Worsteds and Flannels............................ $3.75 to $12.00

—OUTING TROUSERS $1.00 to $4.00.

—NEGLIGE SHIRTS—In stripes and patterned materials, such as custom shirt makers would show you as their newest—plain or plaited bosoms.......... 50c to $1.50

—STRAW HATS—Every one new, the largest assortment of the smartest shapes the best makers have produced.

Sailors, in low crown .... 50c to $2.00

Panama shape, the right ones .... 75c to $2.50

QUICK & ROBERTSON

Here is where you buy Johnston's Clothing for Men and Boys.

Refrigerators

This warm weather you will readily appreciate the advantages of a good refrigerator.

We have only three left and if you are talking of getting one, you had better come in and see us as we will make the price interesting.

The W. W. CHOWN Company, Limited

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines, or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

Gas Works For Sale.

The Belleville Gas Company, Limited, have decided to offer for sale

BY TENDER

the whole of their Gas Plant and franchise, including the Gas Building and Factory, street mains and piping and an electric lighting plant. Also a water power privilege on the river Moira at the city limits containing about five acres of land.

The Gas Plant is in good working order and up-to-date, and is the only Gas Plant in the City of Belleville. Inspection solicited. Inventories of stock and plant and also list of present consumers and location of mains can be seen on application at the office of the Belleville Gas Company, Limited.

Tenders will be received up to Twelve o'clock noon of Friday the Thirty-first day of July, 1903.

Tenders to be directed to J. W. Johnson, Esq., President of the Belleville Gas Company, Limited, Belleville, Ont., and marked "Tenders."

Terms and conditions of sale and any further information required can be had on application to Robert Thomson, the company's Secretary, or to Messrs. Bell & Biggar, Barristers, etc., Belleville, or to the undersigned.

Highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Belleville, June 29th, 1903.

Stewart Masson,
Vendors' Solicitor.
Belleville, Ont.

30-4-11-18-25.

A Stitch in Time Saves Nine

Bicycle Repairing

Costs money, especially when the small things are neglected.

If there appears to be anything wrong with your Wheel, Lawn Mower or any of your machines or tools take it to and see what he can do.

GREENLEAF

We are renting the next store so will soon be better able than ever to cater to your wants.

His Majesty the King.

There was a great excitement near the Majestic building. A constantly growing crowd of humanity surged around an object in the centre. The sidewalk was completely blocked, and even the autocratic scorcher was compelled to change his mad course to avoid collision with the street enthusiasts, whose voices rose and fell on the breeze like an advancing host hailing an uncrowned ruler.

"'Nother victim of the bicycle, I s'pose," said the man who loses many valuable moments during the day trying to cross the streets in safety.

"Or the street car," supplemented another, and they added their information seeking presence to the throng.

A policeman finally came along and dispursed the mob. And the cause of it all stood posing on a curbstone pedestal like a conquering hero of old. His cold, proud eye surveying the officer with contempt, and he seemed ready to receive any bouquets that might be thrown at him. The crowd jeered the policeman, and the curbstone divinity bowed to the renewed plaudits of the multitude.

He was a baseball player.—Detroit Free Press.

CANCERS

AND TUMORS

Completely eradicated from the system by the new constitutional treatment. No pain, or suffering. More effectual than operations and plasters. Send two stamps for book and particulars to B. I. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

SEASIDE RESORTS.

The Grand Trunk Railway is the best and most comfortable route to all eastern points, including White Mountains, Old Orchard, Me; Portland, Me.; "International Limited" leaving Toronto 9 a.m., daily, carries through Pullman to Portland, Cafe Parlor to Montreal. Eastern Flyer leaving Toronto 10.30 p.m. daily, is a solid train of vestibuled coaches and Pullman Sleepers.

Tourist tickets are on sale, embracing all the principal sea side resorts. j7-6t

WOOL CRASH.

People are asking what it is. Wool crash is a sort of misnomer. It is not crash, but simply a light cool worsted in a crash weave. Hold it up to the light—you can see through it. Yet it's as tough and strong almost as thick beaver, and wiry enough to hold its shape. For a cool summer vacation knockabout suit, wool crash takes the lead. Good enough, too, for business. Come, see! Suit prices, $3.75, $5, $6 and $7.50.—Quick & Robertson, Belleville's Best Clothiers.

REGULAR MEETING OF SCHOOL BOARD.

Estimates Passed and Salaries of Teachers Fixed for the Year.

Cadet Corps Proposition Defeated — Discussions Lengthy and Rather Warm.

At the meeting of the Board of Education held last evening there were many matters of importance brought forward and disposed of, including the estimates for the year, fixing of teachers' salaries, etc. The members present were: Messrs. F. E. O'Flynn, Chairman; J. A. Anderson, W. S. Morden, Geo. A. Bennett, W. A. Carson, I. Diamond, W. P. Hudson, P. C. Jones, J. Martin, A. McGinnis, H. Taylor, W. C. Reid, Wm. Tennent, H. Walker, J. F. Wills, Col. Ponton and Rev. A. L. Geen.

After the minutes of the last meeting had been read and approved, the following communications, etc., were read:

Mr. O. S. Hicks, Misses Clara Brown, Jessie Bruce, Annie McKenna, Maud Clapp, V. Handley, Jessie Crysler and Wadsworth applied for positions on the teaching staff.

Mr. H. Walker, as Chairman of the Finance Committee presented a report recommending the payment of a number of accounts, also the estimates for the year. He said that it would be seen that some $224 more was asked from the City Council this year than last. This was owing to the fact that the Government grant was smaller and there was a falling off in other revenues. He said it took a large sum to conduct the schools and it was not flattering that so few comparatively passed into the High School in the recent examination. He hoped that next year better results would be obtained.

The accounts were as follows:

C. N. Sulman	$34.50
T. Wills, County Treasurer	14.16
Greenleaf & Sons	4.10
F. C. Clarke	15.12
W. J. Bull	1.25
McCoy Bros.	1.00
E. T. Cherry	11.00
F. Dolan	.35
John Johnston, examiner	33.25
E. F. Milburn, examiner	33.25
Wm. McKeown, examiner	10.24
J. W. London	10.24

The Estimates.

The estimates for the year were presented, being as follows:

Public School.

To amount requisite for paying teachers, inspectors and other salaries for public schools	$10,180.00
For repairs, printing, stationery supplies, insurance, fuel and keeping in order school premises	2,870.00
	$13,050.00
Less Government grant and other revenues	2,334.00
Amount to be levied by City Council for P.S.	10,716.00

High School.

Amount requisite to pay teachers and other salaries	$4,675.00
For repairs, printing, stationery supplies, fuel, insurance and keeping in order the premises	1,245.00
	$5,920.00
Less Government grant and other revenue	1,429.00
Council for High School purposes	4,491.00
Total amount to be levied for school purposes	15,207.00

The School Management Committee recommended the appointment of the following teachers and officers at the salaries named:

High School.

E. F. Milburn	$1200
Jessie McRae	625
H. J. Clarke	900
Wm. Knight	900
J. T. Luton	900

No. 1 School.

D. Barragar	$ 650
Laura Phelps	375

No. 2 School.

J. W. Dafoe	$ 625
Addie Harold	425
Sadie Morton	350
Frankie Gardner	350
Helen Yarwood	350

No. 3 School.

Miss Alice McRae	$ 400

Queen Victoria School.

S. A. Gardner	$ 750
Christie Urquhart	550
M. A. Northcott	450
Minnie Fleming	425
Lucy Craig	375
Isabel Northcott	350
Ruth Vincent	350
Lucy Aull	350
May McCaughey	400
Jessie Bruce	300

Grier St. School.

S. F. Armistead	$ 625
Luella Boselly	350
Mary Frost	350

Officers.

John Johnston, P.S.I.	$ 400
Jas. Richards, Inspector of Buildings	180
Wm. McKeown, Supernumerary	200

Owing to Miss Emmons' retiring, the committee recommended that Miss Lucy Craig be promoted to the division and Miss Jessie Bruce be engaged at the salary named to fill the vacancy in Queen Victoria School and that Miss Vincent take the division formerly taught by Miss Craig.

The committee recommended that Miss McCaughey be employed to teach Part I. in primary work, and that, owing to her exceptional qualifications in this department, the salary be fixed at $400, and that Miss Aull teach Part II. in the primary division.

The committee recommended that, owing to the fact that parents seem indifferent generally to avail themselves of the opportunity of sending their children to the classes in domestic science, taught by Miss Hagar in Albert College, the Secretary-Treasurer notify Rev. Dr. Dyer that the previous arrangements agreed to be discontinued.

It is also recommended that the Principal of the High School furnish to the Board in future a special report, including the result this year of the number of students writing on the examinations for junior matriculation, senior matriculation, senior leaving and for scholarships, with the subjects and standing of the pupil in each subject, including failures and successes in each subject, such report to be in the form of a tabulated statement.

The Sites, Buildings and Repairs Committee recommended that the tender of Mr. C. B. Scantlebury, for some work and painting at $135, and the tender of Mr. Geo. Reeves of $86 for carpenter work and the tender of Mr. Mollie of $6 for cleaning the stove be accepted.

On motion the Board went into Committee of the Whole on reports, Mr. McGinnis in the chair.

The Finance Committee's report as to accounts was passed without discussion, as were also the estimates.

The School Management Committee's report re salaries was adopted after a brief discussion.

Col. Ponton asked what recommendations Miss Bruce had in comparison with others who were applicants. He did not think that any teacher in Queen Victoria School should be asked to teach for $300 per annum.

Mr. Hudson said Miss Bruce had splendid recommendations and had a first-class certificate. She was a graduate of the High School in this city.

Col. Ponton protested against asking a teacher like Miss Bruce to accept a salary of $300 per annum. He did not agree altogether with Mr. Walker in his remarks about the examinations.

Mr. H. Walker said he had made his remarks to legal members of the Board.

Mr. Jones rose to a point of order and asked that the point raised by Mr. Walker be settled.

It appeared that a knotty question had been raised, but it was allowed to drop.

Mr. F. E. O'Flynn thought that he would like to see the salaries increased, but they could not be. They started the salary at $300 per annum and raised $25.

Mr. Bennett thought that Mr. Armistead should have the same salary as Mr. Barragar, namely, $650. He moved that the amount named be granted. Mr. Martin seconded the motion, which prevailed.

The report was unanimously adopted.

The Cadet Corps.

A discussion ensued in reference to the establishment of a cadet corps, but the report of the Special Committee recommending it was defeated, after several members had spoken pro and con on the subject.

Fifth Form.

Mr. Hudson spoke in support of the 5th form being taught in the public schools, and read a number of letters endorsing the scheme.

The discussion which ensued was prolonged, and finally a motion prevailed to refer the matter back to the special committee.

The committee rose and reported on motion to adopt the report Col. Ponton moved, seconded by Mr. Taylor that the report be not now adopted, but referred back for the purpose of adopting the special committee's report re the establishment of a Cadet Corps. The amendment was defeated by the following vote:

Yeas—Anderson, Morden, Ponton, Taylor—4.

Nays—Bennett, Carson, Diamond, Geen, Hudson, Jones, Martin, McGinnis, Reid, Tennent, Walker, Wills—12.

The report was then adopted.

Motions.

Mr. Walker moved that Mr. Johnson's notice of motion re printing of the Board by the city newspapers be laid over.—Carried.

Col. Ponton moved, seconded by Mr. Jones, that the Board express its appreciation of the work done by Miss Emmons as a teacher, and as she had resigned, wished her all happiness for the future.—Carried.

Mr. Bennett moved, seconded by Mr. Walker, that when the Board adjourn, it stands adjourned until the regular meeting night in September.—Carried.

Question of Privilege.

Col. Ponton spoke at some length and with considerable energy to a question of privilege. A member of the Board had during the meeting insinuated that he was an illegal member. He asked that the remark be withdrawn or proper proceedings taken to substantiate the statement. He was the representative of the City Council as a High School Trustee and it was he considered a cowardly assertion.

Mr. Walker, who made the remark, said he had not referred particularly to Col. Ponton.

This explanation the Chairman said should be satisfactory and the matter was allowed to drop.

Notice of Motion.

Col. Ponton gave a notice of motion that the Principal of the High School be requested to prepare and submit to this Board at its next meeting a detailed list of the pupils at the High school who during the past six years (a) have after leaving entered as graduates in any University in Canada (b) have obtained honors thereat (c) have taken any position of prominence in any other institution, educational or otherwise (d) where similar information is available the Principal is requested to furnish a comparitive table showing as far as possible the relative position of Belleville High School with other High Schools of cities in Ontario having a population of 13,000 or under in above respects.

Board adjourned.

Good Blood' Good Health

THIN, WATERY BLOOD IS MADE RICH BY THE USE OF DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

When the blood is rich and pure there is a healthful glow to the complexion which speaks of the vigor and vitality of the system. There is no more certain way for pale, weak people to attain the glow of health than by the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great food cure which forms new, rich blood and creates new nerve force. To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 6

Long Hair

"One year ago my hair came out very fast, so I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor. It stopped the falling and made my hair grow, until now it is 45 inches long."
—Mrs. A. Boydston, Atchison, Kans.

$1. All druggists. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

JUST A COLD IN THE HEAD! But if followed by another cold, or some extra exposure is liable to result in nasal catarrh. Unless a radical cure is obtained the throat, bronchial tubes and finally the lungs become affected. Nothing cures colds so quickly and pleasantly as Catarrhozone. The inspector of Mines for Nova Scotia, Mr. Neville, says, "Catarrhozone is the best remedy I have ever used. It cured me of catarrh of the head and throat, and I am pleased to recommend such a satisfactory remedy." Catarrhozone is a safeguard against colds, coughs and catarrh. It can be used while at work, in the church, theatre or street cars. Simply inhale Catarrhozone and it cures. Price $1. Small size 25 cents. Druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

CITY AND DISTRICT.

Advertisements under this heading TWO CENTS A WORD; subsequent consecutive insertions ONE CENT A WORD. No loc. charged as less than twenty-five words.

The Orangemen of the city will attend divine service to-morrow at the Emmanuel Reformed Church.

Best Wednesday holiday excursion, July 22nd, up the bay, through canal and into Lake Ontario with I.O.O.F. Band. Tickets 25c. Auspices of Christ Church. Str. Aletha leaves Corby's wharf at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Vans to convey ticket holders leave Taylor's and McGinnis' corners at 8.30 a.m. Moonlight excursion to Deseronto with band at 8 p.m. 10 in.

Napanee excursion, Str. Aletha, Wednesday afternoon, July 15th. Remember date. Most popular trip of season. 4-11

According to the Government returns, the Mutual Life of Canada did the second largest amount of new business in this country last year, and did it on the lowest ratio of expense of any of them, and paid the largest dividends showing it to be the most profitable company to insure in. S. Burrows, General Agent.

Among the Liberals who are semi-officially mentioned in connection with the coming appointments to the High Court Bench is Mr. Roger C. Clute, K.C., formerly of this city.

1,000 ISLANDS AND ROCHESTER.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian" leave Belleville for Thousand Islands at 3.25 p.m., daily except Mondays. Fare $1.00. Returning Str. leaves at 11.38 p.m. for Rochester, N.Y. m26d&w3m

MR. BURENS OF AMERICA

Was the Author and Tam o' Shantaire Was the Name of One of the Poems.

"This incident happened to me in the capital of the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg," says Sutherland Edwards in his "Personal Recollections:" "I had just entered a hotel, when the proprietor came up to me and said:

"'From the cut of your shirt collar and the tie of your cravat, I imagine you, sir, to be an Englishman.'

"'You are right,' I replied.

"'I have a daughter. She is intelligent, docile, and has been educated at one of our best convents.'

"'Is she rich and beautiful?' I felt inclined to ask, for the tone adopted by the father seemed to be that of light comedy. I contented myself, however, with saying, 'Your story interests me.'

"'An unprincipled professor,' continued the father, 'taking advantage of my child's innocence——'

"'Oh, heavens!' I exclaimed.

"'Has, under pretense of instructing her in English, taught her what I believe to be Irish.'

"'You frighten me.'

"'And now, said the afflicted parent, 'you will perhaps allow me to introduce her to you, and you will kindly tell me, I hope, what strange tongue she has acquired.'

"Permission accordingly was given, and I was introduced to my host's pretty and interesting daughter, who, in reply to my question, told me that the book was by 'a Mr. Burens,' and was in verse.

"'The doggerel of some new American humorist,' I said to myself. 'What a pity to give it to such a girl!'

"'What are the poems about? Can you tell me the name of any one of them?' I asked.

"'Tam o' Shantaire,' she replied."

A Humanitarian

Among the passengers in a well filled parlor car coming from Cleveland to Detroit was a lumber salesman from this end of the route. He is tall, and has a deep voice, piercing eyes, a strong face and the general appearance associated with a professional man. Near him sat a pale gentleman, who moaned, moved restlessly in his seat and was unmistakably sick.

"What's the matter?" abruptly asked the salesman.

"I feel very ill."

"Pshaw! You don't have to tell me that. Let me feel your pulse. I'm a doctor. Put out your tongue. Indigestion. I'll fix you in five minutes." He hurried to the water tank, poured out a big straw colored dose and hurried back. "Swallow this."

"But it's whiskey. I never touch the stuff."

"Drink it or you won't live ten miles, fast as we're going."

Down it went, and shortly the two were laughing and talking as though neither had ever felt a pain.

"Did I understand that you were a doctor?" timidly from a young matron who carried a kicking, howling olive branch in her arms.

"Yes, ma'am." And he never flinched. "Baby not well. Whew! What a temper!" as his keen eyes informed him that the youngster was a miniature Hercules. "He's sound as a dollar, madam. Must be a pin. If it's not, spank him."

She came back to report that his first diagnosis was the correct one and wanted to pay. So did the man, but the "Doctor" turned aside and acted indignantly. "When I'm away from home I only practice for the good of humanity. Need a second dose, my man?"—Detroit Free Press.

A NAGGING COUGH drives sleep and comfort away. You can conquer it with Allen's Lung Balsam, which relieves hard breathing, pain in the chest and irritation of the throat. Give it freely to the children. 2

There are sixty Irish peers who are not entitled to seats in the House of Lords.

Soldiers in the Italian army are allowed cigars as part of their daily rations.

GOLD MEDAL-AWARDED, WOMAN'S EXHIBITION, LONDON, 1900.

Neave's Food

For Infants, Invalids, And The Aged.

Nearly 80 Years' Established Reputation.

DR. BARNARDO says:— "We have already used Neave's Food in two of our Homes (Babies' Castle and the Village Home), and I have no hesitation in saying it has proved very satisfactory."—July 27th, 1901.

Manufacturers: JOSIAH R. NEAVE & CO., FORDINGBRIDGE, ENGLAND.

Wholesale Agents:—THE LYMAN BROS. & Co., Ltd., Toronto & Montreal.

ESTABLISHED 1870.

Light Weight Felts

$3.00 Hats.................................... $1.50
$2.50 Hats.................................... 1.25
$2.00 Hats.................................... 1.00

These are this season's style. All sizes.

S. A. HYMAN & CO.

GLASGOW WAREHOUSE.

Whitewear Sale

33⅓ Per Cent. Saturday Night

To clear in a hurry, at 7 30. We have decided to place on sale a quantity of Ladies' Whitewear, consisting of Corset Covers, Drawers, Skirts and Gowns, some of which are a little soiled and some are not, at exactly

1-3 off

The present low prices.

Adding to this special sale we will give our customers the privilege of selecting from a list of Ready-to-wear Cotton Skirts and Blouses.

15 only Shirt Waists that were $1 00, $1.25 and $1 50, for 50c
3 only Navy Blue Spot Duck Skirts that were $2 50 for $1 75
10 only Linen Crash Skirts, nicely trimmed, that were $2.50, for - - - - - - - $1 75
11 only Navy, Grey and Resida Denim Skirts that were $2 00, for - - - - - - $1 45
7 only Linen Crash Skirts that were 85c for - 65c

Come early as there is only a limited quantity.

Laidlaw & Ketcheson

DIRECT IMPORTERS

Daily Intelligencer.

THE INTELLIGENCER IS SOLD AT J. W. London's and G. Wardhaugh's.

Local Reading Advertisements.

[Words] 50 cents; 2 cents per word first insertion, per word subsequent consecutive insertions. Headlines count as 12 words; contracts for long periods made at office.

World's Best Sweets.

It will pay you always when you need confectionery to come here and get Lowney's goods. We are sure there is nothing better made in the world. The purity of Lowney's Candies is assured, and they are always just as delicious as they are pure. We have a large variety of chocolates, bon bons, etc., in packages, from 5c to 75c.

McKeown's DRUG STORE

The Sun & Hastings Savings and Loan Co. of Ontario.

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL

$5,000,000.

3 1-2 per cent. allowed on Deposits payable on Call.

4 per cent. on Deposits for one year or over.

Money to Loan upon favorable terms.

OFFICE, No. 46 Bridge St., Belleville,

J. P. C. PHILLIPS,
Manager Belleville Branch.

An eagle can live 20 days without food, and a condor 40 days.

Some Form of Brick Ice Cream

Served in our rooms every afternoon and evening.

This afternoon we have Vanilla with Cherries. This evening Chocolate with crushed walnuts. 10c a dish.

CHAS. S. CLAPP

MONITOR

This is another fine Mantle Clock, not quite so expensive as Gadski in last week's advertisement, but fully as serviceable. It is an eight-day hour and half strike on cathedral gong, fancy columns with trimmings and drop handles, in every way a beautiful clock. Our price only $5 50.

T. BLACKBURN.

Eyes examined free of charge. Jeweller & Optician.

Specials For Saturday

6 Cups and Saucers Iron Stone China	25c
6 only Iron stone Breakfast Plates for	30c
White Iron Stone Chambers, best quality	25c
Printed Iron Stone Pitchers, hold 3 pts. 40c for	25c
5 lb. Butter Crocks	7c
Large White Wash Basins, Iron Stone China,	37c
White Bedroom Pitchers 50c for	35c
Beautiful China Butter Dishes	25c
Large size Printed Salad Bowls, China 40c for	25c
Double Egg Cup (Glass and China)	5c
Glass Lemon Squeezers	5c
Glass Lemon Squeezers	15c, 10
English Rockingham Tea-Pots, Black and Decorated	25c
Fruit Jars, all sizes and at lowest prices.
Fruit Jar Rings 5c per dozen.
Japanese fans 10 and 15c for	5c
White, Cream, Black and Pink Silk and Satin Neck Ribbon	18c
and 20c for	13c
Ladies' Puff Combs 20c for	14c
Patent Medicines of all kinds at very low prices. at

McINTOSH BROS.

WITTICISMS.

"When I came to this town," said the man on the dry goods box, "everything I had in the world was tied up in a red bandana handkerchief."

"And now?" asked the tourist, who was waiting for a train.

"And now," replied the man on the box, scratching his jaw, "everything I've got in the world is tied down with mortgages."

• • •

"Well, little boy, what's your name?"

"Shadrach Nebuchadnezzar Jones."

"Who gave you that name?"

"I don't know. But if I find out when I get older they'll be sorry for it."

• • •

Mrs. Newlywed (to cook whom she has just engaged at Registry Office)—You see, my husband is so very particular about his food.

Cook (sympathetically—Ther all alike, mem. My old man was just the same. I never cooked nothink to please 'im in my life.

• • •

Bill—What do you do when you can't get asleep at night?

Jill—Oh, I magine somebody's asking me to pay 'em some money I owe 'em; that always makes me tired.

• • •

Mrs. Hix—I don't take any stock in these faith cures brought about by the laying on of hands.

Mrs. Dix—Well, I do. I cured my little boy of the cigarette habit in that way.

• • •

Old Farmer (to his son)—Now, don't forgit while ye're in the city to git some uv them 'lectric light plants we heern so much about. We kin jis' ez well raise 'em ourselves an save kerosene.

• • •

"No," said the callow dude, "you may put some brilliantine on my mustache."

"Ah, sir!" quoted the intelligent barber. "First you must catch your hair."

• • •

"Why, Mabel, I am ashamed of you. Do you think that I ever had such dirty hands as yours when I was a little girl?"

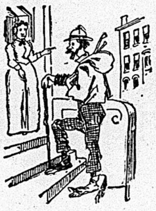
"I cannot say, mama, but when we visit grandma again I will ask her."

• • •

Museum Manager—You're looking bad, old boy; what's the matter?

The Glass-eater—I feel slightly cut up; I'm afraid I took a glass too much this afternoon.

Retort Courteous.



The kitchen door opened with a "swish ! ! !"

"Now you," began the sharp-visaged lady of the house, "I ain't got no victuals for you; I ain't got no old clocs; I ain't got nothin' fur you. Now git!"

"Lady," said the wayfarer, when he had recovered his breath, "I'm no beggar. I'm a peripatetic pedagogue, and I will be glad to give you lessons in grammar in exchange for board and lodging."

One Way to Pay the Tailor.

At the expense of himself, a certain fashionable Philadelphia tailor told the following story yesterday. Quite recently a man went into his establishment and told him that Mr. So and So, a prominent customer (in full standing) had said that Mr. Tailor had several misfit suits to dispose of and as he needed a new suit immediately he thought he'd like to look them over. One was found to fit him perfectly and he took it at the price, $50.

"But," he said, "Mr. Tailor, I have not enough ready money to pay you. I must have the suit. Now do you know Mr. Pancake, the Chestnut street confectioner? Well," on being assured that Mr. Pancake was also a customer in good standing, he owes me some money, which he has promised to pay this afternoon, and if you are agreed I will walk over there with you and ask him to send $50 of it to you."

Such a proposition and the riddance of a bad suit could not be overlooked, and when they arrived at Mr. Pancake's shop, without preliminaries the man said: "You know that hundred you promised to send me to New York, Mr. Pancake? Well, just send fifty of it to Mr. Tailor and the other fifty to the address I gave you."

That afternoon Mr. Tailor received a neatly done up package containing fifty beautiful cream puffs.

Youthful Diplomacy.

The grocery man on the corner relates that a couple of days ago a little girl entered his emporium and timidly laying down a dime asked for ten cents worth of candy.

"It's for papa," she said. "I want to 'spise him when he comes home.

The grocery man proceeded to dig out some of his stock, when the little girl interposed.

"Don't give me that kind. Give me caramels. I just love caramels."

"But I thought these were for papa," the grocery man remarked.

"I know," explained the little girl, but when I give them to papa he'll just kiss me and say\that 'cause I'm such a generous little girl he'll give them all back to me. So you'd better give me caramels."

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool Markets Steady—Grain Prices Close Firm at Chicago—Live Stock—The Latest Quotations.

Friday Evening, July 10.

Liverpool wheat futures closed ¼d higher to-day than yesterday, and corn futures ¼d lower.

At Chicago Sept. wheat advanced ⅜c above yesterday; July corn closed unchanged and July oats advanced ¼c.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

London—Close—Wheat, on passage, quiet but steady. Parcels No. 1 hard Manitoba, passage, 31s 3d and 31s 4½d; July, 31s 3d. Maize, on passage, less offering; spot American mixed, 22s 6d. Flour, spot, Minn., 26s 6d.

Paris—Close—Wheat, tone quiet; July, 23f; Sept. and Nov., 22f 30c. Flour, tone quiet; July 32f 85c; Sept and Nov., 30f 30c.

Antwerp—Wheat, spot, quiet; No. 2 R. W., 16½f.

LEADING WHEAT MARKETS.

Following are the closing quotations at important wheat centres to-day:

	Cash.	July.	Sept.	Dec.
New York	....	....	83⅛	82⅝
Chicago	....	....	79	77⅝
Toledo	79⅞	79⅞	80	....
Duluth, No. 1 N.	87	87	79	76⅞

TORONTO ST. LAWRENCE MARKET.

Grain—

Wheat, red, bush	$0 76 to	$0 77
Wheat, white, bush	0 77	....
Wheat, spring, bush	0 70	0 72
Wheat, goose, bush	0 70½	....
Barley, bush	0 42½	....
Beans, bush	1 30	1 50
Beans, hand-picked	1 75	....
Peas, bush	0 78½	....
Rye, bush	0 45	....
Oats, bush	0 35½	0 36

LIVERPOOL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

Liverpool, July 10.—Wheat, spot, dull; No. 2 red western winter, 6s 2d; No. 1 northern spring, 6s 5d; No. 1 California, 6s 6½d. Futures, quiet; July, 6s 6¼d; Sept., 6s 3¾d; Dec., 6s 3½d. Corn, spot American mixed, easy, 4s 8¾d; futures, steady; July, 4s 8d; Sept., 4s 5¼d. Hams, short cut, quiet, 53s 6d. Bacon, Cumberland cut, steady, 47s; short ribs, quiet, 54s. Shoulders, square, quiet, 38s. Lard, prime western, in tierces, easy, 39s; American refined, in pails, easy, 37s 9d. Hops, at London (Pacific coast), firm, £3 15s to £6 6s.

NEW YORK DAIRY MARKET.

New York, July 10.—Butter, irregular, unchanged; receipts, 16,306.

Cheese, easy; receipts, 4936; state, full cream, small, fancy, 10c; do., fair to prime, 8¾c to 9¾c; do., large colored, fancy, 10c; do., white fancy, 10c; do., fair to prime, 8¾c to 9¾c; do, light skims, choice, 8¼c; do., part skims, choice, 6c to 6½c, do., prime, 5¼c to 5¾c; do., fair to good, 4½c to 5c; do., common, 2½c to 3c; do., full skims, 2c.

Eggs—Unsettled; unchanged; receipts, 8608.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Unchanged — Export Steers Firm and Higher at New York.

London, July 10.—Live cattle steady at 11¼c to 12c per lb. for American steers, dressed weight; Canadian steers, 10½c to 11½c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 9¾c per lb.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Receipts of live stock were 50 car loads, composed of 383 cattle, 1093 hogs, 1183 sheep and lambs, and 40 calves.

Exporters—Best loads exporters are worth $5 to $5.10 per cwt.; medium to good at about $4.75 to $4.90.

Export Bulls—Choice quality bulls sold at $4 to $4.30 per cwt.; good bulls sold at $3.60 to $3 80 per cwt.

Export Cows—Export cows sold at $4.25 per cwt.

Butchers' Cattle—Choice picked lots of butchers, weighing from 1025 to 1100 lbs. each, equal in quality to best exporters, sold at $4.60 to $4.70; loads of good sold at $4.50 to $4.60; fair to good, $4.25 common, $3.75 to $4; rough to inferior, $2.75 to $2.85.

Feeders—Steers of good quality, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, are worth $4 to $4.40 per cwt.

Short-keep Feeders—Good steers, 1100 to 1200 lbs. each, are worth $4.50 to $4.60 per cwt.

Stockers—One-year to two-year-old steers, 400 to 700 lbs. each, are worth $3.50 to $4.00 per cwt.; off-colors and of poor breeding quality of same weights are worth $2.75 to $3 per cwt.

Milch Cows—Milch cows and springers are worth $25 to $50 each.

Calves—Calves sold at $2 to $10 each, or from $3.50 to $5.50 per cwt.

Sheep—Prices, $3.40 to $3.50 per cwt. for ewes, and bucks at $2.75 to $3.

Spring Lambs—Prices easy at $2.50 to $3.75 each.

Hogs—Best select bacon hogs, not less than 160 lbs., nor more than 200 lbs. each, off cars, sold at $5.65 per cwt.; lights and fats at $5.40; sows, $4 to $4.25 per cwt., and stags, $2 to $3 per cwt.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, July 10.—Cattle—Receipts, 200 head; steady; prime and shipping steers, $4.80 to $5.15; butchers' steers, $3.85 to $4.75; cows and heifers, $2.50 to $4.35; bulls, $3 to $4.15; stockers and feeders, $3 to $4.15. Veals—Receipts, 480 head, 25c higher; common to good, $5.25 to $6.75.

Hogs—Receipts, 10,400 head; steady; heavy, $5.60 to $5.65; mixed, $5.65 to $5.80; yorkers, $6 to $6.10; light yorkers, $6.10 to $6.15; pigs, $6.25 to $6.35; roughs, $4.85 to $5; stags, $4 to $4.25; light dairies, $5.75 to $5.90; heavy dairies, $5.35 to $5.45.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 800 head; steady; top lambs, $4 to $6.25; yearlings, $4.25 to $4.50; wethers, $4.25 to $4.50; ewes, $3.50 to $3.65; sheep, mixed, $2 to $4.

NEW YORK LIVE STOCK.

New York, July 10.—Beeves—Receipts, 2300; steers, opened firm to a shade higher, closed steady, at Wednesday's prices; bulls and cows, unchanged; all sold; steers, $4.25 to $5.32½; few extra and fancy export do., at $5.40 to $5.70; bulls, $3.10 to $4; cows, $1.85 to $3.40; exports to-morrow, 1000 cattle and 2010 quarters of beef. Calves—Receipts, 676; market, 25c to 30c lower; some sales 75c lower; 200 unsold; veals, $4 to $6.50; tops, $7; general sales, $4.50 to $6.25; buttermilks, $2.25 to $2.75; city dressed veals, $7 to $10.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 7128; sheep, slow and lower; lambs, 15c to 40c lower; sheep, $2.50 to $3.75; few exports, $4; culls, $2.25; lambs, $4.75 to $4.35; two cars choice, $6.45.

Hogs—Receipts, 1837; market steady; medium hogs, $6.20; no light hogs or pigs here; would sell at $6.40 or higher.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Ottawa, July 10.—There were 1595 boxes boarded on the Ottawa Cheese Board today, 1150 white, 445 colored; all sold but 100 colored at 9½c for white and 9 9-16c for colored.

Iroquois, July 10.—Nineteen factories boarded 1130 cheese here to-day; nearly all sold on board at 9⅝c. Buyers, Ault, Weir, Pruner, Gibson, Smyth and Johnson.

Perth, July 10.—On cheese market here to-day there were 2420 boxes of white cheese and 400 boxes of colored, balance of June make. All were sold at 9½c. Fowler got 100 boxes, Bissell 375, Webster 375, How 210 and Ferguson 60.

Napanee, July 10.—Napanee Cheese Board boarded 1100 white and 700 colored. Nearly all sold at 9½c.

Kemptville, July 10.—On the Cheese Board here to-day offerings were 1442 boxes—1192 colored and 250 white; sales at 9½c.

South Finch, Ont., July 10.—The regular meeting of the Cheese Board here to-day resulted as follows: Two thousand five hundred boxes, 1800 white, balance colored; price offered for white 9⅝c and for colored 9⅝c; one lot of 36 boxes of colored sold for 9⅝c; balance will likely be sold on street later on. Buyers present, Messrs. Weir, Fraser, Pruner, Gibson, Ault, Keenan and Logan.

C.P.R. Earnings.

Montreal, July 11.—Traffic for the week ending July 7 amounted to $914,000, as against $695,000 for the corresponding period last year.

The First Firecracker.

There lived in China, years ago,
  An odd old mandarin,
Whose temper was so peppery
  They called him Sin-ah-sin.

He wandered through the crowded streets
  In search of daily bread,
And wore a garment long and straight,
  Which once was brightest red.

But worn in all the dust and rain,
  In dampness and in dew,
It stiffened slowly with the grime,
  And turned a dingy hue;

And like a cylinder became,
  So long, and straight, and round,
It wrapped Ah-sin from head to heels,
  And in it he seemed bound.

And out upon the collar high
  His yellow queue hung down,
Till nothing of that mandarin
  Was seen, but just his crown.

This robe so heavy did become,
  That he could scarcely walk,
And o'er the top of it he tried
  In vain, alas! to talk.

The boys they chaffed, and taunted him,
  And missiles at him cast,
And called him shabby Sin-ah-sin,
  As he went dragging past.

Though Ah-sin's blood did often boil
  At cruel jest and jeer,
The while he wore that rigid coat
  The lads had ne'er a fear.

And so, one pleasant July day,
  The gamins round Ah-sin
Said, "Let us have a little fun
  With this old mandarin."

And stepping up applied a torch
  To Ah-sin's precious queue,
When flashing forth a brilliant light,
  They heard a noise, and whew!—

They saw Ah-sin, from out their sight
  Go up in flame and smoke,
While o'er their heads, in tiny bits,
  Flew pieces of his cloak.

With pent-up wrath he did explode,
  That poor old mandarin,
And far from coats, and cares, and boys,
  Went grimy Sin-ah-sin.
—H. M. Greenleaf in "Youth's Companion."

"Brethren and sisteren," concluded the Rev. Washington Johnson, "I hab demonstrated abstrusely dat de Lord hates a thief—dat he is not to be propigated by no offering, thefo' I beg de pusson or pussons who stole yo' pastor's hog to make no contribution at de circulation of de offertory platter." Note—The collection beat all previous records.—Princeton "Tiger."

Mrs. Sharpe (severely)—Norah, I can find only seven of these plates. Where are the other five? Cook (in surprise)—Sure, Mum, don't yez make no allowances for ordinary wear an' tear?—"Puck."

The Man.

The man seems to be moroze, surly and selfish.

He occupies a hut in the woods, with not even a dog for a companion.

Which is fortunate, perhaps, for the dog, for the man cooks his own meals.

He wears a faded blue jacket and a pair of brown overalls, and when he is seen outside his hut he is pottering around in a seemingly aimless fashion.

He wears his hair long and uncombed.

He does not shave.

He smokes a strong black pipe.

He buries himself in his hut.

He admits no visitors.

He goes nowhere.

No. He is not crazy.

He has not been disappointed in love.

He is writing a book, and he lives in a hut in the woods so he can be close to Nature's Heart.—Chicago Tribune.

RECOMMENDED BY PHYSICIANS.

Pond's Extract

Over fifty years a household remedy for Burns, Sprains, Wounds, Bruises Coughs, Colds and all accidents liable to occur in every home.

CAUTION--There is only one Pond's Extract. Be sure you get the genuine, sold only in sealed bottles in buff wrappers.

Wall Paper

At first sight of our Wall Papers you will say there's an attractiveness about them that puts them lengths ahead of other lines.

IN STOCKING

we select only the best, we have no "shelf warmers" all our Papers are quick sellers. If you choose your Papers from us you have best value for the price obtainable anywhere.

Painting, Paperhanging and Decorating done on shortest notice by best workmen in the city.

JOHN CORNELIUS

3 Doors South of Intelligencer Office.

The Whole Story in a letter:

Pain-Killer

(PERRY DAVIS'.)

"From Capt. F. Loye, Police Station No. 5, Montreal:—"We frequently use PERRY DAVIS' PAIN-KILLER for pains in the stomach, rheumatism, stiffness, frost bites, chilblains, cramps, and all afflictions which befall men in our position. I have no hesitation in saying that PAIN-KILLER is the best remedy to have near at hand."

Used Internally and Externally.

Two Sizes, 25c. and 50c. bottles.

Flowers & Vegetables

Of all kinds in season.

...AT...

J. D. COLLIP'S.

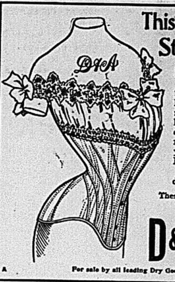
'Phone 205.

"GOOD HEALTH IS PRICELESS"

Adulterated teas its enemy.

"SALADA"

Ceylon Natural GREEN tea. Absolutely the purest, and most delicious tea in the world. It is to the Japan tea drinker what "SALADA" Black tea is to the black tea drinker. Sealed lead packets only. 25c and 40c per lb. By all grocers.



This Long Hip Straight Front

Is the very latest Corset.

The extra pieces at the side, cover and fit the hips with perfect smoothness, rounding off the lines into an exquisite curve. In no other makes of Corsets will you find this very latest Paris model.

The new tight skirts demand that you wear it.

These are the numbers and prices:

D&A

310 LONG HIP,	$1.25
425 DIP HIP, -	1.00
110 DIP HIP, -	1.00
208 DIP HIP, -	1.00
CREST - - -	1.25

A

For sale by all leading Dry Goods Houses.

For pure blood, a bright eye, a clear complexion, a keen appetite, a good digestion and refreshing sleep, TAKE

BRISTOL'S Sarsaparilla

It arouses the Liver, quickens the circulation, brightens the spirits and generally improves the health.

Sixty-eight years trial have proved it to be, the most reliable BLOOD purifier known.

All druggists sell "BRISTOL'S."

Great Clearing Out Sale.

NATHAN JONES.

We have now made a general reduction on our entire stock.

Ladies' Whitewear

We offer our stock of Whitewear and Summer Vests at 33 1 3 per cent discount.

Corsets

We have all the latest styles in Corsets You should see our 40c, 60c & 80c lines.

Parasols

Our stock of Parasols are all new goods. We would like you to see quality and price.

Prints

We would call your attention to our fine washing prints

10c lines now - - 8c
12½ & 15c lines now - 10c

20 per cent. Discount off our Dress Goods.

NATHAN JONES.

SPECIAL OFFER

MIDSUMMER CLUBBING RATES.

Two Papers to January 1st, 1904

Family Herald & Weekly Star, and the Best Home Paper—The Weekly Intelligencer, BOTH for

65 CENTS

We are making this special offer as we require 1000 new subscriptions to our Weekly.

This offer is good to new subscribers only.

ADDRESS—
The Weekly Intelligencer
BELLEVILLE, ONT.

No agents handle this offer.

The Daily Intelligencer.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, JULY 13, 1903 NO. 60

POPE PASSED TRANQUIL DAY

With Sabbath Quiet Came Peace and Even Progress.

"If," Says Dr. Lapponi, "The Improvement Lasts Till July 21, We May Not Perhaps Achieve Absolute Cure, But We Will Secure Such a General State of Health in the Patient as Will Allay Our Anxiety."

Rome, July 13.—Pope Leo has lived to see another Sunday, and with the Sabbath quiet which fell upon Rome came also peace and even progress to the Pontiff.

Last night Dr. Lapponi made the following important statement in answer to the question if he believed that the improvement in the Pope's condition could continue:

"I believe that if the improvement lasts until July 21, we may not perhaps achieve an absolute cure, but we will secure such a general state of health in the patient as will allay our anxiety."

Participated in Mass.

During Sunday morning the Pontiff participated in the celebration of mass in the chapel adjoining the sick chamber. The door connecting the sick room with the chapel was opened so that His Holiness might follow the service.

The Pontiff had several hours' repose, Dr. Lapponi resting near him throughout the night. The physician twice administered injections to him, once of digitalis to strengthen the heart, and another of camphor-caffeine to overcome the patient's growing depression. Yesterday morning found the Pontiff with spirits bright and the conditions generally improved. Dr. Mazzoni joined his associate at 8.30 a.m., and after a brief conference issued the most encouraging official bulletin thus far given.

The pulse, which went down Saturday to 82, had risen to 86, while the temperature and respiration showed no abnormal characteristics.

Lapponi Leaves Sick Chamber

Pope Leo took his usual light breakfast, and Dr. Lapponi, who has remained in unceasing vigil since the patient's disease became desperate, felt sufficiently assured to leave the Vatican for the first time, going to his home, where his daughter lies stricken with fever. When the physician left the sick room he was almost mobbed by high dignitaries, including several cardinals, who rejoiced seeing Dr. Lapponi tranquil enough to leave the patient. Dr. Lapponi addressed them all by saying: "Yes, the Pope is better, but I beg you not to exaggerate in optimism in order to avoid a disillusion later."

Dr. Mazzoni was also absent, which in itself gave the clearest evidence that the doctors themselves were relieved of immediate apprehension. Dr. Rossoni has been taken sick with fever, and was prevented from visiting the Pope last evening as he intended.

Pope Dresses Himself Alone.

During the afternoon the Pope felt strong enough to get up. He rose, dressed himself alone in white and went to sit in his usual arm chair, where he remained for some time. Late in the afternoon he received Cardinals Mathieu, Steinhuber, Agliardi and Casali. The Pope showed his usual brightness and lucidity of mind, and spoke to each without showing any perceptible fatigue. To Cardinal Mathieu His Holiness said: "I have not ceased one moment to pray to God to protect France and have the men now governing her repent and stop the persecution of the church."

Early Morning Bulletin.

Rome, July 13.—(6.45 a. m.)—The condition of the Pope was stationary during the night. He slept at intervals, but was not entirely tranquil.

Car Men's Ultimatum.

Montreal, July 13.—The committee representing the car men employed on the Atlantic, Eastern and Lake Superior divisions of the C. P. R., which was in conference with the company's officials all last week, has submitted its final terms to the company giving it till 10 o'clock this morning to comply with them. Any action taken here will be subsequently followed by all the car men on the C.P.R. system. The car men's organization is now perfect from St. John, N.B., to Vancouver, B. C.

Some Were Killed.

Salonica, July 13.—Twelve hundred Turkish troops have surrounded 200 Bulgarians near Amatovo. The two leaders of the Bulgarians were killed while attempting to escape. In an encounter between Turkish troops and revolutionists, which occurred near Petrich, about fifty miles from Salonica, on July 20, the notorious brigand, Alexis, and several others of his band were killed.

FATAL LINE FENCE FIGHT

White Man Kills Colored Man in Course of the Dispute.

Oliver Richardson in Jail at Windsor, Ont.—Matthews, the Colored Man Shot, Lingered From Friday Night Till Saturday Afternoon With Four Bullets in Him—Quarrel Over Land Worth 85 Cents.

Harrow, July 13.—A long drawn out quarrel between Edmund Matthews (colored) and Oliver Richardson (white) of the third concession of Colchester South, about two and a half miles west of this village, over the boundary line between their farms, culminated Friday night in a fight, in which Matthews received injuries from which he died Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock. Richardson had a revolver and fired several shots at Matthews, four taking effect, three in the body and one in the arm. The ball which, no doubt, caused death, lodged in the kidneys.

Richardson and his two sons, who also took part in the melee, were immediately arrested and lodged in the village lock-up, until Saturday morning, when they, with Mrs. Richardson, were taken to Windsor by Detective Campeau and Mahoney of Windsor. In the police court there Mrs. Richardson and the two sons were discharged, and Richardson remanded to jail pending the outcome of Matthews' wounds.

Over Land Worth 85c.

The tract of land in dispute, according to the valuation of an expert, is said to be worth, at $65 per acre, only 85 cents, but each of the disputants has spents hundreds of dollars in law costs, besides having several previous encounters, in one of which Richardson nearly lost his life by an axe in the hands of Matthews. Coroner Hossard ordered an inquest. The body was viewed by the jury at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, after which the inquest was adjourned until this morning.

Plea of Self Defence.

The white man, Richardson, will urge a plea of self-defence. Mrs. Richardson says before her husband proceeded to extreme measures the man shot had attacked her, hitting her on the head with a boulder. The woman's head and neck show evidences of severe injury.

Matthews was returning from the pasture with his cows when he met Richardson. In the quarrel that ensued the latter drew a revolver from his pocket and fired four shots point blank.

Richardson went quietly to his house after the shooting, and the sons of Matthews, Joseph and Fred, carried away the prostrate form of their father. Richardson offered resistance when arrested by Constable Swegler. He was lodged in the Harrow lock-up with his two sons, Frank and George, who were witnesses of the shooting.

Mrs. Richardson's Story.

Mrs. Richardson spent the night in a hotel under surveillance.

Mrs. Richardson's head was cramped on one side and her face was terribly bruised. Her version of the story was as follows:

"My husband and two sons were defending themselves against Matthews and his two sons. The Matthews were throwing rocks at my husband and sons. When I came near I saw a huge stone hit Oliver, and then Matthews threw a stone as big as your head at me. I think it cracked my neck. I don't remember the shooting. The fight in the first place was about the line fence, and it was brought up by Matthews' colt getting on our land."

As his wife approached him in Chief Wills' office after the preliminary hearing, Richardson gave her his watch and pocketbook. His voice choked as he said good-bye to her and the boys.

He hardly realizes yet the gravity of the situation, and believes that the plea of self-defence will clear him.

He will be defended by Attorney J. H. Rodd of Windsor.

The Essex County courts for several years have been filled with cases between the two families. Always it was a line fence, and the courts would no sooner settle the dispute than it would break out afresh. First one family and then the other would be the aggressor.

BLOWN UP 20 FEET.

Mine Superintendent Andersen Seriously Hurt But Will Recover.

ParrySound, July 13.—A dynamite accident occurred at the McGowan Copper Mine Saturday, in which Carl Andersen, the superintendent, was seriously injured. Five blasts were being let off from fuse, or surface work, and four exploded, and the fifth, not having gone off, Andersen approached to ascertain the cause. When he reached the spot the charge went off. He was blown fully 20 feet into the air. He will recover, but sustained serious injury to the left arm, and will lose three fingers from one hand.

Threw Himself Under Train.

Almonte, July 13.—What appeared a deliberate suicide was accomplished here at 2.30 p.m. Saturday. An unknown man walking beside the C. P.R. track, half a mile east of Almonte Station, at the approach of No. 1 Winnipeg train, as the train came near to him he threw himself across the rail and was cut completely in two. The victim appeared to be about 45 years of age, dark complexion, height 5 feet 8 inches, weight about 150, black curly hair, full faced. In his pockets was found 11c in cash, a string of prayer beads and a pipe.

Drowned Near Tweed.

Tweed, July 13.—An Italian working on the C.P.R., at White Lake, about three miles west of this place, was drowned while bathing Saturday night. The body was brought here yesterday.

BANQUET TO MR. GAMEY, M.P.P.

Will Be Held at Gore Bay July 30—Also Public Meeting.

Gore Bay, July 13.—At a meeting held in Brazenois Hall Saturday evening, over which R. R. McKessock, barrister, of Gore Bay, presided, it was decided by an unanimous standing vote that a banquet be tendered R. R. Gamey, M.P.P., at Gore Bay, on July 30. Although there had only been a few hours' notice given, there was over 100 present, and some of those were men who had not previously supported Mr. Gamey. The greatest unanimity and enthusiasm prevailed.

A strong committee, with W. H. Price, editor of The Conservator, as chairman, and Arthur Kinney as secretary, was appointed to carry out the expressed wishes of the meeting. Men of prominence from outside are to be invited.

A public meeting will be held in the afternoon, and a banquet in the evening.

CLOUDBURST SUBMERGED TOWN.

Every Building in Centre of Winchester, Va., Under Water.

Winchester, Va., July 13.—A cloudburst broke over the city yesterday submerging the entire town in from three to six feet of water. The damage will be heavy, as every store, residence and building in the centre of the city is several feet under water.

Lightning Kills One.

Washington, July 13.—During a terrific thunderstorm yesterday lightning struck a boat house in which about a dozen men had taken refuge. One man was killed, and another probably fatally injured.

Several Houses Unroofed.

Baltimore, Md., July 13.—During a severe thunderstorm yesterday several houses were unroofed. Twenty persons were injured, but none fatally. The property damage is $100,000.

CHIEF JUSTICE ARMOUR DEAD

Was in England to Sit as a Member of Alaskan Commission.

Passed Away at the Residence of His Son in London on Saturday Morning—A Prominent Member of Canada's Judiciary, He Had a Brilliant Career as a Student and Later in Life on the Bench.

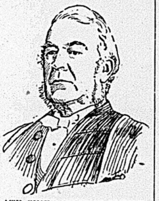
London, July 13.—Chief Justice John Douglas Armour, of the Supreme Court of Canada, and a member of the Alaskan boundary commission, who had been critically ill for some time and recently suffered a relapse, died at the London residence of his son Saturday morning.

Sketch of His Career.

John Douglas Armour was the son of the Rev. Samuel Armour, a clergyman of the Anglican Church, and was born at Otonabee, Peterboro County, on the 4th of May, 1830. After passing through the local schools and Upper Canada College, he took a brilliant course at the University of Toronto, winning two scholarships and the gold medal in classics, on his graduation in 1850.

He was called to the bar three years later after studying law with his brother, the late Robert Armour, and with the late Chancellor Vankoughnet. He began practice at Cobourg with the late Hon. Sydney Smith, and afterwards formed a partnership with H. F. Holland, which continued until his appointment to the bench.

In 1858, he was appointed Crown Attorney for the united counties of Northumberland and Durham and three years later, Clerk of the Peace. During the years 1859-1860 he also held the position of warden of these counties. He was elected a senator of Toronto University in 1859, and became a bencher of the Law Society of Upper Canada in 1871.



LATE CHIEF JUSTICE ARMOUR.

He was appointed one of Her Majesty's counsel learned in the law by Lord Monck in 1867, and in 1877, on the recommendation of Edward Blake was appointed Judge of the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court. After ten years' service Sir John A. Macdonald promoted him to to the position of Chief Justice of that branch. He went to the Court of Appeal as Chief Justice of Ontario on July 2, 1900, and in his last year was appointed to a seat on the Supreme Court Bench. In 1896 he served on the commission that revised the statutes of Ontario.

Mr. Justice Armour was married in 1856 to Eliza Clench, daughter of the late F. S. Clench of Cobourg.

In early years a Conservative in politics, he later changed his views and became a supporter of Mr. Blake. In 1874 he was offered the Liberal nomination for West Northumberland in the House of Commons, but declined. He is said to have been of the opinion that the independence of Canada would tend to the advancement of her best interests. What is said by Dent, the historian, is considered to have been the most comprehensive summing up of his character—"A man of wide reading, multifarious knowledge and great shrewdness and common sense."

Names Mentioned.

Ottawa, July 13.—The death of Judge Armour leaves a vacancy on the Alaskan Commission which must be filled by the Dominion Government without much delay, as the Commission will meet in September.

Although no name has been officially announced, that of Hon. Clifford Sifton has been mentioned. Mr. Sifton has, however, without specifically denying the report, intimated that his connection with the case as chief counsel in its preparation might debar him from acting as commissioner.

It was current rumor yesterday that the vacancy on the Alaskan Boundary Commission will be filled by the appointment of the Hon. Chas. Fitzpatrick, Minister of Justice.

Injured at Barn Raising.

Hamilton, July 13.—Robert Alexander Jones, a popular young farmer, who resided at Van Wagner's Beach, died yesterday afternoon in the City Hospital from injuries received at a barn raising a few days ago. The deceased was crushed in the back by a beam falling on him at the raising, which was on Mr. Stewart's farm, near Stoney Creek, and he was brought to the city for an operation at the hospital. He was about 25 years of age, and was the chief support of his parents. His father is blind.

Will Probably Live.

Ottawa, July 13.—Rene Schingh, the love-sick swain, who put a bullet into his head the other night, on account of being refused the privilege of paying court to a lady, is not likely to die. He has regained consciousness, and has a good chance to live. He will be blind in both eyes.

BASEBALL SATURDAY.

The Eastern League.

Providence .... 1 0 0 3 0 1 0 0 0—5
Toronto .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—1

Two base hit—Stafford. Three base hit—Crisham. Stolen bases—White, Bruce. Sacrifice hits—Stafford 2, Crisham, Francis 2. Double play—Carr to Miller to Massey. Bases on balls—Off Wolfe 4. Hit by pitcher—Crisham, Toft, Carr. Struck out—By Jones 3, by Wolfe 1. Wild pitch—Wolfe. Passed ball—Dugan. Time—1.45. Umpire—Brown.

		R.H.E.
Worcester ..	2 0 0 5 0 0 3 0 0 1	—11
Buffalo	0 0 0 5 0 3 0 0 2 0	—10

Batteries—Pappalau and Kellacky; Amole, Ferry, Hooker and La Porte.

		R.H.E.
Newark	0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0	—0 6 0
Baltimore	1 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0	—2 7 1

Batteries—Newenham and Shea; Atkins and Robinson. Umpire—Swartwood. Attendance—2000.

		R.H.E.
Jersey City	3 0 0 2 1 2 0 2 *	—10 14 3
Rochester	0 0 0 2 0 0 0 0 0	—2 5 2

Batteries—McCann and McManus; Mills and Steelman. Umpire—Latham. Attendance—1200.

National League Scores.

At Cincinnati—		R.H.E.
New York	5 0 0 0 2 0 0 1 0	—8 10 1
Cincinnati	0 0 1 0 0 0 5 0 0	—6 8 3

Batteries—McGinnitty, Mathewson, Warner; Poole, Bergen. Umpire—O'Day.

At Chicago—		R.H.E.
Brooklyn	1 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0	—2 8 1
Chicago	0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0	—0 3 0

Batteries—Jones, Ritter; Wicker, Kling. Umpire—Johnstone.

At Pittsburg—		R.H.E.
Boston	0 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0	—2 5 4
Pittsburg	0 0 1 1 0 1 4 3 0	—10 12 2

Batteries—Pettinger, Moran; Phillippi, Smith. Umpire—Emslie.

At St. Louis—		R.H.E.
Philadelphia	1 0 0 2 1 0 0 0 0	—4 10 5
St. Louis	3 2 1 0 0 1 0 0 0	—7 11 2

Batteries—Washburn, Zimmer; Rhoades, Currie, O'Neill. Umpire—Moran.

American League Results.

At New York—		R.H.E.
St. Louis	0 0 0 0 1 2 0 0 0 0 0	—4 10 1
New York	0 0 1 0 0 0 2 0 1 0 1	—5 15 2

Batteries—Evans, Sudhoff and Kahoe, Tannehill and O'Connor, Umpire—Sheridan.

At Boston—		R.H.E.
Chicago	0 0 1 0 0 0 2 0 2	—5 10 [illegible]
Boston	1 0 1 5 0 1 0 0 0	—8 15 [illegible]

Batteries—Dunkle and Slattery; Young and Criger. Umpire—Connolly.

At Philadelphia—		R.H.E.
Cleveland	0 0 0 1 5 2 0 0 2	—10 14 [illegible]
Philadelphia	0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 2	—3 7 [illegible]

Batteries—Bernhardt and Bemis; Waddell, Henly, Powers. Umpire—Hassett.

At Washington—		R.H.E.
Detroit	0 0 0 3 0 1 0 0 0	—4 10 1
Washington	0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0	—0 7 4

Batteries—Mullen and McGuire; Patten and Kittredge. Umpire—O'Loughlin.

Baseball Games on Sunday.

		R.H.E.
Newark	0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0	—1 4 2
Baltimore	0 2 0 0 0 0 0 0 0	—2 7 1

Batteries—Pardee and Shea; Burchell and Robinson. Umpire—Latham. Attendance—4403.

At St. Louis (National)—		R.H.E.
St. Louis	1 1 0 0 1 0 1 0 0 1	—5 11 3
Philadelphia ..	0 0 0 1 3 0 0 0 0 0	—4 8 3

Batteries—Dunleavy, Murphy and Ryan; Fraser and Zimmer. Umpire—Moran. Attendance—8086.

At Chicago (National)—		R.H.E.
Chicago	0 0 6 0 0 0 0 0 *	—6 6 0
Brooklyn	0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0	—1 2 0

Batteries—Weimer and Kling; Schmidt and Ritter. Umpire—Johnstone. Attendance—16,506.

At Cincinnati (National)—		R.H.E.
Cincinnati	0 0 0 0 3 0 0 1 1	—5 8 5
New York	0 0 4 1 0 1 1 0 0	—7 13 2

Batteries—Ewing and Peitz; Cronin, Taylor and Warner. Attendance—5100.

At Providence (Eastern)—Toronto 1, Providence 0; fourteen innings.

Body Found in Ottawa.

Ottawa, July 13.—Last February, J. W. Campion, a barkeeper in the Wellington Hotel, disappeared on the eve of his marriage. Yesterday his body was found floating on the Ottawa River, about six miles below Ottawa. It was identified by the clothing, and by the inscription on a locket presented by friends. There is no doubt but he committed suicide. The body naturally was badly decomposed, having been in the water five months.

A Paralytic Drowned.

Montreal, July 13.—A sad accident occurred Saturday afternoon shortly after 6 o'clock, when Mr. Joseph Falle fell from a yacht about a mile and a half below Longue Point and was drowned. He was one of a yachting party of twelve. They were merrily laughing and waving their handkerchiefs at the R. & O. steamer Quebec as she passed down. The heavy breakers of the big steamer tossed the frail yacht about as a shell. Mr. Falle, who was partly afflicted with paralysis and was sitting at the stern of the boat, toppled over in one of the yacht's lurches into the water and was drowned.

Pension For Justin McCarthy.

London, July 13.—Among the pensions recently granted on the civil list for distinguished services in literature is one of $1,250 to Justin McCarthy, the historian, novelist and politician. He has been almost blind for the last five years, and is now living with his daughter in the Kentish town of Westgate-on-Sea, busily engaged in literary work. Mr. McCarthy has made a considerable amount of money in his day, but he has not had the faculty of keeping it, being exceedingly open-handed.

THE REASON WHY.

Heals the throat, cures the cough, makes breathing easy,—that's why Angier's Petroleum Emulsion is prescribed by physicians for bronchitis, acute or chronic. It is pleasant to take, agrees with the stomach, and is better than emulsions made from fish oils or other fats.

Malta-Vita

"The Perfect Food."

The Irishman may grow witty on potatoes. The Scotchman may be able to digest Oatmeal, but Canadians want something more wholesome than the former and more palatable than the latter. MALTA-VITA tastes good, is easy to digest yet is full of strength-giving properties. Children grow on it. Men go on it.

THE PALMA TROPHY, YANKEES 1, BRITAIN 2.

Canada Was Third in the Grand Aggregate With a Score of 1518—Some of the Details.

Bisley, England, July 13.—The United States Saturday recaptured the Palma Trophy. Her team scored an aggregate of 1,570 out of a possible 1,800, and beat all the best shots of Europe, South Africa, Australia and Canada, congregated for the first time on English soil to compete for this trophy.

Great Britain was second with 1,555; Canada third, with 1,518.

The other grand aggregates were: Australia, 1,501; Natal, 1,399; Norway, 1,241; France, 1,230.

The weather conditions were favorable, though the heat was terrific. The shooting of 800 yards resulted as follows: United Kingdom, 554; United States, 551; Canada, 536; Natal, 513; Norway, 441; France, 441; Australia, 518.

The Canadians' scores at 800 yards were as follows: T. Hayhurst, 13th, 70; J. M. Jones, 32nd, 63; W. C. King, 46th, 69; E. C. O'Brien, 30th, 63; J. L. Peddie, 5th R. S., 63; J. H. Simpson, R.G., 69; J. D. Stuart, 6th D.C.O.R., 70; J. White, 13th, 69.—Total, 536, out of a possible 600.

In the second stage, at 900 yards, the aggregations were: United States, 1,066; United Kingdom, 1,058; Canada, 1,040; Australia, 1,010; Natal, 960; Norway, 855; France, 845.

At the 900 yards range the Canadians scored as follows: Hayhurst 63, Jones 66, King 67, O'Brien 64, Peddie 62, Simpson 59, Stuart 59, White 54.

The victory of the American riflemen at Bisley was celebrated by a Palma Trophy banquet, given by the International Rifle Association at the Trocadero. Among those present were the contesting teams and a number of distinguished British officials. The Duke of Cambridge, president of the rifle association, presided.

Funds have been subscribed, or are promised, already to enable a British team to go to the United States in 1904, to endeavor to recapture the Palma trophy. The Norwegians will send a team to the United States for next year's match.

The American Centennial Palma Trophy was given in 1875 by the United States of America, for international competition for the championship of the world at long ranges.

The trophy was won by the British team at Ottawa, Sept. 13, 1902, in competition with teams from the United States and Canada, and this year was shot for at Bisley.

Session Till September.

Ottawa, July 13.—The first week in September is now regarded in Government circles as the earliest date at which prorogation may be expected. In connection with the Railway Commission legislation, the rumor is again rife that Hon. A. G. Blair will resign his portfolio at the end of the session to take the chairmanship of the Commission and be succeeded in the Cabinet by Mr. Emmerson.

Four Fatalities in a Day.

Rochester, N. Y., July 13.—Four fatalities were reported in this city yesterday. Martin Metzger was caught by a fast freight and both legs were crushed. Charles Friendrichs, a boy, was drowned while swimming in the river. Jeremiah McDonald and Patrick Haveron were run down and almost ground to pieces by a fast freight. Haveron was 15 years old, and McDonald 35.

Haldimand's New Judge.

Ottawa, July 13.—The Canada Gazette Saturday contains the following: Charles Wesley Colter of Cayuga, to be judge of the County Court of the County of Haldimand in the room and stead of His Honor Duncan McMillan, deceased; also to be a local judge of the High Court of Justice for Ontario.

Mr. Gardiner's Appointment.

Hamilton, July 13.—Mr. Herbert F. Gardiner, the editor of The Hamilton Times, has been appointed Superintendent of the Institute of the Blind at Brantford by the Provincial Government. He became editor of The Times in 1877.

Cabinet Met.

Ottawa, July 13.—The Cabinet met Saturday at 11 o'clock, and took up the supplementary estimates for the current year. There are some details also to be settled about the Grand Trunk Pacific.

SINCLAIR'S AD SINCLAIR'S AD.

Mid=Summer Sale

See Our Prices for Ladies' and Children's Stockings

KABO CORSETS
NO BRASS EYELETS

Kabo Corsets have won a world-wide reputation for excellence. They

Fit Well
Feel Well
Wear Well
Look Well

We have a great variety of styles comprising the latest designs and exclusive novelties and can fit you perfectly

Call and see our new spring style Kabos.

See Our Prices for Ladies and Children's Vests.

D. V. SINCLAIR & CO.

30 Retail Stores DAVIES 30 Retail Stores

DAVIES make a specialty of supplying campers and Picnics with all Food Products, Cooked and Ready-to-serve Meats, also Pickles, Catsups and Sauces, of which they have a large variety, guaranteed pure and unadulterated.

Davies 40c Tea which we are selling for 25c per lb. is considered and guaranteed the best value in the city.

Our store closes at 12 o'clock Wednesday during July and August. Kindly let us have your orders in good time, so that we can give you prompt service.

Daily Deliveries, Phone. 286.

The WM. DAVIES CO., Limited.

The Finnegan Carriage & Wagon Co.

—FOR—

Stylish and Durable Turnouts.

—Surreys
—Corning Buggies
—Piano Box Buggies
—Rubber Tire Buggies
—Micadoes
—Phaetons
—Bike Buggies
—Democrats
—Grocer Wagons
—Butcher Wagons

Cheese Factory Milk Wagons
Steel Tubular Axle Lumber Wagons.

Rubber Tires put on your old wheels at reasonable prices.

Mill St., - - Belleville.

Fire in a Storehouse.

Shortly before 10 o'clock Saturday night the Fire Brigade were called out to extinguish a blaze which had originated in a storehouse in rear of J. C. Hanley & Co.'s store. The fire was extinguished before much damage was done. In some manner fire started in a pile of hay stored in the building. The loss sustained to stock and building is covered by insurance.

SEASIDE RESORTS.

The Grand Trunk Railway is the best and most comfortable route to all eastern points, including White Mountains, Old Orchard, Me; Portland, Me.; "International Limited" leaving Toronto 9 a.m., daily, carries through Pullman to Portland, Cafe Parlor to Montreal. Eastern Flyer leaving Toronto 10.30 p.m. daily, is a solid train of vestibuled coaches and Pullman Sleepers.

Tourist tickets are on sale, embracing all the principal sea side resorts. j7-6t

Frightened by an Automobile.

On Saturday evening Mr. Philip Denyes, who resides in the Front of Sidney, in company with his wife and daughter, Mrs. Jos. Thrasher, was driving on Front street, when the horse became frightened at a passing automobile. The animal started to run away and Mrs. Denyes and daughter were thrown out, but fortunately escaped with slight injuries. The animal was brought under control before it had proceeded far.

PIMPLES AND BLOTCHES.

How unsightly, sometimes disgusting, mortifying to the sufferer and unpleasant to all. An evidence of poor blood and lowered vitality of the eliminating organs. They need toning up—the whole system does. You can quickly bring about the improved condition by using Ferrozone. Poisons are driven out of the blood, organs grow stronger, the blood richer, the nerves stronger. Pimples and blotches disappear, color becomes good. Glad! just try and see how much joy can be gotten out of a box of Ferrozone.

Battle of the Boyne.

A large number of Orangemen, 'Prentice Boys and True Blues of the city went to Deseronto to-day, to participate in a demonstration which was held in that town. Amongst the speakers for the day was Bro. F. M. Clarke, of this city, Grand Provincial Secretary of the Orange Order.

WOOL CRASH.

People are asking what it is. Wool crash is a sort of misnomer. It is not crash, but simply a light cool worsted in a crash weave. Hold it up to the light—you can see through it. Yet it's as tough and strong almost as thick beaver, and wiry enough to hold its shape. For a cool summer vacation knockabout suit, wool crash takes the lead. Good enough, too, for business. Come, see! Suit prices, $3.75, $5, $6 and $7.50.—Quick & Robertson, Belleville's Best Clothiers.

Acquitted of the Charge of Theft

On Saturday a young man named Thos. Dean was arrested on complaint of Alfred Claus, who charged him with stealing $1 from him. The accused was tried before Magistrate Flint on Saturday afternoon and was discharged, the evidence in the case being very conflicting.

CATARRH IS A GERM DISEASE.

Science, armed with the microscope, has established it a fact, and this conclusion renders obsolete the practice of treating asthma, catarrh and bronchitis by stomach drugging, sprays, snuffs, etc. Such treatments are an utter failure because they cannot penetrate the delicate air cells of the lungs, or permeate the air passages of the nose and bronchial tubes, where the germs of catarrh have their stronghold. Catarrhozone is the only certain remedy. It is inhaled by the mouth and after spreading through all the respiratory organs is exhaled through the nostrils. Catarrhozone kills the germs, heals the inflamed tissues, clears the head and throat in two minutes, and cures in a few hours. Nothing is so effective, pleasant and simple as Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment $1.00. Small size 25c. Druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Daily Intelligencer.

SMITH ON LAURIER.

Professor Goldwin Smith, whose ideas on men and things are, perhaps, esteemed more than those of any other man in Canada, has, after years of admiration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, been forced to the conclusion that he of the "sunny smile" is a pronounced opportunist. Every city, town and village in the country have their "opportunists." They are men who are credited with never being able to form opinions of their own. What they profess to-day will be abandoned to-morrow under pressure of outside advice. Whenever one meets such persons, one is moved to pity and contempt for them. Professor Smith, who is admittedly one of the most profound thinkers of the day, places Sir Wilfrid in the opportunist class. This conclusion is reached by an examination of Sir Wilfrid's career. Starting in life as a protectionist, he became an ardent free trader. At present he congratulates himself that he still adheres to these latter views, but he remains at the head of a Government which is avowedly a moderate protectionist one. In 1894 he promised the west "free trade as they have it in England," and two years later he sent Mr. Sifton to the people of the prairies to announce a compromise, which meant the carrying out of a secret treaty with the manufacturers to maintain high duties. Hon. J. Israel Tarte has declared on more than one occasion that Sir Wilfrid has never held truth in high regard, and is always willing to part company with it when it serves his purpose. As an opportunist's stock in trade is largely based on such a trait, Professor Smith's opinion of Sir Wilfrid is strengthened. Canada's Premier esteems nothing but power, and in order to win and retain it, he has sacrificed that honor which every public man should hold dear.

TIMELY TOPICS

The glorious 12th must have had something to do with this very fine weather.

• • •

Some of our city ministers are shortening the services on Sunday during the heated term, which is much appreciated by the congregations. May others follow in their footsteps.

• • •

There is a time limit for those Rolling Mills to start. Just what that limit is will have to be determined. Mr. Kirkwood should be forced to show his hand, and that without delay.

• • •

Unless it is absolutely certain that City Clerk Robertson will be confined to his home for a lengthy period, let there be no appointment made. Undue haste is not necessary. No doubt applications will be in evidence.

• • •

How uncertain are the issues of life and death gets an exemplification in the sudden death of Mgr. Volpini, who was stricken with syncope while awaiting tidings from the Pope. Who would have imagined that the Pope, considering his great age and extreme illness, would have survived Mgr. Volpini?

• • •

"Hello, Waggles. Been on your vacation yet?"

"Naw. 'N' I ain't goin' on none, neither."

"What's the matter? Doesn't the boss allow you a vacation?"

"Sure he does. But I see through his little game all right. He wants us all to go away and rest up. Then when we come back we can do more work. He don't go grindin' me that way—no sir. He can keep his old vacation."

• • •

It is now stated that as X-rays have been known to cure cancer, experiments will at once be started in New York with radium. The rays from radium should bring quicker results.

• • •

Trained nurses are to be licensed in New York State. They say it will tend to raise the standard and elevate the profession.

• • •

When Bellevillians read of sunstrokes and unendurable temperature in other cities they can appreciate what it means to live in a lovely city like this, situated upon a Beautiful Bay.

• • •

Some Gloucester fishermen who have just got into port tell of running into a school of mackerel, which contained so many fish that only a few could be caught. That's generally the way with people who go down the bay after bass.

• • •

A Cincinnati girl killed herself because she could not marry her brother. Odd girl—and an exceptionally fine brother. Most girls know their brothers too well.

• • •

Rag time now has a chance that Paderrewski's rights are disabled and he is forbidden to touch the piano.

• • •

The hubbys of two daughters of a second cousin of King Peter of Servia are running saloons in Hoboken. We're awfully glad the blue blood of Servia resides in the nigger-killing country.

• • •

The lady in New York who pounded a man who had insulted her husband is nothing short of a herculean bird.

Soda Lemonade

A good hot weather drink, made at our Fountain from Lemon Juice and Soda Water. Five cents a glass, usually sold for ten cents.

J. ARTHUR MARSH.

THERE IS No Silk So Smooth,
No Silk So Long,
No Silk So Strong as
Corticelli
THE DRESSMAKERS FAVORITE SPOOL SILK
"Too Strong To Break"
ASK FOR Corticelli

Address and Presentation.

On Saturday evening a number of Miss M. E. de Pencier's friends met at St. Thomas' Rectory and presented the late Lady Superintendent of the Hospital with a purse of gold, containing one hundred and fifteen dollars.

Miss de Pencier was quite overcome and surprised at the kindness of her friends. Mrs. Beamish furnished those present with refreshments. Following is the address:

Dear Miss de Pencier,—It was with feelings of the deepest sorrow and regret that we heard of your intended departure from our midst, and we feel that we cannot bid you farewell without giving you some tangible proof of the very great esteem in which you are held by the citizens of Belleville.

During the years that you have had charge of the Hospital, you have by your kindness of demeanor and urbanity of disposition, by your sweet dignity of deportment and fine integrity of character, by your firm but always gentle and sympathetic control, and by your unremitting devotion to your various and onerous duties, won the hearty respect and admiration of the citizens of Belleville and the warmest regard and affection of those who have been more intimately associated with you in your work. These sentiments are shared by people of every class and denomination, and the expressions of regret at your resignation have been deep, sincere and unanimous.

We fully appreciate the wise and business-like way in which you have managed the affairs of the Hospital in all its details, and it must be a source of great gratification to yourself to know that you leave it in such a satisfactory and flourishing condition.

We ask you to accept from a few of your many friends this purse of gold as a very slight token of our esteem and good will.

We assure you that our good wishes will follow you wherever your lot may be cast, and we hope and pray that peace, happiness and prosperity may ever attend your footsteps, and that heaven's richest blessings, which have been promised to those who minister to the sick and the afflicted, may be abundantly yours.

Rich may your guerdon be, a bounteous store,
Full measure, pressed down and flowing o'er.

Belleville, July 11th, 1903.

CRAMPS ARE LIKE BURGLARS.

They come unexpected and when they are least welcome. Be armed with a one-minute cure for cramps and keep Polson's Nerviline handy; it acts instantaneously. Nerviline's anodyne power is unique, for its composition expresses the highest medical progress of the age. Polson's Nerviline is a true comfort in the family, for in all derangements of the stomach and bowels it is an absolute specific. Nerviline has five times greater medicinal value than any other remedy and is sold in large 25 cent bottles. Try it.

An eagle can live 20 days without food, and a condor 40 days.

OBITUARY.

MRS. WM. SMITH.

On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Wm. Smith, who resided on King street, died, after a few days' illness. Deceased, whose maiden name was Miss Mary Nicholas, was 37 years of age and had always lived in the city. She was known to many and a person who was universally respected. Deceased was a member of St. Michael's Church. In addition to the husband, a family of six young children survive.

MRS. A. M. McDONELL.

After being a sufferer of some years from stomach trouble, Mrs. A. M. McDonell died on Sunday morning at the family residence, Church street. Deceased, whose maiden name was Miss McKinnon, was born in Glengarry County 45 years ago. Some 10 years ago the family came from Stirling to reside in Belleville. Mrs. McDonell was a member of St. Michael's Church. She was a cousin of Archbishop Gauthier, of Kingston and was an estimable lady. In addition to the husband, a son, Morgan, and daughter, Cassie, survive. After services have been held here to-morrow morning the remains will be taken to Stirling for interment.

PERSONAL ...AND... SOCIAL.

The Intelligencer invites all its readers to contribute to this column all items of a personal nature, such as the arrival or departure of guests, and the movements of business men, etc: Send a post card to or telephone The Intelligencer.

Miss Ida Grotte leaves for Saginaw and Chicago to-day.

Mr. H. Eames of Chicago, is visiting friends in the city.

Mr. C. H. Winter, of Grafton, was in town on Saturday.

Mr. J. A. McFee is attending a convention in Atlantic City, N.J.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Schuster, of Pittsburg, Pa., are visiting in the city.

Mr. James Holmes is confined to a hospital in Toronto with typhoid fever.

Miss Annie MacPhail and Miss Maggie Cousins are visiting friends in Deseronto.

Miss Nellie and Mr. Percy Cook, of Rochester, are visiting relatives in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Vandervoort, of Napanee, spent Sunday in the city with relatives.

Miss Lucile Hubble has gone to Niagara Falls, where she will spend her holidays.

Miss Oronhyatekha, of Deseronto, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Vermilyea, Bridge Street.

Mrs. W. J. Wilson and son, of Toronto, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Vandervoort, Yeomans street.

Mrs. J. G. Terrill leaves on Wednesday for Barrie, to visit her son, Alfred J. N. Terrill, editor of the Advance.

Mr. A. C. Baker, who for over two years has filled the position of bookkeeper for Mr. S. Burrows, leaves in the morning to fill a lucrative position at Tara, Bruce County, Ont.

At the Quinte:—Mrs. L. P. Crews, New York; J. J. Eagan, R. Choate and wife, T. W. Pelham and wife, Buffalo; H. Hunter, M. D. Laporte, E. W. Wilkinson, C. P. de Pencier, C. C. Burges, F. Welch, A. P. Miller, W. R. Leaden, Toronto; A. T. Hicks, Trenton; Miss J. Donald, M. E. Beaumes, Detroit; E. H. Donald, Campbellford; S. A. Mackenzie, Gananoque; A. B. Smith, Hamilton; T. M. Howatson, Menominee, Mich.; W. S. Remington, Rochester; S. Russel and wife, Deseronto; A. P. Black, H. R. Lordly, wife and family, W. O. Labelle, P. C. McNaughton, Montreal; D. E. K. Stewart, wife, Madoc; S. E. Macgowan, Saratoga, N.Y.

BOYS' WASH SUITS.

We have some big bargains in boys' wash suits at the Oak Hall. You can get $1.50 suits for $1.00, the $1.25 line for 75cts. It is getting well along in the season and all blouse suits must be sold. Come in and look them over.

CARRYING PLACE.

A very sad affair occurred on Monday at the home of Mrs. Samuel May, Mrs. Johnson, an old lady living with Mrs. May, was lighting a gasoline stove and used her apron to remove some spilled gasoline. Her clothing became ignited and the old lady was so badly burned that she died the following day.

CANCER OPERATIONS A FAILURE

The Constitutional Method, the Only Rational Successful Treatment.

Carefully compiled statistics of operations for cancer, show that fully eighty-five per cent. of those operated on have a recurrence of the disease, usually within a year after the operation is performed, and the result in these cases are rapidly fatal.

By the new method of Constitutional Treatment, the horrors and dangers of the operating table are avoided, and the cancer completely cured. Our simple, vegetable remedy searches out the cancer germs and poisons and eliminates them from the system, and cures the disease in the quiet of your home without pain or inconvenience. Send two stamps to B. I. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont., for full particulars.

BITS OF FUN.

"When posterity has forgotten the people who looked down upon us now," said the poet, "we will be remembered."

"Ah, yes," the poet's wife sighed; "that's the great trouble—being remembered."

"What do you mean?" he asked.

"I am always remembered wherever I try to get credit. They say they've heard of us, and that settles it."—Chicago Times-Herald.

—

On a tombstone in an old New England churchyard there is an epitaph which never fails to bring a smile to the face of the reader:

"To the memory of Ann Sophia and Julia Hattie, his two wives, this stone is erected by their grateful widower, James B. Rollins. They made home pleasant."—Woman's Journal.

—

"Well, my wife has decided to buy an easter hat that hasn't a bird or a feather on it."

"Good! Has she joined the Audubon society?"

"Oh, no. She picked out this hat because it was the most expensive one they had in the store."—Chicago Times-Herald.

—

Guest—Jean, in the oyster stew I've actually found an oyster!

Waiter—Very sorry, sir! I'll see that it doesn't occur again, sir!—Der Floh.

—

"Hello!"

"Hello!"

"This is Gen. E. Thurston. Say, I want a case of beer and a dozen bottles of claret sent to my address, 353—"

"We don't keep anything of that kind in stock, sir."

"You don't? Isn't this Stillhouse & Brewer's office?"

"No, sir. This is the office of the Woman's Branch of the Amalgamated Societies for the Prevention of the Spread of Alcoholism and—"

"Ring off!"—Chicago Tribune.

—

Lady—I want to put in this "ad" for a servant girl. It will go in three lines, won't it?

Clerk (after rapid computation)—No, madam. It's three lines and three words over. We'll have to charge you for four lines, but you can put in four more words if you wish.

Lady (suddenly inspired)—Ah! just the thing. Say "police station opposite corner."—Philadelphia Press.

—

"What kind of a man is he?"

"Oh, he's the kind that arouses your sympathy."

"Sympathy?"

"Yes; you have to feel sorry for other men who go into business with him."—Indianapolis Journal.

—

"As I recall things, you once had a future before you," said the old friend.

"Yes," replied the fate-tossed man, "but, you see, I lived so fast that I got ahead of it."—Philadelphia North American.

A Good Story.

Congressman Charles B. Landis, of Indiana, whose speech against Brigham H. Roberts caused him to be dubbed the new Demosthenes of the House, tells in the March 'Success' the following story of his first experience in public speaking:—

"It seemed but yesterday," he told me, "that I got up and faced that first public audience of mine. I had spoken a few sentences in fear and trembling, complimentary to the farmers on taking so much interest in public questions, when my brother yelled, 'Good! Good! Bravo! Hear! Hear.' He wanted to encourage me, you see. When he grew quiet, I proceeded. A few minutes later, when I had scored a good point, —in John's opinion,— he broke loose again in such applause that is sounded like a fractious horse in a livery stable. The effect on the audience was magical. No one knew he was my brother. What my speech failed to accomplish, John's enthusiasm brought about. I got to laughing, and so did the crowd. It was easy for me then, for I abandoned all my set phrases and told a few good stories such as all country audiences enjoy. When the meeting was dismissed, John was the first one to rush up and say, 'You did great.' I did not have the heart to scold him, for I had learned, through him, the great lesson of success in public speaking.—the getting in touch with one's audience by talking to them, not at them."

Made a Difference.

"I want some professional advice. Would it be actionable to publish a cartoon like this in a newspaper?"

"Like that? Not at all, sir. It is merely a bit of newspaper pleasantry, and everybody will so recognize it. The idea that such a harmless little pictorial hit as that is actionable too absurd to—"

"I am sorry for that. It's a caricature aimed at me, and was published this morning in the 'Daily Bread.'"

"O, it's been published, has it? I supposed you were a newspaper man submitting a proof of a cut you thought of printing. Let me look at it again. Why, sir, it's slanderous. It is infamous! Actionable? I should say it was! Sue them for $25,000 damages, sir, and if we don't get a verdict against them I'll eat my head."—Chicago Tribune.

Isn't It Strange.

That women with thin hair will wear a pompadour?

That stout women will wear the fuzziest gowns?

That women will make such exhibitions of themselves over paying their car fare?

That women despise gambling, yet fight for the prize in their progressive euchres?

That women love their sons more than their daughters?

That women will pay attention to all the details of their dress but their footwear?

That women will lift their skirts to show their silk petticoats and at the same time exhibit a torn and dirty skirt binding?

That women call their most hated enemy "dear?"

SUNLIGHT SOAP

Shirt waists and dainty linen are made delightfully clean and fresh with Sunlight Soap. 5B

THE WEATHER.

To-day's Probs—

To-day and on Tuesday, moderate to fresh westerly and northwesterly winds, fair and comparatively cool.

To-day's Temperature

As Registered by The Intelligencer's Guaranteed Thermometer:

8 a.m.	70
12 m.	76
2 p.m.	76
3 p.m.	78

Situate between Montreal and Ottawa on the Pacific short line the MAGI Caledonia Springs are most convenient of access.

You Can't Oversleep

If it takes quite a noise to awaken you in the morning we have Clocks that will furnish the necessary disturbance.

They will not arouse you too soon, neither will they let you sleep too long.

If you set them properly they never fail to do their duty.

They are useful in most homes at odd times. They are indispensable in many homes every working day in the year.

$1 50 buys a GOOD ONE, though we have them cheaper as well as dearer.

Angus McFee.
Jeweler & Optician
310 Front St.

MILLINERY —AT— Half Price

All our Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats at HALF PRICE.

A few very choice ones still to choose from.

10 per cent. off Corsets Thursday' Friday and Saturday.

MISS IRWIN
Millinery and Corset Specialist

Curse —OF— DRINK

CURED BY
COLONIAL REMEDY

No taste. No Odor. Can be given in a glass of water, tea, or coffee, without patient's knowledge.

Colonial Remedy will cure or destroy the diseased appetite for alcoholic stimulants, whether the patient is a confirmed inebriate, "tippler," social drinker or drunkard. Impossible for anyone to have an appetite or alcoholic liquors after using Colonial Remedy.

Indorsed by Members of the W.C.T.U.

Mrs. Moore, Superintendent of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Ventura, Cal., writes: "I have tested Colonial Remedy on very obstinate drunkards, and the cures have been many. In many cases the Remedy was given secretly. I cheerfully recommend and endorse Colonial Remedy. Members of our Union are delighted to find a practical and economical treatment to aid us in our temperance work."

Sold by druggists everywhere and by mail. Price $1. Trial package free by writing or calling on Mrs. M. A. Cowan (for years member of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union), 2204 St. Catherine St., Montreal.

Sold in Belleville by F. Chas. Clarke Front St. and D. M. Waters, Bridge St

THE INTELLIGENCER is printed and published for The Intelligencer Printing and Publishing House (Limited) by CHARLES JAMES BOWELL, of the City of Belleville, in the County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, at their Office, No. 403 Front Street, Belleville, Ont.

Coin Pay Envelopes at The Intelligencer Job Office. Cheapest and best in the city.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

MEDICAL.

JOHN J. FARLEY, M.D., C.M., M.R., C.S., England.
Office and Residence — Corner of Bridge and George streets — three streets East of Post Office.

DR. J. F. MATHER
Has removed his office to Pinnacle St., three doors north of Hotel Quinte.
my29-6mw

LEGAL.

WILLS & WRIGHT,
Barristers, Solicitors, Notary Public, &c., Belleville.
Office—2 Campbell Street.

MALCOLM WRIGHT. J. FRANKLIN WILLS.
Money to Loan at Lowest Rates.

W. C. MIKEL, B. C. L.,
Barrister, &c.
Solicitor for the City of Belleville.
Office—Metropolitan Block, Corner Front and Campbell Streets.

PORTER & CARNEW,
Barristers, Solicitors, Notaries Public, etc.
Offices — Robertson Block, East Front St., Belleville, Ont.
'Phone 87.
E. G. PORTER. WM. CARNEW.

WILLIAM N. PONTON,
Barrister-at-law, Solicitor, Notary Public, Conveyancer. Office over Express and Telegraph Office, Bridge Street, Belleville.
Money to Loan — Private Funds, Solicitor Sun and Hastings Savings and Loan Company of Ontario.

FRANCIS S. WALLBRIDGE,
Successor to Hon. Lewis Wallbridge, Q.C.
Barrister, Solicitor, Conveyancer, Etc. Office, McAnnany Building, corner Front and Bridge Sts., Belleville, Ont. Private and Company money to loan at 6 per cent., on easy terms upon good land security.
Charges moderate.

INSURANCE.

Fire Insurance.

Guardian	Est'd 1821
The North America,	Est'd 1792
Quebec,	Est'd 1818

City, Town and Village Property insure at lowest rates.

R. W. ADAMS. Agent.
Office opposite Post Office.

FIRE, LIFE & ACCIDENT INSURANCE

At Lowest Rates The Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Perth Mutual on farm and city property. Also mone to loan at 4½ per cent. upwards.
JAMES A CHISHOLM,
Office Ashley Block, Front st., Belleville.

THOS. STEWART,
Insurance and Commission Agent
Agent for the Norwich Union Fire In ociety and Scottish Union Nationa ns. Co.
BRIDGE ST.

Money Saved is Money Earned

can earn you money by saving it for you in your Fire Insurance.
The Anglo-American Fire Ins. Co
The Merchants Fire Ins. Co.
The Equity Fire Ins. Co.
Are all strong Canadian stock companies and insure Farm and City Property at lower rate than other stock companies Call and see me before placing your fire insurance.
Office—Bridge St., same entrance Quinte Laundry, Belleville.
H. FREEMAN KETCHESON

Fire, Life & Plate Glass Insurance.

Liverpool & London & Globe of England.
Waterloo Mutual, of Waterloo, Ont,
Lloyd's Plate Glass.
Home Life Association, Toronto,
North British & Mercantile.
Farm and City Property insured in First-class Reliable Companies and at lowest current rates. Losses promptly settled. Land valuation, and transact general Real Estate business and sale or purchase and renting of property. Appraiser for the Hastings Loan & Investment Society. Money to Loan.
W. P. HUDSON, Office above Rathbun's office, cor. Bridge and Pinnacle Sts., opposite Postoffice and Hotel Quinte, Belleville,
'Phone 168.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A. G. NORTHRUP,
Issuer of Marriage Licenses, Shire Hall, Belleville, Ont.

CHAUNCEY ASHLEY,
Issuer of Marriage Licenses.
Private Office, Bridge St., Belleville, opposite the Post Office.
Residence, first house east of W. W. Chown's Mfg. Co., Station St.
Appointments made.

REMOVAL.
Dr. Clarke has removed to the offices formerly occupied by the late Dr. Ward, over Burrows', and opposite Scantlebury's Book Store.
a27dtf

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

Life has no blessing like a prudent friend.

FAST MAIL SERVICE

Bay of Quinte Route
TO
ROCHESTER N. Y.
Strs. "North King" and "Caspian"
Taking Effect 27th June.

GOING DAILY (EXCEPT MONDAY)
Lv. Belleville .... 11.38 p. m.
Ar. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 6.43 a. m
RETURNING DAILY (Except Sunday)
Lv. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 8 30 p. m.
Ar. Belleville .... 3.25 a. m.
Baggage checked to all points. Connection with all railways.

$1.00 THOUSAND ISLANDS $1.00
AND RETURN.
Commencing 28th June. Steamer leaves Belleville at 3 25 a.m. daily except Monday for 1000 Islands, calling at Bay of Quinte ports, Kingston. Alexandria Bay and Gananoque Passing through American and Canadian channels.
Right reserved to change time with or without notice.
Full information from
THE RATHBUN CO., } Agents.
U. E. THOMPSON, }
E. E. HORSEY, G. P. & F. Agent, Kingston.

Str. "Alexandria"

Montreal, Rochester & Quebec Transit Co'y.
Popular Quebec Excursions
NOW ON.
Belleville to Quebec and return .. $18 00
Belleville to Montreal and return $12 00
(including meals and berth)
Steamer runs all rapids.
For Rochester, Olcott Beach, Niagara Falls and Buffalo every Saturday at 11 a.m.
Particulars from
A. W. HEPBURN, General Manager, Picton, Ont.
THE RATHBUN CO. Agents, Belleville.

The Deseronto Navigation Co

TIME TABLE
Taking effect April 13, 1903.
Belleville, Trenton, Picton & Napanee
Str. "ELLA ROSS"
Leaves Belleville for Trenton at 10 a. m., daily, Sundays Excepted, returning leaves Trenton at 1 p. m., leaving Belleville at 3 p.m. for Deseronto, Napanee and Picton.
Quick and Superior Service to NEW YORK CITY
Steamers RESOLUTE and RELIANCE will leave Deseronto for Oswego after arrival of Str. Ella Ross connecting at Oswego with the New York, Ontario Western Ry.
Fare to New York, Single, $8.40
Return, $13.25
For further particulars apply to THE RATHBUN CO., Local Agents
J. F CHAPMAN, Asst. Gen. Frt. Pass. Agt., Deseronto
A. [illegible] Manager, Deseronto

Str. "Niagara"

Monday 13th July—True Blues to Picton.
Tuesday, 14th July — St. Andrew's Church Sunday School to Twelve O'Clock Point.
Wednesday, 15th July—Baptist Sunday School to Twelve O'Clock Point.
Saturday 18th July—First Saturday Afternoon Excursion to Picton. Fare 35c. Leaves wharf at 2.30 p.m. sharp.
THOMAS STEWART, Manager.
45 Bridge St., Belleville.

DON'T

Go camping out, without a bottle of MOSQUITO-SCAT it's guaranteed to keep Flies, Mosquitoes, etc, away. A 15c bottle will ensure plenty of comfort and rest.

WATERS'

Goods We Have at Right Prices

—Hammocks.
—Fishing Tackle.
—Tennis Goods.
—Golf Goods.
—Lacrosse Goods.
—Base Ball Goods.
—Screen Doors and Windows.
—Fruit Jars.
—Fruit Jar Rubbers.
—Wall Paper.
—Crystal Glass Vases.
—Glass Ware.
—Dinner Sets.
—Toilet Sets.
—Ladies' Hose.
—Ladies' Vests.
Everything in smallwares.
AT THE BEE HIVE
Chas. N. Sulman

Our Mid=Summer Sale

Our entire stock of FANCY GOODS,

Including China (cups and saucers, Vases, Dishes, etc., etc.), Brass Goods, Candles, Silk Shades, Brushes (both hat and hair), Mirrors, Candlebras, Dickens and Art Pottery Ware, all 40 per cent. off regular prices.

Wrist Bags AND Chatelaines

Latest New York designs in walrus, seal and other leathers, from 35c to $7.00 each, all

25 per cent. off regular price.

Framed Pictures

Entire stock of our Art Gallery, comprising Steel Engravings, Platimums, Prints, etc., beautifully framed Prices from 50c to $25, all

30 per cent. off regular prices

Wall Paper

Special prices on all Wall Papers and free bordering—2 yards with each double roll.

Paper Hanging and Painting—the largest and most efficient staff of workmen.

C. B. Scantlebury

Belleville's Decorator.

Wall Paper Wholesale and Retail.

For the Revelsworth Millions,

—or—

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fail by the Man She Loves.

draperies. She rose on Betty's entrance and came towards her, tears shining in her eyes.

But Betty shrank back, and thrust out her hands to hold her off.

"Please don't speak to me or touch me," she whispered. "I can't bear it just now.

It was but natural, of course, that these successive shocks should have unnerved a girl of Betty's sensitive and affectionate nature; but Francesca looked at her oddly before she resumed her picturesque kneeling attitude.

Dudley, on his part, was little more accessible in his grief than Betty.

His love for his step-brother had been almost paternal, although but a few years lay between them, and he recalled again and again with poignant sorrow the sunny and unselfish sweetness of Victor's disposition, his frankness and high spirits, and his tender devotion to his mother and himself. Remembering him as he used to be, Dudley felt for the moment that he absolutely hated Francesca for having come between them, and for having excited so passionate and so disastrous a love and longing in Victor's heart.

"If he hadn't met that woman, he would be alive now," he told himself. "Vernon says he must have been half dying when he fell into the river, or, being so good a swimmer, he would instinctively have saved himself. Half dying! And I was out, letting the woman he loved make love to me! I cannot forgive myself or her!"

After the funeral, on a dull wet August afternoon, with autumn already in the air, when the Revelsworth vault was reopened so that Victor's remains might lie near those of his aunt Margaret, Dudley came back to the darkened house with bent head and bowed shoulders, feeling as if he had buried his youth with his brother.

The streaks of silver in his curly brown hair had multiplied during the past few dreadful days and contrasted strangely with his ruddy skin. The thought which oppressed him like a nightmare was that the little mother must still be told. And how should he tell her,

He had already telegraphed to her that illness would defer his brother's visit; but how should he break the truth to her? In her present state of health it would be doubly dangerous—for that she would be heart-broken by such a blow as the sudden and tragic death of her firstborn son he knew well. All that he could do would be to cross to France as speedily as possible, and consult with her husband how he should best break the evil tidings to her.

He let himself into the house and passed up-stairs to his room. Locking the door, he sought some relief for his feelings by pacing restlessly up and down, and, while so engaged, his attention was attracted by a slight sound on the other side of the door, and he perceived a folded note being inserted beneath it.

It was from Francesca, he instantly decided, with a monetary feeling of irritation—Francesca, whom he had scarcely seen or spoken to since his brother's death. He had purposely avoided her, taking his infrequent meals at the house of Doctor Vernon, who, seeing and pitying the young man's silent agony, had insisted upon taking him home with him, Mrs. Vernon being absent at the seaside.

But now he had returned home, and after that journey to Paris he must take up the threads of life at Hampton Court again—must face the woman whose dangerous beauty had worked such havoc in his brother's mind, and must meet and strive to comfort little Betty—Betty who had nerved herself to tend the dead with gentle reverent hands, and whose pitying lips had been the last to touch Victor's ice-cold brow.

He found himself wishing, in his present state of nervous prostration, that he could have had Betty with him to impart the dreadful news to Victor's mother. Betty was so tactful and so kind. She always knew what to say and what to leave unsaid. She was so like the little mother, and the two would be such friends. Thinking thus, he half absently stooped to pick up and open the folded note, and, to his surprise, he found it was from Betty herself!

"Dear Dudley," it began—"I feel sure you will be going to France to tell the terrible news to his mother. You cannot write it. But before you go I must see you alone, and not in this house"—(the words were heavily underlined)—"I have very much to say to you—things it will grieve me terribly to tell and you to hear. But they must be told, and told at once. I am going now to lock my room-door and slip out at the back of the house to the Palace gardens. There I will walk up and down Queen Mary's Walk until you come. I pray to Heaven you will not fail me, for I have a dreadful responsibility weighing upon my mind, and, until you advise me, I cannot tell what I ought to do.

Betty Mannington."

The contents of this note filled Dudley with astonishment. The tone of tragedy and of mystery which it breathed was so utterly unlike all he knew of the writer that he could hardly believe his eyes as they rested upon the signature. The elaborate precautions which she meant to take to escape observation, and the heavy underlining of the injunction "not in this house" especially puzzled him. Such a request, coming from her, was not to be disregarded, and, little as he felt inclined for talk, even with so sympathetic a companion as Betty, he was careful to leave her only sufficient time to arrive at the rendezvous before hastening thither himself.

It was on a Friday, the one day upon which the Palace is not open to the public, and, the weather being bad, the grounds were wholly deserted save or an occasional official. Queen Mary's Walk, with its roof of interlaced branches, beneath which traditions tells that James Stuart's royal daughter wandered up and down in the long absences of her soldier-husband, offered at least a protection from the drizzling rain; and, at the other end of the long green archway, as he entered it, Dudley beheld the little girlish form of which he had come in search.

Very pale and sad and startled Betty looked as she approached him. Tears were shining in her soft hazel eyes, and there was something infinitely pathetic to the big broad-shouldered young man in the girl's small, white, wistful face and thin childish figure in deep mourning.

He drew her hand tenderly within his arm and laid his own upon it.

"Tell me, dear," he said gently, "what is it that troubles you?"

"Dudley," Betty began, in an agitated voice, "I can't bear what I am going to do! It seems mean and treacherous of me. But all last night I dreamed of Mrs. Revelsworth. It seemed to me that she stood at the foot of my bed and said to me, 'Betty, you must tell the truth!' I would have spoken before, had they not declared at the inquest that Victor was drowned. But since then, only last night, something else happened which made me certain you ought to be told."

"Told! Told what? Betty, is it something about my brother Victor?"

"Yes. Dudley, there is something wrong, some dreadful mystery connected with Revelsworth House. I cannot understand it yet, and I am almost afraid to try."

"My poor child, you are trembling! Is it those ghost fears upsetting you again?"

"No, no—it is something worse, something real! I am so afraid of being missed from the house"—glancing nervously from one end to the other of the arched walk as she spoke—"and there is so little time. One thing you must know first. That dreadful old woman up-stairs——"

"Do you mean Francesca's mother?" Dudley asked, in some surprise. It was so unlike Betty to speak unkindly of any one.

"She is not Francesca's mother. Read this letter. I myself gave it into Mrs. Revelsworth's hands on the afternoon of the day she died. She never told me one word of its contents, although I could see that she was very much disturbed by reading it; but she made me bring Francesca to her as soon as she returned from London, and, after they had had a long interview, Francesca, did not come down to dinner, and Mrs. Revelsworth wrote to her lawyer. That night she died."

"What do you mean?"

"Read that letter."

Dudley read it, frowning, twice through. Then he gave it back to Betty.

"Where did you find it?" he asked.

"Between the leaves of a novel Mrs. Revelsworth had been reading. Before I found it Francesca had hunted for it everywhere, and had offered a reward to Susan, saying it was a letter from Italy addressed to her. But there was no other letter from Italy except this."

"Does Francesca know you have it?"—"No."

"Is that why your manner has altered towards her?"—"In part."

"I knew she had been married before," he said thoughtfully. "And, as to this old woman, I suppose it must be the nurse who brought her up. This letter must have made aunt Margaret furious——"

"So I think."

"And then she wrote for Simpson to alter her will! By Jove!"

He paled beneath his sunburn, and stared straight before him for a few moments without speaking. Then he turned to Betty with abrupt suddenness.

"What has all this to do with my brother?" he asked.

"On the day of his death Victor told me that Francesca had promised to marry him on his return from France. But made me swear I would never tell her that he had confided in me. Within twenty-four hours, he said, every one would know of the engagement."

"She—Francesca promised to marry Victor!" Dudley exclaimed incredulously. "Why, she was always refusing him. Don't you think he must have been lightheaded when he told you such a thing?"

"He was excited, but I think he knew what he was talking about. It was when I went back from the regatta to see how he was. And, Dudley, I have something more to tell you."

In low accents and with trembling lips she proceeded to describe to him minutely every incident which had taken place, from the moment when she had entered the quiet house in the absence of the women-servants, to the time when she and Heremon returned to find Victor flown. And Dudley listened with frowning brows and firmly-compressed lips, drawing his breath through his teeth as she reached one point of her story, but never once interrupting her.

"Is that all?" he asked in low hoarse tones, when she was silent.

"All but this. Last night Joe Welldon had evidently been drinking. He came to me in a frightened maudlin state, and began talking in a confused way about the inquest. He wanted to know whether it would have made any difference to the verdict if the jury had known that, as soon as I left the house that evening to fetch Mr. O'Meara from his mother's house, Mrs. Harold Revelsworth rang for him, and told him to place instantly in Victor's hands a letter which Francesca had left for him, and a little jewelled box of sweetmeats. Victor received them, and gave Joe a bright half-crown; but Joe told me he dared not spend it, feeling almost that it was poison-money!

"Blood-money! Merciful Heaven!"

The strong man staggered and half fell against one of the trees which formed the avenue, breathing hard.

"Betty," he said, turning upon her with sudden passion, "I don't understand this yet. But I will! And, if any one has hurt my brother Victor, by Heaven they shall answer for it to me! A life for a life!"

"Oh, Dudley, what is it you think? What is it you suspect?"

"I think nothing, I suspect nothing until I know! All we can do is to watch. At least that is all you can do. But there must be no suspicion of any understanding between us. And, whatever line of conduct you see me take, you must not question, you must not even wonder. I have a certain end in view, and shall not be particular as to the means. Trust me, leave everything to me, and, if you feel suspicion or dislike of any one, fight it down, and don't show it in your manner. We must be hypocritical if we want to cope with hypocrites, and inhuman if we have to deal with monsters. And now, dear Betty, you must leave me to myself. My brain is on fire with an awful thought, and, if I am not alone to wrestle with it, I feel as though I shall go mad! I don't want you or anybody to see me break down; but when I think of my brother——"

He stopped abruptly, and taking leave of her with a little gesture of the hand, he strode away. Then little Betty, with her eyes dimmed by tears and her heart full of the saddest forebodings, slowly made her way back to the house of mourning.

CHAPTER XXVI.

"I shall not go to Paris. Do not try to persuade me. I cannot leave you here without me. Above all, try to appear friendly with every one."

This was the enigmatic message, scribbled in pencil on a slip of paper, which Betty found thrust under her bed-room door before dinner that evening.

Dudley reappeared at dinner, and Francesca was startled by his changed appearance. He looked like a man of eight-and thirty, or even more, and there was a steadfast look in his eyes, as though he was putting some violent constraint upon himself all the time.

His manner towards Francesca was gentle, and even tender, while he almost appeared to ignore Betty, so that the latter could not help feeling a little hurt, until she recalled his words of a few hours before—"Whatever line of conduct you see me take, you must not question—you must not even wonder." So tenderly disposed did the young man appear towards others in the midst of his own grief that he sent up a message to ask whether Mrs. Harold Revelsworth would see him, and let Francesca lead him up to the close garlic-scented apartment in which her supposed mother spent her days and nights.

The old Italian woman was profuse in her sympathy.

"I do not wonder you wanted to see me, my dear Dudley!" she murmured, as she leaned back in her chair, with her small, yellow, claw-like hands laid upon the arms, and her black eyes fixed upon him. "In trouble we know—something tells us—whether others are real friends who have suffered too and who are in sympathy with us. Eleven years ago, when my beloved husband was taken from me, I felt just as you are feeling now. I idolized him, and Heaven punished me for my idolatry. But I think—I hope that my long years of sorrow and of helpless suffering have mediated for me, and that I have been forgiven!"

"I hope so too," he said. "You have a great blessing in your daughter."

Francesca, who was arranging some flowers in a vase on the mantelpiece, turned sharply to look at him. He was seated opposite to Mrs. Harold staring at her intently, and his expression was sad and gentle.

"She is all I live for," said the old woman simply.

"What will you do when you lose her?" he asked. "She is so beautiful and so attractive and womanly that you cannot surely wish her to sacrifice her whole life to you?"

The black eyes wandered restlessly about the room, and the thin fingers twitched nervously.

"My daughter tells me you have heard her sad story and know that she is a widow," she said hurriedly. "Her marriage was so wretched—she does not want another experience like that!"

"No, indeed!" he responded heartily. "But she is older now, and will make a wiser choice. And, if I don't make a mistake, she had chosen already."

Suddenly a hand was laid upon his lips. Francesca had glided up behind his chair and stopped his speech.

"Mother is not well to-night," she said, "and must not be excited by any more talk at present. And you, too, Dudley, have had a terribly trying and unnerving day. At dinner you ate nothing; you are not yourself. Come down-stairs with me!"

She spoke imperatively, and laid a firm hand upon Dudley's arm. Barely leaving him time to say "Good night" to her mother, she led him from the room. Outside in the passage she stopped, and laying her hands upon his shoulders, she gazed up into his face.

"Dudley, my darling," she whispered, "if you love me as I love you, you will say nothing about it before my mother! She adores me, and she is jealous—it is only natural."

"But, if you become my wife," he said, gripping her hands so tightly that he hurt her, "she will have to know."

A lovely blush overspread her fair face and neck; but she shook her head at him reprovingly.

"Is this a time for talking of marrying and giving in marriage?" she asked. "Only to day our poor Victor was buried!"

"But he is dead!" Dudley exclaimed. "And dead men tell no tales, you know. 'Le roi est mort, vive le roi!'"

Francesca glanced up at him, alarmed by the harsh ring of his voice.

(To be continued.)

Piles To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles, the manufacturers have guaranteed it. See testimonials in the daily press and ask your neighbors what they think of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. 60c a box, at all dealers or EDMANSON, BATES & Co., Toronto.
Dr. Chase's Ointment

AT DEATH'S DOOR.—DYSPEPSIA CONQUERED.—A GREAT MEDICAL TRIUMPH.—Gentlemen,—My medical adviser and others told me I could not possibly live when I commenced to use Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery for Dyspepsia. My case was one of the worst of its kind. For three years I could not eat meat and my weight decreased from 219 to 119 lbs. All the food I took for thirteen months previous to taking the Vegetable Discovery consisted of milk. I am now entirely cured and have regained my usual weight, can eat anything with a keen relish and feel like a new man. I have sold over thirty dozen Vegetable Discovery since it cured me, as I am well-known and people in this section know how low I was, and thought I could not possibly be cured. They are eager to try this grand medicine. It certainly saved my life as I never expected to recover when first I commenced using it. I am not exaggerating anything, but feel glad to be able to contribute this testimonial and trust it may be the means of convincing others of its merit as a certain cure for Dyspepsia.

Signed, JEAN VALCOURT,
Wotton, P.Q. General Merchant

Much talk, many lies.

FOR INFLAMMATION OF THE EYES.—Among the many good qualities which Parmelee's Vegetable Pills possess, besides regulating the digestive organs, is their efficacy in reducing inflammation of the eyes. It has called forth many letters of recommendation from those who were afflicted with this complaint and found a cure in the pills. They affect the nerve centres and the blood in a surprisingly active way, and the result is almost immediately seen.

Many a man's self-conceit is due to his ignorance.

If you have a cough or cold do not neglect it; many without a trace of that hereditary disease have drifted into a consumptive's grave by neglecting what was only a slight cold. Had they used Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup before it was too late, their lives would have been saved. Mr. A. W. Levy, Mitchell, writes: "I think Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup the best preparation on the market for coughs and severe colds. About six years ago I caught a severe cold which settled on my lungs, and for three months I had a cough. I had a physician attending me, but gradually grew worse until I was on the verge of Consumption, and had given up hopes of being cured, when I was induced to try Bickle's Syrup. Before I had taken one bottle I found myself greatly relieved, and by the time I had finished the second bottle I was completely cured. I always recommend it for severe colds and consumption."

When one gets hopping mad his reason goes on a crutch.

No one knows better than those who have used Carter's Little Liver Pills what relief they have given when taken for dyspepsia, dizziness, pain in the side, constipation, and disordered stomach.

The average watch represents but 12 hours of human labor.

Do not despair of curing your sick headache when you can so easily obtain Carter's Little Liver Pills. They will effect a prompt and permanent cure. Their action is mild and na-

Coral is a talisman against thunder and evils by flood and field.

THEY DROVE PIMPLES AWAY.—A face covered with pimples is unsightly. It tells of internal irregularities which should long since have been corrected. The liver and the kidneys are not performing their functions in the healthy way they should, and these pimples are to let you know that the blood protests. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will drive them all away, and will leave the skin clear and clean. Try them, and there will be another witness to their excellence.

The wildcat's teeth are close to its purr.

HAD LA GRIPPE.—Mr. A. Nickeson, farmer, Dutton, writes: "Last winter I had La Grippe and it left me with a severe pain in the small of my back and hip that used to catch me whenever I tried to climb a fence. This lasted for about two months, when I bought a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil and used it both internally and externally, morning and evening, for three days, at the expiration of which time I was completely cured."

A long portage makes a heavy canoe.

Their gentle action and good effect on the system really make them a perfect little pill. They please those who use them. Carter's Little Liver Pills may well be termed 'Perfection.'

It takes money to voice the opinion of a lawyer.

Very many persons die annually from cholera and kindred summer complaints, who might have been saved if proper remedies had been used. If attacked do not delay in getting a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, the medicine that never fails to effect a cure. Those who have used it say it acts promptly, and thoroughly, subdues the pain and disease.

All trails are long to the lazy.

Use the safe, pleasant, and effectual worm killer, Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator; nothing equals it. Procure a bottle and take it home.

The best way to get even is to forget.

Holloway's Corn Cure is the medicine to remove all kinds of corns and warts, and only costs the small sum of twenty-five cents.

Bank of Montreal

ESTABLISHED 1817.
Capital and Rest, All Paid Up.
$23,000,000
(Twenty-three Millions)

Savings Bank Department
Interest on sums of $1.00 and upwards allowed at current rates.
A. G. PARKER,
Manager Belleville Branch

TWO BIG SALES

Summer Clothing AND Straw Hats

We are having a great clearing up of summer goods these warm days. In addition to our 20 per cent. discount sale on summer clothing, we are offering 25 to 50 doz. Men's and Boys' Straw Hats, worth 50c cts, 75c and $1.00. for only 25c ea.

This is almost a present for the man who has any need for a Straw Hat They are selling very fast, come quick if you want one.

See Them In Our North Window.

OAK HALL

Sole Agents for Sanford's Celebrated Clothing.

Holiday seekers will find full lines of

Trunks and Travelling Bags

At The J. J. Haines Shoe Houses.

Steamer Trunks
Round and Flat Top Trunks

Canvas, Leather or Metal Covered Trunks.

Bags, Suit Cases, TELESCOPE VALISES

Fibre Cases, Club Bags, Shawl Straps, etc

TEMPTING Shoe Bargains on our Bargain Tables for old or young.

The J. J. Haines SHOE HOUSES at Belleville, Napanee and Trenton

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE
FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

UNIONIST SHOT.

Boss Gave Orders to Shoot Union Pickets Who Walked the Streets.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 13.—George Moore, a Moulders' Union picket, was shot and badly wounded from ambush at the factory of E. C. Stearns & Co., yesterday afternoon. A strike breaker is believed to have fired the shot from a Winchester rifle. The police reserves were called out and two arrests made. Several rifles were found on the premises and seized. Intense excitement prevails.

Three men are under arrest for complicity in the shooting, Thomas Ross or Rosa, Antonio Deltor or Antonio Ditor, and Mich Perrule. The rifles are claimed to have been procured by the heads of the company, and the Italian boss is said to have told his men that they would be protected if they used the firearms. Mr. Stearns himself would neither confirm nor deny the statement that he had put weapons into the hands of his men. Moore's injuries are not fatal. The arrested men say a sub-boss gave orders to shoot union pickets who walked the streets in front of the factory.

Backache, Kidney Ache

PAINS IN THE SMALL OF THE BACK WARN YOU OF KIDNEY DISEASE.

Hard work, stooping, reaching, twisting the body, exposure to cold and dampness or drafts are among the causes of kidney derangements and the most pronounced symptom is backache. The first touch of backache, weak or lame back, should be sufficient to lead you to immediately begin the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no treatment so prompt to relieve and none which is so far-reaching and thorough in action. One pill a dose 25 cents a box. 7

Death After Carousal.

Ottawa, July 13.— Walter Tanner, a stableman at Moore's Hotel, Wellington street, who spent the day carousing at an hotel on the Richmond Road, died last night on a Britannia car. Whether death was caused be accident or natural causes remains to be determined by post-mortem examination.

Assassin Honored.

Belgrade, Servia, July 13. —Col. Mischies of the 6th Infantry Regiment, who took a prominent part in the coup d'etat of June 11, has been promoted to the post of Departmental Chief of the Ministry of War.

A French physiologist has discovered that nearly all criminals have large ears.

Daily Intelligencer.

TIMELY TOPICS.

"Why Not Investigate?" This is a heading upon a somewhat lengthy article in the Saturday issue of our contemporary. It is in defence of the late Lady Superintendent of the Hospital, who last week resigned her position.

• • •

The article says: "Before she resigned she asked for an investigation by the Board of the W.C.A., but we understand the investigation was refused." Then an eminent physician, who has done much for the institution, is attacked.

• • •

For the benefit of our attacking friend down street we may inform him that, if an investigation is really sought, "it might possibly be obtained WITHOUT difficulty."

• • •

As for ourselves we regret that such an article was written, as it serves no good purpose.

• • •

We are informed by those who should know that what is most needed in Belleville's Hospital is a MEDICAL SUPERINTENDENT.

• • •

If the present incumbent remain as Lady Superintendent, it is the duty of those in charge to furnish her with a housekeeper, so that the patients and other matters pertaining to the institution can have her undivided attention.

• • •

Many of our men go west to help work in the wheat fields of Manitoba during the rush season. Let Manitoba promise year round employment and there will be plenty of men.

Canadian Soldiers Used Foot Elm

IN THE LATE SOUTH AFRICAN CAMPAIGN—THEY SPEAK OF IT IN THE HIGHEST TERMS FOR PREVENTING BLISTERING AND CHAFING OF THE FEET.

Through the courtesy of Messrs. B. I. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont., proprietors of "Foot Elm," 1,000 boxes of this much-prized remedy for the feet went to South Africa with the 1st Canadian Contingent.

Here is how one or two of those who went through the campaign speak of it.

A. MacGregor, Col.-Sergt., 48th Highlanders, Toronto, writes: "The Foot Elm supplied us was appreciated by everyone who used it, as it prevented chafing, eased and rested the feet, and robbed marching of a great deal of misery."

Arch. MacColl, "C" Co., R. C. R., says: "As I had good feet I seldom had occasion to use Foot Elm, but I have found that it allays the burning sensation caused by ill-fitting boots, and accelerates the healing of any raw spots on one's feet."

Foot Elm is 25 cents a box of 18 powders and may be obtained at any drug store.

"ON HIS GUARD."

The Longest Word.

The controversy as to what is the longest word still goes on. We have already mentioned several claimants, of which "antidisestablishmentarianism" (twenty-eight letters) appears to be the longest legitimate English word. As to the longest word in any language, a writer in the "Living Church" thinks the following word bears the palm, namely, "Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerchwyrndrobwlltysiligogogoch." "It is the name of a village in North Wales," says the writer, "and while lunching at a Welsh inn at Bettws-y-Coed recently I heard the name pronounced with perfect ease and clearness by a young Welshman." But, according to another clerical correspondent of the same journal, this word simply "isn't in it" with the Greek word for "hash," of one hundred and eighty-one letters, to be found in Liddel and Scott's unabridged Greek lexicon: "Lepadotemachoselachogaleokranioleipsanodrimupotrimmatosilphioparabomelitokatakechumenokichlepikossuphophattoperisteralektruonoptokephalliokigklopeleiolagoosiraraboph etraganopterugon." After this it is expected that the controversy will languish.

Jane the Unexpected.

By ANNIE P. DOBIE.

JANE THORNTON reclined at ease in the most luxurious of hammocks, on the roomiest and shadiest of verandahs. The warm June sun tried in vain to reach her through the thick curtain of wisteria and Virginia creeper. Jane felt that she owed it to herself to take things easy after all her efforts of the past two weeks. She had entertained all her friends, and paid all her social debts. She felt that she could look the whole world in the face, for she owed not any man—or woman either, which was more to the point. Such a time as she had had, too, with mother away in Europe—not that she was much help when she was at home—and how terribly disappointing cook had been, with her father taking sick just at the very time she was most needed! Tommy had done errands and carried messages, but small brothers of twelve are not always to be counted upon. It had taken nothing short of two evenings and two afternoons to get around all the people in her set. It was really an awful thing to live all one's life in a growing country town; one's circle of friends was ever growing wider and entailing larger responsibilities in entertaining. And owing to mother's ill-health they had been in everybody's debt—in everybody's, that is, but the Martins'. It was really too contemptible the way those people acted! They were asked everywhere, and never gave as much as an old-fashioned tea in return. And they were such pretty girls, too, and so popular with the men, it seemed too bad to cut them. But why on earth couldn't they give something? Even if it were only an "At Home," that one only goes to to show one's newest gown. And then the mean little tricks they resorted to! Just as everybody was getting tired of inviting them, and they were just about to topple off the social wave, they always gave out that they were going to have a large party, were going to ask everybody; and on the strength of this they received invitations for the rest of the season. But the "large party" always failed to materialize. Some of their intimate friends said it was because their upstairs was "awfully shabby;" but really, if people couldn't keep in the swim they should retire from the struggle gracefully. At any rate, Jane had left them out; she was not going to be imposed upon.

A light step on the walk startled Jane from her reverie, and her bosom friend, Eleanor Smith, came tripping up in radiant summer garb.

"How can you lie there this lovely morning? You said you had ever so many things to see to before going to the mountains. Are you going next week?" Eleanor's conversation consisted largely of questions that she seldom gave one time to answer.

"Oh, well, I need a rest before I go. No one ever wants to go to a summer resort fagged out. You know how wearing it is," said Jane.

"What do you think I got at the post this morning? Guess who is giving a tea!" and Eleanor held up a dainty pale pink envelope bearing her address in a delicate hand. "You could never guess in the world! I nearly fainted with surprise when I saw whom it was from!"

"The Martins!" faltered Jane at a venture.

"How in the world did you know?" said Eleanor. "Someone told you, of course."

"No, indeed," said Jane; "your mind must have communicated it to mine."

"Well, they are actually giving a garden party! They have asked everybody. You should have been at the post to see all the people walking off with pink envelopes. It looked too funny!" laughed Eleanor. "What shall you wear, Jane? Your new gown from J—'s?"

"Perhaps I sha'n't be invited," said Jane. "You know I left them out when I gave my parties, and I fancy Mrs. Martin and Lou are rather cool to me when we meet."

"Oh, the idea!" said Eleanor. "Just as if every hair of their heads doesn't owe you an invitation! Of course you'll be asked!"

"When is it to be?" asked Jane.

"To-morrow. I met Mrs. Skimmer and she told me all about it. That woman knows everything. It's a mystery to me where she gets her news. The party is for Bob Martin, who has done so well out in Vancouver. He is making a flying visit, and they have to give something for him, you know. I shall wear my pink muslin with the frills. What are you going to do this afternoon, Jane?"

"Nothing in particular. I am going to the Willsons' for a while this evening, but shall come home early."

"I promised in a moment of weakness to take Bee and Jacky to the Beach this afternoon," said Eleanor. "I can't get out of it. Come along and help me take care of them. We can have tea there and you can go to the Willsons' after."

"Very well," said Jane; "I shall meet you on the two o'clock boat. The sail will do me good."

Eleanor went off, leaving Jane to review the possibilities of her wardrobe in the event of her being invited to the Martins'. Her blue muslin with the lace was still fresh, but then pale blue was rather trying to any but the most youthful complexion by daylight. Why not wear her cream voile with the medallions? It was intended for swell occasions at the Mountain House, and she might as well look her best, especially as Bob Martin would be there. One cannot afford to overlook possibilities when one is thirty-two.

When Tommy came in to lunch the pink envelope was not forthcoming. Jane felt some misgivings; but when she questioned him and found that he had been off at Loon Lake all morning with his chum, Dick Winters, and had forgotten to go to the post-office, she felt relieved. Luncheon was late, so that Jane had no time to call at the post-office herself; in fact, she had no time to think about Martins, garden party, or anything but catching the boat.

The afternoon was anything but dull, with the children to be amused and rescued from several more or less perilous situations. Eight o'clock found them making the home trip, each with a young Smith fast asleep on her hands. Jane hurried on to the Willsons', where she spent the evening, and twelve o'clock was just chiming out as she reached home, weary in every limb.

As she passed through the hall on her way upstairs she glanced at the little table where the family letters were always placed—there, sure enough, was the pink envelope directed to her in a neat hand!

Next morning Jane slept late, and had to rush about to keep her appointments at various dressmakers' and dry goods shops. Several times she met Bessie Martin, who greeted her with the most engaging of smiles. She was late for luncheon, and had barely time to snatch a little rest before it was time to dress for the Martins' party.

This was a very important ceremony. Baths and wavings of hair and arrangement of laces absorb a large amount of time; but when at last Miss Thornton sallied forth she was well satisfied with the result. To see her sauntering leisurely along, the perfection of grace and elegance, one could never have guessed how hard it had been to get her back hair done at the proper angle or the fearful struggle she had had in getting arrayed in her new voile.

When she reached her destination the party was in progress. Some of the younger guests were playing tennis, while others were scattered in groups on the lawn. The older ladies preferred to remain chatting indoors or hugged the verandahs, trying to look as if they were thoroughly enjoying themselves.

Jane made her way to the drawing-room, where the Martins were receiving their guests. As they greeted her she was conscious of a peculiar note in their cordiality, a vague indefinable something which quickly communicated itself to her. A sort of veiled surprise, impossible to explain or describe. She was presented to the cousin, who proved to be a fine-looking man of simple manners, with whom one was at ease in a moment. But much as Jane felt inclined to stay and enjoy his society, she felt impelled to get away as soon as she could decently make her escape. After partaking of the ethereal viands usually served on such occasions, Jane made her adieux, excusing herself on the ground that she had many preparations to make for her intended journey.

On the way home, try as she would, she could not account for the strange feeling she had experienced on greeting the Martins. There was something wrong but what? As she neared home an awful thought struck her. She hurriedly opened the door and rushed to the hall-table. There lay the pink envelope still unbroken. She hastily tore it open, and read the following:

> MRS. ARNOLDI > will Demonstrate the uses of
> BARKER'S CHOCOLATE > to the ladies of M. at
> David Young's Grocery Store,
> Tuesday and Wednesday next, from 3 to 6.
> You are cordially invited.

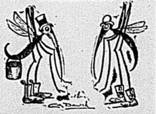
Jane turned cold and collapsed on the lowest step of the stair, utterly regardless of her new voile in her humiliation.

Was ever anyone in such a predicament? What would the Martins think? And Bob Martin! And she had made such a good impression. If she had only opened that envelope, and not taken so much for granted! How should she ever explain? She could not eat at dinner, thinking and planning out ways of making the matter right; and by bedtime she had in imagination apologized and explained to the Martins in about twenty different ways. Occasionally the ridiculous side of it would come uppermost and she would laugh heartily, but misery returned when she faced the awful facts.

Her sleep that night was troubled, but when morning came her resolve was made. Taking the pink envelope in her hand she started out, dreading the encounter and trying to imagine what the Martins would do and say. She was shown into the drawing-room, and when Mrs. Martin came in a few minutes later Jane at once entered upon her difficult task. Of course they treated the mistake as a huge joke, and Jane soon felt quite reassured. In the midst of it all Bob Martin came in and joined in their laughter, and the end of it was that his visit was not the flying one he had intended. He lingered on in M. for some weeks longer, much to the surprise of Mrs. Skimmer and gossips of her type. Somehow she postponed her visit to the mountains, and when her mother returned home three months later there was a trousseau to be provided and a wedding day was fixed for the following January.



First Mosquito—What's in the bucket! Rushing the growler?
Second Mosquito—No; it's a cure for coal-oil poison. Have a nip!

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

SINGLE FARE

To Detroit and Return
in connection with
INTERNATIONAL EPWORTH LEAGUE CONVENTION,
July 16th to 19th.

Tickets good going July 15th and 16th. Valid for return until July 20th. Tickets may be extended for return until August 15th, on depositing tickets with joint agent not later than July 19th, and on payment of 50 cents.

The Grand Trunk service is unexcelled for those attending the convention. Fast and convenient.

TOURIST RESORTS.

Muskoka Lakes, Georgian Bay, Lake of Bays, Kawartha Lakes, Thousand Islands, Quebec, Portland, Old Orchard, White Mountains. All reached via the Grand Trunk.

For tickets and all information apply to

C. E. THOMPSON, City Agent,
Bridge Street,
T. H. COPPIN, Depot Agent.
J. D. McDONALD,
Dist. Pass Agt., Toronto.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY.

"Imperial Limited."

Fast tri-weekly Transcontinental service between Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver. Connection leaves Toronto at 1.45 p.m., Sunday, Wednesday, Friday, making run Toronto to Vancouver in 97 hours.

Upper Lake Steamships

Leave Owen Sound Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 5.30 p.m., on arrival of S.S. Express leaving Toronto at 1.30 p.m. Connections at Fort William and Port Arthur for Winnipeg and Pacific Coast points.

Daily First-Class Service Toronto to Winnipeg, Calgary, Banff and Pacific Coast.

Fully Equipped Through Tourist Cars leave Toronto Tuesday and Saturday for Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Full particulars from your nearest Canadian Pacific Agent or to

A. H. NOTMAN,
Asst. Gen. Pass. Agent, TORONTO.
S. BURROWS, C.P.R. and General Ticket Agent, Front St., Belleville.

NEW YORK CENTRAL & HUDSON RIVER R. R.

THE FOUR-TRACK TRUNK LINE.

SHORTEST Route to the United States via Cape Vincent, N.Y.

GOING EAST AND WEST.		After 1st May
Lv. Belleville (G.T.R.)	12.22 p.m.	1.30 a.m
Arr. Kingston "	1.47 p.m.	3.12 a.m
Lv. Kingston (stage)..	2.30 p.m.	5.00 a.m
Arr. CapeVincent (stage)	4.30 p m.	7.00 a.m
Lv.Cape Vincent N.Y.C.	5.05 p.m.	7.25 a.m
Arr. Watertown "	5.55 p.m.	8,25 a.m
Arr. Oswego "	9.05 p.m.	11.55 a.m
Arr. Syracuse "	9.25 p.m.	12.07 p.m
Arr. Rochester "	1.05 a.m.	2.20 a.m
Arr. Utica "	9.45 p.m.	12.35 p.m
Arr. New York "	7.25 a.m.	6.00 p.m

Convenient train service in opposite direction.

Pullman Sleeping and Parlor Cars.

2c a Mile.

Books for 500 miles of travel on New York Central and leased lines within State of New York, cost only $10 while books for 1000 miles over New York Central, Boston & Albany, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, Philadelphia & Reading and C. R. R. of New Jersey cost $20. Secure further information and purchase tickets from F. A. Folger, N.Y.C. Agent, Kingston, Ont.

GEORGE H. DANIELS,
Gen'l Pass'r Agent.
New York.
A. H. SMITH, Gen'l Supt.,
New York.
G. C. GRIDLEY, Gen'l Agent,
Watertown, N.Y.

Seven hundred British subjects are yearly born at sea.

It takes a long time to tell of what you have not done.

Turkey now exports $3,000,000 worth of opium a year.

Children's Slippers

Children's Red Kid Slippers	60c, 75c, and $1.00
Children's White Kid Slippers	$1.00 and $1.25
Children's Patent Leather Slippers ..	75c, $1.00 and $1 25

We are offering a special line of Ladies' Dongola Kid Slippers for ....75c, regular price $1.00

VERMILYEA & SON.

FOR TWO WEEKS ONLY! 2 WEEKS

$5.00 Any Suit In This Great Clothing Store for $5.00

A STUPENDOUS CLOTHING OFFER WITHOUT PRECEDENT OR PARALLEL.

Some Suits $18, some $16, some $15, some $12, others $10. Just think of it! High grade, thoroughly tailored garments for Men, complete suits in fashionable fabrics, for

$5.00

This is just the opening gun in the great Mid-Summer Sale, in connection with this store. In every other department there will be equal sensational reductions. This Clothing Sale begins on July 11th and will end on July 25th. The earlier you come the better your choice as we anticipate a big rush.

The GLOBE CLOTHING HOUSE.

Up-to-date Clothiers and Gents' Furnishiers, Look for the Globe Over The Door, 390 Front Street, Belleville.

Wall Paper

At first sight of our Wall Papers you will say there's an attractiveness about them that puts them lengths ahead of other lines.

IN STOCKING

we select only the best, we have no "shelf warmers" all our Papers are quick sellers. If you choose your Papers from us you have best value for the price obtainable anywhere.

Painting, Paperhanging and Decorating done on shortest notice by best workmen in the city.

JOHN CORNELIUS

3 Doors South of Intelligencer Office.

NEW GOODS

JAPAN TEA

The first of this season's crop, exta quality, regular 50c line, we quote

40c Per lb.

Canned Halibut

Fine solid Fish, very tasty,

15c per can.

J. C. Hanley & Co.
GROCERS
Telephone 214

Flowers & Vegetables

Of all kinds in season.
. . . AT . . .
J. D. COLLIP'S.
'Phone 205.

Western Beef.

Prime Western Beef together with all kinds of choice meats, supplied by the district, at

C. GREEN'S
267 Front St., 'Phone 109.

WHEN BABY IS SICK.

Crying the Best Index to Its Physical Condition.

A baby's cry should be to the intelligent mother the best index to its physical condition. The healthy baby cries very loudly and in a lusty, explosive, angry manner, and the tears flow freely. The sick baby, or the one on the verge of sickness, cries peevishly or whines in a low tone.

Watch the manner in which the baby takes its food. If it is perfectly well it will attack the bottle greedily, and will express its satisfaction much in the same manner as any other young suckling animal—that is, by soft and inarticulate noises or grunts. If, on the other hand, the baby contemplates its food before touching it, or, after tasting, turns from it, be sure there is something wrong.

Watch the baby closely while it sleeps. If it is in perfect health the skin will be moist, the lips damp and scarlet, the palms of the hands and the soles of the feet pink. The eyelids will be completely closed and there will be no twitching of the muscles about the mouth or nose or eyes. Save for a faint rhythmic sound of breathing the healthy baby when asleep will be as still as a piece of carved marble.

If the baby smiles in its sleep, if it throws out its little hands and feet with swift, spasmodic motions; if the eyes are only half closed, the corners of the mouth drawn down, the breathing irregular or labored, the face flushed and the head hot, then lose no time in calling in the family physician.

THE VALLEY SHADOWS.

The Shadows in the valley,
They gather grim and grey;
We needs must pass their darkness through,
It waits on every way;
But from the heights decending,
O soul, be brave and strong,
And make the valley shadows ring
Unto the hilltop song!

The shadows in the valley,
They gather grey and grim,
But all the darkened roads go straight
From mountain brim to brim;
And now the heights ascending,
The way behind you long,
How steadfast sounds your faithful chant,
The valley's hilltop song!

—Ripley D. Saunders.

A Word About the Bathroom

The bath itself must, of course, always be kept spotlessly clean and the taps brilliantly polished, and the linoleum covering the floor always carefully swept and washed, but even more than this is needed to make a really comfortable bathroom. A cork or rubber mat should be kept in every bathroom.

Woolen mats are useless; they absorb the moisture and become unhygienic. A place should be found on the wall for a mirror—a plain one with a black frame will answer the purpose admirably; the longer it is the better, and it should be placed where there is a good light. Two wire trays should also be fastened to the wall beside the bath, and low enough to be within easy reach of the person using it.

These are to hold the sponge and flannel and soap when not in use during the bath. Also shelves should be made and placed upon the walls of every bathroom. These may be of plain deal, enamelled any color that is liked.

Plenty of soap should always be provided and towels in abundance, and with all these little comforts the daily bath will be indeed an unmixed pleasure.

Proper Manners at the Table.

There is no place where a person's good breeding and early training, says a writer in The Delineator, are more clearly shown than at the table. Peculiarities of manner which might elsewhere pass without criticism are not there allowable. Conduct must be marked by serenity, and there must be no uncertainty of manner, but an easy knowledge of the use of all the belongings of the table. Customs which may seem insignificant are in reality of sufficient importance to show the difference between refinement and the lack of it, between a familiarity with social conventionalities or the reverse.

Whether a dinner is ceremonious or informal, certain customs remain the same.

We will suppose that a lady is taking her seat at a dinner party. She immediately removes her gloves, places them in her lap, unfoldes the napkin, takes the roll or bread from within it and places it at the left hand, on the table, and lays the napkin across her lap. At each place there may be on the right two large knives, a small silver fish knive and a tablespoon, and on the left three or four silver forks, one of them a fish fork and one an oyster fork.

The oysters are served on the shell and must be eaten whole, not cut in half.

Soup is taken with a tablespoon and from the side of the spoon; one must never tilt one's soup plate to secure the last spoonful and must never be served twice to soup.

For the fish course, the silver fish fork and knive are used, Butter is not served at dinner. It is not good form to eat bread between the courses, as if one were hungry.

Some entrees, such as cutlets or sweetbreads, may require the knife and fork; for others, such as patties, timbales or croquettes, a fork only is used. Meat is cut as required, a small piece at a time. When eating vegetables the knife is laid on the plate the blade resting near the center. The knife must not be placed across the edge of the plate, nor with the handle resting on the table. The fork is then taken up in the right hand, the handle of the fork resting easily on the hand between the first finger and the thumb.

Small birds, such as quail and squab, are served whole, one for each person, and one cuts the meat from the breast and eats each piece at the time of cuting it.

Make Way For the Ladies.

In Michigan there is an Indian school where the children of the more or less noble redman are instructed in Anglo-Saxon graces and civilization. One of the teachers says:

It is very interesting to study these children, especially as we have them from four different tribes.

The boys have a sense of humor. In my flag-drill last Friday the partners were a boy and a girl, and where the lines intersect to form a cross I taught the boys to let their partners go first; and much trouble I had to do it.

After the exercises Isaac Crane came up to me, and in his solemn way said: "Miss B., in letting the girls pass in front of the boys you have struck at the root of an Indian national custom."

"How so, Isaac?"

"It is the custom for the man to go first, carrying his dignity, and for the woman to follow, carrying everything else."

Expensive Revenge.

Mankind is so constituted that it is sometimes not able to forget readily any slights or rebuffs endured, and the disposition to seek revenge is frequently uppermost in the thoughts. In Sheffield, England, it is said, there is a manufacturer who became furious with the local post-office people because of certain regulations they insisted he should follow in the matter of registered mail. After calming down, the manufacturer concluded he would have to toe the mark if he wanted his mail forwarded, but his revenge he would have, too. So every day for a month or more he sent each of his two hundred employees to the post-office to buy a single penny stamp. The employees were decorated with red tape, and seemed to enjoy hugely the making of their daily purchase.

Decidedly Not.

"You don't happen to have change fur a quarter, do ye?" asked Eaton Shabbelong, who had an unexpected stroke of luck.

"Change fer a quarter!" echoed Tuffold Knutt, with infinite disgust. "If I had do ye reckon I'd be carryin' the thirst I've got with me this minute.—Chicago Tribune.

Very Cheering News.

"Jimson is such a cheering chap!"

"Eyah?"

"Yes; when I told him this was the hottest day I'd ever seen, he said, 'Oh, cheer up, old boy! Think of the heat you'll have to endure when you're dead!'"

CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY

CAPITAL

10,000 Shares 7 per cent Cumulative Preferred Stock, par value $100 each,	$1,000,000
50,000 Shares Common Stock, par value $100, issued and fully paid	5,000,000
TOTAL CAPITALIZATION	$6,000,000

Issues of $1,000,000 00 7 p.c. Preferred Stock in 10,000 Shares of $100 each at par.

This stock is preferred both as to Assets and Dividends.

The shares are entitled to cumulative preferred dividends from the net earnings of the Company, at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable half yearly on the first days of April and October. They may, at the option of the holder, be exchanged for common shares. They are subject to be called in, in whole or in part, by the Company, at $115.00 per share, at any time after 1st January, 1909.

The total issue of Preferred Stock is only $1,000,000.00, the whole of which is now offered.

Subscriptions for 10,000 Shares of $100 each of the 7 per cent. Preferred Stock of the CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY will now be received at par, that is $100 Share, as follows

per cent on application,
25 " " on allotment,
35 " " 30 days thereafter.
35 " " 60 days thereafter.

One share of Common, par value $100, given with each share of preferred.

The whole of instalments remaining unpaid at any time may be prepaid in full. A discount of one per cent will be allowed upon the par of each share if prepaid at time of allotment

Notice of allotment will be sent promptly by ordinary letter.

COAL

PROPERTY IN FULL OPERATION

Company owns 9,600 acres of coal property known throughout the coal trade as the New Campbellton Colliery, located on Bras D'Or Bay, County of Victoria, Cape Breton, Novia Scotia. Mine is fully equipped, producing and marketing tons of coal a day at a net profit of $1.00 a ton. Improvements are now being made that will increase the output to over 1,000 tons a day. On present output, figuring 300 working days in year, the net result will more than pay interest on entire issue of preferred, with output of 1 000 tons a day net result will be $300,000 per annum.

IRON

RICHEST ORE IN THE WORLD

Company owns in fee simple, free and clear of all incumbrances, 4000 acres of iron ore deposit, located Natashquan (tidewater) situated on North shore of Gulf of St. Lawrence, in the County of Sagunay, province of Quebec.

Deposits contain 20,000,000 tons of ore ABOVE SEA LEVEL ALONE.

Quality of ore is highet ever discovered, running from 69 per cent to 72 per cent in metallic iron.

More orders for the sale of this ore has been received by the Campany than can possibly be accepted, and at a price netting the Company a profit of $2 a ton F. O. B. vessels at Company's docks.

Send for prospectus giving full information as to earnings, reports, etc., etc.

Address all communications and send subscriptions to

COLONIAL SECURITIES CO.,
62 Wall Street, New York City

OR

W. L. MARSTON & COMPANY
110 State Street, Boston

The SAWYER COMPANY.
351 Temple Building, Montreal, Canada.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Measurement Nonpareil—12 lines to the inch.

Display advertisements, 10c per line.

Subsequent consecutive insertions, [illegible]

Reading advertisements, 15c per line.

Preferred positions, 20 per cent advance on ordinary or contract rates.

Minimum space, 14 lines.

Marriages and deaths, 50c each insertion.

Births, 25c each insertion.

Rates for Condensed Advertisement will be found in 1st column of 2nd page.

All advertisements are subject to the approval of the Publisher of the Intelligencer.

Address all communications to the Intelligencer Printing & Publishing House Limited, or to Charles J. Bowell, Managing Director and Treasurer.

Canadians in London will find The Intelligencer on file at E. & J. Hardy & Co.'s Office, 30 Fleet Street, London, E.C.

CONDENSED ADVERTISEMENTS

SITUATIONS WANTED, HELP WANTED, LOST OR FOUND, FOR SALE OR TO RENT, &c

(Auction Sales not included in this list)

TERMS.—Twenty-five words or less, 25c first insertion; two insertions, 50c; four insertions, 75c; one week $1.00, two weeks, $1.75, three weeks, $2.25; one month, $2.50. Strictly cash in advance.

WANTED.

Typograph operator, or printer willing to learn machine. Apply at Intelligencer, Office. 13dtf

100 machinery moulders and coremakers, Steady work. Wages for moulders at least $4.00; coremakers $3.25. Address Post Office Box 511, Toronto. jy9-d10t

$6 per month will buy you a home anywhere under our plan. Live in it while paying for it Write for prospectus. Canadian Home Builders' Asociation, Manning Chambers, Toronto. jy11-6t

Have you spare time? Increase your income by work at night. Others are doing it. Our goods are used everyday everywhere. Write G. Marshall & Co., Teas, London, Ont.

Agents wanted, $2.50 per day. Apply Cooper, London, Ont. s27-1y

Young men ambitious to learn lucrative trades, of which there are eight in connection with the business. Apply The Belleville Hardware Company, Belleville, Ont. a7dtf

FOR SALE OR TO-LET.

Stone house, 11 rooms, coal furnace, stable, barn. Large grounds. Cor. Frank and Moira Sts. north. Terms reasonable. H. Bull, on premises or Fred Bull, 133 Yonge St., Toronto. Terms easy. ap18-dtf

FOR SALE.

Two surreys, two phaetons, two buggies, one horse. Apply to H. L. CURRY, Pinnacle street. jy9-8td&10.23w

Dressed and Matched Lumber of all kinds, at ALFORD'S factory, Market Square. jl2-tf

Contractors and masons, any any person requiring lime may procure it from E. G. STAPLEY, Canifton Road, Belleville. New lime always on hand. a9-d&w6m

TO RENT

A house on Moira street containing 8 rooms. All modern conveniences. Possession on or before 20th July.—Adam Henry.. dtf

RAILWAY TIME TABLES.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Time of departure from Belleville Station:

Going East.

New train 12.45 a.m., daily, except Sunday, for Brockville, Montreal and intermediate stations.

No. 16—Local, for Brockville, 7 a.m., arrives back from Brockville 8.40 a.m.

No. 2—1.45 a.m., Mail and Express, (Flyer), Daily.

No. 6—11.43 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.

No. 4—12.22 p.m., International Limited, Daily.

No. 12—5.55 p.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.

Going West.

No. 5—3 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily except Monday.

No. 3—4.10 a.m., Limited Express, Daily.

No. 9—6.50 a.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.

No. 11—11.22 a.m., Passenger, Daily except Sunday.

No. 1—1.48 p.m., International Limited, Daily.

No. 7—5.12 p.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.

Taking effect 12.01 o'clock, Sunday, June 14, 1903.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.

Belleville and Peterboro.

Going West.

	Leave.	Arr. Peterboro
Mail	5.45 a.m.	8.10 a.m.
Mixed	5.55 p.m.	9.05 p.m.

Going East.

	Arr.	L've Peterboro
Mixed	11.20 a.m.	8.25 a.m.
Mail	4.25 p.m.	2.05 p.m.

Belleville and Madoc.

Going North.

	L've	Arr. Madoc
Mixed	12.20 p.m.	1.20 p.m.
Mixed	6.20 p.m.	7.40 p.m.

Going South.

	Arr.	L've Madoc
Mixed	9.10 a.m.	7.30 a.m.
Mixed	5.08 p.m.	3.45 p.m.

None of the above trains run on Sunday.

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

THE SUICIDE CRAZE.

REV. DR. TALMAGE PREACHES A VERY TIMELY SERMON.

TEXT: CURSE GOD AND DIE.

Causes of the Present Increasing Suicidal Epidemic Pointed Out in Graphic Language, and the Gospel Remedy for This as Well as All Other Evils Eloquently Upheld.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1903, by William Bally, of Toronto, at the Dep't of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Chicago, July 12.—In view of the startling increase in the crime of self destruction, as shown by the latest statistics, the subject chosen by Dr. Talmage for his discourse to-day is a most timely one. His text is Job ii, 9, "Curse God and die."

Two incitements—desperate, fierce, definite, outrageous! The one urges the broken hearted father, the financial bankrupt, the physically tormented man, to grit his teeth and, with flashing eyes and uplifted hand, hurl a futile malediction at the Almighty, to curse God with an eternal blasphemy. What a shocking appalling suggestion! Enough to make all heaven stand aghast in horror and to render even the demon infested caverns of a hopeless inferno silent with fear and to turn the flushed cheeks aflame with the fires of eternal woe white with terror. Curse God! Who could do that but a human being crazed and desperate and reckless under intolerable anguish?

The second incitement puts in the hands of the sufferer the suicide's knife, the hangman's noose or the vial labelled with the two fatal words, "Deadly Poison." To how many in every age has that insidious temptation come? In the United States alone more than 30,000 persons have yielded to it during the past four years. In Chicago alone 1,294 persons passed out of life by the suicide's gate in three years—nine victims on a single Sabbath. In two months of the present year seventy-five lives have ended in self immolation. How long will the human race listen to that hideous voice which bade Job seek in death escape from his misery? That tempter's voice is sounding louder and louder every day. Shall the crime of self murder be allowed longer to spread the pernicious doctrine that with one stroke of the razor across the jugular vein or with one plunge in front of a flying locomotive or with one leap from high building or lofty palisade the would be suicide can find rest, eternal rest, God given, blissful oblivion for all who are weary of life and peace for souls sick of the results of sin?

The increasing suicidal epidemic of the present generation should be halted in its onward march of destruction. I lift my voice to-day in warning against this evil. It cannot be stayed by upbraiding a mangled corpse or by calling a dead man a coward. I would prayerfully and earnestly try to indicate some of the causes which produce it.

First, I charge atheism with the chief responsibility for the crime. Self murder is the hideous black visaged executioner of the merciless monster we call atheism, agnosticism infidelity. It is the old, slimy serpent coiled up under the overshadowing branches of the gnarled and worm eaten tree of unbelief, at the foot of which sits the grinning, blear eyed hag misery crooning a dirge for a lullaby. It is the death rattle of a human being whose parched lips have been set to the rim of the chalice filled with the scorching, poisonous concoction of blasphemy and falsehood compounded by a Voltaire, a Rousseau, a Thomas Paine or a Robert G. Ingersoll. It is the whetstone, wet with human blood, upon which moral sensibilities can be blunted and at the same time the suicide's knife sharpened, for it teaches immortal man that there is no hereafter and that he is responsible for his life's actions to no Divine Maker and King.

No suicidal razor was ever honed upon the leaves of the opened Bible. Though the morning newspapers almost every day are blackened with the awful obituary tragedies of men and women who have deliberately taken their lives by the bloody hand of self murder, you cannot find among those who perished, in the full possession of reason, a single consecrated Christian church member. You cannot find one person among them all who realized that he was a beloved child of God and that he expected to go to meet a loving Heavenly Father unless the person killed himself during a fit of temporary insanity as did Hugh Miller, the great Scotch scientist, who blew out his brains during mental derangement, or that eminent New York clergyman who, in delirium, leaped from a window. Why? The Bible distinctly and emphatically declares that no man has a right to commit self murder. It warns men that they must answer for this terrible crime before the judgment seat of Christ, and it holds out to them no hope of pardon during all eternity. Read the eighth chapter of Revelation: "And murderers and whoremongers and idolators and all liars shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone, which is the second death." Read the first epistle of John, third chapter and fifteenth verse: "No murderer hath eternal life abiding in him." In the sound of such a divine warning, does any Christian man, with his eyes wide open, attempt to sound the "open sesame" of the pearly gates of the New Jerusalem with the crack of a suicidal pistol? Dare any Christian, by self destruction, obliterate that life which God alone can give and which God alone has a right to take away?

The whole tendency of the gospel of Jesus Christ is opposed to this suicidal epidemic; the whole tendency of unbelief is to promote and increase it. To the atheist life is a single span, one abutment of which is the cradle and the other the grave, at which he meets annihilation. To such a man there is no better principle of life than to eat, drink and be merry, for to-morrow he dies. He would make life a comedy for all and death a great finale. The earnest Christian disciple says, "Life is not a joke; death is not a finale." Life is an opportunity for doing good and for struggling against evil. Because the good as well as the evil lives on for ever and ever we ought to put ourselves in the hands of the Almighty, who arranges our lot for us, and say, as did Job, "All the days of my appointed time will I wait till my change come."

The unbeliever in the gospel says: "If there is a hell it is to be found this side and not the other side of the grave. When things go wrong the best way to escape suffering is to snap the silver cord of human life and silence the beating heart." The Christian disciple says, "Sanctified troubles are a spiritual means by the grace of God for raising an immortal soul on and up. Unsanctified troubles are the inexorable means of dragging a sinful, defiant soul on and forever down: 'He that is unjust let him be unjust still, and he which is filthy let him be filthy still, and he that is righteous let him be righteous still, and he that is holy let him be holy still.'" Such are the two extremes—the tenets of the believers in total annihilation at the brink of the grave and those of the earnest disciple of Jesus Christ.

False standards for happiness can be catalogued among the frequent, prolific causes of the suicidal sin. They are the decoying mirages which tempt the weary life's traveler to lose himself in the midst of a Sahara of sand. They are the deceitful stars, twinkling their benedictions over altars of silver and of gold and of fame, which suddenly go out and leave the devotees worshiping in total darkness. They are the musical voices of the sirens, singing their sweetest songs when luring their victims on to fatal shipwreck.

In the false standard of happiness can be found the origin of the disappointments which so often end in suicide. Men do not first seek wealth or fame to possess those treasures, as a miser might hoard up his gold. They desire the merchant prince's palace and the king's throne because they foolishly think that happiness is a coy maiden who loves to robe herself in silks and to have her throat and fingers a-glitter with precious jewels, and therefore they can the more readily find her in the rich man's mansion than in the poor man's hut. If they cannot have wealth or fame or worldly honor is about to be taken away from them, then they feel they cannot have happiness. Then, with one pull of the pistol's trigger, they fling away their blighted lives.

Now, my friends, the human being who commits suicide merely because the golden breasted oriole of wealth has plumed her wings and disappeared from sight or because the iconoclast of trouble has shattered the idol of fame is doing a fool's business. Happiness, true happiness, the happiness for which we all long, and for which some of us are seeking, is not dependent upon outside surroundings, but upon the condition of the heart. Some of the most unhappy human beings have been the so-called worldly successful men. Did all the unlimited financial wealth of Nathan Rothschild make him happy? For many years he was the universally recognized financial king of Europe. In a single day he made over $9,000,000. But, though Nathan Rothschild was the wealthiest financier in all Europe he was one of the most unhappy of men. When a friend visited him one day and said, "You ought to be a happy man with all this wealth." Nathan turned and, with a look of scorn, answered: "Happy! Happy! I happy! Bosh! Let us change the subject."

If wealth does not in itself produce happiness neither does worldly fame nor honor. Men strive for place and power as if with them they were sure of happiness. They plot and conspire and murder that they may mount the steps of a throne, and when they succeed they find that they have gained nothing but anxiety and worry. When the Servian King and Queen, Alexander and Draga, were assassinated Pope Leo XIII. was heard to exclaim in the Vatican, "Oh, when will the people learn that thrones stained with blood are not worth having?" And yet for financial wealth and worldly honor thousands of men will surrender their all. They will follow these will o' the wisps, though the shining lights may lead them over miasmic swamps and quaking bogs and into the fatal quicksand. Then, when they have been defeated in the struggles of life they sometimes drive the destroying dagger into their own arteries, as a tantalized serpent buries his poisonous fangs in his own flesh.

Moral application: Do not try to build the temple of happiness out of yellow bricks. Think not that the broad highway which leads to the throne room of joy is always lined with applauding and vociferating multitudes. The ground mole may tunnel his way into a gold mine, but he still remains a ground mole. The bat, flying about in the darkness, may be able to push his claws into trembling men's pockets, but he is still nothing but a hateful bat.

Envy and covetousness also lead to suicide. The unwillingness to love our neighbors as ourselves is one of the indirect causes of this dreadful sin. Two ways of looking at this old world—the one is through the green glasses of envy, the result unhappiness; the other way is through the sanctified crystals of a tender, a holy love, the result gospel joy. The one way is to bitterly bemoan because some people are supposed to be better off than we are. The other way is to try to find out how many people are worse off than we are and then with a Christian desire to try to help them as we would like to be helped if we were in their places. Through what kind of lenses have you been scrutinizing the human race? Through the green glasses of envy, which make all the world look dark, or through the clear, transparent crystals of gospel love, which always make all the world look bright? No happy man ever wanted to commit suicide. No man can be truly unhappy who is trying to help his fellow man. When he finds that he is making others happy, their joys become part of his joys.

The suicidal knife is blunted upon the whetstone of kindness and love and self sacrifice for another reason: When a Christian earnestly consecrates his life to helping his fellow men he is amazed how many troubles are piled at his neighbor's door and, instead of repining at his lot, thanks God for the mercies he enjoys. He becomes more contented to carry his own burdens because as his brother's sorrows grow larger and larger in his eyes his own necessarily by comparison shrink and dwindle and become less and less. Beautifully illustrated is this thought by an old Latin classic. The gods hearing the continual grumblings of the human race, decreed that all men should be able to choose their own burdens, but they must choose some. They decreed that every man, woman and child should bring their load of trouble in a pack and throw it in one place. Then all the different troubles of the world were piled in a heap. The rich man came from his palace; the poor man came from his hut. The old man came tottering upon his staff; the young man came leaping as a roe upon the mountain side. The father came, followed by his swarm of children; the single man came alone. The bridegroom came, leading his bride; the widower came after his wife had been snatched from his side. All came with their troubles. All threw their packs in the one pile. "Now," said the gods to the assembled people, "let each individual select any one pack of trouble that he would." Of course the multitudes were overjoyed. Each man at first lifted and weighed the troubles of every other man. "Then at last," so goes the fable, "each individual at a given signal was satisfied to lift up again his own troubles and in contentment go his own way."

A coward's heart is a direct cause for the suicidal sin. "Oh, no," says some one; "that cannot be. A suicide may be this or that or the other thing, but he is not a coward. No man is a coward who dares to commit self murder. No man is a coward who will calmly look death in the face and defy the grinning skeleton of the tomb."

Ah, my friend, you are wrong. The direct cause of the suicidal sin is invariably the result of a coward's heart. It is the act of a man who runs away from trouble instead of courageously grappling with it. The bravest of deeds is to die if necessary to save others. But it would not be heroic for men to die merely because they are too cowardly to fight. Neither is it heroic or brave for any man to commit suicide merely because he is too craven hearted to meet the responsibilities of life as they arise. The noblest word in some respects in all the English language is "duty." That word will sometimes compel its followers to plunge into and endure the bayonet thrusts of a thorny hedge, as it will sometimes give the pleasanter command of following that stern word through an embowered pathway.

Now, my friends, as the suicidal sin is often caused by a coward's heart, how best can we become brave and true? How can we better fight this tendency to self murder than by nobly and conscientiously and dauntlessly meeting the most pressing duty which is nearest at hand? How can we cease to be cowards better than by fulfilling our honorable obligations which we know we owe to our God and our Christ? He has placed us here to do our duty, to live his life in the world, to serve him by serving our fellow men. Shall we cravenly desert our post? Shall we declare that the task assigned us is too hard for us? Rather let us look to him for the almighty strength that he promises to his faithful servants that we may endure as seeing him who is invisible. So let us stand undaunted beneath his standard until his summons reaches us and we quit with the triumphant shout: "I have fought a good fight. I have finished my course. I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness."

The bravest act in all the world for some men is to publicly confess Christ. While we are preaching today on the suicidal sin are you ready to be as brave as William Cowper once was? In a time of great mental depression he was on his way to the river Thames to take his own life. When he arrived near the fatal waters he saw a man fishing at the end of the dock from which he intended to throw himself into the stream. He turned back. Then he went home and tried to stab himself to death, but the knife snapped in two. Then he tried to hang himself, but the rope broke. Then William Cowper realized what he was doing and how cowardly he was. He confessed his error before the world and gave himself up, as never before, to sound forth the divine praise. Oh, my friends, will you not realize that one of the chief reasons of the cowardly tendency to suicide is the unwillingness to publicly confess and work and live for Christ? As all roads were once supposed to lead to Rome, every act and deed and thought of your life should lead you to the foot of the cross. Then, oh, then, if you are true to Christ, you will never be false to yourself! Then, oh, then, your life, instead of having a suicidal tendency, will be an eternal life of triumphal joy!

Perverted Proverbs.

You never know how little you can do until you try.

Two heads are better than one, especially if you are looking for a dime-museum engagement.

Never put a gift cigar in the mouth.

While it is never too late to mend, it is often cheaper to buy a new article.

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

Store Closed Every Wednesday During July and August at 12 O'Clock Noon.

Underpriced Housefurnishings

Here are some items from our Housefurnishing Department which will show conclusively its ability to at least equal the other departments in low price value giving.

Our reputation for complete assortments neccessitates the clearing of ends and odd lots in all lines which, after the season's selling have dropped below this high standard.

This and the neccesity for valuable space now occupied by these make such prices an advantage to you and to us.

Our desire is not only to sell but to sell quickly. The prices below should convince you we have made our best effort to make early visiting profitable.

—5 only Fancy Wool Doormats, regular 35c for .. 20c

—6 only Rugs 18x36 assorted colors, regular 50c for 25c

—5 only fringed Axminister Rugs 18"x36" regular 90c for 58c

—A lot of choice remnants in Brussel's Carpets made up into rugs with wool fringed ends, lengths from 1 to 2 yards, prices from $1.00 to $2 00 all clearing at HALF PRICE.

—3 only Turkish designs, Rugs 30x60 inches, regular $1 75 for $1 00

—2 only Turkish design Rugs, were $2.50 for .. $1.50

—2 only Union Rugs 2½x3 yds. regular $4 50 for $2.50

—Ends of borders and Bodies in Carpets ranging in price from 90c to $1 25 suitable for mats, seasonable patterns at HALF PRICE.

HALF PRICE COVERS.

An odd lot of small table covers which have not sold as freely as we desire.

We have cut the price in two to clear them before continual handling makes them soiled and indesirable.

Not the newest designs, still many of them would not be out of place in the best fitted rooms. And then the price—just HALF.

—Odd lot of Silk, Velvet and Wool table covers with and without fringe were 95c to $4 50, HALF PRICE

—A desirable lot of white Bed Spreads slightly soiled in the manufacture, size 72x90 inches all much below regular value price at 95c

50c Boy's Straw Hats 25c

Boys straws have not been selling up to our desire. Dont know why unless the boys are all away to camp. Values are our best ever.

Here is an offering which should attract the mothers to our furnishing department even though the boys be away.

—Boys' fine straw sailors in fine and heavy weaves, plain and fancy bands, regular 35, 40 & 50c, for 25c

75c SUMMER CORSETS 50c

Cash and quantity buying enables us to make this offering in one of our most desireable summer Corsets.

New stock made from reliable material by a firm that stands foremost among Corset makers for fit and serviceability, they offer value which every lady can appreciate.

—Fine White Percale Corsets with straight front and erect form, lace and ribbon trimmed, elsewhere, 75c, for 50c

SOFT SHIRTS

If you go without your vest these days you should have a soft front Shirt. Looks better—feels better.

Not hard or costly either to obtain the season's choicest patterns if you consult our stock.

Of course the more you pay the better material. Fit—workmanship and designs are as pleasing in the cheap as the more expensive qualities.

Ask to see our colored soft front Shirts at $1.00. Better at this price are not purchaseable

—Men's Fine colored Shirts—reliable makes 50c to $1 50

MEN'S COTTON HOSIERY

The increased trade resultant from our spring improvements is gratifying to us and our daily object is, the best at the lowest price for men.

If our goods are in anyway unsatisfactory you will favor us by promptly returning them.

Just now our Cotton Hosiery seems to be the satisfying article.

Every desirable plain and fancy quality is here all in fast Hermsdorf Black.

—Fine qualities in plain and fancy Hosiery 12½ to 35c

—Perhaps you use and need Hose supporters, we have the best at every price 15c, 20c, 25c, 35c

Moderate Priced Ordered Suits.

Our made to Order Clothing is everyday meeting satisfactorily the needs of a larger number of men who desire stylish perfect fitting guaranteed clothing at moderate prices.

Already many repeat orders have been taken from among our city's most careful dressers.

You could not improve FIT or STYLE at double the price. The rest we guarantee.

Come in and consult our prices on a made to order summer Suit.

Agents for Standard Patterns.

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

CLOTHING BOUGHT HERE PRESSED FREE OF CHARGE

Everything
Is Thoroughly Good

That's certain, at QUICK & ROBERTSON'S—we are more particular about giving than you are in getting it perhaps.

But there are other reasons why you should buy at this store where quality is the first consideration.

We not only make goodness certain by applying every known test for quality, but are equally as careful to price that goodness as common as the ordinary sorts are priced elsewhere.

HERE are a few suggestions of summer fixin's that should interest men and mothers of boys.

FOR BOYS.

Vacation Suits and other wear, things that after good hard wear show the difference between our good sorts at our common prices and cheap sorts, which cost a little less.

—Regulation Sailor Blouse Suits, Cheviot mixtures, stripes and serges. .... $1.25 to $4.50

—Norfolk Jackets, single and double-breasted suits for older boys, extensive showing of plain and fancy mixtures .... $2.00 to $5.00

—Washable Sailor Suits 50c to $1.50.

—Wash Waists and Blouses, 25c to $1.00.

FOR MEN.

—SUMMER SUITS—Such as are impossible to obtain except at the best custom tailors—perfect fitting, stylish garments, suited to men who want the out-of-the-ordinary sorts. Homespuns, Tropical Serges, Worsteds and Flannels.......................... $3.75 to $12.00

—OUTING TROUSERS $1.00 to $4.00.

—NEGLIGE SHIRTS—In stripes and patterned materials, such as custom shirt makers would show you as their newest—plain or plaited bosoms.......... 50c to $1.50

—STRAW HATS—Every one new, the largest assortment of the smartest shapes the best makers have produced.

Sailors, in low crown .... 50c to $2.00

Panama shape, the right ones .... 75c to $2.50

QUICK & ROBERTSON

Here is where you buy Johnston's Clothing for Men and Boys.

Warm Weather Specials.

Refrigerators

Oil Stoves

Lawn Hose

Lawn Mowers

Window Screens

Screen Doors

Ice Cream Freezers

These goods are goods of quality and are all marked at tempting warm weather prices.

The W. W. CHOWN Company, Limited

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

CITY AND DISTRICT.

Advertisements under this heading TWO CENTS A WORD; subsequent consecutive insertions ONE CENT A WORD. No locals charged as less than twenty-five words

Wanted. — Typograph operator or printer willing to learn machine. Apply at Intelligencer Office. 13dtf

A regular session of the City Council will be held this evening.

Victoria Park was yesterday visited by a large number of citizens, and it certainly proved an ideal spot.

The tail of the saw log drive reached the lower bridge to-day.

R. Hogle, of Sidney Crossing, a section hand on the G.T.R., died Saturday morning. It is surmised that he was hit by a train, as he was found near the track with his head badly cut.

Take notice that a meeting of all horsemen interested in the Circuit Races to take place here on August 12th and 13th, are requested to meet at Hotel Quinte on Tuesday evening the 14th inst. at 8 p.m. to fix the programme and complete arrangements for the meet. All horsemen will kindly attend and show their support in this coming event.

WILLIAM CARNEW,
j13-14 Secretary.

Best Wednesday holiday excursion, July 22nd, up the bay, through canal and into Lake Ontario with I.O.O.F. Band. Tickets 25c. Auspices of Christ Church. Str. Aletha leaves Corby's wharf at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Vans to convey ticket holders leave Taylor's and McGinnis' corners at 8.30 a.m. Moonlight excursion to Deseronto with band at 8 p.m. 10 1n.

Off for a Cruise.

Messrs. James Langley, B. Backus, G. Pitney and Master E. Simmons left on Saturday night by the yacht Zephyr for a cruise amongst the Thousand Islands.

DEATHS

McDONELL.—In Belleville, on Sunday, July 12, 1903, the wife of Mr. A. M. McDonell, aged 45 years and 9 days.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday, July 14, at 8 a.m., from her late residence, Church street, to Stirling.

SMITH.—In Belleville, on Saturday, July 11th, 1903, Mary Smith, beloved wife of William Smith, aged 37 years.

The funeral will take place from her late residence, King street, Tuesday afternoon, July 14th, at 2.30 o'clock to St. Michael's Church, thence to the R. C. cemetery for interment.

Coin Pay Envelopes at The Intelligencer Job Office. Cheapest and best in the city.

LATEST NEW YORK STOCK QUOTATIONS

As Furnished to The Intelligencer by H. R. Beattie, Stock Broker.

New York, July 13.

Stock	Op'g	H'st	L'st	Close.
Atchison	63½	65¼	63½	65⅜
do. pref ..	90¼	90⅜	90	90
St. Paul.. ..	145	145	142¼	144⅜
Mo. P.	99¾	100⅞	98⅞	100¼
Union. Pac .	77½	78⅜	77	78⅜
C. P. R.	119⅝	121¾	119⅝	121¾
South Pac. ..	45½	47⅛	44½	47⅛
R. I.	31⅛	31⅞	30⅜	31½
Ills. C.	130¼	130⅞	126½	129
Sou. Ry.....	21¼	23¼	21⅞	23¼
Texas...........	26	26¼	26	26¼
B & O......	82⅜	83¼	81¼	83¼
N. Y.C.	115½	116¼	113¾	116⅛
Penna	121¼	121⅜	119¼	121⅜
Soo	55	55	54½	54½
T. W....	96¼	97½	96	97½
Erie	31½	31⅞	30⅜	31¼
do. pref. ...	65	66⅜	64	66⅝
Reading	48½	47¾	47½	49⅛
C. O.	35⅞	36¼	35½	36¼
O. & W.	23¾	24¼	23¼	24⅛
Manhattan ..	133	133⅞	132⅛	133⅞
W. C.	19½	19⅝	19	19½
L. & N	108	108¼	106¼	108
A. F.	34¼	35⅞	34¼	35⅞
Nor.	63	64¼	62¼	64¼
Wab........	22	22	21½	22
do pref. ..	40½	40⅜	38⅞	40⅜
C. G. W. ..	17⅜	17⅜	17⅜	17½
T.C.I.	48⅜	48⅜	46¼	47¾
U.S. S.I......	28½	29⅛	28	28¼
do pref.....	79	79¼	78½	79⅛
Sugar	117½	118	116¾	118
B. R. T......	54	55	53⅜	54¾
Po.........	96½	97¼	90⅛	97¼
A. C. P. ..	50	50⅜	48¾	50¼
Met.........	118½	122½	115	120
Alc	21	....	....	....

Sept. wheat opened at 80; closed at 77
Sept. corn opened at 51¼; closed at 50⅛.

ST. ANDREW'S S.S. PICNIC.

The annual S.S. picnic of St. Andrew's Church will be held on Tuesday, July 14th, per steamer Niagara to 12 o'clock Point. Boat leaves at 9 a.m., 2.30 p.m. and 7.30 p.m. Tickets 25c. Children 15c. Infant's class free.—W. P. Hudson, chairman. j4-7-10-13

A POPULAR ANNUAL EXCURSION.

The Baptist and John St. Presbyterian S.S.'s have engaged the elegant Str. Niagara for their excursion to 12 o'Clock Point on Wednesday, July 15th, making 3 trips, 9 a.m., 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. The I.O.O.F. Band will give a concert on the grounds afternoon and evening. Tickets only 25c. Children under 12, 15 cts. j4-11-13

The chance of two finger-prints being alike is not one in sixty-four billions.

KEEP YOUR EYES OPEN and be sure that when you ask for Perry Davis' Painkiller you get just that and nothing else. Use it promptly to cure cramps, diarrhoea and all other bowel complaints in summer.

CHURCH CHIMES OF YESTERDAY.

Rev. Mr. Gilliland Exhorted Orange Societies to Stand by the Bible

And Remember That the Only Mediator Between God and Man Was Christ.

Notes of Other Services in Belleville's Different Places of Worship Yesterday.

Emmanuel R. E. Church.

There were orange lilies galore on Belleville's streets yesterday, for was it not the Glorious Twelfth? A warm day it was, too, though hardly so warm as a certain memorable Twelfth in 1690, a day dear to the hearts of all Orangemen, when their great hero, King William, carried the Orange lilies in triumph o'er the Boyne water. The old rancor and bitterness has died out now, the old animosities are gone, the sight of an Orange lily no more causes men of another faith to trail their coats or merrily wield the stout blackthorn, but still, as of yore, Orangemen love to gather and hear from some eloquent divine the reasons for their society's formation and the faith that is in them. Yesterday, then, the Orangemen of Belleville, reinforced by many of their country brethren, marched in procession to Emmanuel R. E. Church, where Rev. W. J. Gilliland, a member of their order, preached to them the annual Orange sermon. In the procession were Orangemen, Prentice Boys and True Blues, who lined up the centre aisles from end to end, the result being that probably the largest congregation in the church's history was present. After the usual devotional exercises of the Reformed Episcopal Church, the preacher announced as his text the 5th and 6th verses of the 2nd chapter of I. Timothy.

"For there is one God, and one mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus;

"Who gave Himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time."

It gave him great pleasure, the preacher said, to welcome the Orangemen to Emmanuel Church on the Twelfth of July. He trusted they would never forget that, though some called them narrow-minded, their order was broad enough, and wide enough, to take in all members of Christ's Church who fashioned their doctrines according to the teachings of the Book of Books the Bible. Much of the opposition to the Orange Order was due to ignorance—or something worse, and much of it came from those who had lost their religious backbone. The true Orangeman was not narrow-minded, he was broad enough to stand for a whole Bible, and that was broad enough to satisfy any true Christian. The text said there was one God and one mediator between God and man. Christendom was united on the first, but not on the second, and the people who were opposed to the second clause put their own teachings before the teachings of God's holy book. That there was one God all Christendom was agreed on, yet they did not have to go to the ends of the earth to find men who had more than one God—who worshipped false gods, such as covetousness, love of display, and other worldly things. The fact that there was one God should bring unity of fellowship and the wiping out of all differences. Surely if men believed in one God they should unite in worshipping Him according to the teachings of His Holy Word. In the second part of his text was where religious differences came in. There were the same differences when Paul wrote his epistles. The Roman church taught that the mediation of man was necessary for salvation. The authority for this was not in the Bible. To his mind, the preacher said, the greatest absurdity of the time was to teach that any mortal man could do that which the scripture plainly said could only be done by Jesus Christ! And to what was this meditorial agency due? Christ had purchased by sacrifice his right to mediate for the sins of the world, and no mortal man could claim any right or power to usurp his position. Christ died that he might wipe out all priesthood and all sacrifice, except that which was offered humbly and reverently in rememberance of Him. The world's ransom had been offered and accepted, and there were no priests now, save those who were created by the fancy of men. Before God all men were saved or lost by their faith in the sacrifice of Christ Jesus. Their duty as Christians and Orangemen was to live in fellowship with Christ and in love and charity with their fellow-men. Not by their talk, but by their walk would they be judged. Love and charity they must have, but not that savors of cowardice. One lord, one mediator. No need to go and look for saints or priests, Christ was enough. It made one wonder why there could be any ammosity to a society like the Orangemen, which stood for simplicity and an open Bible. He prayed that God would help them to be true to the cause, to remember that their colors meant Christianity as taught by the Word of God, and to so walk in their daily life that they might in due time receive the "well done" accorded to all true and faithful servants.

At the conclusion of the sermon "Onward, Christian Soldiers" was sung with an inspiring heartiness. It was a fitting close to a simple and beautiful service.

St. Thomas'.

The Rector, Rev. Mr. Beamish, conducted both services at St. Thomas' yesterday.

In the morning the reverend gentleman preached an eloquent sermon to a large congregation upon the observance of Sunday, taking as his text part of the 10th verse, 1st chapter of Revelations: "I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day."

Bridge St. Church.

"Christianity its own Proof" was the subject discussed by the Pastor, Rev. Dr. Crothers. The text was from St. John 1st chapter and 46th verse;

"And Nathaniel said unto him, can there be any good thing come out of Nazareth? Philip saith unto him, 'come and see.'"

During the service a duet, entitled "Peace to the Dwelling" was beautifully rendered by Miss Mabel Vermilyea and Mr. Jessop.

At the morning service the Pastor prayed for the recovery of his holiness the Pope. Large congregations were in attendance at the services.

Christ Church.

Good congregations were present at both services yesterday, which were conducted by the Rev. Prof. Howard. In the evening the reverend gentleman's text was from 1st Peter 5th chapter and 7th verse:

"Casting all your care upon Him; for he careth for you."

Tabernacle.

Rev. G. Brown, Pastor, occupied the pulpit at both services, which were well attended. In the evening his text was from Hebrews 11th chapter and 6th verse:

"But without faith it is impossible to please Him for he that cometh to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of them that deligently seek Him."

At the morning service Mr. Knight of Bowmanville, sang a solo entitled "Galilee."

St. Andrew's Church.

Owing to the illness of Rev. M. W. Maclean, the pulpit of St. Andrew's Church was occupied yesterday by the Rev. Mr. Glover, of Kingston, who preached two inspiring sermons. In the evening his text was from 1st Corinthians, 13th chapter and 8th verse.

At the evening service the male quartette sang "Nearer My God to Thee," and the choir rendered an anthem, in which solos were taken by Miss Norah Lazier and Mr. John McIntosh.

Bethel Hall.

At Bethel Hall yesterday evening the addresses on prophecy were continued, bringing out the scriptures which show that after the first resurrection and rapture of the living saints, God will deal with this world in judgment because of sin, according to Mathew 24th and 25th chapters and also that the judgment of the living nations will take place at the close of time of great tribulation coming, and that following that, Christ with His saints will reign for 1,000 years, during which time Satan will be chained. The subject was announced to be continued next Sunday.

HIS LAST HOPE REALIZED.

[From the Sentinel, Gebo, Mont.]

In the first opening of Oklahoma to settlers in 1889, the editor of this paper was among the many seekers after fortune who made the big race one fine day in April. During his traveling about and afterwards his camping upon his claim, he encountered much bad water, which, together with the severe heat, gave him a very severe diarrhoea which it seemed almost impossible to check, and along in June the case became so bad he expected to die. One day one of his neighbors brought him one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a last hope. A big dose was given him while he was rolling about on the ground in great agony, and in a few minutes the dose was repeated. The good effect of the medicine was soon noticed and within an hour the patient was taking his first sound sleep for a fortnight. That one little bottle worked a complete cure and he cannot help but feel grateful. The season for bowel disorders being at hand suggests this item. For sale by all druggists.

GREAT SALE.

Stirring call to a great cheap sale of men's, boys' and children's high class clothing and furnishings at prices that will force you to buy. Out goes every stitch of the remaining lines of our spring and summer stock, no matter what the loss is. We are determined to clear out everything left, and we will easily do so as our prices to a point where buying is irresistible. Look at our ad.—The Globe Clothing House. 6t

1,000 ISLANDS AND ROCHESTER.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian" leave Belleville for Thousand Islands at 3.25 a.m., daily except Mondays. Fare $1.00. Returning Str. leaves at 11.38 p.m. for Rochester, N.Y. m26d&w3m

Health Pure and rich blood carries new life to every part of the body. You are invigorated, strengthened, refreshed. That's what Ayer's Sarsaparilla will do for you. Take Ayer's Pills for constipation or biliousness.

J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

THE GERMAN COBBLER.

The Little Tailor's Advice Brought Disaster.

One time dot little tailor comes by my shop to get a patch on his shoe, und ash he looks aroundt he says:

"Let me gif you some little advices. Peoples in America vhas deeferent from peoples in Shermany. Oafer here nopody likes to sit up like a crowbar vhile he waits to haf his shoes fixed. You must haf some amusements in your shop."

"Do you belief I can half some brass bands aroundt vhen cement patches vhas only feefteen cent apiece?" I says.

"Maype not, but you can get a parot und let him speak mit your customers. A parrot vhas always a draw. He vhill beat a free lunch or a ticker. If you like to build oop your peesness you must look a little oudt."

Vhell, dot tailor vhas in America ten years und builds oop a big peesness, und so I belief he vhas good advice. I goes by a bird store und finds a parrot who vhas talking like four old womans. Der price vhas feefteen dollar, but I must haf him to build oop my shoe shop. I take him home mit a cage und hang him oop, und he says "Hello!" und "Polly" und "Cracker" und vhas all right. Vhen I opens my shop for peesness next day a womans comes in mit a pair of shoes und says:

"Cobbler, you may fix up does shoes. I vhas speaking to some folks about you, und I belief you vhas a good man. I see you have some parrot here. Can I talk mit him?"

"Oh, yes. I buy him dot he may amuse my customers. Polly shpeak up to der lady und say 'Good morning.'"

Dot bird he shpeaks oop und I almost drop dead. Mit his head on one side und a shmile on his face, he calls oudt dot he vhas some bully boys und don't go home all night. I try to stop him, but he yells at me:

"Come off dot perch! Get a jag on! Dry oop! Go soak your head!"

I vhas going to hit him mit der hammer, but dot womans she picks oop her shoes und goes by der door und looks at me und says:

'I beg your pardon. I half got in some saloons by mistake'"

Dot parrot he drives peesness avhay, und I talk to him und call him names for one hour. He don't say nottings back, und I belief he vhas sorry. I had shust got through mit him vhen a man comes in mit a heel to be fixed. It vhas thirty cents to fix dot heel, und he must wait. He takes off his shoe und says:

Cobbler, maype you shall also make me a pair of shoes for four dollar. You look to me like some temperance man's."

"Yes, I vhas temperance."

"Und you don't swear not talk politics?"

"No."

"Und maype you goes by der shurch on Soondays?"

"Always."

"Vhell, I shall gif you all my custom und help you along. I vhas looking at dot parrot. Can he speak some words?"

Und vhat you belief dot parrot says to him? Before I can look at him he stretches one leg out behind und cocks oop his head und calls oudt:

"Oh, you be ——!"

"Vhat! vhat! vhas dot!" says der man ash he shumps oop und looks around.

"Haf another mit me!" says dot parrot. "Two beers! Go t'll! Shoot dot hat!"

I like to stop dot bird, but it vhas no use. Der man looks at me at little vhile und den puts on his shoe und says:

"Vhen you goes by state prison und your family vhas in der poor house, maype you vhill realize your wickedness und cry oudt to be saved. I tell all my friends to keep avhay from here!"

I vhas so mad I like to kill dot bird, but my wife comes down und says he vahs fifteen dollar und in a strange place, und probably he vhill do better next time. I keep his cage covered up mit a blanket for two hours und nobody don't see him, but by und by he vhas forgiven. He don't say nottings vhen der butcher und der grocer comes in for repairs, und I belief he vhas asleep when an alderman stops for a pair of shoe strings. Dot aldermans can bring me some trade if he vhil, und I like to use him well.

"Hello!" he says, "but dot vhas a fine bird. How vhas you, Polly?"

"You tief!" screams dot parrot.

"Vhat! You call me a tief?"

"Boodle! Boodle! Boodle!"

It vhas awful—awful, but vhen I goes to oxcuse dot bird der alderman looks red in der face und spits on his hands und says:

"I'll knock dot parrot by der middle of next week! Nobody can call me a tief und get avhay! Tief und boodle, eh? Vhell, you come oudt!"

Und he reaches into der cage und brings Polly oudt und wrings her neck. I can't move nor shpeak. Vhen der bird vhas dead der aldermans gifs me one awful kick und says:

"If you vhas a shoker maype you vhill laugh over dot!"

Vhen he has gone I goes by dot little tailor und tells him all about it. I lose feefteen dollar und three customers by his advice, und I vhas seek.

"Vhell, I see how it vhas," he finally says. "It vhas all owing to der deeference in peesness. A parrot vhas all right in a tailor shop und all wrong in a cobbler's place. I guess vhat you vant vhas a hand organ und amonkey!"

Talented or Otherwise.

"Billy Bobbs can't be much of a business man."

"Why not?"

"His wife says when anybody gives him a message for her down town he remembers to give it to her when he gets home."—Detroit Free press.

WEDDED IN NEW YORK.

FORMER BELLEVILLE GIRL BECOMES BRIDE OF A WEALTHY AUSTRIAN.

The New York Evening Journal of a recent date contains the following article referring to a young lady who will be remembered by a number of residents of this city:

A delightful international romance has culminated in the marriage of Miss Rosetta Hudgins, daughter of Mrs. Wm. Hudgins, of No. 167 West Ninety-third street, and Gustave Gordon Schick, a wealthy Austrian of Prague, who are on their honeymoon to-day in the Berkshire Hills.

After a brief stay in the Berkshires Mr. and Mrs. Schock will make a tour abroad, returning in the fall to take up their residence in New York, where Mr. Schick is well known, and where he expects to engage in business.

The wedding of the happy couple took place on Wednesday in St. Michael's Church. It was a quiet ceremony, only the members of the bride's family and a few intimate friends being present. The Rev. Appleton Grannis officiated.

The bride wore a gown of white lace, with a white lace hat and carried a bouquet of lillies of the valley. Her sister, Miss Margaret Hudgins, acted as bridesmaid. She also wore white, and carried pink roses. F. J. Gribbin, of South Orange, N. J., was best man.

Mrs. Schick is one of the most prominent members of the Professional Woman's League and a general favorite in feminine clubdom. She is tall, a pronounced brunette, remarkably pretty and of a most pleasing personality.

The Actor's Summer.

THIS is the time of year, writes Alan Dale, the well-known New York dramatic critic, when I fretfully and enviously, read the reports of the actor's summer. These reports are always gorgeously and artistically arranged. They are calculated to make any poor breadwinner repine. At the close of his "season," after having led a gilded butterfly life, with the plaudits of enthusiastic millions ringing in his ears, tired out with all this rapturous approval, and with just strength enough to gather in the colossal mound of shekels that have been showered at him—the actor goes to his "summer home" to live for three dreamy, wistful, sweetly inactive months, until the hungry public calls him back again.

They are all most anxious for us to know how they summer. If there were a commandment saying, "Thou shalt not covet thy actor's summer," I should break it hopelessly. I always regret my fate when these beautiful, rosy reports come in. Why should the actors alone possess the magician's wand that transforms a three-room flat in Harlem to a "mansion overlooking the Hudson," or a six-dollar-a-week boarding-house in Asbury Park to a "summer home by the Atlantic?" Why should the fairy gift of metamorphosing a Bloomsbury furnished room into a palatial hotel be exclusively confined to the actor?

Some of the profession are much better actors during their summer than they are during their thirty weeks of labor. How often has my riotous soul oozed in a frenzy of covetous discontent as I have watched the stalwart leading man on Broadway, hale, bronzed and picturesquely attired in tennis clothes, who has just rushed in for a day to see his banker! The magic wand and a little brown grease paint have, perhaps, done it all. He has walked down from East One Hundred and Seventy-fifth street, where his wife and seven children are spending the summer and the winter. But I don't know it, at the time, and in the actor's column headed "In Summer Places" I have read that he was wooing inertia and recuperating after an ardent season.

They all act these press agent parts so efficiently. They summer only because it is absolutely necessary for their health. They are always on the verge of nervous prostration, owing to the strain of "one-night stands." If they have been in New York all season, it is owing to the strain of New York. Managers are after them to play all summer. No company on earth has ever been known to close for any other reason than weariness. The actors summer because they can't work any longer. It is because the actors summer that the public goes to the seaside and the mountains. If the actors did not get so awfully tired the season would go right on revolving, without beginning or end, like a circle. It is in desperation because the actors won't let us go to the theaters any more that we say, "The season is over. Let us go out of town until Romeo and Juliet have recuperated."

How different it is in other walks of life! We snatch a scanty two weeks from the interminable fifty-two—and we are never missed. Nobody cares a hang whether we come back or whether we do not. Our goose is never a swan. Lucky actor! Thrice fortunate summerer! He never discovers—as, alas! we do—that the beautiful retreat, with fruit and shade trees, is a hideous barn with the shade furnished by hanging out clothes; that the adorable farmhouse with fresh milk and unequalled eggs is a fraud, and that the only glimpse of the fresh milk and unequalled eggs is caught as they are sent to the city; that the exquisite summer hotel is ugly with the cackling, tiresome gossipers of adjacent towns. Lucky actor! Thrice fortunate summerer! I envy you.

GLASGOW WAREHOUSE.

— AT —

LAIDLAW & KETCHESON'S

Just received from Manchester, England, several pieces of White Mercerized Mattings in fine, coarse and fancy weaves, to retail at - - 25c the yd

ALSO Wool Yak Laces

From Germany, these are the popular trimmings for Shirt Waists and Dresses, in great demand, to retail at 10c to 20c the yd.

The latest New York Style in Collars for the Ladies wear. "The Pauline."

We ask your special attention to the three foregoing items.

Laidlaw & Ketcheson

DIRECT IMPORTERS

Daily Intelligencer.

THE INTELLIGENCER IS SOLD AT
J. W. London's and G. Wardhaugh's.

Local Reading Advertisements,

words 50 cents; 2 cents per word first insertion, per word subsequent consecutive insertions. Headlines count as 12 words; contracts for ing periods made at office

PERFECT TALCUM POWDER

If you wish a talcum powder that will heal and soothe and not irritate, that makes the skin soft and smooth instead of dry and harsh, that is practically invisible, that is antiseptic and delightfully perfumed, you will find just what you are looking for in our EUTHYMOL TALCUM POWDER—This exquisite preparation is dainty and perfectly harmless—good for babies or adults. It is as good a powder as can be bought anywhere at any price. It costs but 25c for a box with a sifting top.

McKEOWN'S DRUG STORE.

Some Form of Brick Ice Cream

Served in our rooms every afternoon and evening.

This afternoon we have Vanilla with Cherries. This evening Chocolate with crushed walnuts. 10c a dish.

CHAS. S. CLAPP

The Sun & Hastings Savings and Loan Co. of Ontario.

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL
$5,000,000.

3 1-2 per cent. allowed on Deposits, payable on Call.

4 per cent. on Deposits for one year or over.

Money to Loan upon favorable terms.

OFFICE, No. 46 Bridge St., Belleville.

J. P. C. PHILLIPS,
Manager Belleville Branch.

MONITOR

This is another fine Mantle Clock, not quite so expensive as Gadski in last week's advertisement, but fully as serviceable. It is an eight-day hour and half strike on cathedral gong, fancy columns with trimmings and drop handles, in every way a beautiful clock. Our price only $5 50

T. BLACKBURN.

Eyes examined free of charge. Jeweller & Optician.

Going to Make Room!

Our Import Goods are coming too fast, that we are getting crowded for room.

We will have to make a big sacrifice in our China and Crockery department, slaughter will be the word.

Cost price or any other price will not be taken into account; come and get China and Crockery—at ridiculous prices.

McINTOSH BROS.

CANADIAN ENGLISH.

Three Short Stories in the Funny Dialect of the Habitant.

Joe Place, who lives out on the Biddeford Pool road supplies a fair amount of innocent amusement to the people of that section.

The other day he drove into the city with a load of cordwood. On the top of the load he had some mysterious parcel in a short sack, and the contents of the parcel occasionally moved and writhed.

When some one came along and asked him about the bundle Joe lifted up the short sack and immediately there was a mighty squealing from within.

"Leetle pigs," quoth Joseph, smilingly.

"Now I tal yo' w'at I do," he said jocosely, "yo' tal me how many leetle peegs dere be in date bag, and ba gar, I geeve yo' de whole t'ree of heem."

"Well," said the other, "I guess there are three pigs there, Joseph.",

Joseph was disgusted.

"Oh, ba gar," shouted he, "somebody gon' tol' yo' 'bout dat."

They undertook to run down the capacities of Joseph's horse the other day and Joseph was mad. Somebody told him that the critter couldn't trot in 4:30. Joseph shook hisetaoin4ficim voice trembled with suppressed feeling. He pulled out his wallet and wanted to bet. And as he talked he grew madder.

At last he said:

Now yo' look here, yo' don' know w'at yo' talk about. Dat hoss he all r-rat. He can jussas fas' as yo' want heem trot. I bat yo' I put heem on de barn and geeve heem handful of oats and quart of hay. I tak' heem off de barn. Den he go batter dan ha'f pas' four or ba gar, I geeve yo' to heem."

A man with Canadian wool trousers and a peaked fur cap as the most prominent articles of his attire came into the Biddleford Post Office the other day and stepped up to the window. Said he with a bland smile:

"P'rap you don' have notin's here fort Joseph Mefrau, hey?"

"I donno," said the clerk. "What do you say your name is?"

"Joseph Mefrau."

"Me-frow, Mee-frow—how do you spell it?"

The Canadian at the window looked through the bars at the clerk, and then with a disgust that I cannot put in words, he cried:

"Ba darm, yo' donno how spell Joseph Mefrau, yo' bater sal out dis plac' and go fin' some nodder bus'ness."

Tragedies of Real Life.

"I want you to sue that intelligence office for me. Begin the suit to-day. Get damages if you have to fight the thing clear through the United States supreme court. I've been patient under circumstances that Job never encountered and now I'm out for revenge if we have to morgage the house."

"What in the world's the trouble, little one?" and the husband actually stammered at this unprecedented outbreak from the gentlest of wives.

"Trouble! I'm mad enough to shoot. I've stood it till I'm wild. Put brass knuckles on that girl to wash dishes in and she would do no more breaking than she's doing now. Four pieces a washing and three washing every 24 hours in a light day's work of destroying for her. Where's that dainty china tea set papa gave us? Where's the elegant cut glass from your mother? Where are nearly all our wedding presents in breakable tableware? Go and look in the alley. Oh, I could see that girl thrown to wild beasts. Yes, I could. I never felt so murderously wicked before. And she told me that she wasn't used to working for ladies that made so much fuss. I just had to turn my back on the carving knife."

"But what about the intelligence office?"

"Didn't I get her there? Didn't I pay for getting her? Didn't the big fat woman tell me that this girl was a regular thrashing machine to work?"

"Well, I guess she is."

"Oh, Jack. I depended on your sympathy."

Then there were tears, a smelling bottle manly caresses and a promise to "send" the girl.—Detroit Free Press.

His First Client Never Came Back.

The legal lights were discussing disappointments with which they had met, and this is the story that one of them told:

"The greatest disappointment that I ever met with happened at the beginning of my career. I was young at the time and inclined to hold my parents responsible for this handicap which was keeping me from the fame and glory that I thought was my due.

"My bright new shingle was somewhat weather-beaten and my office desk had two holes worn in it by my heels before my first client came.

"But come he did one day, charging into my office like a mad bull glaring at me and throwing down a roll of bills as large as my fist he shouted:

"'I want to see Mr. Blank!'

"I am Mr. Blank,' I said, edging up to the roll.

"'Good Lord, sonny,' he roared, 'I want to see your father, the lawyer!'

"'I am Mr. Blank, the lawyer,' I answered, with all the dignity I could muster.

"'Oh, Christmas!' he yelled, as he seized his roll and put it in his pocket.

"What have I been retained on?' I asked, making a bluff at the roll.

"He stared at me for a moment and then said:

"See here, sonny, I've got an important engagement to meet. I'll be back in an hour. Here's your retainer,' he added, throwing down a quarter.

"But he never came back. I was looking at my picture the other day, taken about that time, and I cannot say that I blame him."

The Passing of the Major.

"Yes, the major went down at the first shot, but I don't doubt but that he was ready to go."

"Think so?"

"I'm sure of it, for he wore the covers of the family Bible for a breastplate."—Atlanta Constitution.

Hapipness results from being content with what you haven't got

"RAW-MATERIAL" SERVANT.

Lot and His Wife Instruct a Recent Importation and Learn Things Themselves

A bustling real estate agent on Fifth avenue, New York, who advises his patrons to buy unimproved property and grow up with it has been making an experiment in domestic economy along this same line, and at present he is dubious about its result. Mr. Lot, as he may be called, lives in a suburban town where servants are at a premium, and he advised his wife to try "raw material."

"This business of paying $20 a month for a cook who wastes your coal, stands in with your butcher and supplies her relatives with sugar and coffee at your expense is nonsense," said Mr. Lot. "Just go down to the Barge Office and get the imported article. You may find a diamond in the rough. If you do, polish her, teach her your way, and advance her wages. Gratitude will bind her to you."

"That sounds well," said Mrs. Lot, "but your imported article isn't likely to understand English, and she wont know the meaning of gratitude."

"We will teach her English, my dear," said Mr. Lot, "and we can then make sure that she picks up no slang."

Mr. Lot went down and picked her out. She was about twenty-five years old. The interpreter told him that she was a Dane, and that she was anxious to do housework. She had formerly been employed behind a plough or some such farm utensil.

Mrs. Lot put in a week's hard work with Mary, showing her by signs how her work was to be done. Mary's moon-like face never varied in expression. She always looked blank.

"She has the unemotional placid disposition which is so essential for housework," said Lot proudly, when his wife suggested that Mary was stupid. "A nervous housewife makes double the work. Now if the roof fell in it would not jar Mary."

"No; and she wouldn't begin to clean up the muss until I had told her," said Mrs. Lot.

Lot gave Mary her first lesson in English on Sunday morning. As she appeared he said:

"Good morning, Mary."

Mary looked at him blankly. By repeating that phrase all the forenoon he taught Mary to say "Morn'n'." Then Lot worked all the afternoon teaching Mary to say "Good evening," and Mary said, "Even'n'."

"You see, my dear, that after Mary has picked up a few words she will advance rapidly. I am going to enjoy teaching her."

"Now, my dear," said Lot to his wife on the following Sunday, "I am going to increase Mary's vocabulary."

When Mary had finished her work Lot went into the kitchen, and, pointing to the stove, said:

"Stove, Mary, stove—stove—stove."

"Morn'n'," said Mary.

"Stove! This here, stove, Mary, stove. Say it, stove!"

Mary looked at Lot with as blank a face as if she had been the doorkeeper at lodge meeting where Lot was trying the wrong password.

"Stove, stove, stove," said Lot.

"Morn'n', morn'n', morn'n'," said Mary.

"No; stove, Mary; say stove."

Mary's face never changed.

"Morn'n'."

"Dammit!" said Lot.

"Dammit!" said Mary, promptly, and Lot was sorry.

"Stove, Mary; say stove."

"Dammit! morn'n'," replied Mary.

Mary came to Mrs. Lot two nights later and surprised her:

"Can go out, even'n'?"

"When did you learn that, Mary?"

"Can go out, dammit?" asked Mary.

"Yes, go," said Mrs. Lot, "and you needn't come back if you don't want to."

But Mary did come back. When callers asked for Mrs. Lot Mary would reply sometimes 'Morn'n'," sometimes "Even'n'," and again "Ding-ding, dammit." Mrs. Lot spent all of her leisure time writing notes of apology to her friends, and telling them that Mary was one of Mr. Lot's "rough diamonds." Mrs. McAllister, with whom Mrs. Lot was on very formal calling terms, came to call on Wednesday afternoon, and Mrs. Lot, hearing some one talking downstairs, indiscreetly called out:

"Mary, is that some one for me?"

"Morn'n," replied Mary. "Warm bab-bee hot stuff," and before Mrs. Lot could run downstairs Mrs. McAllister had slammed the door and left.

"Now where do you suppose she picked up such slang?" Mrs. Lot asked her husband.

"Did Mrs. McAllister have her sealskin coat on?" asked Lot.

"Yes."

"I faintly remember using some such slang myself a week ago when you came in with your sealskin coat on. Mary was in the hall. It is very objectionable slang and my only excuse is that it was taken from a negro song that was running in my head."

Two days later another Dane who looked very much like Mary came to call on her and asked for Mrs. Lot.

"Mary, she want more wage," she said.

"Who are you?" asked Mrs. Lot.

"Mary, my friend. She no talk English. She wrote me to come out an' ask more wage for her. She say she leave eef she don't get. She can't say. I say for her. Twelve dollar or she go."

"Rubber," said Mary, who had been listening to her fluent friend.

"Your raw material and rough diamond," said Mrs. Lot to her husband, "has not only insulted all my friends and broken everything breakable in the house, but she sent to New York for an interpreter to come up and ask for more wages. She is too expensive as she is."

Lot thought it all over and all of the local papers in his town are now printing this advertisement:

"Wanted, competent cook in small family; wages, $20 a month; no foreigners need apply. Lot, 3453 High place."

Attractiveness.

Agent—If we advertise that your patent food is for brain workers we shall attract almost everybody.

Proprietor—Yes?

Agent—Yes, everybody except the actual brain workers.—Detroit Journal

THE MARKETS.

Wheat Continues Strong at Chicago—British Markets Are Steady—Live Stock Markets—The Quotations.

Saturday Evening, July 11.

Liverpool wheat futures closed unchanged to ¼d higher to-day than yesterday, and corn futures unchanged to ¼d lower.

At Chicago to-day Sept. wheat closed ½c higher than yesterday, Sept. corn ⅛c lower, and Sept. oats ⅜c lower.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

London—Close—Wheat on passage, buyers indifferent operators. Maize on passage quiet but steady; spot American mixed, 22s 0d. Flour, spot Minn., 26s 0d.

Paris—Holiday.

Antwerp—Wheat, spot quiet; No. 2 R.W., 16½f.

LEADING WHEAT MARKETS.

Following are the closing quotations at important wheat centres to-day:

	Cash.	July.	Sept.	Dec.
New York	....	....	83⅞	82⅞
Chicago	....	....	79¼	78½
Toledo	80	80	80⅜	80¼
Duluth, No. 1 N.	87½	87½	79½	76⅞

TORONTO ST. LAWRENCE MARKET.

Grain—

Wheat, red, bush.	$0 76 to	$0 77
Wheat, white, bush.	0 77	....
Wheat, spring, bush.	0 70	0 72
Wheat, goose, bush.	0 70	....
Barley, bush.	0 42½	....
Beans, bush.	1 30	1 50
Beans, hand-picked	1 75	....
Peas, bush.	0 78½	....
Rye, bush.	0 45	....
Oats, bush.	0 36½	0 37½

LIVERPOOL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

Liverpool, July 11.—Wheat—Spot dull; No. 2 red western winter, 6s 2d; No. 1 Northern spring, 6s 5d; No. 1 Cal., 6s 7½d. Futures quiet; July 6s 6½d, Sept. 6s 3⅞d, Dec. 6s 3⅞d. Corn—Spot quiet; American mixed, 4s 8⅜d. Futures dull; July 4s 7½d, Sept. 4s 6d. Peas—Canadian dull, 5s 7d. Flour—St. Louis fancy winter quiet, 8s 3d. Hops—At London (Pacific Coast), firm, £5 15s to £6 0s. Beef—Easy; extra India mess, 68s 9d. Pork—Easy; prime mess, western, 80s. Hams—Quiet; short cut, 14 to 16 lbs., 53s. Bacon—Cumberland cut, 26 to 30 lbs., quiet, 47s; short rib, 16 to 24 lbs., quiet, 54s; long clear middles, light, 28 to 34 lbs., quiet, 51s 6d; long clear middles, heavy, 35 to 40 lbs., quiet, 50s 6d; short clear backs, 16 to 20 lbs., quiet, 49s; clear bellies, 14 to 16 lbs., quiet, 47s 6d; shoulders, square, 11 to 13 lbs., quiet, 27s 6d. Lard—Easy; prime western, in tierces, 39s; American refined, in pails, 37s. Butter—Good United States steady, 75s. Cheese—Easy; American finest white, 48s; do. colored, 50s. Tallow—Prime city firm, 24s 6d; Australian in London easy, 30s. Turpentine Spirits—Steady, 39s 3d. Rosin—Common quiet, 5s 3d. Petroleum—Refined steady, 6½d. Linseed Oil—Steady, 24s.

NEW YORK DAIRY MARKET.

New York, July 11.—Butter—Unsettled; receipts, 5325; creamery, seconds, 17½c to 18½c; do., thirds, 15½c to 17c; state dairy, tubs, thirds, 15½c to 16½c; do., fourths, 14c to 15c.

Cheese—Easy, unchanged; receipts, 861.

Eggs—Irregular; receipts, 6404; state and Pennsylvania, fancy, selected, white, 19c to 20c; inferior culls, 5c to 8c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—New York, Chicago and Buffalo Report Steady Prices.

London, July 11.—Live cattle steady at 11½c to 12c per lb. for American steers, dressed weight; Canadian steers, 10½c to 11½c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 9⅜c per lb.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, July 11.—Cattle—Receipts, 125 head; steady; prime and shipping steers, $4.80 to $5.15; butchers' steers, $3.85 to $4.75; cows and heifers, $2.50 to $4.35; bulls, $3 to $4.10; stockers and feeders, $3 to $4.15; veals 50c lower, $5 to $6.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 5000 head; steady; heavy, $5.00 to $5.65; mixed, $5.75 to $5.90; Yorkers, $6 to $6.10; light Yorkers, $6.10 to $6.15; pigs, $6.25 to $6.35; roughs, $4.90 to $5; stags, $4 to $4.50.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 400 head; dull; lambs, $4 to $6.25; yearlings, $4.25 to $4.50; ewes, $3.50 to $3.75; sheep, mixed, $2 to $4; wethers, $4.25 to $4.50.

NEW YORK LIVE STOCK.

New York, July 11.—Beeves—Receipts, 196; no sales reported. Dressed beef steady; city dressed native sides, 6½c to 8½c per lb. Reported exports for to-day, 1000 beeves, 2010 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 69 head; 284 head on sale. Almost nominal; West Virginia calves, $6; city dressed veals, 7c to 10c.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 7925; sheep slow, steady; lambs quiet; average of sales slightly lower than yesterday. The pens about cleared. Sheep sold at $2.50 to $3.75; lambs at $5.50 to $6.30; one car at $6.35; dressed mutton, general sales, 6c to 8c per lb.; dressed lambs, 8c to 11c.

Hogs—Receipts, 1928; no sales reported.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, July 11.—Cattle—Receipts, 1500; Texans, 1000; good to prime steers, $5 to $5.40; poor to good, $3.90 to $5; stockers and feeders, $2.50 to $4.50; cows, $1.50 to $4; heifers, $2.25 to $4.40; canners, $1.50 to $2.80; bulls, $2.25 to $4; calves, $2.50 to $4; Texas-fed steers, $3.25 to $4.75.

Hogs—Receipts to-day, 10,000; to-morrow, 10,000; left over, 4400; slow; steady; mixed and butchers', $5.35 to $5.65; good to choice, heavy, $5.50 to $5.60; rough, heavy, $5.15 to $5.40; light, $5.50 to $5.85; bulk of sales, $5.45 to $5.60.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 2000; sheep and lambs steady; good to choice wethers, $3.75 to $4; fair to choice, mixed, $3 to $3.50; native lambs, $3 to $6.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Cowansville, Que., July 11.—At the weekly meeting of the Eastern Townships Dairymen's Exchange here to-day, 49 factories offered 2732 boxes of cheese; 15 creameries offered 1229 boxes butter. A. W. Grant bought 963 boxes cheese for 9⅝c, 203 boxes at 9⅝c, and 105 boxes at 9⅝c. Fred Fowler bought 290 boxes at 9½c and 62 boxes at 9½c. Lovell & Christmas bought 325 at 9⅝c, and D. A. McPherson & Co. bought 232 boxes at 9⅝c. Hodgson Bros., 48 boxes at 9 5-16c, and Hugh Allan 92 boxes at 9 5-16c. James Alexander, 37 boxes at 9 7-16c; 166 boxes unsold.

A. W. Grant bought 465 boxes butter at 18⅜c and 27 at 18¼c. Miller & Riley bought 554 boxes butter at 18⅜c. Gunn & Langlois, 525 boxes at 18⅜c. Unsold, 58 boxes.

London.—Nineteen factories offered 3445 boxes. Sales, 970 at 9⅜c; 500 at 9 7-16c.

Belleville.—Thirty factories offered 3015 white and 50 colored cheese. Sales on board were: Hodgson Bros. 725, Watkins 680, Alexander 400, Cook 50, at 9 9-16c; Cook 100, at 9½c. Balance sold on curb at 9½c.

Cornwall.—There were 2466 cheese boarded at the Cornwall Cheese Board to-day—1456 white, 895 colored and 115 American. All sold but 90 boxes, white at 9 9-16c, balance white and American at 9⅝c. Canadian colored brought 9⅝c. The sales were as follows: Hodgson Bros. 944, James Alexander 974, and A. W. Grant 458.

Watertown, N.Y.—Cheese sales, 6000 at 9½c to 9⅝c for large, latter price ruling.

Newfoundland Is Prosperous.

St. John's, Nfld., July 13.—The colonial revenue for the fiscal year ended June 30 reached $2,250,000, the largest annual revenue ever realized in the colony, and $50,000 above the total for the preceding year. The prosperity of the colony is greater than ever, and the fishery outlook for the present season is decidedly favorable.

Living Girl in Coffin.

Berlin, July 13.—When a coffin supposed to contain the body of a fourteen-year-old girl, was delivered at the cemetery at Altona yesterday, the attendants heard cries emanating from the coffin. The lid was removed and the girl was found still alive. She died two hours later.

SPECIAL OFFER

MIDSUMMER CLUBBING RATES.

Two Papers to January 1st, 1904

Family Herald & Weekly Star, and the Best Home Paper—The Weekly Intelligencer, BOTH for

65 CENTS

We are making this special offer as we require 1000 new subscriptions to our Weekly.

This offer is good to new subscribers only.

ADDRESS—
The Weekly Intelligencer
BELLEVILLE, ONT.

No agents handle this offer.

The Rush Still On!

Goods Going Very Fast.

NATHAN JONES.

Our clearing Sale is rapidly reducing our stock, the prices we sell for being very low.

Colored Muslins

We now offer all our 10c to 15c Muslins for 7c yd. All our 20c to 30c Muslins for 12½c yd. This will clear them quickly.

Ladies' Whitewear

All our stock of Ladies' Whitewear at 33⅓ off, till all is sold.

Our Dress Goods and Parasols at 20% discount.

NATHAN JONES.

At Wallbridge & Clarke's. At Wallbridge & Clarke's

Supplies For Camp or Cruise

New York Biscuits

in "In-er Seal" pkgs.

Uneeda "Jinger" Wafers, Butter Gems, Cheese Biscuits, German Zwieback, Pretzelettes, etc., etc.

Christie's Fancy Biscuits

Fresh supplies every week — 40 varities.

Heintz's Pickles

Heintz's Celery Sauce.
Heintz's India Relish.
Heintz's Sweet Midgets.
Heintz's Sweet Pickles.

Spanish Olives

A fine assortment of Olives from 10cts per bottle up.

Campers Supplies

Essence of Coffee, Condensed Milk, Lime Juice, Raspberry Vinegar, Fancy Cheese, New Pack Lobster and Shrimps, French Sardines, Scallops, Devilled Crabs, Concentrated Soups, French Potage, Beef Extracts, etc., etc.

Pickles and Sauces

A complete assortment of English and American Pickles and Sauces, including Pickled Walnuts, Onions, Chow Chow, Lea & Perrin's Worcestershire Sauce, Yorkshire Relish, Mushroom Catsup, Harvey's Sauce, Sultana Sauce, Chutney's Capers, Durkee's Salad Dressing, etc., etc.

Delicious Teas

Wallbridge & Clarke's Delicious English Breakfast Teas in lead packets at 30, 40, 50 and 60cts per lb.

Canned Meats

New Packs. Finest Quality.

Whole Ox Tongues.
Lunch Tongues.
Lamb's Tongues.
Boned Chicken.
Boned Turkey.
Boned Duck.
Pate de foie.
Potted Ham.
Potted Tongue.
Sliced Dried Beef.
Ham Loaf.
Veal Loaf.
Chicken Tamales.
Lunch Beef.
Lunch Bacon.
Chicken, Ham and Tongue.
Pigs Feet.
Jellied Tenderloins.
Vienna Sausages.
Luncheon Sausages.
Baked Beans—plain or in Tomato or Chili Sauce, etc., etc., etc.

Ale and Stout, Wines, etc.

Carling's, Labatt and Davies' Dominion Ale, Bass' Ale, Dow's Sand Porter, Guinness' Stout, in prime condition.

Gurd's Ginger and Soda Water Appollinaris and Radnor Water.

Barton & Guestier's and Nath. Johnston's Bordeaux Clarets and Sauterne AT POPULAR PRICES.

Rhine Wine and Burgundy Cordials and Liqueurs.

Light Canadian Wines, red or white, at lowest prices.

WALLBRIDGE & CLARKE

EST'D. 1871.
BRIDGE ST. Tel. 139.

Branch Store
Front St.—Tel. 157.

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE

FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

The Daily Intelligencer.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, JULY 14, 1903 NO. 61

MR. BLAIR QUITS CABINET

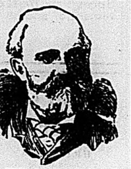
Sudden Action of Minister of Railways Creates a Sensation.

Resignation Insisted Upon Despite Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Pleadings—The Minister, So the Official Explanation Will Say, Was Not in Accord With the Government's New Railway Policy of G.T. Pacific Paralleling the I.C.R.

Ottawa, July 14.—Hon. A. G. Blair has resigned his portfolio and his resignation has been forwarded to the Governor-General. It will be accepted and an official statement will in all probability be made in the House to-day.

Thus briefly related are the facts which have supplied Ottawa with a tremendous sensation, and which transcend in their signification the forced retirement of the Hon. J. Israel Tarte from the Cabinet.

Hanging Fire Since Friday.



HON. A. G. BLAIR.

The trouble has been hanging fire since Friday last. Mr. Blair left for Saranak on Friday evening, with portentous intimations to the Premier and to a few intimate friends. He returned to Ottawa yesterday afternoon, and within an hour after he had reached the city his resignation was in the Premier's hands. The Premier urged him strongly to reconsider his decision, or at least to defer his resignation. Mr. Blair would listen to none of these overtures. He declared that his resignation was final, and intimated that it could not be placed in the Governor-General's hands too soon to suit him.

Refused to Be Interviewed.

At 6 o'clock the news of the resignation began to leak out, and last night, in the corridors, it was common property. Mr. Blair did not appear in the House yesterday afternoon, and he was absent again last night. Mr. Blair courteously refused to be interviewed. This was equivalent to an admission that a delicate situation had presented itself.

There will, of course, be no statement of any kind from Mr. Blair until Sir Wilfrid Laurier has spoken, and the Premier will make his announcement first to the House.

Officially it will be explained that Mr. Blair resigned because of his opposition to the proposed Government-owned road from Winnipeg to Moncton, which for a long distance will parallel the Intercolonial Railway. The official explanation will, of course, be a partial and a misleading explanation.

Keeping It Dark.

As the House was about to adjourn R. L. Borden said there were rumors that Hon. A. G. Blair had resigned, and asked for an official statement. Mr. Fielding, who was leading the House, replied that he had not seen Sir Wilfrid Laurier or Mr. Blair that evening, and had therefore no information to offer.

Mr. Borden suggested that Mr. Fielding make it a point to see the Premier and Mr. Blair before 3 o'clock this afternoon, so that he might be able to enlighten the House.

MORE CANADIAN MONEY.

Finance Minister Fielding Moves to Increase the Circulation From Twenty to Thirty Million Dollars.

Ottawa, July 14.—A resolution enabling the Government to increase the circulation of Dominion bills from twenty million to thirty million dollars was moved by the Minister of Finance yesterday. In explanation, Mr. Fielding said that twenty-five years ago, when the issue was twenty millions, the reserve was kept at 25 per cent. in gold or Imperial securities. Then the deposits on chartered banks amounted to seventy-six millions. They are now three hundred and seventy millions. In 1880 the total trade of Canada was one hundred and seventy-four millions, it is now four hundred and fifty millions. It was perfectly safe, therefore, to increase the issue, and the Government's course in this respect had been approved by the most prominent financial men in Canada. Six millions of the increased issue was to be set aside as a special reserve for savings banks, so that the actual increase in loaning power would be only a million and a half.

In reply to Mr. Maclean, Mr. Fielding stated that the Government were considering the question of issuing $5 Dominion notes.

A bill founded on the resolution was introduced and read a first time.

Answers to Question.

Mr. Fielding, in reply to a question, stated that since Confederation seventeen Canadian chartered banks have failed or suspended business.

Mr. Wilson was informed by the Minister of Finance that the amount paid for bounties on iron and steel during the past fiscal year so far was $1,245,382.

On pig iron the following sums were paid to:

Dominion Iron and Steel Company, $386,337.

Hamilton Steel and Iron Company, $90,915.

Nova Scotia Steel and Iron Company, $38,974.

Canada Iron Furnace Company, $187,473.

John MacDougall & Company, $4,598.

Deseronto Iron Company, 12,309.

A total of $620,706.

The amount paid in bounty on steel ingots was $499,625.

Hamilton Steel and Iron Company, $36,793.

Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company, $79,851.

A total of $616,269.

On puddled iron bars the Hamilton Steel Company was paid $8,406.

The Meteorological Service.

Replying to Mr. E. F. Clarke, Mr. Prefontaine stated that it is the intention of the Government to remove the head office of the meteorological service of Canada from Toronto to Ottawa. The magnetic observatory will be maintained at Agincourt, as at present, also a local meteorological observatory at Toronto University. By this arrangement the Minister stated the service will be under the immediate supervision of the department, and will give better satisfaction to the general public.

Mr. Fielding moved the House into committee on the resolution to continue for another ten years the grant of $60,000 yearly to the Ottawa Improvement Commission, and to enable the Commissioners to raise $250,000 for purchase of land. The resolution was adopted.

For Ontario's Benefit.

Mr. Fitzpatrick introduced a bill to amend the act respecting public and reformatory prisons. He explained that the bill was framed at the instance of the Attorney-General of Ontario. The Ontario Government desires to amalgamate the Ontario Reformatory and the Industrial School, and the bill is intended to facilitate the transfer. It is provided that on the recommendation of the Lieutenant-Governor, boys may be sent from the Reformatory to the Industrial School.

Provincial Rights.

The third reading of the Nicola, Kamloops and Similkameen Railway bill was moved. It contains a clause which declares the road to be for the general advantage of Canada.

Mr. Borden said this was a clear violation of provincial right, and wanted to know what limit was to be fixed.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the Government had no intention of invading provincial rights. The main lines were not declared to be for the general advantage of Canada, but this road connected with the main line of the C.P.R. and for that reason the declaration was made. There had been no objection made by those interested.

Mr. Maclean said the Government was responsible and could not disclaim responsibility because there had been no protest. It was the special duty of the Minister of Justice to advise Parliament.

After explanations by Mr. Galliher, the bill was read a third time.

Announcement on Thursday.

Ottawa, July 14.—It is now stated that the Government will make their announcement on the Grand Trunk Pacific on Thursday, on which day also the motion for the third reading of the bill to grant the company a charter will be made.

BASEBALL MONDAY.

The Eastern League.

Jersey City .... 0 0 0 3 0 0 0 0 0—3
Toronto .... 5 0 1 2 0 0 0 0 0—8

First base on balls—Jersey City 4, Toronto 3. Left on bases—Jersey City 8, Toronto 5. First base on balls—Off Barnett 2, off Hardy 2. Struck out—By Barnett 2, by Hardy 7. Two base hit—McCormick. Sacrifice hits—White 2. Stolen bases—Massey. Double play—Doolin (unassisted). Hit by pitcher—By Thielman 1. Wild pitches—Barnett 1. Passed ball—Toft 1. Umpire—Swartwood. Time—1.30. Attendance—900.

R.H.E.
Newark .... 2 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—2 5 3
Buffalo .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 0 4—6 11 1

Batteries—Moriarity and Shea; Magee and Laporte. Umpire—Latham. Attendance—1200.

At Worcester—Baltimore v. Worcester, postponed, wet grounds.

At Providence—Rochester v. Providence, rain.

National League Scores.

At Cincinnati— R.H.E.
Cincinnati ...... 0 0 0 1 0 4 0 0 *—5 8 2
New York ...... 0 0 1 0 0 0 4 0 1—6 10 1

Batteries—Hahn and Bergen; Taylor and Bowerman. Umpire—O'Day. Attendance—2000.

At Pittsburg— R.H.E.
Pitts[illegible] .... 0 1 2 0 0 0 0 0 0—3 6 3
Bo[illegible] .... 4 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 4—8 12 6

Batteries—Wilhelm and Smith; Malarkey and Moran. Umpire—Emslie. Attendance—2020.

At St. Louis— R.H.E.
St. Louis .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 2 0—4 8 4
Philadelphia .... 0 2 2 0 1 0 0 0 1—6 8 3

Batteries—Brown and O'Neil; Sparks and Zimmer. Umpire—Moran. Attendance—2300.

At Chicago— R.H.E
Chicago . 1 0 0 2 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0—4 8 3
Brooklyn 2 0 0 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2—6 14 2

Batteries—Menefee, Lundgren and Kling; Garvin and Ritter. Umpire—Johnstone. Attendance—1400.

American League Results.

At New York— R.H.E.
New York ...... 0 0 0 0 3 0 0 0 0—3 9 0
Detroit .... 0 0 0 0 3 1 0 0 0—4 9 2

Batteries—Chesbro and O'Connor; Donovan and McGuire. Umpire—Sheridan. Attendance—842.

At Washington— R.H.E.
Washington ..... 2 0 0 1 0 1 0 0 *—4 8 2
St. Louis .... 0 0 0 2 0 0 0 0 0—2 3 4

Batteries—Lee and Kittredge; Sudhoff and Kahoe. Umpire—O'Loughlin. Attendance—5805.

Vengeance on the Regicides.

Bucharest, Roumania, July 14.—It is said that the Servian authorities have unearthed a conspiracy to avenge the late King Alexander. A lieutenant of a frontier garrison has been arrested charged with making threats against Col. Maschin. A search of the lieutenant's quarters disclosed evidence that twelve officers had formed a league to take vengeance upon the regicides.

State of Siege Proclaimed.

Port Au Prince, Hayti, July 14.—The conflict between President Nord and the Chambers continues. A state of siege has been proclaimed, and the national guard has been summoned to arms.

Dinner to King Edward.

London, July 14.—Count Wolff-Metternich, the German Ambassador, gave a dinner to King Edward at the German Embassy last night.

Japan's Premier Resumes Office.

Yokohama, July 14.—The political crisis resulting from the resignation of Katsura has been settled, and the Premier has resumed office.

Dropped Dead.

St. Thomas, July 14.—George Parker, manager of the Merchants' Bank at Alvinston, dropped dead at Corunna early yesterday morning, where he had been spending a few days. Mr. Parker was about 50 years of age, and had been manager of the Alvinston branch for three years.

Chilean Plague Stops Mails.

Washington, July 14.—U. S. Minister Wilson at Santiago, Chile, in a report by cable to the State Department, says the plague has spread to nearly all the Chile ports; that postal service is disorganized, and that no American mail has reached Santiago for nine weeks.

EDMUND MATTHEWS' DEATH.

Large Number Attend Funeral of Murdered Man at Harrow.

Windsor, July 14.—Dr. McKenzie of Harrow performed an autopsy on the remains of Edmund Matthews, the colored man, who died from wounds inflicted by O. Richardson. It was found that the bullet which caused Matthews' death entered between the ninth and tenth ribs on the left side of the body, penetrated the lining of of the stomach, passed through the kidneys and lodged in the spine. The wounds were such that recovery would be impossible, the kidneys being very badly injured.

The remains of the deceased were interred yesterday. There were many curious spectators present, and a large number of friends and relatives followed the remains to the grave.

This morning, at 10 o'clock, Coroner Hassard of Harrow will hold an inquest into the death.

ENDEAVORERS IN A PANIC.

When Tent Blew Down 8,000 People Were Under It.

Denver, Colo., July 14.—The big tent where the Christian Endeavor Convention was held for the past four days, was blown down yesterday while over 8,000 people were inside. A dozen persons were injured, but none seriously.

The convention was in full progress at the time of the accident. The sides of the tent had been opened to admit air, and this enabled a sudden wind to lift the big canvas as if it were a balloon. Immediately the 8,000 occupants of the tent were in a panic. Hundreds of men sprang to their feet, however, and raised the tent.

FREE FOOD LEAGUE.

Some Unionists Will Start a Campaign Against Protection.

London, July 14.—The Unionist free traders held another meeting last night under the chairmanship of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, former Chancellor of the Exchequer in a committee room of the House of Commons. A Unionist free food league was formally organized, and it was announced that a large campaign fund was accumulating. The league will immediately start an educational crusade. An appeal will be made to Premier Balfour to set an early day for a full fiscal debate.

FATAL POWDER EXPLOSION.

Three Men Killed and Two Hurt at Moosick, Pa.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 14.—An explosion occurred at 1.30 p.m. yesterday at the Laflin Powder Mills, near Moosick, 12 miles from here. Three men were killed. The Corning Mill, Glaze Mill and the Press Buildings were all demolished. The killed were: John Day, his son Alfred, and Alexander Moore, all three of Laflin. Thomas Hays of Yatesville and Josiah Pierce of Moosic were fatally burned. The loss will reach thousands of dollars. The origin of the accident is not known.

Fender Went Over Girl.

Toronto, July 14.—Ten-year-old Bertha Skolink realizing her danger from being run down by a street car backed up and was struck by the bicycle of N. W. Hoyles, K.C., before he could stop or swerve, and she was hurled in front of the approaching car. The fender proved useless, and allowed her to be crushed and mangled almost beyond recognition by the front trucks. She is in the hospital struggling between life and death.

Drowned in the Trent.

Frankford, July 14.—A drowning accident occurred in the River Trent at Frankford at 11.30 yesterday. Maggie A., the 12-year-old daughter of Patrick O'Sullivan, while bathing along with two other girls of the same age, stumbled over a rock and fell into deep water. The others could give no assistance. The body was found half an hour later, but life was gone.

Train Off the Track.

Toronto, July 14.—A run-off occurred on the main line of the C. P. R. at 6.30 yesterday morning just east of Myrtle, near a town called Radnor. Several cars of a freight train left the track, doing a great deal of damage to the rails and roadbed, but no one was hurt. The C.P.R. regular from Montreal was delayed five hours as a result.

More Gross Irregularities.

Washington, July 14.—The United States Treasury Department confirmed the report that gross irregularities had been charged in connection with the assay of imported lead ores at El Paso, Texas. The investigation is now in progress.

Manitoba Candidates Nominated.

Winnipeg, Man., July 14.—The candidates were nominated yesterday for the Manitoba Legislature elections, to take place on Monday next, July 20. There is a contest in every riding and very few independents.

Burglars at Woodstock.

Woodstock, July 14.—The home of John Robinson, cheese maker, was burglarized Sunday night while the family was at church. Several notes, $6 in cash and a watch were taken.

CONSERVATIVES APPALLED

Redistribution a Literal Crucifying of Their Party.

Stand to Be Deprived of From 28 to 30 Seats in the Province of Ontario—In Seats Wiped Out and New Seats Created the Net Loss to the Conservatives Is 14—The Carving of Ridings Account For the Other Half of Probable Loss.

Ottawa, July 14.—The redistribution measure as it affects Ontario is about settled, and Conservatives, after a struggle with the details of each riding, are beginning now to sum up the total results. This summing up is something appalling. They stand to lose in the neighborhood of twenty-five seats in this province, or perhaps to put it more accurately, they say it is designed to deprive them of that number of seats.

First of all, the province is to lose six seats by reason of the census returns of 1901. They say that Ontario was designedly undercounted and Quebec over-counted. Next, they say that they get much of the worst of it in the wiping out of constituencies.

Conservative Seats Wiped Out.

BOTHWELL,
CARDWELL,
ONE BRUCE,
ONE MIDDLESEX,
ONE VICTORIA,
ONE HASTINGS,
ONE LEEDS AND GRENVILLE,
ONE LENNOX AND ADDINGTON,
ONE NORFOLK,
ONE WELLINGTON,
ONE WENTWORTH—11 in all.

Liberal Seats Wiped Out.

ONE DURHAM,
ONE ONTARIO—Two in all.

The net loss here is 9.

In the next place, they say they get much the worst of it in the new seats created.

New Liberal Seats Created.

ONE ALGOMA,
ONE BRANT,
ONE KENT,
THUNDER BAY AND RAINY RIVER,
TORONTO (perhaps),
PARRY SOUND.—Six in all.

New Conservative Seats Created.

DUFFERIN.—One.

The net loss here is five.

Of these too, namely, of the seats wiped out, and the new seats created the Conservatives are likely to have a net loss of 14.

Far-reaching Gerrymander.

Then come the losses sustained by the carving and readjustment of the ridings. How far-reaching this is, is only now being realized. But the best proof of its radical nature is that of all the seats in Ontario only five out of the 92 or 86, whichever way you like to take it, are untouched. All the rest, 81 at least, are altered. There are 5 unaltered seats—Cornwall and Stormont, Dundas, Halton, Kingston and Prince Edward.

In Bruce, by reason of the readjustment, the Conservatives stand to lose 2 seats, in Hamilton 1, in Hastings 1, in Kent 1, perhaps 2, in Toronto 1, in Victoria 1, in Wellington 1, in Middlesex 1.

These ten added to the previous net loss of 14 seats, makes a net loss of 24 seats.

Then they say they are deprived of other seats in this way. Carleton should have 2 seats, but only gets one, a loss to the Conservatives of at least one. Victoria should have two, but only gets one, another loss of one. Northumberland should have one, but gets two, a loss of one to the Conservatives. Peterboro is exactly the same, and Middlesex gets three, and should only have two, another loss of one to Conservatives.

Conservative Net Loss 28 or 30 Seats.

This last argument is hard to follow, unless the details are examined fully, but it seems to be borne out by such examination, so that the Conservatives put their net loss at from 28 to 30.

There are other effects of the new redistribution. It means, for instance, the likely retirement from the House of Commons of Col. Tisdale in South Norfolk, either Col. Hughes or Dr. Vrooman, or both of them, in Victoria; of Mr. Clancy of Bothwell, of Mr. Johnston of Cardwell, of Gus Porter or William Northrup in Hastings, or Uriah Wilson of Mr. Avery in Lennox and Addington, of Mr. Smith in Wentworth, of Mr. Cargill or Mr. Halliday, or both, in Bruce, one of the members from Hamilton and one of the members for Wellington, all Conservatives, and of Mr. Beith in Durham and Mr. Gould of West Ontario—both Liberal. The only chance these men will have is in other counties.

No one can imagine what dismay these figures are carrying to the Conservatives, as they to-day, for the first time, began to realize them and to sum them up. They declare that they are villainous and a literal crucifying of their party.

Plan Is Complete.

A meeting of the Redistribution Committee, held last night, completed the plan of redistribution for Ontario.

Thought He Was Fooling.

Stratford, July 14.—James M. Stewart, 21 years of age, was drowned Sunday morning in a pond in the Jarvis brick yard on the Shakespeare road east of the city.

There were four or five others with him in the water at the time, who saw him disappear, but as he made no outcry thought it was in fun.

VERY PLEASANT.

Because it makes the digestion of good, nourishing food easy, Angier's Petroleum Emulsion is prescribed by physicians for wasting diseases. It cleanses the blood and system of impurities and creates firm flesh. Pleasant to take, and agreeable to weak stomachs.

Broke His Head.

Ottawa, July 14.—S. M. Ford of Montreal fell from the Canadian Pacific train which arrived here at noon yesterday, near the Brook, while the train was running about 60 miles an hour. Ford is now in the hospital here with a fractured skull, but is expected to recover.

PONTIFF'S DEATH NOW NEAR

Leo's Mind Wanders in Another Serious Relapse.

The Pope Lies in a More Critical Condition Than He Was Last Week—Semi-Coma and Greater Depression Regarded as Symptoms of the Gravest Nature—"While There's Life There's Hope," Says Lapponi.

Rome, July 14.—(2.16 a. m.)—"While there is life there is hope" was all the consolation that Dr. Lapponi could give this morning in admitting that Pope Leo's condition was very grave.

The Pontiff has suffered another relapse, and he lies in a more critical condition than at any time since the middle of last week. The semi-comatose condition into which he fell at midnight, and the confused state of his heretofore lucid mind on his awakening at an early hour this morning, accompanied by still greater depression than during yesterday are regarded as symptoms of the gravest nature, and as pointing to an imminent dissolution.

Early in Evening.

Even in the early evening medical opinion was less pessimistic, and Dr. Mazzoni thought the end was not within sight. He expressed the belief that unless the disease took an unexpected turn there was no reason to apprehend death for two or three days. This statement, however, did not relieve the anxiety of those who knew that powerful stimulants are being constantly administered. Some attribute the Pontiff's weakness last night to the excessive mental and physical efforts undertaken Sunday, in receiving visitors, hearing mass, etc.

Patient's Weakness.

Never before has the patient's weakness progressed as it did yesterday. For the first time since his illness the Pontiff asked to have the shutters almost closed, as the light hurt his eyes, and at the same time, contrary to his custom, he begged to be left as quiet as possible. Another noteworthy symptom of his weakening condition was the docility with which he took medicine and nourishment. Previously, indeed during his whole life, Pope Leo has been against the prescriptions of doctors or anything which had the aspect of being forced upon him. His feeling of fatigue and indifference was interpreted as a sign that his vitality was fast diminishing. Late last evening, nine cardinals, including Satolli and Martinelli, were admitted to the sick room, but the Pope could not even speak to them, merely giving them his hand to kiss.

The Latest Bulletins.

4.30 a. m.—Dr. Lapponi has succeeded in reanimating the Pope with stimulants. He also gave him a little nourishment. The patient's breathing is again difficult. He says he feels very tired.

The Glorious Twelfth.

Toronto.—Orangemen of many places in Ontario celebrated the glorious twelfth on Monday. The weather was ideal for outdoor festivities, and thousands of wearers of the Orange walked. Among the cities and towns that celebrated were Kingston, Harriston, Chesley, Brantford, Brighton, Port Colborne and others.

Belfast, Ireland, July 14.—The procession of Orangemen, on returning from yesterday's demonstration here, were attacked by Nationalists and a serious riot ensued. A number of policemen and civilians were injured.

After French Fishermen.

St. Johns, N. F., July 14.—The cruisers Lavoisier and Charybdis, the flagships of the French and British squadrons respectively in these waters, sailed yesterday for the Treaty Shore of Newfoundland to investigate an alleged attack by French fishermen on a colonial customs office, which is causing serious friction. Admiral Douglas, with the British cruisers Ariadne, Retribution and Tribune, will arrive here Aug. 7, for a three days' visit, meeting the British and French squadrons in these waters.

War in Venezuela.

Soledad, Venezuela, Friday, July 10.—Soledad, which is a strategic position opposite Ciudad, Bolivar, on the Orinoco River, has been taken by Government troops. Trenches along the river front before Ciudad, Bolivar, were shelled to-day by the revolutionists.

SINCLAIR'S AD SINCLAIR'S AD.

Mid-Summer Sale

See Our Prices for Ladies' and Children's Stockings

See Our Prices for Ladies' and Children's Vests.

Kabo Corsets have won a world-wide reputation for excellence. They

Fit Well
Feel Well
Wear Well
Look Well

We have a great variety of styles comprising the latest designs and exclusive novelties and can fit you perfectly

Call and see our new spring style Kabos.

D. V. SINCLAIR & CO.

KABO CORSETS
NO BRASS EYELETS

Cholera Infantum

There is no danger whatever from this disease when taken in time and properly treated. All that is necessary is to give

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

after each operation of the bowels more than natural and then castor oil to cleanse the system. It is safe and sure. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take.

30 Retail Stores DAVIES 30 Retail Stores

DAVIES make a specialty of supplying campers and Picnics with all Food Products, Cooked and Ready-to-serve Meats, also Pickles, Catsups and Sauces, of which they have a large variety, guaranteed pure and unadulterated.

Davies 40c Tea which we are selling for 25c per lb. is considered and guaranteed the best value in the city.

Our store closes at 12 o'clock Wednesday during July and August. Kindly let us have your orders in good time, so that we can give you prompt service.

Daily Deliveries. Phone. 286.

The WM. DAVIES CO., Limited.

The 12th at Allen Settlement.

"All the country side" was at the Allen Settlement on Saturday, the 11th, and with these were ministers, bankers, lawyers, merchants and lots of ordinary people from the thriving Village of Madoc. They had all gathered to celebrate the two hundred and thirteenth anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne, and incidentally to help in the erection of a new Methodist church in that vicinity. Six lodges were present, and these, led by the Madoc Brass Band, and the fifes and drums of each lodge, made a fine procession, which was admired by about two thousand people.

The dinner and tea had been provided for by the congregation of the Methodist Church, and the proceeds of this, amounting to over $600, will form no small part of what is needed to erect the church. A platform meeting was also held, which was opened by singing the doxology and prayer, and over which Mr. Jas. Bryden, the District Master, presided. Addresses were given by the chairman, Mr. Wm. Johnson, Past Provincial Grand Master, the Revs. A. Sanderson, Deputy Grand Chaplain: W. J. Allan, Esq., Ex-M.P.P.; J. W. Pearce, Esq., M.P.P.

An eagle can live 20 days without food, and a condor 40 days.

Daily Intelligencer.

HOW THE LICENSE LAW IS ADMINISTERED—A POLITICAL MACHINE.

It is no new thing to read of the maladministration of the Liquor License Law in favor of the Liberal party in Ontario; but it is new and refreshing to read denunciations of the unblushing iniquities committed by License Commissioners, coming from the pen of a life-long Liberal. It gives hope of better days in the near future.

In former numbers of these columns extracts have been given from a lecture delivered by Mr. Raney, an Ontario official, in which he scathingly pointed out the degeneracy of the party in power, in the Gamey-Stratton bribery case. He also dealt with the manner in which the Liquor Law is administered for party purposes. He pointed out that in the Village of Sutton, North York, represented by an Ontario Cabinet Minister, a professed prohibitionist, there had been three licensed taverns, but owing to a decrease of population, one had to be cut off. How this was accomplished we give Mr. Raney's story. He says:

"Two of the hotel-keepers were Conservatives and one was a Liberal. For obvious reasons, it was thought good tactics to defer action until after the then approaching Provincial elections. All three were accordingly granted an extension that would carry them over polling day. During this time it is said that one of the Conservative hotel-keepers got new light and became very active in support of the Liberal candidate, who, as is well known was, and is, a Minister of the Crown. On the expiry of the three months the Commissioners had to act. The solution would have been obvious but for the fact that the Conservative hotel-keeper, a man named Sheppard, had, by common consent, the best hotel in every way in the village. It was, moreover, the hotel most patronized by the travelling public. But political exigencies forbade the cutting off of the Liberal or of the Conservative who had rendered service, and Sheppard was sacrificed. Then immediately there was a storm. Conservatives, Liberals and persons of no politics other than a sense of fairness protested. The problem was much discussed, until a happy thought occurred to some one. Jackson's Point is within the limits of the village, and in the summer time there are more people at Jackson's Point than there are in the village proper. 'Let us take a new census to correct the errors of the Dominion census. Done!' The census was taken, and by counting the Jackson's Point summer visitors and some of the people of the village, it is said, three times—once where they slept, once where they worked, and once somewhere else—the population was found to be sufficient for three licenses, and Sheppard was promptly restored to the license-holding class."

"Is North York an exception?" asks a contemporary. Not at all. There is not a village, town or city in Ontario but could point out cases of equally, if not of a more flagrant character.

In this city, at the last granting of licenses, one of the most respectable hotels was deprived of a license, and three or four "grog shops" favored. Why? The owner of the former is a Conservative, and the owners of the others Grits.

It would be an interesting item of news to learn how these things were managed. If the member for North Hastings, at the next session of the Ontario Legislature, were to ask for an investigation into the case of a professed Conservative hotel-keeper in that Riding, who was fined for violating the law, just before an election, deprived of his license, turned Grit, relieved of the penalty, appointed a deputy returning officer, neglected to initial the ballots of some forty or fifty Conservative voters, which were not counted, and then granted another tavern license in a different section of the county!

Talk of the political iniquities in the administration of the Liquor Law, why, they are only equalled by the machine, which worked so successfully in Huron, Elgin, Oxford, Brockville, Montreal Centre, etc., etc. In fact they are but the outcome of that organization which has kept the Ontario Government in power so long, and will be repeated at the coming bye-elections if not watched by detectives.

Real Health for Summer Days!

The health that comes from well digested food, daily regularity, pure blood and peaceful sleep—that is the health that you can win with the help of

IRON-OX

Tiny Tonic Tablets

—the gentle but effective laxative tonic.

Let the dainty little tablets cleanse your system, build up your body, purify your blood and tone your brain and nerves—then you will be prepared to face the wearing heat of blazing Summer days. Remember that impure blood, clogged bowels, a system racked by bad digestion or sleeplessness, simply invite Prickly Heat, Summer Rashes and Sunstroke.

Iron-Ox Tiny Tonic Tablets are gently laxative.

They cure constipation. They build up your intestinal organs, help them to cleanse your system and to keep it clean by natural means. They will not "force" you and they will not teach you the "laxative-habit."

Iron-Ox Tiny Tonic Tablets cure Indigestion.

They are not a mere temporary relief but a real, lasting cure.

Iron-Ox Tiny Tonic Tablets are a wonderful tonic—

They make blood; they help the liver, the kidneys, the stomach, the bowels. They strengthen and feed the nerves.

Iron-Ox Tiny Tonic Tablets are pleasant to take.

Very small, very dainty, wrapped in their delicate chocolate coats, they are as tempting as candy.

Fifty Iron-ox Tablets, in an attractive aluminum pocket case, 25 cents at druggists, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price. The Iron-ox Remedy Co., Limited, Walkerville, Ont.

50 Tablets for 25 Cents

At Your Druggists

TIMELY TOPICS

Mr. Mikel, although not an applicant for the position of City Clerk pro tem, was placed in that position by the Council last night. He accepted the position to help the Council out of the difficulty during Mr. Robertson's illness.

• • •

The best piece of civic legislation at last night's lengthy Council meeting was the unanimous vote to allow Mr. Pearce to purchase 50 feet of land for $50, whereon to erect an elevator.

• • •

Mr. Pearce says Belleville can be made a purchasing point for grain, provided there is competition. That is just what we want. At one time all the grain for miles around was sold and delivered in Belleville.

• • •

That old-time question, the Rolling Mills and the $30,000 bonus, which was passed to assist one Kirkwood to run the mills, came up. It now appears that this gentleman does not intend to run this property, but is holding it as a speculative proposition.

• • •

Kirkwood seems to think that he owns that bonus and, although he has received an offer of over $50,000 cash for the property, he has refused, holding out for a higher figure.

• • •

The Council last night in their wisdom gave Mr. Kirkwood just one week to run those mills, and if he don't down goes that $30,000 bonus.

• • •

The absurd idea of some of the Aldermen to allow the street rails to be "stored" at Point Ann is nothing short of subterfuge, and this must not be tolerated for a moment.

• • •

The "storing" of the rails at Point Ann means simply handing them over to the Cement Works for use on their road.

• • •

The Toronto opinion on this subject will soon be along and no doubt will bring some surprises with it. The gentlemen of the Council are wise in waiting its arrival.

• • •

Aldermen Pope, Panter and Sinclair voted for a public bath. The other members, apparently, think that a public bath is not necessary. However, the matter will come again and we hope by next meeting a change in their views will take place. Gentlemen, it is a necessity. All other cities have them.

• • •

Kingston News and Times: A prominent merchant estimates that the Barriefield camp is worth at least $15,000 to the City of Kingston, and that the Board of Trade should memorialize the Government to fix up the grounds, so that they be in the best condition for the soldiers. The speaker thought the camp was one of the best things that Kingston had and it would be greatly missed if it were taken away.

• • •

Kingston News and Times: The Belleville Ontario is raising a hue and cry against the acceptance of the offer for the street rails by a Kingston company, though the offer is admitted by the same journal to be higher than one from a local firm. The reason for non-acceptance is that the rails are needed by a coming Belleville cement company. The owner of the rails will, however, probably consider that the sale of the rails stands by itself, and if the new enterprise for the City on the Bay wants rails it can look out for itself.

Sports and Pastimes

Race Meet.

A meeting of those interested in the race meet to be held here on August 12th and 13th will be held at Hotel Quinte this evening. As Belleville is in the circuit, there is every prospect that the various events will be well contested.

Joe Wilson's Great Victory.

Many of our citizens will remember Joseph D. Wilson, a son of Mr. Jacob Wilson, formerly of Belleville. Joe, who was born in this city, has been winning fame for himself in a way that is told of as follows:

Joe D. Wilson, of the Toronto Swimming Club, won the half-mile swimming race for the King's Cup at London, England, Saturday night. Wilson, a youngster of twenty years, journeyed all alone to England and met the best men Europe and the United Kingdom can produce in the natatorial line. He was beaten Thursday in his heat of the 100 yards and lost Saturday afternoon in the quarter-mile, finishing fourth, but, nothing daunted, came out again in the evening and beat the whole field in the half-mile event.

Jarvis, the English champion, thinks well of Wilson's style, and says that he is of championship calibre.

MESSAGE FOUND IN A BOTTLE.

IT WAS PICKED UP IN THE BAY NEAR DESERONTO.

Is it possible for a bottle to float from Lake Superior and be found in the Bay of Quinte?

This is a question that arises over a find made in the bay by a son of Geo. Richardson. One day last week young Richardson was in swimming at the sand bar just south of the mouth of the Napanee River when his attention was attracted by a bottle floating near. He captured the bottle and took it ashore. A sharp wrap with a stone broke the bottle, which was found to contain an old envelope with some writing thereon in blue pencil which had faded to such an extent as to be almost illegible. What remains read as follows;

"Dear father—I was sorry when I left home, but I sailed on the Bannockburn, and just before we went down a friend wrote this in a hurry. The boiler blew up and we filled fast. So good-bye, forever.

ARCHIE TROMBLY."

In order that the bottle should reach Deseronto it would have had to float through Lake Superior, the St. Mary river and rapids to Lake Huron, thence down the St. Clair river, Lake St. Clair and Detroit river to Lake Erie, and then through the Niagara Falls and through the whirlpool rapids to Lake Ontario. The only possible outlet from the lake into the Bay of Quinte would be through the Murray Canal, and thence down the bay where the boys found it. The Bannockburn was supposed to have been lost early in November near the eastern end of Lake Superior. The distance by water is over 1,000 miles roughly speaking. During the seven months since the steamer was lost a great part of the waterways enumerated were ice bound for three or four months. Could that bottle, therefore, have traversed that distance without being crushed by the ice or being dashed to pieces during its trip through the Sault Ste. Marie rapids and over the falls of Niagara?

Archie Trombly, we understand, did sail on the Bannockburn, and nothing has been heard from him since.

If the bottle found is a hoax it is a poor specimen of a practical joke, and we can hardly believe that any man lives who could be cruel enough to perpetrate one on such senseless lines.

However, the fact remains that a bottle containing the message outlined above was found in the bay opposite Deseronto, the town where Trombly lived until he shipped on board the steamer Bannockburn.

PIMPLES AND BLOTCHES.

How unsightly, sometimes disgusting, mortifying to the sufferer and unpleasant to all. An evidence of poor blood and lowered vitality of the eliminating organs. They need toning up—the whole system does. You can quickly bring about the improved condition by using Ferrozone. Poisons are driven out of the blood, organs grow stronger, the blood richer, the nerves stronger. Pimples and blotches disappear, color becomes good. Glad! just try and see how much joy can be gotten out of a box of Ferrozone.

WOOL CRASH.

People are asking what it is. Wool crash is a sort of misnomer. It is not crash, but simply a light cool worsted in a crash weave. Hold it up to the light—you can see through it. Yet it's as tough and strong almost as thick beaver, and wiry enough to hold its shape. For a cool summer vacation knockabout suit, wool crash takes the lead. Good enough, too, for business. Come, see! Suit prices, $3.75, $5, $6 and $7.50.—Quick & Robertson, Belleville's Best Clothiers.

In the Justice Shop.

Alleged Assault.

A lad named Colden was charged with assaulting and using abusive language to B. Taugher. After some evidence had been taken the case was adjourned until to-morrow.

Alleged Theft.

The charge of theft preferred against John Moore, Jos. Fox and Wm. Hamilton, all of Bannockburn, was further investigated to-day. D. Mumby, of Eldorado, accuses them of stealing $100 from him. After argument by Mr. Anderson for the Crown and by Mr. McMahon for the accused judgment was reserved until Monday next.

Some stores stop making

HOME

Made Candies during the hot weather. We don't. We have been at a considerable expense importing a Gas Candy Furnace from the States, with this we can turn out fresh

MADE

Candies everyday and make them in small quantities and make them often so you can be sure of getting really Fresh Home Made

CANDIES.

J. ARTHUR MARSH.

Coin Pay Envelopes at The Intelligencer Job Office. Cheapest and best in the city.

What made your linens coarse? Common soap! Sunlight Soap saves linen.

SUNLIGHT SOAP REDUCES EXPENSE

Ask for the Octagon Bar

THE WEATHER.

To-day's Probs—

Moderate to fresh westerly to northerly winds, a few light local showers, but mostly fair. Wednesday, northwesterly winds, fair and cool.

To-day's Temperature

As Registered by The Intelligencer's Guaranteed Thermometer:

8 a.m.	68
12 m.	76
2 p.m.	74
3 p.m.	74

Situate between Montreal and Ottawa on the Pacific short line the MAGI Caledonia Springs are most convenient of access.

You Can't Oversleep

If it takes quite a noise to awaken you in the morning we have Clocks that will furnish the necessary disturbance.

They will not arouse you too soon, neither will they let you sleep too long.

If you set them properly they never fail to do their duty.

They are useful in most homes at odd times. They are indispensable in many homes every working day in the year.

$1 50 buys a GOOD ONE, though we have them cheaper as well as dearer.

Angus McFee.

Jeweler & Optician

310 Front St.

MILLINERY

—AT—

Half Price

All our Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats at HALF PRICE.

A few very choice ones still to choose from.

10 per cent. off Corsets Thursday' Friday and Saturday.

MISS IRWIN

Millinery and Corset Specialist

Trade intelligently by keeping informed. Read our "Guide to Investors" and "Daily Market Letter." Both avenues to money making mailed free.

HAIGHT & FREESE CO.

Stocks, Bonds, Grain, Cotton.

7 Melinda St., Toronto, Ont.

"Determining the character and financial responsibility of your Broker, is as important as selection of right stocks."

Arouse Your Liver.

You cannot have comfort until it acts freely. To enjoy perfect health and feel like a new person take

Beecham's Pills.

Sold Everywhere. In boxes, 25 cents.

THE INTELLIGENCER is printed and published for The Intelligencer Printing and Publishing House (Limited) by CHARLES JAMES BOWELL, of the City of Belleville, in the County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, at their Office, No. 403 Front Street, Belleville, Ont.

Coin Pay Envelopes at The Intelligencer Job Office. Cheapest and best in the city.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

MEDICAL.

JOHN J. FARLEY, M.D., C.M., M.R., C.S., England.

Office and Residence — Corner of Bridge and George streets — three streets East of Post Office.

DR. J. F. MATHER

Has removed his office to Pinnacle St., three doors north of Hotel Quinte. my29-6mw

LEGAL.

WILLS & WRIGHT,

Barristers, Solicitors, Notary Public, &c., Belleville.

Office—2 Campbell Street.

MALCOLM WRIGHT. J. FRANKLIN WILLS.

Money to Loan at Lowest Rates.

W. C. MIKEL, B. C. L.,

Barrister, &c.

Solicitor for the City of Belleville.

Office—Metropolitan Block, Corner Front and Campbell Streets.

PORTER & CARNEW,

Barristers, Solicitors, Notaries Public, etc.

Offices — Robertson Block, East Front St., Belleville, Ont.

'Phone 87.

E. G. PORTER. WM. CARNEW.

WILLIAM N. PONTON,

Barrister-at-law, Solicitor, Notary Public, Conveyancer. Office over Express and Telegraph Office, Bridge Street, Belleville.

Money to Loan :— Private Funds, Solicitor Sun and Hastings Savings and Loan Company of Ontario.

FRANCIS S. WALLBRIDGE,

Successor to Hon. Lewis Wallbridge, Q.C.

Barrister, Solicitor, Conveyancer, Etc. Office, McAnnany Building, corner Front and Bridge Sts., Belleville, Ont. Private and Company money to loan at 6 per cent., on easy terms upon good land security. Charges moderate.

INSURANCE.

Fire Insurance.

Guardian . . .	Est'd 1821
The North America,	Est'd 1792
Quebec, ...	Est'd 1818

City, Town and Village Property insure at lowest rates.

R. W. ADAMS. Agent.

Office opposite Post Office.

THOS. STEWART,

Insurance and Commission Agent.

Agent for the Norwich Union Fire in ociety and Scottish Union Nationa ns. Co.

BRIDGE ST.

FIRE, LIFE & ACCIDENT INSURANCE

At Lowest Rates The Norwich Union Fir Insurance Society and Perth Mutual on farm and city property. Also mone to loan at 4½ per cent. upwards.

JAMES A. CHISHOLM,

Office Ashley Block, - Front st., Belleville.

Money Saved is Money Earned

can earn you money by saving it for you in your Fire Insurance.

The Anglo-American Fire Ins. Co

The Merchants Fire Ins. Co.

The Equity Fire Ins. Co.

Are all strong Canadian stock companies and insure Farm and City Property at lower rate than other stock companies Call and see me before placing your fire nsurance.

Office—Bridge St., same entrance Quinte Laundry, Belleville.

H. FREEMAN KET [illegible]

Fire, Life & Plate Glass Insurance.

Liverpool & London & Globe of England.

Waterloo Mutual, of Waterloo, Ont.

Lloyd's Plate Glass.

Home Life Association, Toronto.

North British & Mercantile.

Farm and City Property insured in First-class Reliable Companies and at lowest current rates. Losses promptly settled. Land valuation, and transact general Real Estate business and sale or purchase and renting of property. Appraiser for the Hastings Loan & Investment Society. Money to Loan.

W. P. HUDSON, Office above Rathbun's office, cor. Bridge and Pinnacle Sts., opposite Postoffice and Hotel Quinte, Belleville.

'Phone 168.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A. G. NORTHRUP.

Issuer of Marriage Licenses, Shire Hall, Belleville, Ont.

CHAUNCEY ASHLEY,

Issuer of Marriage Licenses.

Private Office, Bridge St., Belleville, opposite the Post Office.

Residence, first house east of W. W. Chown's Mfg. Co., Station St. Appointments made.

REMOVAL.

Dr. Clarke has removed to the offices formerly occupied by the late Dr. Ward, over Burrows', and opposite Scantlebury's Book Store. a27dtf

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

Life has no blessing like a prudent friend.

FAST MAIL SERVICE

Bay of Quinte Route

TO

ROCHESTER N. Y.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian"

Taking Effect 27th June.

GOING DAILY (EXCEPT MONDAY)

Lv. Belleville .... 11.38 p. m.

Ar. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 6.43 a. m

RETURNING DAILY (Except Sunday)

Lv. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 8 30 p. m.

Ar. Belleville .... 3.15 a. m.

Baggage checked to all points. Connection with all railways.

$1.00 THOUSAND ISLANDS $1.00

AND RETURN.

Commencing 28th June. Steamer leaves Belleville at 3 25 a.m. daily except Monday for 1000 Islands, calling at Bay of Quinte ports, Kingston, Alexandria Bay and Gananoque. Passing through American and Canadian channels.

Right reserved to change time with or without notice.

Full information from

THE RATHBUN CO., } Agents.

U. E. THOMPSON, }

E. E. HORSEY, G. P. & F. Agent, Kingston.

Str. "Alexandria"

Montreal, Rochester & Quebec Transit Co'y.

Popular Quebec Excursions

NOW ON.

Belleville to Quebec and return.. $18 00

Belleville to Montreal and return $12.00

(including meals and berth)

Steamer runs all rapids

For Rochester, Olcott Beach, Niagara Falls and Buffalo every Saturday at 11 a.m.

Particulars from

A. W. HEPBURN, General Manager, Picton, Ont.

THE RATHBUN CO., Agents, Belleville.

The Deseronto Navigation Co

TIME TABLE.

Taking effect April 13, 1903.

Belleville, Trenton, Picton & Napanee

Str. "ELLA ROSS"

Leaves Belleville for Trenton at 10 a. m., daily, Sundays Excepted, returning leaves Trenton at 1 p. m., leaving Belleville at 3 p.m. for Deseronto, Napanee and Picton.

Quick and Superior Service to NEW YORK CITY

Steamers RESOLUTE and RELIANCE will leav Deseronto for Oswego after arrival of Str. Ella Ross connecting at Oswego with the New York, Ontario Western Ry.

Fare to New York, Single, $3.40.

Return, $13.25

For further particulars apply to THE RATHBUN CO., Local Agents

J. F CHAPMAN, Asst. Gen. Frt. Pass. Agt., Deseronto

R. C Carter, General Manager, Deseronto.

Str. "Niagara"

Monday 13th July.—True Blues to Picton.

Tuesday, 14th July — St. Andrew's Church Sunday School to Twelve O'Clock Point.

Wednesday, 15th July—Baptist Sunday School to Twelve O'Clock Point.

Saturday 18th July—First Saturday Afternoon Excursion to Picton. Fare 35c. Leaves wharf at 2.30 p.m. sharp.

THOMAS STEWART, Manager,

45 Bridge St., Belleville.

Goods We Have at Right Prices

—Hammocks.
—Fishing Tackle.
—Tennis Goods.
—Golf Goods.
—Lacrosse Goods.
—Base Ball Goods.
—Screen Doors and Windows.
—Fruit Jars.
—Fruit Jar Rubbers.
—Wall Paper.
—Crystal Glass Vases.
—Glass Ware.
—Dinner Sets.
—Toilet Sets.
—Ladies' Hose.
—Ladies' Vests.
Everything in smallwares.

AT THE BEE HIVE

Chas. N. Sulman

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

Our Mid-Summer Sale

Our entire stock of FANCY GOODS,

Including China (cups and saucers, Vases, Dishes, etc., etc.), Brass Goods, Candles, Silk Shades, Brushes (both hat and hair), Mirrors, Candlebras, Dickens and Art Pottery Ware, all 40 per cent. off regular prices.

Wrist Bags AND Chatelaines

Latest New York designs in walrus, seal and other leathers, from 35c to $7.00 each, all

25 per cent. off regular price.

Framed Pictures

Entire stock of our Art Gallery, comprising Steel Engravings, Platinums, Prints, etc., beautifully framed Prices from 50c to $25, all

30 per cent. off regular prices

Wall Paper

Special prices on all Wall Papers and free bordering—2 yards with each double roll.

Paper Hanging and Painting—the largest and most efficient staff of workmen.

C. B. Scantlebury

Belleville's Decorator.

Wall Paper Wholesale and Retail.

For the Revelsworth Millions,

—or—

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fail by the Man She Loves.

There was a look in his face which she had never seen before, and which she wholly failed to understand. But the increased hardness in his expression attracted rather than repelled her, and she clung to him with tender demonstrativeness, raising her face to his, and hoping that he would kiss her. Instead, he held her a little way from him and looked steadfastly into her eyes.

"I hope, dearest, that you will be as happy as you deserve!" he said. And with that he left her and locked himself in his own room.

But long after the rest of the household had retired to bed he stole from his room, fully dressed, and made his way down to the billard-room. There he lit the lamp and remained for several hours, absorbed in the study of certain volumes which he took down from the dusty book-shelves.

It was but natural that on the night following his brothers funeral he should not be able to sleep. But his choice of literature was somewhat remarkable. For the four books which absorbed him until daykreak were an encyclopaedia, a French volume of Causes Celebres, a London directory and a Peerage of the United Kingdom.

Before the month of August was out it became clear to every one in Revelsworth House that, when the property was divided the following midsummer, it would pass to a married couple, and not to a single man and woman.

Dudley's methods of wooing were singular. He appeared to spend very little time in Francesca's society, absenting himself constantly from Hampton Court, and returning by the last train in the evening or by the earliset in the morning; but he never came back empty-handed. Flowers, books, trinkets, Liberty scarves and hangings, valuable china and dainty curios—these and similar gifts he showered upon Francesca with lavish hand.

Of endearing expressions and caresses he was strangely chary.

"I cannot kiss you, my dear Francesca, until I can forget how much my brother loved you," he said to her one day, when she half chid him for his coldness. "I connot trust myself till I let my feelings master me. Very soon, of course, we shall be married——"

"Ah that fatal word 'married'!" Francesca cried, restlessly breaking away from him. "Marriage must always be to my mind the grave of love! And why, Dudley dear, in spite of my repeated warnings, will you speak of our coming marriage before my mother and before the servants? Only yesterday, before that boy Joseph——"

"What does it matter who hears," he asked sharply, "since it will soon be an accomplished fact?"

"Only if you agree to my terms," she said, speaking in low tones and growing suddenly pale. "We are to leave here by different trains, and meet in London and be married by special licence in that little out-of-the-way old City church I told you of. Then we go at once down to Southampton, where we shall find the yacht——"

"Over the purchase of which I have spent so many hours in town lately," he added, with a quiet smile.

"And then—then at last," she cried, throwing her arms round his neck and raising her lovely face to his, "we shall be alone together and I shall be yours—since you will not let me arrange it in any other way!"

"Yes," Dudley said slowly, while a light shone in his eyes—"you will be mine indeed."

In the first days of September Dudley announced his intentions of paying his long-deferred visit to his step-mother. He had already communicated the news of his brother's death by letter to Doctor Gilles, who had broken it to his wife.

"She has taken it very badly," Dudley explained to Betty as the two sat alone together at breakfast, Francesca having overslept herself on that particular occasion, "and I must see her. I have also other business to see to in France."

"I hope the change will do you good!" said Betty. "You look worn and tired. Do you think the late hours you have been keeping lately agree with you?"

She spoke timidly, and scarcely ventured to gaze at him as she asked the question. It was the first time they had found themselves alone together in the eighteen days which had elapsed since Victor's funeral.

They had been very difficult days for Betty. Deception was so foreign to her nature that the strain of keeping up a friendly appearance towards Frencesca and "Mrs. Harold" had tried her greatly, and Francesca's confidences on the subject of her love for Dudley and his reciprocal passion for herself had pained her beyond measure. Meanwhile Dudley had been very seldom at home, or, if at home he had been to all appearance absorbed in Francesca; and even the faithful Heremon O'Meara had displeased Betty very much by certain hints and aspersions he had of late thrown out respecting Dudley. Consequently it was a sad and troubled little face which greeted the young man, and tears rolled down her cheeks as he laid his hand on hers.

"You have something on your mind," he said—"something about me?"

"A great deal," Betty answered courageously. "You told me to trust you, and to leave everything in your hands. But you seem to have changed; and I hate and can't believe the things I hear about you!"

"What things?"

She lowered her head, blushing deeply.

"That—that you gamble and drink, and go about in all sorts of bad company——"

"Who told you?" Dudley interrupted.

"Mr. O'Meara. And I told him that they were lies, and quarrelled with him."

"How does he know?"

He has a very amusing and disreputable cousin—Patrick O'Meara—who tells him everything."

"Is Pat O'Meara his cousin? I have met him. What he says is quite true. I have been in very bad company in London, and, now I am going over to Paris to frequent equally bad company there."

"I thought you were going to see your step-mother?"

"Yes; but I shall not stay with her."

Betty looked at him wistfully and sighed.

"I don't understand you," she said.

"But you soon will. Turst me, Betty—that is better than understanding me. There is a great deal about a man that a good woman is the better for not understanding. Thank Heaven I know two such women as you and the little mother—pure, tender, brave, unselfish, sweet-natured women, whose beauty is the outward expression of their souls, and not the mask of vile and hideous corruption!"

The girl shuddered at the bitterness of his words and at the expression of his face as he uttered them. But she was beyond measure glad to know that her belief in him had not been misplaced, and that still in her thoughts he might remain her hero.

Less than twenty four hours later Betty would have seen Dudley, could her eyes have followed him, leaving a notorious gambling hell in Paris in the chilly dawn of a September morning, half leading, half dragging in his wake a man whom he had that night ruined at play.

The man was tall and fair, lightly-built, and eminently handsome but for the unmistakable look of dissipation which incessant late hours and fast living were beginning to stamp upon his finely-cut features. He was the Honorable Herbert Devereux, fourth son of the Lord St. Clare, whom Dudley Revelsworth, after a fortnight's search among the shadiest possible company in London and in Paris, had at length run to earth in the latter city.

It was not difficult to make the acquaintance of the honorable Bertie. His manner towards strangers was alternately familiar and insolent; but he was usually ready to show friendliness towards any man who appeared to have money at his command, and, as soon as he realized that "Mr. Dudley," as Dudley elected to call himself, had his pockets well lined with bank-notes, he showed a marked desire to "chumb up" with him, the more so as Dudley assured him he was not a habitual card-player.

Luck however had been wholly in Dudley's favor. The Honorable Bertie was not above resorting to certain little tricks by which his chances of winning at play were considerably increased; but Dudley's vigilant eyes were always upon him, and, when at length, in the small hours of the morning, the proprteior of the establishment announced "closing time" and the gamblers had to leave, Bertie Devereux found himself Dudley's debtor to the sum of seven hundred and fifty pounds.

Cursing his luck, Devereux suffered himself to be led from the rooms, and turned fiercely to face his creditor in the gray light of the early morning.

"You've cleaned me out, confound you!" he muttered. "But you'll be infernally clever if you get your money! I haven't the price of a bottle of fizz left; and I'm hanged if I know when I shall get any more supplies!"

"Come home with me to my hotel," said Dudley soothingly, as he slipped his arm within that of the younger man. "There's plenty of fizz there; and I'll get a room for you, where you can sleep off your disappointment. But first I want a little talk with you."

Devereux stared at him stupidly for a moment. Then a cunning expression came into his bloodshot blue eyes, and he broke into a laugh.

"Are you going to offer to finance me because my father's an earl?" he inquired. "Fellows have tried that sort of thing with me before; but it don't answer for long. I like to choose my company, and I can't truckle to anybody."

"You need have no fear, Mr. Devereux," returned Dudley coldly, resisting a strong desire to chastise the man for his insolence; "I don't wish either to finance you or to enjoy your society for long. All I want is to ask you a few questions, and, if you answer them truthfully, we will cry quits about this gambling debt."

"All right—ask away!" cried Devereux, with a half-tipsy laugh. "If you're writing a book and want to know something of life, there's no end of funny things I can tell you".

After a short drive in a cab, they entered the hotel where Dudley had left his traveling bag; and very soon he found himself alone with the Honorable Bertie in a luxuriously-furnished sitting-room overlooking the deserted street, a plate of biscuit and a couple of bottles of champagne before them.

"And now fire away with your questions!" said the Honorable Bertie, after drinking a glass of champagne, thrusting his hands into his pockets and stretching out his feet. "Is it any thing about a girl?"

"It is about a woman," Dudley answered, leaning forward and watching him closely—"a woman named Francesca."

In a moment his companion's whole bearing was entirely changed. The blood left his heated face, and a furtive frightened expression came into his eyes. He rose to his feet, and, steadying himself by holding on to the back of his chair, he stared suspiciously at Dudley.

"I never heard the name before," he said at last in sullen tones. "Why?"

"Rather more than a fortnight ago," pursued Dudley, "you recognized her sitting beside me in a punt at Walton Regatta. You were on a launch. Now do you remember?"

"By Jove—that's how I knew your face!" muttered Mr. Devereux under his breath.

"Six months ago," continued Dudley, "you met her at a variety theatre near Leicester Square. She was with another woman—her landlady. She spoke to you, and you disclaimed all knowledge of her in most insulting terms. You even struck at her as you jumped into a cab. And I interfered."

"So it was you again!" said the other surlily. "Well, much good may your interference do you!"

"If you will tell me exactly all you know of her, and what reason you have for the hatred and even fear you show of her, I will give you a receipt in full for the seven hundred and fifty pounds you owe me, and will also, if you will allow me, hand you over a cheque to meet any pressing necessity, to be repaid when you like. I shall never press for payment."

"What is your reason for wanting to know all about her?"

"Suppose," suggested Dudley slowly, "that a man in whom I am interested, a relative of mine, should want to marry this lady?"

"To marry her!" cried Devereux. "Heaven help him, then! But she will never go the length of marrying any one—trust her for that! Only a month or so ago I met her in London walking in the Row with another fool who wanted to marry her—a little, pale, dark foreign-looking fellow."

"That was my step-brother."

"And you are talking about him I suppose?"

"No. He died suddenly three weeks ago."

"Ah!"

The Honorable Bertie sank back in his chair, covered his eyes with his hands, and trembled in every limb. Then, with shaking fingers, he poured himself out another glass of champagne.

"And who's the other madman who wants to marry her?" he asked, when he had drunk the champagne. "Marry her! Great Heaven!"

"She promised to marry me."

"When?"

"Very shortly. She insists that the wedding be as private as possible in an out-of-the-way City church——"

"Man," interrupted Devereux, starting from his seat again, "do you know that what you are telling me is either your death-warrant or mine? Do you know who —em?"

"She has told me that she is a widow, that her husband's name was Devereux, and that you are her brother-in-law."

"She has told you that!" the Honorable Bertie cried, with an hysterical burst of laughter. "And you believed her—and you love her?"

"If half what I suspect is true," Dudley answered slowly, "I hate her with my whole soul!"

"Not more than I," half shrieked Devereux—"not more than I do—for I am her husband!"

CHAPTER XXVII.

"Six years ago it is now since I first set eyes on that woman's face. I wasn't twenty; I was doing Europe with a tutor—awful scamp—used to get drunk and let me be off on my own hooks whenever I liked. She was a governess, or companion, or something, with an English family. I first saw her in the hotel garden gathering roses, all white muslin and innocence. Great Scot—what a fool I was to be taken in by it all! She was a widow already at that time, mind, and, as sure as you and I stand here, she murdered her first husband! I knew nothing of all that, of course. All I heard was that she was the orphan daughter of an English gentleman and an Italian

(To be continued.)

Flies Carry Contagion

Wilson's Fly Pads

kill the flies and disease germs too.

Piles To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles, the manufacturers have guaranteed it. See testimonials in the daily press and ask your neighbors what they think of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. 60c a box, at all dealers or EDMANSON, BATES & CO., Toronto,

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Mr W. Denham

Of Denham's Drug Store, Petrolea, Ont., says:

"The O. R. Kidney Cure gives the best satisfaction to our customers of any kidney medicine we handle."

Belleville druggists speak highly of the O. R. Kidney Cure.

It does its work quickly.
It cures Lame Back.
It cures Lumbago.
It cures Bladder Trouble.
It cures Gravel in Bladder.
It cures Rheumatism.
It cures Kidney Troubles.
It will cure you.
Try one bottle.

O. R. KIDNEY CURE is put up in liquid form, contains no poisons, is quickly assimilated and will cure all kidney and urinary troubles.

O. R. Kidney Cure, 50c per bottle.
O. R. Liver Pills, 25c per bottle.
O. R. Dyspepsia Tablets 25c per box.

AT DRUGGISTS, OR WRITE—

THE O. R. MEDICINE CO.,

Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A Sure Cure for Headaches. — Bilious headache, to which women are more subject than men, becomes so acute in some subjects that they are utterly prostrated. The stomach refuses food, and there is a constant and distressing effort to free the stomach from bile which has become unduly secreted there. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are a speedy alterative, and in neutralizing the effects of the intruding bile relieves the pressure on the nerves which cause the headache. Try them.

When one gets hopping mad his reason goes on a crutch.

Will be Found an Excellent Remedy for sick headache. Carter's Little Liver Pills. Thousands of letters from people who have used them prove this fact. Try them.

Many a man's self-conceit is due to his ignorance.

The Well Known Strengthening Properties of IRON, combined with other tonics and a most perfect nervine, are found in Carter's Iron Pills, which strengthen the nerves and body, and improve the blood and complexion.

The average watch represents but 12 hours of human labor.

There is nothing equal to Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator for destroying worms. No article of its kind has given such satisfaction.

Much talk, many lies.

Some persons have periodical attacks of Canadian cholera, dysentery or diarrhoea, and have to use great precautions to avoid the disease. Change of water, cooking, and green fruit, is sure to bring on the attacks. To such persons we would recommend Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial as being the best medicine in the market for all summer Complaints. If a few drops are taken in water when the symptoms are noticed no further trouble will be experienced.

Coral is a talisman against thunder and evils by flood and field.

For coughs, colds, bronchitis and all lung and throat troubles, there is no preparation of medicine can compare with Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It never fails to afford prompt and permanent relief. It removes all soreness, and heals the diseased parts. It immediately soothes the most troublesome cough, and by promoting expectoration, removes the mucus which stops up the air tubes which causes difficulty in breathing, thereby gives relief to that depressing tightness experienced in the chest. Public speakers and singers will find Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup of inestimable value, as it speedily and effectually allays all irritation, and huskiness in the throat and bronchial tubes, and gives power to the vocal cords, rendering the voice clear and sonorous. If parents wish to save the lives of their children, and themselves from much anxiety, trouble and expense, let them procure a bottle of "Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup," and whenever a child has taken cold, has a cough or hoarseness, give the Syrup according to directions.

The wildcat's teeth are close to its purr.

Will positively cure sick headache and prevent its return. Carter's Little Liver Pills. This is not talk, but truth. One pill a dose. See advertisement. Small pill, Small dose. Small price.

A long portage makes a heavy canoe.

To Those of Sedentary Occupation. —Men who follow sedentary occupations, which deprive them of fresh air and exercise, are more prone to disorders of the liver and kidneys than those who lead active, outdoor lives. The former will find in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills a restorative without question the most efficacious on the market. They are easily procurable, easily taken, act expeditiously, and they are surprisingly cheap considering their excellence.

It takes money to voice the opinion of a lawyer.

UNTOLD MISERY — WHAT A WELL-KNOWN COMMERCIAL TRAVELLER SUFFERED, AND HOW HE WAS CURED.—Gentlemen, About five years ago I began to be troubled with Dyspepsia, and for three years suffered untold misery, from this terrible complaint. I was at that time travelling for Messrs. Walter Woods & Co., Hamilton, and was treated by some of the best physicians in the country, but to no purpose. I continued to grow worse, one day I was induced to try a bottle of Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and to my great surprise and joy, I soon began to improve. I continued using this medicine and when the third bottle was finished, I found I was entirely cured; and as a year has elapsed since then, I feel confident that the cure is complete and permanent. To all afflicted with this distressing complaint I heartily recommend Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery believing that the persistent use of it will cure any case of Dyspepsia.

(Signed), T. S. McINTEE.

All trails are long to the lazy.

He Has Tried It.—Mr. John Anderson, Kinloss, writes: "I venture to say few, if any, have received greater benefit from the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, than I have. I have used it regularly for over ten years and have recommended it to all sufferers I knew of, and they also found it of great virtue in cases of severe bronchitis and incipient consumption.

The best way to get even is to forget.

Holloway's Corn Cure is the medicine to remove all kinds of corns and warts, and only costs the small sum of twenty-five cents.

Bank of Montreal

ESTABLISHED 1817.

Capital and Rest, All Paid Up.

$23,000,000

(Twenty-three Millions)

Savings Bank Department

Interest on sums of $1.00 and upwards allowed at current rates.

A. G. PARKER,

Manager Belleville Branch

TWO BIG SALES

Summer Clothing AND Straw Hats

We are having a great clearing up of summer goods these warm days. In addition to our 20 per cent. discount sale on summer clothing, we are offering 25 to 50 doz. Men's and Boys' Straw Hats, worth 50c cts, 75c and $1.00, for only 25c ea.

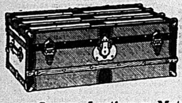
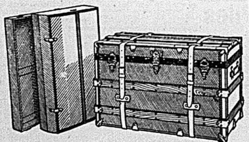
This is almost a present for the man who has any need for a Straw Hat. They are selling very fast, come quick if you want one.

See Them In Our North Window.

OAK HALL

Sole Agents for Sanford's Celebrated Clothing.





Holiday seekers will find full lines of

Trunks and Travelling Bags

At The J. J. Haines Shoe Houses.

Steamer Trunks
Round and Flat Top Trunks

Canvas, Leather or Metal Covered Trunks.

Bags, Suit Cases, TELESCOPE VALISES

Fibre Cases, Club Bags, Shawl Straps, etc

TEMPTING Shoe Bargains on our Bargain Tables for old or young.

The J. J. Haines

SHOE HOUSES at Belleville, Napanee and Trenton

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE
FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

SIDE-LIGHTS ON LIFE.

Conscience is that within us which tells us what our neighbors are doing wrong.

If you would be happy you must learn to live a day at a time.

It is never too late to mend, but sometimes it is time wasted.

Never belittle your own acts. People are very apt to take you at your estimate.

Every time an argument gains you a new friend it loses you two old ones.

Some men find it so hard to get enough to drink that they don't bother about anything to eat.

Every woman can venture to be saucy if she pleases—but not if she displeases.

It is not the false teeth that are most objectionable; it is the false tongue behind them.

Instead of waiting for his ship to come in a man should charter a tug and go out to meet it.

An Irish orator speaking of his native land said:—"Ireland's cup of misery has been overflowing for years and is not yet full."

Innocence is like an umbrella: when once it is lost it is useless to advertise for it.

Beauty is only skin deep, but it answers the purpose just as well as if it were deeper.

When a man changes his mind the other fellow is apt to get the worst of the bargain.

An ounce of might is often more powerful than a pound of right.

Love, like lightning, seldom strikes twice in the same place. Widows usually marry for money the second time.

No woman's waist can compare with the waste of time.

The man who blows his own horn is merely a self-entertainer.

An old toper says it's the drinking between drinks that hurts a fellow.

The poor man's story—usually the one next to the roof.

Probably there is nothing so uncertain as a sure thing.

A small boy's idea of forgiving an injury inflicted by another boy is to lick him first and forgive him afterward.

The man who is never idle has no time to be mean.

It is not the height some men attain that makes them giddy—it is looking down with contempt on the crowd beneath them.

A woman's esteem is almost priceless, but it may cost you her love.

Lots of people go to the opera who hardly know about music even to hold hands in time.

Only truth commands truth; he who lies will always be deceived.

Daily Intelligencer.

TIMELY TOPICS.

If, as a doctor declared, drinking iced tea is suicidal, it only proves that few suicides are fatal.

* * *

No danger of the automobilist suffering from inertia. Isn't he kept busy climbing out to ascertain what is the matter with his machine?

* * *

That old idea that lightning never strikes twice in the same place has been exploded. Many a candidate wins his second election.

* * *

Must be a powerful nerve tonic the coal operators are taking, else how could they raise the price of fuel during the warm months?

* * *

It is not necessary to look at the thermometer. Just take it for granted.

* * *

Strange what a change has come to the expression of the summer resort man's face.

* * *

An utterance both terse and true is found in the question and answer of the Boston Herald:

"Will there ever be a better Pope than Leo XIII.? There could not be."

Pope Leo's career will afford a model for noble emulation.

Heals Inflamed, Itching Skin

CURES ECZEMA, SALT RHEUM AND TETTER, LEAVING THE SKIN SMOOTH AND NATURAL.

As a means of allaying inflammation, relieving the dreadful itching and healing and curing itching skin diseases, ulcers and eruptions, we believe we can prove by the evidence of the best people in the land that Dr. Chase's Ointment is the most potent preparation that it is possible to obtain, so many extreme cases have been cured, so much intense and continued agony relieved that we challenge anyone to produce like endorsement for any ointment or any preparation which is recommended for such diseases. 60 cents a box at all dealers. 8

Prince Visited the Kearsage.

Portsmouth, July 14.—The Prince of Wales, who was accompanied by Ambassador Choate, the Earl of Selborne, First Lord of the Admiralty, and others visited the Kearsage yesterday. As the Prince departed he was cheered by the crews of the American ships.

Silver at 54 Cents an Ounce.

Washington, July 14.—The director of the United States Mint yesterday purchased 75,000 ounces of silver for account of Philippine coinage at an average of 53.85 cents an ounce delivered in Philadelphia.

HE KNEW HOW TO WORK IT.

Penny-in-the-Slot Weighing Machine Confirms the Time of a Policeman's Watch.

A peculiar and laughable coincidence occurred at Peebles Corner early one morning during the past week. A man with a mellow jag happened along a few minutes before 2 A. M., and after leaning against a telephone pole for a few moments gravely lurched over and peered at the dial of a penny-in-the-slot weighing machine that stood in front of the drug store at the corner.

"Trying—hic—t' see what time it is!" he gravely explained to Officer Jake Holzlin, of the seventh district, who stood at the corner.

"Well, you'll have to drop a penny in the slot and stand on the platform if you want to ascertain the time by that machine," said the officer, jokingly.

The bejaggered individual felt in his pocket, brought forth a penny and, gravely mounting the machine, dropped the cent in the slot, and the hand spun around the dial.

At that instant Sergeant Grimm appeared on the scene and asked the man with the jag what he was doing.

"Findin' out th'—hic—time!" was the answer.

"It is just 1:56 o'clock," said the sergeant consulting his watch.

"Your watch is—hic—right to a—hic—second," answered the man on the scales and this machine says it is 1:56 o'clock, which is four minutes of —hic—2." And the individual with the mellow jag, who weighed just 156 pounds, jag and all, descended solemnly from the scales and congratulated Sergeant Grimm upon the excellence of his timepiece.—Chincinnati Enquirer.

Many well-meaning peacemakers make it their mission in life just to pour oil on the troubled flames.

An hour of passion is worth a year of experience, but it may prove even more expensive.

Lookers-on see most of the game, but they have to cultivate a wicked imagination sometimes.—R. H. St. Hill.

A love affair begins with two people wanting to give each other everything; it ends in both finding they are getting nothing.

Only death is free, and even that costs you life.

Anecdotal.

Some years ago when Bishop Potter, of New York, was traveling in Minnesota, a man approached him on the railway platform and scanned his features closely. "Excuse me," he said, finally, "but haven't I seen your picture in the papers?" He was compelled to confess that he had. "I thought so," continued the inquisitive one; "may I ask what you were cured of?"

Here is a new story of Paderewski. He recently lost his only son, and the effect on him has been to soften down the little eccentricities which used to charm his less artistic followers. He went to Dresden for the first performance of his own opera. Amid the enthusiastic demonstrations which greeted its success, he observed in Russian to a friend, "All this might be dust if I could have one smile from my child!"

At a seaside hotel the other day a new arrival, having made terms with the proprietor, proceeded to write his name in the hotel book. While he was so engaged a rather large flea hopped across the open page before him. "Well," he remarked, throwing down the pen, "I have been in hotels where there were fleas, but never before have I been in an hotel where the fleas search the register for the number of their rooms."

When the Transvaal war was at its height, Paul Kruger sent a commissioner to England to find out if there were any more men left there. The commissioner wired from London to say that there were four million men and women "knocking about the town," that there was no excitement, and that men were begging to be sent to fight the Boers. Kruger wired back, "Go north." The commissioner found himself in Newcastle eventually, and wired to Kruger: "For God's sake, stop that war! England is bringing up men from hell, eight at a time, in cages!" He had seen a coal mine.

A quotable story is told of a missionary who was spending a short holiday in Texas. After he had been at his hotel for some days he met with a very fierce-looking man of the cowboy type, who, he noticed, had anything but a sweet temper. "Do you know," he said to him one day, "that you should love your enemies?" "That's a thing I can't do, sir." "What! I am sure a man like you could do anything if you tried." "Anything but that, parson; it's impossible." "Impossible!" said the missionary, surprised and hurt. "How?" "I ain't got one to love. I shot the last this morning."

Julian Corbett may be said to have established himself as an authority on the history of the British navy. A while ago Mr. Corbett wrote to the admiralty to suggest that a new first-class battleship then building be christened "Drake." A formal intimation that his letter had been received and should have due attention was followed, after a decent interval, by a dignified reply from my lords, in which they expressed their regret at not being able to carry out Mr. Corbett's suggestion, and explained that it would be contrary to precedent to name a first-class battleship after a bird.

A Sunday School teacher who has a class of little girls makes it her custom to tell them each Sunday of some little incident that has happened during the week, and request the children to quote a verse of Scripture to illustrate the story. In this way she hopes to impress the usefulness of Biblical knowledge upon the little ones. Last Sunday she told her class of a cruel boy who would catch cats and cut their tails off. "Now, can any little girl tell me of an appropriate verse?" she asked. There was a pause for a few moments, when one little girl arose, and in a solemn voice said: "Whatsoever God has joined together let no man put asunder."

Sir Harry Poland, a British magistrate noted for his brilliancy, is careless in his dress. Once his family persuaded him to go to Poole and order a fashionably cut suit. To the chagrin of the household, Sir Harry looked more outlandish in the new clothes than in his old ones. His brother-in-law went to see Poole about it. "It is not my fault, sir," the tailor assured him. "Every care was taken, but how could we fit a gentleman who would insist upon being measured sitting down?" And the only satisfaction that could be obtained from Sir Harry Poland himself later on was the dry comment: "Well, it's my business, and not yours. I like to be comfortable. I spend three parts of my life sitting down, and I prefer to be measured so."

A Philadelphia paper tells of a bride and bridegroom who recently went to housekeeping and are blessed with a maid of all work who is fresh from the Emerald Isle. This is her first "place," and her ignorance of domestic affairs is only equalled by her adaptability and her cheerful willingness to learn. At first she didn't know the names of the ordinary household utensils, even mistaking on one occasion, when there was company at dinner, the ice pick for the carving steel. One day last week the bride had been doing some shopping, and among other things she bought an umbrella stand for the vestibule. It was late when she reached home. "Did any packages come?" she asked. "Yis, mum," was the reply. "The wagon cum wid th' cuspidore fer th' umbrellies."

A certain Scotch minister was very anxious that an old couple in his parish should become teetotalers, an anxiety they in no wise shared. After much pressing, however, they consented, laying down as a condition that they should be allowed to keep a bottle of "Auld Kirk" for medicinal purposes. About a fortnight after, John began to feel his resolution weakening; but he was determined not to be the first to give way. In another week, however, he collapsed entirely. "Jenny, woman," he said, "I've an awfu' pain in my heid; ye micht gie me a wee drapple, an' see gin it'll dae me ony guid." "Weel, gudeman," she replied, "ye're owre late o' askin', for ever sin' that bottle cam' into the hoose, I've been bothered sae wi' pains i' my heid, tis a' dune, an' there's nae drapple left."

Sour Stomach —Bad Breath.

The body depends on the bowels to carry off all waste and poisonous matters from the system — it is Nature's drainage. If the bowels don't perform their functions properly and become clogged up, the system gradually absorbs this poison. It is this which causes sick headache, billousness, sour stomach, bad breath, inactive liver, lack of energy, heartburn, etc.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt will cure you by clearing away the obstruction and thoroughly cleansing the bowels. This brings healthy action to all the organs of the body and rids the system of the cause of illness.

In this way Abbey's Effervescent Salt permanently cures. A teaspoonful in half a glass of tepid water every morning.

FEMININE OBSERVER.

Laziness begins with cobwebs and ends in chains.

Point d'Arabe laces are very smart garnitures.

By refusing to listen to secrets one is saved unlimited trouble.

A woman who loves too much sometimes loses, but a woman who loves too little never gains anything worth losing.

Tiny golden circular clamps like coins are used on ribbon ends in place of the points, which were so popular.

It is ourselves who make circumstances not circumstances us, as often is affirmed.

To borrow is no harm; the disgrace lies in forgetting you did.

Courtesy is to man what daintiness is to woman—a beautiful thing to be known by.

A clear conscience can bear any trouble.

Common sense isn't so common that it is uncommonly common.

Marrying a man to reform him is like drinking whiskey to destroy it.

The more checks a spendthrift has, the faster he goes.

Table oil cloth is a sanitary substitute for wall paper in the kitchen.

OLD NUTMEG'S SAYINGS.

Dew all the good yew kin, but don't neglect yewr dewty tur dew it.

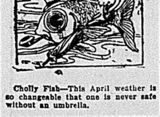
A dollar in the bank is wuth tew dollars on yewr back.

Many a man gits clus tur Natur' when he can't raise the price uv a lodgin'.

Ef the devil helps his own an' the Lord helps them who helps themselves, then ev'rybuddy orter be purty well supplied.

It would be much easier fur some people tew shun evil companions ef they could on'y git away frum themselves.

It's a purty mean man who will break up a settin' hen in the mornin' then go an' set himself in a grucery store all day.—JOE CONE.



Cholly Fish—This April weather is so changeable that one is never safe without an umbrella.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

SINGLE FARE

To Detroit and Return

in connection with

INTERNATIONAL EPWORTH LEAGUE CONVENTION,

July 16th to 19th.

Tickets good going July 15th and 16th. Valid for return until July 20th. Tickets may be extended for return until August 15th, on depositing tickets with joint agent not later than July 19th, and on payment of 50 cents.

The Grand Trunk service is unexcelled for those attending the convention. Fast and convenient.

TOURIST RESORTS.

Muskoka Lakes, Georgian Bay, Lake of Bays, Kawartha Lakes, Thousand Islands, Quebec, Portland, Old Orchard, White Mountains. All reached via the Grand Trunk.

For tickets and all information apply to

U. E. THOMPSON, City Agent, Bridge Street,
T. H. COPPIN, Depot Agent.
J. C. McDONALD, Dist. Pass Agt., Toronto.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY.

"Imperial Limited."

Fast tri-weekly Transcontinental service between Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver. Connection leaves Toronto at 1.45 p.m., Sunday, Wednesday, Friday, making run Toronto to Vancouver in 97 hours.

Upper Lake Steamships

Leave Owen Sound Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 5.30 p.m., on arrival of S.S. Express leaving Toronto at 1.30 p.m. Connections at Fort William and Port Arthur for Winnipeg and Pacific Coast points.

Daily First-Class Service Toronto to Winnipeg, Calgary, Banff and Pacific Coast.

Fully Equipped Through Tourist Cars leave Toronto Tuesday and Saturday for Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Full particulars from your nearest Canadian Pacific Agent or to

A. H. NOTMAN,
Asst. Gen. Pass. Agent, TORONTO.
S. BURROWS, C.P.R. and General Ticket Agent, Front St., Belleville.

NEW YORK CENTRAL & HUDSON RIVER R. R.

THE FOUR-TRACK TRUNK LINE.

SHORTEST Route to the United States via Cape Vincent, N.Y.

GOING EAST AND WEST.			After 1s May
Lv. Belleville (G.T.R.)		12.22 p.m.	1.30 a.m
Arr. Kingston	"	1.47 p.m.	3.12 a.m
Lv. Kingston (stage)..		2.30 p.m.	5.00 a.m
Arr. CapeVincent (stage)		4.30 p.m.	7.00 a.m
Lv. Cape Vincent N.Y.C.		5.05 p.m.	7.25 a.m
Arr. Watertown	"	5.55 p.m.	8,25 a.m
Arr. Oswego	"	9.05 p.m.	11.55 a.m
Arr. Syracuse	"	9.25 p.m.	12.07 p.m
Arr. Rochester	"	1.05 a.m.	2.20 a.m
Arr. Utica	"	9.45 p.m.	12.35 p.m
Arr. New York	"	7.25 a.m.	6.00 p.m

Convenient train service in opposite direction.

Pullman Sleeping and Parlor Cars.

2c a Mile.

Books for 500 miles of travel on New York Central and leased lines within State of New York, cost only $10 while books for 1000 miles over New York Central, Boston & Albany, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, Philadelphia & Reading and C. R. R. of New Jersey cost $20. Secure further information and purchase tickets from F. A. Folger, N.Y.C. Agent, Kingston, Ont.

GEORGE H. DANIELS, Gen'l Pass'r Agent. New York.
A. H. SMITH, Gen'l Supt., New York.
G. C. GRIDLEY, Gen'l Agent, Watertown, N.Y.

Seven hundred British subjects are yearly born at sea.

It takes a long time to tell of what you have not done.

Turkey now exports $3,000,000 worth of opium a year.

Shoes and Slippers

FOR SUMMER WEAR.

Ladies' Fine Low Shoes—ranging in price from 50c to $3.75

Ladies' Fine Strap Slippers--prices from 75c to $3.00

See our assortment of Children's Slippers, ranging in price from 25c to $1.25

We carry a large stock of Trunks and Valises, Dress Suit Cases, Club Bags, Cabin Trunks, etc.

VERMILYEA & SON.

Sole Agents for the famous Queen Quality Shoe.

FOR TWO WEEKS ONLY! 2 WEEKS

$5.00 Any Suit In This Great Clothing Store for $5.00

A STUPENDOUS CLOTHING OFFER WITHOUT PRECEDENT OR PARALLEL,

Some Suits $18, some $16, some $15, some $12, others $10. Just think of it! High grade, thoroughly tailored garments for Men, complete suits in fashionable fabrics, for

$5.00

This is just the opening gun in the great Mid-Summer Sale, in connection with this store. In every other department there will be equal sensational reductions. This Clothing Sale begins on July 11th and will end on July 25th. The earlier you come the better your choice as we anticipate a big rush.

The GLOBE CLOTHING HOUSE.

Up-to-date Clothiers and Gents' Furnishiers, Look for the Globe Over The Door, 390 Front Street, Belleville.

Wall Paper

At first sight of our Wall Papers you will say there's an attractiveness about them that puts them lengths ahead of other lines.

IN STOCKING

we select only the best, we have no "shelf warmers" all our Papers are quick sellers. If you choose your Papers from us you have best value for the price obtainable anywhere.

Painting, Paperhanging and Decorating done on shortest notice by best workmen in the city.

JOHN CORNELIUS.
3 Doors South of Intelligencer Office.

NEW GOODS
JAPAN TEA

The first of this season's crop, exta quality, regular 50c line, we quote

40c per lb.

Canned Halibut

Fine solid Fish, very tasty,

15c per can.

J. C. Hanley & Co.
GROCERS
Telephone 214

Flowers & Vegetables
Of all kinds in season.
...AT...
J. D. COLLIP'S.
'Phone 205.

Western Beef.

Prime Western Beef together with all kinds of choice meats, supplied by the district, at

C. GREEN'S
267 Front St., 'Phone 109.

AN IMPORTANT REQUISITE

The Right Way to Make an Introduction.

AN important requisite in good breeding is to know how to acknowledge an introduction and to know how and when to make one.

A hostess always rises and extends her hand with some cordial expression of welcome to the guest who is presented. A man is introduced to a woman in this manner: "Mrs. White, may I present Mr. Reed?" The lady's name is always mentioned first, and the man presented to the woman not vice--versa. When one person is introduced to another it is not necessary for the person seated to rise. An inclination of the head, repeating the name of the one presented, as "Mrs. Blight," "Mr. Reverence is quite sufficient.

When a very old lady or an old gentleman is introduced it is more courteous to rise and acknowledge the introduction. When a hostess is introducing two guests it is well for her to make some remark which will serve to give each one some slight peg on which to hang their conversation. Miss Green, may I present my brother's friend, Mr. Duer? He has just returned from the Philippines. I am sure you have heard us speak of him." This averts the embarrassment of sounding the athletic young man on Wagner or boring the intellectual young woman with the subject of golf.

A married woman should introduce her husband in this manner: "Let me present my husband, Mrs. Mackey? I believe he has not met you—Mrs. Mackey, John." Women are introduced by this form: "Mrs. Pell, you know Mrs. Livingston?" It is ceasing to be the custom to shake hands when introduced, though when one wishes to seem very cordial one may do so with perfect propriety. Off-hand introductions are very bad form. A man should, if possible, always ask permission of his woman friend before introducing any other man.

The Matrimonial Trunk.

Have you a "matrimonial trunk?" A collection of buds which burst through the petals of seclusion into the garden of society at the beginning of the present season is responsible for starting a fashion which will naturally have bany followers.

It came about in this way, according to the explination of one of the young women. The marriage of a friend had led to a revelation in the number and variety of "pretty things gathered by the bride in anticipation of the change in her state. The young woman who wasn't going to be married—at least not just then—was all admiration. When she had told her friends about the lovely things that Mabel had she wondered, somewhat doubtfully, if she would have as nice things at her own wedding.

Her own speculation gave her the idea. "Why of course I can have just as fine," she said suddenly, "and so can all you girls. I'll tell you what we'll do. We'll start to fill a matrimonial trunk."

"What's a matrimonial trunk?" asked the others in chorus.

"That's an invention of the spur of the moment," returned the proposer. "This is what I suggest:—Let each girl set aside from among her trunks one particular trunk which is to contain only those things which are to be part of the trousseau."

"What trousseau?" again demanded the girls. "None of us is engaged."

"Of course not," answered the inventor. "But we will be in the course of time. Such things have been known to happen, you know. Well, when we get married we will not be without finery. If you don't want to use a trunk for the purpose, why, you might take a box from a dry goods store, line it with rose-colored silk and cover it to match the tint of your room.

"Into this box or trunk put now and then a bit of finery. I know what I shall start mine with—that beautiful sandal wood fan I got for my birthday. Then a fine lace handkerchief once in a while, a pair of slippers, or something like that."

"Yes," put in another of the buds. "And I shall put away that elderdown dressing sacque mamma gave me the ther day. I haven't worn it yet, so it will do nicely."

All the others discovered they had something suitable to the purpose, and so the fad of the matrimonial trunk was fairly started. Since the decision was made the girls have been adding to the collections, and they are now in an advanced stage of perfection. Every three months it is the intention of the young women to hold a private exhibition, at which each will be given an opportunity to view the progress made by the others.

The matrimonial trunk is now a thoroughly established institution in certain quarters. The girls, when they get a new piece of finery, tell each other they have something more for the "m. t.," as they have dubbed the receptacle.

Stewed celery is an attractive dish and one easily made. The celery is cut into small pieces and then stewed in a little water until tender, when milk and butter are added. Let it come to a boil and season with salt and pepper.

Coal is worked so easily in China that in Shansi it sells at less than 25 cents per ton at the mines.

"Castles of Sand."

(Written after seeing the picture called "Castles of Sand.")

I.

Castles of Youth and Hope, and Joy,
Castles of Love without alloy,
Built in the heart of a woman; there
They were fashioned with tender care

Built to withstand the blows of Fate,
Built to rebuff the hand of Hate,
With towers of silver, and turrets of gold,
And all the Love that the walls could hold.

'Twas a woman's hand that built them there,
And a woman's thought that made them fair;
For a woman's Faith had strengthened their walls
And a woman's beauty would grace their halls.

But Youth is gone, and Faith is betray'd,
And Joy in its lonely grave is laid,
And Love has come, and laughed, and flown,
And a woman's life is lived out alone.

For a heart grew cold, and slain was Trust,
And the silver and gold all crumbled to dust;
And these castles built by a woman's hand
Are only some mounds of shifting sand.

Castles of sand on a sunny shore
Of golden grains like a hoarded store,
Mounds of shining, glistening sand
That built up the Castles of Day Dream Land.

Sorry for Different Reasons.

One laudable change in England is that a contempt for commerce, which once flourished in the higher social classes, is now everywhere discouraged.

James Payn says that sixty years ago the gilded aristocracy looked down on every one who derived his income from such a source, save bankers, whom they dared not despise. Young men thought themselves heroic in preferring a profession, with probable penury, to an assured competence with their hands soiled by trade. This absurd prejudice is now as much ridiculed by young men as by the old.

One aristocratic youth lately became engaged to the ward of a gentleman belonging to the old school, who thought it necessary to apologize for a certain blot on her scutcheon.

"I have to confess, my dear sir," said he, "that her family has been quite recently connected with trade."

"I am sorry——" began the young man gravely.

"So am I," put in the old gentleman, testily. "But it can't be helped."

"I was about to say," continued the young man, "I am sorry that you should have thought me such a stupendous donkey as to care two-pence about it."—Youth's Companion.

CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY

CAPITAL

10,000 Shares 7 per cent Cumulative Preferred Stock, par value $100 each, $1,000,000
50,000 Shares Common Stock, par value $100, issued and fully paid 5,000,000
TOTAL CAPITALIZATION $6,000,900

Issues of $1,000,000 00 7 p.c. Preferred Stock in 10,000 Shares of $100 each at par.

This stock is preferred both as to Assets and Dividends.

The shares are entitled to cumulative preferred dividends from the net earnings of the Company, at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable half yearly on the first days of April and October. They may, at the option of the holder, be exchanged for common shares. They are subject to be called in, in whole or in parc, by the Company, at $115.00 per share, at any time after 1st January, 1909.

The total issue of Preferred Stock is only $1,000,000.00, the whole of which is now offered.

Subsriptions for 10,000 Shares of $100 each of the 7 per cent. Preferred Stock of the CANADIAN STEEL & COAL COMPANY will now be received at par, that is $100 Share, as follows

per cent on application,
25 " " on allotment,
35 " " 30 days thereafter.
35 " " 60 days thereafter.

One share of Common, par value $100, given with each share of preferred.

The whole of instalments remaining unpaid at any time may be prepaid in full. A discount of one per cent will be allowed upon the par of each share if prepaid at time of allotment

Notice of allotment will be sent promptly by ordinary letter.

COAL

PROPERTY IN FULL OPERATION

Company owns 9,600 acres of coal property known throughout the coal trade as the New Campbellton Colliery, located on Bras D'Or Bay, County of Victoria, Cape Breton, Novia Scotia. Mine is fully equipped, producing and marketing tons of coal a day at a net profit of $1.00 a ton. Improvements are now being made that will increase the output to over 1,000 tons a day. On present output, figuring 300 working days in year, the net result will more than pay interest on entire issue of preferred, with output of 1 000 tons a day net result will be $300,000 per annum.

IRON

RICHEST ORE IN THE WORLD

Company owns in fee simple, free and clear of all incumbrances, 4000 acres of iron ore deposit, located Natashquan (tidewater) situated on North shore of Gulf of St. Lawrence, in the County of Saguney, province of Quebec.

Deposits contain 20,000,000 tons of ore ABOVE SEA LEVEL ALONE.

Quality of ore is highet ever discovered, running from 69 per cent to 72 per cent in metallic iron.

More orders for the sale of this ore has been received by the Campany than can possibly be accepted, and at a price netting the Company a profit of $2 a ton F. O. B. vessels at Company's docks.

Send for prospectus giving full information as to earnings, reports, etc., etc.

Address all communications and send subscriptions to

COLONIAL SECURITIES CO., 62 Wall Street, New York City OR W. L. MARSTON & COMPANY 110 State Street, Boston

The SAWYER COMPANY.
351 Temple Building, Montreal, Canada.

ADVERTISING RATES

Measurement Nonpareil—12 lines to th inch.

Display advertisements, 10c per line.

Subsequent [illegible] insertions, [illegible]

Reading advertisements, 15c per line.

Preferred position, 20 per cent advance upon usual or contract rates.

Minimum space, 10 lines.

Marriages and deaths, 50c each insertion.

Births, 25c each insertion.

Rates for Condensed Advertisement will be found in 1st column of 2nd page.

All advertisements are subject to the approval of the Publisher of the Intelligencer.

Address all communications to the Intelligencer Printing & Publishing House Limited, or to Charles J. Bowell, Managing Director and Treasurer.

Canadians in London will find The Intelligencer on file at E. & J. Hardy & Co.'s Office, 30 Fleet Street, London, E. C.

CONDENSED ADVERTISEMENTS

TERMS.—Twenty-five words or less. 25c first insertion; two insertions, 50c; four insertions, 75c; one week $1.00, two weeks, $1.75, three weeks, $2.25; one month, $2.50. Strictly cash in advance.

WANTED.

Cook, housemaid and laundress at the Belleville General Hospital. Liberal wages offered. Apply to Mrs. Clarke, 91 Victoria Avenue.

100 machinery moulders and coremakers. Steady work. Wages for moulders at least $4.00; coremakers $3.25. Address Post Office Box 511, Toronto. jy9-d10t

$6 per month will buy you a home anywhere under our plan. Live in it while paying for it. Write for prospectus. Canadian Home Builders' Association, Manning Chambers, Toronto. jy11-6t

Have you spare time? Increase your income by work at night. Others are doing it. Our goods are used everyday everywhere. Write G. Marshall & Co., Teas, London, Ont.

Agents wanted, $2.50 per day. Apply Cooper, London, Ont. s27-1y

Young men ambitious to learn lucrative trades, of which there are eight in connection with the business. Apply The Belleville Hardware Company, Belleville, Ont. a7dtf

WANTED Reliable Men in every locality throughout Canada to introduce our goods, tacking up show cards on trees, fences, along roads and all conspicuous places, also distributing small advertising matter. Commission or salary $60.00 per month and expenses, not to exceed $2.50 per day. Steady employment to good, honest reliable men. No experience needful. Write for full particulars. THE EMPIRE MEDICINE CO., London. Ont

FOR SALE OR TO-LET.

Stone house, 11 rooms, coal furnace, stable, barn. Large grounds. Cor. Frank and Moira Sts. north. Terms reasonable. H. Bull, on premises or Fred Bull, 133 Yonge St., Toronto. Terms easy. ap18-dtf

FOR SALE.

Shingles, shingles, dressed lumber, etc. GEO. WALTON & CO. jy14-1md

Two surreys, two phaetons, two buggies, one horse. Apply to H. L. CURRY, Pinnacle street. jy9-8td&16,23w

Dressed and Matched Lumber of all kinds, at ALFORD'S factory, Market Square. jl2-tf

Contractors and masons, any any person requiring lime may procure it from E. G. STAPLEY, Canifton Road, Belleville. New lime always on hand. a9-d&w6m

TO RENT

A house on Moira street containing 8 rooms. All modern conveniences. Possession on or before 20th July.—Adam Henry.. dtf

RAILWAY TIME TABLES.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Time of departure from Belleville Station:

Going East.

New train 12.45 a.m., daily, except Sunday, for Brockville, Montreal and intermediate stations.

No. 16—Local, for Brockville, 7 a.m., arrives back from Brockville 8.40 p.m.

No. 2—1.45 a.m., Mail and Express, (Flyer), Daily.

No. 6—11.43 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.

No. 4—12.22 p.m., International Limited, Daily.

No. 12—5.55 p.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.

Going West.

No. 5—7 a.m., Mail and Express, Daily except Monday.

No. 3—4.10 a.m., Limited Express, Daily.

No. 9—5.50 a.m., Local Passenger, Daily, except Sunday.

No. 11—11.22 a.m., Passenger, Daily except Sunday.

No. 1—1.48 p.m., International Limited, Daily.

No. 7—5.12 p.m., Mail and Express, Daily, except Sunday.

Taking effect 12.01 o'clock, Sunday, June 14, 1903.

MIDLAND RAILWAY.

Belleville and Peterboro.

Going West.

	Leave.	Arr. Peterboro
Mail	5.45 a.m.	8.10 a.m.
Mixed	5.55 p.m.	9.05 p.m.

Going East.

	Arr.	L've Peterboro
Mixed	11.20 a.m.	8.25 a.m.
Mail	4.25 p.m.	2.05 p.m.

Belleville and Madoc.

Going North.

	L've	Arr. Madoc
Mixed	12.20 p.m.	1.20 p.m.
Mixed	6.30 p.m.	7.40 p.m.

Going South.

	Arr.	L've Madoc
Mixed	9.10 a.m.	7.30 a.m.
Mixed	5.00 p.m.	3.45 p.m.

None of the above trains run on Sunday.

It Has a Special Claim on the attention of all Japan tea drinkers.

"SALADA"

Ceylon Natural GREEN tea is superior in infusion to the finest Japan tea grown. It has the advantage of being cleanly prepared and absolutely Pure. Sold only in lead packets the same as the celebrated "SALADA" Black tea at 25c and 40c per lb. By all grocers.

Sunshine Furnace

OPEN DAMPERS—BACK TO BED.

The "Sunshine" consumes so little fuel during the night that plenty remains to make an instant and strong fire when the dampers are opened in the morning. The operator may then return to his warm, cozy bed while the house is heating—heats in 15 or 20 minutes.

Self-acting gas damper works automatically so that disagreeable odors always escape through the gas-pipe — never pass through registers into the house.

The "Sunshine" is simple in construction, easy to operate, requires very little attention and will produce more heat from the same amount of fuel than any other heater.

Costs no more than common furnaces.

Burns Coal, Coke or Wood.

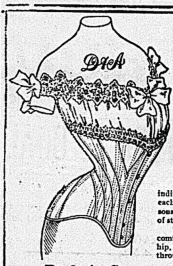
Booklet Free.

McClary's

LONDON, TORONTO, MONTREAL, WINNIPEG, VANCOUVER, ST. JOHN, N. B.

The W. W. CHOWN CO., Limited.

SOLE AGENTS.



The New Long Hip Model

D&A

425 Long Hip

A graceful figure may be spoiled by a rigid Corset.

A poor figure may be made graceful by the proper Corset. D. & A. Corsets beautify, aid and correct according to individual needs; developing in each figure that indefinable personal grace that is the keynote of style.

The New Long Hip model comfortably encompasses the entire hip, showing no ridge or line even through an unlined skirt.

D. & A. Corsets are the BEST

For pure blood, a bright eye, a clear complexion, a keen appetite, a good digestion and refreshing sleep. TAKE

BRISTOL'S Sarsaparilla

It arouses the Liver, quickens the circulation, brightens the spirits and generally improves the health.

Sixty-eight years trial have proved it to be, the most reliable BLOOD purifier known.

All druggists sell "BRISTOL'S."

SPECIAL OFFER

MIDSUMMER CLUBBING RATES.

Two Papers to January 1st, 1904

Family Herald & Weekly Star, and the Best Home Paper—The Weekly Intelligencer, BOTH for

65 CENTS

We are making this special offer as we require 1000 new subscriptions to our Weekly.

This offer is good to new subscribers only.

ADDRESS—— The Weekly Intelligencer

BELLEVILLE, ONT.

No agents handle this offer.

PERSONAL ...AND... SOCIAL.

The Intelligencer invites all its readers to contribute to this column all items of a personal nature, such as the arrival or departure of guests, and the movements of business men, etc. Send a post card to or telephone The Intelligencer.

Mrs. F. Foley spent Sunday at the Islands.

Miss Louise Bacon is visiting friends in Toronto.

Mr. J. Cossman has gone to Montreal on business.

Mrs. L. W. Yeomans will spend some weeks at the Sandbanks.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Hyman left for Wellington to-day. They will be gone until September 1st.

Miss Helen M. Taplin, of Boston, is a visitor at her grandparents, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson, of this city.

Mr Willie Kane has returned to Brownville, N.Y., after spending his holidays in the city visiting his mother.

The name of Miss May Mills is among the successful candidates for first piano examination at the Toronto College of Music. Miss Mills is a pupil of Miss West.

Much to the regret of many friends, Mr. A. C. Baker left our city to-day to reside at Tara, in the County of Bruce. Mrs. Baker and children will not leave for some time.

At the Quinte:—R. G. Wright, G. M. Thomas, A. N. Reay, J. G. Fitzgerald, V. Lyon, L. Couturie, W. C. Bland, C. J. W. Lowes, G. W. Rescott, H. H. Hannon, Æ. L. P. Thompson, F. C. Armstrong, Toronto; H. J. Walker, Warkworth; H. Walker, Fort Dodge, Va.; J. P. Osborne, Madoc; J. J. Egan, Buffalo; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Johnson, Binghampton, N.Y.; A. E. Kennedy, J. S. McKay, W. McBarlow, W. T. Cumming, Montreal; T. M. Howatson, Menominee, Mich.; A. Peddell, Gilmour; Mrs. C. H. Wright, Demorestville.

LATEST NEW YORK STOCK QUOTATIONS

AS FURNISHED TO THE INTELLIGENCER BY H. R. BEATTIE, STOCK BROKER.

New York, July 14.

Stock	Op'g	H'st	L'st	Close
Atchison	65¼	65¼	63½	63⅜
do. pref. ...	90½	90½	89¼	89¼
St. Paul.. ..	144¼	144¼	140½	140½
Mo. P.	101⅞	101¼	98¼	98¼
Union. Pac .	78¾	78¾	77⅛	77⅞
C. P. R.	122	122	119¾	119⅞
South Pac. .	47¼	47¼	45⅜	45¾
R. I.	31⅝	31⅛	30⅛	30⅛
Ills. C.	129½	129¾	126	126½
Sou. Ry. ...	23⅛	23⅛	22⅜	22⅛
Texas........	27	27	25½	25½
B & O.	84	84	82	82¼
N. Y. C.	115¾	116⅞	114⅛	114⅛
Penna	121½	121⅛	119¾	119¾
Soo	55	55	54½	54½
T. W.... ...	98	98	96	96½
Erie	31⅝	31⅞	30¼	30¼
do. pref. ...	66	66½	64½	64½
Reading	49¾	49¾	48⅛	48⅛
C. O.	36⅛	36⅛	35	35
O. & W.	24⅛	24⅛	23⅛	23½
Manhattan ..	133¼	133¼	132	132
W. C.	19⅝	....	....	....
L. & N... ..	108½	108⅛	106½	105¼
A. F.	36	36	35	35
Nos.	64	64	62⅞	62⅞
Wab........	22¼	22¼	21¼	21¼
do pref. ..	40¼	40⅛	39⅛	39½
C. G. W. ..	17⅛	17⅞	17⅛	17½
T.C.I.	49¼	49¼	47¼	47¼
U.S. Stl	29	29½	27⅛	27¼
do pref.....	79½	79½	78	78⅛
Sugar	117⅞	117⅞	115¼	116
B. R. T......	55¼	55¼	51⅛	52⅛
Po	97	97	94¼	95¼
A. C. P. . ..	50¼	50¼	49	49½
Met.........	120½	120½	118¾	118¾
Alc	21¼	21¼	20⅛	20¼

Sept. wheat opened at 77; closed at 77⅛

Sept. corn opened at 50½; closed at 51.

Hastings Redistribution.

A proposition for the following division of the County has been carried by the Redistribution Committee at Ottawa:

West Hastings— City of Belleville, Town of Trenton, Townships of Sidney, Huntingdon, Madoc, Marmora and Lake, Rawdon and Wollaston, and the Villages of Stirling, Marmora and Madoc.

East Hastings—Town of Deseronto, Village of Tweed, Townships of Hungerford, Thurlow, Tyendinaga, Bangor, Wicklow, McClure, Carlow, Dungannon, Elzevir, Grimsthorpe, Faraday, Limerick, Mayo, Monteagle and Herschel, Tudor and Cashell.

CATARRH IS A GERM DISEASE.

Science, armed with the microscope, has established it a fact, and this conclusion renders obsolete the practice of treating asthma, catarrh and bronchitis by stomach drugging, sprays, snuffs, etc. Such treatments are an utter failure because they cannot penetrate the delicate air cells of the lungs, or permeate the air passages of the nose and bronchial tubes, where the germs of catarrh have their stronghold. Catarrhozone is the only certain remedy. It is inhaled by the mouth and after spreading through all the respiratory organs is exhaled through the nostrils. Catarrhozone kills the germs, heals the inflamed tissues, clears the head and throat in two minutes, and cures in a few hours. Nothing is so effective, pleasant and simple as Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment $1.00. Small size 25c. Druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

The chance of two finger-prints being alike is not one in sixty-four billions.

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

Store Closed Every Wednesday During July and August at 12 O'Clock Noon.

SALE ENTHUSIASM

Even the exceedingly warm weather does not effect the buying enthusiasm resultant from our low price offerings.

The factories in Europe and America are already turning out goods destined for our Fall showing

To accommodate these, the goods now left on our shelves must go at once.

This and our rule of not carrying goods past their season are secrets of our low prices and the large crowds daily visiting our store.

These visits mean from 25% to 35% saved on nearly every dollar spent.

Of some goods there are only ends, others of which we had large quantities contain more. All are priced much below regular to clear our shelves for summer goods. A bargain awaits you.

Half Price Muslins and Ginghams.

For us as a Wash Goods season—this has been a distinct success in at least two important features. Firstly, and most important, the ability of our assortment to satisfy all. Secondly, the greatly increased quantity we have sold.

But good stock as they may be now their value passes with the season. So out they go.

A careful inspection has revealed several pieces we are desirous of clearing.

Many of our fine Scotch Ginghams and French Muslins are among these. All are on sale at our Wash Goods counter at just Half Price.

A more deserving offering we have never made.

—Fine Persian stripe colored Muslin suitable for fine Waists, was 50c for .... .25

—Fine Washable Ginghams were 15c, 20c 25c, and 30c for 8c, 10c, 12c, and .... .15

—Fine White Waistings were 15 to 30c for HALF PRICE.

STYLISH HATS

Every day or so some new styles come from the fashion centres to keep our assortment at their "up to-date" point.

The latest arrivals are new Black Chiffon Hats.

Being the latest, the pretty styles and low price will recommend them to all.

—New Black tucked Chiffon Hats plenty of material .. 3.25

—A limited number of flowers, which we desire to clear, some were priced as high as $1 50 while they remain .... .10

—REMEMBER OUR HALF PRICE COLORED MILLINERY.

—A table of odds and ends of trimmings, some were as high as $1.00 yd. for .... .10

REASONS FOR PROSPERITY

There are reasons of the constant healthy growth in the volume of sales from our made-to order clothing department.

One is our REPUTATION for low price dependable goods.

Another, TRUTHFUL ADVERTISING, years have proven to all that if it's in our ad it's true.

Another, probably the most telling reason of all. One which by itself would make these desirable garments.

The excellence in workmanship and fit and high class appearance perceptible in every 20th century article of clothing.

Have we yet convinced you that this feature of wholesale tailoring will save you dollars on your next suit without injuring your self respect.

If not five minuite in this departmet will do so.

—Samples of the very latest cloths to choose from, made from your measure, $10.00 to $25.00

UNDERWEAR

MEN'S UNDERWEAR.

The Underwear problem either HAS or IS bothering most men these days.

If you purchased here, remember our guarantee goes with whatever you have.

If you have not bought your supply come in and see what our IDEAL buying and selling methods can save you even on the cheapest.

Every desireable brand is represented, and all marked at prices which have won this store its reputation for low cash selling.

Here is a cool line.

—Men's fine fish net Underwear with ½ length sleeves at 50c and .... 1.00 per suit.

—Fine Balbriggan Underwear for men and boys at per garment .38

—Sale Agents for Linocelle Underwear, made from pure Irish linen the best on the market, per garment 2.50

BATHING SUITS

Feel like going for a swim these warm days?

We have just the bathing suit you want at a moderate price.

Perhaps you are off for a vacation. If so there is no more important part of your outfit than this if you are going anywhere near the water. All kinds in stock—we mention these.

—Boys' swimming Trunks with elastic tops 7c, 10c, 15c, .. 20

—Men's and Boy's Bathing Suits, one piece 50c and 65c, two pieces .... .125

Agents for Standard Patterns.

The Ritchie Co'y. Limited

CLOTHING BOUGHT HERE PRESSED FREE OF CHARGE

Everything Is Thoroughly Good

That's certain, at QUICK & ROBERTSON'S—we are more particular about giving than you are in getting it perhaps.

But there are other reasons why you should buy at this store where quality is the first consideration.

We not only make goodness certain by applying every known test for quality, but are equally as careful to price that goodness as common as the ordinary sorts are priced elsewhere.

HERE are a few suggestions of summer fixin's that should interest men and mothers of boys.

FOR BOYS.

Vacation Suits and other wear, things that after good hard wear show the difference between our good sorts at our common prices and cheap sorts, which cost a little less.

—Regulation Sailor Blouse Suits, Cheviot mixtures, stripes and serges, ... $1.25 to $4.50

—Norfolk Jackets, single and double-breasted suits for older boys, extensive showing of plain and fancy mixtures .... $2.00 to $5.00

—Washable Sailor Suits 50c to $1.50.

—Wash Waists and Blouses, 25c to $1.00.

FOR MEN.

—SUMMER SUITS—Such as are impossible to obtain except at the best custom tailors—perfect fitting, stylish garments, suited to men who want the out-of-the-ordinary sorts. Homespuns, Tropical Serges, Worsteds and Flannels.......................... $3.75 to $12.00

—OUTING TROUSERS $1.00 to $4.00.

—NEGLIGE SHIRTS—In stripes and patterned materials, such as custom shirt makers would show you as their newest—plain or plaited bosoms......... 50c to $1.50

—STRAW HATS—Every one new, the largest assortment of the smartest shapes the best makers have produced.

Sailors, in low crown .... 50c to $2.00

Panama shape, the right ones .... 75c to $2.50

QUICK & ROBERTSON

Here is where you buy Johnston's Clothing for Men and Boys.

Warm Weather Specials.

Refrigerators

Oil Stoves

Lawn Hose

Lawn Mowers

Window Screens

Screen Doors

Ice Cream Freezers

These goods are goods of quality and are all marked at tempting warm weather prices.

The W. W. CHOWN Company, Limited

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines, or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

Died in Manitoba.

Word was received here to-day announcing the death of Mr. Wm. Henry, which ocerred at Tyndall, Man., yesterday. Deceased was taken off suddenly. Mr. Henry was about 70 years of age. Some 20 years ago he moved from this city to the west, where he has since resided.

CRAMPS ARE LIKE BURGLARS.

They come unexpected and when they are least welcome. Be armed with a one-minute cure for cramps and keep Polson's Nerviline handy; it acts instantaneously. Nerviline's anodyne power is unique, for its composition expresses the highest medical progress of the age. Polson's Nerviline is a true comfort in the family, for in all derangements of the stomach and bowels it is an absolute specific. Nerviline has five times greater medicinal value than any other remedy and is sold in large 25 cent bottles. Try it.

Summer Necessities

BATH SPONGES
SEA SALT
CHAMOIS
TALCUM POWDERS
TOILET WATERS
TOOTH BRUSHES
TOOTH POWDERS
WITCH HAZEL CREAM.

—AT—

WATERS'

Notice.

Beginning on Monday, the 20th day of July, Messrs.

GREENLEAF & SON

will (excepting Saturdays) close their store at 7 o'clock p.m.

Parties wishing to rent wheels will have to arrange for them before that hour.

CITY AND DISTRICT.

Advertisements under this heading TWO CENTS A WORD; subsequent consecutive insertions ONE CENT A WORD. No locals charged as less than twenty-five words.

The police last evening answered a call to Benjamin street, but their services were not required.

There were a large number of sellers and buyers upon the market to-day.

Don't forget the G.T.R. Employees' popular old-time picnic to Massassaga Park, Wednesday, July 22nd. Boats leaving Rathbun's dock dourly. See games programme. 14,16,18,20,21

Napanee excursion, Str. Aletha, Wednesday afternoon, July 15th. Remember date. Most popular trip of season.

According to the Government returns, the Mutual Life of Canada did the second largest amount of new business in this country last year, and did it on the lowest ratio of expense of any of them, and paid the largest dividends showing it to be the most profitable company to insure in. S. Burrows, General Agent.

Do your shopping Wednesday mornings during July and August, as stores will close at noon on those days. je25-5tw&etd6t

Take notice that a meeting of all horsemen interested in the Circuit Races to take place here on August 12th and 13th, are requested to meet at Hotel Quinte on Tuesday evening the 14th inst. at 8 p.m. to fix the programme and complete arrangements for the meet. All horsemen will kindly attend and show their support in this coming event.

WILLIAM CARNEW,
Secretary.

j13-14

Best Wednesday holiday excursion, July 22nd, up the bay, through canal and into Lake Ontario with I.O.O.F. Band. Tickets 25c. Auspices of Christ Church. Str. Aletha leaves Corby's wharf at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Vans to convey ticket holders leave Taylor's and McGinnis' corners at 8.30 a.m. Moonlight excursion to Deseronto with band at 8 p.m. 10 1n.

Card of Thanks.

Miss de Pencier wishes to thank her many friends for the practical expressions of their good wishes given her on Saturday evening, also for the many kind words of appreciation for the past and interest in her future welfare.

KEEP YOUR EYES OPEN and be sure that when you ask for Perry Davis' Painkiller you get just that and nothing else. Use it promptly to cure cramps, diarrhoea and all other bowel complaints in summer.

CIVIC LEGISLATORS IN SESSION.

Many Matters of Importance Brought Forward and Disposed of.

Rolling Mills Forfeit Has Been Placed in the Sinking Fund.

Street Rail Project Left in Abeyance for a Few Days.

At the Council meeting last night considerable business of importance was transacted. Mayor Graham and all the Aldermen, with the exception of Dr. Galbraith, who has removed from the city, were in attendance.

In the absence of the City Clerk, Mr. D. B. Robertson, owing to illness, Mr. H. P. Thomas acted as Clerk.

The following communications were read:

A communication was read from the Belleville Cement Company, re street rails. It was to the effect that the company would take a lease of the rails for such time as the company, their successors or assigns, would require to use them and pay for their use $10 per ton long ton weight; also same price for plates, spikes, etc., and in addition would give $250 to assist in repairing the street after rails are taken up. The company also further agreed to take up the rails at their own expense, and enter into an agreement that if at any time after operations are commenced by the mill it should be shut down for the space of 12 months, then the rails would revert to the city free of charge.

From Dr. Gibson, stating that Mr. Robertson, City Clerk, was ill and would not be in a position to resume his duties for some time.

From Ald. Galbraith, tendering his resignation as a member of the Council, owing to removal from the city.

From Messrs. F. D. Diamond and J. H. Starling, asking for an extension of time for return of tax rolls.

From Mr. A. V. Pearce, of Toronto, offering to purchase from the city a portion of a lot on Pinnacle street for the erection of an elevator. He offered $50 for the portion of the lot he required.

From H. K. Wick & Co., offering to supply the city with bituminous coal at $2.75 f.o.b. at Niagara Falls.

From Dr. McKeown, in reference to a drain on Grove street.—Referred to the Board of Health.

From Mr. D. B. Robertson, City Clerk, asking the Council to grant him leave of absence, owing to illness.

From Messrs. C. Bogart and J. H. Starling, asking to be appointed City Clerk during Mr. Robertson's illness.

From the city teamsters, asking that they be paid $3.00 per day for their teams. — Referred to Public Works Committee.

From a number of ratepayers, asking that a light be placed at the corner of Purdy and Yeomans streets. —Referred to Light Committee.

On motion Council went into Committee of the Whole on reports, Ald. Sinclair in the chair.

The report of the Waterworks Committee was first taken up, and the various accounts passed without discussion.

The recommendation that Ald. Sulman be Chairman of the Committee in place of Ald. Galbraith, resigned, prevailed. Ald. Marsh was added to the committee.

Under the head of Public Works, the question of procuring lumber was brought up.

Ald. Panter stated that the price of lumber this year was $18 per thousand. This was the lowest price he was able to secure the lumber.

On motion the scrapings from off Front street were ordered to be placed on the park.

Ald. Panter thought that the expense should be charged to the Park Committee, but Ald. Pope objected. It was decided to place it upon the park.

On motion it was decided to repair Victoria avenue from Front to Church streets, instead of to Pinnacle street, as the committee recommended.

John street was ordered to be macadamized from Dundas street to Victoria avenue.

The Market Committee's recommendation that Ald. Green be Chairman of the committee in place of Ald. Sulman was adopted without discussion.

The resignation of Ald. Galbraith was read.

Ald. Panter moved that the resignation be accepted.—Carried.

Ald. Chown moved, seconded by Ald. Pope, that Ald. Sulman be Chairman of the Waterworks Committee. —Carried.

The resignation of Ald. Sulman as Chairman of the Market Committee was accepted, and Ald. Green was voted as Chairman.

The following accounts were passed:

S. Stocker	$4.25
J. Weir	100.00
Wm. McGie	75

The City Clerk.

The communication from the City Clerk, re leave of absence, was considered.

Ald. Pope moved, seconded by Ald. Sulman, that the Clerk be granted leave of absence until the 1st of September, and that his salary be continued.—Carried.

Chief of Police.

Mayor Graham stated that the Chief of Police was in ill-health and contemplated taking a trip to the Old Country. The Council might feel disposed to take some action in the matter.

A motion prevailed that the Police Commissioners be requested to grant the Chief two months' leave of absence, and that his salary be continued.

The motion was unanimously carried.

City Clerk pro tem.

The question of appointing someone to act as City Clerk until Mr. Robertson resumes office was discussed.

Ald. Chown stated that Mr. Mikel had intimated that he would have time to do the work.

Mayor Graham was in favor of ex-Ald. Starling being appointed, but he understood the law prevented a Tax Collector from acting as City Clerk.

The Solicitor said that such was the case, and read the section bearing upon the case.

Ald. McFee thought that the vacancy in the Council should be filled before any more business was transacted.

The Solicitor said that the Clerk had to notify the candidate who received the next highest number of votes to the Aldermen-elect, and he had 10 days in which to reply.

Ald. Panter suggested that Mr. H. P. Thomas be appointed Clerk pro tem.

Mayor Graham moved that Mr. C. Bogart be appointed Clerk.

Ald. McFee moved in amendment that Mr. Mikel act as City Clerk.

Ald. Panter moved in amendment to the amendment that Mr. H. P. Thomas act as Clerk.

Upon a vote being taken, Mr. Mikel was selected as Clerk.

The communication of the Cement Company, re leasing of the street rails was considered and discussed at some length.

Ald. Chown said that the Council had not yet received an answer from the Toronto Solicitor in reference to the selling or leasing of the rails, and he moved that the matter be deferred until that answer was received.

Ald. McFee said it was time something was done in reference to these rails. The rails are sticking up and are a nuisance to the street. This trifling with the Cement Company or any other company he did not like. This company is employing men and is helping the city, and if there is any favor to be granted they should receive it. The rails were a monument to danger on account of the height above the roads. He moved that the offer of the Cement Company be accepted.

Ald. Pope said the Council had passed a resolution to procure a legal a legal opinion from Toronto in reference to the rails and the city's position in the matter. He was inclined to assist the Cement Company, but he thought it would be imprudent to do anything until we had the legal opinion from Toronto.

In answer to an enquiry from Ald. McFee, the solicitor said the Council might lease the rails. Mr. Fullerton, of Toronto, to whom the matter had been referred, had been asked this question with others.

Ald. McFee said he had no stock in the Cement Company although he considered it good stock. This matter should be disposed of.

Ald. Panter thought that all the members of the Council desired to favor the Cement Company. Our solicitor had given his opinion that we had not the right to sell, but if he was prepared to say the Council had a right to lease the rails, he (Ald. Panter) was prepared to accede to the request of the Cement Company.

Ald. Marsh was opposed to the taking up of the rails. He would support Ald. Chown's motion.

Ald. Panter asked the solicitor if the Council had the right to lease the rails.

The solicitor would not like to say off hand that the Council had that power. The Council had the right no doubt to take them up and store them. The question of leasing them might conflict with the bouns by-law.

Ald. Chown was in favor of the Cement Company, but the advice of Mr. Fullerton was necessary upon the matter.

Mr. McNab addressed the Council, stating that the company would not press the matter for a few days. The Council might, if they desired, take the rails up and the company would store them.

Ald. McFee withdrew his amendment and Ald. Chown's motion to defer the matter for a few days prevailed.

Coal Supply.

The question of purchasing coal for use at the pump house, as per offer from Wick & Co. was referred to a special committee composed of the Mayor, Aldermen Sulman and Chown.

Elevator Scheme.

The proposition of Mr. A. V. Pearce to purchase a strip of land belonging to the city, upon which to erect an elevator, was considered.

Ald. Chown said the property in question was situated near the canning factory. He moved that the offer be accepted.

Mr. Pearce addressed the Council, stating that he was prepared to start immediately in erecting an elevator if his offer was accepted.

Ald. Chown's motion prevailed.

St. Agnes School.

Ald. Pope spoke in support of granting the request of the St. Agnes School Company to connect with the Bridge Street sewer. The request for free water and for the purchase of the first cement made at Point Ann could be dealt with later on. He moved that the work of connecting with Bridge Street sewer be done under the direction of the Surveyor and the company bear the expense.—Carried.

The Committee rose and reported. Report received and adopted.

Enquiries.

Ald. Pope asked if the weeds along the sides of streets were to be cut.

Ald Panter—They are being cut.

Ald. Cooper asked when the crossing from the Upper Bridge across Moira Street was going to be repaired.

The surveyor—It will be attended to in a day or two.

By-Laws.

Three by-laws were introduced by Ald Chown, namely, two for the extension of the rolls and one to convey a piece of property to Mr. A. W. Pearce.

These by-laws were passed through their various stages and numbered 1095, 1096 and 1097.

Ald. Cooper was in the chair in Committee of the Whole on By-Laws.

Motions.

Ald. McFee moved, seconded by Ald Sinclair, that the $2,500 received as a forfeit from Messrs. Kirkwood & Boland re rolling mills be transferred to the sinking fund.—Carried.

Ald. Chown moved, seconded by Ald. McFee, that in the opinion of the Municipal Council of the City of Belleville, no rights or control of municipalities over their streets should be taken away, and that railway companies should not have the power to interfere with the streets until the Council of the municipality has passed a by-law and the same has been assented to by the ratepayers and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Honorable members for West and East Hastings, with the request to endeavor to have the Railway Committee Bill amended accordingly.—Carried.

Ald. Panter moved, seconded by Ald. Pope, that this Council regrets exceedingly the resignation of Ald. Galbraith as a member of this body and his removal from the city, he having proved himself a prudent, energetic and painstaking alderman, and that a copy of this motion be forwarded to the said gentleman.—Carried.

Ald. Pope moved, seconded by Ald. Panter, that this Council do hereby instruct their solicitor to take the necessary proceedings to set aside that portion of the by-law and agreement referring to the rolling mills bonus, and to have same withdrawn, and that the money now on deposit in the Bank of Montreal, being proceeds from the sale of the the rolling mills debentures be used for the purpose of immediately redeeming so much of the said debentures as can be bought with the said money. And that T. M. Kirkwood be notified at once of the action of this Council and a copy of this motion be at once forwarded to said Kirkwood, and that in the meantime the solicitor do not act until Kirkwood has had a week to reply.

The motion was unanimously adopted after several of the members had spoken in reference to Mr. Kirkwood's action in the matter.

Mayor Graham stated that Mr. Kirkwood had received a bonified offer of over $50,000 for the mills but wanted $80,000. He appeared to want to sell the city's $30,000 bonus with the mill, which was not earned unless the mills were in operation.

Ald. Pope and Panter spoke in a similar strain, the latter had thought that Mr. Kirkwood should not be given many days latitude in the matter.

Public Bath.

Ald. Pope spoke at some length urging the necessity of the erection of a public bath. The expenditure, probably $400, would in his opinion, be a wise one. He moved, seconded by Ald. Sinclair, that the report of the special committee upon the matter be adopted.

Ald. McFee rose to a point of order. The report he said had received a six months hoist and it could not be adopted unless that motion was rescinded.

After some discussion the motion was defeated, but three voting for it namely, Ald. Pope, Panter and Sinclair.

Ald. Pope asked that it stand as a notice of motion.

Ald. Marsh moved, seconded by Ald. Sulman? That the Council of the City of Belleville, having learned of the 7th donation of Sir Gilbert and Lady Parker to its Public Library, wish to take this opportunity of expressing their thorough appreciation of their knidness. The library having now been made a free one, we feel that the generosity of Sir Gilbert and Lady Parker is fully appreciated by the citizens of Sir Gilbert's native city. That the Clerk be instructed to forward to Sir Gilbert and Lady Parker a copy of this motion.—Carried.

Notice of Motion.

Ald. McFee gave notice that he will at the next meeting of the Council, move that the Assessment Commissioners for the City of Belleville do forthwith furnish the Council with a detailed statement showing first the time occupied by each assessor and the amount paid each of them; second a detaled statement of all the expenses of the Commission of every kind.

Council adjourned.

Lost Hair "My hair came out badly, and was fast turning gray. I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor. It stopped the hair from coming out and restored the color."—Mrs. M. D. Gray, No. Salem, Mass.

$1. All druggists. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

A GOOD WATERPROOF COAT.

Here is a special in a good waterproof. We just received to-day at the Oak Hall a genuine English waterproof, dark grey color, velvet collar, cuffs and raglan pockets. This coat will keep out the wet. Regular $7.50. Price to move quickly, only $5. See these and other lines just received.

Killed at Bracebridge.

On Friday last at Bracebridge Mr. James W. Bygott, of Stirling, was struck by a G. T. R. freight train and killed. Deceased was an elderly man and father of Mr. J. M. Bygott, who is station agent at Bracebridge. The remains arrived at Stirling yesterday and were interred to-day.

1,000 ISLANDS AND ROCHESTER.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian" leave Belleville for Thousand Islands at 3.25 h.m., daily except Mondays. Fare $1.00. Returning Str. leaves at 11.30 p.m. for Rochester, N.Y. m26d&w3m

Lost chances never leave any trail.

Big Sale of Photos

Great Bargains in all the latest designs.

A chance of a lifetime to secure high-grade Photos at the price of the ordinary kind.

From July 15th until further notice we will offer the following great snap in Photos.

Regular $4.00 Cabinets	$2.99 a doz.
Regular $3.50 Cabinets	$2.49 a doz.
Regular $3.00 Cabinets	$1.99 a doz.
Regular $2.00 Panels	$1.49 a doz.

All other sizes and styles at the same cut rate. This studio has gained a reputation for high-grade work, and the same quality of work will be made during this sale.

Every Photo. made satisfactory to our customers and our guarantee stamp on every one.

C. J. SMITH

Studio next to Dicken's Restaurant. PHOTOGRAPHER.

The Finnegan Carriage & Wagon Co.

—FOR—

Stylish and Durable Turnouts.

—Surreys
—Corning Buggies
—Piano Box Buggies
—Rubber Tire Buggies
—Micadoes
—Phaetons
—Bike Buggies
—Democrats
—Grocer Wagons
—Butcher Wagons.

Cheese Factory Milk Wagons.
Steel Tubular Axle Lumber Wagons,

Rubber Tires put on your old wheels at reasonable prices.

Mill St., - - Belleville

GLASGOW WAREHOUSE.

— AT —

LAIDLAW & KETCHESON'S

Just received from Manchester, England, several pieces of White Mercerized Mattings in fine, coarse and fancy weaves, to retail at - - 25c the yd

ALSO Wool Yak Laces

From Germany, these are the popular trimmings for Shirt Waists and Dresses, in great demand, to retail at 10c to 20c the yd.

The latest New York Style in Collars for the Ladies wear. "The Pauline."

We ask your special attention to the three foregoing items.

Laidlaw & Ketcheson

DIRECT IMPORTERS

Daily Intelligencer.

THE INTELLIGENCER IS SOLD AT J. W. London's and G. Wardhaugh's.

Local Reading Advertisements,

ords 50 cents; 2 cents per word first insertion, per word subsequent consecutive insertions. Headlines count as 12 words; contracts for long periods made at office.

Rowntree's Empress Queen Chocolate

A dainty package, a delicious eating chocolate, a convenient price, 10c a package.

CHAS. S. CLAPP

PERFECT TALCUM POWDER

If you wish a talcum powder that will heal and soothe and not irritate, that makes the skin soft and smooth instead of dry and harsh, that is practically invisible, that is antiseptic and delightfully perfumed, you will find just what you are looking for in our EUTHYMOL TALCUM POWDER—This exquisite preparation is dainty and perfectly harmless—good for babies or adults. It is as good a powder as can be bought anywhere at any price It costs but 25c for a box with a sifting top.

McKEOWN'S DRUG STORE.

The Sun & Hastings Savings and Loan Co. of Ontario.

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL

$5,000,000.

3 1-2 per cent. allowed on Deposits, payable on Call,

4 per cent, on Deposits for one year or over.

Money to Loan upon favorable terms.

OFFICE, No. 46 Bridge St., Belleville,

J. P. C. PHILLIPS,
Manager Belleville Branch.

MONITOR

This is another fine Mantle Clock, not quite so expensive as Gadski in last week's advertisement, but fully as serviceable. It is an eight-day hour and half strike on cathedral gong, fancy columns with trimmings and drop handles, in every way a beautiful clock. Our price only $5 50.

T. BLACKBURN.

Eyes examined free of charge. Jeweller & Optician.

Going to Make Room!

Our Import Goods are coming too fast, that we are getting crowded for room.

We will have to make a big sacrifice in our China and Crockery department, slaughter will be the word.

Cost price or any other price will not be taken into account, come and get China and Crockery—at ridiculous prices.

McINTOSH BROS.

A Queer Conventionality.

THE royal English family is exceedingly domestic and affectionate; but there had developed among its members and the people connected with the court a strange surface dread of meeting the Queen, which was perfectly incomprehensible to outsiders. It was quite real on the part of her children, and was probably a remnant of their rather stern bringing up. The efforts they made to vanish into thin air when the Queen came upon them unawares were most ludicrous. From them the entourage caught the same spirit, which led to many amusing incidents. Says a writer in the "Century Magazine:" We were coming home from Whippingham Church, designed and built by Prince Albert, and where Princess Beatrice had been married the year before, when we suddenly came upon a royal group walking leisurely ahead toward Osborne Cottage. Naturally we slackened our pace, when, to our dismay, we saw looming up in the opposite direction certain white ponies and outriders. Caught between two fires, we paused a moment, took in the situation, and decided quickly that we had just time to scramble in safely before the Queen's carriage could draw up at the door. Seeing that the advance party had already turned into the vine-covered porch, we gave wings to our heels and bolted in, too, and there suddenly came upon the whole company saying good-bye to one another, nearly knocking them over in our mad haste. Prince —— and H.R.H. the —— of ——, seeing our breathless condition, and at the same time hearing horses' hoofs approaching, quickly guessed what the frightful danger was and left their conversation unfinished, having in common with us only one idea, that of getting out of the Queen's sight at once." Poor people or perfect strangers the Queen never minded seeing at all. It was only those whom she knew about that she did not care to encounter, as it would put her in the awkward position of being discourteous and passing them by, or else force her to stop and talk with them, when she felt disinclined to do so. Hence, out of deference to the Queen's supposed feelings, arose the etiquette prescribing that one must never be seen on her path. This grew into a stereotyped rule.

Wisdom From the Orient.

TAKING Chinese proverbs as they are found in the literature of that nation, they contain many gems of wisdom that cannot be claimed by any Western people.

A peculiar proverb exposing the works of Chinese idolatry runs as follows: "A maker of graven images does not worship the gods; he knows what they are made of." Speaking thus in regard to his make-believe gods, the Chinaman disposes of his real divinities in a manner equally quaint. The saying is attributed to Confucius: "Respect the gods, but keep them at a distance." Some of the proverbs of Cathay are remarkable for their insight. For instance, the following is by no means shallow: "The man of first-rate excellence is virtuous independent of instruction; he of the middling class becomes so after instruction. The lowest order of man is vicious in spite of instruction." Here, too, is a truth which carries far in a work-a-day world: "A single conversation across the table with a wise man is better than ten years' mere study of books." Again, the following is an example of much that might almost have been made to Socrates' order: "When the work of merit is done and reputation is coming, to get out of the way is the high road to Heaven." And, setting aside the wisdom of the wise, we find the last commentary of the pessimistic Chinaman on things in general in the following concise form: "For every soul that Heaven creates Earth provides a grave."

"L'Ouvrage."

The god of heart's desire, ignored, doth wait,
Whilst sated Wealth within the palace gate
Lures dreamless sleep in vain, and 'wails his fate.

Whilst he (to whom this god's an unloved guest),
His brawn would barter, and his hungry zest,
For Wealth's soft, silken pillows of unrest.

"Splendid and terrible, the wage I deal;
To some, a curse, for others, balm to heal;
To-day, I hide; to-morrow, I reveal."
—Richard Scrace.

A Novel Enterprise.

"Harper's Bazar" states that a young woman in a Western city is adding very appreciably to an otherwise moderate income by making sandwiches. As usual with these nondescript businesses, the occupation came by chance. It fell to her lot once or twice to furnish sandwiches as her contribution to one or two fairs and festivals, and their excellence aroused comment. Then friends coaxed her into sandwich service now and then, till at last she took advantage of her evident specialty and became a professional at it. Many of her combinations are original, one of the moment being chopped pineapple mixed with a delicate cream cheese, the variety that is made from whipped cream. She does all the work herself, even to the designing of attractive little cards decorated with a seasonable flower upon which she prints in dainty script her assortment with prices. The success of her work undoubtedly lies in the limitation which she puts upon it—she will take no more orders than she can fill herself, and each sandwich which leaves her hand is as perfect as if it were the only one. She finds a demand for her products throughout the year, picnic sandwiches being one of her most frequent orders.

Mrs. Pretty—Isn't it strange? Mrs. Beauti has not put on mourning for her husband. Mr. Pretty—I understand that her late husband particularly requested that she should not. Mrs. Pretty—The brute! I s'pose he knew how lovely she would look in it.—'Pick-Me-Up."

She Dusted.

A few days ago a well-known Washington woman, being unexpectedly bereft of her kitchen assistance, advertised for a colored woman capable of performing general housework.

The first caller in response to the advertisement was a mulatto damsel, bedecked with ribbon and finery. From her airs and graces she might have been a graduate from a seminary. She announced that she had noticed the advertisement and was desirous of securing employment.

"Are you a good cook?" inquired the lady of the house.

"No, indeed, I don't cook," was the reply.

"Are you a good washer and ironer?" was the next query.

"I wouldn't do washing and ironing; it's too hard on the hands," declared the caller.

"Can you sweep?" the housewife then wanted to know.

"No," was the answer, and it was a positive one. "I'm not strong enough for that.

"Well, in the name of goodness, what can you do?" said the lady of the house, exasperated. The placid reply was:

"I dusts."

Another Mean Man.

"I found my hat where I had mislaid it myself."

"Did you apologize to your wife with due humility?"

"No; I had the humility all right, but I hadn't the time to hear all she would want to say on the subject."—Chicago Record.

Easily Remedied.

Dr. Bloomfield, Bishop of London half a century ago, was a man of much wit, and also had a keen appreciation of wit in other people, whatever their walk in life might be.

Once when a new church in his diocese was to be consecrated the Bishop received several letters complaining that the architect of the new church had disfigured the interior and exterior with "useless gewgaw." Consequently the Bishop went down to the little town to make an inspection of the building, and summoned the architect to meet him there."

The Bishop could find nothing amiss with the exterior of the church, nor with the interior, until just as he reached the chancel he looked up and saw four wooden images apparently guarding the pulpit.

"What do those figures represent?" he inquired.

"The four evangelists, my lord," replied the architect.

"They appear to be asleep," said the Bishop.

"Do you think so, my lord?"

"That's the way they look to me," said the Bishop, decidedly.

"John," called the architect to a man who was at work on one of the pews, "bring your chisel and open the eyes of the evangelists."—Youth's Companion.

"There's the luckiest man in seven counties," said an Arkansas man to an Eastern traveler.

"How so?"

"Had his house burned down the other night an' lost six children, suh."

"But where does his luck come in?"

"Saved his coon dog, suh; saved his

FOR WOMEN

Much That Every Woman Desires to Know

About Sanative Antiseptic Cleansing

And about the Care of the Skin, Scalp, Hair and Hands.

Too much stress cannot be placed on the great value of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent in the antiseptic cleansing of the mucous surfaces and of the blood and circulating fluids, thus affording pure, sweet and economical local and constitutional treatment for weakening ulcerations, inflammations, itchings, irritations, relaxations, displacements, pains and irregularities peculiar to females. Hence the Cuticura remedies have a wonderful influence in restoring health, strength and beauty to weary women, who have been prematurely aged and invalided by these distressing ailments, as well as such sympathetic afflictions as anæmia, chlorosis, hysteria, nervousness and debility.

Women from the very first have fully appreciated the purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy which have made the Cuticura remedies the standard skin cures and humour remedies of the civilized world.

Millions of women use Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening and soothing red, rough and sore hands, for annoying irritations, and ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet, bath and nursery.

Cuticura Resolvent, liquid and in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap are sold throughout the world. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Australia, R. Towns & Co., Sydney; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chemical Corp., Sole Proprietors.
Send for "A Book for Women."

In the British army 90,000 men have good conduct badges.

THE MARKETS.

Wheat Prices Tumbled Nearly 3 Cents at Chicago—British Markets Steady—The Latest Quotations.

Monday Evening, July 13.

Liverpool wheat futures closed ⅛d to ¼d higher to-day than Saturday, and corn futures unchanged to ⅜d lower.

At Chicago, Sept. wheat closed 2½c lower than Saturday, Sept. corn 1⅛c lower, and Sept. oats ½c lower.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

London—Close—Wheat on passage, buyers withdrawn. Parcels No. 1 hard Manitoba, passage, 31s 7½d. Maize on passage quiet but steady. Spot American mixed, 22s 6d. Flour, spot Minn., 27s.

Paris—Holiday.

Antwerp—Wheat, spot steady; No. 2 R. W., 16½f.

THE VISIBLE SUPPLY.

As compared with a week ago, the visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States has decreased 1,659,000 bushels; corn increased 229,000 bushels; oats decreased 8000 bushels. Following is a comparative statement for the week ending to-day, the preceding week and the corresponding week of last year:

	July 13,'03.	July 6,'03.	July 12,'02
Wheat, bu. .	14,311,000	15,970,000	19,808,000
Corn, bu. ...	7,447,000	7,218,000	5,836,000
Oats, bu. ...	4,346,000	2,545,000	1,293,000

To recapitulate the visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States, together with that afloat to Europe, is 43,511,000 bushels, against 46,450,000 a week ago, and 50,912,000 bushels a year ago.

LEADING WHEAT MARKETS.

Following are the closing quotations at important wheat centres to-day:

	Cash.	July.	Sept.	Dec.
New York	....	....	....	....
Chicago	....	....	77	76⅝
Toledo	77¼	77¼	78	78¼
Duluth, No. 1 N.	86	86	77⅝	74⅛

LIVERPOOL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

Liverpool, July 13.—Close—Wheat—Spot dull; No. 2 red western winter, 6s 2d; No. 1 Cal., 6s 6½d. Futures quiet; July 6s 6⅝d, Sept. 6s 3⅛d, Dec. 6s 3⅝d. Corn—Spot quiet; American mixed, 4s 7⅜d. Futures quiet; July 4s 7½d, Sept. 4s 6d. Bacon—Long clear middles, light, steady, 51s; short clear backs quiet, 48s 6d; shoulders, square, quiet, 37s. Lard—Prime western, in tierces, easy, 38s. Cheese—Dull; American finest white, 47s 6d; do., colored, 49s 6d. Hops—At London, Pacific Coast firm, £5 15s to £6.

The imports of wheat into Liverpool last week were 33,200 quarters from Atlantic ports and 84,000 from other ports. The imports of corn from Atlantic ports last week were 81,500 quarters.

TORONTO ST. LAWRENCE MARKET.

Grain—

Wheat, red, bush..........	$0 76 to	$0 77
Wheat, white, bush.......	0 77	....
Wheat, spring, bush.......	0 70	0 72
Wheat, goose, bush.......	0 70	....
Barley, bush.	0 42½	....
Beans, bush.	1 30	1 50
Beans, hand-picked.......	1 75	....
Peas, bush.	0 78½	....
Rye, bush.	0 45	....
Oats, bush.	0 36½	0 37

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Easier—Prices Without Material Change at Montreal.

London, July 13.—Live cattle easier at 11c to 12c per lb. for American steers, dressed weight; Canadian steers, 10c to 11½c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 9⅝c per lb. Sheep, 10½c to 12c.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, July 13.—About 55 head of butchers' cattle, 200 calves and 600 sheep and lambs were offered for sale at the East End Abattoir to-day. Trade was rather dull and the prices continue without material change since Thursday's market. A few choice steers were sold to-day at 5¼c per lb., but they were of better quality than usual. Prime beeves sold at about 5c per lb. Medium cattle at from 3½c to 4½c, and the common stock at from 2½c to 3⅛c per lb. Calves sold at from $2 to $10 each, or from 3c to 5c per lb. Sheep sold at from 3c to 3⅝c per lb. Lambs sold at from $2.25 to near $4 each, or at from 4c to over 4½c per lb. Fat hogs were not plentiful, and sold at from 5½c to a little over 5⅝c per lb.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, July 13.—Cattle—Receipts, 3700 head; active; 15c to 25c higher; stockers and feeders steady; prime and shipping steers, $4.90 to $5.40; butchers' steers, $4.25 to $4.90; cows and heifers, $2.75 to $4.75; bulls, $3.25 to $4.25; stockers and feeders, $3.25 to $4.10; stock heifers, $2.60 to $3.25; fresh cows and springers, $2 to $3 per head higher; good to choice, $45 to $52; medium to good, $30 to $42; common, $18 to $28.

Veals—Receipts, 755 head; stronger; $5 to $6.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 11,900 head; pigs and Yorkers active, 5c to 10c higher; others dull, 5c to 10c lower; heavy, $5.50 to $5.55; mixed, $5.60 to $5.65; Yorkers, $6.05 to $6.20; pigs, $6.40 to $6.50; roughs, $4.75 to $5; stags, $4 to $4.25; dairies, $5.50 to $5.75.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 4800 head; lambs 25c higher; yearlings, 5c higher; others steady; lambs, $4 to $6.50; yearlings, $4.50 to $5; ewes, $3.50 to $3.75; sheep, mixed, $2 to $4; wethers, $4.25 to $4.50.

NEW YORK LIVE STOCK.

New York, July 13.—Beeves—Receipts, 4206; opened slow; closed strong for medium-weight steers, dull for good heavy; bulls and cows steady; fat bulls firm; steers, $4.80 to $5.42½; bulls, $2.65 to $4.25; cows, $1.75 to $3.75.

Calves—Receipts, 5808; veals slow to lower; buttermilks dull; veals, $4 to $4.25; buttermilks, $2.25 to $4.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 14,122. Sheep steady; top grades firm; lambs, 25c to 40c higher; some early sales 50c higher; sheep, $2.50 to $3.75; export do., $4; lambs, $5 to $6.85; few extra early at $6.90 to $7.

Hogs—Receipts, 9333; market steady for hogs; pigs firm; state hogs, $6.20 to $6.25; pigs, $6.30 to $6.40.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, July 13.—Cattle—Receipts, 23,000, including 400 Texans; strong and active; good to prime steers, $5 to $5.50; poor to medium, $4 to $4.40; stockers and feeders, $2.50 to $4.50; cows and heifers, $1.50 to $5; canners, $1.50 to $2.75; bulls, $2.25 to $4.35; calves, $2.50 to $6; Texas-fed, $3.35 to $4.75.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 15,000; sheep strong; lambs higher; good to choice wethers, $3.75 to $4; fair to choice, mixed, $3 to $3.50; native lambs, $3 to $3.50.

Hogs—Receipts to-day, 52,000; estimated for to-morrow, 20,000; left over, 12,000; opened 10c to 15c lower; closed 20c to 30c lower; mixed and butchers', $5.15 to $5.40; good to choice, heavy, $5.25 to $5.35; rough, heavy, $4.90 to $5.15; light, $5.40 to $5.75; bulk of sales, $5.30 to $5.45.

Train Smash at Hamilton.

Hamilton, July 14.—The fast International Limited, due here at 5.50, nearly came to grief last evening in the west end of the G. T. R. yards. It crashed into a yard engine and tossed it off the track. Both engines were badly wrecked. One passenger, Robert Duncan, Sanford avenue, was rather seriously injured, but all the train hands escaped with a few bruises. The yard engine was standing on a siding. It was a miracle that so little damage was done.

Won't Give King an Address.

Dublin, July 14.—Wild scenes yesterday marked the second debate by the municipal corporation on the question of presenting an address of welcome to King Edward on his arrival in Dublin. The Lord Mayor finally called in the police, who cleared the hall. After a stormy sitting of four hours the motion in favor of the address was defeated by 40 to 37 votes.

Have You Tried
Bovril Cordial
with Mineral Water or Soda
A Refreshing and Invigorating Summer Drink

The Rush Still On!

Goods Going Very Fast.

NATHAN JONES.

Our clearing Sale is rapidly reducing our stock, the prices we sell for being very low.

Colored Muslins

We now offer all our 10c to 15c Muslins for 7c yd. All our 20c to 30c Muslins for 12½c yd. This will clear them quickly.

Ladies' Whitewear

All our stock of Ladies' Whitewear at 33⅓ off, till all is sold.

Our Dress Goods and Parasols at 20% discount.

NATHAN JONES.

At Wallbridge & Clarke's. At Wallbridge & Clarke's

Supplies For Camp or Cruise

New York Biscuits

In "In-er Seal" pkgs.

Uneeda "Jinger" Wafers, Butter Gems, Cheese Biscuits, German Zwieback, Pretzelettes, etc., etc.

Christie's Fancy Biscuits

Fresh supplies every week — 40 varities.

Heintz's Pickles

Heintz's Celery Sauce,
Heintz's India Relish.
Heintz's Sweet Midgets.
Heintz's Sweet Pickles.

Spanish Olives

A fine assortment of Olives from 10cts per bottle up.

Campers Supplies

Essence of Coffee, Condensed Milk, Lime Juice, Raspberry Vinegar, Fancy Cheese, New Pack Lobster and Shrimps, French Sardines, Scallops, Deviled Crabs, Concentrated Soups, French Potage, Beef Extracts, etc., etc.

Pickles and Sauces

A complete assortment of English and American Pickles and Sauces, including Pickled Walnuts, Onions, Chow Chow, Lea & Perrin's Worcestershire Sauce, Yorkshire Relish, Mushroom Catsup, Harvey's Sauce, Sultana Sauce, Chutney's Capers, Durkee's Salad Dressing, etc., etc.

Delicious Teas

Wallbridge & Clarke's Delicious English Breakfast Teas in lead packets at 30, 40, 50 and 60cts per lb.

Canned Meats

New Packs. Finest Quality.
Whole Ox Tongues.
Lunch Tongues.
Lamb's Tongues.
Boned Chicken.
Boned Turkey.
Boned Duck.
Pate de foie.
Potted Ham.
Potted Tongue.
Sliced Dried Beef.
Ham Loaf.
Veal Loaf.
Chicken Tamales.
Lunch Beef.
Lunch Bacon.
Chicken, Ham and Tongue.
Pigs Feet.
Jellied Tenderloins.
Vienna Sausages.
Luncheon Sausages.
Baked Beans—plain or in Tomato or Chili Sauce, etc., etc., etc.

Ale and Stout, Wines, etc.

Carling's, Labatt and Davies' Dominion Ale, Bass' Ale, Dow's Sand Porter, Guinness' Stout, in prime condition.

Gurd's Ginger and Soda Water Appollinaris and Radnor Water.

Barton & Guestier's and Nath. Johnston's Bordeaux Clarets and Sauterne AT POPULAR PRICES.

Rhine Wine and Burgundy Cordials and Liqueurs.

Light Canadian Wines, red or white, at lowest prices.

WALLBRIDGE & CLARKE

EST'D. 1871.
BRIDGE ST. Tel. 139.

Branch Store
St.—Tel. 157.

INTELLIGENCER JOB OFFICE

FOR CHEAP AND ARTISTIC WORK.

The Daily Intelligencer.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL.

VOL. 37. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, JULY 15, 1903 NO. 62

THE POPE AGAIN RALLIES

During the Day His Condition Sank to the Lowest Ebb.

Now in Tranquil Sleep—Doctors Declare, However, That There Is a Steady Diminution of Strength as Well as on Monday Evening—After Exhibition of Vitality the Aged Pontiff Talked in an Animated Manner.

Rome, July 15.—(1.20 a.m.)—Another remarkable rally in Pope Leo's condition occurred yesterday afternoon after a morning in the course of which His Holiness suffered spells of delirium and at times his strength sank to the lowest ebb, and now this morning he lies in no worse condition than he was on Monday evening, except for the steady diminution of his strength. Monsignor Bisleti, master of the chamber, visited the sick room just after midnight, and on emerging stated that the Pontiff's condition was unchanged. A little later the Pope fell into a sleep, which, it has just been announced, is fairly tranquil, although the patient's respiration is troublesome.

Opposed to Medical Theory.

Yesterday's rally was characteristically opposed to every medical theory, and consisted in getting out of a bed on which two hours previously the Pope himself had made all preparations for death. Unsatisfied with this exhibition of vitality, he transacted business and received four cardinals, with whom he talked in an animated way. In fact, Pope Leo's record for yesterday, little of which appeared in last night's official bulletin, would be incredible if it were not confirmed by the doctors and cardinals present in the sick chamber. None seemed more perplexed that the doctors themselves. Dr. Lapponi said frankly: "I cannot imagine how the Pope manages to keep alive."

May Die at Any Moment.

According to the physicians the Pontiff may die at any moment, even in the midst of one of those extraordinary intervals when his mind and body present a comparatively sound appearance. All those around the patient have long since ceased to hold definite opinions regarding the duration of the Pontiff's existence. The slow but progressive diminution of the strength of the august patient foretells the approaching end of the struggle with death, but the doctors will not venture to predict how near the end is. Constant relapses, they say, such as created alarm early yesterday, are gradually wearing down the Pope's constitution, which seems immune from any specific disease. Most persons are inclined to the idea that Pope Leo may go through perhaps two or three repetitions of yesterday's ups and downs, till, as Dr. Rossoni puts it, "his pulse stops for ever."

What May Hasten It.

Three causes may accelerate the end, viz., continued inability to take nourishment, which was exhibited yesterday; sudden heart failure, or the progression of pleuria disease.

The Pope himself yesterday afternoon ordered the four cardinals to be admitted and received them standing. He, who is supposed to be at the point of death, saying: "Please be seated." He recounted the impressive ceremony of the morning, when he received the benediction of the Franciscan order. The cardinals informed him of the world-wide prayers for his life. Pope Leo answered that he was much gratified, but that he was ready for his final departure, concluding by saying: "God's will be done."

Even more striking was the Pope's interview with his secretary, Monsignor Angeli. His Holiness sent for him, saying he wished to see certain papers, which the secretary brought. Then, after a short explanation, Mgr. Angeli wished to get the Pope's decision on a matter, but Pope Leo said: "Well, well, not to-day. We will do that some other time." A curious controversy is proceeding between the Vatican medical body composed of ten doctors of lesser importance than Dr. Lapponi, and several foreign physicians over the embalming of Pope Leo's body. Several foreigners having offered processes of embalming, each more wonderful than the other. The Papal doctors unearthed bulls giving the right to embalm the Pope solely to the Vatican medical body.

WONDERFUL BULLETIN RECORD.

Rome, July 14.—2.55 p.m.—The organs of the Pope are gradually ceasing to perform their natural functions. All processes of elimination have ceased, and no more nourishment is taken.

8 p.m.—The Pope passed a fairly quiet day, but had short periods of depression. Pulse 88, weak; respiration 32; temperature, 36.08 centrigrade. The strength of the august patient is diminishing slowly, but continues steady.

Rome, July 15.—1.20 a.m.—After midnight the Pope's sleep seemed tranquil enough, although his breathing at times was difficult.

4.10 a.m.—The general condition of the Pope is almost unchanged. To periods of restlessness succeed periods of drowsiness.

The Harrow Inquest.

Harrow, July 15.—The coroner's inquest on the death of Edmund Matthews opened here yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. Only nine of the thirty-five witnesses were examined at 6 o'clock last evening, when an adjournment was made until 10 a.m. Friday. As many more witnesses will be examined on that day. The evidence on the different sides so far has been very conflicting. Richardson was present in custody of Detectives Campau and Mahoney, and was taken back to Sandwich Jail last night. He seems very little affected by his position.

ANOTHER SENATOR GONE.

Hon. R. B. Dickey Passes Away at Age of 92 Years.

Amherst, N. S., July 15.—After months of weary illness, Hon. R. B. Dickey passed away late yesterday afternoon at the ripe old age of 92 years. In the death of Senator Dickey, not only Cumberland, but the whole Dominion loses one of its most esteemed men, one who has taken a prominent place in many of the councils of his country, and one whom Amherst in particular is indebted to for much of its progress and prosperity. The deceased was interested in his native town, and many are the monuments that testify to his generosity. He is survived by three children, James A., Amherst; May, wife of H. E. Milner, C. E., London, and Ellen, wife of M. W. Maynard of the Department of Railways and Canals. He was a Conservative and entered the Senate in 1867.

Robert Barry Dickey was born at Amherst, N.S., on November 10, 1811. He received his education at Truro and Windsor, and was called to the bar in 1834. He was made Surrogate Judge for Cumberland County, and created Queen's Counsel in 1865. He sat in the Legislative council of his native province as a Conservative from 1858 until Confederation, when he was called to the Senate.

SINCLAIR'S AD SINCLAIR'S AD.

Mid-Summer Sale

See Our Prices for Ladies' and Children's Stockings

See Our Prices for Ladies' and Children's Vests.

KABO CORSETS
NO ... EYELETS

Kabo Corsets have won a world-wide reputation for excellence. They

Fit Well
Feel Well
Wear Well
Look Well

We have a great variety of styles comprising the latest designs and exclusive novelties and can fit you perfectly

Call and see our new spring style Kabos.

D. V. SINCLAIR & CO.

MR. BLAIR HAS RESIGNED

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Announcement in the House.

Says That the Resignation of the Minister of Railways Has Been Accepted by the Governor-General, and That Full Explanation of the Event Will Be Made on Thursday Next—Division on a Railway Bill.

Ottawa, July 15.—In the House yesterday, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Prime Minister, addressing the Speaker, said:

"I have to inform the House that the Hon. Mr. Blair has tendered his resignation as a member of the Cabinet and Minister of Railways and Canals, and His Excellency the Governor-General has agreed to accept the resignation. The detailed explanations will be given probably Thursday next."

Over in the Senate a statement in exactly the same words was made by the Secretary of State.

Why Militia Bill Was Withdrawn.

Sir Frederick Borden made a statement regarding the Militia Bill. The Minister said a short time ago Hon. Joseph Chamberlain intimated that as there was a Militia Bill before the Dominion Parliament he would be glad if Sir Frederick Borden would go to England and discuss the measure with the Secretary of State for the Colonies and the Secretary of State for War. Sir Wilfrid Laurier concurred in the proposal, and the bill was withdrawn so that the conference may be held.

Fishing For Whales.

Hon. Mr. Prefontaine introduced a bill to amend the Fisheries Act. He explained that the bill contained provisions governing the hunting of whales with explosives and fishing with trap nets. The bill also provides that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries may license the use of purse seives in the Pacific Ocean. Mr. Prefontaine stated that the bill is the result of the work of the commission appointed last year, the report of which, shortly to be submitted to the House.

Ottawa Valley Railway.

Mr. Monk moved that the Ottawa Valley Railway Bill be referred back to the Railway Committee for further consideration. A long discussion ensued, in which Mr. C. N. Armstrong, one of the incorporators of the company, was roughly handled by Mr. Prefontaine. Mr. Prefontaine said that he himself had a claim against Mr. Armstrong of some seventy thousand dollars, which he had been unable to recover.

On a vote of 87 to 51 Mr. Monk's motion to refer the bill back was declared lost.

Immigration Policy.

After a discussion on the Government's immigration policy, precipitated by Mr. Uriah Wilson and who was answered by explanations by Mr. Sifton, the House went into supply at midnight on Mr. Sifton's main estimates for immigration.

Mr. Monk suggested that, in view of the late hour, and the late session of last night, that the $110,000 for salaries and employes in Canada, Great Britain and foreign countries, and two small items, should be passed, but that the remaining item of $183,000 for contingencies should be held over.

Mr. Sifton accepted the suggestion, and the House adjourned at 12.20 a. m.

Norwegian Unloading.

Quebec, July 15.—The Allan steamer Norwegian, which recently went ashore at Cape Ray, arrived in port Monday evening, and is moored at the company's wharf, where she began to discharge cargo from the after-hold yesterday morning. The damage done to the Norwegian is not so great as anticipated. Capt. Whitney, in command of the ship, says that the vessel only requires three or four new plates, and the repairs ought to be made within three days.

The Late Justice Armour.

London, July 15.—The body of Justice Sir John Douglas Armour of the Supreme Court of Canada, and a member of the Alaskan Boundary Commission, who died July 11, leaves Thursday for Canada by the Allan Line steamer Tunisian. The two daughters of the deceased will accompany the body. A memorial service will be held to-day at the Temple Church, and will be attended by representatives of the bench and bar and other prominent personages.

Another G.T.R. Wreck.

Hamilton, July 15. — The Grand Trunk had another small wreck yesterday. When the engine of the International Limited that figured in the collision Monday night was being taken into the round house a new man set the turn table wrong and two more engines dashed into each other. Both were badly damaged. No one was hurt.

Drowning at Peterboro.

Peterboro, July 15. — Another drowning accident occurred here yesterday. Albert Dunsford, Arthur Mitchell and Arthur Wringer left in the morning in a canoe to fish down the Otonabee River. About three miles below Peterboro the canoe upset and Dunsford became entangled in the weeds and was drowned. He leaves a family of three children.

FOR "MUNICIPAL JUSTICE"

Delegates Protest Against Invasion by Federal Government.

Basis of the Argument Against the Principle of Declaring Purely Local Undertakings to Be For the General Advantage of Canada—Parliament Should First Be Satisfied by Actual Proof That Such Declaration Is True.

Ottawa, July 15.—A strong protest against the invasion of provincial rights by the Federal Government was made yesterday afternoon by a large delegation from the Union of Canadian municipalities, which was received in the office of the Minister of Finance by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir William Mulock, Hon. Mr. Fielding and Hon. Mr. Paterson. Among those present were: Hon. R. Prefontaine, Messrs. E. F. Clarke, G. B. Osler, D. A. Lancaster, Sam. Barker (Hamilton), and A. Campbell.

The protest was made on the application of the Toronto and Hamilton Railway Company for a charter for the construction of a line of electric railway between the two cities named, the incorporators alleging that the work was "for the general advantage of Canada," which, under the British North America Act, would place it under Dominion jurisdiction as soon as the Dominion Parliament declared such work to be for Canada's general advantage.

Basis of Argument.

The representatives of over a score of leading Canadian municipalities, based their protest against the principle involved in this and other bills on the following propositions:

"That undertakings entirely provincial and essentially for local or municipal purposes should not be removed from provincial and municipal control by mere declaration that such work are for the general advantage of Canada.

"That no such declaration should be made in any case until the Government and Parliament are satisfied by actual proof that the declaration is true.

"That all the street railways or tramways or electric railways constructed and operated wholly or in part through the streets or highways of a municipality are essentially of a local character and should be left under the jurisdiction of the local Legislatures and municipalities.

"That the Local Legislatures have hitherto dealt with the incorporation of such railway companies and have provided safeguards for the construction and operation of such railways and their rights so to do should not be interfered with."

The declaration was signed by Aemilius Irving, acting on this occasion for the Attorney-General of Ontario; W. D. Lighthall, honorary secretary, Union of Canadian Municipalities; James Cochrane, Mayor of Montreal; Thomas Urquhart, Mayor of Toronto; James S. Fullerton, Corporation Counsel of Toronto, and numerous other representatives of municipalities from all parts of the Dominion.

Speeches were made against the clause in the Toronto and Hamilton Railway Company bill, declaring it to be for the general advantage of Canada, by Messrs. Aemilius Irving, K.C., representing the Attorney-General of Ontario; Mayor Urquhart, Toronto; City Solicitor Fullerton of Toronto; the City Attorney of Montreal; Mr. Duff of Barton Township, and City Solicitor McKelcan, of Hamilton.

The bill was upheld by Mr. A. Campbell, M.P.; Mr. C. C. Robinson, Solicitor for the County of York, and Mr. D. O. Cameron of Toronto, who represented several of the municipalities interested.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier—"It is represented to us that this bill violates a principle and infringes on the jurisdiction of the provinces. That is what we want to hear about."

Mr. Robinson then argued that the work was to the general advantage of Canada, as did Mr. D. O. Cameron.

After a cross-fire argument it was agreed to allow ten days for Mr. Dewart to put in a written argument, to which Mr. Fullerton should reply.

Sir William Mulock promised serious consideration, and an answer in the House before anything further was done with the bill.

FEDERAL POWER SUPREME.

Provincial Statute Declared Ultra Vires by the Privy Council.

Toronto, July 15.—Another provincial statute has been declared ultra vires by the Privy Council. By the Revised Statutes of 1897, Chapter 246, it was attempted to regulate Sunday labor on railways and steamship lines. The Court of Appeal heard argument in April, 1902 in an action by the Attorney-General of Ontario against the Hamilton Street Railway Company, where it was contended that the provincial Legislature had no authority over concerns operating under Dominion charters. The court divided equally and the case was taken to the Court of Last Resort by the Lord's Day Alliance. The Privy Council yesterday handed down a decision upholding the contention of the companies that the Federal Government alone can regulate concerns chartered under its statutes.

ROWLEY'S BIG SHORTAGE.

Amount Is Nearly $200,000, But Elgin Loan Company Still Has Surplus.

St. Thomas, July 15. — John S. Moore, manager of the London Western Trusts Company, presented to Judge Hughes this morning the following statement of the affairs of the Elgin Loan Company, of which they are liquidators. Statement of the provisional liquidator:

Assets.
Mortgages on real estate........	$261,843 20
Loans on debentures and other securities	93,354 10
Cash in Metropolitan Bank......	948 27
Cash on hand........................	176 91
Total	$356,322 48
Liabilities.
Savings bank deposits...........	$322,858 34
Due Imperial Bank...............	10,543 91
Total	$333,402 25
Surplus	$22,920 23

Rowley's Defalcations.

The defalcations of Mr. Rowley, so far as ascertained, are as follows:

Taken by way of—
Advance on mortgages...........	$ 3,521 80
Advance on stock...................	10,000 00
Cash shortage	1,849 71
Amount claimed by savings bank depositors	147,248 54
Amount claimed by mortgagees.	25,000 00
Total	$187,620 14

The London & Western Trusts Company and about 30 depositors and shareholders were present when the statement was read, and, there being no objection and some speaking in favor thereof, the London & Western Trusts Company were continued as liquidators.

In addition to the above assets, the following have not been taken into consideration: Atlas Loan Company, deposit, $31,423.80; amount of Atlas Loan Company debentures, over and above estimated value of Dominion Coal stock, held as collateral, $13,440.90; real estate, Tennessee lands, $2,427.25; George Rowley, guarantee bonds, $10,000; assets of George Rowley's estate, property, $5,000. The unpaid stock amounts to $385,149.75; amount necessary to a basis of 50 per cent., $72,649.

BASEBALL TUESDAY.

The Eastern League.

Jersey City ..... 0 0 2 1 0 0 0 2 *—5
Toronto ..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 4 0—4

First on errors—Jersey City 2, Toronto 2. Left on bases—Jersey City 5, Toronto 4. First base on balls—Off Pfanmiller 2, off Wolfe 4. Struck out—By Pfanmiller 4, by Wolfe 4. Home runs—Pfanmiller, McCormick, Massey. Sacrifice hits—McCormick, Devlin, Massey. Stolen bases—Cassidy, Woods, White. Double-plays—McManus and Bean; Doolin, Bean and Cassidy; McCormick and Bean. Hit by pitcher—By Wolfe 1. Umpire—Swartwood. Time—1.50. Attendance—2100.

First game— R.H.E.
Newark .. .... 2 1 0 0 1 0 0 0 0—4 5 4
Buffalo ... . 1 0 3 0 0 0 0 0 1—5 11 3
Batteries—Hesterfer and Shea; Hooker, Laporte and Lusky. Umpire—Latham. Attendance 3000.

Second game— R.H.E
Newark .. ... 0 0 0 5 0 0 1 0 0 0—6 5 5
Buffalo ... .. 2 2 0 0 2 0 0 0 0 1—7 9 8
Batteries: Burke and Shea; Laroy, Ferry and Lusky. Umpire—Latham. Attendance 3500.

First game— R.H.E.
Baltimore .. .. 0 3 0 1 1 0 0 0 0—5 12 2
Worcester .. .. 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 0 0—2 5 3
Batteries—Wiltse and Robinson; Hemming and McCauley.

Second game— R.H.E.
Baltimore ..... 2 1 2 0 1 0 0 0 0—6 10 2
Worcester ..... 3 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—3 12 4
Batteries: Adkins, Pounds and Hearn; Falkenberg and McCauley. Umpire—Brown. Attendance 778.

First game— R.H.E.
Providence .1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 1—3 14 1
Rochester ...0 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 0—2 7 3
Batteries—McFarland, Diggins and Dugan; Gettig and Fuller.

Second game— R.H.E.
Rochester ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 2 1
Providence .... 0 0 0 0 2 0 0—2 4 0
Batteries—Vien and Diggins; Leary and Fuller. Umpire—Kelly.

National League Scores.

At St. Louis— R.H.E.
St. Louis ...... 1 0 0 1 0 2 0 0 0—4 7 2
Philadelphia .. 4 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0—5 9 2
Batteries—M. O'Neill, McFarland and J. O'Neill; Duggleby and Zimmer. Umpire—Moran. Attendance 1300.

At Cincinnati— R.H.E.
Cincinnati .. .. 1 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 1—3 11 7
New York .... 0 2 0 0 1 0 0 2 5—10 16 2
Batteries—Phillips and Peitz; McGinnity and Warner. Umpire—O'Day. Attendance 3250.

At Chicago— R.H.E.
Chicago . 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1— 11 3
Brooklyn . 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1 6 0
Batteries: Wicker and Kling; Jones and [illegible]. Umpire—Johnstone. Attendance 1600.

American League Results.

At New York— R.H.E.
New York ..0 1 0 2 1 0 0 0 0 1—5 11 1
Detroit .. ... 3 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0—4 9 4
Batteries: Griffith and Beville; Kitson and Buelow. Umpire—Sheridan. Attendance 3004.

At Washington— R.H.E.
Washington .0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 1 0—2 6 3
St. Louis .... 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 0 2—4 8 0
Batteries: Orth and Drill; Sievers and Sugden. Umpire—O'Loughlin. Attendance 933.

At Boston— R.H.E.
Boston .. 0 1 0 1 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—3 10 0
Cleveland 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 0 1 0 0 1—4 10 1
Batteries—Dineen and Criger; Moore and Bemis. Umpire—Connolly. Attendance 11,736.
Second game postponed; rain.

At Philadelphia— R.H.E.
Chicago .. .... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 7 2
Philadelphia ... 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 0 *—2 8 0
Batteries—White and McFarland; Waddell and Schreck. Umpire—Hassett. Attendance 4788.

Arrested at Hamilton.

Brantford, July 15.—The office of S. F. Whitham, planing mills, was entered by burglars Monday night, the safe blown open and some small change taken. Mr. Whitham noticed three strangers hanging around his planing mills early in the evening. He went to the station yesterday when the morning train was leaving he saw the same men going away. Mr. Whitham followed them to Hamilton, where he had them arrested.

SUFFERED TEN YEARS.

"I suffered for ten years with bronchitis and was unable to work for months at a time, then I used Angier's Petroleum Emulsion and it made me feel like a new man."—Robert Weir, Toronto, Canada.

It Nourishes Infants.

No other baby food is as nourishing wholesome or so universally used. It is a perfect substitute for mothers' milk.

Nestlé's Food

Sample (sufficient for eight meals) free.

LEEMING, MILES & CO., MONTREAL.

FARMER TAKEN FOR MOULDER.

Strikers Assault Him and He Complains to Magistrate.

Wingham, July 15.—The Moulders' strike in the Western Foundry was dragging quietly along until Monday night when a stranger supposed to be a moulder was assaulted by four or five men near the Kingsly House, and very badly used up. However, it turned out that the man was a farmer living a few miles north of the town, and he laid information yesterday morning against four of the striking moulders for assault. The magistrate's hearing is set for Friday, the 17th inst. The strike is being fought to the bitter end.

Laborers Strike Over.

Toronto, July 15.—The stubbornly contested long-drawn-out fight between the union builders' laborers and their bosses ended last night. Six hundred builders' laborers went out on May Day for an increase of five cents an hour. The masons section of the Builders' Exchange offered them a compromise of two cents an hour advance. They refused this offer. The exchange then withdrew all propositions before the union and advertised for laborers at the old rate. The union wages previous to the strike were 25 cents an hour. The men go back at this rate.

City Strike Is Over.

St. John, N.B., July 15.—The city laborers' strike is over and the men decided last night to accept the compromise offered them by the Council. The old men get $1.10 and the younger get $1.40. The former rate was $1 and $1.20, and they struck for $1.25 and $1.50. Over 200 men have been out twelve days.

One Strike Called Off.

Vancouver, B. C., July 15.—Japanese fishermen yesterday accepted the canners' terms, viz., 15 cents per fish during July and 14 cents during August, and the strike declared by the white fishermen has, therefore, been called off.

Violence by Strikers.

Clinton, Mass., July 15.—A body of striking stone masons, who had been employed on the Wachusett Dam of the Metropolitan Water system, armed with revolvers, yesterday marched among the other workmen and with threats compelled 450 to stop work. One man who hesitated was thrown into the Nashua River, but was rescued by his associates.

30,000 Get Advances.

Youngstown, O., July 15.—At the bi-month wage conference held here yesterday between the representatives of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers and the Labor Bureau of the Republican Iron and Steel Company, the rate per ton for puddling was increased from $6.12½ to $6.25 for the next two months. About 30,000 mill workers are interested in the advance.

CANADIANS AT BISLEY.

Good Scores Made by Members of the Dominion's Team.

Bisley, July 15. — Staff-Sergt. Bayles of the R. G. made a possible at 500 yards in the Steward Challenge Cup yesterday. J. H. Simpson of the R. G. made a possible in the Morris competition.

In the Gregory match, Bayles made 34, J. H. Simpson 34 and Spearing (53rd) made 34.

In the Alexander Martin competition, the following scores were made:

J. W. Smith 5 5 5 5 5 5 4 5 5 4—48
A. Elliott,
12th York R 4 5 4 5 5 5 5 4 5 5—47
W. Drysdale . 5 4 5 5 5 4 5 5 4—47
R. McGregor, G.G.F.G., made 46.

In the Morris competition, J. H. Simpson made a possible, circling his seven shots all around the "bull," while T. H. Hayhurst and Smith of the 13th, Spearing of 53rd and Vroom each made 33.

In the Wantage competition, Simpson of the Grenadiers made 23.

Col. Sherwood was presented to the King Monday night.

The winner of the first place in the Barlow competition Monday scored 93; there were also two scores of 89 and three of 87. Elliott of the 12th York Rangers, who made 89, was well up to the top and takes fourth money—£9. Peddle, who is eighth, wins £8. Pte. Smith, 31st, wins £4. O'Brien, 32nd, gets £4; Naughton, 35th, wins £3; Vroom, 37th, £3; Spearing, 46th, £2; while White (79th), Hayhurst (90th), Russell (117th), Stuart (135th), Simpson (139th), Smith (145th) and King (151st) each win £1.

In the British army 90,000 men have good conduct badges.

30 Retail Stores DAVIES 30 Retail Stores

DAVIES make a specialty of supplying campers and Picnics with all Food Products, Cooked and Ready-to-serve Meats, also Pickles, Catsups and Sauces, of which they have a large variety, guaranteed pure and unadulterated.

Davies 40c Tea which we are selling for 25c per lb. is considered and guaranteed the best value in the city.

Our store closes at 12 o'clock Wednesday during July and August. Kindly let us have your orders in good time, so that we can give you prompt service.

Daily Deliveries, Phone. 286.

The WM. DAVIES CO., Limited.

Big Sale of Photos

Great Bargains in all the latest designs.

A chance of a lifetime to secure high-grade Photos at the price of the ordinary kind.

From July 15th until further notice we will offer the following great snap in Photos.

Regular $4.00 Cabinets .... $2.99 a doz.
Regular $3.50 Cabinets .... $2.49 a doz.
Regular $3.00 Cabinets .... $1.99 a doz.
Regular $2.00 Panels .... $1.49 a doz.

All other sizes and styles at the same cut rate. This studio has gained a reputation for high-grade work, and the same quality of work will be made during this sale.

Every Photo. made satisfactory to our customers and our guarantee stamp on every one.

C. J. SMITH

Studio next to Dicken's Restaurant. PHOTOGRAPHER.

The Finnegan Carriage & Wagon Co.

—FOR—

Stylish and Durable Turnouts.

—Surreys
—Corning Buggies
—Piano Box Buggies
—Rubber Tire Buggies
—Micadoes
—Phaetons
—Bike Buggies
—Democrats
—Grocer Wagons
—Butcher Wagons

Cheese Factory Milk Wagons.
Steel Tubular Axle Lumber Wagons.

Rubber Tires put on your old wheels at reasonable prices.

Mill St., - - Belleville

SPECIAL OFFER

MIDSUMMER CLUBBING RATES.

Two Papers to January 1st, 1904

Family Herald & Weekly Star, and the Best Home Paper—The Weekly Intelligencer, BOTH for

65 CENTS

We are making this special offer as we require 1000 new subscriptions to our Weekly.

This offer is good to new subscribers only.

ADDRESS— The Weekly Intelligencer
BELLEVILLE, ONT.

No agents handle this offer.

Daily Intelligencer.

A FAMILY GRAFT.

Great is the Fisher family in Canada. Not very great, perhaps, in brains or avoirdupois, but superlatively great when it comes to extracting coin of the realm from the Government chest. Sir Mackenzie Bowell's expose in the Senate of the fat contracts given by the Laurier Government to the Montreal Herald will be still fresh in the minds of our readers. Now Mr. Fisher has tried to dodge his connection with that paper, which has received $113,622 from the Government in six years, by declaring that when he entered the Laurier Government he disposed of his stock in that paper. The Minister of Agriculture neglected to explain, however, that the person to whom the stock was transferred is none other than his brother, Roswell C. Fisher. The latter is a director of the Montreal Herald and practically represents his honorable brother. Under the circumstances Hon. Sydney Fisher is not that high-souled statesman he represents himself to be. What a pleasant arrangement it is. Hon. Mr. Fisher makes Mr. Roswell C. Fisher his attorney, and when fat printing jobs originate in the department over which the honorable member of the family presides, humble brother Roswell gets the order. Then the Auditor-General objects to the prices which Roswell charges Sydney, and the Government, of which the latter is a member, passes a bill to overrule the official responsible for keeping the public expenditure within bounds. The Fisher family most assuredly gets a good thing out of the Canadian people.

TIMELY TOPICS

A clergyman says he "has little respect for a man who constantly treats other women better than his wife." Can it be that he has met such a man in Belleville.

• • •

Notwithstanding the gentleman with the copper-toed shoes who is kicking against the pricks, the Hospital will go on doing business in an efficient manner at the same old stand.

• • •

Every gain has its loss. Belleville can't brag of breaking the hot wave record.

• • •

An exchange says they have reduced beer to tabloid form in London. But how in the world is one to have the delight of blowing froth from a tabloid?

• • •

One of the co-eds at the University of Wisconsin who, with a professor with whom she was paddling, was thrown into the water from a canoe promptly saved the gentleman from drowning by grabbing him by the hair. They may inveigh against the acquatic girl as much as they like, but she is a useful member of society in certain emergencies. Furthermore, it's mighty lucky for that professor that he had his hair on.

• • •

The Buffalo express says: Brooklyn factory girls whose employer moved the machinery out of the shop during the night and left them in the lurch for wages paraded to his home and destroyed the flower garden. Served him right. If he didn't want his garden wrecked he should have left his hair around where the visitors could find it.

• • •

A photographer in the East End of London was recently honored by a call from a man who was wheeling a baked-potato van, says London Tit-Bits.

"I want my photograph took," observed the caller.

"With pleasure," was the reply. "Do you wish the potato van to be in the picture?"

"Well, it's like this 'ere," explained the potato merchant, "my brother Bill, as lives in Edinboro', sent me 'is photograph last week sittin' down at a pianner. That was a bit o' brag on Bill's part, you know, mister, 'cos 'e ain't got no more idea of playin' a pianner than a cow 'as of preachin' a sermon. So I thought it'd take Master Bill down a peg or two if I sent 'im a photograph of me and the van 'ere."

"I see," laughed the knight of the camera; "you're playing your potato van against your brother's piano, eh?"

"Not exactly that, mister," was the answer. "I thought if you could shove it in the background so that it will come out a bit misty like, Bill'd werry likely take it for a motor car."

• • •

It will be a matter of great regret to many of our citizens to learn that owing to the state of her health Miss Marie Wheler has been compelled to tender her resignation to the Bridge Street Church and to Albert College, and for a time—let us hope it will be a short one—give up all active work.

• • •

According to an old tradition, the rain to-day (St. Swithin's Day) indicates that we may expect forty days of rainy weather.

• • •

If any one is laboring under the impression that men cannot find work in Belleville, just let any number of the unemployed go to the G.T.R. where there are thousands of tons of coal to unload. Don't forget this you fellows on the streets corners.

Some stores stop making

HOME

Made Candies during the hot weather We don't. We have been at a considerable expense importing a Gas Candy Furnace from the States, with this we can turn out fresh

MADE

Candies everyday and make them in small quantities and make them often so you can be sure of getting really Fresh Home Made

CANDIES.

J. ARTHUR MARSH.

Resolutions of Condolence.

At the regular meeting of Mizpah Lodge, I.O.O.F., held on Monday evening, resolutions of condolence were passed to Mrs. C. Rainbow and Mrs. James Howatson, owing to the recent deaths of their husbands who were members of the lodge.

Report of Hospital Board for June.

Paying patients	$385.00
Medicines and dressings	56.28
Extra meals	20.75
City patients	9.65
Total for month	$471.68
Edward Corby endowed room	$250.00

A resolution was passed that in extreme cases only meals will be given to friends of patients in Hospital at a charge of 50 cents per meal.

30 patients admitted during month. 17 under treatment at present. 2 deaths.

C. E. BELL,
Treasurer Hospital Board.
July 7th, 1903.

Gifts to Home in June.

Mr. C. C. Stewart, maple cream; A Friend, apples; Mrs. E. G. Porter, milk daily; Mrs. A. G. Vermilyea, four pillow cases, Mr. Clark, shank; Mrs. Sinfield, vegetables and pickles; Marchmont Home, flowers; E. B. Harris, two dozen buns; Mrs. G. Denmark, pair trousers; Mrs. J. W. Dunnet, rhubarb and box of cakes; Mrs. H. Corby, twelve boxes strawberries; Mrs. McMullen, two cans of pickles; Mrs. Lang, Catherine St., two layer cakes; Mr. Harrigan, fruit, biscuits; Mrs. D. Keefe, cake; Mrs. Johnson, tea, berries and tobacco; Mrs. Welsh, onions, vegetables; Mrs. W. A. Huffman, can of fruit; Rev. R. Wallace, repairs to rocking chair.

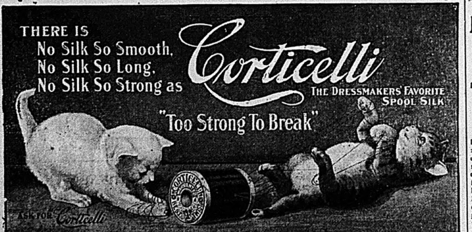
Gifts to Hospital in June.

Mr. Potter, cut flowers, plants for bedding; Dr. Yeomans one-half dozen boxes of strawberries; Mr. Givens, cut roses, plants, vines and rose tree for lawn; Grand Trunk, sixty bound books; Mr. Chas. Green, two handsome chairs for the Annie room.

Nervous Exhaustion

PROSTRATION AND COLLAPSE ARE PREVENTED AND CURED BY DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

Restless, languid feelings, sleeplessness, indigestion, nervous headache, twitching of the nerves, discouragement and despondency are some of the symptoms of nervous exhaustion and prostration. By forming new, rich blood and creating new nerve force, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food prevents and cures all diseases of the nerves. It is composed of nature's most powerful restoratives and is certain to do you good. You can prove this by noting your increase in weight while using it.



THERE IS No Silk So Smooth, No Silk So Long, No Silk So Strong as Corticelli

THE DRESSMAKERS' FAVORITE SPOOL SILK

"Too Strong To Break"

ASK FOR Corticelli

THE DIVIDING OF HASTINGS.

LOCAL MEMBERS PROTEST IN VAIN AGAINST THE DIVISION.

Ottawa, July 14.—The members for Hastings, Messrs. Northrup and Porter, the latter with some insistence, argued that the county should hold its three members; but the committee thought two was enough. Mr. Porter declared that the county had the largest population of any county in Ontario except Middlesex.

Mr. Monk contended that the Government proposition contemplated neither symmetrical division nor equalization of population. The line from north to south zizagged, and gave East Hastings a population of 26,000, and West Hastings 32,000, including the City of Belleville, with 9,000. The Conservative line ran straight north, and gave East Hastings 29,000, as against 30,000 in West Hastings.

As to the case of Belleville, Mr. Haggart remarked that in the recent delimitation in Great Britain, the unit of representation in urban and rural constituencies had been fixed at practically the same figure.

"But the general representation was increased," Mr. Sutherland said.

Mr. Sutherland could not agree with the proposition that the cities should have the same unit of representation as the country parts.

"But you have Belleville swamped by your plan, anyway," Guss Porter replied.

The Government defended its proposition, on the ground that the urban unit should be larger than the rural. That principle, the chairman said, had resulted in the subdivision of almost every county where inequality had occurred, and for that reason, he said, he gave his casting vote in favor of the Government proposition.

As the division is allowed to stand, East Hastings has a population of 26,777 and West Hastings 32,504.

Died in Syracuse.

Mr. C. Turner, a son of Mr. C. Turner, of this city, who has been living in Syracuse, N.Y., died to-day. He leaves a family of three children. The remains will be brought to Belleville for interment, arriving here on Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Mr. Turner belonged to the Ancient Order of Foresters.

CRAMPS ARE LIKE BURGLARS.

They come unexpected and when they are least welcome. Be armed with a one-minute cure for cramps and keep Polson's Nerviline handy; it acts instantaneously. Nerviline's anodyne power is unique, for its composition expresses the highest medical progress of the age. Polson's Nerviline is a true comfort in the family, for in all derangements of the stomach and bowels it is an absolute specific. Nerviline has five times greater medicinal value than any other remedy and is sold in large 25 cent bottles. Try it.

Liberal Purses for the Races.

There was a fair attendance at the meeting last evening at Hotel Quinte to arrange for the meet here on the 12th and 13th of August. Purses to the extent of $1,150 will be given as prizes, and it is expected that a number of fast horses will be here. Two trotting events and a running race will be the attraction for each day.

No man or woman will hesitate to speak well of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets after once trying them. They always produce a pleasant movement of the bowels, improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion. For sale by all druggists.

SIDNEY CROSSING.

July 13th.

A number from here went to Deseronto to celebrate the glorious 12th.

Mrs. Chas. Clarke and children, of Toronto, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Hogle during last week.

Masters Russell Bell and John Goldsmith, of Belleville, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Judson Kelley.

Miss Annie Young, of Nebraska, is spending her holidays with Mr. and Mrs. W. Jones, of Bayside, and other friends.

Mr. A. Finkle has secured a good position in the C.P.R. office near Calgary.

The meetings held under the auspices of the West Hastings Woman's Institute were slimly attended, owing to the busy season, but those who stopped at home missed a rare treat. Miss Agnes Smith, of Hamilton, and Miss Delaporte, of Toronto, the lady delegates, proved very interesting and instructive. At Bayside and Harder's School Houses the cooking demonstrations and talks were very beneficial to all, and the members were encouraged to be more active in their Institute work. The membership of the West Hastings Institute now exceeds 100.

Mrs. Post and daughter, of Batavia, N.Y., were the guests of Mrs. James Hogle during the past week.

White's Church Sunday School, Bayside, held their flower service on Sunday, a large crowd being present. Addresses were given by Mr. W. W. Chown, of Belleville, and Mr. O. S. Hicks, of Bayside, which were very interesting and to the point. Solos by Miss Nellie Spafford and Master Russell Bell, of Belleville, were well rendered, also the selections by the choir.

Mr. Proctor Hogle was seriously injured last week. He was found wandering from one place to another, delirious, and with a terrible gash in his forehead. As he is not yet rational, it is believed he was struck by an east bound train about midnight, as he was riding home on his wheel. He is at present in the hands of Dr. Sanford, at Brighton, and Nurse Waldron, who hold out slight hopes of his recovery.

Mrs. H. Hubble is visiting friends in Deseronto.

Mr. G. Barker has returned home, after an extended visit with friends in Picton and Deseronto.

Miss Smith, of Hamilton, and Miss Delaporte, of Toronto, were the guests of Miss Agnes Lawrence and Miss Carl Spafford during their stay here.

LATEST NEW YORK STOCK QUOTATIONS

As Furnished to The Intelligencer by H. R. Beattie, Stock Broker.

New York, July 15.

Stock	Op'g	H'st	L'st	Close.
Atchison	63	63⅜	62¼	63⅜
do. pref	89	89	87¼	88
St. Paul	140⅝	141¼	139	140¼
Mo. P.	98½	99¼	96¼	97¼
Union Pac	77	77	75	75
C. P. R.	119¼	120	118	120
South Pac	45	45¼	44¾	45⅝
R. I.	30¼	30½	28⅝	29¼
Ills. C.	126¾	126¾	125	126¼
Sou. Ry.	21⅜	22	21¼	22
Texas	25½	26¼	25½	26¼
B & O.	81½	82⅜	80½	81¼
N. Y. C.	113⅜	114½	112⅜	114½
Penna	119½	119¾	118⅝	118⅝
Soo	54	54	53½	53½
T. W.	95¼	96	94⅝	96
Erie	30¼	30½	29¼	30¼
do. pref.	64¼	65½	63¾	64½
Reading	47⅝	48¼	47	48
C. O.	31½	35½	33	31¼
O. & W.	22⅞	23¼	22	22¼
Manhattan	131½	132½	129¾	131
W. C.	27¾	....	....	....
L. & N.	100½	106¼	105	105
A. F.	34½	35	34	35
Ner.	62	62¼	60½	62¼
Wab.	21¼	22	21¼	22
do pref.	39	39	37⅝	38⅝
W.U.	83	83	82½	82¾
C. G. W.	17	17¼	16½	17
T.C.I.	47	47½	45¾	47
U S. Stl.	27¼	27⅞	25¼	26⅛
do pref.	77¾	78½	75¾	76½
Sugar	115⅝	116¾	114⅞	115⅝
B. R. T.	51¼	52	49⅝	50¾
Po.	95	95⅝	94½	95
A. C. P.	48⅞	49¼	48½	49½
Met.	118½	118½	117	117
Ak.	20½	20¾	19¾	20⅜

Sept. wheat opened at 77⅜; closed at 77
Sept. corn opened at 50⅜; closed at 50¼.

CHATTERTON.

Rev. Mr. Thompson took up his circuit work in Marsh Hill Church on Sunday last. All were pleased with his coming and trust his work may prosper in this place.

Death has agin entered the neighborhood and removed from us Mrs. Robert Lithgow, who has been a great sufferer, thus making three deaths within five months in the same home.

Miss Yates, of Belleville, is visiting her sister, Mrs. C. Vandewaters.

Berries in this vicinity are an excellent crop, but will soon be done for this season.

Help in these parts is very scarce, and wages too high.

ROBLIN'S MILLS.

Hay harvest is in full progress and a good crop is reported.

Our Sunday School Picnic was held at Twelve o'Clock Point on Saturday last and a good crowd was reported.

Mr. John Carnrite and wife have returned home after their visit to Toronto.

The stone crusher is making lots of idle men in this village work.

Mrs. Wm. Carnrite is spending a few days at Longford this week.

CITY AND DISTRICT.

Advertisements under this heading TWO CENTS A WORD; subsequent consecutive insertions ONE CENT A WORD. No locs charged as less than twenty-five words

Just received fresh stock of Infants' Foods. Ray's Drug Store. d&w

The Y.M.C.A. Pioneer Camp Corps left this morning on the steamer Varuna for Sandy Point, where they are going to make things ready for their boys' camp on Monday next.

Are your eyes all right? Hadn't you better come in and have them examined? It is better to know than to guess. Examination free at Ray's, Graduate Optician and Druggist.

Best Wednesday holiday excursion, July 22nd, up the bay, through canal and into Lake Ontario with I.O.O.F. Band. Tickets 25c. Auspices of Christ Church. Str. Aletha leaves Corby's wharf at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Vans to convey ticket holders leave Taylor's and McGinnis' corners at 8.30 a.m. Moonlight excursion to Deseronto with band at 8 p.m. 10 in.

Elegant line of fine Toilet Soaps, Hair Brushes, Toilet Preparations and all kinds of nice Toilet Goods at Ray's Drug store. d&w

Literary Notes

WILSHIRE'S FOR JULY.

In view of the enormous gains recently made by the Socialists in Germany, Mary Simonds Johnston's article on the rise of socialism in America, in Wilshire's Magazine for July, is timely and suggestive reading. Marvellous Ocean Dredges, by G. A. Hubert, is a graphic and fully illustrated description of the construction and operation of the big dredging vessels that are now at work on the difficult under-water enterprise of digging out the new 40-foot Ambrose Channel in New York Harbor.

Don't be misled; there are no prices lower than ours on good goods Ray's Drug Store. d&w

Nearly 500 different kinds of tiny shells go to make up chalk.

LIKE OTHER EVILS cramps and diarrhoea come suddenly. Promptly give a dose of Perry Davis' Painkiller and the pains will go immediately. A bottle at hand will save hours of suffering—be prepared.

More than half the battle in cleaning greasy dishes is in the soap you use. If it's Sunlight Soap it's the best. 68

THE WEATHER.

To-day's Probs—

Moderate to fresh southwest to northwest winds, fair and cool. Thursday light to moderate winds, fine, not much change in temperature.

To-day's Temperature

As Registered by The Intelligencer's Guaranteed Thermometer:

8 a.m.	68
12 m.	76
2 p.m.	74
3 p.m.	74

Situate between Montreal and Ottawa on the Pacific short line the MAGI Caledonia Springs are most convenient of access.

BABY'S DEFENCE

For Soft, White, Fragrant Skin, Use BABY'S OWN SOAP

No other Soap is just as good. 031

ALBERT TOILET SOAP CO., Mfrs. MONTREAL.

THE MASTER MECHANIC'S PURE TAR SOAP heals and softens the skin, while promptly cleansing it of grease, oil, rust, etc. Invaluable for mechanics, farmers, sportsmen. Free sample on receipt of 2c for postage. Albert Toilet Soap Co., Mfrs. Montreal.

You Can't Oversleep

If it takes quite a noise to awaken you in the morning we have Clocks that will furnish the necessary disturbance.

They will not arouse you too soon, neither will they let you sleep too long.

If you set them properly they never fail to do their duty.

They are useful in most homes at odd times. They are indispensable in many homes every working day in the year.

$1.50 buys a GOOD ONE, though we have them cheaper as well as dearer.

Angus McFee.
Jeweler & Optician
310 Front St.

MILLINERY
—AT—
Half Price

All our Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats at HALF PRICE.

A few very choice ones still to choose from.

10 per cent. off Corsets Thursday' Friday and Saturday.

MISS IRWIN
Millinery and Corset Specialist

THE INTELLIGENCER is printed and published for The Intelligencer Printing and Publishing House (Limited) by CHARLES JAMES BOWELL, of the City of Belleville, in the County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, at their Office, No. 403 Front Street, Belleville, Ont.

A horse has been known to jump 37 feet in a steeplechase.

Lost chances never leave any trail.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

MEDICAL.

JOHN J. FARLEY, M.D., C.M., M.R., C.S., England.

Office and Residence — Corner of Bridge and George streets — three streets East of Post Office.

DR. J. F. MATHER

Has removed his office to Pinnacle St., three doors north of Hotel Quinte. my29-6mw

DENTAL.

Dr. Clarke has removed to the offices formerly occupied by the late Dr. Ward, over Burrows', and opposite Scantlebury's Book Store. a27dtf

LEGAL.

WILLS & WRIGHT,

Barristers, Solicitors, Notary Public, &c., Belleville.

Office—9 Campbell Street.

MALCOLM WRIGHT.
J. FRANKLIN WILLS.

Money to Loan at Lowest Rates.

W. C. MIKEL, B. C. L.,

Barrister, &c.

Solicitor for the City of Belleville.

Office—Metropolitan Block, Corner Front and Campbell Streets.

PORTER & CARNEW,

Barristers, Solicitors, Notaries Public, etc.

Offices — Robertson Block, East Front St., Belleville, Ont.

'Phone 87.

E. G. PORTER. WM. CARNEW.

WILLIAM N. PONTON,

Barrister-at-law, Solicitor, Notary Public, Conveyancer. Office over Express and Telegraph Office, Bridge Street, Belleville.

Money to Loan — Private Funds, Solicitor Sun and Hastings Savings and Loan Company of Ontario.

FRANCIS S. WALLBRIDGE,

Successor to Hon. Lewis Wallbridge, Q.C.

Barrister, Solicitor, Conveyancer, Etc. Office, McAnnany Building, corner Front and Bridge Sts., Belleville, Ont. Private and Company money to loan at 6 per cent., on easy terms upon good land security.

Charges moderate.

INSURANCE.

Fire Insurance.

Guardian . . .	Est'd 1821
The North America, . .	Est'd 1792
Quebec, ...	Est'd 181[illegible]

City, Town and Village Property insure at lowest rates.

R. W. ADAMS. Agent.

Office opposite Post Office.

THOS. STEWART,

Insurance and Commission Agent.

Agent for the Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Scottish Union and National Ins. Co.

Bridge St.

FIRE, LIFE & ACCIDENT INSURANCE

At Lowest Rates The Norwich Union Fire Insurance Society and Perth Mutual on farm and city property. Also money to loan at 4½ per cent. upwards.

JAMES A. CHISHOLM.

Office Ashley Block, . Front st., Belleville.

Money Saved is Money Earned

can earn you money by saving it for you in your Fire Insurance.

The Anglo-American Fire Ins. Co
The Merchants Fire Ins. Co.
The Equity Fire Ins. Co.

Are all strong Canadian stock companies and insure Farm and City Property at lower rate than other stock companies. Call and see me before placing your fire insurance.

Office—Bridge St., same entrance Quinte Laundry, Belleville.

H. FREEMAN KETCHESON

Fire, Life & Plate Glass Insurance.

Liverpool & London & Globe of England.

Waterloo Mutual, of Waterloo, Ont,
Lloyd's Plate Glass.
Home Life Association, Toronto,
North British & Mercantile.

Farm and City Property insured in First-class Reliable Companies and at lowest current rates. Losses promptly settled. Land valuation, and transact general Real Estate business and sale or purchase and renting of property. Appraiser for the Hastings Loan & Investment Society. Money to Loan.

W. P. HUDSON, Office above Rathbun's office, cor. Bridge and Pinnacle Sts., opposite Postoffice and Hotel Quinte, Belleville,

'Phone 168.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A. G. NORTHROP,

Issuer of Marriage Licenses, Shire Hall, Belleville, Ont.

CHAUNCEY ASHLEY,

Issuer of Marriage Licenses.

Private Office, Bridge St., Belleville, opposite the Post Office.

Residence, first house east of W. W. Chown's Mfg. Co., Station St.

Appointments made.

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

Life has no blessing like a prudent friend.

FAST MAIL SERVICE

Bay of Quinte Route

TO

ROCHESTER N. Y.

Strs. "North King" and "Caspian"

Taking Effect 27th June.

GOING DAILY (EXCEPT MONDAY)

Lv. Belleville .... 11.38 p. m.
Ar. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 6.43 a. m

RETURNING DAILY (Except Sunday)

Lv. Summerville, N. Y. (Port of Rochester) .... 8.30 p. m.
Ar. Belleville .... 3.25 a. m.

Baggage checked to all points. Connection with all railways.

$1.00 THOUSAND ISLANDS $1.00

AND RETURN.

Commencing 28th June. Steamer leaves Belleville at 3 25 a.m. daily except Monday for 1000 Islands, calling at Bay of Quinte ports, Kingston, Alexandria Bay and Gananoque. Passing through American and Canadian channels.

Right reserved to change time with or without notice.

Full information from

THE RATHBUN CO.,
U. E. THOMPSON, } Agents.
E. E. HORSEY, G. P. & F. Agent, Kingston.

Str. "Alexandria"

Montreal, Rochester & Quebec Transit Co'y.

Popular Quebec Excursions

NOW ON.

Belleville to Quebec and return.. $18 00
Belleville to Montreal and return $12.00
(including meals and berth)

Steamer runs all rapids

For Rochester, Olcott Beach, Niagara Falls and Buffalo every Saturday at 11 a.m.

Particulars from

A. W. HEPBURN, General Manager, Picton, Ont.
THE RATHBUN CO. Agents. Belleville.

The Deseronto Navigation Co

TIME TABLE.

Taking effect April 13, 1903.

Belleville, Trenton, Picton & Napanee

Str. "ELLA ROSS"

Leaves Belleville for Trenton at 10 a. m., daily, Sundays Excepted, returning leaves Trenton at 1 p. m., leaving Belleville at 3 p.m. for Deseronto, Napanee and Picton.

Quick and Superior Service to NEW YORK CITY

Steamers RESOLUTE and RELIANCE will leave Deseronto for Oswego after arrival of Str. Ella Ross connecting at Oswego with the New York, Ontario Western Ry.

Fare to New York, Single, $8.40
Return, $13.25

For further particulars apply to THE RATHBUN CO., Local Agents

J. F. CHAPMAN,
Asst. Gen. Frt. Pass. Agt., Deseronto

R. C Carter, General Manager, Deseronto.

Str. "Niagara"

Monday 13th July—True Blues to Picton.

Tuesday, 14th July — St. Andrew's Church Sunday School to Twelve O'Clock Point.

Wednesday, 15th July—Baptist Sunday School to Twelve O'Clock Point.

Saturday 18th July—First Saturday Afternoon Excursion to Picton. Fare 35c. Leaves wharf at 2.30 p.m. sharp.

THOMAS STEWART,
Manager,
45 Bridge St., Belleville.

Goods We Have

at Right Prices

—Hammocks.
—Fishing Tackle.
—Tennis Goods.
—Golf Goods.
—Lacrosse Goods.
—Base Ball Goods.
—Screen Doors and Windows.
—Fruit Jars.
—Fruit Jar Rubbers.
—Wall Paper.
—Crystal Glass Vases.
—Glass Ware.
—Dinner Sets.
—Toilet Sets.
—Ladies' Hose.
—Ladies' Vests.

Everything in smallwares.

AT THE BEE HIVE

Chas. N. Sulman

Orders for bookbinding should be left at this office. It is surprising how nice a volume can be made of these magazines, even though they are somewhat soiled from much handling. Books, magazines or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books, with any kind of ruling, made to order. All work warranted first-class. THE INTELLIGENCER, Belleville.

Just received at The Intelligencer Job Office 50,000 new Envelopes for business purposes; printed or plain. Call and examine before buying.

Our Mid-Summer Sale

Our entire stock of FANCY GOODS,

Including China (cups and saucers, Vases, Dishes, etc., etc.), Brass Goods, Candles, Silk Shades, Brushes (both hat and hair), Mirrors, Candlebras, Dickens and Art Pottery Ware, all 40 per cent. off regular prices.

Wrist Bags AND Chatelaines

Latest New York designs in walrus, seal and other leathers, from 35c to $7.00 each, all

25 per cent. off regular price.

Framed Pictures

Entire stock of our Art Gallery, comprising Steel Engravings, Platimums, Prints, etc., beautifully framed. Prices from 50c to $25, all

30 per cent. off regular prices

Wall Paper

Special prices on all Wall Papers and free bordering—2 yards with each double roll.

Paper Hanging and Painting—the largest and most efficient staff of workmen.

C. B. Scantlebury

Belleville's Decorator.

Wall Paper Wholesale and Retail.

For the Revelsworth Millions,

—or—

AN ANGEL OF EVIL.

A Story of Intense Interest in which a Beautiful but Unscrupulous Woman's Schemes are Made to Fall by the Man She Loves.

countess—nothing about the singing chap she bolted with at sixteen; all that came out long after. Well, I fell in love with her. That wasn't surprising, for she was infernally good-looking! I suppose she is still; but her face to me now is about as pleasant as a death's head.

"She pretended to be very fond of me. She's as artful as the deuce! She encouraged me, led me on and held me off, played hot and cold with me, till I was so madly in love with her I believe I'd have blown my brains out if she'd told me to. Before I knew where I was she had got me to marry her in the presence of the English Consul in the English church. There wasn't a thing she hadn't arranged to have it all regular; when I tried to get out of it afterwards, I found out that.

"Of course I never meant to marry her at all; but she was too much for me. Just at first I thought myself very happy. Everybody raved about my wife's beauty, and of course she she was a lady and all that, and knew how to behave. I wrote home to my people a lot of silly gush, and sent her portrait. Then what did my dad do but get that tutor-chap, who was still in Italy, afraid to go home, to seek out all her history and find out about her first marriage!

"It was nearly a year before it came to my ears. We were rushing about, and I—there never was such a fiend to spend—money melted in her fingers: I was so infatuated with her at first that I didn't drink or touch a card—I'd have spend the whole day at her feet if she'd have let me. That woman might have made anything she liked of me; but do you think she cared? She was the Honorable Mrs. Devereux, she had beautiful dresses and jewels and carriages, and we lived at the best hotels. My mother sympathized, and kept me going when my father stopped my allowance; but do you think she was decently grateful to me for all that? Not she! In less than a year She grew cool and scornful, and had the impudence to tell me I bored her. Bored her! Think of it! A jumped-up penniless governess! And still, if you'll believe me, I was madly in love with her. When she flirted, I went down upon my knees to beg her to be faithful to me; I wanted to pick a quarrel with every man she looked at. But all she did was to laugh, and tell me she had yet to meet the man who could tempt her to make a fool of herself.

"Of course, even at twenty, I knew something of the world, and had knocked about a bit. But I tell you that woman's scornfulness about religion and everything good, and the things she said, downright frightened me! She was rather superstitious, and turned it on about the saints now and then when she got excited; but in general she laughed and scoffed at everything.

"Then, when that letter from home came telling how they'd raked up about her elopement with that foreign singing fellow, do you think she was taken aback?"

"'Since the man is dead,' she said to me quite coolly, 'what in the world does it matter?'

"'You pretended you were a single woman,' I said. 'Do you think I'd have married you if I'd known?'

"'My dear Bertie,' she replied—and I can hear that soft snaky voice of hers now—'why trouble ourselves about the past? I married a scamp who is luckily dead. Now I have married a gentleman of the hightest character and intelligence, and I only hope his record before marriage has been as blameless as mine.'

"Blameless! That's what she called herself! But that first marriage stuck in my throat, and she never had the same hold upon me afterwards.

"Awful rows we began to have after this! I found she was encouraging men to give her presents. I could never prove that she was unfaithful to me, but she'd take anything from anybody, and sit talking with that old stayer Prince Galitzi, and listening and laughing when he told his stories that even men shy at, until I was half off my head with rage.

"We were always in want of money and leaving places in debt, and I went in for cards partly to forget my worries, partly to see if I couldn't pick up a bit that way. Then there was another woman, of course; and, if Francesca had been the most affectionate wife alive, instead of treating me like dirt, she couldn't have put on more stagedy-airs.

"At last, as we led such a cat-and-dog life, I went home and consulted our family lawyer to see whether I couldn't get my marriage annulled. But it wouldn't work, and, when I got back to her, she found out what I had been up to. She got it out of me when I was half drunk and felt sorry about it.

"She didn't say anything, but just looked hard at me and went out of the room. Four days later a parcel came for her by post. We were in Paris, and the postmark was 'Rome.' I thought is might be a present, and in a fit of jealousy I opened it. Fastened with tremendous care in a wooden box I found a flat bottle, corked and sealed, containing some liquid as clear and colorless as water. Outside the bottle a bit of paper was pasted, on which was scrawled in Italian in very large letters, 'The wash for the complexion.'

"Of course that put me off the scent; but there was another enclosure—a little flat wooden box, tied up and sealed as if it were the most precious thing in the world. Just to make Francesca mad I broke it open. Inside was a little roll of parchment, very old and yellow, on which were a lot of closely-written directions in faded ink. They were in Italian, and I'm not good at languages; but I tried to spell it out, and it seemed to be directions about medicine—how many drops were wanted, and what sort of effects would be produced. I skipped this, and went to the last lines, which said, 'This is an exact copy of the original recipe for the Acqua di Perugia, called also Acqua Tofana and Acquetta, as taken down by me Maria Spara, from the lips of my mother, Toffania Spara, in the year of her dreadful death seventeen hundred and nineteen.'

"All this meant nothing to me, as I was always a bad hand at history and things of that sort; but, when Francesca came in unexpectedly and found me poring over the bit of parchment, the way her face changed set me thinking.

"I didn't let on to her, but pretended to believe her when she told me how it was an ancient and celebrated prescription for a face-wash to remove freckles. But I went that day and looked up an awfully learned old Frenchman, a friend of my father's, and I asked him in the course of conversation if he'd ever heard the name of 'Toffania Spara,' and of the 'Acqua di Perugia.' I remember his words now.

"'Heard of her!' he cried, pushing up his spectacles over his bald head. 'Who has not heard of the great secret poisoner of Naples in the beginning of the eighteenth century, the descendant and worthy successor of that Hieronyma Spara who was hanged in Rome some fifty years before? This Acqua Tofana, which the hag who manufactured it actually sent all over Italy under the impudent disguise of the "Holy Manna of St. Nicola of Bari," was the means of causing the death of more than six hundred people before Toffania Spara was seized, tried, and strangled, as her infamous predecessor had been in the year seventeen hundred and nineteen.'

"'And the poison,' I gasped, for I was a good deal knocked over by all this, as you may well believe—'the recipe—what has become of that?'

"'There is a tradition,' he said, 'that the secret was handed down among La Spara's descendents. Historians all agree that the liquid was colorless and tasteless, and that it was warranted to destroy life in a day, week, month, or number of months, as the purchaser preferred. It produced its effects almost imperceptibly by weakening the appetite and the respiratory organs; but modern chemists differ as to its ingredients. Even in the present day secret poisoning is extensively practised in some of the more secluded Italian towns and villages; and there are certain alleged fortune-telling crones to whom pretty wives are said to resort when they get tired of their husbands——'

"I didn't wait to hear any more. Seizing my hat, I rushed back to the hotel and burst into my wife's room without knocking.

"There she stood by the dressing-table, white as a sheet, holding in her hand a flask of rare old brandy I always kept in my pocket, and a little of which I took after nearly every meal. She saw the look on my face, and she was beginning some lie about what she was doing, when I wrenched the flask out of her grasp and dragged from her pocket the flat bottle of Acquetta. It was open, and the brandy had been tampered with. My wife had set to work to poison me!

"At first she denied it; then she sat quite quiet, listening, and laughing while I stormed. And, when I taunted her with having got rid of her first husband that way, she gave me an answer that made my blood run cold.

"'He had made me hate him, and he was in my way,' she said

"I don't mind telling you she frightened me. It seemed to me that, if she hated me and meant to kill me, she would do it. And you can't get your wife tried and hanged. Besides, what proof had I?

"'If you bring accusations against me, you will only be laughed at,' she said. 'Every one knows that you drink and are not always responsible for your actions.'

"Then I made it clear to her that I would have nothing to do with her in the future, and that, if she made any claim upon me of if she ever dared to use my name, I would get my people to hunt up all about her first husband's death and have her tried for it. All I wanted was to get rid of her; and, as to what became of her, I didn't care a hang! Why should I? She had meant to murder me; and, besides, she was quite cunning enough to keep herself afloat without any help from me. She could go back to her governessing, and I should tell my people she had bolted.

"So I left her in the hotel and went off to Monte Carlo, and afterwards to England. But the confounded part of it was that I couldn't forget her! Hating her and being afraid of her made me think about her a lot more than loving her did. I was always afraid of her finding me out and trying to do for me again, or getting at me by poisoned letters or something. So that I never stayed at any place long, and was always drinking and gambling, that I mightn't think of her horrid face and malevolent eyes.

"From the time I left her in Paris I never saw her again until that night at the music-hall when you interfered. Then I met her in the park with that other fellow, who you say was your brother, and, after that, with you at the regatta. The sight of her unnerves me and makes me ill for weeks. I tell you that woman has ruined me—ruined me! Her face haunts me—I can't get it out of my sight night or day. I see her figure in dark corners of the room, and I fight with it for hours sometimes—it seems to wrap itself around me and stifle me——"

He broke off, and, burying his face in his hands on the table, burst into hysterical and unmanly tears. Shocked by the sight, Dudley did his best to reason with him; but time was precious.

After handing Francesca's husband a receipt in full for the sum he had won from him at play and a cheque to meet his present needs, Dudley hurried from Paris that same morning by the mail-train for England. He could not bring himself to face the little mother yet, while her son's cold-blooded murder remained unavenged, and he therefore left France without seeing her.

Late in the afternoon of a still September day he stopped his cab on his way from Caring Cross to Waterloo in order to purchase a revolver, which he placed in the brest-pocket of his overcoat.

Fortune seemed all on his side. On the platform at Waterloo station a handsome foreign-looking youth, hurrying out of a train which had just arrived from Hampton Court, ran against him, and at first Dudley hardly recognized Joseph Welldon in this over-dressed perfumed little dandy, with an enormous rose in his buttonhole, and a gold watch-chain, which had formerly been the property of Victor Revelsworth, adorning his waistcoat.

He laid his hand upon the lad's collar.

At first Joe started and turned pale at the unexpected meeting. Then he speedily recovered himself, and tried to cary off matters with a high hand.

"I'm not your servant," he said in a thick voice. "I was Mrs. Revelsworth's, and I shouldn't mind being Francesca's, if she wasn't going to marry you. But I won't be yours!"

Dudley glanced at the station clock.

"My train is due," he said "and, as I have a good deal to say to you, you must travel down in the same carriage as I. If you give me the least trouble, I will at once hand you over to the police for stealing my brother's watch-chain."

